Halting the passing crowd is one thing. Recruiting Phonograph and Record purchasers from it is another.

It is the part of the Phonograph to draw an audience. It is your part to see that the audience has all the information it should have.

Try window cards.

Do not despise the one-Record-a-month customer. He has his friends and you need his endorsement.

Hold concerts. Many who stop to listen, stay to buy.

Treat strangers as you would customers and they'll become customers.

Questions and Answers

We have opened this department in order to print, each month, questions asked us in letters from Dealers and Phonograph owners about the regulation of their machines, together with our answers. This information will serve to clear up many important points on which you should be posted so as to keep your own Phonographs in perfect running order, and also give your customers valuable advice.

F. K., Sparta, Wis.—In winding up my "Triumph" Phonograph, that I use for exhibition work, there is a rumbling noise and the handle feels as if the spring were relaxing or the rachet were about to give way.

[It is evident the springs have become dry or rusty, causing them to stick so that the sudden release of the spring produces the jarring noise. Stand the Phonograph on end, with the mechanism exposed to view and apply powdered graphite to the springs, followed by oil. There is also an oil hole in the top of the spring barrel through which oil should be applied.]

E. A. H., Nevada City, Calif.—I have an Edison Standard Phonograph and some of my Records have developed a kind of whistling sound. The noise seems like a sharp grind not unlike the squeak of machinery that needs oil.

[The trouble probably lies in your Reproducer not being properly adjusted or needing new parts, such as rubber gaskets, which act as cushions for the diaphragm. Secure a new copper diaphragm with rubber and paper washers. First place one of the rubber gaskets into the cup, then the cupped paper washer into the cupped edge of which should be inserted the rim of the copper diaphragm. On top of this should be placed the plain paper washer, followed by another rubber gasket; then the metal washer, and finally the clamping ring. The clamping ring should be screwed up just tightly enough to hold the diaphragm and washers firmly in the cup. If you find the tone too sharp or shrill, loosen the clamping ring slightly: if there is a tendency to blast, screw the ring up slightly.]

Canadian Dealer.—Why not advertise the retail prices of Gem, Standard, and Home outfits in your ads and literature, as you did when the prices were $10.00, $20.00 and $30.00? It would save us Dealers a lot of explanation regarding change in prices. I think it only fair and business-like to do so.

[To advertise retail prices of our machines, as suggested, would, in our opinion, be detrimental to the sales of Edison Phonographs. To advertise the new prices would have the effect of keeping people away from Dealers' stores and give the latter no opportunity to explain why the prices had been raised. We realize that this causes the Dealer some trouble in having to explain the situation, but isn't it better to go to this trouble than to keep people away entirely? Then, too, if we attempted to put prices in our advertisements, we would have one set of prices in American publications, many of which go into Canada, and another set of prices in Canadian publications. This would cause a complication that would have a tendency to keep the people away from Dealers' stores.]

F. N. S., Chicago.—My Edison Standard Phonograph plays half a tone flat in music, talking records being all right. The Motor, Reproducer and Horn are all right. My Reproducer works satisfactorily on other machines, but other Reproducers used on mine disclose the same fault.

[We think the trouble is due to poor regulation of the machine. Any one of several things may cause this. We suggest that you first try the adjustment of the cylinder shaft between centres by moving it endwise by hand. If there is too much or too little play you can adjust it by means of the centre pivot adjusting screw in the swing arm. There should be just enough play of the shaft between centres to make sure it does not bind when the machine runs. Next see that the Idler Pulley works freely. Apply a little oil to its hub, but be careful to get none on the belt. The tension of the pulley should not be so strong as to obstruct the free running of the machine.

If these suggestions fail, notice whether any of the Governor springs have become bent or there is another irregularity. You might turn the Governor to a different position on the shaft by unscrewing the collar and screwing down again when it is in a new position. Be sure the Governor bearings do not become worn through lack of oil. You should apply a little graphite to the pinions and oil to the bearings at frequent intervals.]

Sees Good Times Ahead

Sales Manager F. K. Dolbeer, of the National Phonograph Co., has returned from a seven weeks' trip through the west, northwest and to the Pacific coast. He traveled 16,000 miles and visited Edison Jobbers in 28 cities.

Returning, Mr. Dolbeer attended the convention of the National Association of Credit Men at Denver, as a delegate from the New York branch. As a result of his own observations and reports by the credit men, Mr. Dolbeer is confident that the fall trade in Edison Phonographs will show a decided improvement in every section of the country.

Meet Mr. Good Times half way—Write for the free advertising banner (p. 13); the free newspaper electro (p. 11); the free post card electro (p. 10)—these will help some.

The Jobbers' Convention

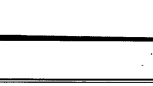
The 1908 convention of the Talking Machine Jobbers' National Association, at Atlantic City, N. J., on July 6 and 7, was in every way the most successful gathering of talking machine men ever held.

The two days were taken up with listening to reports by the association's officers, to able papers prepared by leading members on the different features of the business, and to open discussion of means of fostering the growth of the talking machine business.

The former officers were re-elected, as follows: President, James F. Bowers, Chicago; Vice-President, W. D. Andrews, Buffalo; Secretary, Perry B. Whitsit, Columbus; Treasurer, Louis Buehn, Philadelphia; Executive Committee, Lawrence McGreal, Milwaukee; W. E. Henry, Pittsburgh; Edward H. Uhl, Chicago; E. Percy Ashton, Detroit; J. Newcomb Blackman, New York.

Important matters discussed included "cut outs" and defective Records, the convention favoring a plan whereby such Records would be exchanged on an even basis. Another subject was that Dealers be required to invest more capital in stock and that the number of Dealers be limited in different localities. Disapproval of manufacturers' supplying the retail trade direct and conducting retail establishments was also expressed.

The Executive Committee was instructed to take up with manufacturers the question of sending out all Records in sealed packages. The association also favored a plan requiring members of the association to refer applications from new Dealers to the manufacturer for the latter to pass on their eligibility. There was talk of establishing a Record clearing house, the idea being for each of the Jobbers to file a list of over-stock in Records with the secretary of the association so as to make exchanges among themselves on an even basis.



Assistant General Manager C. H. Wilson, of the National Phonograph Company, gave the Jobbers an optimistic talk on the trade outlook for fall and said there would be some important business announcements in the near future that would interest Edison Jobbers.

Frank L. Dyer, chairman of the executive committee of the National Phonograph Company, assured those present that President Gilmore's policies would be carried out during his absence abroad. At the banquet of the association which was held at the Royal Palace Hotel, Mr. Dyer read a letter from Mr. Edison regretting that he could not take advantage of the invitation to attend the convention.

C. H. Wilson also spoke at the banquet and announced amid loud applause that the National Phonograph Company would hereafter take back all "cut outs" and defective Records.

Repeating Profits on Repeating Attachments

Do you remember when you were a small boy and went to the circus? The twenty-five cents you parted with for a ticket to the main tent merely admitted you to a whole assortment of temptations, all costing more money.

Model D Reproducing Attachment

The purchase of a Phonograph is something like this. The original purchase leads on to others, and all of these others mean added profits to you.

Among the temptations which the purchaser of a Home or Triumph machine meets with is a Repeating Attachment which enables the Phonograph owner to hear a favorite Record over and over without going near the Phonograph.

Also for dance music, when everybody wants to dance and nobody wants to operate the Phonograph, this device keeps the waltz or two-step going indefinitely.

Model D Reproducing Attachments for both the Home and Triumph instruments retail at $7.50 and afford the same profit as Phonographs and Records.

Carry a few of these Attachments in stock and see that every Home or Triumph purchaser is made acquainted with them.

W. E. Gilmore Sails for Europe

W. E. Gilmore, President of the National Phonograph Co., sailed for Europe July 7th, on the Kronprinzessin Cecile of the North German line. He was accompanied by Mrs. Gilmore and their son and daughter. As Mr. Gilmore was embarking he was handed a special delivery letter conveying the good wishes of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, who were holding their annual convention at Atlantic City, N. J. The signatures of all of the senders were attached to the letter.

A Clever Bryan Record Cartoon For Your Window

Courtesy of Philadelphia Record

"Why didn't you think of that for me, Teddy?"

Of the hundreds of cartoons on the Bryan Records, which have appeared in the newspapers throughout the country, none has made a bigger hit than the one shown here, which appeared in the Philadelphia Record. Being non-partisan in its nature, it brings a laugh from both sides of the fence.

Believing that all of our Dealers will see the advertising value of such a cartoon, we have secured the original from the Record, and have struck off several thousand for Dealers who want it.

The cartoon is about 16 inches square and is sure to draw a crowd and thus spread the good news that Bryan's Records are on sale.

The cartoon is free. Write for it.

375 Attend a Recital

Three hundred and seventy-five people attended an Edison Recital, given on the night of July and, by the Alhambra Furniture and Undertaking Company, of Alhambra, California.

This is a very fine attendance for a town of only 1,500 population. It goes to show how much interest there is in Edison Concerts when they are properly gotten up and advertised.

This firm went about it in the right way and succeeded in arousing great enthusiasm over Edison Phonographs and Records. They expect to land a number of sales as a result of their enterprise.

A neat invitation card was mailed out a few days in advance to a list of Phonograph owners, prospects and other names selected from the town directory. The card was 3¼ by 5½ inches in size and was printed in script lettering. The wording was as follows:

You are cordially invited to attend an Edison Recital at the HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM,
Thursday evening, July 2nd, at 8 p. m.
The new July Records will be used.
This is the first of a series of Recitals which we expect to give.
Please present this invitation at the door.

The Dealer Who Forgot

There was once a dealer who forgot that August was a dull month. Instead of letting all of his clerks go, putting a five-per-week boy in charge and going away fishing, he kept right on doing business just as if it were the month before Christmas.

His advertisements appeared in the newspapers getting the prominence of half-page spreads because all the other fellows had quit.

When the August Records arrived he arranged an evening concert and invited the public in to hear them.

As all the other places of amusement had closed down for August, the public came in droves.

He fixed up some attractive window displays, sent out the Phonogram to his list of customers, kept the air in his vicinity filled with music and, in fact, smashed all trade traditions.

Likewise, he smashed all records for sales since January first.

And the moral is: It is profitable to profit by the unprofitable actions of others.

With many the Edison Phonograph as a side line has become the main line.

That big free banner offered on page 13 will bring your store out beyond the building line.

In August two Records are possible, one for sales, the other for lack of sales. It's up to you.

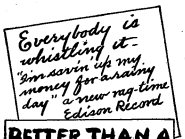
To Help the Window Sell the Goods

If there is any free advertising medium it is your window.

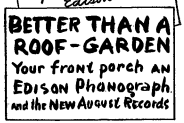
It should be more than an exhibit of goods—it should be a mine of information.

The goods in a window are the pictures. The story should be told on cards.

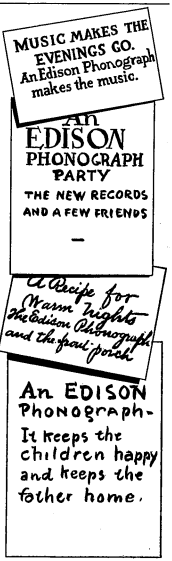
If the illustration is right and the argument is right, then you have an advertisement as large as your window that is reaching thousands.



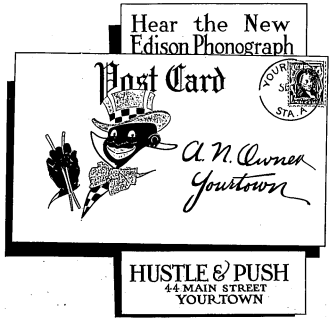
Window cards need not be pretty. The most effective window cards ever written were done with a blue pencil on wrapping paper.



What they need do is say something of interest about the goods shown, and say it briefly.



Just an eye-full—just what can be gathered at a glance is enough.



They may be written, lettered or printed. The thing is to have something to say and say it in the most legible way at your command.

We show here some good sentences. Use them in connection with your window displays. They will help the window sell the goods.

A Special Invitation from You

Our September advertisement which will appear in the magazines about August 20th, requests readers to go to an Edison Dealer on August 25th and hear the new September Records.

Why not back up this request with a special invitation from your store?

For the purpose we would suggest a souvenir post card. On the front have printed the picture which appears on the September Supplement. On the back say:

> Hear the new Edison Phonograph Records at Our Store and Make Your Selections.

Follow this with the names of the new Records and your name and address.

The cost of getting out such a card is small. The cost of sending it out to Phonograph owners and prospective Phonograph buyers is small.

And results will be large.

It is another case of team work—hitching your advertisement to ours—focusing our advertising to your store.

If you will agree to get out the post cards, we will send you an electrotype of the illustration free.

Broadway Vaudeville Anywhere

On your front porch, for instance, when you are tired with your day's work and lack the energy necessary to entertain yourself. Then will stir you with its marches, amuse you with its rag-time songs and dances or soothe you with its melodies. It sings as sweetly as the most cultivated singer and renders perfectly the tones of the various instruments of orchestras and bands.

Possibly you have heard "talking machines." Have you heard a genuine Edison Phonograph? There's a difference. Some machines merely reproduce sounds and noises. The sweetness and the perfect expression for which you prize music are qualities which distinguish the Edison from its imitators.

Phonographs $12.50 and up. Records 35 cents.

Lessons for Dealers

Lesson I.

Our ad-ver-tis-ing sends Pho-no-graph buy-ers to some Edison store.

Your ad-ver-tis-ing should bring Edison buy-ers to your Edison store.

All we can do is make cus-to-mers. But cus-to-mers do not put mon-ey in your till un-til they are your cus-to-mers.

There-fore, you must hitch* your ad-ver-tis-ing to our ad-ver-tis-ing to sell the goods.

* Hitch: This is, of course, a figure of speech referring to "team-work."

This Big, Trade-Bringing Banner is Free to Edison Dealers

If the sign over your door were white with black letters and you were to change it some morning to red with gold letters, more people would see the new sign than ever saw the old. That is because we soon fail to notice the things we see unchanged for a long time.

Variety is the ginger of business.

Every new way of attracting attention to your store is a paying investment whether it is a sign, a newly trimmed window, a hanger, a Phonograph in operation or an advertisement in the newspaper.

The cheapest advertising space you have is the front of your store—cheap because the rent is the same whether you use it for advertising purposes or not.

The banner illustrated above will make your store front work for you. It is made of heavy muslin, painted in four colors, and will cover a space ten feet long and three feet deep.

Put it across the front of your store and it will reach the eyes of everybody on both sides of the street from one end of the block to the other.

If you have not already ordered one, fill out and send us the coupon below and you will get a banner free. It would cost you several dollars to duplicate it.

Send for it, put it up and make your store the most conspicuous one in the block.

Advance List

New Edison Records for October, 1908

RECORDS listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before September 25th, 1908, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 2 P. M. on September 26th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on September 27th. Supplements, Phonograms and Bulletins will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after September 26th, but must not be circulated among the public before September 27th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 2 P. M. on September 26th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are requested to place orders for October Records on or before August 10th. Dealers should place October orders with Jobbers before August 15th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

9948 Old Daddy Peg Leg Two-step — New York Military Band

A catchy two-step played in accented tempo by the New York Military Band (formerly the Edison Military Band). It is from the pen of the gifted composer of "Mosquitos' Parade," (Record 7503), and "Mouse and the Clock," (Record 9434). A strikingly original effect is worked into the trio in the marking of time by "old daddy's peg leg." This has been voted one of the best of the new two-steps and is to be used extensively for dancing this fall and winter. Composer, Howard Whitney; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

9949 Don't Take Me Home — Ed Morton

A new Edison artist in one of the comic song hits of the season. Ed Morton is a warm favorite at the New York roof gardens and no vocalist is more in demand in vaudeville. He is a wonderfully expressive singer and you are able to catch his every word in the Record. This one recites the fortunes (or misfortunes) of a poor married man who had been out "on the town." Everybody he meets insists on taking him home. He has visions of what is waiting for him there and tearfully protests. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Vincent Bryan; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

9950 Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovey Mine — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

The charming seashore fleeting duet from the musical play, "Three Twins." Ada Jones and Billy Murray sing the lines of the verse by turns and both join in the chorus. The duet is the equal of anything these premier duetists have done together. It is sure to win as many encores from Edison Phonograph owners as the original piece did during the successful run of "Three Twins" in New York last season. At that time it broke all records for curtain calls. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Karl L. Hoschna; words, O. A. Hauerbach; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

9951 Summer Recollections — Albert Benzler

Easily the best piano solo since "Violets" (Record 8394), and a rare example of successful piano recording. The selection begins with Gustav Lange's enticingly sweet "Flower Song," and concludes with the dainty "La Fontain" by Karl Bohm. Mr. Benzler's performance displays faultless technique and does full justice to the masterpieces of these two well known European composers. All the elusive nuances of light and shade in the piano tone are perfectly reproduced. Composers, Lange-Bohm.

9952 Miserere from "Il Trovatore" — Miss Hinkle and Mr. Anthony

The wonderful duet "Miserere," from Verdi's greatest opera. One of the finest gems of dramatic song in any language. The duet is sung by Leonora and her lover, the Troubadour, who is in prison. The music begins with the maiden's lament, which is sung in a series of beautiful, plaintive notes. These are heard in the prison by her lover, who takes up the song with the famous "Ah! I have sighed to rest me." Miss Hinkle and Mr. Anthony give a highly artistic interpretation of the Verdi masterpiece. The Record is in English and will prove a never-ending delight to all who have a love for music. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Verdi.

9953 Jubilee Minstrels — Edison Minstrels

The curtain rises on "College Life," sung in real "rah! rah!" style by the entire company. Then follows a volley of new and breezy jokes (no sign of a chestnut among them) by the Edison Company's famous coterie of minstrel men. If there's anything in the saying, "It makes you smile to see others smile," this Record is due to score a huge success. It's one endless succession of riotous fun with those king-pins of minstrelsy, Collins, Harlan, Murray and Porter, "whooping 'em up" to the last strains of the closing chorus, "I'm Happy When the Band Plays Dixie." Arrangement original and not published.

9954 I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes — Manuel Romain

Admirers of the great minstrel tenor (and their name is legion) will enthuse over this exquisite tone-poem. It breathes a sentiment as sweet as "the breath of new mown hay." Indeed, it is just such a tenor solo as a Lew Dockstader or Al G. Fields would select as the vocal center-piece of an old time minstrel performance. The title tells much of the story, but it must be mentioned that the refrain, which is the prettiest part, is in the ever-pleasing waltz time. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, Arthur Lamb; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

9955 House Cleaning Time — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

A thrilling domestic episode that everyone knows about from sad experience. Ada Jones as the "lady behind the broom" is as peevish as the occasion demands, even if she does say she is "A woman of few words." Len Spencer, as John, only succeeds in getting in her way—(Poor John!) He is given a good dusting until he feels he is the most unnecessary piece of furniture in the house. Mary's mood changes suddenly though, when they run across a packet of their old love letters. Household cares fly out of the window with the remembrance of happy bygone days. Mary: "You remember how hard I used to try to make the cocoa?" John: "Yes, and how hard you used to make them." (Both laugh.) A tender bit of pathos is added as Mary sings: "In After Years When I Am Old." Original vaudeville sketch, not published.

9956 The Old Time Rag — Arthur Collins

The "real thing" in a rag time ditty and just Arthur Collins' style. He sings of the "Wiggly, giggly two-step time" that the coon does with his dusky affinity, and throws off many a genuine negro giggle, expressive of the aforesaid coon's ticklish feelings. The melody is Theodore Morse's best brand and shows plenty of action throughout. Two verses and two choruses. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore Morse; words, Ed Madden; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

9957 Waltz from "La Bohème" — Edison Concert Band

"Bohème" is probably the most talked-about opera of the day. It is also one of the most recent and has won Puccini a place among the music masters of operatic history. In the entire score there is nothing more admirable than his exquisite waltz. Its soft, tripping rhythm may fairly be likened to the murmur of the waterfall—especially those passages in which bells are featured. The Edison Concert Band give it a grand presentation. Composer, Puccini; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

9958 Sunbonnet Sue — Byron G. Harlan

Gus Edwards' cleverest child-song offers Mr. Harlan the same kind of an opportunity he had in Record 9562, "School Days." Both words and tune are far above the average for "popular" songs, and Harlan has unquestionably added another to his long list of "big sellers." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Gus Edwards; words, Will Cobb; publishers, Gus Edwards Music Publishing Co., New York.

9959 Beautiful Isle of Somewhere — Anthony and Harrison

Many admirers of sacred songs have the entire lot of the Anthony-Harrison duets. Ever since their first duet Record, the famous "Glory Song" (made in July, 1903), these delightful duetists have worked together until they mastered the art of perfect Record making. Anthony's clear, sweet tenor notes are admirably balanced by the sonorous lower tones of Harrison's rich baritone. The present Record is one of those fine hymns that are more affecting on their one hundredth hearing than on their first. An accompaniment of bells and cathedral chimes adds to the impressiveness. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. S. Fearis; words, Jessie B. Pounds.

9960 Patrol of the Scouts — Edison Symphony Orchestra

A brilliant tone-picture that vividly depicts the scouts' patrol. The start is announced by faint drum taps heard away off. As the scouts approach, the music grows in volume, reaching a grand climax as they draw up for review. After some of the most delightful ensemble playing, the retreat begins, the music gradually softening until it is lost in the distance. The melody throughout is of the ear-tickling variety, the feature being a whistling refrain that is simply unforgettable. Composer, E. Bocalari; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of the October Phonogram.

9961 When It's Moonlight on the Silv'ry Rio Grande — James F. Harrison

Here is a song published in far-off Australia about our famed Rio Grande River. The writer, it seems, is a wanderer, with memories of a happy home there. The air is one of charming simplicity, not unlike Record 9428, "In the Evening by the Moonlight, Dear Louise." A bells obligato accentuates the effect of the pretty refrain, and Harrison's robust baritone voice is equally a pleasing as in his best known solos, "Heart Bowed Down," (Record 40742), and "In Old Madrid," (Record 7007). Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Joe Slater; words, Millwood and McAllister; publishers, D. Davis & Co, Sydney, N. S. W.

9962 Ah! So Pure — Frederic C. Freemantel

A new singer in an old, old favorite, "Ah! So Pure," from the opera "Martha." Mr. Freemantel has a sympathetic tenor of remarkable range, his tones in the upper register being especially pure and well sustained. His interpretation of Flotow's classic is masterly, to say the least, and will serve to emphasize anew its depths of romantic tenderness. Sung in English. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Frederick von Flotow.

9963 Matt Keefe's Yodle Song — Matt Keefe and George Stricklett

Something new and decidedly different in a yodle song. The song (by Stricklett) and the yodle (by Keefe) alternate throughout. There are no less than ten different yodling parts, some of them entirely unique. The wide demand last month for Keefe's first Edison Record proves that yodlling is an acceptable as ever when well done. It is easy to understand Matt Keefe's success on the stage after hearing his latest yodle. His notes are as clear as a mocking bird's and reproduce perfectly. Song and words, Matt Keefe; not published.

9964 Wishes — Collins and Harlan

Collins and Harlan score again with a new duet that will fit right in with the best of their old-time successes. This one is a hodge-podge of foolishness, highly interesting and set to the merriest tune imaginable. There is not very much connection between the three different verses and choruses and the verbal stiles that are sandwiched in between them, but there is a keen contest on all the time as to which will win the most laughs. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ben M. Jerome; words, Irving B. Lee; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co, New York.

9965 If You Cared For Me — Frederic Rose

A new love ballad with an enticing waltz refrain, by those clever song writers, Rose and Snyder. If possible, Rose sings it more effectively than any of his earlier songs. His Record will do much to fulfill the prediction that the song will eventually be heard from coast to coast. In any event, it represents an added triumph for Frederic Rose, whose manly tenor voice has won him golden plaudits since he became a member of the Edison staff. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Rose and Snyder; publishers, Rose & Snyder Co, New York.

9966 You Will Have to Sing an Irish Song — Ada Jones

This time Ada Jones is an Irish lass who is serenaded by an ardent Dutch wooer. She informs him without regret or sigh that he has no chance on earth to win her with that class of music. His Dutch music may sound fine, she tells him, but still it's Dutch to her Irish heart—"nuff ced." Then she gives him an illustration of a fine old Irish tune, sung with an excellent brogue, unaccompanied by the orchestra. The entire selection is from "Follies of 1908," the brilliant musical show of the Jardin de Paris roof garden, New York. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Von Tilzer; words, Jack Norworth; publishers, The York Music Co, New York.

9967 Ballet Music from "The Prophet" — American Symphony Orchestra

The ballet music from "The Prophet" is a noted feature of the great Meyerbeer opera. It is considered standard in the realm of ballet music and subsequent writers have not hesitated to borrow freely from its lilting measures. The American Symphony Orchestra (formerly the Edison Symphony Orchestra) has played the whole number just as the composer intended it should be played. Their performance will not suffer at all by comparison with that of the special opera orchestras of Berlin and Leipsic. Composer, Meyerbeer; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

9968 Pride of the Prairie — Billy Murray and Chorus

The past summer brought out some clever popular songs, but none to take the public fancy more than "Pride of the Prairie." It was heard in vaudeville, in illustrated songs at the moving picture shows; the bands took it up in the parks and passed it on to the orchestras on excursion boats. It is just the stripe of song that stirs the gallery whistling. Billy Murray and chorus sing it with a whirlwind flourish that rivals the speed of the broncho on which Miss Mary and her cowboy lover rode away. Two verses and three choruses. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, George Bonsford; words, Harry Breen; publishers, Jerome K. Remick Co, New York.

9969 Ecstasy — Mr. and Mrs. Waterous

This Record will recall the earlier success of the same singers in "O, Moment That I Bless," (Record 9731). This won them an ovation and led to a universal demand for another duet of the same class. H. Millard's English version of "Ecstacy" was finally chosen. This glorious semi-classic love song has a charm that constantly grows on one. The Record will prove a fine model for ambitious students of concerted singing. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, G. Alary (English version by H. Millard); publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

9970 Pat O'Brien's Automobile — Steve Porter

A comic Irish descriptive sketch in which Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Brien take their first automobile trip. It is also Pat's maiden effort as a chauffeur and his nerve is far in excess of his skill. Result, a thrilling runaway and smash-up. "Did ye pay for it?" asks Mrs. O'Brien, after it is over. "Not yit, I got it on trial." "Then tell the man we don't care for it." Incidental features include numerous admiring remarks by a crowd of neighbors, the turning of various cranks and levers, the chug, chug of the auto engine, and finally the head-on collision with an ice wagon. Original street scene; not published.

9971 Gendé Waltzes from "The Soul Kiss" — New York Military Band

New York Idolized Mlle Gendé in "The Soul Kiss" last season. Gendé's dancing was the feature of the production, which ran all season. The bewitching waltz melodies to which she danced are here combined in a fascinating medley, of which the band gives a highly artistic performance. The Record is played in even dance tempo, so can be used for dancing. Music, Maurice Levi; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

5 Selections Made Over

We list below five selections that have been made over by the same talent. The October printed matter prepared for retail use will contain these selections. Jobbers should replace their stock of the original Records of these numbers with the new ones.

502	Angel's Serenade	Edison Symphony Orchestra
6948	The Way to Kiss a Girl	Arthur Collins

An Edison Dealer at Monroe, N. C., writes us that he helped a school give a concert to secure funds for a library. He took a Phonograph and some Records over and entertained the audience for the best part of two hours.

He did not charge them anything for his trouble, but two of the hearers bought Standard Phonographs and Records the following week.

That is the way it will work out every time.

There are a certain number of lawn parties, picnics and church entertainments in your town during August. Get in touch with the ladies of the various churches who interest themselves in these affairs. You can get a lot of valuable free advertising by helping them out on the musical end of their programmes.

Trade Information for Dealers

It has come to our notice that Giles Bros., Quincy, Ill., which firm name appears on our Suspended List for violating the Dealers' Agreement, are endeavoring to obtain Edison goods by offering in trade merchandise or goods of other manufacture or nature, for Edison goods.

We herein notify all Dealers of Edison goods that if they accept any such proposition, they make themselves liable to suspension from the advantages and privileges of an Edison Dealer, inasmuch as they would not only be instrumental in making it possible for a Suspended Dealer to acquire a stock of Edison goods, but the acceptance of goods or merchandise of other make or nature in exchange as whole or part payment for Edison goods is distinctly prohibited by our Conditions of Sale.

THE thing to consider in purchasing a sound-reproducing instrument is the fidelity with which it reproduces the human voice in songs or speeches and the musical notes of instruments. Until you have heard you cannot appreciate how far Mr. Edison has carried his invention in this respect.

Every note of music and every syllable of a speech is not only clear and distinct, but also a perfect reproduction of the singer, band, orchestra or speaker who made the original Record.

The mechanical excellence of the Phonograph, its delicate reproducers, sensitive wax cylinder Records and smooth, indestructible reproducing point—all exclusive features—give the Edison a richness of tone and a faithfulness of reproduction of all sounds not to be found in any other type of machine.

SEPTEMBER EDISON RECORDS READY AUGUST 25th.

Hear them at the nearest Edison store and pick out those you like.

There's no end of fun in making your own records. Ask your dealer to show you how easily and promptly this can be done in your own home with the Edison Phonograph and with Edison Record Blanks.

Ask your dealer or write to us for the new catalogue of Edison Phonographs, The Phonogram, describing each Record in detail; the Supplements, Catalogue, listing the new September Records, and the Complete Catalogue, listing all Edison Records now in existence.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY
Vol. VI. SEPTEMBER, 1908 No. 9

No more important announcements concerning Edison Phonographs and Records have ever been made than those which appear in this issue of the Phonograph Monthly.

If you want to put new life into yourself and your business, Mr. Edison Dealer, read every word of them. Read them till you thoroughly understand them. Then act. Act promptly, too. Don't wait for your competitor. Be first to grasp the opportunity. Get ready to make your business jump to a greater volume than ever before.

The announcements concerning the Edison Amberol Record, the new combination Phonographs and the Attachments by which present Phonographs may play the new Record, represent more than two years' study and work by Mr. Edison and his assistants.

We believe in these new features and intend backing that belief with all the efforts of our selling organization and the expenditure of greater sums of money for advertising than ever before made by us or any other talking machine company.

But our enthusiasm alone is not enough. We must have your co-operation. We must make you fully as enthusiastic as ourselves. Therefore, we urge you strongly to inform yourself about the new Amberol Records, the new machines and the new Attachments. Then throw your whole energy and ability into the game.

The announcement prohibiting Edison Dealers from handling other cylinder goods will save your money. It will prevent you from being loaded up with goods that tie up your capital and bring you no profit. You will appreciate our course, when you think it over. Edison Phonographs and Records fill every demand for cylinder goods. So why handle others?

The announcement concerning the Edison Records made by Mr. Taft is also of great importance. We now have Records by Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft, so that no matter how the November election may result we shall have Records by the next President. This makes new history. It indicates progress.

The Lauder Records and other features in the issue are worth your careful attention. Read the issue from cover to cover. Then take off your coat and go to work. The demand for new goods is already greater than we can supply. Order at once and get your supply at least as soon as your competitor.

Change of Officers

[Copy of letter mailed to entire trade.]

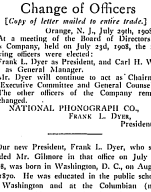
Orange, N. J., July 29th, 1908.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company, held on July 23d, 1908, the following officers were elected:



Frank L. Dyer as President, and Carl H. Wilson as General Manager.

Mr. Dyer will continue to act as Chairman of Executive Committee and General Counsel.

The other officers of the Company remain unchanged.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.,
FRANK L. DYER,
President.

Our new President, Frank L. Dyer, who succeeded Mr. Gilmore in that office on July 23, 1908, was born in Washington, D. C., on August 2, 1870. He was educated in the public schools at Washington and at the Columbian (now George Washington) University of that city.

PRESIDENT FRANK L. DYER.

He is a lawyer by profession. His father, Col. George W. Dyer, during his lifetime was a prominent patent lawyer, who, in 1878, became associated with Mr. Edison as his Patent Counsel. His elder brother, Richard N. Dyer, is also a patent lawyer of high reputation in New York, and represented Mr. Edison and the various Edison interests in a professional way from 1881 until 1903.

Leaving Wishington in 1897 and coming to New York Mr. Dyer formed a partnership with his brother, which continued until April, 1903, when he moved his office to Orange. Since that time he has acted as General Counsel for Mr. Edison and the various Edison companies, having charge of the extensive litigation in which those interests have been involved and doing much of the active work connected with them. This experience brought him into intimate relation with the commercial branches of the National Phonograph Co., and the various other Edison interests, so that he enters upon his new duties with a complete knowledge of the entire machinery under his control.

Mr. Dyer not only assumes the executive management of the National Phonograph Co., but also of the Edison Manufacturing Co., Edison Phonograph Works, Edison Storage Battery Co. and Bates Manufacturing Company. He is a Director and General Counsel of the Edison Portland Cement Co. and of the Pohatcong Railroad Co.

Work Off the Cut-Outs

The cut out list printed in full on pages 27 and 28 has been issued in ample time to give Dealers plenty of opportunity to sell any stock of the cut out selections they may have on hand and thus avoid the necessity of returning them to us at some future day. While we are not ready to make any definite announcement concerning an exchange proposition, it is quite certain that one will eventually be made, taking care of cut out selections. In any event, it will be better and more profitable for Dealers to dispose of their stock of cut out Records and have none to return. This can readily be done, for all of the selections being dropped are still good sellers and should be quite as readily bought by the public as any others in our catalogue. Dealers are urged to tag their stock of cut out selections in such a manner that they and their clerks will make special efforts to sell them. It will pay Dealers to ask their customers to look over the hanger showing the cut outs and ask them if they do not want to take advantage of the last opportunity to get them.

The Austin Music Co., Dayton, Ohio, send two form letters, which they mailed to their list of Phonograph owners. The letters are about the new Edison Records and give the firm's opinion on the probable best sellers on the lists. Mr. Austin writes us that he gets out a letter every month to mail with the monthly supplement of new Edison Records, and it has resulted in large Record sales. One month as an experiment he left the letter out, and was literally swamped with kicks from all classes of customers.

Store Management

A monthly comment on things Edison dealers have done with a few suggestions on what they should do to increase sales.

After all, there is not a great deal of difference between managing a store right and advertising. The way you manage your store, the way you and your clerks treat possible buyers, is all advertising.

You should always act as if you wanted to sell an Edison Phonograph. The Dealer or clerk who reluctantly gets out Records and plays them for a prospective purchaser, or who is not well posted on his stock, and on the subject of Records, who doesn't know all about the new Amberol Records and the attachment that makes it possible to play them on the old Edison Phonograph, who doesn't know that Bryan has made ten Records and Taft twelve, upon subjects that everybody is talking about, is not going to sell Edison Phonographs and Edison Records as often as he might.

Nobody ever got rich keeping store without working for it. It is not enough to simply open a store. There should be an atmosphere of selling goods about the store all day long. You should make people who come in so welcome that they will keep coming in. You should take special pains to get people in your store to hear the Records, whether they buy or not. You should have something in your window that will keep people looking in there all day long.

A window is a remarkably good advertisement. If your window is on a good street, it is worth as much as the number of people who pass it every day.

For instance, suppose your local newspaper has a circulation of one thousand every day, and your advertisement in the newspaper costs you twenty dollars a week, and suppose your store is on Main street, and five hundred people pass it every day. Then, judged by the newspapper cost alone, it would be worth at least ten dollars, because it reaches five hundred people, but even the biggest and best newspaper ad. cannot reach the people so effectively as a well-dressed window showing the goods with appropriate comments upon them.

It is a very easy matter to dress a window. The window should be changed every week. Surely you or one of your clerks can get time each week to spend two or three hours in dressing up a window that will sell goods. If there is not time during the week, then do it out of hours. If you cannot do it yourself, pay one of your clerks something extra, and make it worth his while to study up window dressing—the kind that sells goods. If you have to pay a clerk a dollar an evening extra to dress a window, it will be one of the best investments you ever made.

See that it is done every week. There should be a fresh window every Monday morning. This doesn't mean a startling change—just something fresh and new each time—a new arrangement of the old goods, sometimes a window of Records, sometimes a window of Phonographs, sometimes both. The National Phonograph Company supplies you with enough cards and other things to help make your window inviting. We do everything we possibly can to help you, but the rest of it is up to you.

Dealers Attention

There is one word we want to say to you, and that is that this is your department. We cannot tell you nearly so much about running a successful Edison Phonograph store as you can tell us. Everyone of you has done at least one thing that has been successful; has found at least one way to help sell Edison Phonographs and Edison Records. What is that way? Write and tell us your experience.

We want this department to have every month several suggestions from Dealers of things they have done and found successful, and which they are willing to pass on to Dealers in other towns.

Then we want you to tell us your troubles and ask us questions. What is there you want to know about the successful management of your store? What help do you want in window dressing, store dressing, displaying stock, getting people into your store, treating them right when you get them there, and all that? Ask us these questions, and we will answer them to the best of our ability. We do not know everything, but we are the clearing house for thirteen thousand Dealers. We have the benefit of their experience as well as our own in selling goods through the trade for a dozen years, and all this experience is for your benefit if you will write and ask for it. Help us make this department of benefit to you and to every other Edison Dealer.

Making the Taft Records

The 12 Edison Records, by William H. Taft, were made at Virginia Hot Springs, after Mr. Taft delivered his speech of acceptance at Cincinnati.

Walter H. Miller, manager of the Edison Recording Department, supervised the making of Records, assisted by George H. Werner.

They arrived at Hot Springs on Saturday morning, August 1st, at 8 o'clock, and engaged a small room in the Homestead, adjoining Mr. Taft's apartments, in which to make the Records.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Everything was quickly put in readiness and on Saturday afternoon Mr. Taft was ready to begin. At least, he thought so, but events proved that he wasn't.

He had a large scrap book in which newspaper copies of his speeches had been pasted. He had gone through these and marked the portions he wished to use in the Records.

It was so marked up, however, that he had difficulty following it. These were the first Records he had ever made and he remarked that it was a little different from what he had expected. So he gave one of his secretaries instructions to make typewritten copies of the marked portions.

"We had seen the distinguished Presidential candidate at work," says Mr. Miller, "and later in the afternoon we had a chance to see him at play. He was the center of a group of friends on the lawn and was easily the jolliest one there. Every now and then the famous Taft laugh would be heard above all as some one related an amusing incident. And he seemed to have an endless fund of jokes on tap himself.

"On Monday at 3 p. m. we got busy on the Records and by 5 o'clock had four completed. Mrs. Taft was very much interested to know how her husband's voice would sound in the Phonograph and was present while the first four Records were being dictated.

"At 5:15 p. m. Mr. Taft went for his regular horseback ride and gave us an appointment for that evening at 9. At that time he dictated two more speeches, which were all he had expected to make. He had become deeply interested by this time, however, and said, 'I'll give you another.' He kept 'giving us another' until we had twelve altogether.

"While Mr. Taft was dictating he concentrated his undivided attention on the work and seemed entirely oblivious of the presence of anyone else in the room

"He appreciated that he was addressing millions of his countrymen and the earnestness of his speech and manner showed plainly how seriously he regarded the matter.

"The last of the Records was finished at 12 o'clock Monday night. We caught the first train out on the following morning and were at the factory with the Records Tuesday night, when the work of moulding the duplicates was begun.

"I was greatly amused, coming up from Washington on the Congressional Limited, at some scraps of conversation I overheard in the smoker. The morning papers were filled with accounts of Taft's 'canned speeches.' Everybody in the car was discussing them as well as the report that Mr. Bryan said the opposition had stolen his campaign thunder. They all seemed greatly interested in the part that the Edison is playing in the Presidential campaign. Of course no one imagined that the 'canned speeches of William H. Taft' were in my dress suit case at the moment."

Because of the unusual quantity of trade notices this month, we have been compelled to make some changes in style and to omit the list of Jobbers and a lot of interesting matter.

Selling the Goods

ADVERTISING:—One of the most important and often one of the most neglected branches of a dealer's business.

Here is a time for every Edison Dealer to create considerable excitement. Never before has such a double attraction been offered to the trade as the Taft and Bryan Records for the regular Edison Phonograph and the new Amberol Records which play more than four minutes, or twice as long as the old Records. These two features should keep your store busy for the next six months.

Up till Election Day the Taft and Bryan Records will be big sellers. After Election, whichever candidate is elected, you will have a line of Records made by the President of the United States, something that has never been done before by any Phonograph Company.

Taking up first the Taft and Bryan Records:

Keep these in your window with appropriate cards.

Keep them ready to demonstrate on the Phonograph.

Advertise them in the newspapers, using our ready-made ads.

It is only by advertising that you can get all the sales out of these Taft and Bryan Records that are possible.

The newspapers are helping you. The free advertising given to the Taft and Bryan Records would cost us at least fifty thousand dollars if we had to pay for it. The fact that newspapers consider the making of Records by Taft and Bryan of such importance that they give it space in their telegraph matter, upon their editorial page, in their local news column and in their cartoons, is sufficient proof that the people in your town are interested in these Records and will buy them if you give them the chance.

Use newspaper space now, if you never did before, to tell people about the Taft and Bryan Records. You will find suggestions through this number of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY—ready-made ads, window cards, window displays and other suggestions—which will help you turn these Records into dollars.

The day after Election Day should be your big day. As soon as the winner is announced, put a good picture of him in every window that you have, with a big pile of his Records in front, with a placard saying something like this:

"Records made by the President of the United States for sale here—45 cents."

While your entire town is interested in the results of election you should have a chance of disposing of a large number of Records made by the winning candidate.

Meanwhile, as if the Taft and Bryan Records were not enough, you will soon have the Amberol Records, Mr. Edison's greatest achievement of recent years.

The only criticism ever made upon the old Edison Record was that it was too short. There was not enough of a good thing. By careful experimenting Mr. Edison has found a composition upon which he can write twice as fine and, therefore, get twice as much music upon the same size of record as before.

This, in brief, is the new Amberol Record, a Record which will play between four and four-and-a-half minutes, making it possible to use music that we could not use before without cutting, making it possible to use the Records for dancing, and adding a great deal to their enjoyment and amusement.

In addition to this, the new composition makes the music clearer and better, giving a finer reproduction.

Your fall advertising campaign, in addition to the Taft and Bryan Records, should be based upon Amberol Records. Elsewhere in this paper we explain about the Records, the attachments and other things.

This department wants to impress on you that no good thing ever comes to the dealer who hides his light under a bushel. We know you have a good thing in the Amberol Records. We know that this is going to be the biggest winner in the Phonograph business this season.

It is up to you to get your share. Advertise the Amberol Records as soon as you get them; explain how easily the new attachments can be put on old machines; advertise the new machines which play both Amberol and old Records; take space in the newspapers; get our window cards and put them in place, and especially get up an invited concert to hear these new Records, making a great deal of the fact that it is Mr. Edison's scientific achievement that makes them possible.

If the Edison dealers understood the wonderful power of judiciously applied advertising, not only would our business be doubled, but so would theirs. We cannot sell any more Phonographs and Records than the Dealers sell. We have no other avenue of outlet except through you. It is up to you to make the most of the market, and by just so much increase your profits.

The Dealer who doesn't believe that the Edison Phonograph and Edison Records are a good thing, and who does not express that belief in every kind of advertising, will not make the sales he could easily make.

Your business day is just so long. Your store is open only so many hours. You cannot add a minute to the working day, but you can make each minute of the working day earn a better profit by keeping your store full of buyers, your clerks busy and your stock turning over fast.

Nothing is so easy to sell as an Edison Phonograph, but to sell it you must make an effort and you must have buyers to work upon.

The only way to get the buyers to come to your store is by advertising. Advertising and advertising alone has built up the great business of such retailers as Marshall Field, John Wanamaker, Siegel-Cooper and others. Advertising makes it possible for every inch of their floor space to earn money, and every minute of the business day to sell goods. Advertising will do the same thing for you.

You never had better talking points than you have right now. The Taft and Bryan Records are timely subjects. Everybody is interested in politics. Newspapers are giving pages to it. Here are Records made by the candidates, expressing their sentiments. Even a wooden man could sell these Records. Then there will be the Amberol Records playing twice as long as the old ones, and very much better, offering a whole lot of new music never offered before, doubling the enjoyment of an Edison Phonograph, renewing the interest of every owner of an old Edison Phonograph, and offering an additional inducement to purchase a new one.

The only thing required of you is to advertise these things from your store and get a chance to show them to people who are only too anxious to buy them.

We are sacrificing most of our profit on the combination attachments, and ask Dealers to be satisfied with less than the usual margins, so that every owner of an Edison Phonograph can afford to invest in the attachment without delay. That will mean the biggest Record business ever dreamed of, for the Edison Amberol Record is grand value and everybody is going to want them.

Doesn't it make you feel good all over the way Edison Phonographs and Records are pushing ahead?

We have given you Edison Records by both Presidential candidates, and right in the midst of a red hot Presidential campaign.

And both Messrs. Bryan and Taft gave the Edison first choice for introducing their personal views into American homes.

Was ever such a compliment paid a talking machine?

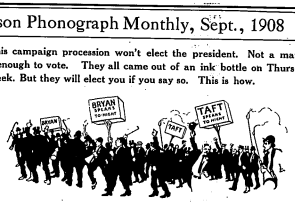
The Republican and Democratic campaign managers know their business. Both they and the candidates realize that the Edison is "First in the hearts and the homes of the people." And they openly acknowledge that the Edison Phonograph and Records do justice to Bryan and Taft's oratorical powers.

And now, added to the Taft and Bryan Records comes the Edison Amberol Record, the greatest improvement since the Edison Gold Moulded Record and Model C Reproducer were brought out in 1902.

It looks as if the Edison Dealer will have the field all to himself from now on.

Let's everybody—Dealer, Jobber and Manufacturer—get together now and make all past achievements look puny by comparison.

Do They Buy Records Regularly?



When Phonograph owners fail to call regularly to buy Records, what do you do about it?

An Edison Jobber outlines a very good plan of action. He suggests sending a man around to see if the machines are in good working order. If they are not, he puts them in order.

Some of the new Records are taken along to play while the Phonograph is being adjusted. The customer usually takes a few from hearing them played, and out of appreciation of the service done.

The salesman should not suggest a purchase, however, as his business is to fix the Phonograph. If he gives the impression that he called simply to sell Records, he may not be welcomed another time.

This campaign procession won't elect the president. Not a man in it is old enough to vote. They all came out of an ink bottle on Thursday of last week. But they will elect you if you say so. This is how.

Send a postal card to your list of Phonograph owners and prospective Phonograph buyers. On the front print this campaign procession. (If you will mail the post cards, we will send you the cut to print the illustration, free. It is No. 698.) On the back print:

"Among the twenty-two Edison Records by William Jennings Bryan and William Howard Taft are ten Edison Records personally dictated by the next President of the United States. Come and hear them."

Then add your name and address—and be ready to sell a lot of Records, not only Taft and Bryan Records, but as many other Records as your visitors hear in your store.

Any Dealer who set Smiling Sambo to rattling bones for him last month, on a postal card, is rattling bones of a different sort in his cash-drawer now, and will send for the election parade at once. If you missed Smiling Sambo last month, turn to page 10 of the last (August) issue of the Monthly and look over the opportunity you lost. To any Dealer so short-sighted that he didn't even read the August issue, we will send, on request, another copy of the August issue.

Harry Lauder's New Records

The four new Edison Records by Harry Lauder, which are listed on page 29, include his latest song successes. They are in every way equal to the Lauder Records issued last February.

Judging from the way orders are pouring in the new lot will outsell the earlier one.

There is no Record artist whose songs at all resemble Lauder's. He is really and truly one of the world's cleverest entertainers.

Important Notice

On and after October 1st, 1908, (unless extended as hereinafter provided), we will refuse to fill orders for Edison Phonograph and Records from Jobbers or Dealers who may handle other lines of cylinder machines and cylinder records, except such other cylinder machines as may have been taken in exchange for Edison Phonographs as permitted by our agreement.

In order that entire justice may be done to any Jobbers or Dealers who may have in stock considerable quantities, of other cylinder machines and cylinder records, we will, upon written application in any particular case, consent to an extension of this time to December 1st, 1908, in which to dispose of such stocks, but in no case will we supply Edison Phonographs and Records to Jobbers and Dealers who after October 1st, 1908, may continue to purchase other cylinder machines and cylinder records.

FRANK L. DYER,
President.

August 1st, 1908.

The above letter to Edison Jobbers and Dealers requires no explanation. It is intended to benefit the trade as well as ourselves.

It will benefit the trade because it will make it impossible for Jobbers and Dealers to hereafter permit themselves to be stocked up with a lot of cylinder goods that have small sale and pay no profit. No longer will it be possible to play one Dealer against another and thereby compel one of them to put in a stock that he really does not want.

It will benefit us because it will make every new line build up its own business and not trade on ours, which has taken years of work and the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars to establish.

We do not fear any competition that stands on its own merit and succeeds because of its own endeavors.

Important Printed Matter for Dealers

We are getting out an unusual amount of printed matter for Dealers' use in this and next month. Jobbers will be supplied with all forms mentioned below and distribution will be made exclusively through them.

Order a supply of each form when you place your orders.

This is the most attractive line of supplements, hangers, etc., we have ever gotten out, and will be of immense help to you in your fall campaign. Mention the form number in writing to Jobbers about the printed matter.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS AND COMBINATION ATTACHMENTS.

Form 1416—A twelve-page booklet with cover printed in three colors; contains list and descriptions of the 50 Edison Amberol Records.

Form 1308—A Bulletin on the Edison Amberol Records; gives list and short descriptions of the 50 Amberol Records. Printed in two colors, size, 22 by 28 inches.

Form 1406—A window and store hanger telling about the Edison Amberol Records. Printed in two colors; size, 22 by 28 inches.

Form 1307—A window and store hanger telling about the attachments for equipping Edison Phonographs to play both the Amberol and the two-minute Records. Printed in two colors; size, 22 by 28 inches.

WM. H. TAFT RECORDS.

Form 1410—A four-page Supplement containing list and full descriptions of the 12 Edison Records by William H. Taft.

Form 1301—A Taft window and store hanger; contains a large picture of Mr. Taft and a list of the Taft Records. Printed in two colors; size, 22 by 28 inches.

HARRY LAUDER RECORDS.

Form 1401—A four-page Supplement containing list and descriptions of the four new Edison Records by Harry Lauder.

Form 1408—Lauder window and store hanger; contains a large picture of Lauder with a list of his new Records. Printed in two colors; size, 11 by 28 inches.

HEBREW AND NORWEGIAN RECORDS.

Form 1309—A four-page Hebrew Supplement; contains list and description of the 15 new Hebrew Records announced last month to go on sale between September 1st and 10th. Printed in Hebrew.

Form 1381—Hebrew window and store hanger listing the 15 Hebrew Records referred to above. Printed in Hebrew; size, 10 by 22 inches.

Form 1305—A two-page circular; contains list of 13 new Norwegian Records announced last month to go on sale between September 1st and 10th.

NUMERICAL RECORD CATALOGUE.

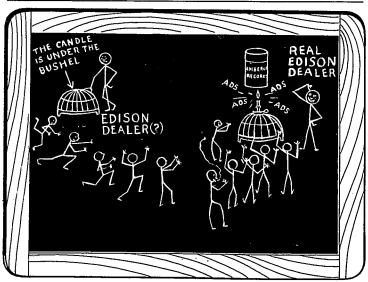
Form 1370—New 128-page issue of the Numerical Catalogue of Edison Records. Includes Edison Records (American Selections) up to and including July, 1908, listed numerically and alphabetically. This catalogue is for trade use only. It is not being mailed to Dealers, as usual. Jobbers have been supplied and will be expected to provide Dealers with copies.

MISCELLANEOUS MATTER.

The two pieces of advertising literature following are just the thing for general distribution by Dealers. They will be sure to create interest in the Edison Phonograph. Samples were mailed Edison Dealers August 20th. Your Jobber has a stock and can supply you.

Form 1315—"Tramp" Folder. A neat and original four-page folder printed in two colors. The front cover shows a tramp looking in at a barn window. Upon opening it up, the inside pictures a Phonograph show being given by a crowd of youngsters; good strong talk on the back cover and room for Dealer's imprint.

Form 1320—"Fun" Booklet. A miniature booklet on the Edison Phonograph. Each page is topped with a clever illustration, and contains a brief pointed reason for owning an Edison.



What Bryan and Taft Advertising Means for You

For weeks the papers have been full of the fact that both of the Presidential candidates, Taft and Bryan, have made Records for the Edison Phonograph. The papers have taken this up and devoted columns to it as news matter. The cartoonists have treated it from all points of view, both seriously and humorously.

All of this means tremendous advertising for the Taft and Bryan Records—advertising of a kind which we could not buy, and which must affect your sales. To take advantage of this advertising be sure to have the Taft and Bryan Records in stock and be ready to demonstrate them at any time.

The making of Records by two Presidential candidates is the most remarkable thing that has happened in phonography in the last five years. Every Edison Dealer should take advantage of it.

An Edison Jobber on the Pacific coast writes that one of his Edison Dealers was induced about nine months ago to put in three machines and 150 records of another manufacturer. He still has the three machines and 80 of the records, although he has ordered $2,000 worth of Edison goods during the past year. Don't this speak for itself?

Lessons for Dealers

Lesson II.

There is a par-a-ble which ad-vises us not to hide our light un-der a bushel.

This par-a-ble was not spe-cial-ly writ-ten for the Pho-no-graph Month-ly as a trade help in sell-ing Edison Am-ber-ol Rec-ords, but its ap-pli-ca-tion is un-ques-tion-able.

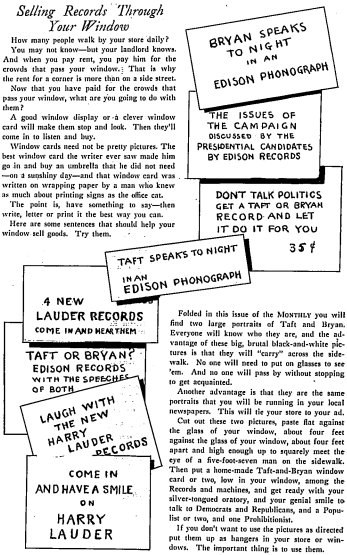
Your cus-to-mers will want Am-ber-ol Rec-ords. You will have them.

Light your can-dle.

And put it where ev-er-y-one sees it.

Selling Records Through Your Window

How many people walk by your store daily? You may not know—but your landlord knows. And when you pay rent, you pay him for the crowds that pass your window. That is why the rent for a corner is more than on a side street.



Now that you have paid for the crowds that pass your window, what are you going to do with them?

A good window display or a clever window card will make them stop and look. Then they'll come in to listen and buy.

Window cards need not be pretty pictures. The best window card the writer ever saw made him go in and buy an umbrella that he did not need —on a sunshiny day—and that window card was written on wrapping paper by a man who knew as much about printing signs as the office cat.

The point is, have something to say—then write, letter or print it the best way you can.

Here are some sentences that should help your window sell goods. Try them.

Folded in this issue of the MONTHLY you will find two large portraits of Taft and Bryan. Everyone will know who they are, and the advantage of these big, brutal black-and-white pictures is that they will "carry" across the sidewalk. No one will need to put on glasses to see 'em. And no one will pass by without stopping to get acquainted.

Another advantage is that they are the same portraits that you will be running in your local newspapers. This will tie your store to your ad.

Cut out these two pictures, paste flat against the glass of your window, about four feet apart and high enough up to squarely meet the eye of a five-foot-seven man on the sidewalk. Then put a home-made Taft-and-Bryan window card or two, low in your window, among the Records and machines, and get ready with your silver-tongued oratory, and your genial smile to talk to Democrats and Republicans, and a Populist or two, and one Prohibitionist.

If you don't want to use the pictures as directed put them up as hangers in your store or windows. The important thing is to use them.

Trade Bulletins

Sales Department Bulletin No. 13, August 1, 1908

TRADE INFORMATION FOR DEALERS.

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to the NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

October 1st, 1908, will mark the beginning of a new era in the history of the Edison Phonograph. On that date we will put into effect a number of changes and improvements in Edison Phonographs and Records that will mean as much to the future of your business and ours as did the introduction of the Gold Moulded Record and the Model C Reproducer of 1902. The tremendous increase in the sale of Edison goods since that time is known to you all. The improvements then introduced have, we firmly believe, caused the sale of more Edison Phonographs and Records than the combined sale of all other makes of talking machines. Therefore, the changes and improvements to be placed before the public on October 1st next, will start with the prestige gained by six years of unexampled success. When to this success is added new conditions even more important than those that have gone before, we confidently believe that you will fully agree with our optimistic views regarding the future of the trade in Edison goods. The new feature will consist of the following:

1. A new Record made of a new composition, by a new process and playing an average of over four minutes, or about twice as long as our present Record.
2. A series of attachments by which at slight cost all present Phonographs except the Gem may be equipped to play the longer Record in addition to the present one.
3. Several new types of Edison Phonographs by which both the present and the new Record may be played at the pleasure of the operator.

1. The New Record

This will be known as the Edison Amberol Record. The most important feature is a recording thread of 200 lines to the inch, or twice as fine as the present Record of 100 threads. By this means twice the playing length is secured without increasing the length or diameter of the Record itself.

Since the finer thread required a smaller reproducing point, it became necessary to find a new composition that would successfully resist the wear of the reproducer. The successful and accurate moulding of a 200 thread record formed of a much tougher composition, also necessitated changes and refinements in our moulding process.

More than two years were spent in experimenting to secure these results, the work of several experts being constantly directed and supervised by Mr. Edison.

The Edison Amberol Record is the most wonderful production of its kind that the world has seen. The engraved sound waves are so minute that the eye cannot follow them, and yet the sounds are reproduced even more clearly, more naturally, and more sweetly than by the present Record.

The present two-minute Record will be continued without change until further advised.

2. The Attachments

With a Record of finer thread came the problem of devising a plan by which the Record could be marketed without compelling present owners of Phonographs to buy new machines. This was solved by the construction of attachments embodying the principle of the differential gear and including a new Reproducer with a smaller reproducing point. Attachments have been made for all Edison Phonographs except the Gem.

3. New Types of Phonographs

On October 1st, we will place on the market, three new types of Phonographs to be known as the Standard Phonograph Combination Type, the Home Phonograph, Combination Type, and the Triumph Phonograph, Combination Type. These will be equipped to play both Records and will have two reproducers. They will be sold at slightly higher prices than the present Standard, Home and Triumph machines. At the same time we will supply the Idelia, Balmoral, Conqueror and Alva machines, equipped to play both Records, at no advance over present catalogue prices.

Prices, Discounts, Etc.

These are fully covered in the Addenda to the Dealers' Agreement on page 13. WE WOULD ESPECIALLY POINT OUT THE UNUSUAL PROFITS OFFERED TO THE TRADE BY THE PRICES ON THE NEW AMBEROL RECORD. The profits on attachments are less than those on machines. In order to keep down the retail price of the attachments and make it easy for owners to change over their machines, we are sacrificing most of our usual profit and are asking the trade to also make some sacrifice to the same end.

How the Changes Will Be Made

Salesmen will leave our factory about August 15th and visit as rapidly as possible on all Jobbers in their respective territories. They will fully instruct the latter concerning the new attachments, etc. They will equip a Standard and a Home Phonograph in each Jobbers' stock so that Jobbers in turn may be able to fully instruct their Dealers on the subject. It is hoped in this way to get the entire trade fully informed by October 1st. Full instructions for putting attachments on all present Phonographs will be included with each attachment. It is also possible that copies of these instruction sheets will be sent to the entire trade by mail.

How to Order

The first list of Amberol Records will comprise 50 selections. The advance list is printed on page 22. This list has been made up of such a variety of selections as will make the widest appeal. It will be impossible to supply Jobbers with samples of these Records. We must ask Jobbers and Dealers to place advance orders without delay for such quantities as they may require. There will doubtless be a large and immediate sale for these Records, for we feel assured that hundreds of thousands of Phonograph owners will change their machines to play the new Record just as rapidly as they can have the work done.

Jobbers and Dealers are also urged to place orders for a quantity of the various attachments and of the new combination types of Phonographs. In fact, they should give every phase of the new conditions the most careful consideration, and anticipate their requirements so far as possible. We shall work our factory day and night for an indefinite time but we doubt if we shall be able to meet the demand for the Amberol Records, the Attachments, and the new Combination Phonographs. We feel confident that the sale will be enormous.

Additional lists of Amberol Records will be issued later, and they will be handled in the same manner as the present Record as soon as conditions make it possible.

October 1st the Selling Date

Shipments of Amberol Records, Attachments and Combination Type Phonographs will be made from Orange as fast as possible after orders are received, distant points getting attention first.

Under no circumstances will Jobbers or Dealers be permitted to offer for sale at retail, any Amberol Records, Attachments or Combination Type Phonographs before October 1st even though they may be received prior to that date. Jobbers may supply Dealers with Attachments or Combination Phonographs before October 1st, with the distinct understanding that they shall not be sold until October 1st. Amberol Records may be shipped to Dealers with October Records September 24th, but they must not be placed on sale until October 1st.

In Conclusion

Much more might be said about the new conditions and the great impetus that will be given the trade, but enough has been stated to arouse all concerned to the fullest enthusiasm. As good as the improvements are they cannot exploit themselves. They must have the most cordial co-operation of all Jobbers and Dealers and this, we believe, we shall have from every true Edison man.

[The foregoing, when mailed to the trade, was accompanied by original and duplicate copies of an Addenda to the Dealers' Agreement for the signatures of Dealers. The Addenda is given on the next page. Copies must be signed by all Dealers.]

PRICES OF EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS.

Dealers', $ .28; List, $ .50.

AMENDED SECTIONS ONE AND SIX OF CONDITIONS OF SALE.

1. No Person, Firm or Corporation will be recognized as a Dealer in Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks unless a Dealers' Agreement is signed, either direct with this Company or through an authorized Jobber, and no such Agreement will be accepted by this Company unless the Dealer signing same has an established place of business suitable for the display and handling of Edison Phonographs, Records, etc., and then only on condition that such Dealer purchase an initial quantity of at least three Edison Phonographs, each of a different type, and one hundred and fifty Edison Records. Unauthorized Dealers are not entitled to the discounts and net prices specified in the foregoing schedule. Any Dealer who fails to maintain a stock equal to the initial order may be removed from the list of authorized Dealers at the option of this Company. Dealers handling Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks, SHALL NOT HANDLE ANY OTHER MAKE OF CYLINDRICAL sound reproducing Records or machines adapted for such Records.

6. Exchanging or tendering Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks, in whole or part payment for privileges of any character, or for advertising, or the exchange or acceptance of merchandise or goods (including sound reproducing machines and records) of any make or nature in whole or part payment for Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks, is not permitted. This does not prohibit the acceptance of an Edison Phonograph at full list price, if good as new, or less cost of repairs to make it good as new, in exchange for an Edison Phonograph sold at full retail list price, but does prohibit the acceptance of Records or Blanks of ANY KIND, AT ANY PRICE, in exchange for Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks.

Phonograms Wanted

We are anxious to get copies of back numbers of the Phonogram, and will pay 2 cents a copy for any of the following issues In 1904—July, August, September, October, November-December; in 1905—February, April and May; in 1906—March; and in 1907—January and May.

If you have any of the above-mentioned Phonograms and wish to dispose of them, please send them in to the Advertising Department.

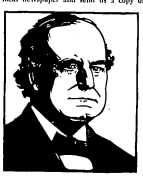
Cal Stewart Back Again

Cal Stewart is again back into the galaxy of Edison Record makers. Once more will his big, hearty and jovial voice be heard on Edison Records. Two of his selections appear in the first list of fifty Amberol Records. Others will follow. It is also our intention to shortly issue a number of Mr. Stewart's selections on the two-minute Records.

"Fou the Noo"

You'll laugh. You'll laugh until you cry over Lauder—Lauder so "fou" that he does not "ken" what he has been celebrating—wedding, funeral or christening!

"Fou the Noo" is only one of four new Edison Records by Harry Lauder that we will be glad to play for you if you will drop in.



Lauder is making a big hit with his songs in New York. The Edison Phonograph is making a big hit with his Records all over the country. You cannot afford to miss hearing them. Come in today.

(Dealer's name and address)

An electro (Single Col. No. 696; Double Col. No. 697) of the above cut of Harry Lauder, supplied to Dealers who will insert an advertisement in their local newspaper and send us copies of the papers containing the advertisements.

Your Campaign for Bryan and Taft Record Sales should include two or three ads in your local newspaper. We will send, free, electrotypes of these portraits of Taft and Bryan to any Dealer who will insert an Edison Phonograph advertisement in his local newspaper and send us a copy of the paper in which it appears.

Single Col. No. 692
Double Col. No. 693

Single Col. No. 694
Double Col. No. 695

We have these cuts in one and two-column widths. Say which.

With these "cuts" in the newspapers and the "cut-outs" in your window you will link our advertising, your advertising and your store together with a chain that is bound to pull results for you.

Here are two advertisements which your newspaper will set for you to use with the electrotypes.

Taft and Bryan

What they say and how they say it will be interesting to hundreds of voters and to many others who may not hear either of them speak during this campaign.

This is not so great a loss as you might think since you can buy for 35 cents at this store Records made by both Taft and Bryan, giving their sentiments on public questions in their own voices and with their own inflections. You should buy both Taft and Bryan Records and compare them in your own home and to entertain your friends.

(Dealer's name and address)

As the Campaign Grows Hot interest in the two candidates for presidency deepens.

Think what it means to offer to your friends or to enjoy by yourself, by means of the

Edison Phonograph
and the
Taft and Bryan Records

not only the sentiments of the two candidates upon public questions, but also their actual voices and inflections.

Edison Taft and Bryan Records for sale here—35 cents each.

(Dealer's name and address)

The enterprising Dealer will readily see that this material is good not only for newspaper ads, but for postal cards and printed slips.

The electrotype offered on page 7 for use on a postal card would also make an excellent heading for a two-column newspaper ad.

New Edison Records for November, 1908

RECORDS listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before October 25th, 1908, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 2 P. M. on October 24th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on October 25th. Supplements, Phonograms and Bulletins will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after October 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before October 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, dispatch Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on October 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for November Records on or before August 10th. Dealers should place November orders with Jobbers before September 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

9972 The Love Kiss—Intermezzo — New York Military Band

Arthur Pryor's new intermezzo, which was so much in demand during the Pryor Band's last summer season at Asbury Park, N. J. Admirers of Pryor's "Razzazza Mazzazza" (Record 9233) and "Whistler and His Dog" (Record 9107) will concede, upon hearing "The Love Kiss," that his genius for original composition has ripened greatly since he gave us those earlier successes. The melody is of the easy-to-remember variety, and the time, slow waltz. Composer, Arthur Pryor; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

9973 Are You Sincere? — Byron G. Harlan

One of the most pleasing ballads of the day. It has often been remarked that when this song is on a vaudeville or other theatrical programme, the orchestra almost invariably repeats it at the end of the performance as the audience is leaving. It is certainly a very catchy and melodious ballad, which Mr. Harlan sings in his best voice. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Albert Gumble; words, Alfred Bryan; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

9974 It's the Pretty Things You Say — Amy Butler

A new female singer in one of the catchiest songs brought out this season. Miss Butler's method is that of the typical Broadway musical comedy star. Her voice is most musical and she sings with a vivacity that can come only from an enthusiastic relish of her work. A Record that will tempt one to play it over a second and third time. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Ted Snyder; words, Al. Bryan; publishers, Ted Snyder Music Pub. Co., New York.

9975 Popular Straight Jigs — John Kimmble

As the title indicates, this is a potpourri of straight, legitimate jigs. After hearing Kimmble "tear off" such fine jig music from his magical accordion, one wonders why jigs are ever played on any other instrument. But then every accordion player is not a Kimmble, nor is every accordion the equal of his in volume and power of musical expression. Piano accompaniment.

9976 When Highland Mary Danced the Highland Fling — Edward M. Favor

A jolly and highly diverting Record. The absorbingly interesting story of Highland Mary's adventures is sung to a melody that savors of the liveliest old Scottish airs and reels, especially when she "did the Highland Fling." Orchestra accompaniment; music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Jack Mahoney; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Pub. Co., New York.

9977 I'm Starving For One Sight of You — Manuel Romain.

Manuel Romain gets one of the best opportunities he has yet had in Charles K. Harris' new love song. This selection is especially suited to Mr. Romain's method of singing, as there is an unusual number of the peculiar lingering notes, which add such a rare depth of tenderness to his sentimental songs. Part of the accompaniment is picked softly on the strings of the violins. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Charles K. Harris; publisher, Charles K. Harris, New York.

9978 I Think I See My Brother Coming Now — Arthur Collins.

A remarkably good comic coon song. The "cullud gemman" in the case became envious of the ease with which Joe Gans coins money prize-fighting. He decides to try his hand, declaring, "I'll fight 'til brother Bill comes home." (Brother Bill had been dead 27 years.) So he fights the "terrible Greek," gets knocked down nine times, and amid the laughs and jeers of the spectators, sings the great stuttering chorus, "I think (uh) I (uh) see m-m-m-y b-b-b-rother comin' home right now." Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. Fred Helf; words, Eddie Moran; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

9979 Golden Blonde — American Symphony Orchestra

A very ambitious concert number that displays wonderful feats of orchestration, especially with reference to flute and clarinet work. The introduction is showy, and is followed by a flute cadenza, which, in turn, leads up to a graceful mazurka movement. This Record is also a notable achievement in skillful recording. Composer, R. Eilenberg; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

9980 When You and I Were Young, Maggie — Will Oakland

Will Oakland is the sweet counter-tenor singer, who won a great personal triumph with his first Edison Record in the August list, (No. 9902). We predict that his Record of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," will always be one of the best sellers in the Edison catalog. It belongs to that select class of good old songs that none of the good new ones seems to quite come up to. Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. A. Butterfield; words, George W. Johnson.

9981 Just As I Am — Anthony and Harrison

This month's sacred duet is a beautiful new arrangement of the grand old hymn, "Just as I Am." It would be difficult indeed to find two singers, whose voices blend so harmoniously as do Anthony and Harrison's. This is because they have been making Edison duet Records since 1905 and have long sung together in the choir of one of New York's largest churches. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Wm. B. Bradbury; words, Charlotte Elliot.

9982 Evening Star — Thomas Chalmers

This captivating aria is sung by Wolfrau in the third act, scene two, of Tannhauser. It is justly regarded as the gem of the great Wagnerian opera. Our Record presents the song in English by Thomas Chalmers, a new Edison artist, who is gifted with a rich, vibrant baritone voice. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, Richard Wagner; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston, Mass.

9983 After Sunset—Intermezzo — Edison Concert Band

A band concert piece by Arthur Pryor—rich in color and displaying the touch of a masterhand at instrumentation. It is in common time, and like Record No. 9972 of this month's list, has been demanded by nearly every audience that Pryor and his band have played before in several months past. The Edison Concert Band gives it a decidedly clever reading. Composer, Arthur Pryor; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

 9984 I'm a Yiddish Cowboy — Edward Meeker

A dandy new cowboy song with Western effects galore. Among them—the tom tom, cowboy chorus, cowboy and Indian yells, hoof beats, etc.—and all so plain and realistic that one can almost smell the alkali. Mr. Meeker sings this number with the spirit and fire that the unusual words and music call for—so plainly too that not a word is lost, even in the yiddish dialect portion. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Al Piantadosi and Halsey Mohr; words, Edgar Leslie; publishers, Ted S. Barron Music Publishing Company, New York.

9985 It Looks Like a Big Night To-night — Collins and Harlan

The comic song craze of the moment. Hubby packs wifey off to the seashore. No sooner is she gone than he is overwhelmed with self-pity because of his lonesomeness and plans to make "a night of it with the boys." Wifey turns up unexpectedly in the middle of it all. With prophetic vision he "sees his finish," and dolefully sings, "It looks like a big night to-night." The tune is extremely vivacious and is sung with genuine Collins and Harlan flavish. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Egbert Van Alstyne; words, Harry Williams; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

9986 Love Me Like I Like to be Loved — Ada Jones

A leap year love song that is by long odds the best of the crop of new semi-rag coon songs. A certain dusky belle's "gemman friend" is far too slow to suit her fancy. Not only does she chide him about his lack of action, but goes further and describes the kind of action she would like. And, would you believe it?—the description frightens him away. This song reflects Ada Jones' happiest mood. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Geo. W. Meyer; words, Earle C. Jones and Alfred Bryan; publishers, Rose & Snyder, New York.

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of November Phonogram.

9987 Händel's Largo — Hans Kronold

Handel's divine classic is in the same class as "Traumerei," by Schumann. Mr. Kronold has never done anything better than this entrancing 'cello solo. The piano accompaniment forms a suitable background, that does not in the least obscure the lovely, and at times, weird tones of the strings. Every one who loves music will appreciate this exceptional Record. Piano accompaniment; composer, George Friedrich Handel.

9988 A Morning in Mrs. Reilly's Kitchen — Steve Porter

A, scintillating bit of Irish comedy. Mrs. Reilly resided in a flat where all the groceries, meat, ice, etc. were brought up on a dumb waiter. A shrill whistle would precede each trip of the waiter. On this particular A. M. the effect of the whistle was about as loud and long as at 1 A. M. New Year's morning, when all the steam whistles in town are turned loose and allowed to blow themselves out. A sample of Mrs. Reilly's ready wit: (whistle) "Oh, My! They call it a dumb waiter whin it's screechin' loike the divil from mornin' 'til night!" (whistle). A splendid Record. Original sketch, not published.

9989 Take a Little Ride With Me — Dorothy Kingsley and Edward Meeker

A breezy automobile flirting duet, which the writers call "A conversation with music." An automobilist (Ed. Meeker) meets with a fresh and pretty dairy maid (Dorothy Kingsley) and urges her to take a spin "O'er hill and dale." The tune is one of airy grace in tripping gavotte tempo. Both solo and chorus parts are capitally done and the record will prove an unusual seller. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Theodore Morse; words, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Pub. Co., New York.

9990 My Dream of the U. S. A. — Frederic Rose

The latest addition to the list of patriotic songs of the U. S. A. A soldier lies dreaming of our past heroes who fought for American liberty and the words describe his vision. The melody is in stirring martial time with the orchestra introducing short phrases of well known patriotic airs. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Leonard Chick, Chas. Roth and Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

9991 Dancing Spirits — Albert Benzler

What a storm of protests would be heard should the Benzler Bells solos fail to come out at regular intervals! This month's selection is a favorite composition by Carl Bohm, a celebrated writer of music. It is given an entirely new and original setting, and will undoubtedly make a very popular bells solo. Orchestra accompaniment.

9992 Faded Roses — James F. Harrison

Roma's new ballad is well named. It is really and truly as sweet and refined as the scent of a rose. It would seem as if the composer must have had Jas. F. Harrison in mind when he originated the bewitching waltz lento refrain, for Mr. Harrison sings it in a way to cause the listener to say instinctively, "Fine!" Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Caro Roma; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

9993 Jim Jackson's Affinity — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

This Record is filled with action. We are taken behind the scenes at a rag-time ball and given a glimpse of the belle and her ebon-hued affinity in a rapturous waltz, which far eclipses the "Merry Widow." The climax comes with "A Soul Kiss" that stops the music. Was there a scene when Jim's bona fide wife arrived just in time to witness the "Soul Kiss?" There was. She leads her (?) Jim off a captive, but Jim's "t'other fair charmer," evens up by singing "He's My Affinity." Original sketch, not published.

9994 Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming — Knickerbocker Quartette

An old standard song classic, by the composer of "Old Folks at Home" and "My Old Kentucky Home." This entrancing serenade as sung by the Knickerbocker Quartette, has an original four-part setting. Each voice is heard in delightful contrast with the other, ending with a remarkably effective climax in which all four voices blend in splendid harmony. Unaccompanied; music and words, Stephen C. Foster.

9995 The Crater March — Edison Military Band

This martial band piece takes its name from the battle of "The Crater," fought in the civil war at Petersburg, Va. It will be a great seller, not for its historic associations alone, but because of its engaging military air. The Edison Military Band gives it a very spirited performance, which the Record adequately reproduces. Composer, Harry J. Lincoln; publishers, Vandersloot Music Publishing Co., Williamsport, Pa.

Advance List

Twelve

Edison Records by William H. Taft

THE Taft Records will be ready for shipment from Orange about August 20th. For want of time samples will not be sent to Jobbers. Jobbers' stock orders will be shipped as fast as possible after August 20th, beginning with those received from Jobbers in the far West. Care will be taken to make shipments at one time to all Jobbers in the same city and shipments will be made to distant points first. Special supplements will be shipped with Records to all Jobbers who request a supply. State quantity required.

WILLIAM H. TAFT, Republican candidate for President, has made twelve Edison Records. The Records consist of the most striking portions of his Speech of Acceptance, which was delivered at Cincinnati, July 28th.

As Mr. Taft says, the Records give his "personal views on the leading political questions." And, we may add that they do this in a wonderfully lucid and concise manner.

They are splendidly recorded in Mr. Taft's most amiable voice and do full justice to the distinguished Ohioan's oratorical powers.

Now, for the first time, one can introduce the rival candidates for the Presidency in one's own home, can listen to their political views, expressed in their real voices, and make comparisons.

The National Phonograph Company is proud of having introduced this epoch-making novelty. We are proud that of all talking machines, the Edison was the first choice of both candidates for reaching the American public.

Edison Dealers! The Taft Records, coming right after the Bryan Records, present you with a talking point that should sweep all before it. Make the most of this golden opportunity to sell Edison Phonographs and Records.

The demand for the Taft Records is certain to be enormous. We earnestly urge Edison Jobbers and Dealers to coöperate with us by making their first orders large enough to cover their requirements up to Election Day, Nov. 3rd. We shall do our utmost to fill all orders, but the time until then is very brief and the trade should see to it that they do not lose sales of either machines or Records by running short of the Taft Records.

9996 Foreign Missions

Mr. Taft's views on the importance of foreign missions are here crystallized into a model sermonette. As the representative of this country, Mr. Taft spent much time in the Orient and had an unusual opportunity for studying his subject at close range. "It was not until then," says he, "that I realized the immense importance of foreign missions to the spread of civilization." This Record will probably stand as the ablest and most impartial exposition of this great subject that has ever been made.

9997 Irish Humor

This delightful talk on an every-day subject is certain to be very popular. It is of the after-dinner type, at which Mr. Taft has no superior, and is delivered in his most affable voice. "A sense of humor," says the speaker, "is like the bumpers in a solid train; like the air cushion of a modern field gun—it saves the jolt; it takes the recoil." He then repeats an apt and beautiful quotation from John Boyle O'Reilly and another from Kipling's poem, "An American." This Record will always be a great seller irrespective of Mr. Taft's political prominence.

9998 Republican and Democratic Treatment of Trusts

On the day after Mr. Taft delivered his powerful "Speech of Acceptance" the whole country was aroused by the newspaper reports of his remarkable allusion to the Trusts. The gist of those remarks is given in this Record. "Unlawful trusts should be restrained with all the efficiency of injunctive progress. And the persons engaged in maintaining them should be punished with all the severity of criminal prosecution in order that the methods pursued in the operation of business shall be brought within the law. This is the Republican view," exclaims Mr. Taft, and the exact tones of his voice are reproduced so perfectly true to life, the effect is the same as if the Presidential candidate stood before us.

9999 The Rights of Labor

A great battle is now being fought by the leading political parties on the labor question. Mr. Bryan's Edison Record on this subject led all of his other Records in sales. Now we have the chance to compare Messrs. Taft and Bryan's personal views on this engrossing subject. Mr. Taft's compelling argument in favor of labor unions is one that will find an enthusiastic echo in the heart of every union man. This Record will be a sensational seller.

10000 Unlawful Trusts

So important does Mr. Taft consider this subject that he decided to discuss it in a special Record. He rises to heights of true eloquence in denouncing monopolies that seek to control the market, raise prices and drive out competition. At the same time he makes it quite plain that legitimate business organization is needed to make possible reasonable prices and to promote prosperity.

10001 Function of Next Administration

One of the most engaging subjects Mr. Taft could have chosen. He pays a glowing tribute to the high standards of business operation forced upon the corporations at large business firms by President Roosevelt. He recites the most important ones and says, "The chief function of the next administration in my judgment, is to complete and perfect the machinery by which these high standards of Roosevelt may be maintained, by which law-breakers may be restrained and punished, but which shall operate with sufficient accuracy and dispatch as to interfere with legitimate business as little as possible."

10002 Roosevelt Policies

The mere mention of this title is sufficient to arouse universal curiosity. Everyone has decided views on the Roosevelt policies. Mr. Taft has been closer to President Roosevelt perhaps than anyone else. But many may not have guessed how deep seated and strong is his admiration of the man and his principles. Mr. Taft vividly pictures the conditions which necessitated the reforms advocated by President Roosevelt, and says, "The man who formulated the expression of the public conscience and who led the movement for popular reform was Theodore Roosevelt. He laid down the doctrine that the rich violator of the law should be as amendable to restraint and punishment as the offender without wealth and without influence." This speech is an oratorical gem.

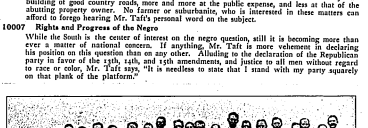
10003 The Philippines

Without question Mr. Taft is better qualified to inform us about the Philippines than any other American. He was sent there by the U. S. Government at the most critical time in the Islands' history—just after the Spanish war—and was largely instrumental in establishing law and order out of chaos. He tells just what has already been accomplished there and asserts his belief that the Islands should be made independent when the people are able to govern themselves. This he thinks will take two generations. A splendid peroration is concluded with these singing words, "It would be cowardly to lay down the burdens until our purpose is accomplished."

10004 Enforced Insurance of Bank Deposits

This is the great national political question brought up by the recent business disturbance. It will be highly interesting to compare Messrs. Taft and Bryan's Records on this subject. Mr. Taft opposes in his most vigorous fashion the Democratic idea of government guaranty of bank deposits. "The idea is wholly impracticable," he says, "unless it is to be accompanied by a revolution in our banking system. If the proposal were adopted as proposed, it would break the whole banking system down in ruins." His closing remarks make a powerful plea for the regular government Postal Savings banks.

10005 Jury Trial in Contempt Cases



Another opportunity for comparing the private views of Messrs. Taft and Bryan on a great political issue. Mr. Bryan discusses jury trial in his Record on "The Labor Question." Here are samples of the "shot shot" with which Mr. Taft assails his opponent's position. "Under the provision of the Democratic platform a recalcitrant witness, who refuses to obey a subpoena, may insist upon a jury trial before the court determines that he received the subpoena. A citizen, summoned as a juror, and refusing to obey the writ, when brought into court, must be tried by another jury to determine if he received the summons. * * * Never in the history of the country has such an insidious attack been made upon the judicial system."

10006 The Farmer and the Republican Party

This Record will make a powerful special appeal to those who live in the country districts. Mr. Taft enters fully into those subjects that are of first importance to every farmer, such as restraint of excessive railroad rates, enforcement of the pure food law, scientific agriculture, and increasing the comforts of country life by the extension of the rural free delivery and building of good country roads, more and more at the public expense, and less at that of the abutting property owner. No farmer or suburbanite, who is interested in these matters can afford to forgo hearing Mr. Taft's personal word on the subject.

10007 Rights and Progress of the Negro

While the South is the center of interest on the negro question, still it is becoming more than ever a matter of national concern. If anything, Mr. Taft is more vehement in declaring his position on this question than on any other. Alluding to the declaration of the Republican party in favor of the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments, and justice to all men without regard to race or color, Mr. Taft says, "It is needless to state that I stand with my party squarely on that plank of the platform."

SELLING FORCE OF NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.

The above picture of the National Phonograph Company's salesmen was taken during their recent visit to the factory at Orange, N. J. President Frank L. Dyer, Manager of Sales F. K. Dolbeer and Manager of Salesmen E. H. Philips were also in the group.

The entire force was at headquarters from August 3rd to 10th, getting ready for the fall campaign. Under the supervision of Sales Manager F. K. Dolbeer and Mr. Philips, special attention was given to the equipment of regular style machines with the new attachments for playing both the two-minute and Edison Amberol Records. The salesmen are now busily engaged calling on Jobbers and instructing them how to put the attachments on.

In Business for Himself

Archie Matheis, who for years has been manager of the talking machine department for Koeller & Hinrichs, St. Paul, Minn., has resigned his position and will engage in the retail business for himself in Minneapolis, his company being known as the Talking Machine Company. He is located at 256 Nicollet avenue. He has been operating this store with the assistance of a manager for some time past. With his wide experience as salesman, both wholesale and retail, his success should be assured.

First Advance List

Of Edison Amberol Records to be Issued Oct. 1st, 1908

RECORDS listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before September 25th, 1908, all things being favorable, and they may be re-shipped to Dealers with October Two-Minute Records at 2 P. M. on September 29th. Amberol Records must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale at retail by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on October 1st. Supplements, Bulletins and special hangers will be shipped to Jobbers with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers with their orders for Amberol Records, but must not be circulated among the general public before October 1st. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements in mail boxes or post offices after 5 P. M. on September 30th for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders in the shortest time possible, so that shipments to all Jobbers in the same territory may be made at one time. Dealers should likewise place immediate orders with Jobbers to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

1 William Tell Overture — Edison Concert Band

No more fitting selection could have been chosen with which to head the list of Edison Amberol Records than this famous operatic overture. The Record contains nearly the whole composition, including the majestic storm scene and the beautiful pastoral scene for flute and oboe. Composer, G. Rossini; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

2 Roses Bring Dreams of You — Manuel Romain

An exquisite love ballad. The Amberol Record makes it possible for Mr. Romain to sing with the utmost freedom of expression, just as he would on the stage. The singer's host of admirers will agree that he has never been heard to such good advantage. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

3 Sextette from "Lucia" — Edison Sextette

The popularity of the wonderful "Sextette from Lucia" has continued unabated since its initial production in 1835. An adequate Record of this illustrious operatic number has not been possible heretofore, but we are at last treated to its every note from beginning to end. It is sung in English by soprano, alto, first and second tenors, baritone and bass. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, G. Donizetti.

4 Flanagan and "The Reillys" at a Baseball Game — Steve Porter

Over four minutes of solid fun. A spirited base ball game forms a highly interesting and exciting background. Flanagan and the Reillys landed seats in a box-bed of enthusiastic "rooters," and Mrs. Reilly's ignorance of the game makes her the butt of much merriment. One of the most attractive features is the progress of the game, which is humorously pictured. Orchestra accompaniment. Original sketch, not published.

5 Love's Dream After the Ball — Edison Venetian Trio

"Returned from the ball, she falls asleep, and in a charming vision beholds him to whom she had given her heart that night." This is the engaging theme of this composition, which has won universal plaudits both here and abroad. It was originally written for string quintette, but is even more effective by the trio (violin, flute and harp). The principal theme is played in waltz tempo, 2/4 time, with tremolo to portray the dream. Composer, A. Czibulka; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

6 Memories of Mother — Anthony and Harrison

Our list of Four-Minute Records would not be complete without one or more gospel hymns by Anthony and Harrison. "Memories of Mother" is a favorite hymn of Evangeline Alexander, of "Glory Song" fame, and is often used by him in revival work. Added verses make this Record an improvement over the best previous efforts of these artists. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Robert Harkness; words, Fred P. Morris.

7 Don't Go Away — Collins and Harlan

Perhaps it is not possible to actually get enough of a fine Collins and Harlan rag time duet, but in this Four-Minute Record we come much nearer to that happy goal than was possible with the two-minute Record. The chief source of humor in their "latest" is the "lovey dove" conversation of the coon and his "gal," when she questions the strength of his devotion. The melody is typical coon "rag," and never have these sterling artists done anything in which the rhythm and swing of the music were better emphasized. Orchestra accompaniment; words and music, Kendis and Paley; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

8 Violets Waltz — New York Military Band

"It is to dance." Here is a four-minute Waldteufel waltz, loud enough and long enough for dancing. No composer of waltz music ranks above Waldteufel, and some of his compositions is better liked than "Violets," which is famed for its melody and perfectly marked dance tempo. The band has made an excellent Record—loud, clear, and in correct dance time. Composer, E. Waldteufel; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

9 Light as a Feather — Albert Benzler

By far the most elaborate bells solo ever attempted. The orchestration is quite remarkable, especially in the clarinet duet variations, through which the bells jingle merrily an attractive fashion. Orchestra accompaniment; music, T. H. Rollinson; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston, Mass.

10 The Holy City — Reed Miller

"The Holy City" needs no word of introduction. It is, and probably always will be, one of the most appealing sacred solos in the language. The entire selection is here given by Reed Miller, whose interpretation displays as much dramatic fervor as his famous rendition of Sullivan's "Lost Chord." Orchestra accompaniment; music, Stephen Adams; words, F. E. Weatherly; publishers, Boosey & Co., New York.

11 Uncle Josh and the Sailor — Cal Stewart

Cal Stewart says, "This is by far the longest record I ever made." And, we may add, it is easily one of the best. Uncle Josh is short of farm help, and hires a sailor, who said he knew it all and then some. But he insisted on sticking to the language of the sea. He yelled "starboard" and "port" to the team, and once he came up with a hateful of eggs. Said he found them on the hatchway. The climax came when the sailor-farmer wanted Uncle Josh to sit up nights and throw water against the side of the house so that he could go to sleep. Instead of doing so, Uncle Josh fired him.

12 The Message — Harry Anthony

Harry Anthony fairly revels in a harmonious semi-classic such as this. The words are romantically fanciful, and the music is of the type that the singer relates, was chosen to carry his message to his Love, in heaven. Mr. Anthony's thorough understanding of vocal art stands him in good stead in this class of song, and it is an artistic treat to listen to his well trained tenor voice. Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. Blumenthal; words, Miss Adelaide Proctor; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

13 Cavalry Charge (Descriptive Fantasie) — Edison Military Band

A powerful descriptive band piece that is a warm favorite with the leading band masters. Synopsis: Morning of the battle; infantry is heard approaching, with fife and drum corps; cavalry, infantry and artillery engage in fierce battle; defeat of the enemy; pursuit by cavalry. The Military Band gives a vivid portrayal of the moving armies and the swift action of the battle. Composer, G. Linders; publishers, The John Church Co., New York.

14 Fal-the-ral-lerricks — Edward M. Favor

As a two-minute Record this has always been a famous seller because of the excruciatingly funny situations described in the verses and the strikingly "different" chorus. It is nonsense, of course, but the cleverest kind of nonsense that is an A 1 mirth-maker. The present Record gives 18 verses, while the old-style Record gives only 8. Orchestra accompaniment.

15 The Sinner and the Song — James F. Harrison

A distinctly unique semi-religious song that is certain to enjoy a wide vogue. A sinner sings the story of his wanderings and his conversion which resulted from hearing his favorite hymn sung by a church choir. To complete the scene, a mixed quartette is heard at intervals softly singing the verses of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," accompanied by a church organ. Orchestra and organ accompaniment; music and words, Will F. Thompson.

16 The Stranded Minstrel Man — Murry K. Hill

One of the cleverest acts now in vaudeville, consisting of two very good humorous songs and a 400-word monologue. The monologuist must of course knock somebody, and on this occasion, (1) the manager of a minstrel troupe, who left his company stranded, (2) the B. & O. Railroad and (3) the humble Inn of the Jamestown Exposition—all "get theirs." It would be too bad if only a few of the "roasts handed them" were true. This Record is a whole show in itself. Orchestra accompaniment; original sketch, not published.

17 Humoreske — Hans Kronold

Anton Dvorak's illustrious concert number makes an ideal 'cello solo. The title, "Humoreske" means that the rendering is left to the musical fancy or feeling of the performer. Mr. Kronold's conception is the true artist's, and will be accepted as such by all who appreciate the best in music. Piano accompaniment; composer, Anton Dvorak.

18 The Preacher and the Bear — Arthur Collins

This comic coon song has run second in popularity to none in the list of Edison two-minute Records. The action, words and music are not only far above the ordinary, but are different from almost any other coon song. The story goes that a negro preacher went hunting on a Sunday morning and was (very properly) treed by a grizzly bear. The limb of the tree broke with him and there were "doings." Our new Amberol Record gives an extra verse, chorus and scene. Collins sings it even better than he sang the earlier Record. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Joe Arzonia; publisher, Jos. Morris, Philadelphia.

19 Trio from Faust — Metropolitan Trio

One of the sublimest passages in Gounod's musical adaptation of the immortal Goethe drama. The trio is sung at the end of the opera and portrays the death and redemption of Marguerite. The singing characters are Marguerite, Faust and Mephistopheles; the voices, soprano, tenor and baritone. Not a word or note is cut from the stage version, which is rendered with artistic finish by the Metropolitan Trio. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, Charles Gounod.

20 Asleep in the Deep — Gus Reed

This well known bass solo is now sung in proper tempo for the first time on any record. The vocalist, Gus Reed, a new Edison singer, has a truly remarkable voice and has produced a Record that has never been surpassed for fullness and depth of tone. Orchestra accompaniment; music, H. W. Petrie; words, Arthur J. Lamb; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

21 The Tales of Hoffmann—Selection — American Symphony Orchestra

Offenbach's most noteworthy operatic work. This opera was recently presented at the Manhattan Opera House, where it was most cordially received. Our Record gives the minuet and barcarole, which stand out prominently above everything else in the score. Composer, J. Offenbach; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

22 Daddy — Harry Anthony

There is no song that tugs at the heart-strings more than "Daddy." It pains the touching picture of a motherless little boy on his birthday night. In words brimming with pathos he prattles of "mother" until big tears fill "daddy's" eyes. The song is here given complete, which is not possible on any other talking machine record. Orchestra accompaniment; music, A. H. Behrend; words, Mary Mark Lemon.

23 Henny and Hilda at the German Picnic — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

One of the cleverest dialect acts that Ada Jones and Len Spencer have ever put on. Hilda promptly forgets that her escort is on earth when she espies her Henny of the band, proudly carrying his bassoon. Together they make a jolly round of the park attractions. Henny frequently gives vent to his exuberant feelings on the bassoon, and Hilda makes good with a number of short, catchy songs. 230 seconds of racy fun. Original vaudeville sketch not published.

24 The Sword of Bunker Hill — Knickerbocker Quartette

The inspiring patriotic song, which many recall as a prime favorite in their school days, when it was sung on all special occasions. Our new Amberol Record gives the four fine verses by Wallace, complete, so that the whole story of the veteran's dying gift to his son, is obtained. The Knickerbocker Quartette make an exceptionally good Record. Unaccompanied. Music, Covert; words, Wallace.

25 A Hunting Scene — Edison Military Band

This forceful descriptive musical scene opens with a pastoral movement portraying daybreak. The warbling of birds is heard and the stillness of early morn is otherwise broken by the echoing hunter's horn. The hunters prepare for the chase, singing merrily. The snap of the whip, clatter of horses' hoofs, and baying of hounds on the scent lead up to a climax when the game is run to earth amid cheers for the successful finish. The male chorus repeats the refrain, "A hunting we will go." Composer, P. Bucalossi; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

26 Pure as Snow — Edison Concert Band

A dazzling concert piece by Gustav Lange, that at once suggests some of the prettiest passages in his exquisite "Flower Song." The selection ranks as one of the most brilliant of a galaxy of old-world numbers that are equally in demand in this country. The arrangement played by the Edison Concert Band is a special one, featuring bells and chimes. Seldom has this organization displayed such able individual and ensemble work. Composer, Gustav Lange.

27 Belle Brandon — Manuel Romain

There are traces of tears in Romain's voice as he sings of "Little beauty, Belle Brandon, who sleeps 'neath the old arbor tree." He is simply immense in this grand old love ballad. Admirers of the sweet-singing minstrel tenor, who fail to secure this Record, will miss the best song that Mr. Romain has yet given us. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Francis Woolcott; words, T. E. Garrett.

28 Quartette from Rigoletto — Metropolitan Quartette

In point of brilliance and musical variety the Rigoletto Quartette represents the fruition of Verdi's genius. A marvelous exhibition of contrasted emotions is brought out by the four singers, the Duke, Magdalena, Rigoletto and Gilda, which makes this a very difficult selection to record. Our four-minute Record gives the famous quartette complete in English; and it will be accepted at once by opera lovers as the best operatic quartette Record yet produced. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, G. Verdi.

29 A Singer Sang a Song — Ed. Morton

Sam Bernard's big encore-winner in his new play "Nearly a Hero." We are introduced to all of the usual run of singers one hears at a "party," from the inevitable young lady, who has a cold when asked to sing, to Pat Casey, who could sing only "Harrigan." Morton works in some of the drollest imitations of the various singers, and gets many laughs for every line. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Seymour Furth; words, Will Wheelan; publishers, Great Eastern Music Publishing Co., New York.

30 Castilian Echoes — Samuel Siegel and Wm. Smith

Only one mandolin and guitar duet has previously been listed in the Edison Catalogue of American Selections. Two numbers are combined in "Castilian Echoes." The first has the languorous rhythm of the Spanish national dance, "Habanera," while the second is a rapturous waltz movement. Not only is this Record extremely good musically, but, as it is played by two of the leading performers of this country, it makes a safe model for students of the mandolin and guitar. Composer, Samuel Siegel.

31 The Palms — James F. Harrison

There are only a very few sacred solos in the same class with "The Palms." It is a surpassingly beautiful piece of vocal music, to which Mr. Harrison lends one of the ablest efforts of his long career as a singer of religious music. The sweet tone-quality of his robust baritone records perfectly and was never more delightful than in the Faure masterpiece, now given complete for the first time on any Record. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, J. Faure.

32 Nigger Loves His Possum — Collins and Harlan

Considered by many to be Collins and Harlan's best duet. This "classic" could not possibly have been left off the first list of four-minute Records. The scene is a Mississippi steamboat deck as the boat is about to leave with a crowd of typical southern darkies aboard. Between the "Kodalk Buck" and other dances by star performers, a bunch of comic repartee, genuine negro shouts and peals of laughter, the clanging bell and tooting whistle of the boat and the great tuneful dust chorus by Collins and Harlan, we are treated to four minutes of the liveliest entertainment imaginable. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Paul Dresser; publishers, F. B. Haviland Pub. Co., New York.

33 You Can Look and You Can Listen, but M-U-M is the Word — Ada Jones

A new comic song that is being sung on all sides. Tom White, though newly wed, longed to get out with "the boys." His wife was "country," but far from simple, and his little lodge "grip" failed utterly to work. She follows him and finds that instead of treating the fellows to the "third degree," he is treating "the girl in blue" to champagne fizz. Naturally, a vivid scene ensues. The tune is a rollicking one, introducing a phrase of a well known Oriental air. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, James Brockman; publishers, Hell & Hager Co., New York.

34 Always Gallant Polka — Albert Benzler

One of the most contagious things we have heard. It will not progress very far until you find yourself keeping time with its rhythm. A novel feature is included in an obligato and variations, played on the xylophone while the principal theme is played as a duet by cornets. Benzler performs with all of his accustomed dash and confidence and the true xylophone tone is perfectly reproduced. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, A. Fahrbach, Jr.; publishers, J. Schoet & Co., New York.

35 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep — Gus Reed

Gus Reed's bass tones record better on the Amberol Record than was ever possible with any other singers on any other talking machine record. His voice is one that is a never-ending pleasure to listen to. The present Record offers the complete song, sung at the correct slow tempo. It is sure to revive interest in the famous bass solo on a very wide scale. Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. P. Knight.

36 I Would Still Love You — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A cupitol love-duet with a generous flow of 18-karat comedy. Jones and Murray vie with one another in handing out the "airy persiflage" of love. The song smacks of "Kiss, Kiss, Kiss," and "Smile, Smile, Smile," two fine sellers among the two-minute Records, by the same singers. The Amberol Record gives twice as much entertainment, however, on account of being twice as long. Orchestra accompaniment; music, C. W. Murchy; words, Harry Castling; publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

37 A Police Court Scene — Steve Porter

A rich and rare vaudeville skit in which a witty Irish judge disposes of a docket of ten cases at one sitting. A liberal amount of uproarious fun is extracted from each case called. The best case was that of Danny Reilly who wiped out a Dutch colony because they said the Irish were no good. The judge recognizes him as an old friend, and adjourns court to join Reilly in a game of pinochle. Original sketch, not published.

38 Semiramide Overture — Edison Concert Band

The overtures that rank with this one can be counted on the fingers of a single hand. It is truly a musical inspiration, such as comes to the master composer but once in a lifetime. Nearly the whole selection is given, including the celebrated second movement, the Horn Quartette. The Edison Concert Band gives the overture a reading that will hold one's attention fast to the last note. Composer, G. Rossini; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

39 I Was Roaming Along — Edward M. Favor

Among the cleverest comic songs in Favor's repertoire. Roaming Bill was a happy-go-lucky individual, whose hardest task in life was "roaming here, roaming there." No matter how he tried, he could not avoid "easy money" and good fortune. It was simply handed out to him at every turn. Three verses and three choruses, the latter being set to a very roguish and unusual tune. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Joe Hollander; words, Arthur J. Lamb; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

40 In the Sweet Bye and Bye — Edison Mixed Quartette

Everybody loves this beautiful old song, handed down by our grandparents. Mechanically, this Record is better than "Good Night, Beloved, Good Night," by the Mixed Quartette. The four-minute feature also gives the advantage of hearing the song complete, three verses and three choruses. Every one of the four voices is heard with perfect distinctness, the female voices being especially good. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Jos. P. Webster; words, S. Fillmore Bennett.

41 A Bunch of Nonsense — Murry K. Hill

Another crack-a-jack vaudeville sketch by Hill, which includes a couple of his latest song hits. The first is a neat parody on "Good Bye, Little Girl, Good Bye." The second, a parody on "Blue Bell." This is very funny. It tells the short life history of "Our Darling girl, Sal," after she used cool oil for starting a fire. Another feature is a short recitation about a cake of cheese. This also is a remarkably "strong" feature. Orchestra accompaniment; original sketch, not published.

42 Reels and Walk-Arounds — Leopold Moeslein

An unique medley of the liveliest medleys and walk-arounds. The reels are played as a violin solo, by Mr. Moeslein, and the orchestra assists in emphasizing the walk-arounds. The following selections are played in the order named: Matinee, reel; Suwanee River, walk-around; Make Up, Susan, reel; Old Kentucky Home, walk-around; Army and Navy, reel; Annie Laurie, walk-around; Jaudas' Favorite, reel; Hear dem Bells, walk-around; Moeslein's Favorite, reel. Orchestra accompaniment.

43 A Busy Week at Pumpkin Center — Cal Stewart

Cal Stewart is "right down new home" among the folks in this masterly talking Record. And his dry Yankee humor and quaint New England drawl were never more delightful. "There be times" when there are busy scenes at romantic Pumpkin Center, even if Stewart's talk do give the idea that it's mostly play down his way. For side-splitting comic description this four-minute Record will be voted one of the very best friend "Cal" has yet made. Sketch is original and not published.

44 O That We Two Were Maying — Mr. and Mrs. Watersous

As a two-minute Record by the same singers this selection won the distinction of being one of the most favored duets in the Edison catalogue. The song is now given complete, the singers are in better voice than when the two-minute Record was made, and the recording process has been greatly improved. The Record, therefore, is in every way better than its famous predecessor and should meet with a phenomenal demand. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Alice Mary Smith; words, Rev. Chas. Kingsley; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

45 Waltz Medley — New York Military Band

"On with the dance!" Here is just what is wanted for a merry waltz—a captivating waltz medley made up of the familiar refrains of the best waltz songs of the day "Just Some One," "When You Love Her and She Loves You," "O'Brien Has No Place to Go," "When It's Moonlight, Mary Darling, 'Neath the Old Grape Arbor Shade," "Are You Sincere," and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." The time is perfect waltz and the Record runs a full four minutes.

46 Selections from Faust — Edison Symphony Orchestra

A truly wonderful orchestra Record, which gives the most beautiful airs from Gounod's opera, "Faust:" Grand Chorus (the Fair) Act 1; Romance, Act 3, (Siebel); Soldiers' Chorus, Act 3, and Finale of Act 4. This is considerably more of the opera than was ever before recorded at one time, and the Symphony Orchestra gives it a grand interpretation. Composer, Charles Gounod.

47 Silver Threads Among the Gold — Will Oakland

The most noted counter-tenor song ever written. No matter how charming are Oakland's new songs in Dockstader's Minstrels, the audience will never allow him to retire until he has sung "Silver Threads." The words are unsurpassed for appealing tenderness and the air is beautiful beyond description. Orchestra accompaniment; music, H. P. Danks; words, Eben E. Rexford; publisher, Hamilton S. Gordon, New York.

48 Santiago Flynn — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An Irish maiden is courted by an Italian wooer. He plays the mandolin beneath her bower in true Romeo fashion and asks her to be his Irish Rosie, but she is able to make very little sense out of his "dago blarney." He asks her to cast her eyes on him and she answers sweetly that she has no cast in her eye. Santiago Flynn entreats her to take the name of Signora Santiago. "A fine name—for a five-cent cigar" she exclaims. The ending is happy, however, for Santiago convinces her that his father was Paddy Flynn, a good, true Irishman. She then agrees to have him to the accompaniment of "Killarney," on the mandolin. Several clever songs are introduced by Miss Jones. Orchestra accompaniment.

49 Blue Danube Waltz — Knickerbocker Quartette

The Blue Danube Waltz made Johann Strauss' fame. It is generally regarded as the finest waltz ever written. In our Record the irresistably sweet melodies are arranged for a quartette by male voices. The Knickerbocker Quartette sings it in a manner which will cause the vocal arrangement to rival the instrumental in popularity. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, Johann Strauss; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston, Mass.

50 American Standard and the New Colonial Marches — Edison Military Band

This Record combines two of the best selling two-minute Records in the Edison catalogue. American Standard was the first selection ever played by the Edison Military Band. The New Colonial Marches are the best known work of the celebrated military march writer, R. B. Hall. The Edison Military Band gives a flawless performance. Music, Frank L. Seltzer and R. B. Hall; publishers, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia, Pa.; and The John Church Co., New York, respectively.

Edison Records

To be Withdrawn from Sale

THE 200 Edison Records named below will be withdrawn from our catalogue on December 1st, 1908. After December 1st, we will refuse to fill orders for any selections on the list, and any stock we may have on hand will be destroyed. These Records are being withdrawn solely because of the demand of the trade that the number of selections in our catalogue be reduced. They are equal in every respect to the selections retained, and would be continued in the catalogues were it not for the trade requirements. They have been and are still popular and large selling Records. Dealers should urge Phonograph owners to look over the list and buy now any in which they may be interested. They will not be able to do so after December 1st next.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY
Vol. VI. OCTOBER, 1908 No. 10

Is anything more needed to make the title of "Edison Jobber" or "Edison Dealer" a greater business asset?

First, Records by William Jennings Bryan; Second, Records by William H. Taft; Third, Edison Amberol Records, attachments to play them, and Combination Phonographs; Fourth, a policy that will prevent Dealers from being loaded up with unsalable cylinder goods of other manufacture; Lastly, (so far) a policy that will protect Dealers in their towns against the indiscriminate establishing of other Dealers in Edison goods.

These advantages do not take into account the present Edison Records and machines, all as salable as ever. Are not all of these enough to make every Edison Dealer anxious to retain his privileges?

Our New Policies

The announcement made a month ago, that after October 1st, unless the time is extended by formal application in each case, Dealers who handle other makes of cylinder goods will not be permitted to sell Edison goods, needs no apology or defense. It has been widely discussed in the talking machine trade. The response which has come from both Jobbers and Dealers has been hearty, spontaneous and enthusiastic, and we have no doubt as to the complete success of the new arrangement.

Now, on top of the announcement of last month, comes another of even greater interest to Dealers. It is printed in full on another page. It means that we are going to regulate the matter of creating new Dealers and thereby prevent new ones from being established in places already properly covered.

It means that every Dealer who is pushing our line properly and is carrying an adequate stock of Edison goods will not be disturbed in his town. Seventy per cent. of our 15,000 Dealers at present have no competition in their towns and because of this later announcement 9,000 Dealers will continue without competition so long as they measure up to our reasonable requirements as to stock and energy.

Along with these two new policies we have in mind several plans designed to aid Dealers in making an even greater success of the Edison. The better discounts on the Amberol Record and the greater attractiveness of the new machines and attachments are among the things that cannot fail to make the privilege of being an Edison Dealer a valuable asset to every one possessing it. We confidently predict that the immediate future will make closer the co-operation between Jobbers, Dealers and the National Phonograph Co., and will inaugurate a period of unexampled prosperity for all.

Success Assured

If ten times the space of this issue of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY were used for no other purpose, we could not repeat the laudatory comments that have been made, or complimentary letters written about the Edison Amberol Record, the attachments to play them on existing machines and the new types of Phonograph designed to play both the old and the new Records. The announcement concerning them came at the psychological moment. It has awakened a new enthusiasm and a renewed determination to push the Edison line as it has never been pushed before.

More expressive than words and letters has been the extent to which Jobbers have placed orders for the new goods. We believe that all orders have been more conservative than they would have been had the goods been on the market, and yet the total, for a time, has put us in the undesirable position of not being able to make more than part shipments. Our advance plans had provided for what we considered a big business, but we were too conservative. The first orders of Jobbers were large for a new product but before a single shipment had been made further orders were received from a large percentage of the Jobbers and they are still re-ordering. As their salesmen and our own salesmen get out among the Dealers they are meeting with the same reception that was accorded us by Jobbers when the announcement was made. The result has been a flood of orders that bids fair to swamp Jobbers and demonstrates that no first order placed by a Jobber will be large enough.

And the factory at Orange, N. J. After several months of a reduced force and shorter hours, it is a joy to see it running day and night, with one of the largest forces and pay rolls in our history. It is sweet music to hear every bit of machinery humming from early morning without cessation. In a commercial sense, it is a beautiful sight to see the immense concrete buildings, with their hundreds of thousands of feet of floor space, lighted at night from top to bottom. It is gratifying not alone for the profits to the trade and ourselves, that will result from this activity, but because it gives employment to many men and women who have done nothing for several months. Nothing is being left undone that will increase the output of the factory and thereby enable us to catch up and keep up with the demands of the trade. Because the conditions are new, we are more anxious to get Amberol Records, attachments and combination machines on the market.

No one connected with the Edison organization has at any time had any misgivings as to the success of the new Record, etc., and yet we rather expected the trade to find minor flaws that had been overlooked. But no such difficulties have been reported. The most expert men among the Jobbers have carefully gone over the new Record and the new attachments for the past month or more and have only words of praise for them. Nothing but getting a larger quantity of the new goods on the market seems to be wanting to consummate the final success of our work and this our splendid factory facilities will soon enable us to do.

Store Management

A monthly comment on things Edison dealers have done with a few suggestions on what they should do to increase sales.

People hesitate to go into a store without a definite errand.

The advertisements contain a cordial invitation to call and see furniture, hear music or try this, that or the other thing.

Yet people hesitate.

Why?

Because so many stores confine their cordiality exclusively to their advertising.

"Come in and stay as long as you like," says an advertisement.

"It costs nothing to look," says another.

You go, you look, you listen, you ask questions, you take up a clerk's time, but the moment you give the least hint that you are not going to spend any money at the time, a frost sets in, the clerk's enthusiasm ebbs away, he loses interest in you, tries to close the interview and you gain the street feeling like an intruder.

This isn't always true, but it is true so often that hundreds of people, who really want something, prefer to look in windows rather than come inside and get helpful information.

How about your store?

Do you carry out your advertised promises?

When you announce the new Records and invite people to drop in and hear them, do you welcome all comers, make them comfortable, play through the entire list, explain the advantages of the Edison Phonograph and thank them, as they depart, for their interest, even though they buy nothing?

Or do you size them up as they come in, decide that certain ones are merely idly curious or are looking for a little free entertainment, play a Record or two, hand them a bunch of printed matter and excuse yourself?

In business you cannot discriminate. When you invite the public to your store and agree to do certain things, you must take the public as it comes.

You must consider every caller a possible purchaser or at least a future prospect.

A reputation for cordiality and courtesy is a big asset. Make people feel free to drop in when they like, regardless of what their errand is, and you will find they will never drop in another store when they want what you sell.

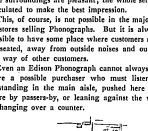
If you are selling other things than Phonographs, make the Phonograph end a separate department.

Don't scatter.



A small stock of Phonographs makes a big showing if properly displayed.

But mix up Phonographs and Records with stationery, hardware, pianos, sporting goods and other merchandise and each line suffers.

The larger stores carrying Phonographs have a room for showing and demonstrating, where people may be taken away from the rest of the store and the noise of the street. There is a carpet on the floor and an easy chair to sit in. The surroundings are pleasant; the whole setting calculated to make the best impression.

This, of course, is not possible in the majority of stores selling Phonographs. But it is always possible to have some place where customers may be seated, away from outside noises and out of the way of other customers.

Even an Edison Phonograph cannot always inspire a possible purchaser who must listen to it standing in the main aisle, pushed here and there by passers-by, or leaning against the wall or hanging over a counter.

Get people away from the idea that Edison Records are delicate—that you must walk on tip-toe when one is about or it will fly to pieces.

You can break an Edison Record with a hammer.

You can ruin the threads with your finger nail.

But they are by no means frail.

It is the very delicacy of the Edison Record that produces the faithful reproduction of sound and the clear, sweet tones for which the Edison is famous.

They should be handled with care, that's all—just ordinary care.

If this is done, they will last for years, as the wear on them from the reproducing point is almost imperceptible. An Edison Record will play with its original clearness and sweetness longer than any other record made.

That's the point for you to emphasize when the question of durability comes up.

Now come the new Amberol Records. Do not let their coming pass as merely an incident in your Phonograph business.

They are an event.

Nothing of so great importance has happened in the talking machine world since the discovery of the phonographic idea by Mr. Edison.

You can offer your trade a Record that plays, talks or sings as long as any two ordinary Edison Records.

You can offer them a Record that plays longer than any record of any kind on the market.

You should concentrate on these new Amberol Records. You should concentrate in displaying them, in advertising them and in talking them.

You should see to it that every Phonograph owner and every possible Phonograph purchaser not only knows about them, but hears them.

You should urge Phonograph owners to equip their instruments so that they can enjoy the Amberol Records.

They will cause a revival of interest in Phonographs that have been silent for years; they will give impetus to the sale of Records; they will make the Phonograph more necessary in the home than ever.

Selling the Goods

ADVERTISING:—One of the most important and often one of the most neglected branches of a dealer's business.

Your Part in Our Advertising Campaign

We want to have a few words with the Dealer who doesn't yet believe that advertising of his own will help to sell more Phonographs.

Retail advertising of the Dealer is next in importance to the national advertising of the manufacturer.

All that the National Phonograph Company can hope to do is to tell everyone who can read about the Edison Phonograph and how desirable it is.

The only way you can get this trade for your store is to let it know that you carry the Edison Phonograph. Of course, if you have no competition—if no one else in your neighborhood or territory sells Edison Phonographs—then everyone who wants a Phonograph so badly that he is willing to go out and hunt up a Dealer, will come to you, but how about the large number of people who are only half convinced, who have read our advertising and become interested, but who need your advertising to make them buy?

Selling any kind of goods is a matter of persuasion, but when it comes to selling a luxury, for, of course, the Phonograph is a luxury, you require more persuasion in the form of advertising than you do to sell flour, clothing or some actual necessity.

Nature insists that people shall eat; the law insists that people shall wear clothes, but the taste for amusement can be gratified in different ways.

What we want to do is to get at the people before they have spent their money for other things and in other stores and persuade them that no investment they can make will cheer them up so much as an Edison Phonograph.

Now if you could get these people into your store and talk to them face to face, you would soon convince some of them, but you cannot do that, so you must advertise—in your local papers, in your windows and by means of distributing printed matter—and keep at it until you have sold a Phonograph to every inhabitant of your town who has the money to buy one and the inclination to hear one.

Have a Definite Plan for Advertising

The work of advertising a store like yours is not so hard as you think.

First make up your mind that you will spend a certain amount of money in advertising in 1909.

Then find out just how much space you can get in your local newspaper for this money. If there are several papers in town and you have not money enough for all of them, pick out the best. If you cannot go in every day, go in twice a week. If you cannot go in twice a week, go in once a week. If your town papers are weeklies, then once a week is certainly often enough, but in a daily paper you ought to be in at least twice a week, and especially between now and the holidays, when people have more money to spend and more desire to spend it.

When you have found out the space that you can afford, then write to us for a set of the ready-made newspaper ads, which we have been showing in this magazine for months. We have enough ads to supply you with just as many as you can use. They are ready-made. That is, illustration and copy are all ready. If you have anything you wish to say in addition to what we have said for you, you can add it to these ads.

The idea of the ready-made ad service is to relieve the Dealer of the work of preparing copy. It takes a good deal of time to prepare advertising copy, even if you have the knack. It would cost you more for such illustrations as we give you than you could afford. We give you this advertising absolutely free in return for your co-operation to help sell Edison Phonographs. The only obligation there is on your part to use it is the obligation that every man in business has to make all the money he can.

You are not making all the money you can as long as you neglect to call the attention of every possible Phonograph buyer to the Edison Phonograph.

Follow Up Phonograph Sales

After you have sold a Phonograph, do not strike that customer off your list. That is only the beginning. You ought to make a great deal more money out of selling Records to a customer than you did when you sold him his Phonograph. There are twenty-four new Records every month, and all of them are good. Of course, you cannot sell all kinds to everyone, but there is at least one example of every kind, and every customer you have ought to buy some new Records every month. They will if you go after them in the right way. If you let them know when the Records are there, if you invite them to come into the store and hear them, if you take pains to take out the kind of music they like when they are there, and if you are as good a salesman as we think you are, you should sell at least one new Record every month to every customer to whom you ever sold a Phonograph.

And here again advertising comes into play—our advertising. We send you a great deal of printed matter about the new Records—The Phonogram, the Record Supplement and various other things, calling attention to the new music. Send them out or distribute them. See that every single man in your town who owns a Phonograph hears about the new Records in time.

The only advertising that is successful is persistent advertising. It is not enough to advertise once, or one day or one week; it is advertising all the time that makes a business successful.

Surely you do not think that the big advertisers of the country—Wanamaker, Marshal Field, Rogers, Peet & Company and other retailers—made a success by any one splurge of advertising. They advertised every day. It is not necessary, however, for you to advertise every day, but you should advertise frequently and regularly. You must persist. You will not get your money back the first or second day. You will not get your money back until you get the people in the habit of coming to your store for the goods you sell. This is just as true whether you sell Edison Phonographs exclusively or whether you sell other kinds of goods. It is the advertising that sells the goods. Of course, you must have a good store, careful clerks, the right goods, fair prices, and the like, but even with all these things you cannot make all the money you should make unless you advertise.

We want to make it as easy as possible for an Edison Phonograph Dealer to make money. We want to place every advertising help in his way that we can. Every month we are sending you good material, material which costs us a great deal of money, and which will bring you business if you will use it in the right way.

More than this, we want to get every Dealer to help us with his own experience. Send us the advertising you are doing for yourself. Send us sample ads from your newspaper. Tell us about your window dressing and how it worked out. Tell us about your sales and how you make them better. Tell us just what you are doing. Ask us questions you like; bring us your selling or advertising problems, and we will try to help you.

We want to make this department an open court. We want the Dealer to consult our advertising department as often as he needs in order to do good work. We wish to assure you that there is nothing that we will not do to help you sell more Edison Phonographs and more Edison Records.

Making the Most of the Political Situation

Now one more word about the Records made by the candidates.

In a month election will be over. You should sell a great many Records in that time. Remember that there is nothing in which men are now so interested as politics. You ought to be able to sell a full set of Bryan or Taft Records to every Phonograph owner in your town, and you ought to sell more Phonographs for the sake of hearing the Bryan and Taft Records.

Write letters to the leading politicians in your town. Get the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican Committees interested. Push these Records as they should be pushed, and you will do the biggest month's business on Records you ever did.

Then after election remember that you will have Records made by the President of the United States. Whichever ticket is elected, you will have the Records of the President. Advertise this fact. Make a big window display the day after election, showing the picture of the winning candidate surrounded by a heap of his own Records, with a card calling attention to the President's Records and the price.

Launching the Amberol Records

The next big thing for the Edison Phonograph will be the Amberol Records, those Records which play more than twice as long as the old Records, the longest Records ever made for any Phonograph, and the best.

Our advertising for Amberol Records will be more liberal than any advertising we have ever done. We are going to cover the country with the facts about this great improvement.

You must make some sort of a hurrah in your store. You must emphasize the fact that Amberol Records are Edison's greatest discovery as far as the Phonograph is concerned, and the greatest improvement in the Phonograph that has been made in years.

We have special advertising for your newspapers for the Amberol Records, as well as matter to be distributed, window cards and posters. All these will be sent to you or are sent to you with this number of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. Use them. You have got to use them if you wish to make them pay you.

Advertising made the National Phonograph Company what it is. Advertising created the Phonograph habit.

The only way you can get more business for Phonographs and Records is to advertise.

Points on Selling Attachments

The success of Edison Amberol Records and the new attachments will largely depend upon the extent to which Dealers become proficient in adding the attachments to Phonographs now in the hands of their patrons. A Dealer can do nothing more important than to make himself familiar with the work of adding and properly adjusting these attachments. There is nothing about the mechanism itself, or the details of putting it on that any intelligent man cannot do, but he must first be shown. Our Jobbers, their salesmen and our own salesmen are now doing all they can to inform the trade. They will continue this work as fast as attachments can be shipped to Dealers by Jobbers. Dealers should make it a point to take advantage of this instruction whenever it becomes available, and if it does not come to them they should seek it by visiting the stores of their Jobbers. No live Dealer should ever let a customer see that he does not know how to put on the new attachments.

One of the important little points about adding attachments is the matter of adjustment so that the machine will run freely. Unless rightly adjusted there may be a bind that will cause the machine to run slow and thereby reproduce incorrectly. Nothing will disgust a customer more than this. If his machine does not run as well with the attachment on as it did before he will be dissatisfied and may want the attachment removed. His machine will run just as well with the attachment on, if properly adjusted, and Dealers should, therefore, pay particular attention to this feature.

Think what the sale of attachments is going to mean to the trade. It will mean a profit on the attachment itself, which, while not large, is worth having. It will mean the immediate sale of the Amberol Records with their handsome margin of profit. It will mean a revival of interest on the part of those who may have for the time lost interest in the Phonograph and who are not now buying Records of any kind. With their Phonograph changed over they will buy Amberol Records and will again buy the two-minute Records.

Then the Amberol Records are going to awaken a new interest in the Phonograph among people who, because of the shorter Record, have never bought a Phonograph at all. They will now buy combination machines and become purchasers of both kinds of Records.

Just as soon as they can get a supply of attachments, Dealers should make a thorough canvass among the owners of Edison Phonographs, for the purpose of getting them to change over their machines. If sales cannot be made for cash, Dealers who have the necessary capital should add the attachments and arrange to accept payments of fifty cents or a dollar a week. This plan will make the customer a patron for Amberol Records, and he will buy Records every time he comes in to make a weekly payment on the attachment.

It ought to be easy to sell attachments. The Dealer knows the names of all Phonograph owners in his territory and can reach them at once. He don't have to argue about the merits of the Phonograph, for the owner knows all about it. The owner has already felt a want for a larger Record and it needs no long explanation to convince him that the Amberol Record is a good thing. It really looks like an easy proposition to change his machine and get his money for the attachment and for Records later.

Don't Blame the Jobbers

Dealers should not find fault with their Jobbers if for the next few weeks the latter cannot fill orders for Amberol Records, attachments and combination Phonographs, as they would like to have them filled. Jobbers will not be as much to blame as we are. Like many other important changes, it is easier to plan them than it is to carry them out as planned. The new product involves many difficulties and some of them have taken longer of solution and to properly work out than we anticipated. Because of difficult manufacturing problems we have been able to only make part shipments to the Jobbers, the total aggregating about twenty-five per cent. of the first order placed. Dealers will readily see, therefore, that Jobbers will not be able to fill more than twenty-five per cent. of their orders, this assuming that the Jobbers' first orders were large enough, which they were not, for more than half of them have since placed second and third orders.

We would not have delayed getting the new goods on the market could we have avoided it, for no one is more anxious than we to get them into the hands of every Phonograph owner. We are running the factory night and day, and doing everything possible to increase the output. The first partial shipments have been made to all Jobbers, and some further shipments have been made on the second round. We hope that another two or three weeks will make it possible to give Jobbers such quantities of goods that they will be able to take good care of Dealers.

It would have been a simple matter to put off the selling date another month, and then give the trade larger, if not complete shipments, but we believed that Jobbers and Dealers would rather make a start with smaller shipments than wait another month. This view has since been approved by the trade. We must ask Jobbers to be patient with us, and Dealers in turn must be patient with Jobbers. We are all doing the best we can. We will get the goods to Jobbers with the least possible delay and Dealers may be assured that Jobbers will only be too glad to turn them over as fast as received.

Read Bulletin No. 15

The attention of Dealers is especially called to Sales Department Bulletin No. 15, printed in this issue. It contains information of vital interest to them.

About Establishing Branch Stores

The following correspondence passed between a Western Jobber and General Manager of Sales F. K. Dolbeer. It covers a point that interests all Jobbers and some Dealers:

THE QUESTION

The question has come up with connection with your ruling that Dealers shall only handle Edison Goods, whether it would be policy where a Dealer, who extensively dealt in the cylinder line of other manufacture than yours, to organize another company, carrying on their business in a store separate from the original one, and carrying the other line of goods in that store. Please let us know whether this would be looked upon favorably or unfavorably by your Company.

THE REPLY

We would advise that the action of a Dealer in opening a branch store, for the handling of other cylinder lines, would not in itself be a violation of the terms of our agreement; that is, provided such Dealer did not make an attempt to display or sell Edison Phonographs or Records from the store in which he was handling the other cylinder lines, or that he did not carry any stock of cylinder phonographs or cylinder records other than those manufactured by us in the store where he was handling our goods.

Candidly, we feel that such action would only be a subterfuge, and where our attention was called to a transaction of this nature we would investigate it very carefully, and if we found that there was any attempt made to evade the terms of the Addenda to Dealers' Agreement, we would immediately take such steps as the case might warrant.

Sign the Addenda

Another letter has just been mailed to such Dealers as have not signed the Addenda to the Dealers' Agreement. It has always been our experience that a certain per centage of Dealers cannot be induced to act upon the first notification. The letter above referred to and this copy of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY will both reach Dealers before October 1st, and all Dealers who have not yet signed the Addenda are urged to do so at once and forward a copy to the Agreement Department at 10 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The Addenda becomes effective October 1st, and not to sign promptly is to run the risk of being deprived of Dealers' privileges, now more valuable than ever before.

Dealers who do not fully understand the meaning of the Addenda are urged to write to us promptly.

Edison's Fame Secure

[Spokane Spokesman-Review, September 7.]

Thomas A. Edison enjoys a privilege which comes into the lives of few men who achieve an enduring place in the Hall of Fame. While yet in the full flush of his marvelous powers, he is permitted to scan the future with a confident knowledge that his name and achievements will be famous in the distant ages.

That is a good fortune which falls to the inventor more often than to the great warrior, statesman, painter, author or musician. Contemporary estimates of the ability of genius of generals and statesmen are frequently not the verdict of history. Contemporary enthusiasm or partisanship may unduly laud the achievements of mediocrity, and, conversely, contemporary rancor and prejudice may deprive greatness in these fields of rightful honors which history will render.

And in art, literature and music we may never be sure that the tastes of one generation will be the tastes of succeeding generations.

But when Fulton made a success of the steamboat, Morse of the telegraph, Howe of the sewing machine and Edison of the electric light, their inventions were so revolutionary and entered so extensively into the lives and actions of the masses that it was instantly apparent that their fame would be secure through the centuries to follow.

Prior to Mr. Edison's success, the electric light had been no more than a laboratory experiment. He made it a practical, commercial reality. His Phonograph is another invention that would have given him enduring fame if he had contributed nothing else to the world's inventive wealth. So also his inventions of the duplex and later of the quadruplex method of transmitting telegrams, by which it became the practice, first, for four operators to be employed on a single wire where previously only two could find employment, and later for eight operators to use instantaneously a single wire, were in themselves sufficient to give him high rank in the inventive world.

In addition to these brilliant and revolutionary inventions, Mr. Edison has given the world numerous other and minor inventions, such as moving pictures, the mimeograph, and attachments and improvements which added greatly to the service of Bell's telephone.

All in all, his has been an inspiring career, and surely none can begrudge him the pleasing reflection that long after his lifework is ended, millions will honor his memory and find life more pleasant by reason that he lived.

Three More Lauder Records

An advance list of three more Records by Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, is given on page 19. These make a total of fourteen Lauder Records put out by this company. The reception that has been given the Lauder Records has been of the most cordial character and none are more popular. Mr. Lauder is about to make a tour of the principal cities of the United States, and with each appearance his Records will grow in popular favor. No Dealer can afford not to have a good stock of the entire fourteen selections.

Error

In the Dealers' Order Blank for December, Record No. 10018, "I'm Glad I'm Married," is incorrectly given as being sung by Ed. Morton. It is sung by Billy Murray.

The average of all is a little less than given here. Note that the Amberol Record plays longer than its nearest competitor, and its cost is only half.

The following is a copy of a letter just mailed to every Edison Jobber and Dealer. Its purport is of the greatest interest to the trade, and Dealers especially should read it with the utmost care:

To All Edison Jobbers and Dealers:

In response to what appears to be a general sentiment in the trade, we beg to announce that commencing December 1st, 1908, and before that date, if possible, we propose to institute a new system for establishing Dealers in the future, and on the details of which we have been working for the past year.

When the new arrangement goes into effect no Dealer will be established in any locality where our goods may be already satisfactorily represented.

Before a new Dealer is established at any point, a formal application must be presented, giving complete information from which, in connection with our own records, we may decide whether the applicant's territory is or is not properly represented; and, if not, whether the application should be granted.

In this way we will be able to prevent the indiscriminate appointment of Dealers in localities that may already be well represented, and in some instances over-represented. At the same time the arrangement will in no way interfere with the appointment of new Dealers in localities where a satisfactory field exists for the exploitation of the Edison Phonograph.

Pending the final announcement of the proposed plan we hope that our Jobbers will co-operate with us to the extent of not establishing new Dealers in localities where our present Dealers may now be handling our goods in a thoroughly satisfactory manner; but in any event, we shall not hesitate to decline to recognize new Dealers, who, in our opinion, may be unnecessary for the good of the trade.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.

FRANK L. DYER, President.

The Muslin Banners

No one is as sorry as we over the delay in getting to the trade the large muslin banners, about which so much has been said. These were promised us by the manufacturers by July 1st, and every Dealer should have had one in front of his store by this time. Part of the trade have already been supplied and we are daily following up the manufacturers for enough to supply the remainder. We hope to fill all orders within the next two weeks. The trade may rest assured that after an experience like this we will not again discuss another new piece of advertising matter with Jobbers and Dealers until the goods are in our hands.

We are already getting complimentary letters about these banners. F. M. Atwood, of Memphis, Tenn., writes: "The banners came to hand several days ago, and I immediately hung one over my front door on the outside, under my sign, and I can truthfully say that I never had anything in the way of advertising matter that brought as many people into my store as it has."

Printed Matter

Conservative shipments of printed matter in connection with Amberol Records, attachments, combination Phonographs, etc., are purposely being made to Jobbers. The first shipment of Amberol Records, attachments, etc., will not much more than suffice to equip the machines in Dealers' stores and give them some Records for exhibition purposes. Until sufficient goods come through to make sales to the public possible there will be little use for printed matter. Jobbers are asked to use the quantities sent them in a manner to avoid waste and still leave some of it on hand for later uses.

Most Jobbers have been supplied with a quantity of the new catalogues of Grand Opera Records. Dealers carrying these Records should get a few and put them in the hands of their best customers—those who may be interested in the better class of music. The catalogue is attractively printed in two colors. Half-tones of the artists are features.

A Jobbers' House Organ

The Whitsit Monthly is the name of an attractively printed house organ just issued by the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Edison Jobbers at Columbus, Ohio. Volume 1, No. 1, which is dated September, is largely devoted to a statement about the new Amberol Records, attachments, new type Phonographs, etc.

He Goes After Business

H. S. Jones, Edison Dealer at Spencer, Iowa, sends a neatly printed booklet, containing a series of arguments concerning the Edison Phonograph, with a request for permission to put one in a farmer's home. Mr. Jones also writes:

"I enclose a small booklet, showing my method of getting the Edison Phonograph into the homes of the people. I do not sit down and wait for customers to call at my place of business, but I go for the trade in the way the booklet suggests. I mail fifteen or twenty of the booklets on rural routes, and in a few days I follow up with as many Phonographs as I may deem advisable, and place them on trial in the homes of those who have received the booklet. I find them pretty thoroughly canvassed up in this way and only too glad to try the Phonograph, which they have become interested in by the time I get around. Then I go around again about the time their enthusiasm is at high-water mark and sell the Phonographs. During this summer I have only had to take up three Phonographs and carry them further on for purchasers.

Jobbers are Requested

Jobbers who may have received from Dealers signed copies of the Addenda to Dealers' Agreement are asked to send them to us at once. Not to do so may cause such Dealers much inconvenience. Jobbers are also asked to canvass their Dealers and make sure that all of them have signed the Addenda and sent it to us.

No Electros of Attachments or Machines

It is not our intention to make any attempt to furnish the trade with electros of new attachments or the new combination type Phonographs. The attachments consist of a group of separate parts that would have no meaning to the public when used for advertising and the combination type Phonographs show no appreciable difference from the present machines. The differential gears are entirely covered by the guard and cannot be shown in an illustration. Electros of the present machines can readily be used as representing the new machines.

Matter Omitted

The unusual quantity of matter concerning the new conditions and other important subjects has compelled us to omit much interesting trade information from this issue. For all such shortcomings, we ask the indulgence of our readers.

Our Advertising of Amberol Records

With the appearance of the monthly magazines, between October 15th and November 1st, we shall begin a most extensive campaign of advertising for Edison Amberol Records, Edison Phonographs and new attachments. Double pages and single full pages will appear in the following standard magazines and weeklies: Collier's Weekly, Associated Sunday Magazines, Youth's Companion, American Magazine, Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, McClure's, Munsey's, Review of Reviews, Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies' World, Success, Pearson's, Sunset, Home Magazine, World's Work, Ainslee's, Puck.

The Saturday Evening Post for October 24th will contain two full pages devoted to a most attractively displayed and strongly written advertisement on the new conditions. This advertisement will occupy the two center pages and make such a striking presentation of the Amberol Record, etc., that none of the 900,000 readers of the Post can fail to see it. We would strongly urge every Dealer to get a copy, open it in the center and place it in his window. Attach a card to it, reading something like this: "This advertisement cost the National Phonograph Co. $2,200.

A little later, as soon as the trade have sufficient Amberol Records, etc., to supply the public, we shall advertise them extensively in daily newspapers in most of the big cities of the country. We also expect to advertise largely in the important agricultural papers; also to have a campaign in Canada that will reach every possible Phonograph buyer in the Dominion. We shall spend in the aggregate, more money for advertising than ever before. We make the statement chiefly to show that our faith in the future of the Phonograph never was stronger. If the trade will in turn advertise locally, they and we will do a business that will put all past totals to shame.

Good Talk

The Southern Phonograph Co., Edison Dealers at Princess Ann, Md., report that during their one year handling the Edison line they have purchased about $1,500 worth of Phonographs and Records, and think so much of the line that they wouldn't take $2,000 for their business.

This is the way Dealers talk who make a real effort to push the business. In another year this company will want a good deal more than a thousand dollars for the good will of their business.

All Want Foreign Records

Here is an argument that will sell foreign Records to two of every three owners of Edison Phonographs: The privilege of hearing the best music of all nations!

Many of the foreign Records are irresistibly beautiful, and well they should be. Take Germany, Italy, France, Spain or most any of the foreign countries. They were busy building up their musical literature centuries before America and American music were ever thought of.

So that it is no wonder that many of their national hymns and characteristic concert and popular selections are ahead of almost anything we have to offer.

Even Chinese and Japanese music have a weird charm of their own. At any rate it is interesting and educational to know something of the music of the different countries of the world and a rare treat to be able to play it for one's friends, who likely never heard it before.

It matters not if the words are in a foreign tongue. Most grand opera is sung in Italian, German or French. But that has never affected grand opera's popularity.

The words do not count nearly so much as the melody to which they are set. Take the duet, "Miserere" from the opera "Il Trovatore." Nobody ever enjoyed that any less because it was sung in Italian. As a matter of fact the Italian language is softer and more melodious than our own.

You can see then that you have a double reason for carrying some of the Foreign Records—you can sell them both to foreigners and Americans.

Take the matter of Foreign Records up with your Jobber. Ask for the Foreign Catalogue and advice on the best selling Records.

Because It Pays

We are now settled in our new quarters. We have a room 23 x 50, but strictly modern windows, cement basement, steam heat, good location and hope when things get straightened around to do a continued good business. Our purchases last year amounted to a trifle over $10,000. As out entire store expenses were less than $400 per month, you can readily see that one reason I like the Edison is because it is profitable. I have never been "stuck" yet. If you continue your business policy the same as in the past, I see no reason why I should do anything else than push your line.—Portland Phonograph Agency, Portland, Ore.

What the Dealers Think

The letter printed below fairly represents the sentiments of fully ninety per cent. of the Edison Dealers. It was written by Henry L. D'Entremont, of ——, in reply to an invitation to join a Dealers' association for the purpose of combatting our new policy, and inspired by the manufacturers of another cylinder line:

Replying to your circular letter of yesterday's date, I would say that I am not in sympathy with the proposed Talking Machine Dealers' Association. As I deal only in Edison goods at present and as they always treated me fairly in the past, I have no apprehension of their doing any different in the future.

This move looks to me like the wailing of a few disgruntled Dealers who, in the parlance of the street, have been "stung" by stocking up with a lot of inferior talking machines and records that could not be sold, and will have less sale in the future. I have been "stung" myself, and bought goods I had to sell at less than cost to get rid of them.

Do you know of any Company that is treating their Dealers any fairer than the National Phonograph Co.? They make the goods that sell and will continue to do so, notwithstanding the idea conveyed in your letter, that other companies might place something on the market that would "sound the National."

In conclusion, I would say that I signed the new agreement and mailed it back the same day I received it, and did so gladly.

One Dealer's Experience

An Edison Dealer in the West thus summed up a condition in a letter recently written to us:

Some time ago you had an article pointing out the risk your Dealers incurred by adding a new line of Records. This lost its force then, as I was positively assured that I would be protected in the exclusive sale of the —— product. I began in December, 1907, and dealt direct with manufacturers, with that understanding. When their Omaha Jobber was established, I was referred to them. Both gave me positive assurance. (It's to the Jobber's credit that I can find nothing to indicate but that he was not acting in good faith.) When practically every Edison Jobber in territory contiguous to —— put in the —— line, I felt uneasy. Wrote about the matter—reassured that I'd be protected.

When a local dealer secured —— records, wrote again—but assured I'd come out O. K.—keep right on—territory for Jobbers would be divided, etc. But July 4th I received a letter exactly the reverse of the one received the week before. They can't protect me. Now, as I do not see how any Edison or —— Dealer would want to put in a new line, except on the exclusive agency proposition, and that proposition is used to catch them (see Jobbers advertisements in the Talking Machine World), I believe your Dealers should be posted as to what the final result will be. "In the soup,"—just as I am.

Straws from Australia

On the arrival of the Manxii picture, which you forwarded me through the New Century Talking Machine Co., Auckland, I placed it in one of the windows of my shop, along with an Edison Phonograph and a lot of Edison Records. Within a few minutes of doing so I sold the machine and a number of Records. I find my sales of Edison Phonographs and Records increasing, and the strange part is that each of my customers claims that their Edison Phonograph is the best ever sent out of my shop. They will take no other but Edison Records. —Wm. Coad, Edison Dealer at Thames, New Zealand.

I am glad that I have taken Edison goods. They increase my returns; profits and sales are far more than expected.—H. Zellner, Australian Stores, Dalton, N. S. W.

W. Chivers, Edison Jobber at Christchurch, N. Z., sends a photograph showing a terrace of six villas and a motor car, purchased, he says, out of the profits arising from his business as an Edison Jobber. Mr. Chivers is an enthusiastic Edisonite, and pushes Edison goods energetically, with good results to us both.

An Odd Incident

To-day Mrs. Glegg had to fill a dying man's wish, and that was to play a certain sacred Record on the Phonograph as his body was being taken out of his late residence for burial. Further, as I had let him have the Phonograph many months ago, and nothing was paid on it, the man who was dying since last Saturday, and as he had got some money for a piece of land, he had the whole £6 wrapped up carefully under his pillow since then, and he made his wife declare she would pay the money to Mrs. Glegg or myself, by the side of his dead body before he was carried away. All this was carried out, the Phonograph playing "Shall We Gather at the River" as the coffin was carried out the door. No one ever heard of or saw any person with such a craving for the Phonograph as that man had, and when too ill to put the Records on, no one could do it right but Mrs. Glegg. That Phonograph is now sacred and not for sale.—Extract taken from letter written by A. S. Glegg, Dealer of Gladstone, Queensland.

Edison Amberol Records

Edison Records are so sweet, clear and tuneful that you've often wished they were longer.

They are now. They play, sing or talk twice as long as the Edison Records you have, which means that there is more music on them than on any other Record made.

These double entertainers are called Amberol Records. Have you heard them? We have them for you to hear.

Four Minutes

That is the running time of the new Edison Amberol Records.

It is twice as long as any Edison Standard Record. It is considerably longer than any Record of any kind.

This permits of entire selections rather than mere matches—of music played or sung as it should be instead of being marred by being hurried.

Beautiful things, never before possible with sound producing machines, may now be enjoyed by Edison Phonograph owners.

Hear them at our store.

Twice as long.

[Electro No. 700]

Edison Amberol Records talk twice as long as Edison Standard Records.

If we talked twice as long as an Edison Amberol Record, we could not tell you all of their good points. Come in and hear an Amberol Record, but expect to stay twice as long as you intend to, for you will be twice as well entertained as you ever were before.

[Electro No. 701]

Edison Amberol Records sing twice as long as Edison Standard Records.

Four minutes, the singing time of Amberols, is long enough to give all the song and all the chorus, not a verse or two, but all.

Come in and hear them.

Twice as long.

[Electro No. 702]

Edison Amberol Records play twice as long as Edison Standard Records.

This means better music for you as well as more music without changing Records. Selections heretofore too long for any record are now possible on the Edison. Nothing is lost by being cut or hurried.

Your Phonograph can be made to play Amberols. We have the attachment.

THAT is what window cards are. Don't look at them from the viewpoint of a millionaire buying pictures. You are a seller of Phonographs and Records, not an artist. Between good looks and good talk in a window card, good talk always wins. Both are desirable, but because you cannot make a card artistic is no reason why you should leave your window speechless. It is what the cards say that counts, and here are some counters. Put them on paper or cardboard, as well as you can, with brush or pencil, but use them. Display one every day in the week and two on Sunday, when you don't work and your clerks won't work, but when advertising will work just as hard.

Trade Bulletins

Sales Department Bulletin No. 16, September 24, 1908

Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to the NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

The attention of Edison Dealers is called to the following information, the issuance of which has been made necessary by omissions from Bulletin No. 14, dated August 1, 1908, or by omissions and misunderstandings that have since arisen with reference to the prospective changes:

Some Jobbers and Dealers have obtained the impression that with the issuance of the new Record and the new Machine, the present two-minute Record and the present types of machines will be discontinued. This is incorrect. The new conditions will make no change whatever with the present type of Record or with the present Standard, Home or Triumph Machines. The two-minute Record will be continued and as great efforts made to improve it as heretofore. The present Standard, Home and Triumph Phonographs will be continued at the present prices.

Jobbers and Dealers having on hand any of the present types of Home and Triumph Phonographs will be permitted to equip them with the new attachments and sell them at the same prices as combination machines, namely, $40 and $60. It must be understood, however, that when sold separately the present Home Phonograph must be at $25, the present Triumph Phonograph at $35 and Attachments at $7.50 each.

Bulletin No. 14 made no reference to the return of the main shaft and mandrel replaced on present machines with the new Home and Triumph Attachments. Jobbers and Dealers must get back these parts wherever a sale of new attachments is made. In other words, Jobbers will be expected to return to us an equal number of old-style parts for the new ones shipped them; they, in turn, will require Dealers to return these parts, and Dealers must get them back from retail customers. The new parts are being shipped in a special box, which should be used for the return of the old ones. Jobbers are asked to make freight shipments of old parts to us when a sufficient number have been accumulated to warrant the cost of transportation charges. The latter will be borne by us.

Jobbers who receive orders from Dealers for Amberol Records only should point out to such Dealers that they should also order a supply of attachments and new-style machines. Without these the Amberol Records will be useless. Jobbers should also caution Dealers against playing Amberol Records with a two-minute reproducer. It is also important that the four-minute reproducer shall not be played on two-minute Records.

The Model B Attachments for Standard, Home and Triumph Machines, now being shipped, are intended for machines that have been in general use for several years past. They cannot be attached to the special machines sold in New York State and known as Model C. The latter machines require a special attachment, and Model C attachments should be ordered when wanted for Model C machines. This paragraph applies only to the New York State trade, and to such Jobbers and Dealers in the States bordering New York as have bought some of these special machines.

Give Free Concerts

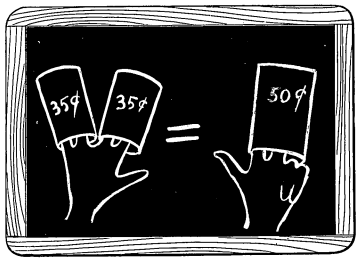
The manager of one of the largest and most up-to-date retail Phonograph departments in the country says free concerts have been the main factor in the success of his business. He is right about it, too.

If a Dealer has a separate room in which to give free concerts he can rest assured it will pay him handsomely to do so regularly in the afternoons and occasionally at night. If no separate room is available it can be done in the regular ever most convenient.

Never run a newspaper advertisement without making prominent mention of the free concerts. This need not mean that there is something big and something special going on all the time, but should convey the impression that anybody can drop in any time and hear anything they like played upon an Edison. Make it plain in your announcements that visitors are not asked to buy. The better impression you can give that it is an entirely informal affair without the least obligation on your customers to buy the more freely handed them in the way of the new supplements, they will come. Let them feel that the pleasure is yours, and that your recitals are strictly educational.

Put signs in your windows telling about the free concerts and have a number of advertising cards on your walls where your visitors can't help seeing them, telling how easy it is to own an Edison by the time-payment plan. Every caller should have some advertising matter etc, that will give particulars about the Edison Phonograph and Records.

They are your prospects for machine sales later on and should be treated as such. Take their names and addresses down when possible and mail them the monthly Supplements and other advertising matter that will keep their interest up until they buy. The special night concerts will draw crowds every time if neat invitations are sent out. This is a mighty good way to round your prospects up every now and then. So many people will come at night who find it inconvenient to call in the day. Often a man, or more likely, his wife, will come in the daytime, but a woman will want her husband to hear the machine before she decides to purchase. Both can arrange to attend at night.



The Phonograph is a sort of thing that many people do a lot of thinking and considering before they get to the buying point. Often there is something else they want at the same time, and it's an open question whether the Phonograph wins or the something else.

There is no way of selling an Edison so good as getting people to listen to it. You simply can not sell them any other way. So do the best you can in the free concert line. The people who come in to hear the Records will get the habit of buying other goods of you even if they hold back a while on buying a Phonograph. You may not have a whole lot of vacant space, but make the most of what you do have.

"The strenuous tones of a vaudeville tenor's song cut across the rattle of wheels in the street, and people turned to look. They came from the funnel of a talking machine, set near the open door of a new hardware store.

When the tenor had finished his effort to carry his voice to the end of the hall, a musical chime of bells followed. The next morning there was an orchestral march, to put spirit into the downtown procession; and in the evening the returning procession smiled in successive waves of understanding as the people came within earshot of 'Home, Sweet Home.'

It wasn't very long before the crowds that tramped up and down that street knew very well where to find a hardware shop when they needed something in that line. And the talking machine had neither sold nor sung a word about business, either."—Fame.

Lessons for Dealers

Lesson III.

Get next, to solve Nit, a contraction of not Come-back, a saving
Stung, defrauded Tickle, please

Can you get next to this e-qua-tion? It means that one Edison Am-ber-ol Record will afford as much en-ter-tain-ment as two reg-u-lar Edison Records.

Two reg-u-lar Edison Records sell for 70c. One Am-ber-ol Record sells for 50c. This 20c come-back will tic-kle the cus-to-mer.

Are you stung? Nit. For Am-ber-ol Records will also tic-kle the cus-to-mer.

Instead of sell-ing one Am-ber-ol at 5oc you will sell two at a dollar. This will tic-kle you.

Advance List

Of Three More Edison Records by Harry Lauder

LAUDER Records will be ready for shipment from Orange on or about October 10th. Samples will not be sent. Jobbers' stock orders received by October 5th will be shipped as fast as possible after October 10th. All first orders will go by freight, because Mr. Lauder will first appear in New York and vicinity, the usual order of shipment to Jobbers will be reversed, that is, shipments will first be made to Jobbers nearest to New York City, those located further away getting attention later. Shipments will be made at one time to all Jobbers in the same territory and it is hoped to complete the shipments within ten days. Special Supplements and Bulletins will be shipped with Records to all Jobbers ordering them. Lauder Records may be placed on sale by Jobbers and Dealers as soon as received.

HARRY LAUDER, the famous Scotch comedian, will return to America in October and make a twelve weeks' tour of the principal cities, opening at a New York Theatre, on October 12th. This fact has induced us to put out three more of his Records. These are in addition to the four issued in September and the seven put out in February last. Mr. Lauder is already widely known in the United States and Canada, both because of his personal fame and the prominence gained by the tremendous sale of the Edison Records made by him. His salary of $5,000 a week is one of the largest ever paid to a vaudeville star. His appearance in the principal cities here is going to create a new demand for his Records, and every Jobber and Dealer should see that his stock of Lauder selections is complete and ample.

13757 That's the Reason Noo I Wear a Kilt

This selection starts with an explanation by Lauder as to the reason for his wearing kilts. He admits that they are not fashionable, but recommends their wear to married men particularly. He says that when he wore breeches the pockets were exposed to too close inspection each night, while he was reposing comfortably under the quilts, with the result that he was stoney-broke every morning. How he made the discovery is told in his humorous way. The selection ranks as a favorite with Lauder—and worthily so.

13758 Inverary

Lauder tells in this delightful tuneful selection of his meeting with the "nicest lass that ever buttoned on a frock." He was enroute to Inverary at fair time, and the lass rushed into the same compartment of the train. After asking her name, Lauder invites her to go to Inverary. In the first part of the chorus he sings of how he got "spoony" with Mary and Mary got "spoony" with him. Lauder is unapproachable in the rendition of songs which contain a quaint confession of his "coorting the lass," and the present is a typical example from his repertoire, reminding one, particularly in the chorus, of his "I Love a Lassie."

13759 Callaghan

Callaghan was a tailor who made clothes for Lauder, taking his pay in small instalments each week. His work had always been most satisfactory until he made a pair of "pants" for Lauder. They evidently carried with them an evil charm of some kind, for as soon as Lauder began to wear them, his work fell off. He had had them for a "fortnight," when Callaghan called for his money. The scene which ensued is pictured in the chorus, which is a funny play on Callaghan's name.

Of Edison Standard (Two-Minute) and Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records for December, 1908

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before November 25th, 1908, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 2 P. M. on November 25th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on November 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after November 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before November 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on November 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are requested to place orders for December Records on or before October 15th. Dealers should place December orders with Jobbers before October 15th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard (Two-Minute) Records.

10008 Christ is Come — Edison Concert Band

Special Christmas band number. This sacred song is given a most unique and charming setting, which includes a harmonious arrangement for band, a duet by Messrs. Anthony and Harrison, assisted by a mixed quartette in the refrain, and finally the joyous ringing of bells and chimes for Merry Christmas. Music, Sankey-Beke; arrangement is special for our Record and not published.

10009 Always Me — Byron G. Harlan

Another "Why Don't They Play With Me," by Chas. K. Harris. A stepchild's "never papa" never pets, but always blames and scolds her. The affecting story of her childish hardships is set to a very wistful tune, which Mr. Harlan sings quite as finely as any of his earlier child-songs. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Chas. K. Harris; publisher, Chas. K. Harris, New York.

10010 Taffy — Ada Jones

We have all dealt in "taffy," giving or receiving it according to sex. Never mind—here is a Von Tilzer song that goes to the bottom of the question and tells what's what in the love game. One of the most "confectionery" things we have heard. Miss Jones has certainly added another to her list of serio-comic successes. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Vincent Bryan; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Pub. Co., New York.

10011 Petite Mignon — Caesar Addimando

A double novelty—an oboe solo by a new Edison artist, who is an acknowledged master of this sweet-toned instrument. This is the first oboe selection we have listed. Many prefer its quaint and dulcet tones to those of any other instrument. The selection is a dainty classical recitative number, more favored, perhaps, than any other for oboe work. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, M. Carman.

10012 When Darling Bess First Whispered Yes — Manuel Romain

A sentimental love ballad that seems to have been made on purpose to show off the reed-like tone quality of Mr. Romain's voice. The story told is reminiscent of sweethearts days, the hero and heroine being a lad in homespun and a lass in gingham. The Record will easily hold its own with Mr. Romain's best. Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. Fred Helf; words, Robert F. Roden; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10013 My Bradda Sylveat — Collins and Harlan

One of the best of the Italian dialect songs that vaudeville singers are featuring at present. The irrepressible Collins and Harlan sing it to a rag-Italian tune—something new and decidedly fetching. If their hosts of admirers will ask to hear this Record, very few will miss the opportunity of taking it home. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Fred Fischer; words, Jesse Lasky; publishers, Fred Fischer Music Pub. Co., New York.

10014 Everybody Knows It's There — Edward M. Favor

Mr. Favor affects the voice and manner of a boy in this unique comic song, and sings a jolly, lilting tune about the mischievous pranks he played on his father, his teacher and the family tom cat. There are three verses and three choruses. Each presents a novel and laughable situation in such a way that "Everybody knows it's there." Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Dave Reed; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

* Illustrations will be illustrated on cover of December Phonograms.

10015 Fun in a Barber Shop — Vess L. Ossman

An original banjo conceit which presents Mr. Ossman at his best. The typical banjo tune is extremely infectious and is full sure to start a general patter of feet. The "fun" is supplied by ludicrous slide trombone effects introduced in the orchestral accompaniment. Orchestra accompaniment; composer, Jesse M. Winne; publisher, Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

10016 Uncle Josh's Arrival in New York City — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh has about the funniest experience of all his checkered career in New York. He started by losing his hat en route by leaning out the car window. His railroad ticket went with it and he had to buy another. But he got even with the railroad by buying a round-trip ticket and not using it to go back. His good looks made a great hit. When he got off the train he ran into dozens of cabmen, all of whom shouted at him, "Hansom, sir? Hansom?" Screamingly funny all the way.

10017 The Widow Dooley — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

This up-to-date dramatic sketch opens with a flute solo, "Sweet Molly Oh," announcing a visit by Larry Connor to court the widow Dooley, whose Mike has been dead only a month. The courtship is spicy and full of laughable scenes. By request the widow sings "Come All Ye," and Larry plays a reel on his flute, to which she dances. At the psychological moment he pops the question, but learns that he is too late, as Pat Murphy proposed and was accepted at the lamented (?) Mike's grave. Larry makes a sorrowful exit, whistling "Farewell Mavourneen." Orchestra accompaniment; original sketch, not published.

10018 I'm Glad I'm Married — Billy Murray

Here is a man that's glad he's married! Most of the matrimonial comic songs tell a different story. Even the singer makes his declaration with a comment that makes its sincerity doubtful. This Record is a worthy successor of Mr. Morton's Record 9949, "Don't Take Me Home," the Edison comic hit for October. He sings three comic songs with a gusto and flourish that carry all before them. There are three verses and three choruses, the latter set to that engaging two-four swing. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Al. Von Tilzer; words, Jack Norworth; publishers, York Music Co., New York.

10019 In Lover's Lane — Edison Concert Band

This naïve and winsome band number was inspired by the stroll of the West Point cadet with his best girl down Lover's Lane, the fair-famed trysting place of Uncle Sam's future lieutenants, captains and generals. The most striking part is the air of the trio. This recalls instantly several of our prettiest Italian pieces, and will be continually recurring to everyone who hears it. The osculation effect makes a very happy and appropriate conclusion. Composer, Arthur Pryor; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10020 The Sons of Uncle Sam — Edward Meeker

A new patriotic song written in Australia in honor of the American Battleship Fleet's recent visit to that country. The lines teem with heart-felt admiration of Uncle Sam's sailor boys, and the melody is one of those inspiring march airs that bring up mental pictures of a war fleet in action. Faint echoes of national airs are heard in the accompaniment, intermingled with lusty cheers for the Red, White and Blue. Orchestra accompaniment; music, L. E. Howarde; words, A. M. Rattray; publishers, W. J. Dease & Son, Sydney, Australia.

10021 Last Day of School at Pumpkin Centre — Cal Stewart

In this selection Uncle Josh treats us to some rich imitations. The first, is that of a typical Pumpkin Centre small boy reciting "I Like For to Live in the Country." Very amusing. Next is an imitation of Ezra Hopkin's youngest playing a mouth organ solo. Then comes the most ludicrous of all, a little German fellow in a thoroughly "Dutch" recitation of "Mary's Lamb."

10022 My Rosy Rambler — Billy Murray and Chorus

A new song of the far southwest by the writers of "Cheyenne" and "San Antonio." "Big Jim," the furo king, finds his heart's desire in a bewitching Spanish senorita. The tune has been styled the catchiest since "San Antonio," while Spanish color is given by the introduction of castinets and mandolin. Mr. Murray and chorus give the song the best interpretation it has ever had. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Egbert Van Alstyne; words, Harry Williams; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10023 Kentucky Patrol — American Symphony Orchestra

Patrols never fail to rank among the best sellers of the month in which they are issued. This one contains a number of engaging melodies, distinctly Southern in flavor, and is fully equal to "Patrol of the Scouts," (Record No. 9960). The whistling refrain, which was so widely praised in the latter, is eclipsed by a louder and even better one in the present Record. Composer, Karl Kaps; publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

10024 Yours is Not the Only Aching Heart — James F. Harrison

Friedman's tenderly beautiful love song that is being sung everywhere. Words and music are fully as captivating as the well-chosen title would indicate. A pure, but fondly cherished, love is the subject and the plaintive note that dominates the air is irresistibly sweet. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Leo Friedman; words, Beth-Slater Whitson and T. J. Quigley; publishers, Francis, Day and Hunter, New York.

10025 Oh, You Coon! — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

The coon song success of the newly organized Cohan & Harris Minstrels. The music represents the only George M. Cohan's idea of the new and popular semi-rag tune and its infectious to a degree. Miss Jones and Mr. Murray give it such a snappy Cohanesque interpretation that the Record will be a very big seller. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Geo. M. Cohan; publishers, Cohan & Harris Pub. Co., New York.

10026 What You Goin' to Tell Old St. Peter? — Arthur Collins

In Arthur Collins' new and sensational comic coon song the bone of contention has a decided chicken flavor. Parson Hammond, preaching "bout the 8th Commandment," points out Ephraim White as a "bad nigger." He tells the congregation about tracing Ephraim's footsteps from Massa Jones' henroop to his home. Ephraim retorts, "How come you round that coop?" The tune is a winner, especially in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Ed. Rose; publishers, Rose & Snyder Co., New York.

10027 Song of the Mermaids — Venetian Instrumental Trio

This is the entrancing air sung by the maiden chorus in the finale of the second act of von Weber's tuneful opera, "Oberon." The instrumental arrangement used by the Venetian Trio makes one of the most beautiful numbers in their entire repertoire. Composer, C. M. von Weber.

10028 I Don't Want the Morning to Come — Frederic Rose

The long-expected companion piece to "I Am Tying the Leaves so They Won't Come Down" and by the same writers. An exceedingly fine ballad, which tells of a little sister's pathetic love for a dying brother. The doctor announces that he cannot live another day. In childish fashion she tries to keep the morning back by turning the hands of the clock and closing the window blinds. The refrain is in the effective waltz lento time with a strikingly original orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, A. J. Lamb; publishers, Helf & Heger Co., New York.

10029 So Do I — Knickerbocker Quartette

A most unique quartette song. All of the singers, it seems, had flirtations with the same young lady. Singer No. 1 sings of her charms, saying, "I gave to her a diamond ring." Singer No. 2 replies, "So did I." Then the bass sings in deep sepulchral tones, "And she gave them both to me." Some clever conversational by-play is worked in between the verses and the Record will prove a phenomenal seller. Unaccompanied; adapted for our Record by Gus Reed.

10030 Christmas Morning at Clancy's — Steve Porter

This remarkable descriptive scene will make everyone get Christmas in his (or her) bones. Merry Christmas chimes are heard; Pat, Mary Ann and all the "children" crowd around the tree and Pat distributes the presents amid happy shouts and peals of laughter. Danny plays his Jew's harp, Patsy his drum, also a piccolo. Then the old man gets out his fiddle and plays a lively jig while the others dance. Uncle Mike drives up in a sleigh, the kids pile in for a ride over the snow, and jingling sleigh bells are heard as they glide swiftly away. Original sketch.

10031 Uncle Sam's Postman March — Edison Military Band

At last Uncle Sam's faithful mail man gets his deserts musically. Lurvey has dedicated this rattling fine march to the postmen of the country. The postman's familiar whistle is heard in the trio. The time is 6-8 and it makes an admirable dance number for the new four-step dance, the more so as the Military Band has made a wonderful Record, both in point of volume and perfectly marked tempo. Composer, H. R. Lurvey; publisher, H. R. Lurvey, Lynn, Mass.

Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records

51 Overture, "The Year 1812." — Edison Concert Band

The Overture Solennelle, "The Year 1812," was written for the consecration of a church at Moscow. Tchaikowsky, the great Russian composer, has depicted vividly stirring scenes of the France-Russian war during the year 1812. The majestic Russian hymn, "God, Preserve Thy People," is heard, after which there bursts terrifically the "Battle of Borodino." In this sanguinary contest the French "Marseillaise" is silenced by the Russian hymn. Only a few bands and orchestras, comprising the ablest performers, whose organization has been developed to a state of perfect efficiency, ever attempted this work. The Record runs considerably more than four minutes and includes all the most important parts of the selection. Composer, P. Tchaikowsky; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

52 Ask Mammy — Manuel Romain

One of the finest Records Mr. Romain has ever given us. The tune is bewitching and the well-chosen words tell a story of tender and absorbing interest. The subject is the love making of a couple of picaninies at a country stile. Bill's invitation to Lize to play in his yard is met with the teasing refrain, "Ask Mammy." Years pass and the couple are found at the same old stile, "Still making love, but on a larger plan." Bill asks if she loves him as of old. Again the charmingly useful refrain, "Ask Mammy." Orchestra accompaniment; music, J. F. Brymm; words, Daisy M. Braeson; publishers, Helf & Heger Co., New York.

53 Miserere from "Il Trovatore" — Miss Hinkle, Mr. Anthony and Chorus

We have hastened to give this wonderful duet complete in a four-minute Record, because of the ovation accorded the two-minute Record of the same selection in October. The entire Miserere scene is here given, just as it occurs in act 4 of "Il Trovatore." Here we not only have the duet complete, but have also the splendid chorus of male voices chanting the prayer, "Pray that peace may attend a soul departing," etc. Both duet and chorus are sung in English. Orchestra accompaniment; score, G. Verdi; libretto, S. Cammarano.

54 A Few Short Stories — Marshall P. Wilder

This Record introduces a distinguished new Edison artist, Marshall P. Wilder, the famous wit and theatrical monologuist. Mr. Wilder is known throughout the English-speaking world as the foremost story teller of our times. His anecdotes are all new and extremely humorous and his droll method of telling them never fails to keep his audience in roars of laughter. There is something in the remarkable personality of the man that reaches out and grips an audience so as to make them see life through his eyes. In his stories he makes frequent humorous references to his small stature and is seldom on a stage for more than a minute or so before he establishes such a strong bond of sympathy with his hearers that they feel they have known him all their lives. The present Record gives a dozen of his best stories.

55 When Grandma was a Girl — Ada Jones

This novel song first won fame in Sam Bernard's musical comedy, "Nearly a Hero." Later it was picked as one of the best songs of the year and featured in "Follies of 1908." In the most amusing and melodious lines it compares the modes of Grandma's day with those of to-day. Two special songs are introduced, a bit of fifty years ago and one of to-day, to show the contrast. Another comparison is an imitation of the car conductor of those happy times and the present. A decidedly clever admixture of song and comic monologue. Orchestra accompaniment; music and words, Ray Goetz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

56 Spring, Beautiful Spring — American Symphony Orchestra

The favorite European waltz by Paul Lincke. The music is standard in type and "Made to last." Like "Blue Danube" and similar waltzes, it will be as much admired in fifty years as it is to-day. The Symphony Orchestra is given a fine opportunity to show what it can do with the highest grade of composition. Composer, Paul Lincke; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

57 Stories About the Baby — Marshall P. Wilder

Mr. Wilder relates all of the noted "baby stories," on which his fame as our leading wit and raconteur largely rests. The one about his quest in the department stores for a supply of baby blue ribbons has never failed to "bring down the house." Each of the celebrated Wilder mannerisms and all of his deft little tricks of speech are reproduced as truly to life as though the speaker were present in the flesh.

58 Grandma — Byron G. Harlan

By long odds the leader among sentimental "Grandma" songs. It relates a simple story of affecting heart-interest founded on the devotion between grandma and her favorite grandchild. Mr. Harlan has no rival in this class of song. The Amberol Record gives it complete and enables him to greatly improve on all previous efforts. Orchestra accompaniment; music, Ted Snyder; words, Alfred Bryan; publishers, Ted Snyder Music Pub. Co., New York.

59 The County Fair at Pumpkin Center — Cal Stewart

There are 650 words in this breezy monologue, which most likely will be voted the funniest Yankee talk Cal Stewart has ever produced. Uncle Josh relates, in his own matchless way, all the incidents of the Pumpkin Center Fair, and it is certain no audience will ever tire of listening. He is great in his description of Salome's "Dance of the Seven Veils" and "The Dance of Venus," two side shows that played to "standing room only." Original sketch.

60 I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark—Humoresque — New York Military Band

This composition is attracting marked attention at concerts by all of the leading bands. It is a humorous paraphrase by Lampe on the popular song of the same title, arranged especially for large military bands. It requires a complete force of instrumentalists to interpret the score. The refrain of the song is taken for the theme and many humorous and fantastic effects are introduced by the various instruments. Composer, J. Bodewalt Lampe; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS

are the new Phonograph Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records.

This is not done by making the Record larger or longer, but by engraving more than twice as many lines to the inch as on the regular Record.

Thus Amberol Records can be used in the standard sizes of Edison Phonographs by the addition of a simple attachment or gear.

These new Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.

To Play Amberol Records on Your Present Phonograph

requires an attachment comprising a change gear and a new reproducer. Your dealer has this attachment, will put one on your Phonograph at a moderate cost, and will explain it to you.

We will be glad to send to anyone, however, a booklet describing the new attachments, describing the Amberol Records, giving a list of the music now available on these Records and giving all the other information necessary to make it possible for you to get more than twice as much enjoyment out of your Edison Phonograph as you are now getting.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Lakeside Avenue, Orange, New Jersey

SINGLE PAGE MAGAZINE ADVERTISEMENT FOR NOVEMBER.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY
Vol. VI. NOVEMBER, 1908 No. 11

Is your stock of Edison Phonographs and Records in good shape for the holiday trade?

Are you ready to get your share of the purchases that will be made within the next six weeks?

If not, then it is none too early to get busy. Christmas is only seven weeks away, a period all too short for Dealers who have not given much thought to the holiday season.

We have given up a large part of this issue to helpful holiday suggestions for Dealers and we commend them to every Dealer who wants to increase his business now or at any other time. These suggestions, however, will be worth nothing to Dealers who do not have a proper stock of Phonographs and Records. Unless you have such a stock on hand or intend to get it at once don't waste time or money for advertising or for any other holiday plans.

But bear this in mind, if you are the only Dealer in your town and you want to continue as the only one, you must do your part in taking care of your locality. We are going to make the title of EDISON DEALER worth more and more as time passes and we cannot afford to have Dealers occupy valuable territory if they will not carry an adequate stock and push the business.

If you find that the mail-order-houses are selling Edison goods in your vicinity, be as aggressive as they and you will have no reason to complain. The Amberol Record alone ought to wake you up to the new possibilities of the Phonograph business. Besides the possibilities for heavier sales the increased profits ought to appeal to you.

Addenda Must be Signed Without Delay

A comparatively small number of Dealers have failed as yet to sign and send us the Addenda to our Dealers' Agreement. The effect of this Addenda is to commit Dealers to the sale of Edison goods as their only cylinder line. As was to be expected, a few of these Dealers will not sign at all, preferring to handle other lines, but the number is much smaller than we anticipated. In fact, we hardly realized our full strength in the trade, until we found thousands of Dealers eager to co-operate with us in this new policy. We fully believe that nine out of ten of the unsigned Dealers have failed to send us signed copies of the Addenda purely from carelessness or negligence. The following letter has been sent to unsigned Dealers and it will, we believe, bring the signatures of all Dealers who seriously intend continuing in business as talking machine Dealers:

Your name appears as one of the few Edison Dealers who have not yet signed the Addenda to our Dealers' Agreement.

It is important that we know at once your attitude concerning this matter. We want to put into effect the new plan of not permitting new Dealers to be established in localities where we are not properly represented, and until we hear from you we cannot tell what course to follow concerning your town. Then, too, we should regret it if we prevented your Jobber from supplying you with Edison goods and later found that you desired to continue as an Edison Dealer.

We enclose two copies of the Addenda. If you intend to continue as a Dealer, sign one, have your signature witnessed, and return to this office at once. Retain the other for your files.

If you have decided not to continue, sign the enclosed blank and mail it to us.

Requesting the favor of a prompt reply, we beg to remain.

Edison Records Cannot Be Sold at Auction

In the early part of October a firm of auctioneers at Paterson, N. J., announced a sale of a lot of Edison Records. The National Phonograph Company heard of it in time and had a restraining order issued by a Federal Judge. The case was settled a few days later by the defendants consenting to the issuance of a permanent injunction against them. In a somewhat similar case at Woonsocket, R. I., a firm of pawnbrokers were restrained from selling a lot of Edison Records at less than retail prices.

Going Some

Did you ever see a factory working with a daily force of 4,500 hands, running all night in some departments and part of the night in many others? Do you realize the number of Phonographs, Records and attachments such a force can turn out every week? Do you appreciate what it means to have a weekly payroll of $50,000? If you do then you may form an idea of the efforts we are making to produce goods fast enough to supply the Edison trade. We have a force of 4,500 people; many departments are working eight and day; they are making Phonographs and Records at a phenomenal rate, and it is costing $50,000 a week to meet the cost of labor. Don't it seem likely that such a way of running a big factory must in a short time catch up with orders and then keep up with the demand?

Good progress was made last month toward catching up on the first orders from Jobbers for Amberol Records, combination Phonographs and attachments. Second shipments were made to all Jobbers. These in many cases completed the Jobbers' first orders. A few unusually large orders still remain to be filled. Many Jobbers have already placed second orders, which in not a few instances were larger than the first ones. The second shipments will ease up the situation a little and relieve the Jobbers of some of the strain to which they have been subjected in the past six weeks because of their inability to fill the orders of Dealers.

Although we are now making splendid progress in manufacturing goods it will not be out of place to make a statement that will aid the trade in appreciating some of the difficulties encountered in making the new Records, attachments and machines. To play the Amberol Record a reproducing point is required that is only one-quarter the size of the one used in a Model C Reproducer. Roughly estimated it is eight times as difficult to make one of these finer points and the percentage of imperfect work is proportionately large. To make these fine points required the breaking in of a large number of men and women. These hands have now become proficient. All the work is done under powerful microscopes. Because of the expense of these instruments and to increase the daily production the men work in three shifts of eight hours each, the department working without a stop from 7 o'clock Monday morning till 12 o'clock Saturday night. If the trade could have followed the details of building up this department it would fully appreciate at least one of the difficulties of the new conditions.

Store Management

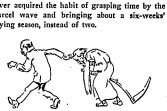
A monthly comment on things Edison dealers have done with a few suggestions on what they should do to increase sales.

THIS issue is our Christmas Special.

If it is a little bit ahead of its schedule, so much the better for you.

A suggestion for helping holiday trade is not of much value after the holiday trade has started.

You will probably do a good holiday trade without making any special effort. It is the time when people spend.



But the trade you get without effort is no credit to your store management and should not satisfy you when there is so much more to be had by going after it.

You will find in this issue a number of ideas that will bring you holiday trade that you would not otherwise get.

You cannot do these things at the eleventh hour and do them well. You cannot wait until the week before Christmas and do them effectively.

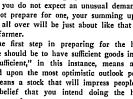
The only reason why the majority of people don't think about Christmas buying until well along in December is because nobody has suggested Christmas buying to them.

The holidays have been happening every year for hundreds of years, and yet most dealers have never acquired the habit of grasping time by the marcel wave and bringing about a six-weeks' buying season, instead of two.

Once a pessimistic old farmer was asked about his crops.

"Well," he said, "they didn't turn out as well as I thought they would and I hardly thought they would."

Your holiday trade in Phonographs and Records depend upon your belief in a big trade and your energy in backing up that belief.



If you do not expect an unusual demand and do not prepare for one, your summing up after it is all over will be just about like that of the old farmer.

The first step in preparing for the holiday trade should be to have sufficient goods in stock.

"Sufficient," in this instance, means a stock based upon the most optimistic outlook possible. It means a stock that will impress people with the belief that you intend doing the holiday business of your career.

And you will, if you begin early and set about it with that determination.

Holiday time is no time to clean out odds and ends. People are in a buying mood, and they insist on spending their money at stores that have anticipated their wants.

If you do not believe there is going to be a good demand for Phonographs and do not prepare for such demand, there will not be any so far as your store is concerned.

With a stock of sufficient size to make the public believe that you believe that you have in Edison Phonographs and Edison Records the best Christmas proposition in the land (and you have) comes the next step, which is to impress this fact upon the minds of every man, woman and child in your locality.

Here is where advertising comes in, and here is where we want to direct you to the advertising suggestions offered in this issue.

In connection with these suggestions we have two requests to make. One is that you adopt them; the other is that you adopt them promptly.

As you read, this Christmas seems like a future event. So it is, but right now many people are thinking about it and trying to solve the question of what to give.

Why then wait until they make up their minds? Why not help them in deciding, and thus get the benefit of their decisions?

That is the purpose of early holiday advertising, and, in fact, the purpose of all advertising.

Advertising, even at holiday time, is not quick acting, unless it is bargain advertising.

You must start early in order to give your advertising time to work—otherwise, by the time it begins, the buying season will be all over.

Another advantage of early publicity or early effort of any kind is that it means a more evenly distributed trade, instead of three weeks of "nothing doing" and three days of grand last-minute rush.

You cannot sell Phonographs to a crowd, any more than you can sell pianos or automobiles to a crowd.

The Phonograph requires attentive, intelligent salesmanship, it calls for demonstrations, it needs a quiet atmosphere and it takes considerable time.

Cultivating an early-buying habit is very important to you.

If Phonograph and Record selling required only putting in a stock and putting up a sign, everybody would be in the Phonograph selling business.

There is some trade in your locality that is yours for the asking.

There is some that is yours without asking.

There is a whole lot that you must go out and pull in by the hair.

You go out after this trade in a number of ways. The Phonograph playing through your window or your door gets some of it; your window displays get some of it; your newspaper advertising gets some of it, and your direct advertising gets some of it.

Perhaps nothing you can do will get all of it, but no one thing you can do will get what all the things you can do will get.

Merely trimming up a window and letting it go at that is like picking apples one at a time, instead of shaking the tree.

If a certain scheme you work is good, keep on working it, but don't work it exclusively. Monthly concerts are very successful in attracting trade to your store. Mailing out lists of the new Records to Phonograph owners also brings trade that might otherwise become negligent.

But these trade-bringing efforts are not interchangeable, nor are they alternatives.

Each issue of this publication aims to give you several good ideas for pushing your goods. It isn't the plan to give you a choice. It is for the purpose of enabling you to have a number of things working at the same time.

Lauder Records

Any one who doubts the tremendous popularity of Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, should have attended the performances in which he took part at the Lincoln Square Theatre, New York, during October. He was kept on the stage over an hour every night, and would have remained twice as long had it depended by the demands of his delighted audience. This is the kind of receptions he is going to get in every city in which he appears during his twelve weeks' stay in this country. It can only mean a great demand for the Edison Records made by him. Dealers should put in a good stock of the Lauder Records, get the latest Lauder bulletin from their Jobber and hang it up in their windows or some other prominent place. Then let the public know that they have Records by this popular comedian. In such cities as he appears Dealers should also advertise in the local papers. Just before coming to this country Mr. Lauder received a "command" from the King of England, and for seventy minutes delighted the King and a party of royal guests with his talent.

Everybody Enthusiastic

From all sides come most enthusiastic commendations of the new Amberol Records and the attachments and combination machine for playing them. The Jobbers gave them their heartiest approval two months ago, when they were made acquainted with the details and were given demonstrations. The Dealers followed with glowing letters of praise as fast as they received the new goods from Jobbers. Now that owners of Edison Phonographs are equipping their machines to play the Amberol Records and others are buying combination machines, the trade and we are getting hundreds of letters of congratulation. Our own salesmen and those of Jobbers are doing a land office business in taking orders for the new goods and the reports they are making to headquarters all tell the same gratifying story. The new Records and the clever plans for playing them on existing Phonographs are everywhere proclaimed as one of the greatest advances ever made in the talking machine industry. In spite of the still adverse times, the entire trade has been aroused to a new interest, and to a man declare that if they can get the goods they will do a bigger and more profitable business than ever before. Many of them have already taken orders for large numbers of attachments subject to delivery when Jobbers can fill their orders. Viewed as a whole, the outlook for the future of the Edison trade never was as bright as at present. Then, too, the new policies of confining Edison Dealers to the sale of our goods as their only cylinder line, and of preventing the indiscriminate appointment of new Dealers have worked wonders in gaining the further good-will and co-operation of the trade. Nothing seems to be needed now but to get Edison goods in sufficient quantities to supply the demand of the public. We hope that this will not long be a cause for complaint, even though it may for a time be difficult to keep pace with the demand.

Amberol Advertising

The standard magazines of largest circulations and the popular weeklies, like the Saturday Evening Post and Collier's, have already furnished ample evidence of the beginning of our big campaign for advertising Amberol Records and combination Phonographs. The cost of the month's advertising was the largest we have ever spent in a single month in this class of mediums, but the total for December issues will be fully a third larger. One of the strong features of the list will be a full page in each of the Butterick trio—the Delineator, the Designer and New Idea. This order carries with it representation in a half-page advertisement that the publishers of the Trio will publish in 200 daily papers throughout the country, calling attention to the advertisers in the Trio. We shall also have the back covers of American Magazine and McClure's Magazine; a full page in the Woman's Home Companion; double pages in Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, Munsey's and Review of Reviews; full pages or proportionate space in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Associated Sunday Magazine, Youth's Companion, Ladies' Home Journal, Ladies' World, Outlook, Argosy, All Story, Railroad Men's Magazine, Red Book, Broadway, Metropolitan, Pacific Monthly, Human Life, National Magazine, World To-Day, Puck and Judge. We also expect to begin the newspaper campaign in most of the large cities.

A Phonograph Debate

One of the most unique affairs ever held in this country took place in Foster's Opera House, Des Moines, Ia., on October 9th. It was announced as "The First Phonograph Debate in History" and was, in fact, a joint debate between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft, carried on by means of Edison Phonographs. The affair was arranged by the Des Moines Capital and was carried out with the co-operation of Hopkins Bros., the Phonographs being operated by John Hopkins and D. F. Hopkins, of that firm. The Opera House was packed with an audience of 1,500 persons, all of whom seemed much pleased with the affair. The machines were plainly heard in all parts of the house. The debate was interspersed with vocal and instrumental music by local artists. At the close of the affair a number of miscellaneous selections were played on the Phonograph, including some of the Amberol Records. The event was voted a great advertisement for the Edison Phonograph.

Your letter to the Democratic Chairman, Mr. A. Hetfield, of this district, has enabled me to sell a Home, to Bryan Records, besides others. I therefore write you this letter to thank you very kindly for your aid. It would have been impossible to make that sale without you having written to him. Again thanking you very highly for your effort.—Covington Supply House, Covington, Ky.

New Supplements and Bulletins

Beginning with the December issues, the Record Supplement and the Record Bulletin will be printed in a new and more attractive manner. Because of the necessity for including the ten Amberol selections with the twenty-four two-minute Records, it has been necessary to enlarge both forms. The Supplement will consist of six pages, instead of four, and be printed throughout in two colors. Small half-tones of a number of the Edison artists will be features of this and future Supplements. The Record Bulletin will be enlarged to 19 x 25. It will be printed in a new form, in two colors and on heavier paper. This size will be continued indefinitely and we would suggest that Dealers have frames made for enclosing the Bulletin as it appears each month. Such frames will not cost more than $2, probably less, and would last a long time. In such a frame the Bulletin will be a fine advertisement, especially when placed in a show window.

Printed Matter

We have in preparation a new catalogue of Edison Phonographs and a folder illustrating and describing the combination type Standard, Home and Triumph machines. The issuance of these has been purposely held up because of the delay in getting a sufficient supply of goods in the hands of the trade. The forms will reach Jobbers by or before November 20th, by which time we expect to be able to supply Phonographs and Records as fast as they may be wanted. The trade will then be in a position to make an aggressive campaign for business, which up to now has not been possible. We have printed a good sized edition of the folders for the purpose of saving the complete catalogues. The folders may be used for circularizing and the catalogues for store trade. We cannot supply machine catalogues in quantities large enough for use as circulars. They are too expensive. Don't ask your Jobber for large quantities for he won't have them to give you. Even the folders must be used carefully. They are intended for circularizing special lists, and for such use will be most effective. The catalogue is Form 1435 and the folder, Form 1434.

We'd like to talk about the merit of the muslin banners as advertising mediums, but these have "got us in so bad" that we hesitate about doing it. After most strenuous efforts we succeeded in getting the manufacturer to give us enough to complete the shipments to Jobbers, and they have gone forward. Jobbers will take care of such Dealers as have asked for one. Those who haven't asked may get them from their Jobbers.

Jobbers have been supplied with Lauder Record Supplements and Bulletins with their orders for Lauder Records, and Dealers who carry these Records should ask for a Bulletin and a supply of Supplements. The latter is Form 1432 and the Bulletin is Form 1433.

It is idle for Dealers to ask for a large lot of electros without charge. We will not mail more than two or three at one time. Dealers who persist in asking for more will please indicate the order of preference so that we may easily determine which to send. We will supply electros for advertising purposes, but we insist upon knowing that they are so used when we send them. Before writing for more electros, Dealers should ask themselves if they have complied with our requirements and sent us papers showing the advertisements in which the previous ones were used. This will save a "turn down" and considerable useless correspondence. Don't write letters telling us how mean we are because we ask you to send papers or proofs. Such letters are not half as apt to get attention as papers showing how electros were used. What we ask of you is reasonable and just, and we shall continue the present plan of handling electros.

We have on hand a quantity of hangers of the Bryan and Taft Records, Forms 1361 and 1391 and will ship small lots to Jobbers on request, or we will mail one of each direct to Dealers who will use them.

Personal

Eugene H. Phillips, who a year ago became Manager of Salesmen for this company, has been promoted to the position of Credit Manager of the Edison Companies, including the National Phonograph Co. The latter's position has been filled by F. K. Dolbeer since the establishment of the office about seven years ago. Mr. Dolbeer will now devote his entire time to his duties as General Sales Manager of the National Co. He has held both positions for a year past.

H. T. Leeming, formerly traffic manager of the National Phonograph Company, has been made purchasing agent, vice John H. Moran, resigned. John T. Rogers, formerly assistant traffic manager, has been promoted to his former chief's position.

Christmas Records

Early in November we are going to mail to every Edison Dealer a bulletin hanger, showing eleven Edison Records having a special bearing upon the Christmas season. The titles of the Records are given below. Dealers are urged to display the hanger, making sure in advance that they have the Records in stock, so as to meet any demand that may be created by the advertising. The list:

8270	Santa Claus Song	George P. Watson
8708	Old Jim's Christmas Hymn	Campbell & Harrison
8837	O Come All Ye Faithful (Adeste Fidelis)	Edison Male Quartette
8854	Ring the Bells of Heaven	Chimes
9188	Star, Beautiful Star	Anthony & Harrison
9168	Silent Night	Edison Male Quartette
9410	Joy to the World	Edison Concert Band
9431	Down on the Farm	Ada Jones & Len Spencer
9703	Ring Out the Bells for Christmas	Edison Concert Band
10008	Christ is Come	Edison Concert Band
10030	Christmas Morning at Clancy's	Steve Porter

A Poster for Your Window

The poster enclosed carries the same illustration as our Christmas magazine advertising. This advertising will appear around the 20th of November.

About this time you should place the poster in your window. If you can surround it with a good Christmas display of Edison Phonographs and Records, so much the better.

The point is to show it just at the time we are showing it in the magazines, so that it may concentrate our advertising on your store.

Millions of people will see the "Christmas Matinee" in the magazines. We want these same millions to see it in the windows of our Dealers, so that when our advertising reminds them of an Edison Phonograph for a Christmas gift, the poster in the window will indicate a store where a Phonograph can be bought.

Just about everybody in your locality reads the magazines, so that our advertising will be seen and read by just about everybody. Holiday shopping will bring them by your window in crowds. The poster will bring them in.

Trade Advertising of Amberol Records

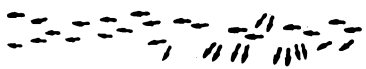
We wish that we could give up the space necessary to acknowledge the receipt of the hundreds of pieces of printed matter, letters, etc., concerning the Amberol Records that have been issued by enthusiastic Jobbers and Dealers in all parts of the country. We regret also that we cannot reproduce some of these forms. All of them show a marked degree of enthusiasm, but some are unusually clever in their presentation of the new conditions. Then, too, Dealers have extensively advertised the Amberol Records in their local papers, some of these advertisements filling a half page. All of this advertising activity on the part of the trade is a most encouraging sign of the times.

The Phonograph as a Political Factor

It is now too late to accomplish anything politically from the sales of Phonographs and Bryan and Taft Records, but the following extract from a letter sent out by H. S. Martin, chairman of the Kansas State Democratic Committee, to all county chairmen, is quoted to show how seriously the Phonograph has been considered in the present campaign:

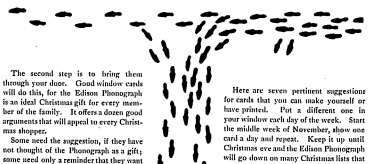
* * * "I want to suggest to you the use of the Phonograph with the Bryan Records. The Phonograph has been used in a number of Kansas counties long enough to test it, and for a school-house meeting it is a great success. In every instance the report has been that where a Phonograph meeting has been advertised at a school house they have had an overflow meeting. A Phonograph, including the Records, can be secured for something less than $300.00. In a good many cases you can find a Democrat who has a Phonograph you can borrow. The Bryan Records can be secured through regular Dealers, and I should like to have from one to three Phonographs in every county in Kansas."

In sending us the foregoing, the Santa Fé Watch Co., Edison Dealers at Topeka, Kas., wrote:



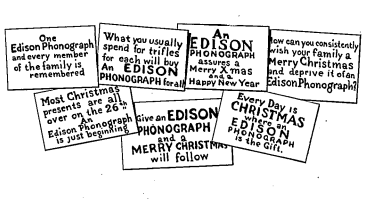
"The enclosed letter is being sent by the State chairman to all of his county chairmen. A similar letter has been sent to all Republican chairmen. We had no trouble in getting the State chairman of both parties to do this. We also secured a list of all chairmen of both parties and wrote them personal letters. We are daily receiving orders from all over the State. There are 107 chairmen in each party in the State; 214 altogether. We are getting big returns for our trouble.

We have a few street car cards on hand that were used in the cars of New York city and now returned to us. They are in good condition. Dealers who want to do any street car advertising may have a small quantity, while they last, by agreeing to pay express charges from Orange.



Diverting Footsteps from the Beaten Path

With the coming of the Holidays a throng of Christmas shoppers will pass your store.



The first step is to prevent their passing. A good window will do this for the Christmas shopper has time to shop, is out to see and is open to suggestion.

The second step is to bring them through your door. Good window cards will do this, for the Edison Phonograph is an ideal Christmas gift for every member of the family. It offers a dozen good arguments that will appeal to every Christmas shopper.

Some need the suggestion, if they have not thought of the Phonograph as a gift; some need only a reminder that they want a Phonograph.

Here are seven pertinent suggestions for cards that you can make yourself or have printed. Put a different one in your window each day of the week. Start the middle week of November, show one card a day and repeat. Keep it up until Christmas eve and the Edison Phonograph will go down on many Christmas lists that would not otherwise have it.

Little Local News Items

Nearly every newspaper runs a column of news items each day, setting forth little local happenings.

Sandwiched in between these items are small advertisements that are usually pretty bad. Sometimes newspapers charge for inserting these advertising items, and sometimes they are given free to steady advertisers.

But whether they are free or paid for, they are of no value to the advertiser unless they are items that have a real news value.

They can have. An advertisement can be just as newsy as anything else that happens.

Our suggestion is that you run a reader in this local news column every little while, from now until Christmas.

Make the item a reminder that Christmas is only so many days off, that it is time to decide on a gift and that a Phonograph is the best gift, and why.

We reproduce in the opposite column a reader as it should be written and set. This reader should appear on December 1st, and should be followed at frequent intervals by others, copy for which we give, making sure to have the number of days right in each reader.

You can run one with the heading, "25 days to Christmas," in your newspaper of December 1st, or you can run several in that issue with the same heading and repeat in later issues, changing the heading to correspond. Here are some suggestions for readers for this purpose.

One Edison Phonograph and every member of the family is remembered.

What you usually spend for trifles for each will buy an Edison Phonograph for all.

And Edison Phonograph assures a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

How can you consistently wish your family a Merry Christmas and deprive it of an Edison Phonograph?

Most Christmas presents are all over on the 26th. An Edison Phonograph is just beginning.

Give an Edison Phonograph and a Merry Christmas will follow.

Every day is Christmas where an Edison Phonograph is the gift.

The best Christmas present is something for the home. The best thing for the home is an Edison Phonograph. Nothing makes home so inviting and so popular as this great and versatile entertainer.

The Christmas money goes farther if put into an Edison Phonograph—farther because the Phonograph goes farther, carries with it more pleasure for more people for a longer time than any gift you could select.

What a lot of Christmas gifts are thrown aside on the 26th. An Edison Phonograph carries the Christmas pleasure through the year and beyond.

The great difference between an Edison Phonograph and anything else you can think of, as a Christmas gift, is that people tire of anything else you can think of.

An Apology

We regret that a press of other matter has made it necessary to omit Lesson IV of the series of "Lessons for Dealers."

Boosting Christmas Record Sales

Edison Records make excellent Christmas gifts.

To a Phonograph owner nothing brings more pleasure, provided the Records are of the kind the owner prefers.

Selecting Records for others, however, is as risky as selecting neckties, cigars or anything else where personal likes and dislikes enter in.

Remove this difficulty and Record giving at Christmas time would become most profitably popular for the Dealer.

To enable Dealers to encourage this kind of giving we have prepared a Record Certificate, which is shown here in reduced size. It is attractively printed in several colors.

The Dealer sells these Certificates to those who wish to make presents of Records to their friends. The Certificates are filled out, showing the number of Records paid for and indicating whether regular Records or Amberols, or both.

The purchaser pays for the Records called for by the Certificate and gives the Certificate as a present. The recipient then presents the Certificate at the store issuing it and makes his own selections of Records.

We have printed a quantity of these Gift Certificates and will mail a limited number to Dealers at the rate of twenty-five for ten cents. This charge is for the purpose of regulating the demand and for mailing.

They should be advertised in the local newspapers, displayed in the windows, with window cards asking people to come inside and learn about them.

Any Dealer who takes these Certificates and makes a noise about them will do a record-breaking Record business throughout the holidays.

How many can you use? Order today from the Advertising Department. If you want to see how they look before you order, write for a sample copy.

Tray System for Keeping Records

How many of the thousands of Edison Dealers who are carrying their Record stocks by what is known as the tray system, can repeat the name of the man who devised this system? It is Victor H. Rapke, of 1659 Second avenue, New York City, one of the first to become an Edison Jobber, and one of the most staunch friends of the Edison product. Mr. Rapke devised the Record trays and the labels used on them. For a time he was the only manufacturer of the trays, but the advantages of this tray system soon became generally known, and others entered the field of supplying the trade with trays. They are now made and sold by various Jobbers. Mr. Rapke has, however, retained control of the labels, and is to-day supplying them to the trade through Jobbers. He has sold thousands of complete sets and he has a large number of subscribers to his plan of furnishing labels each month as fast as new Edison Records are issued. At a cost of $2 a year he is furnishing labels of all new Edison Records, including Standard and Amberol, as they appear. Dealers who are not carrying their Records in trays, properly labelled, should lose no time in taking the matter up with their Jobbers. The system is worth many times its cost in convenience and display. It is also a Record seller, for customers can read the names on the labels while Records are being played for them, and in this way they often buy many Records that they would not under other conditions.

Mr. Edison's First Public Record

The Electrical Show, which is held annually at the Madison Square Garden, New York, was opened on October 31st with a Phonograph speech by Thomas A. Edison, Honorary President of the show. It was the first and only Record ever made by Mr. Edison for public use. He said:

Those of us who began our labors at the operator's key fifty years ago have been permitted to see and assist in the whole modern industrial development of electricity. Since the remarkable experiments of Morse in 1844 and the unsuccessful efforts of Field in 1858, there have come with incredible rapidity one electrical art after another, so that in practically every respect civilization has been revolutionized. It is still too early to stand outside these events and pronounce final judgment on their lasting value, but we may surely entertain the belief that the last half of the nineteenth century was as distinct in its electrical inventions and results as the first was in relation to steam.

The lesson of the jubilee of the Atlantic cable of 1858 is one of encouragement to all who would add to the resources of our race and extend our control over the forces of nature. Never was failure more complete, never was higher courage shown, never was triumph more brilliant than that which since 1866 has kept the Old World moored alongside the New by pulsating cables of steel and copper—the "family ties" of the civilized world.

When I look around at the resources of the electrical field today as shown in this Exhibition, I feel that I would be glad to begin again my work as an electrician and inventor; and we veterans can only urge upon our successors, the younger followers of Franklin and of Kelvin, to realize the measure of their opportunities and to rise to the height of their responsibilities in this Day of Electricity.

There were also two-minute Phonograph speeches by Louis A. Ferguson, of Chicago, President of the American Institute of Electrical Engineering; W. C. L. Eglin, President of the National Electric Light Association; Vice President W. W. Freeman, President of the Associated Edison Illuminating Companies; E. G. Acheson, President American Electrochemical Association, and H. A. Lardner, President New York Electrical Society. Governor Hughes addressed the show in a two-minute Phonograph speech.

The opening exercises were held in the Concert Hall, the Records being played on an Edison Phonograph, partly hidden by a group of palms. It was the first great public function in which so prominent a part was taken by the Phonograph. The affair was voted a great success by all who attended.

Attachments for Concert Machines

In response to a number of requests from the trade the following list and Dealers' prices have been fixed for combination attachments for Concert machines:

For the regular Concert machines, that is, those still containing the Concert mandrels, list $9.75; Dealer $8.00.

For Concert machines that have been changed over to play the Standard Record, list $7.50; Dealer $6.25.

Harger & Blish, Edison Jobbers at Dubuque, Ia., have also been appointed as Jobbers at Des Moines, being located at 707-711 Locust street. The Vim Company have discontinued their jobbing stock at Des Moines.

Our Advertisement and Yours

This large advertisement is for your local newspaper. The small ad is a reduction of the ad which we will run in the Christmas issues of all of the leading magazines. Run your ad about November 20th—that is when ours will be seen by your people. Then every bit of interest that our ad awakens in your locality will be centered on your store.

The Edison Phonograph a Christmas Gift for the Whole Family from the Children Up

When you make the Edison Phonograph the home gift, no member of the family is neglected. For the baby it is a lasting diversion; for the young folks, wholesome and educational entertainment; for grown-ups a pleasure that never loses it popularity.

The Phonograph makes the home the most attractive spot on earth. It is a band, an orchestra, a concert, a soloist or a monologue artist as you wish. It is more than a Christmas gift for all; it is a gift for all time.

Before you decide on what the present will be, come in and hear the Phonograph. Seven models, $12.50 to $60.00.

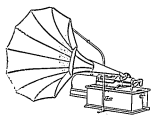
This advertisement is a little larger than most dealers usually run, but this is an unusual time. It will be worth many times the space it takes. We furnish the cut free. Tear out the page, take it to your newspaper and follow the style of type-setting. Schedule it for November 20th and if possible give it several insertions. It will bear repeating, for it is sure to bring you business.



Some Short but Strong Holiday Ads

A small ad can be so set that it will own the whole newspaper page. Here are four that will hold their own, if the newspaper sets them as they are set here. Take these ads to your newspaper and insist that the style of setting be followed. The cuts show the new Edison Phonograph with all of its improvements. An electrotype will be sent free. Order by the number. The number. The copy shown elsewhere for window cards will be equally forceful in your newspaper if this style of setting is followed.

The Great Difference between an Edison Phonograph and anything else you can think of, as a Christmas gift, is that people tire of anything else you can think of.

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Please file the enclosed Directions Sheets for adding the new Attachments to the Standard, Home and Triumph Phonographs. It is possible that sheets were not included with your order for Attachments and you may need them for reference. If you have not yet received your order for Attachments a study of the Direction Sheets will make it easier to apply the Attachments when they arrive.

You will find it profitable to learn how to apply the new Attachments quickly and accurately. The work can be done in a few minutes when you know how, and it is not difficult to learn. The Attachment yields a fair profit and every Phonograph that you change to play the Amberol Records, means the sale of many of the latter, which net a profit of 22 cents each, or 77 per cent. on the cost.

Don't these profits look good?

Get the names of every Phonograph owner in your vicinity (perhaps you already have them) and then persuade every one to equip his (or her) Phonograph with an Attachment and thus be able to play Mr. Edison's newest invention—the Edison Amberol Record.

Don't be discouraged because your Jobber is a little slow in filling your first order. We will soon be able to fill any order he can send. Take orders for as many Attachments as you can sell, promising deliveries as soon as the factory can fill orders. Let your customers know that those who order in advance will get your attention first. Getting orders in advance will also enable you to know how many to get from your Jobber. If you can afford to invest the money, sell Attachments on the fifty cents or dollar a week plan to those who cannot pay cash. It will get such customers to buying Amberol Records and every time they make a weekly payment they will buy more Records. Many Dealers may find it pays to keep customers always in debt, for every time they come in they buy Records.

Trade Information for Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

It is important that Dealers should caution their customers to make certain that Model C Reproducers only be used on the Two-Minute Records, and Model H Reproducers only be used on Amberol Records, thereby obtaining proper results and avoiding the damage to Records occasioned by a disregard of this suggestion.

STANDARD ATTACHMENT. Users should also be instructed that in order to play the Standard, or Two-Minute Record, the sliding gear stud should be pushed away toward the right, or toward the cylinder, and the Model C Reproducer is to be used. To play the Amberol, or Four-Minute Record, the sliding stud should be pulled out to the left, and the Model H Reproducer is to be used.

HOME AND TRIUMPH ATTACHMENTS. To play Standard Two-Minute Records, the sliding clutch casing should be pushed close to pulley wheel, and Model C Reproducer used. To play the Amberol or Four-Minute Record, the sliding clutch casing should be pushed as far as possible toward main shaft, and Model H Reproducer used.

If these instructions are carefully followed, no injury to Records will result.

A Series of "All Rights"

There are some Dealers who make it a point never to be pleased with any new trade condition or policy. They belong to the pessimists' club. A few of them have disagreed with our new policies. The following letter, however, written by Duy & Sawrie, Inc., Edison Dealers at Selma, Col., represents, we believe, the views of 99 out of every 100 Edison Dealers in the United States and Canada; it is printed with the same emphasis as the original letter:

We desire to express our appreciation of your new selling policies.

For the Dealer who is not loyal enough to know a good thing, your policy of permitting him to handle only the Best (Edison Records) is a protection well designed to keep him right and so prevent him doubling his investment.

For the Dealers who are taking proper care of their trade and maintaining proper Edison stocks, your policy of not appointing new Dealers is an encouragement toward still more complete stocks and increased energy in disposing of the goods.

Your goods are all right, your policies are all right, you are all right, so that we now think it is up to the Dealer to be the same.

With our best wishes for your still greater success, we are,

Advance List

Of Edison Standard (Two-Minute) and Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records for January, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before December 24th, 1908, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 2 P. M. on December 23rd. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on December 24th. (Date advanced on account of Christmas.) Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after December 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before December 24th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on December 23d, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for Jan uary Records on or before November 20th. Dealers should place January orders with Jobbers before November 12th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard (Two-Minute) Records.

10032 Nymph and Satyr — Edison Concert Band

A new characteristic number in which the composer takes for his subject an imaginary story concerning a nymph and a satyr, and works out a very melodious and interesting selection. The instrumentation is most attractive. Composer, T. H. Rollinson; publisher, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

10033 Mandy Lane — Ada Jones

A coon love song in which "Mandy Lane in the old log cabin on the Suwanee shore" is the object of the dusky lover's serenade. The words are set to a quaint rag-time melody, which Miss Jones sings in a fetching way and with an echo of coon dialect. The chorus is catchy. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, William McKenna; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10034 Uncle Josh's New Year's Pledge — Cal Stewart

Now that the inimitable Cal Stewart has returned to the ranks of Edison artists, there will be no let-up until every selection in his repertoire has been reproduced on Edison Records. In this selection Uncle Josh tells how he resolved on New Years' Day to abstain from the use of profanity. He bore up patiently under several provoking trials during the day without breaking his pledge, but when at night he fell down the cellar stairs with his arms full of eggs, molasses, flour, etc., and they mixed up in his hair, clothing, etc., it was all off. it is necessary to hear Mr. Stewart on the Record to know how laughable it really s.

10035 The Yams, Yama Man — American Symphony Orchestra

An orchestra selection of the two popular songs, "The Yams, Yama Man" and "Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovey Mine," which are the song hits in the musical comedy, "The Three Twins." The oboe work is a feature. Composer, Karl L. Hoschna; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10036 When I Marry You — Frederic Rose

A selection on the order of "Are You Sincere," (our Record No. 9973) and by the same authors. Both songs are of the catchy waltz variety, which generally become very popular. The publishers expect this new song to become as popular as the preceding one. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Gumble; words, Alfred Bryan; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10037 Honey Lou — Collins and Harlan

A comic coon song, with the customary rag-time melody. "Honey Lou" has an admirer who is so desperately in love with her that he threatens suicide if she refuses to marry him. Her funny responses in the chorus to his appeal for consideration make up an amusing feature. of the song. The singing is done in conversational duet form. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Tom Lemonier; words, Ed. Rose; publishers, Rose & Snyder Co., New York.

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of January Phonogram.

10038 Good Evening, Caroline — Billy Murray

The latest effort of two of the most successful song writers of the day. This fact alone stamps it as one of the hits of the season. It is a typical coon serenade, with an air that catches on at once—just the kind of song in which Mr. Murray has made his greatest success as an Edison artist. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Von Tilzer; words, Jack Norworth; publishers, The York Music Co., New York.

10039 Wild Cherry — New York Military Band

A characteristic rag composition by the writer of "My Dream of the U. S. A.", "It's the Peeny Things You Say" and "Grandma." It is one of the brightest and sprightliest ragtime pieces brought out in many a day, and it makes an instant hit wherever played. Composer, Ted Snyder; publisher, Ted Snyder, New York.

10040 Some Day — James F. Harrison

This old-time popular ballad needs no description. Everyone familiar with popular music can recall its charming words:

I know not when the day shall be,
I know not where our eyes may meet
What welcome you may give to me.
Or will your words be sad or sweet.

It may not be till years have passed
'Till you see life and tenses gray;
The world is wide, but, love it last,
Our hands, our hearts, must meet some day.

Mr. Harrison's cadenza at the end is a feature of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Milton Wellings; words, Hugh Conway; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

10041 Paulina, Otto and Fido — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

A German vaudeville sketch in which the dramatis personae are: Paulina, a teasing German girl, who cannot decide whether she loves her dog or Otto the best, but mostly favors the dog; Otto, very much in love with Paulina and at odds with the dog; Fido, the dog. Paulina declares that if Otto loves her he must love her dog, too. The sketch has the usual amount of fun characteristic of the Jones and Spencer work. Original and not published.

10042 Somebody Just Like You — Manuel Romain

A sentimental ballad by the writers of "Ev'ry Ship Will Find a Harbor" (our Record No. 9732) and something on the order of "Just Some One" (our Record No. 9847). The chorus:

Somebody just like you, dear,
Somebody just your style,
Someone with least as true, dear,
Someone with your blue eyes.

Somebody's very lonely,
Pining his own cause
Somebody wants to share his heart
With somebody just like you.

Mr. Romain sings it charmingly. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Johann C. Schmid; words, Charles E. Baer; publisher, H. A. Weymann & Son, Philadelphia.

10043 Father is a Judge — Edward Meeker

Once again father is made the butt of a popular song, and if this one does not make as great a hit as "Everybody Works but Father" it will not be because it does not possess all the elements essential to popularity. It is being featured by the head-liners in vaudeville; Father's erudition was not known, even by his own family, until the Democrats discovered it and elected him Judge. Some of the things he did in his wisdom and the consequences that followed his acts form the theme of the song. The Record has three verses and three choruses, the latter being enlivened with a chorus of voices joining in at the end of each with "Has father." The comic interludes by the orchestra add to the fun. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, Ed. Moran; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10044 You Can't Stop Your Heart from Beating for the Girl You Love — Byron G. Harlan

A new sentimental waltz song that is attracting a great deal of attention. It is on the popular juvenile subject and tells of "Willie and Mary," who were playmates at school and also sweethearts. "School Days" was of this class of songs. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, George Christy; words, Bert Fitzgibbons; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10045 Memories of Galilee — Knickerbocker Quartette

A four-part arrangement of this well-known hymn, in which the solo part is sung by the tenor, and the responses are made by the entire quartette. Between the great popularity of the hymn and its splendid rendition by the Quartette, the Record cannot fail to be in wide demand. Unaccompanied. Music, H. R. Palmer; words, Robert Norris, LL.D.; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co, Boston.

10046 Mary Ann O'Houlihan — Edward M. Favor

An amusing song in Irish dialect. The subject is quite humorous. It reverses the usual order of things and the funny lines tell of man's faith and woman's perfidy. The melody is of the rollicking, jolly kind—just the kind one expects to find in an Irish song. Mr. Favor excels in songs of this sort, both on the stage and in making Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Vincent Bryan; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10047 Black and White Rag — American Symphony Orchestra

A composition fely described by its name. It is written in the peculiar manner of rag-time selections and include some novel orchestral effects. A sure seller whenever played. Piano score published by Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York, but it is orchestrated especially for our Record and not published in this form.

10048 Uncle Josh in a Roller Skating Rink — Cal Stewart

The title itself is enough to suggest the fun-making possibilities of this Record. Add to this Mr. Stewart's infectious laugh and the combination is complete. Any one who ever went to a roller skating rink can appreciate what happened to Uncle Josh when he put on the skates (he calls them "little automobiles") for the first time. His recital of his first efforts at skating is as funny as could be expected, even of Mr. Stewart.

10049 Rainbow — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

This composition is sweeping the country from coast to coast and is destined to be as popular as "Hiawatha," which it resembles, being sung in Indian style and in much the same tempo. It is a bright and dashing two-step and a fascinating ballad. It is sung by Miss Jones and Mr. Murray in the conversational style that is always so interesting. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Percy Wenrich; words, Alfred Bryan; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10050 Sweet Girl of My Dreams — Harry Anthony

This charming ballad is sung with great success by Chauncey Olcott in his new production, "Ragged Robin." Its chorus:

Girl sweet girl of my dreams, you have beauty so rare,
Cheeks that resemble the roses so fair,
Your eyes, love, sparkle; your smile brightly beams,
To you I'm singing, sweet girl of my dreams.

The melody is in slow waltz tempo. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Chauncey Olcott and Daniel J. Sullivan; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10051 Love's Magic Spell — Albert Benzler

A bells solo of a catchy melody written in schottische tempo, on the song and dance order. Compositions of this kind are peculiarly well suited for bells solos, and in the hands of a musician like Mr. Benzler they make very attractive Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, F. W. Meachan; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10052 Baby Doll — Arthur Collins

A coon song that is catching on rapidly and being sung everywhere. The words are set to a rag melody and tell of a darkey's delight when his lady-love calls him "Baby Doll." To him this is the dearest of endearing terms. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Armstrong and Clark; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10053 Darling Nellie Gray — Metropolitan Quartette

The old songs—the songs that won popularity in days of a generation or more ago—never lose their attractiveness. They seem to possess a charm that none of the later-day compositions can displace. "Darling Nellie Gray" is one of these. It is at least fifty years since it was written, sung and played. It has always been and is still a prime favorite at minstrel and vaudeville performances. The special arrangements for mixed voices give all the singers a chance to be heard in solos, duets and quartettes. Unaccompanied. Composer, B. P. Hanby.

10054 Flanagan's New Year's Call — Steve Porter

Mr. Porter's Irish sketches continue to be one of the features of our monthly lists of new Records. His imitation of three voices is so clever that it is hard to believe three different persons are not carrying on the dialogue. Flanagan makes a New Year's call on Mrs. Reilly and the conversation that ensues makes up a very funny Record. This is Flanagan's New Year resolve: "I resolve never to take another drink—unless I am by meself, or with someone; and never to smoke—but one cigar at a time." Original sketch and not published.

10055 On Parole March — New York Military Band

A spirited march of a true military character. One of the features is a bugle and drum effect in the trio. The composition is above the ordinary, just as our Band's rendition is of a superior character. Composer, W. J. Potts; publishers, W. J. Potts Music Co., Lisbon, Ohio.

Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Selections.

61 Glow-Worm — Edison Concert Band

A selection from the operetta "Lysistrata." The composer styles it an "Idyl," a composition of a pastoral or tenderly romantic character. The Record gives the entire composition. It was written by Paul Lincke, a popular German composer, who is also musical director of the Apollo Theatre, Berlin, Germany. It has become a craze in this country, being featured in the programmes of all large bands. The principal melody or story has also been published as a song. Publishers, Joseph W. Stern & Co., New York.

62 Calvary — James F. Harrison

A well-known sacred song and one greatly favored by church singers. The two-minute Record gave it in an abbreviated form, but it is here given in its entirety. Mr. Harrison's fine baritone voice gives the song an unusually good rendition. There is nothing finer in sacred selections than the chorus of Calvary:

Rest, rest to the weary,
Peace, peace to the soul,
Though life may be dreary,
Faith's true to the goal.

O lay down thy burdens,
O come unto me,
I will cut footsteps there,
Though all else should flee.

So impressive is this Record that it is certain to continue in the catalogue of Amberol Records as long as the Phonograph exists and will always be in demand. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Paul Rodney; words, Henry Vaughn.

63 Aunt Dinah's Golden Wedding — Empire Vaudeville Co.

An unusually entertaining vaudeville sketch with the following cast of characters: Aunt Dinah, Byron G. Harlan; Old Black Joe, Arthur Collins; Happy Jim, Edward Meeker. The sketch opens with Happy Jim singing "De Golden Wedding," Jim and the boys call on Aunt Dinah for the purpose of celebrating the golden wedding of she and Old Black Joe. They are welcomed with open arms by Aunt Dinah, who tells them of the good "eatin's that's waitin' for them," and then sings, "O Dem Golden Slippers." Joe is then called in from the fields. He sings a phrase or two of "Old Black Joe" as he approaches, and on entering the house sings, "Hear Dem Bells." The splendid rendition of these old-time popular darkey songs will give this Record a heavy sale. Original arrangement.

64 Elks' Minstrels — American Symphony Orchestra

The Amberol Record furnishes ample opportunity for making a minstrel selection, as this excellent example will prove. It is presented with the following cast of characters:

Mr. Tambo.....Billy Murray
Mr. Bones.....Edward Meeker
Mr. Middleman.....Steve Porter
Our Popular Tenor (sings "Sweetheart").....Harry Anthony
Old Man in Box (interrupts the performance).....Steve Porter
His Wife (much embarrassed).....Ada Jones
Musical Director.....E. A. Jaudas

65 Selections from "Algeria" — American Symphony Orchestra

A Record containing six of the most popular numbers from Victor Herbert's new opera, "Algeria," which was given its initial presentation at the Broadway Theatre, New York, in September and has since scored a great success. The plot of this opera hinges upon the song, "The Rose of the World." The numbers are played in the following order on the Record:

General Petitpon's song: "I've Been Decorated."
Zoradie's song: "Rose of the World."
Millicent Madison, M.D.'s song: "Ask Her While the Band is Playing."
Mr. and Mrs. Billings F. Coolog's song: "The Same Old Two."
Captain De Lome's Song: "Love is Like a Cigarette," and
"The Boule Miche."

Music by Victor Herbert; published by Charles K. Harris, New York.

66 A Comedy Dream — Murry K. Hill

It would be difficult to find a more nonsensical lot of matter than Mr. Hill repeats for this Record. It includes some of the brightest and best things picked from his several vaudeville acts. Features of "A Comedy Dream" are a funny recitation entitled, "A Court Room Scene" and a snappy song, giving the translation of a French bill of fare that he met in a restaurant. Orchestra accompaniment. Original sketch, not published.

67 Sing Me to Sleep — Miss Chapman and Mr. Anthony

This ballad, with its beautiful lines and sweet melody, is of the better class. The entire song is here given as a duet for soprano and tenor. A feature is the cadenza at the finish. The selection introduces a new artist in Miss Chapman, whose beautiful voice will win instant favor with owners of Edison Phonographs. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Edwin Greene; words, Clifton Bingham; publisher, G. Schirmer, Jr., New York.

68 I Love My Love, Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

A new waltz that in style and construction is like the popular French waltzes. It is the latest hit in Paris. It is introduced in "The Girls from Gutenberg," the musical play that has been presented for so long a time at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York. Composer, Ivan Caryll; publishers, Chappell & Co., New York.

A vaudeville sketch in which Samantha and Hezekiah indulge in reminiscences of bygone days. Samantha finds an old hymn book in the garret and, while playing one of the hymns on the organ, Hezekiah reminds her that he gave her the book just before they were married, years ago. Then follows an exchange of sentiment, and they live over again the day of their marriage. It is a Record similar to "The Golden Wedding," by the same artists, which made such a hit on the two-minute Record. Original sketch and not published.

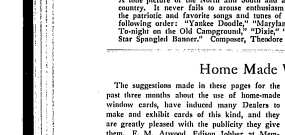
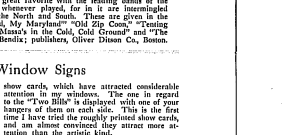
70 Grand American Fantasia — New York Military Band



A tone picture of the North and South and a great favorite with the leading bands of the country. It never fails to arouse enthusiasm whenever played, for in it are intermingled the patriotic and favorite songs and tunes of the North and South. These are given in the following order: "Yankee Doodle," "Maryland, My Maryland" "Old Zip Coon," "Tenting To-night on the Old Camp-ground," "Dixie," "Hail Columbia" and "The Star Spangled Banner." Composer, Theodore Bendix; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.



Home Made Window Signs

The suggestions made in these pages for the past three months about the use of home-made window cards, have induced many Dealers to make and exhibit cards of this kind, and they are greatly pleased with the publicity they give them. F. M. Atwood, Edison Jobber at Memphis, Tenn., has worked out some cards of his own, and in inclosing two of them, said:

I am enclosing you copies herewith two original show cards, which have attracted considerable attention in my windows. The one in regard to the "Two Bills" is displayed with one of your bangers of them on each side. This is the first time I have tried the roughly printed show cards, and am almost convinced they attract more attention than the artistic kind.

We print below, reproductions of the two cards Mr. Atwood sent in, just to show how simple the cards are:

How One Dealer's Business Grew

"It is with considerable pride that I call your attention to my business, which has been established now five years," writes Fred Becht, Jr., of 19 Alabama avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. "When I began, my stock was about the usual one that the uninitiated start with. At the present time I carry the complete domestic list, as well as all the German selections, both vocal and instrumental, also British, Cuban, and Mexican instrumental Records. The space I occupied at the start was not more than 25 x 20. At the present time my business has grown with such rapidity that it was necessary to extend same, so alterations on my building have just been completed, and I have, at least for the present, ample space to handle my rapidly growing business. It has always been a source of pleasure to me, as well as profit, in handling your product.

It is never a difficult task to impress the prospective customer with the superiority of your machines and Records and attending the demands of regular trade is easy indeed, when your stock is complete and you are thoroughly familiar with it.

That has helped me build up the business that I am proud of, and my success is further aided by the broad and generous principles as you apply them. Accept my wishes for long and continuous successful business. May the Edison lead them all always.

If you are one of the Dealers who have neglected to sign the Addenda, don't delay signing it any longer.

All communications to The Phonograph Monthly should be addressed to the Advertising Department, Orange, N. J.

Vol. VI. DECEMBER, 1908 No. 12

DAILY Newspaper Advertising—Lack of confusion in your store—these are the most important matters for you to take care of now that the siege of Christmas shopping is at its height—that is, if your Christmas sale of Edison Phonographs and Records is to be as large as it should be. We, of course, assume that you are well stocked with Edison goods, that you have been doing some advertising and that your Christmas window is an Edison window already performing its work.

Don't be satisfied to let the Christmas shopping whirl envelop your business, thwart your plans and smother your good intentions until its force is spent. That isn't profiting by the experience of former years; nor is it benefiting by the hints we have given you in regard to "Store Management" and "Selling the Goods."

These two departments in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, the contributions to which receive our best efforts, are only valuable to you to the extent that you take advantage of the suggestions contained in them. Only by your adaptation of these suggestions to your particular environment and individual requirements can you prove their worth.

Remember, there are two classes of Christmas shoppers—the people who know what they want and the people who do not know what they want.

Our magazine advertising is aimed to make people know that they want Edison Phonographs. Our Christmas magazine advertising is aimed to make people know that their families or friends, to whom they are to make Christmas presents, also want Edison Phonographs—or new Records in case Phonographs are already owned.

Now it is up to you—your duty to your business—to use space in your local newspapers every day between now and Christmas for the purpose of leading people to your store for Edison goods. We have supplied you with sufficient ready-made newspaper ads for you to accomplish this end with little trouble.

It is further up to you—your duty to your business—to take care of the throngs that crowd through your store aimlessly during the Christmas season—the people who do not know what they want. To take care of them we mean convince them that an Edison Phonograph is the thing wanted—a simple matter once you have a possible customer in your store and in a buying mood at that, but difficult when your store is crowded with possible purchasers.

A smooth running, everything-in-its-place kind of a store, with a corps of intelligent, courteous-to-all clerks, is the store that captures the trade of the people who don't know what they want (when they come in).

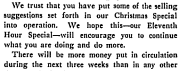
In the February list of three-minute Records we are trying the experiment of putting out three new Records by Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, in place of three of the domestic selections. This is being done for two reasons: First, because we did not want to increase the total of the two-minute selections; and, second, to meet the views of many Jobbers and Dealers that more business will be secured for special Records like the three Lauders if included in the monthly list than if put out independently. According to the theories of advertising, the trade ought to be right and the advance sale for the Lauders ought to be larger than for any previous Lauder Records put out in a special manner. The regular advance list sent to the trade gets more careful consideration than a special one;

the Dealers' order blank again calls attention to the titles; the monthly bulletin is put up in practically every store, where it is looked over regularly by all Phonograph owners, and finally the monthly supplement goes into 2,000,000 homes through the medium of thousands of special mailing lists maintained by Dealers. The Phonogram also helps, but then all special lists get the benefit of this little publication. We certainly hope that the experiment will show that the trade is right, not alone because of the increased business we shall get, but because it will have considerable influence upon the treatment of future special lists.

The name "Amberol," given to the new four-minute Edison Record, was not born until July, and is therefore only a little over four months old. It has been before the trade since August and before the public only since October 1st. In that short time, however, it has become known in the remotest parts of the United States and Canada and scarcely a Phonograph owner in those countries does not already know that the Amberol Record is the newest product of the Edison organization. The name already has a money value equal to a small fortune and promises in the near future to be one of the most valuable assets of the National Phonograph Co., just as the names Sapolio, Uneeda, Pearline, etc., are worth millions to the companies controlling them. The name Amberol is this month being placed before the British public, and within three months more it will be a household word in every country where we have representation or the Edison Phonograph is known. What a testimony all of this is to the thoroughness and value of organization and advertising! A perfect trade organization backed by the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money has in four months taken an unknown coined word, applied it to a new product and made both itself and the product known to millions of people.

It will be interesting to the trade to know that the word Amberol was originated by Mr. Edison and won out over a large number of others that were suggested by his associates in the laboratory and the officers and employees of the Edison Company. It naturally suggests a form of amber, and does in reality get its origin from the fact that one of the parts of the new composition of which Amberol Records are made was at one time in the prehistoric past amber of the palm tree. This amber found its way into the earth and there underwent a change analogous to the process that transformed vegetable matter into coal. Still this matter is a far cry from what is generally known as amber, and this explanation about the origin of the name Amberol don't explain very clearly. It is enough, however, that the name is euphonious and that it stands for the greatest single advance ever made in the history of the Phonograph.

Whether existing Edison Dealers in small cities and towns shall have additional competition in their fields after December 1st, will depend entirely upon themselves. If they carry a fair stock, based upon the size of the towns; make a reasonable effort to push the business and make sales in proportion to the population of their towns, they will not be disturbed and no additional Dealers will be put in competition with them. Otherwise, we shall feel free to establish new Dealers. Our decision not to accept new Dealers where we are now properly represented, does not alone mean protection for existing Dealers. It means that we intend improving their standard and extending their business. We expect that the additional business we shall get from protected Dealers will more than offset the business that would be obtained from the initial orders of new firms and the additional business will be more profitable to those who do it. Consequently every present Edison Dealer who wants to keep out competition should see that his stock of Edison goods is in good shape, both as to quantity and condition and resolve to do a business that will be worth while. After all, why should a Dealer who carries a machine or two and from 100 to 200 Records and who makes no effort to sell goods want to continue in the business. He cannot make a profit worth the name, he is occupying space in his store that might be filled with more profitable goods, and he is occupying a town in which another firm might do a good Edison business. We are going to do our share toward making existing Dealers better Dealers. We are going to do everything we are now doing, including better and more widespread advertising, and besides are preparing plans that will aid Dealers in extending the business in their respective localities. We intend spending a considerable sum for direct trade work just as soon as we get some necessary information as to the status of Dealers. We expect to get into much closer relationship with the trade than ever before and anticipate that our plans will result in a general improvement all along the line, with greatly increased profits for the trade and ourselves.



Store Management

A monthly comment on things Edison dealers have done with a few suggestions on what they should do to increase sales.

WHEN this issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY reaches you there will be about twenty-five days left in which to convince Santa Claus that his one best bet is an Edison Phonograph.

We trust that you have put some of the selling suggestions set forth in our Christmas Special into operation. We hope this—our Eleventh Hour Special—will encourage you to continue what you are doing and do more.

There will be more money put in circulation during the next three weeks than in any other three weeks in the year. You want to get your share of this money. Your share isn't any particular percentage. It isn't what you got last year at this time or the year before that. Your share is all you can coax from the pockets of Christmas shoppers by every possible means that the law permits.

It is better to do things at the eleventh hour than not at all. If you have waited until now before introducing the Christmas spirit into your advertising, your windows, your mail matter and your store, you certainly should wait not a day longer.

Don't think because you are an old, established dealer in Phonographs and Records that extra effort on your part is unnecessary.

Don't think because this is the season of spending that all you have to do is pass out the goods with one hand and take in the money with the other.

Though everybody in your community may know who you are, where you are and what you sell, it is also true that these same people know other dealers in other lines and while you know and we know that there is nothing so acceptable to so many as a Phonograph for a Christmas gift, others don't know it and won't know it unless it is proved to them.

Look about you and see what the jeweler, the book seller, the stationer, the furniture man and the haberdasher is doing to get Christmas money.

These people do business all the year around just as you do; they are well known just as you are; yet at this time of year they do everything in their power to concentrate the Christmas spending on their stores.

Christmas doesn't call for any special lines of merchandise. People want at Christmas time only those things they want any time—the only difference being that at Christmas time they are better able or at least more willing to buy them.

You would not have to make any special effort to sell a Phonograph during the holiday season to a man or woman who has wanted one all the year.

Your effort is necessary, however, to convince the man who is hesitating between several things that the Phonograph is the best thing he can put his money into.

You undoubtedly believe it is. You know that if you can get such a man into your store you can convince him that it is. You can get him in the store if you advertise in the newspapers or if you reach him at his home by mail, or if you stop him as he passes by means of a good window display.

When you get him in you need a well assorted stock, well arranged; you need at least one instrument of each price wound and adjusted so that it will do its best work while demonstrating; you need a supply of Records close at hand, embracing every kind of music and including selections or songs that have received the most popular approval.

Beyond this you should have a store that has about it the Christmas spirit; a store whose every-day appearance has been changed to that which Christmas shoppers expect. Edison goods properly demonstrated amid such surroundings will prove irresistable.

Inside the Store

Interior arrangement should be considered from two points of view—convenience and effect.

Convenience includes not only your convenience in finding goods called for, but the convenience of your customers in buying.

Lack of system in arranging Records means lost time and frequently lost sales.

Poor facilities for demonstrating Phonographs does the Phonographs an injustice and discourages buyers.

Effect—that is, the impression created by a well arranged stock—is often sacrificed in the interest of convenience. It need not be and it should not be.

Surroundings often speak louder than the salesmen and often more effectively. A poorly arranged store may undo the work of good advertising, good window dressing and good salesmanship. We show here some good examples of interior arrangements. They are splendid examples of convenience and effectiveness. Perhaps they will serve as suggestions to other Edison Dealers, who have not yet hit upon an arrangement and treatment that they are satisfied with.

Have the Drop on all Others

D-We have your new machines and the full list of four-minute Records, and I take the liberty to say that both are a wonderful improvement over the old, and a great stride toward absolute perfection. Looks to me as though you had them all on your hip again. I don't think a man can be too enthusiastic in regard to this product, as it has the drop on all the others. With best wishes for the success of this product, I am.—J. W. McClellon, Marietta, Ohio.

Last Notice About Signing Addenda

The letter sent in the latter part of October to such Edison Dealers as had not at that time signed the addenda to our Dealers' Agreement brought signed copies from probably all individuals or companies who intend to continue handling our goods as Dealers. A part of those who have not been heard from doubtless prefer some other cylinder line to ours and intend dropping Edison goods. It would be strange indeed if there were not some opposition to our policy and if some Dealers did not prefer other makes, although the number of our Dealers who have taken such a position is surprisingly small. The remainder of the unsigned are probably Dealers who have been doing so small a business that they do not intend to continue with the line. For fear, however, that there might still be Dealers who have not signed through neglect or carelessness and who would not want to lose their privileges as a Dealer, the following letter was mailed on November 18th to all who, according to our files, had not sent in signed addenda:

Dear Sir:— New York, Nov. 18, 1908.

We find that so far you have not signed the Addenda to the Dealer's Agreement, to which your attention has already been called.

It now becomes necessary to state that unless you do sign the Addenda on or before December 1, 1908, we will take it for granted that you do not purpose signing same and will immediately remove your name from our list of Dealers, notifying our Jobbers to refrain from filling your future orders for Edison goods of all description.

Hoping that you will not make this step necessary, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,
F. K. DOLBEER,
General Manager of Sales.

Copies of the Addenda have already been sent you. If you cannot find them, we will send others upon request. One copy should be sent to us, with your signature properly witnessed.

After December 1st those who have not signed will be considered as no longer an active Dealer, but it will take some time to remove their names from our files and mailing list and notify Jobbers of their removal, and those whose Addendas are received before this work is completed will be put back and omitted from the Jobbers' notification. Jobbers who know of any active Dealers who have not signed should communicate with them at once and urge them to forward the paper without delay.

Factory Activity

As was to be expected, the tremendous efforts that have been put forth at our factory during the past three months resulted during November in making a marked gain on the orders in hand for combination Phonographs, Attachments and Amberol Records. The gain on combination machines was such that by the middle of December every order received prior to the first of the month will be filled complete. After December 15th we expect to keep up with machine orders unless there should be an unusually quick revival of general business throughout the country. Even then we shall have little trouble in meeting demands. Our factory organization is again back to its old efficiency and the weekly productions can be largely increased at short notice, if necessary. The trade will have little apprehension about our ability to fill machine orders fully and quickly, although it will not be wise for any Jobber to let his stock run low on this account. It should be borne in mind that business of all kinds is going to increase steadily and all should plan for a rising and not a falling market. Experience for several years past has shown us that after the January stock taking there comes a period of two to three weeks when the orders exceed our factory capacity. This may be the case in 1909, so don't bank too much on our output (large as it may be) to keep your stock replenished at short notice. Be on the safe side and keep ordering ahead.

Excellent progress was also made with the shipments of Amberol Records. The last shipments were made on the original orders and many additional orders were filled. For a time there was a doubt as to whether we could get out the orders for December Amberols on time, but luck and good management were on our side and the last of the December advance orders for both kinds of Records went out on November 21st. The last shipments went to New York and nearby points, so that the goods reached Jobbers in time for re-shipment to Dealers on November 24th. This is a closer schedule than we care to have, but it is heaps better than being late.

As more and more Phonographs are being equipped with attachments, and an increased number of combination machines get into the hands of the public, the demand for Amberol Records grows. More and more Dealers are putting in a complete stock of Amberol Records and by playing them on their demonstration machines are making much enthusiasm among Phonograph owners. All of this is creating a demand for Amberol Records that is little less than remarkable considering the short time that the Record has been on the market. Strangely enough there has as yet been no falling off in the advance orders for two-minute Records. Judging by the total advance orders from Jobbers, the new Record is creating just so much new business.

The work of manufacturing attachments is not so satisfactory as the machine and Amberol situation. It is in this department that the extent of the interest of the public in the new Record is shown. During November as many as 3,000 attachments were made and shipped in a single day and the total shipment for the month reached figures that would not be credited if told. Yet the month closed with as many orders ahead as were on the books November 1st. This is likely to be the case for many months, possibly being more aggravated with the certain improvement in business conditions. The November shipments would have been greater than they were but for our inability to get additional machines for making certain parts and but for the trouble in making the fine point for the new Model H reproducer required to play the Amberol Records. All the work on these points is done under microscopes and the hands work in three shifts of eight hours each, the department working without a break from 7 o'clock Monday morning till midnight Saturday. The department is now the show place of the factory for activity, character of work and number of hands employed.

Taken as a whole our factory may be said to represent the advance guard of Phonograph optimism, for its present activity is but a reflection of what must be the condition of the entire trade within a few months.

Here's a New Year Resolution

I will read the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY every month and pass it on to the members of my sales force. And I will make use of all of the suggestions in it that will help increase my sales of Edison Phonographs and Records.

Now Let's Get Together

What little dissatisfaction was manifested over our ruling that Dealers handling other cylinder goods will not be permitted to sell the Edison product (and it was indeed little) has wholly disappeared, the last of it dropping from sight with the issuance of the letter declaring our intention to protect Dealers from new competition in their respective localities. Now that it has become a settled policy, Dealers are practically unanimous in their approval of it. It has done much to simplify the talking machine situation.

There is no longer any necessity for a Dealer to push two or more cylinder lines. No matter which kind he sells—Edison or any other—he will bend all his energies to getting the most out of it. He will only have to carry one stock, which will require less capital than if he handled two or more. He can talk up the line to better advantage and with more certainty of making a sale, for it will no longer be necessary to withhold a good argument in favor of one machine because it might reflect upon another make also carried by the same Dealer. It is going to be easier to advertise one line and the advertising will do more good. When a Dealer can say, "I handle only Edison Phonographs and Records because in my judgment they are the best on the market," that fact alone is going to have a strong influence on a prospective purchaser.

The new policy is going to help the Jobbers in their collections. How many times have Jobbers found that Dealers, instead of paying their accounts, have used up their spare money by putting in another make of goods largely because of the talent of a clever salesman or because the discounts are a little better? How many times have Jobbers and Dealers seen these additional stocks handicap businesses so that they were kept continually behind in their accounts? There would be some recompense if Dealers made more money out of several lines than if they handled only one, but they don't. As a rule the extra lines are not advertised or pushed by the manufacturers, or if they are it is not to create a demand for the goods, but to deceive the trade.

Many other disadvantages of carrying more than one cylinder line might be named, but is it not necessary. They have now become a thing of the past. The future business of an Edison Dealer is going to be conducted on simpler, more pleasant and more profitable lines, and every one is going to be greatly pleased over the new conditions. They are also going to make it possible for us to do many things to improve a Dealer's business than was possible before.

Watch everything we hereafter do. If you get any printed matter from us read it from beginning to end. If it don't seem clear, write us for further information. If it calls for a reply, make it at once. Read every issue and every page of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. As fast as we find how we can make it more valuable to you we are going to do so. Our recent action has brought us very close together in a business way, and we want your co-operation in making it still closer as the months go by.

With the passing of Election Day the Edison Records made by Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan take on an added value, and enterprising Dealers will not be slow to take advantage of it. The Taft Records are the first in the history of the world to be made by the head of a great government. After March 4th next the owner of one of these Records can say with no little pride: "This is a Record made by the President of the United States." As Mr. Taft takes hold of the duties of his office, as he gets deeper and deeper in the work and as he begins to do things that will keep him constantly before not only the people of the United States, but of the entire world, the Records of his voice will become more and more interesting, and they will have a value that could not be estimated if it were not possible to duplicate them.

The Bryan Records will lose none of their selling power because Mr. Bryan has again been defeated for the Presidency. Mr. Bryan is regarded by his friends and opponents alike as one of the most popular men and greatest orators that this country has produced, and it will always be a pleasure to listen to the Edison Records made by him. His "Immortality" and "An Ideal Republic" are not political in any sense, but are masterpieces of oratory and diction. Because of their political bearing the other eight Bryan Records may in time cease to be interesting, but these two must be sought after for years to come.

The Dealer who is disposed to believe that the day of the Taft and Bryan Records is past, simply because the election is over, is making a mistake, and he will make a worse error if he does not redouble his efforts to put the Records in every Phonograph collection.

Printed Matter

Jobbers have been supplied with a quantity of a four-page folder for the purpose of stimulating Christmas trade. It is printed in red and green and is illustrated with the "Christmas Matinee" sketch that is the feature of all of our publications advertising for December. It is a handy folder for mailing lists, to hand out over the counter or to enclose with correspondence, bills, etc. Dealers should get some of the folders from their Jobbers and use them in such a way as will increase their Edison business.

The bulletin of special Christmas selections mailed to all Jobbers and Dealers last month should be hung in a prominent place in every Edison store, and it ought to make nice additional sales, for the special Christmas Records named on it. It is Form No. 7442.

The Christmas Record certificates, illustrated and described on page 10 of the November PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, proved to be a popular form, but it ought to have been in greater demand than it was. It is not too late to get a few of them and sell them to your customers, properly filled in, for Christmas presents of Edison Records. We will mail you what you want at the rate of twenty-five for ten cents. Or if you want to see one before you order, ask us and we will mail one to you. If you don't know what the certificate is, look on page 10 of the November PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY.

How do you like the Record Supplement and the Record Bulletin in their new dresses? We think they're quite attractive and that they are going to help a whole lot in selling Edison goods. The little half-tones of the artists given the Supplement a new interest, and the additional two pages gives space for more descriptive matter about the new Records. Then the Bulletin is bigger and more striking in appearance, and it ought to get considerable attention from the public if put up where it can be seen. This sheet will look fine in a frame, and the Dealer who will get a suitable frame to inclose it each month as it appears will have a business puller that cannot be beat. Both Supplement and Bulletin will be continued in this form for some time.

There is no decline in the popularity of the Phonogram as a means for increasing Record sales. In spite of the times the edition has remained at 600,000 right through the year, showing conclusively that it stands well with the trade. It is not an elaborate piece of printed matter, but it does the work, and that's the real test of its merit. Possibly you don't know what the Phonogram cost the trade. Here's the schedule.

ORDERED THROUGH JOBBERS.

Blank, per 1,000 copies	$2.50
Smaller quantities pro rata.
Imprinted, 500 copies	1.60
Imprinted, 1,000 copies	2.75
No orders filled for less than 500 copies requiring imprint, and all imprinting orders must be for multiples of 500.

Jobbers will be glad to supply Dealers on the above basis.

BY MAIL.

Single copies, per year	$ .20
Five copies to one address, per year	.60
Twenty-five copies to one address, per year	1.80
Fifty copies to one address, per year	3.00

Unless they have open accounts on our books, Dealers ordering Phonograms sent by mail are requested to send cash or stamps with their orders. The amounts are too small to handle in any other way. Phonograms must be sold by the Jobber to his Dealers at the prices quoted above; any reduction of these prices will be considered as a violation of contract.

About Branch Stores

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 26th, 1908.

To Edison Jobbers and Dealers:

On and after this date you must refrain from establishing any branch stores where goods of our manufacture are to be displayed for sale, without first obtaining our permission to do so.

This is in line with the protective policy which we purpose enforcing looking toward protecting the interests of loyal Edison Dealers, and we cannot permit a Dealer who is already carrying our goods to establish a branch where other Edison Dealers are already located to their detriment.

Should you desire to open a branch at any place in the country, we must respectfully request that you communicate with this office before so doing.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.
F. K. DOLBEER,
Manager of Sales.

The wisdom of this decision will appeal to the entire trade. It is evident that if Jobbers and Dealers were permitted to establish branch stores at will we could not give Dealers protection in their towns as we have promised to do and are planning to do.

Wanted—Assistant Editors

This is your paper. It hasn't any object on earth but to help you sell Edison Phonographs and Records.

Are you reading it every month? Do you get inspiration from reading of what other Dealers in the line are doing?

Do you notice the Trade Bulletins and keep posted on changes and other important factory news? Do you look over the lists of new Records so as to know what's coming?

Do you cut out the ready-made ads to run in your newspaper? In a word, do you get all that's coming to you in a business-helping way from this journal every month?

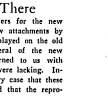
We want to make every Edison Dealer feel that he is a part owner of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY and to look for it eagerly the first of every month.

There is a coupon at the bottom of this page. Will you fill it out and mail it to the Advertising Department? We are particularly anxious to know what subjects you would like to see discussed in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY.

What feature of the business would you like to have some light on? Tell us what you think of the paper. Is it good? Is it better this month than usual? What's the best thing in it? The worst? We are just as glad to get roasts as compliments. Both will help us to make the MONTHLY your kind of a paper.

Will you not take a hand in running the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY by setting us straight on these questions right away?

Jot down your thoughts on the blank now while you think of it. We want YOUR SUGGESTIONS.



The Point is There

Since we began to fill orders for the new Amberol Records and the new attachments by which the Amberols may be played on the old machines, we have had several of the new Model "H" reproducers returned to us with statements that the sapphires were lacking. Investigation has proved in every case that these reproducers were complete and that the reproducing points were there.

To explain to those dealers who have had the wrong impression in regard to these reproducers, we would say that the new Model "H" button is much smaller than the one in Model "C" and since the settings differ it is much harder in the case of Model "H" to discern the sapphire with the naked eye. In cases of doubt use a microscope, or better, try the reproducer on an Amberol Record.

A Neat Illustration

F. M. Atwood, Edison Jobber at Memphis, Tenn., uses the following illustration to show what the size and playing lengths of the Amberol Record are:

Alonzo Wilkes, Edison Dealer at Amsterdam, N. Y., sends back to us a clipping of the article headed "A Series of 'All Rights'" from the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for November, and adds this comment of his own: "I think the same. My only wonder is that you did not do so before."

Selling the Goods

ADVERTISING:—One of the most important and often one of the most neglected branches of a dealer's business.

Making Concerts Pay

People buy the song hit of a musical farce between the acts or as they are leaving the theatre.

That is the psychological moment to sell them, because the people have just heard them, enjoyed them and are in the mood to possess them.

So with the Edison Phonograph Records.

The time to sell Records is when you have he people in your store listening to them.

Edison concerts, which have already been mentioned in these pages, bring a great many people to your store. If properly conducted, they become immensely popular and the attendance grows monthly.

It is at these concerts that people feel disposed to buy. Yet they cannot be canvassed or urged without feeling resentment.

The concerts are free. Everybody is invited. There is no obligation upon those attending. This must be the understanding or the public will stay away.

The thing to do is to make it convenient for those who wish to buy. This may be done very modestly, but effectively.

At the concerts there should be programs giving the list of new Records to be played.

Let this program suggest the purchase of Records and contain an order blank to be signed and left with you.

We show here a combination program and order blank which your printer can follow.

The advantage of this program is that the hearer can check off those of the Records which especially appeal to him as the concert progresses, so that when the concert is over he has a definite list of just the ones he prefers.

His signature and address at the bottom makes the purchase born fide. He buys just what he wants without bother or waste of time and you deliver the day following.

A plan of this kind has proved very successful in many stores.

It will in yours.

It is certainly worth a trial, especially if you have never given concerts of this kind. If you do not care to print a program use the Record Supplement instead.

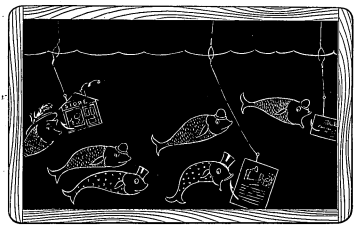
The Story of the Good Window Card and the Bad Window Card



There was once a card in the window of a dealer's store which said: "Bring the children in here and the Christmas problem will be solved." Willie's father saw the card and took Willie in. They received a welcome and two seats. They heard all of the latest music, songs and jokes as only an Edison Phonograph can present them. They learned how to wind the instrument, how to adjust it and how to put in and take out the records. Willie had the time of his life and Willie's father wasn't bored by any means. Willie has an Edison and a lot of Records coming to him on the 25th prox.

There was such a card in another dealer's window. Tommie's father saw it and took Tommie in. The dealer was out back arguing with an expressman. Tommie and his father waited twenty minutes, leaning up against the wall to rest. Tommie wandered around the store and the dealer growled at him for touching things. After much coaxing the dealer dusted off a Phonograph and tried to play a grand opera record, which, of course, was just what Tommie loved. When Tommie said something about band music the dealer said he had something of that kind but it was too hard to find. So Tommie and his father went out into the park to sit down and rest. Tommie decided he'd rather have a velocipede for Christmas.

The moral is that both window cards were good. Here are some other good ones. Put them in your window and then see that you help them make good.

Lessons for Dealers

Lesson IV.

One cus-tom-er sees things in your win-dow that brings him in-side.

An-other cus-tom-er misses your win-dow but finds some-thing in your news-pa-per ad that brings him in.

Yet an-other cus-tom-er misses both your win-dow and your ad, but gets your let-ter or post-al. And that fetch-es him.

A nift-y win-dow, a strong ad and a bright line of mail mat-ter are all good bait, but if you use one and neg-lect two, you lose two cus-tom-ers for every one you land.

Two Pages of Ready-Made Ads

Ads for Your Local Newspaper

Your newspaper advertising between now and Christmas is important. You are, perhaps, too busy to give this end of the game the thought and time necessary to bring about the best results. We have anticipated your "eleventh hour" needs in this connection, and you will find herewith some suggestions for your use. There are three single-column ads. which we suggest your running every other day until Christmas, and a double-column ad. which we suggest your running alternately with the single-column ads. Two of the latter are Christmas ads., pure and simple—but to the point—the others being primarily to set forth the merits of Amberol Records and to show what they and the boxes they come in look like. If you will cut these ads. out and take them to your newspapers, the style of type and display can be accurately followed. To secure the best results insist upon this. We have the electros all ready to mail to you. We furnish them free. Order by number.

Have You Heard an Amberol Record?

Until you have, you haven't heard an Edison Phonograph at its best. The tone is beautiful and the selections by far the best ever heard on a talking machine

Amberol Records play, sing or talk twice as long as the Standard Edison Records and longer than any other Record of any kind.

If you have a Phonograph, we can equip it to play Amberol Records. If you haven't, we can sell you one on your own terms.

(Dealer's name and address)

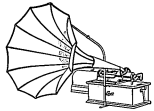
Four Minutes of Music Without Record Changing

Amberol Records are the longest playing Records of any kind yet produced. Their length permits of music and songs heretofore impossible.

Their tone will give you an even greater appreciation of the Edison Phonograph. The variety of music offered will surprise you.



If you hear these Amberol Records you will want a Phonograph. If you have a Phonograph you will want the Amberol attachments. Let us let you hear them.

(Dealer's name and address)

Electros of above are: Single Column, 707; Double Column, 708.

An Edison Phonograph on the Tree

Then a Christmas brightened by songs, music, dances and stories; then long evenings made short throughout the Winter by this same great entertainer

THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH

A gift appreciated by all, from the baby up, from Christmas day on throughout the year and in other years.

Have you heard the new Amberol Records? They play four minutes. Come in early before the last-minute folks crowd the store. You can buy now for Christmas delivery.

Put Them Up Outside

One of our own salesmen writes to the Advertising Department as follows:

I wish to call to your attention a detail in regards to our very fine and efficient outside display banner. Four dealers out of five are hanging them up in their stores instead of hanging them outside where the general public can see them. When these banners are put to proper usage they are trade getters, but when hung in the store their value as an advertising medium deteriorates.

Won't the Dealers who are hilding the light of this banner in their stores put them outside where the public can see them and be induced to go inside to see and hear the goods?

Who Wants Them?

We have on hand a limited supply of the 9x12 colored prints of the Massani painting of the old couple; and of the supplements and bulletins of the Harry Lauder Records. Forms 1433 and 1434 respectively. Until they are used up we will be glad to fill orders from Jobbers for re-distribution to Dealers.

Regarding Combination Attachments for Phonographs Fitted with Repeating Attachment

The Home, Triumph, Idelia and Alva Combination Phonographs and Attachments can be arranged for driving Repeating Attachments, by using a special main shaft pulley.

All Combination Machines of these types, ordered with Repeating Attachments, will be equipped with special main shaft pulleys.

All orders for Combination Attachments, to be used on Phonographs containing Repeating Attachments, should specify for use with Repeating Attachment, in order that the special pulley may be furnished.

If any Phonograph owners have already purchased regular Combination Attachments from you for use on Phonographs with Repeating Attachments, they may return to us, direct or through you, the pulley with which the Attachment is now equipped, and we will supply, in place thereof, the special pulley required, no charge.

All Jobbers and Dealers should order and always carry in stock sufficient Combination Attachments for use with Repeating Attachments to take care of their requirements.

Combination Attachments for Concert Phonographs

Combination Attachments for Concert Phonographs consist of the regular Triumph Attachment and a special diaphragm arm, the same as we have supplied with the regular Triumph cylinder shaft and mandrel for Concert machines to make them play the two-minute Record.

Combination Attachments for Concert Phonographs, which have already been equipped with small cylinder and special diaphragm arm, consist of the regular Triumph Combination attachment with a special reproducer.

We furnish no Combination Attachment for Concert Phonographs to play the Concert Record, for we do not make a four-minute Concert Record.

The four-minute reproducers furnished with the Combination Attachments for Concert Phonographs must be fitted with special weight. The regular Model H reproducer cannot be used.

The following prices have been fixed for Combination Attachments for Concert machines:

For the regular Concert Phonograph, that is, those still containing the Concert mandrels, list $9.75. Dealer $8.00.

For Concert Phonographs that have been changed over to play the Standard Record, list, $7.50. Dealer, $6.25.

Sales Department Bulletin No. 21, November 2, 1908

Trade Information for Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Regarding Home and Triumph Attachments

As some of the trade are under the impression that Combination Attachments for Home and Triumph Phonographs are the same, we feel compelled to advise that such is not the case. Although identical in design, they are not so in dimensions. The main difference is in the length of the feed screw, consequently the depression in shaft "T" for set screw "V" is not located in the same spot on both Home and Triumph main shafts. Furthermore, with the Triumph Attachment, it is necessary to furnish a belt, feed nut and spring assembled and feed nut washer, whereas with the Home Attachment, these parts are not necessary, consequently are not supplied. Also with the Home Attachment, we supply a back rod collar, which is not supplied, or cannot be used, with the Triumph Attachment.

From this information, you will note it becomes necessary for you to order Triumph Attachments for Triumph machines, and Home Attachments for Home machines.

All Home Phonographs equipped with swing arm and on which the cylinder shaft runs between centers, take one attachment, known as the Home D-B Attachment. The Model C Home machines, which have no swing arm, but on which the cylinder shaft runs on a center bearing, the feed screw is slightly longer, and, therefore, these machines require the D-C Attachment.

In the Triumph Machine we have Model A, on which the swing arm is locked by the round spring lock knob, operated from the end; the Model B machine, on which the end gate is locked by the spring lock lever, operated from the front of the machine, and which has a combined body and top plate. A further distinction of these Model B machines is that they are assembled with the golden oak cabinet bearing the name "Edison." We also have the Model C type, which is the machine without the swing arm, and on which the shaft is mounted on the center bearing. The Model C machines, both Home and Triumph, so far, have been sold only in the State of New York. These three types of Triumph machines vary slightly in length between the back bearings, and, therefore, the shafts and feed screws of the attachments for the three types vary in length. The feed screw sleeve for the D-A type is 4 27-32 inches long. The feed screw sleeve for the Model D-A attachment for the Model A type of Triumph is 5-32 of an inch shorter than the feed screw for the D-B attachment for the Model B Triumph. Both of these attachments are arranged to run between centers, and have a combination thrust and retaining collar between the screw sleeve and the cylinder. The feed screw sleeve for the Model D-C attachment for the New York State machines is one-quarter of an inch longer than the Model D-B screw sleeve, and is arranged to run on a center bearing, and is fitted up with a split bearing in addition to the retaining collar.

Our Christmas Advertising

The strongest proof of our confidence in Edison Dealers and our faith in Amberol Records may be evinced by a glance through the December monthly magazines and the late November issues of the large weeklies having national circulation. We have never before spent so much money in one month's advertising. We are bound that every possible purchaser of a sound reproducing instrument in the United States shall know that by the invention of Amberol Records the Edison Phonograph is placed upon a pinnacle of superiority never before reached by a Phonograph or talking machine.

Our quarter, half, full and double page ads, with color illustrations strongly suggestive of Christmas, which appear in thirty-two different publications, will be missed by few; and the Dealer who has not made himself known in his community as an Edison Dealer by identifying his local advertising with our national advertising will be the first to feel the results of our Christmas campaign.

If the Dealer's advertising efforts in behalf of Edison Phonographs and Records are in proportion to our own efforts his advertising expenditures will soon appear to have been good investments, as our tremendous outlays have always proved to be.

A Better Proposition Than Ever Before

Whatever improves the Phonograph improves its selling possibilities. Whatever adds to its ability to entertain, increases its popularity, widens its field, raises its standard and broadens its scope, makes it just that much more inviting to those who are in a position to sell it.

Amberol Records afford more than a mere talking point. They represent an achievement in this kind of musical entertainment. They open up a new field of possibilities. Because of their length (playing over four minutes and longer than any other record of any kind) they permit of the reproduction of music never before possible and, with the way now open, more music of the better class will be the rule.

Amberol Records have a tone quality that is superior even to regular Edison Records and the possibility of getting over twice the entertainment afforded by regular Edison Records at little more than the old price is influencing Record sales far beyond what anything else in record-making has done.

The Dealer who now pushes Edison Phonographs will find a stimulated market in both instruments and Records.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard (Two-Minute) and Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records for February, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before January 25th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 2 P. M. on January 26th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on December 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. There may be distributed to Dealers after January 25th, but must not be circulated among the public before January 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 2 P. M. on January 26th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for February Records on or before December 10th. Dealers should place February orders with Jobbers before December 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard (Two-Minute) Records.

10056 Little Flatterer — Edison Concert Band

"Little Flatterer" (Schmeichelkatzchen), is one of the earliest compositions by Richard Eilenberg, a popular European composer. It is well known and a favorite among his numerous concert numbers. It is written in gavotte tempo with bell effect, and has an introduction in which there is a cadenza for the flute. A very attractive band number. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10057 Willie's Got Another Girl Now — Ada Jones

A comic song by the writers of "Waiting at the Church" (our Record No. 9315) and "Row John" (our Record No. 9351). It is one of the hits in "Fluffy Ruffles," a musical comedy that has had a long run in New York. Every time that Willie called on his girl the other members of the family "butted" in to such an extent that he was finally compelled to get another sweetheart. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Henry E. Pether; words, Fred W. Leigh. Publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

10058 Uncle Josh in Society — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh pays a visit to an old friend in the city, who formerly lived in the country but who has become wealthy and now lives in a luxurious city home. It is not hard to imagine that some of the things that Uncle Josh did would not be considered good form in polite society. The funny way in which Uncle Josh tells about them is simply irresistible.

10059 Sweetheart Town — Harlan and Stanley

A new song by Theo. Morse, who wrote the famous "Blue Bell" song. It is similar in style and character to "Blue Bell," the refrain being in the popular march tempo. It is some time since Mr. Harlan and Mr. Stanley have sung together and the many admirers of their duet selections will welcome this addition to their repertoire. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theo. Morse; words, Jack Mahoney. Publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

10060 Sullivan — Billy Murray

A comic selection that is being sung with great success in George M. Cohan's "musical frivolity," "The American Idea." As its name suggests it is a song similar to "Harrigan," also a Cohan composition. It demonstrates that the good old Irish name of Sullivan meets all the requirements of the hall of fame. Big Tim, John L., and the man who wrote "Pinafore," are cited as illustrious examples. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, George M. Cohan. Publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co., New York.

10061 Schooners That Pass in the Night — Arthur Collins

A comedy drinking song by the composer of "On the Banks of the Rhine with a Stein" (our Record No. 9124) and "Down Where the Wurzberger Flows" (our Record No. 8258), both successful drinking songs. It has a catchy air that will make it as popular as the two just mentioned. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Jack Mahoney. Publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10062 I Don't Like You — June Rossmore

This serio-comic song introduces a new artist, who is well known on the vaudeville stage. Miss Rossmore sings for this Record in a style different from any singer now in our catalogues, introducing some of the effects that have made her such a success in vaudeville. It is one of those Records that improve with each hearing. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Clare Kummer. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10063 Blessed Assurance — Edison Mixed Quartette

One by one the best and most popular of the sacred selections are being added to the Edison catalogue. "Blessed Assurance" has been repeatedly asked for and its inclusion in this month's list will, therefore, please many Phonograph owners. Our Quartette has given it a rendition quite in keeping with the spirit of the hymn. Unaccompanied. Music, Mrs. Joseph F. Knapp; words, Fanny J. Crosby.

10064 I Never Cared for Anyone the Way I Care for You — Byron G. Harlan

A sentimental song that is fully described by its lengthy title. The writers of present day ballads aim to get names for their efforts that will furnish a fair idea as to their character. This one is entitled to a perfect score. The writers also produced "Somebody that I Know and You Know Too" (our Record No. 9822) and "When You Know You're Not Forgotten by the Girl You Can't Forget" (our Record No. 9544), both good examples of descriptive titles. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, B. F. Barrett. Publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10065 I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby. — Thomas Chalmers

The text of this song was taken from the poem "Lalla Rookh," by Tom Moore. "Lalla Rookh" was set to music by Frederic Clay, the well known English composer. It is a song of a high order and popular as a concert number. Mr. Chalmers' fine baritone voice makes it a Record of more than ordinary beauty. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Frederic Clay; words, W. G. Wills. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

10066 Rainbow — New York Military Band

This most popular Indian intermezzo was put out as a vocal solo by Ada Jones and Billy Murray, in the January list (it was Record No. 10049), but it is such an attractive composition that it will bear repetition as a band number, as all who get this Record will testify. "Rainbow" is similar in style to the famous "Hiawatha," and its popularity ought to be quite as long enduring. In addition to some excellent work by the band, the Record includes solos by the xylophone and bells. Composer, Percy Wenrick. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10067 Down in Georgia on Campmeeting Day — Edward Meeker

A coon song with a lively ragtime melody, and with words that are as full of action as the melody. The words are descriptive of the happenings at a darkey camp meeting in Georgia. Mr. Meeker enters into the spirit of the selection and makes a Record that is not only good musically, but is full of imitations of darkey mannerisms. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Nathan Bivins; words, John Madison Reed. Publishers, Millbrook Music Publishing Co., New York.

10068 I Wish I Had a Girl — Manuel Romain

A song that has made a big hit in the West. It is being sung by Mr. Romain in vaudeville. The words tell of a young man's plaint that he is lonesome, very lonesome, without a girl and he wishes that he had one, just as the other fellows do. Mr. Romain, who by the way, has become one of the best selling Edison artists and, therefore, one of the most popular, sings the selection in a very attractive manner. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Grace LeBoy; words, Gus Kahn. Publishers, Thompson Music Co., Chicago.

10069 I Can't Say You're the Only One — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

These are the words a young couple use in having a heart-to-heart confession concerning their past experiences in making love. There were others who kissed and said sweet nothings and both tell of it unblushingly. But those things are past history and both are now sure that the present love is "it." The song is from the English musical comedy "The Girls of Gottenberg" and is one of the hits in the production. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Jerome D. Kern; words, C. H. Borill. Publishers, T. B. Harms Co. and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

10070 Jim Lawson's Horse Trade — Cal Stewart

Jim Lawson was a Yankee who was unusually clever in trading horses, but one day a gypsy proved too smart for him and he became the owner of a horse whose only fault was that he would sit down whenever he was touched on the side by his rider. This Record relates how Jim sold him to the Deacon as a hunting horse that would not only carry his owner but would "point" the game. A typical Cal Stewart Record in fun and rendition.

10071 The Miner March — John Kimmble

An accordion solo of one of the best marches in Mr. Kimmble's repertoire. The popularity of Records made by the accordion would astonish those who are inclined to regard this instrument as commonplace. Of course, Mr. Kimmble's excellent performances do much towards popularizing the Records. Piano accompaniment. Composer, Otto Kost.

10072 There's a Warm Spot in My Heart for Tennessee — Frederic Rose

A ballad by the writers of "Somebody Just Like You" (Record No. 10042 in the January list). The chorus:

There's a warm spot in my heart for Tennessee. I will call it home, sweet home.
There's a longing for your smile comes over me. There's a warm spot in my heart for Tennessee.
And wherever I may roam.

The song is one that just suits Mr. Rose's voice and, therefore, the Record is a most pleasing combination of sentiment, music and singing. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Johann C. Schmid; words, Charles E. Baer. Publishers, H. A. Weyman & Son, Philadelphia.

10073 Happy Mammy and Her Joe — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An original Southern sketch. Mammy has a happy sunny disposition and she uses it effectively to cheer up her Joe, who is disposed to be low spirited because he's tired of the struggle for existence. She sings to him and induces him to shake the rheumatism out of his bones by dancing. The Record introduces Ed. Harrigan's and Dave Braham's old song "When de Trumpet in the Cornfield Blows."

10074 Policeman O'Reilly on Duty — Steve Porter

Another of Mr. Porter's clever street scenes, in which he continues his mirthful imitations of a conversation carried on by three individuals. Between the Italian peddlers, the newsboys and a fat woman who asks many questions, O'Reilly has his hands full. The way he handles every situation would make a New York policeman green with envy. It will certainly provoke many a smile.

10075 Alabama — Collins and Harlan

A comic ragtime coon duet song in the musical comedy "The Broken Idol." Mr. Collins carries the air in the verses, with responses by Mr. Harlan, and then they sing together in the choruses. One of those duet Records that have done so much to make Collins and Harlan popular. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Egbert Van Alstyne; words, Harry Williams. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10076 The Fairest of the Fair March — New York Military Band

The latest march by John Philip Sousa, the famous bandmaster. It has all the characteristic style and swing of his popular marches. It was written expressly for the Boston Food Fair and dedicated to the Boston Retail Grocers' Association. Publisher, John Church Co., New York.

13783 He Was Very Kind to Me — Harry Lauder

Jean's testimonial to the extreme kindness shown her by Sandy, her late spouse. After laying especial emphasis upon Sandy's kindness, Jean tells how she was confronted by a neighbor, who upon learning that Sandy was insured in the Prudential said that "eight pound" and a dead "mon" was not so bad after all. A typical Lauder Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

13784 Rising Early in the Morning — Harry Lauder

A most excellent imitation of Jock's aversion to early rising and the efforts of his wife to get him out of bed. Mr. Lauder gives a most realistic presentation of the sleepy, yawning man who cares for nothing else so much as to stay in bed when he ought to get up and go to work. Orchestra accompaniment.

13785 The Weddin' o' Lauchie M'Graw — Harry Lauder

The things that took place at the wedding put the event in the same class as the fair famed Donnybrook Fair. There was something doing every minute. So lively was the event that the singer declares that he'd sooner get mixed up in the wheels of a train than attend another like it. Orchestra accompaniment.

Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records.

71 Selection from "Aida" — Edison Concert Band

"Aida," deemed by many to be Verdi's best opera, was written for the Khedive of Egypt and was given its initial performance at Cairo on December 24, 1871. On this Record are given the famous tenor solo, "Celeste Aida;" part of the ballet music and the grand finale of the second act. This is the most striking climax in the opera and very effective for military band performances. The Record must appeal strongly to those seeking something stirring ballads, coon songs and other selections of lighter vein. It is worth a place in the best collections of Records. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

72 The Shipmates — Golden and Hughes

An original sketch in which this well-known team have made a great success on the vaudeville stage. With it they have entertained thousands from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Golden is the original "Hilly" Golden, who was one of the early makers of Edison Records, and those old "shouts and songs are in every Record collection. The first half of the Record is taken up with a dialogue, in which nautical terms are used in a most original manner. Then follows the singing of a series of funny verses, with some good yodling by Mr. Hughes.

73 Do You Know Me, Schneider? — Ada Jones

One of the best things in the English musical comedy "The Girls of Gottenberg," which enjoyed a long run at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York. It is written on different lines from any of the present day popular songs, a fact that adds much to its attractiveness. The entire song is given on the Record, comprising four verses and four choruses, each of the latter being different. Miss Jones' rendition of a perfect fac-simile of the stage performance. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Lionel Monckton; words, Lionel Monckton and George Grossmith, Jr. Publishers, Chappell & Co., New York.

74 Popular Songs of 1908 — American Symphony Orchestra

A potpourri of six of the most popular songs of 1908, as follows: "It Looks Like a Big Night To-night;" "Mandy Lane;" "Sweet Girl of My Dreams," from "Ragged Robin," Chauncy Olcott's new production; "Good Evening, Caroline!" "Once in a While," from "Marcelle," the new musical comedy by Pixley & Luders; "Down in Jungle Town." In the language of the department stores, it is unusual value for the money.

75 Uncle Josh Keeps House — Cal Stewart

Sarah Ann Martin was not at all anxious to go to town and leave Uncle Josh in charge of the house. She had several presentiments that Uncle Josh would not be a success as a housekeeper. But she felt compelled to make the trip and started off, after charging Uncle Josh with a list of things that he must not do during her absence. The Record tells with what success he carried out instructions, his efforts being more humorous than serious. Four and one-half minutes of clean, wholesome fun.

76 Mona — Edith Chapman

A love ballad of the better sort, the music being by Stephen Adams, the well-known English composer and writer of the famous "Holy City." The words by F. E. Weatherly are above the average in attractiveness. They are set to a charming melody. Miss Chapman's cultured soprano voice makes a delightful Record of the selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Whit-Mark Music Co., New York.

77 By the Suwanee River — American Symphony Orchestra

A musical sketch by W. H. Myddleton that portrays an English composer's idea of a darkey's dream of the past. "Marching to the Camp Meeting" is the opening number. This has an approach and passing effect. The "Dance of the Old Folks" is played in a rollicking style and leads into a spirited coon dance, in which the shuffling of feet is heard. "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," played with dreamy tremolo effect, defines a vision of the old folks at home and the finale is again a jolly dance melody. Publishers, Hawkes & Son, London.

78 Cohan's Pet Names — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Another of the songs from George M. Cohan's new show, "The American Idea." It is a conversational duet between a young couple in which the young man nearly exhausts his vocabulary of pet names to find some that will please his lady love. The song is more striking because it is a departure from the style of the present day popular ditties. With it Miss Jones and Mr. Murray will again score, it being especially fitted to their duet work. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, George M. Cohan. Publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co., New York.

79 Battle Hymn of the Republic — Miss Stevenson, Mr. Stanley and Chorus

A remarkably fine presentation of Julia Ward Howe's stirring national anthem. Mr. Stanley, baritone, sings the first verse; Miss Stevenson, soprano, the second verse; Mr. Stanley and Mr. Anthony, the third verse, and Miss Stevenson and Mr. Anthony, the fourth verse. The chorus between the verses are sung by the Mixed Quartette. The singers are accompanied by the New York Military Band, which also plays a number of original interludes, that between the attractive features of the Record. It will be a song, indeed, if this does not prove one of the largest selling Records ever made for the Edison Phonograph.

* This selection will be illustrated on cover of February Phonogram.

80 The Death of Custer Edison Concert Band

A musical fantasy by Lee Johnson descriptive of the death of General Custer. A synopsis of the music is as follows:

1. Hour Indian war dance—Night before the battle.
2. Bugle calls in Custer's camp before dawning the fire of battle.
3. Custer's cavalry on march to Sioux's camp, the sound of Sioux' bands in the distance.
4. Approach of Cavalry with band playing "National Airs," the Indians responding with their customary war music.
5. Battle of "Little Big Horn" June 25th, 1876, in which all are slain, including Custer and his.
6. Indians dancing over the victory with scalp dance.
7. Arrival of reinforcements, General Benteen and Cavalry.
8. Custer's burial, volley of shots, muffled drums, and bugle sounding the last call, over General Custer's grave.

Finale—"Nearer My God to Thee."

Sued for Violating Contracts

The National Phonograph Co. recently obtained a preliminary injunction from the United States Circuit Court, western district of Pennsylvania, against Wright & Metzler, Connellsville, Pa., who are charged with infringing the patents of the Company. The defendants were enjoined from selling or advertising for sale Edison Phonographs or parts thereof, records or blanks, at less than current list prices, or violating in any manner whatsoever their license agreements of December 6, 1905, and October 26, 1907.

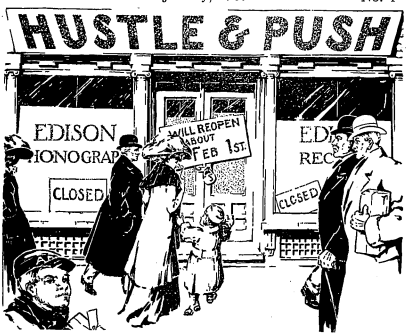
A final decree was also issued by the same court, October 13, against Gent & Eagen, Oil City, Pa., for violating the selling system of the National Phonograph Co. In this case the defendants were not authorized or signed Edison Dealers, and they claimed to have obtained the goods without notice of the restrictions. The Company waived an accounting and the defendants consented to a final decree and perpetual injunction. The defendants, however, were assessed the costs and disbursements of the complainants in bringing the suit.

Among the Jobbers

A. O. Petit, Edison Jobber at Newark, has bought out the Newark jobbing branch of the Douglas Phonograph Co., and now has the Newark field to himself, since the Rapke Phonograph store no longer handles Edison goods on a jobbing basis. Mr. Petit is one of the oldest Jobbers (from a business standpoint) in the country.

On November 1st the Standard Talking Machine Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., took over and bought out the entire stock of merchandise, fixtures and furniture of the Powers & Henry Co., and the Pittsburg Phonograph Co., both of Pittsburg. This deal involved some $70,000 and combined with the Standard Talking Machine Co.'s $60,000 worth of merchandise, gives them a combined stock of $130,000, making the Standard Talking Machine Co. the fourth largest talking machine jobber in the United States. It is the intention to run the business under the name of the Standard Talking Machine Co., with showrooms and main office at 435-437 Wood street, using the former Powers & Henry warehouse at 335-7 Second avenue. The combined Edison Record stock will aggregate 175,000 Edison Records. The former stockholders of the Standard Talking Machine Co. have not been increased by the addition of any outside parties, and none of the Power & Henry Co. or Pittsburg Phonograph Co. stockholders are at all interested in the Standard Co., they having gone out of the business entirely. The present officers of the Standard Company are: C. F. Haudenshield, president; M. S. Rocereto, vice-president, and J. C. Roush, treasurer and manager.

House publications continue to be popular in the talking machine trade. The newest addition is the Wurlitzer Recorder, No. 2 of which has just been issued by the Wurlitzer Company, of Cincinnati. It is full of bright and useful matter that cannot fail to interest its readers. Its editor is C. W. Page, Advertising Manager for the Wurlitzer Company. Mr. Page was formerly connected with the Advertising Department of this company.



Courtesy Pays

Remember above all things, Mr. Dealer, that your business is dependent upon the public, therefore, when a person enters your place of business it is fitting and proper, and we will add necessary, that he or she be treated with the utmost courtesy. Don't get the foolish idea into your head that because a stranger drops into your store and gives you the impression he does not intend to buy, that he is not entitled to just as courteous treatment as the fellow who comes running in half breathless shouting he is going to buy. While on the face of it, it may not appear to you that the former is deserving of any attention, just the same, he is a good prospect and by making a friend of him he may do you a world of good indirectly.—Whitsit Monthly.

Vol. VII. JANUARY, 1909 No. 1

Inventory month!

Yes; is that all?

For some retailers that's all January is.

Some retail merchants spend the month of January waiting for February.

For others, whose Christmas business has been big, January is a month for rest and recuperation,—a convenient time for a trip or vacation, possibly.

For a few retailers January is the first month of the New Year and therefore a month for business, a month for renewed effort, a month that shall prophecy by its results a healthy growth of the year's business.

Phonograph Dealers of the last named class have no pad-locks on their doors in January or any other time during the year except Sundays and holidays. For them the first twelfth of the year is as important,—yes, more important than the twelfth twelfth. But unfortunately the Dealers of this class are in the minority.

Many a retail merchant appears to choose for his mental motto for January—"If 'stock-taking' interferes with business, close up the business." That attitude is a "pad-lock" on the door.

Other merchants, ordinarily to be commended for their enterprise and sagacity, cut down their sales force right after Christmas, allow their stock to dwindle, are not surprised if there is no more trade than they are able to handle, and then they congratulate themselves for being "season wise," whereas, they have really locked up their own store door with a good strong "pad-lock"—("dull times" of their own making).

January is a dull month only for the retailer who allows it to be a dull month. No merchant should forget this simple truth: Retail business is nurtured by the retailer, not by the purchaser. The purchaser is the one acted upon by advertising, by window display, by argument over the counter and by the apparent quality of the goods offered for sale. The purchaser does not buy what he needs unless he happens to want what he needs; but he invariably buys what he wants whether he needs it or not. Advertising, window display, sales argument—have one purpose,—to create desire on the part of the possible customer for the goods.

If an Edison Dealer allows his stock to remain low after the Christmas sale, if he ceases to advertise Edison goods in the newspapers and to display them in his windows, if he handicaps in any way his ability to do a big Edison business, then it is Phonographs to "pad-locks" he will do a small business and have reason to call that period of inactivity a dull season. The Edison Dealer who "hits" January the way he "hits" December—with a complete stock, with good advertising, enthusiasm, optimism,—that Dealer will have no cause to complain at the end of the month nor will he ever padlock his business in the other dull seasons (so-called) of the year.

Unless most of the present indications prove unreliable, the year 1909 will exceed in prosperity any previous twelve months in the history of the Edison Phonograph. This statement is based upon a number of facts. In the first place the new Amberol Records and the attachments needed to play them on existing Phonographs will be important factors in making for a large volume of business. Since they were put on the market in October the demand for them has been of a phenomenal character, and the sales would have been much greater had the Edison factories been able to secure a larger production. The manufacturing difficulties incident to the introduction of a new Record so radically different from the older one, have for the most part been eliminated, and there should be no obstacles to making enough of both kinds of Records, Amberol attachments and combination Phonographs to meet every demand in 1909.

Aside from the additional sales caused by the new Record and attachments, the demand for Phonographs and the shorter Records has been of a healthy and most encouraging character. Without any new features the increased business each month since August would have been very satisfactory. Combined they have made a total equal to any similar period in the past. The same conditions promise to continue during 1909. General business seems certain to continue to improve month after month, and with it will come an increased demand for Edison goods, especially for Amberol Records and attachments. Every month will see more and more employes put back at work in the factories and mills, and the working hours will be increased until all are working on full time. Then the Phonograph business will come into its own, for the Phonograph after all, is the poor man's luxury—his only means of securing music for himself and his family—and no room as he gets hard to work and pays off some of the debts incurred while idle, he will buy.

Reports from the trade in all sections and confirmed by the volume of orders, show that business in the East is not keeping pace with the West in recovering from the financial depression. The farming sections of the West did not really have hard times. Based on the reports from the East it was afraid it might have and acted according to its fears. Now that the reports from the East are optimistic and the crops have again been phenomenally good, the West has resumed its wonted business way. Consequently it is buying and selling as if nothing had happened or was likely to happen. Jobbers and Dealers in the West are writing daily, stating that business is better than ever before.

The new policies of the National Phonograph Company inaugurated since October should also play an important part in increasing the volume of business in 1909. They are going to give greater stability to trade and protect Dealers in a manner that will encourage them to put more capital in the business and push it more vigorously than ever.

In making plans for the year don't build air castles. Be satisfied with plans you can be sure of carrying out. Don't try to plan results! Plan ACTION! Be original! Your business isn't just like your neighbors, so don't imitate him or copy his plans. In some things you have failed; in other things you have succeeded. Benefit by this experience of the past and thus minimize the failings and multiply the successes of 1909.

To show that owners of Edison Phonographs appreciate what Amberol 4-Minute Records mean to them, we take pleasure in printing the following letter:

> I am an Edison Standard Phonograph while I have had for many years. When the Gold Moulded Records were first introduced I bought one of the new-style Reproducers, known as Model C. This Reproducer, with the Gold Moulded Records, was a great improvement and has given me an end of enjoyment. Now comes the Amberol Record and the attachments for using them on the same machines that play the Gold Moulded Record. My standard of twelve years ago is now equipped with this latest improvement and I am now enjoying this very great improvement.
> Now the fact that this old machine of mine could be equipped with the most up-to-date attachments, appears to me as something remarkable. It also indicates that the National Phonograph Company is not merely looking after its own financial betterment entirely, but is also looking after the interests of those who already own Edison Phonographs. This indeed a great thoughtfulness deserving of much credit and the thanks and appreciation of all owners of Edison Phonographs.—H. C. W., Peekskill, N. Y.

The above letter is only a sample of many others of similar nature which are being received. The reference to the fact that the new Amberol Record can be played on any existing Edison Phonograph will explain why we were so long in putting on the market a Record which would play over two minutes. We could easily have made a six-inch Record, or one of greater diameter, years ago; but it would have required another and more expensive machine, and no owner of the present type of Edison Phonograph could have enjoyed the longer Records without considerable additional outlay. Mr. Edison has always insisted that this should not be done and he and his assistants have worked for a long time to perfect a Record that would be used on all existing Edison Phonographs. The Amberol Record is the happy solution of his difficult problem.

If you have any Defective or Cut-out Records (not surplus) to return, look for the Exchange Proposition papers being mailed with this issue.

Store Management

A monthly comment on things Edison Dealers may do which will make for increased sales.

It's easy enough to tell a man today, but more difficult to tell him how, and yet a greater task to tell him what. Let's begin with what and work backwards, mentioning the how's and the why's incidentally.

The post-Christmas clean-up should be the first matter to receive attention, if it has not already been attended to. The store should be put in order; there should be a place for everything and everything should be in its place. But perhaps this is the month in which you take an annual or semi-annual inventory of stock, with the accompanying days of disorder.

If this is the case it is an excellent time for you to make any changes in the arrangement of your store that will make for convenience and artistic effect. Don't make any changes for art's sake at the expense of convenience, however.

Remember that simplicity in arrangement and decoration is the higher form of art, and that art without utility is unworthy of the term. In this connection it might be well to emphasize the importance of an attractive and fitting environment for the successful retailing of Edison goods.

The secret of perfect environment is in pleasing the human sensibilities. Since the Edison Phonograph reproduces music of every nature, it should make the greatest appeal to the possible purchaser when enveloped in an atmosphere congenial to the rendering of music and congenial to the listener.

And the recipe?

First, arrange for the comfort of the listener. There are few who can enjoy music standing up, leaning against a post or a counter. Supply comfortable chairs; let the fresh air in; see that the temperature is just right in your model concert hall.

Second, respect the finer sensibilities of your more musical patrons. Make it a rule never to have two instruments playing at the same time; have it as quiet as possible during the playing of a Record; don't talk, and instruct your clerks not to talk until the selection is played through. This observance will impress the listener and will do much toward making a customer. In fact, it is the strongest kind of salesmanship for Edison goods, for it gives the machine an opportunity to speak for itself.

Third, determine as soon as possible something concerning the musical taste of your customer and play only those Records that will please. Don't hold the notion that your personal ideas on music are standard and identical with anybody else's, for they're not. No two tastes are just alike. When you are uncertain as to a customer's musical likes and dislikes, it is always wise to play the better class of Records first, for you will soon learn whether you are entertaining a grand opera admirer or a vaudeville enthusiast.

If, as assumed, this is your inventory month, you have doubtlessly discovered—or have had the fact confirmed—that your investment in Edison goods is one of the most valuable investments you made during the year owing to the remarkable rapidity with which Edison goods "turn over."

On this account the carrying of a large Edison stock is shown to be economic. You can't sell what you haven't got, and people generally buy at the place where their selection may have the broadest scope. Don't ever lose a sale because you are "just out" of the thing desired. Stock up! Do it systematically.

Phonographs: Have every model of the Edison Phonograph in sight and in commission—ready for demonstration at a moment's notice; have extra machines of each model on hand for use in window display; have also in stock enough machines of each model—boxed and ready for delivery—to satisfy your sales as counted on from past experience. Don't ever find yourself filling an order by taking one of your demonstrating machines for the purpose.

Records: Most Dealers realize fully the vital importance of carrying a complete stock of all listed Edison Records, and the Dealer is scarce who has not learned how to arrange his stock so that he can put his hand on any Record in the list. The Dealer who does the best Record business is the one who upon receipt of the Advance List, goes over it carefully, placing his order for every number, but doubling or tripling his usual order for certain Records that he knows (from their descriptions) will appeal to his Record customers.

Anticipate a heavy monthly Record sale by placing good orders and then follow up your anticipation by advertising (newspaper, window, Phonogram). The anticipation of sales is one kind of anticipation that is not as good as realization. The right kind of advertising for January Records will assure realization—results, sales—if everything at the store is in good working order. The most important part of the advertising in connection with Record sales is, of course, the proper use of the new Phonogram (See article on The Phonogram, page 5).

The last word in regard to the management of your store in January, and at all times, for that matter, is a bit of personal advice: Know your business from the bottom up, so you can teach others the details. In the time saved for you by your employees don't fail into that habit of worrying; from all viewpoints worrying is fruitless. If there is any worrying to be done let your competitors do it.

Protecting Dealers

Just to show Dealers that we are in earnest about enforcing our new policy of protecting Dealers who are handling Edison goods in a proper manner, we reprint below a letter that was sent to all Jobbers under date of December 1st. Accompanying the letter was a supply of application blanks that Jobbers must use in getting our consent to establishing new Dealers.

TO ALL JOBBERS

We send herewith a supply of Dealers' Application Blanks for use in signing "New" Dealers.

Hereafter, in soliciting new Dealers, Jobbers will obtain the prospective Dealer's signature to this application and see that the information called for in this form is supplied in detail. One copy only need be signed. Signed applications should be forwarded immediately to this company, and addressed as follows: National Phonograph Company, Agreement Department, No. 10 Fifth Avenue, New York City, N. Y.

The prospective Dealer's signature should also be obtained to the regular form of Dealers' Agreement in duplicate, as heretofore, and held by the Jobber pending approval of the application.

Jobbers will be notified immediately of the acceptance or rejection of all applications. If accepted, the Jobber may fill the initial order, and when same is shipped complete, the Dealers' Agreement must be completed by the Jobber entering thereon the amount of machines and records comprising the initial order, and then forwarded same to this company as heretofore without delay. The duplicate copy of the Agreement should be forwarded by the Jobber to the Dealer.

When Jobbers receive orders from existing Dealers with whom they have not previously done business in Edison Phonographs, etc., they will obtain the Dealer's signature to the Agreement as heretofore and forward one copy to this company.

IMPORTANT:—New Dealers will not be accepted unless the application in each case is first approved by this Company, and no initial order may be shipped without such approval. Shipment of initial orders contrary to this requirement will be a violation of the Jobbers' Agreement.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY.
FRANK L. DYER, President.

To Mould All Records at Orange

For some time the National Phonograph Company has been planning to discontinue its European record making plants and to manufacture all of its Records at Orange, N. J. At present foreign Records are being made on both sides of the water, but as soon as the factory at Orange has received the master moulds of all selections made abroad, the foreign plants at London, Berlin and Paris will be discontinued. It will still be several months before this can be done. The change is now being made gradually, so as to cause no inconvenience to foreign trade. Economy in manufacturing and greater uniformity in quality are the principal reasons for making the change. Because of the greater volume of business in this country, it has been found that Records can be made at less cost here than in three separate plants abroad. The recording laboratories for originals and the formulation of the record lists, as well as the selling staffs in London, Paris and Berlin will be maintained as heretofore.

Exchange Proposition

For the purpose of relieving Jobbers and Dealers of their stock of defective and cut-out Records, an exchange proposition will be put into effect after January 1st. From January 4th Edison Standard Records (not Grand Opera, Amberol or Concert) may be returned for exchange. A special Bulletin and all the necessary papers are being mailed to all Jobbers and Dealers with this issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, but under separate cover. The Bulletin is also reprinted on page 14.

Selling the Goods

ADVERTISING:—One of the most important and often one of the most neglected branches of a dealer's business.

The Chrismas rush being history already, it is possible and highly important to give a little time to plans for increasing sales of both Edison Phonographs and Records. Being the first of the year, it is especially important to "ginger up" the selling game. We offer you a few suggestions to which you may apply the "ginger."

The Mailing List.

If for no other reason than the sending out of the New Phonograms each month, every Edison Dealer should have a mailing list. Every owner of an Edison Phonograph in your locality should receive a copy of the Phonogram every month. The most practical method for you to distribute them is by mail whether you have few or many customers. If you have only a few Record customers, their names and addresses can be kept very conveniently in a book.

If you have been an Edison Dealer for some time and have therefore a large list of Record customers it pays to keep a mailing list by the card file system. The card system is especially useful to the Dealer in the large town or city, where he does not know personally all his customers. If Dealers so located have no better plan for keeping in direct touch with customers and prospective customers the following directions on making up a mailing list should prove valuable:

Purchase two card index boxes for holding 3x5 inch cards. Also get about 500 of the blank cards that are sold with the boxes and two sets of A to Z index cards. This outfit can be secured at any stationer's or book store for a dollar or two.

Enter the names and addresses of Phonograph owners on the cards—one name to a card—and arrange them alphabetically in one of the boxes, using one set of the index cards to subdivide them. This makes one mailing list. And a very valuable one it is too, for you are to address the monthly supplements and all lists of new Records from the cards. You can also enter your Record sales on the cards, and it will then take only a few seconds to see who of your customers are buying regularly. When addressing or at any other time make it a rule never to remove the cards from the boxes except when making entries.

Enter the names of all Phonograph prospects on the cards the same as you do with the list of Phonograph owners, and put them in the other box. If you have never made up a list of "prospects" start to make such a list by taking down the name and address of everyone who calls if they display interest in a Phonograph. Ask machine owners for names of their friends, who think of buying, and enter the names acquired in this way on cards. You can also add to your list of "prospects" by carefully selecting names from the tax list, R. F. D. Route lists and the city or telephone directories. So much for the mailing list; now, for its uses.

The Phonogram.

The most important use to which the Dealer's mailing list can be put is in connection with the Phonogram. Every Dealer who is interested in his Record sales should order from his Jobber a sufficient quantity of Phonograms to cover his entire list of Phonograph owners, his list of prospective customers and enough for general distribution throughout the month in his store.

Considering the expense to the retailer the Phonogram is his best advertising medium and should be taken advantage of in every way possible. To send the Phonogram to the Phonograph owner every month is to assure the Dealer of many Record sales that would otherwise be lost. The Phonogram does more to maintain the interest of the Phonograph owner in his machine than any other one thing and is equally effective in stimulating the prospective customer's interest.

The most practical way to get the Phonogram into the hands of the owner or the "prospect" is by mail. This is a simple matter if there is a mailing list to address from. To get full value for postage the monthly Supplement should be mailed with the Phonogram, together with any other appropriate printed matter supplied by the Jobber. These mailings should be attended to the day preceding opening day for the new Records, which is the twenty-fifth of each month (or the twenty-fourth in those months when the twenty-fifth falls on Sunday or a holiday).

Post Cards.

Another practical use of a mailing list that will help both Phonograph and Record sales is in mailing out post cards or letters inviting Phonograph owners and prospective customers to Edison concerts, which can be gotten up through the month.

If post cards are used for the purpose the invitation may of course be either written or printed. If it should be desired to have them printed, see that the wording is such that you could use them from time to time throughout the year. For instance: "You are invited to attend an Edison Concert Thursday afternoon at 4:30. Bring your friends," etc. (with no mention of date). The scheme would be to mail these post cards—a few at a time—to prospective purchasers and to Phonograph owners who have not bought Records recently. They should be mailed a day or two before concert day. You can have these post cards printed very cheaply and the quantity should depend on the size of your mailing list. If you will agree to get out the post cards, we will send you an electrotype which your printer can use to illustrate the address side.

The Edison Concert.

The constantly increasing number of Edison concerts reported and their undeniable popularity in all sections of the country is certainly a criterion upon which to base our belief that this form of advertising—the hearing is believing kind—is responsible to some extent for the sales of Edison goods that are large enough to keep the Edison Works busy twenty-four hours a day.

So our cry is—give Edison Concerts!

If you are a Dealer in a small town in Utah, New Mexico, or Vermont, have it understood by all people in your respective communities that on certain days, at certain hours, you will give Edison concerts. Let the people know, in one way or another, but give concerts.

If you are a big Dealer in Chicago, New York, San Francisco, or New Orleans, give concerts. Some of you have finer facilities than others, but you all have the same machines, the same Records, and therefore the same chance to "make good" with your concerts; and whether you deem it wise to advertise them in the newspapers, send out special high-class announcements or merely use post cards, is immaterial, as long as you get the people to come. You know your own trade best and what will make the strongest appeal.

Besides giving regular monthly concerts, using the new monthly Records, make up special programs of different classes for different classes of audiences. Have an Edison vaudeville afternoon, an evening of Edison grand opera, an Edison band concert, and a musicale consisting of carefully selected songs and instrumental solos.

The concert feature of your business deserves the best attention you can give it.

Give Edison Concerts! It Pays!

Concerning New Records

The attention of Dealers is directed to Sales Department Bulletin No. 23, on page 14. It gives the day and hour of each month next year when new Records may be shipped by Jobbers and Dealers and when they may be placed on sale at retail. The shipping hour has been advanced from 2 P. M. to 8 A. M. on the same day. It is also made clear that when the selling date falls on Sunday or a holiday it is advanced one day, or the day before.

Licenses for Second-Hand Machines

On January 1st the National Phonograph Co. will put into operation a plan by which second hand or obsolete Edison Phonographs may be sold at a reduced price under a special license to be issued by this company. The subject is covered in Bulletin No. 4 on page 14 and Jobbers and Dealers who desire to avail themselves of the privilege of selling machines in this way should read it carefully.

Meeting the Salesmen

F. K. Dolbeer, General Manager of Sales, and E. H. Phillips, Credit Manager and Manager of Salesmen, went to Chicago on December 26th and met the Western salesmen on the 28th. A business meeting, lasting most of the day, was followed by a banquet and theatre party in the evening. A similar meeting of the Eastern salesmen will be held at Orange on January 4th.

Ready Made Ads

Edison Dealers should hold to the newspaper advertising policy. Besides your window display of Edison goods and your mail advertising there is no way to connect your store with our national advertising in the monthly magazines and weeklies except through your local newspaper columns.

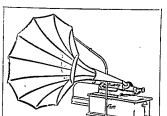
No New Year's resolution you can make (and carry out) will do more good to your business than setting aside a certain amount of your yearly profits as a newspaper advertising appropriation.

When you have decided upon the amount you can spare for this investment, go to the manager of the newspaper and see how much space it will buy for the year. Rather than take too small and obscure a space, arrange for fewer insertions, and in your schedule allow for certain seasons when more space is required than usual.

From month to month we will prepare and present to you in the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY timely ads set in good display, which we trust you will use in case you do not have the faculty to produce better ones. We will furnish electros free if they are ordered by number and if the proofs of the ads are sent us.

The ads shown herewith are set in newspaper single column width. Cut them out and have them set in the same display.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS



are the new Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records. Thus Amberol Records can be used on your present Edison Phonograph by the addition of a simple attachment or gear, and you can still play the Records you have.

Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.

Let us put an attachment on your Phonograph or sell you an Edison Phonograph that will play both Records.

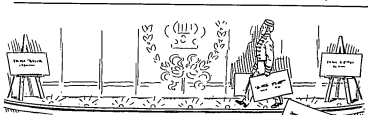
THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH



Nothing can equal the satisfaction there is in offering to your guests a satisfactory form of entertainment, one that takes care of itself, which does not interfere with other forms of amusement, but rather helps them. Such an entertainer is the Edison Phonograph.

IT CAN AMUSE THE GUESTS

by rendering music, popular or classic, or it can aid them by furnishing dance music, marches and other things played by the best orchestras and brass bands. It costs less than the hiring of even a small orchestra for a single evening's entertainment.

[Dealer's Name and Address.]

Varying the Program

Consider the vaudeville show. It succeeds because it offers a variety of entertainment. The bill is made up of many widely different acts. If it was all acrobatic stunts, those who prefer songs and dances would be disappointed. If a juggler was the whole thing, that part of the audience that goes wild over tamed animals would clamor for its money back.

The vaudeville show plays to crowded houses because each spectator finds on the bill the thing he most enjoys.

So with window cards. One may say the right thing to a certain number of people and miss it with certain others.

People are reached, not by repeating one argument over and over, but by presenting as many arguments as possible. A window card can only do a certain amount of good. Don't over-work it. Here are some new ones. Get them up at the smallest possible expense and relieve those you now have from further duty.

Was there money in your stocking?

What better buy than an Edison Phonograph?

We have arranged with Mr. S. Claus to keep all Edison Phonograph owners supplied with Records during 1909.

Start the new year right. Edison Records for January are ready.

An Edison Phonograph in your home will help you keep those New Year resolutions.

It's a long time between Christmases in homes that have no Edison Phonographs.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing to help the Sale of Edison Goods.

Questions and Answers

There are thirteen thousand of you Edison Dealers, each conducting your business in your own way, obeying the policies which seems to best fit your individual needs. You are located everywhere,—in the larger cities and in the smaller towns. Many of you sell Edison Phonographs and Records exclusively, a number of you carry two lines of phonographic goods, and some of you sell Edison goods merely as a side line. The conditions that have to be met by any two of you are probably not alike in every particular, but every Edison Dealer, no matter under what conditions he does business, has a common end with all other Edison Dealers and with us, viz.: to sell as many Edison Phonographs and Records as possible.

In view of this fact what could be more desirable or more to the mutual advantage of all concerned than to establish a medium for the exchange of business-getting news, business-getting plans, and business-getting ideas that have been executed with good results?

This new department, which we will name "The Other 13,000," is created for the purpose of such co-operation among the Dealers as described above. The department will be effective and beneficial to all according as the Dealer makes it so. We will do what we can, but after all, it's "up to the Dealer." It is to be his department.

The Dealer is to contribute by occasionally writing a letter to the National Phonograph Company (Advertising Department), giving information in regard to his own business experience, plans and ideas in connection with the sale of Edison goods. His ideas, and often his letters (mentioning his name or not, as he desires), will be published in the next issue of the PHONOGRAM MONTHLY, after their receipt, together with our comments. In case we do not feel qualified to make comments or to answer questions intelligently we will put matters of this nature before all the Dealers (using this department as the medium), some of whom, from their experience, will be enabled to judge and write us satisfactorily.

The view that must be taken by the Dealer must not be a selfish, take-all-give-nothing attitude. The Dealer must realize that any help he will offer to "the other 13,000" through the pages of this house organ, will be small compared to the help he will receive from such a large list of contributors. The spirit of enthusiastic, good-willed co-operation, will be the necessary adjunct if this department of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is to be entirely successful.

A Western Jobber has just written: "We have a suggestion to make, and think that it will prove beneficial to all concerned. Will you issue a circular to the general trade and make it plain, that when they order Edison machines to specify old or new style. In this way it will save considerable time in filling their orders. When we received an order for machines, they do not state whether new or old type, and we are up in the air as to what to send them." This is a most pertinent suggestion. In ordering machines, attachments and Records, Dealers should not fail to clearly indicate just what kinds of each are wanted. They should not only state whether they want old or new type Phonographs, but in ordering attachments it is necessary to say whether they are wanted for end gate or gateless machines.

Menardi Stationery Co., Reno, Nevada.—We have arranged to do some extra work in exploiting Edison goods in this territory in consideration of our being the only Edison Dealer here. It has been suggested that we write the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, after their receipt, together with our comments. In case we do not feel qualified to make comments or to answer questions intelligently we will put matters of this nature before all the Dealers (using this department as the medium), some of whom, from their experience, will be enabled to judge and write us satisfactorily.

Menardi Stationery Co., Reno, Nevada.—We have arranged to do some extra work in exploiting Edison goods in this territory in consideration of our being the only Edison Dealer here. It has been suggested that we write the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, making known our wants, as you would be able to supply us with interesting facts and suggestions. The trouble is that we do not know just what we want, but we surely would be glad to have your suggestions. It is our present idea that we can accomplish more with circulars and personal soliciting than by newspaper advertising. We are carrying full catalogue of machines, 50-cent Records and Amberol Records, with minimum of three of each number, and will always be glad to co-operate with any suggestion you are able to make with a view of increasing Edison business here.

[We could probably write you several pages of suggestions for advertising your business, but we really believe that your own idea on the subject is the most economical and most practical.

It is always well to do a reasonable amount of advertising in local papers, but after all, there is nothing that equals personal solicitation and, next to that, direct letters to interested individuals. This is especially true with our goods. The greatest retail successes have been made by Dealers who take machines right into homes and leave them there for a few days on trial. This has been especially successful in rural districts where Dealers have taken out several machines in a wagon and left them in as many different homes with a small number of Records. They called for them a week later and in a large percentage of cases were paid for the machines instead of taking them away.

Next to this kind of work in value is that of sending specially written or printed form letters to carefully prepared lists. If you cannot get machines into the homes of people, get people into your store to hear the machines there.

The plan of giving concerts at intervals, say, once in two weeks, and sending out invitations to interested people, has also proven successful with many Dealers.

In selling Records there is no better plan than to make up a list of people already owning Phonographs or other machines on which cylindrical Records can be played and keeping them advised each month about the new Records or inviting them to come in once a month and hear the new Records.

We call your special attention to our offer in this paper to supply electrotypes for newspaper advertising if you are in a position to spend some money for newspaper work.]

A. N. Larue, Richwood, O.—I suppose that if I have no questions to ask, you will permit me to tell you about a Phonograph recital we gave recently in the K. of H. Hall, Richwood. It may interest other Dealers and cause them to give similar recitals. We had the hall nicely decorated with ferns, and my daughter arranged the program and operated the Phonograph, a Combination Home. We sent out about 100 invitations and had an attendance of about eighty (though there was both a church and club reception the same evening). We received many compliments, and I trust to have aroused an interest in a better class of trade. I expect to follow this up with recitals at the different churches, until everybody in Richwood knows how an Edison "talks" and that I have them for sale.

[The program sent out by Mr. Larue comprised four neatly printed pages. It showed a well selected list of 20 Edison Records, nearly all of the better class of music.]

George E. Bass, New Philadelphia, Ohio.—I would like to see you publish an article on show card printing—kind of ink, pen, brush and paper. The thing I liked best in the November issue was "Courtesy Pays." The whole PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is good.

[We presume that by "Show Card Printing" you mean the hand-made kind, to which we have been referring in several past issues of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. Many Dealers get an idea that window cards must be made as perfect as if printed with type. This is a wrong impression. A most effective window card was made on a sheet of butcher's straw paper and by a man who had no training as a sign writer. A Dealer who has never made window signs should buy a marking brush and mix up some marking ink. All hardware or general stores carry marking brushes, and marking ink can be made of a mixture of lamp-black and linseed oil. Of course, white or colored card-board is the best for window cards, but cardboard is not always easily obtainable, and in such cases white or manilla wrapping paper may be used. Mount the paper on pieces of board of the size required. The board will give the sign stiffness both for painting and when placed in the window. A board prepared in this way may be used over and over. The paper should be turned over and fastened on the back to hide the edges of the board. Pick out any one of the window cards in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY that you would like to duplicate. Draw cross lines in pencil, to get a uniform depth to the letters and have the words the right distance apart. Then make as good a copy of the letters as you can. After one or two trials you will be surprised at your success. When you have become more proficient, colored inks and more fancy lettering may be attempted. Considering how easy it is to make window signs, it is surprising more of them are not made and used. Notice how successfully they are now used in many businesses.]

We will be glad to hear from Dealers who are using home-made signs successfully. They doubtless can give other Dealers useful information on the subject.

John K. Ball, Carmi, Ill.—Why do you not put Caruso, Melba and other well known singers and artists of that class on Amberol Records?

[It will be just a matter of time before we will have Amberol Records made by grand opera stars. Give us time—Amberol Records are very young—we have made less than one hundred of them, so far, and remember, it is only one person in two hundred that cares more for the opera than for the popular airs and folk songs.]

George A. Hart, Claremont, N. H.—I would like to see an article on "Instalment Sales." The things I liked best in the December issue were "Now Let's Get Together;" "Edison Dealers in Small Towns Having No Competition after December 1st;" and "Lack of Confusion in Your Store." I think the Edison policy O. K.

[See reply to Mr. Sheibley, Reedley, Cal., in this department.]

W. L. Sheibley, Reedley, Cal.—I would like to see an article on "Selling on Instalments." The things I liked best in the November issue were "Store Management" and "Talk on Advertising." I would like to see an Edison Jobber or Dealer who has thrown over the Edison line for some other cyllinder.

[We want to make "Selling on Instalments" the subject of a longer article next month than could be given in this department. If, when the article appears, it does not cover all the essential points, write us again.

We know that no Edison Jobber has given up Edison goods in favor of any other cylinder goods, and but few Dealers have done so. Still we have learned of instances where, because of circumstances, Dealers have had such a large stock of other cylinder goods on hand that they could not afford to sacrifice them and were reluctantly compelled to drop the Edison line. They would rather have kept both, but our new policy would not permit it.]

M. B. Messinger, Sherman, N. Y.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on how to draw the most trade. The things I liked best in the November issue were the article on window cards and the little local news items.

[It is practically impossible to publish in any one issue an article on "How to Draw Trade" that would thoroughly cover the subject. We devote a large part of each issue to some phase of the topic and do not hope to exhaust the subject for a long time to come. The reply being made to the Menardi Stationery Company, in this department contains some suggestions that you may find helpful. If they do not meet your requirements, tell us something about your territory and your selling facilities and we will endeavor to be more practical in replying. As we have said in our reply to the Menardi Stationery Company, personal work is the greatest factor in getting any kind of business. Advertising, though important, must always be secondary. Get people into your store by means of newspaper advertising, circularizing, free concerts or any other plan and then bring your abilities as a salesman into play.]

Alonzo Wilkes, Amsterdam, N. Y.—By your PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, which I read faithfully each month, you invite correspondence, so I am going to tell you of a little experience I had today. I took one of your big banners and varnished it to stand the elements and strung it in front of the store. This I did several days ago. Today I got a direct result. A man called in the store to look over Edison Phonographs and in our conversation he disclosed the fact that he was going to buy an Edison Home and, seeing my banner, came in.

Result No. 1. I got him in the store, but I found that my regular showing of goods and the usual methods of selling was not enough. This man had been shown before, but had been shown by what some Dealers seem to think is salesmanship, and that is price cutting.

He had been offered a Home for $35.00 and 36 Records thrown in. Now, the banner brought the man in my store, and by good salesmanship, which any Dealer can employ, backed up by your splendid protective policy, I sold the man an Edison Home and 20 Records for $42 cash.

Lessons for Dealers

Lesson V

What have we here!

An Edison Phon-o-graph Dealer?

Is he ac-cus-ing San-ta Claus of but-ting in on his game?

Oh no, he is on-ly ta-king the num-bers of the homes where San-ta Claus is leav-ing Phon-o-graphs.

What's his scheme?

It's a plot of the Deal-er's to sell more Re-cords than the o-ther fel-lows. He will take these addresses back to his store and each month he will send the Pho-no-gram and o-ther good stuff to these homes where S. Claus left the Phon-o-graphs. This will bring his Re-cord buy-ers in bunch-es.

But I thought San-ta Claus was a myth?

May-be he is, but this scheme is the real thing.

The trade is hereby advised that on January 1st, 1909, we shall discontinue the manufacture of the 45 German and the 4 French selections listed below, and after that date will fill orders for only such as we have in stock. They will be dropped entirely when a new edition of the Foreign Record Catalogue is printed. These selections are being cut out because they have been dropped in Germany and France, and we do not want to carry any Records here, after they have been discontinued in the countries in which they were originally made.

DEALER'S EXCHANGE PROPOSITION

Beginning January 4th, 1909, and until January 9th, 1909, inclusive, authorized EDISON Dealers may return direct to the National Phonograph Co., Exchange Dept., Orange, N. J., for exchange through a Jobber, cut-out and defective (not surplus) EDISON Standard (not Grand Opera, Amberol or Concert) Records, under the following conditions:

1st. All records must be returned to the National Phonograph Co., Exchange Dept., Orange, N. J.

2nd. Transportation charges MUST BE PREPAID through to Orange. If only prepaid to a certain point or forwarded with charges collect, the shipment will be refused. Dealers are urged to ascertain the through rate to Orange and prepay the same. This will avoid trouble. It is not necessary that shipments shall reach Orange by January 9th. If shipped on or before that date it will be sufficient.

3rd. Records must be carefully packed in cases, barrels or boxes and each package must be plainly marked on the outside, with the shipper's name and address, and the quantity of cut-out or defective Records contained therein. Where there is more than one package in a shipment, they must be numbered consecutively from number 1 up, and on each individual package must also be marked the total number of packages in the complete shipment. The enclosed Form 1482, properly filled in, must be pasted on the end of each package or side of each barrel.

4th. Inside of each case must be placed a packing slip (using Form 1483 enclosed), containing shipper's name and address, number of Records contained therein, and whether they are cut-out or defective.

5th. Immediately shipment is made, enclosed form letter (Form 1482) must be sent to us addressed to "National Phonograph Co., Exchange Dept., Orange, N. J.," advising the total number of each kind, (cut-out and defective) Records returned, stipulating the number of cases in the complete shipment. A prepaid Bill-of-Lading must also be enclosed with this letter.

You must also fill in on triplicate Exchange Certificate, furnished herewith, (Form 1480) the name and address of the Jobber through whom you want this exchange transaction handled.

6th. As soon as possible after your returned Records are received, they will be carefully counted and inspected and on the Exchange Certificate we will fill in the quantity of Records for which you are entitled to credit on the exchange basis, and return one of these certificates to you, send one to the Jobber whose name you have written thereon, and retain one for our own files. Credit will be allowed through one Jobber only, and cannot be transferred.

7th. Upon receipt of Exchange Certificate, properly filled in and endorsed by us, you must immediately forward it to the Jobber whose name you have indicated thereon, and with it enclose an order for at least an equal quantity of Records specified in the certificate.

8th. The Jobber in whose favor your Exchange certificate is made out, will allow you credit for the number of Records specified therein, when he makes shipment of your order.

9th. Only genuine EDISON Standard (not Grand Opera, Amberol or Concert) Records can be returned and they MUST be in EDISON cartons. Broken, cracked, worn out or other make Records will NOT be accepted under any conditions.

10th. SURPLUS, GRAND OPERA, AMBEROL or CONCERT Records are not included in this proposition.

11th. This proposition does not include Records taken in exchange from Consumers, Slot Machine Operators or Exhibitors, and any Records of this nature, or second-hand Records, returned to us, will be absolutely refused.

12th. No Records can be returned through JOBBERS; they must ALL be shipped to the National Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

13th. No deduction for Records returned can be made from any invoice or statement rendered prior to or during this exchange, nor until CREDIT has been allowed by the Jobber.

14th. All Records returned will be given a careful examination by our inspectors, and should any be discovered that are not subject to credit under conditions outlined, or should there be any shortage in count, OUR DECISION AS TO THE QUANTITY TO BE CREDITED MUST BE FINAL.

15th. Any Records shipped after January 9th, 1909, WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED, BUT RETURNED AT YOUR EXPENSE.

16th. In cases where a dealer has signed the AGREEMENT and purchased Records through us only, this Exchange Proposition will be handled by us direct along the same lines and under the same Terms, Conditions, Stipulations, etc, as where they are handled through Jobbers; but in this case, Records must be returned to us direct and on the Exchange Certificate our name must be filled in instead of the Jobber's. All other instructions remain the same.

17th. Should any dealer have so small a number of cut-out and defective Records that he would not care to incur the expense of returning them at this time, we would respectfully suggest that they be retained and returned at some time in the future when another cut out list will make an exchange appear necessary.

18th. Dealers are given the option of ordering through the Jobbers, any quantity of Amberol Records equal to, or in excess of Standard cut-out or defective Records returned, with the understanding that the number of such Records returned, are to be charged at the price of Amberol Records, while credit will be given for Standard Records returned, at the price of Standard Records.

19th. Positively no Amberol Records are to be included in Records returned under this Exchange proposition.

IMPORTANT. If all the terms, conditions and stipulations contained in this proposition are not fully agreed to and carried out by the Dealer, we reserve the right to reject any and all Records he may return. If, after acceptance of this exchange company, Dealers fail to purchase (as provided in paragraph five) the required quantity of Records in exchange for the number credited, this company will not be responsible for the return of Records against which no purchases were made, and Dealers will forfeit all claim thereto.

Legal and Agreement Departments Bulletin, No. 4, Dec. 20, 1908

Trade Information for Dealers

All amendments concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, LEGAL DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

The National Phonograph Company has put into effect a system of special licenses suspending the price restrictions heretofore imposed upon the sale of second hand or obsolete Edison Phonographs which have been out of the factory for not less than one year.

Application blanks, to be filled out with the data necessary to identify the Phonograph and its equipment, will be sent to Jobbers and Dealers on request, and when the blank is returned properly filled out, and the necessary conditions are found to be complied with, a special license will be issued which, however, will go into effect only when the label on which it is printed has been securely pasted to the cabinet of the Phonograph. These licenses will be numbered in rotation, and complete records thereof will be kept.

The provisions of the Jobbers' and Dealers' Agreements, with the exceptions of the restrictions of the selling price which will be suspended by the special license, will remain in force. The Company reserves the right to cancel any such special license at any time. The special license will terminate on the violation of any of its provisions or its erasure or removal from the cabinet of the Phonograph, and, upon its termination or cancellation, all the restrictions of the original agreements will again go into effect.

It is particularly to be noted that no license will be granted to display or advertise any Edison Phonographs at less than list price, and any such display or advertisement will be a violation of the special license.

This plan, we believe, will offer a reasonable solution of one of the difficulties at present existing in the trade, and, without affecting the sales of new machines, ought to enable Jobbers and Dealers to satisfactorily dispose of their second-hand stock. At any rate, we propose to give the scheme a fair trial, reserving to ourselves the right to terminate the special licenses at any time, in case circumstances arise which in our judgment call for such action.

A line that is not advertised may be as good as one that is—but who knows it?

Suspended List, Dec. 20, 1908

SUPERSEDING ALL PREVIOUS LISTS

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

Cash Discount

The letter printed below was issued for the purpose of calling the attention of the trade to that section of the Agreement covering terms of payments by Dealers to Jobbers. Copies were mailed to all Dealers.

TO THE TRADE.

Dec. 15, 1908.

Several complaints have recently been made regarding Dealers arbitrarily deducting items of cash discounts to which they were not entitled, and when the matter was called to the Dealers' attention they appeared to feel that they were being harshly dealt with.

It would seem advisable at this time to call the Jobbers' attention to Article No. 3, appearing in Jobbers' Agreement, relating to terms to Dealers, which should be rigidly enforced.

For the information of Dealers, we would respectfully draw their attention to the Article relating to terms which we quote:

Terms.

"Net, 30 days from date of invoice, or a cash discount of 2%% per cent. on settlements made as follows: On purchases made from the first day to and including the fifteenth day of the month if paid in full on or before the fourteenth day of the same month; and on purchases made after the fifteenth, to and including the last day of the month if paid in full on or before the fifth day of the following month. Delivery: F. O. B. Orange, N. J., on goods ordered from National Phonograph Co.; F. O. B. City in which Jobber is located on goods ordered from Jobber."

This paragraph we believe is sufficiently clear, and we consider any other terms quoted or allowed, a violation of our Agreements signed by Jobber and Dealer.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard (Two-Minute) and Edison Amberol (Four-Minute) Records for March, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before February 25th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be exhibited to Dealers at 8 A. M. on February 26th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on February 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after February 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before February 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on February 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for February Records on or before January 10th. Dealers should place March orders with Jobbers before January 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison (Two-Minute) Records for March

10077 Autumn Leaves — Edison Concert Band

A barn dance. A new and attractive number for the popular dance of the day. Has just the proper swing. Composer, Paul DeVille.

10078 Arab Love Song — Ada Jones

A unique song suggestive of Oriental music; being Ada Jones' interpretation of Marie Cahill's big hit in the musical play, "The Boys and Betty," a successful New York production. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Silvo Hein; words, George R. Hobart.

10079 Meet Me in Rosetime, Rosie — Harlan and Stanley

A harmonious, well-rendered march song—sentimental but "snappy"—by the popular song writers, Jerome & Schwartz. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Jean Schwartz; words, William Jerome.

10080 Now I Have to Call Him Father — Ada Jones

This comic song is Vesta Victoria's hit of the season and will equal in popularity her former successes—"Waiting at the Church" and "Poor John." There are three verses, the first one and chorus being:—

I used to be as happy as the children on the town,
That's when I was courting and my mind was well at ease;
I used to feel as loving with my Vicary by my side,
Looking forward in the day when I should be his bride.
But now he's [illegible] my mind, and I'm full of misery,
Someone else has done me out of William Vicary.

Chorus
He used to come and court his little Mary Ann,
I used to think the two my young mind,
His mother caught his eye and they got married on the sly
Now I have to call him father.

Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music by Charles Collins and Fred Godfrey.

10081 Ev'rything's Funny to Me — Sallie Stembler

This Record is by a new Edison performer, Miss Sallie Stembler, who has a high soprano voice finely adapted for recording. The title of this song should convey some idea of its nature. It is one of the most infectious laughing songs ever written, and Miss Stembler makes a big hit with it. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theo. H. Northrup; words, Chas. Noel Douglas.

10082 A Bowery Flirtatio. — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An original vaudeville sketch in "Bowery" dialect in which the following song with orchestra accompaniment is introduced:

I never knew what love was till I fell in love with you.
You was my best completely with those dreamy eyes of blue;
I've billed Maude and Mandie, and made eyes at Lill and Lou,
I never knew what love was till I fell in love with you.

10083 Just One Sweet Girl — Manuel Romain

A sentimental ballad with refrain in a sustained march tempo, which gives Mr. Romain an excellent opportunity to exhibit the charming qualities of his voice. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry Von Tilzer. Words, Jack Mahoney.

10084 The Whistlers — American Symphony Orchestra

The Whistlers Intermezzo is from the comic opera, "Frühlingsluft," by Ernst Reiterer, a successful European production which also had a long run at the German Theatre, New York. In the operetta this number is sung and the refrain is featured by a chorus of whistlers. This Record is from an instrumental arrangement, the refrain being repeated by a chorus of whistlers, then by the oboe, again by bells and finally by the entire orchestra. Composer, Ernst Reiterer.

10085 Uncle Josh on a Fifth Avenue Bus — Cal Stewart

In which dear old Uncle Josh tells in his inimitable way of his most amusing experience on a Fifth Avenue "bus," New York.

10086 Some Sweet Day, Bye and Bye — Anthony and Harrison

A well-known hymn sung in duet form with much effect. Written by two favorite writers of Gospel hymns. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, W. H. Doane. Words, Fanny J. Crosby.

10087 The Sweetest Gal in Town — Edward Meeker

A new coon song that will make a hit. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music by Cole and Johnson. The chorus:

Mr. 1 2, we ain't the sweetest gal in town,
Mr. 2 4, for her I'll turn my best feint down,
But to save us the green grass 'round a stump
I'll love she'a playin' me for a chump
But I don't care, for all that—she'a the sweetest gal in town.

10088 Reed Bird — Edison Concert Band

An intermezzo with the form and melody of the popular song of the same title, our Record 9559. This composition has the characteristic merit of the work by this well-known composer. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Dave Reed, Jr.

10089 I'll Be Home at Harvest Time — Frederic Rose

A rustic ballad of the same style and by the same writer as "When the Autumn Moon Is Creeping Through the Woodland" (our Record 9903). Mr. Rose's pleasing tenor is well displayed in this number. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Alfred Solman. Words, Arthur Lamb.

10090 Oh, You Kid! — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A comic, up-to-date song of the vaudeville variety, the amusing verses of which are full of "love jolly," which wind up with a humorous refrain in duet form, the words being:

Oh, you Kid! oh you Kid!
Come, now I say you'll let me cuddle closer,
Nod your head, but don't answer "No, Sir"
Oh, you Kid! oh, you Kid!

I mean every word I've ever told you;
Kiss me quick, or else I'll have to scold you,—
Oh, you Kid!

Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Melville J. Gideon; words, Edgar Selden.

10091 Castles in the Air — Thomas Chalmers

A baritone ballad with a waltz refrain sung delightfully by Mr. Chalmers. Music by Paul Lyneke, a popular European composer, who also wrote the well-known "Glow-worm" (our Amberol Record No. 61). Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Joseph Herbert.

10092 On the Levee — Albert Benzle

An excellent Record of a bells solo with orchestra accompaniment—written in a song and dance style—similar in some degree to "Love's Magic Spell" (our Record 10051). Music, L. P. Laurendeau.

10093 Ground Hog Day at Pumpkin Centre — Cal Stewart

An educational bit of country humor enhanced by Cal Stewart's unrivalled impersonation of country folk types—funny, of course.

10094 Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay! — Collins and Harlan

A comic song in waltz tempo, brimming over with enthusiastic good nature. This is one of the best Records we have by Collins and Harlan, which is saying a good deal. Music, John H. Flynn; words, Will D. Cobb.

10095 Flanagan's Real Estate Deal — Steve Porter

An original vaudeville specialty. Flanagan reads an ad in the paper—"Why pay rent." "Own your own home"—so he decides to become a suburbanite. The usual suburban difficulties are his as plenty, but at last he is made happy by prevailing on a plumber to take "the house" for what he owed him (the plumber had fixed a leak in the house). So Flanagan sings:

"Why pay rent, pay rent." I used to in the paper
"Own your own home." That's the proper caper
For my old home I wouldn't give a cent,
It's cheaper far to move than to have to pay rent.

10096 The Forest King — New York Military Band

A strong melodious march by Frederick Peters, composer of the successful musical comedy, "The Mayor of Tokio."

Edison Amberol Records
Four-Minute

81 Introduction and Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin — Edison Concert Band

Richard Wagner's most popular opera, "Lohengrin," has as its romantic climax the nuptials of Lohengrin and Elsa, which occur in the third act. Probably the Bridal Chorus, which is the musical feature of this marriage ceremony, is the most widely known bit of music in existence. It is used in connection with wedding ceremonies throughout the civilized world and is naturally unexcelled for romantic associations. This number begins with the Introduction to the Bridal Chorus, which is the opening of Act 3, this Introduction being one of Wagner's greatest efforts.

82 The Song That Reached My Heart — Harry Anthony

An old song that has stood the test of time. The subject is the well known and beloved song "Home, Sweet Home." It is sung as a tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment and the refrain—the old "Home, Sweet Home" refrain—is quietly sung by a trio,—soprano, contralto and tenor,—the sustained voices being unaccompanied and sounding especially clear and sweet. Words and music by Julian Jordan.

83 Uncle Josh's Huskin' Bee — Cal Stewart & Company

If you have never attended a real old-fashioned husking bee you have missed a great deal. For a whole-souled good time there is nothing that compares with this typical incident of farm life. So realistic is this Record that it is almost impossible for the listener to believe that he is not one of the merry-makers taking part in song, story and husking at this "bee." The party ends with a rollicking, old-fashioned dance led and "prompted" by Uncle Josh. This is one of Cal Stewart's best interpretations and is well diversified by musical interpolations.

84 A Vision of Salome — American Symphony Orchestra

To the music which accompanies the famous Salome Dance should be credited much of the artistic value of this beautiful descriptive fantasie. The synopsis:—Salome has been repulsed by John the Baptist after she has exhausted all her powers to enchant him. She appears before King Herod at his birthday feast. She dances at his request. Herod is pleased with her dancing and promises to grant whatever she may ask. Salome, still smarting under her repulse and urged by her mother, Herodias, asks for the head of John the Baptist. Herod, with great reluctance, grants her request. The feast is over; the head of John is brought in a charger to Salome, whose revenge is now complete—for John, who would not as much as turn his head to look at her, shall now behold her in all her beauty. In her mad frenzy, she caresses and kisses the head. She attempts to dance but is stricken with fear. She is terrified as she realizes the horror of what she has done. She is overwhelmed—abject—but a ray of hope flashes over her sinking soul; can she earn forgiveness by constant prayer and sacrifice? She swoons in a heap upon the floor. Composed by J. Bodewalt Lampe.

85 Just to Remind You — Manuel Romain

A sentimental song for tenor finely executed by Mr. Romain. There are two verses with refrains, the whole being written in a slow waltz tempo, which in itself is suggestive of the sentiments expressed. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Nathaniel D. Mann. Words, Alfred Anderson.

86 The Traveling Salesman — Empire Vaudeville Co

Over four minutes of vaudeville on this Record,—one of the best sketches ever recorded. The train pulls into the station at Grand Junction, the Traveling Salesman alights, and the fun begins between the drummer and the ticket agent (the latter is also the baggage master, tinn). The scene shifts from the station platform to the lunch-room and back again, and just before the train pulls out carrying away the genial salesman an original song is sung accompanied by the "station master" on his banjo. This is an original sketch and fairly overflows with fun and dry humor.

87 My Old Kentucky Home—Fantasia — Edison Concert Band

A fantasia or musical paraphrase on Stephen Foster's old American song, "My Old Kentucky Home." The familiar melody runs through the entire selection, being taken up first by one instrument, then another, the accompaniments being especially artistic in musical ornamentation and elaboration. The arrangement is by Otto Langey, a well known composer and arranger, who also wrote the Grand Fantasia on "Dixie" (our Record 8333).

88 Gee! Aint I Glad I'm Single? — Edward M. Favor

A comical topical song which is being featured by Joe Weber's Travesty Co. in "The Merry Widow and The Devil." It is a series of satires on the hits of the New York season. Five verses, a dozen laughs, sung in Mr. Favor's characteristic style. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Melville J. Gideon; words, Edgar Selden.

89 I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls — Edith Chapman

One of the gems of the well known English opera "The Bohemian Girl," by M. W. Balfe. It is sung by Arline in the first scene of the 2nd act. This scene occurs after a supposed lapse of twelve years from the time Arline was stolen by the gypsies. Awakening from her sleep she sings the song of her dream to her lover, Thaddeus. Miss Chapman's interpretation is very commendable. Music, M. W. Balfe; words, Alfred Bowen.

90 Scarf Dance — American Symphony Orchestra

The Scarf Dance (Pas des Echarpes) is given in its entirety in this Record. This beautiful and famous composition is by Mme. Cecile Chaminade, the distinguished French composer and pianiste who made a concert tour of the United States early this season. Of her many works the Ballet Symphonie "Callirohe" has attained the most popularity and the celebrated Scarf Dance, known as Air de Ballet No. 3, is the favorite number of this ballet suite. Composer, Mme. Cecile Chaminade.

91 In Heavenly Love Abiding — Edison Mixed Quartette

A mixed quartette with organ accompaniment. Many well known choirs throughout the country are making use of this anthem. It opens with a solo for soprano, followed by a duet for soprano and tenor and an effective finale for the four voices. Composer, Albert J. Holden.

92 On Parade Medley (Original) — National Guard Fife and Drum Corps

There is nothing that quite compares with a fife and drum corps for the stirring rendition of certain forms of music, particularly certain of the patriotic airs. The National Guard Fife and Drum Corps gives in this Record a fine exhibition of the possibilities at its command—the medley (an original one) introducing the following numbers: "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "Sweetheart Town," "Garry Owen," "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," "Benzler's Favorite" (reel), "Just One Sweet Girl," "The Girl I Left Behind Me." Between each selection bugles playing military calls and airs are heard.

93 Angel's Dream Waltz — New York Military Band

A waltz that will live; a waltz that is already finding much popularity at society functions. Its construction is based on several well known classic melodies—"Angel's Serenade," by Braga; Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," Nocturne, by Chopin, and an old German love song. These are arranged in perfect waltz time, thus making the number most effective for dancing.

94 Diabolo Two-Step and Medley — New York Military Band

An original band composition, the strong rhythm of which defies any pair of human feet to keep still; a two-step that is a two-step; and a four-minute one at that, introducing a medley which includes the splendid two-step refrains in the following popular airs: "Diabolo Two-step" (by Charles J. Roberts), "Down in Georgia on Camp Meeting Day," "Tipperary," "My Dream of the U. S. A.," and "You Can Look and You Can Listen, But M-o-m Is the Word."

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of the March Phonogram.

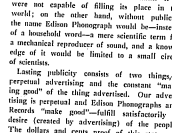
Turkey in the Window!

We have received from the Eiler's Music House, of Boise, Idaho, a photograph of a novel window display of Edison goods made during Thanksgiving week. The floor, back and sides of the window were covered with cotton to represent snow. Six Edison Phonographs were placed on the floor, apparently resting on the snow. In the foreground stood an immense turkey, a placard in front making him say: "Who said Thanksgiving?" The display attracted much attention. The photograph did not do it justice or we would have reproduced it here. In sending the photograph the company wrote:

"So far fall trade has been especially good with us, in fact, a great deal better than a year ago. Our recent fire has set us back to a certain extent, but even when all the rest of the store was torn up by insurance men and carpenters, the Phonograph department kept going just the same, filling orders for the out-of-town Dealers.

An Edison Jobber in the West recently wrote: "You will remember that in October you shipped us close to 1,200 machines. It is surprising to see how fast these machines are going, for business is very good in the machine line. We have only about 550 machines left of the 1,400 sent us of the combination types."

Our National Advertising



It is the desire of the National Phonograph Company that all Edison Dealers shall know what is being done to advertise nationally the goods they are selling.

Nothing but the great power of publicity could ever have made the Edison Phonograph an instrument that by its very music has r vitalizing effect on the race. The name—Edison Phonograph—is now a household word for happy hours in the home.

Of course, the Phonograph could never have gained the standing it now maintains if it were not capable of filling its place in the world; on the other hand, without publicity the name Edison Phonograph would be—instead of a household word—a mere scientific term for a mechanical reproducer of sound, and a knowledge of it would be limited to a small circle of scientists.

Lasting publicity consists of two things,—perpetual advertising and the constant "making good" of the thing advertised. Our advertising is perpetual and Edison Phonographs and Records "make good"—fulfill satisfactorily a desire (created by advertising) of the people. The dollars and cents proof of this statement is shown by the fact that our advertising appropriation and our output of Phonographs and Records each show a marked yearly increase.

Our current advertising is of course extremely heavy, owing to the necessity of making the name "Amberol," and all that name stands for, also a household word wherever Edison Phonographs are known. During the month of December we used the ad shown herewith, "Why the Mail Was Late," in eleven of the largest circulated weekly publications. This same advertisement will appear in sixteen of the January monthlies, the space taken being one full magazine page. The only back cover we are using in January is in Munsey's Magazine. Besides the space taken in the monthlies and the popular weekly publications, our ad will also appear in twelve or fifteen of the large news weeklies of the country and in thirty-nine farm papers.

"It'll be much too late"

Mr. Edison made all sound-reproducing instruments possible but he perfected the Edison Phonograph.

AMBEROL RECORDS for

are Mr. Edison's newest and greatest invention. They are no larger than the regular Records, but hold twice as much music and play twice as long.

Trade Notes

P. A. Powers, of Rochester and Buffalo, has purchased the stock of the Douglas Phonograph Co., 89 Chambers street, New York, and will continue the business as a retail Dealer at the same location. The style of the company will be the Excelsior Phonograph Company. John Kaiser will be the General Manager.

Peter Bacigalupi & Sons, Edison Jobbers at San Francisco, Cal., have secured permanent quarters in Market street, near Sixth, and will be able to occupy the new store soon, when the Golden Gate branch will be abandoned. The new store is very commodious and the extensive basement will be utilized as a warerooom for the wholesale department.

The Wurlitzer Company, of Cincinnati, is opening their new store in New York, at 25 and 27 West 32d street, state they will not put in a talking machine stock at the start off, and will carry samples only. They propose to exploit an initial line of the automatic instruments, and later other goods.

Greater Interest Than Ever

We are writing you this letter thinking possibly you would like to know the condition of the Phonograph business in Omaha. Never in our experience has the interest been as great as it is today, and we have more people with means looking up Phonographs than we have ever had since in the Phonograph business, and our retail trade is most excellent.—Nebraska Cycle Co., Omaha, Neb.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

Vol. VII. FEBRUARY, 1909 No. 2

Co-operation is the one big word we wish to instil into the mind of every Dealer in Edison Phonographs and Records. To us it is a big word with a bigger meaning, for, in a great measure, we owe our own wonderful growth to the strong co-operation of the various departments which make up our organization.

The outer evidence of our belief in co-operation are shown to the trade by our advertising, by our Dealers' protective policy, and by the printed matter we furnish for Dealers' use. Perhaps the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is the best evidence of our aim to co-operate with the Dealer.

The Dealers who co-operate with us are those who take advantage of our co-operation—those who connect their stores to our national advertising by doing local advertising, who make the best possible use of the printed matter we supply, and who do everything in their power to further the sale of Edison goods.

There are many such Dealers and the number is constantly increasing because we make it worth while for a Dealer to get the best possible results from his community by means of our protective policy.

The kind of co-operation of which we have spoken is the absolutely necessary kind, the kind that neither Dealer nor manufacturer can get along without and be successful. But it is a different variety of co-operation we are interested in just now—co-operation between Dealers.

You may never have given any thought to helping the other fellow; we don't mean the other fellow 'cross the street, we mean "the other fellow in the other town,"—"the 13,000 other fellows" scattered over the continent. Have you ever said anything like this to yourself: "I would just like to know how So-and-So Company manage to do such a prosperous Edison business on the instalment plan?" If you've ever said anything like that probably So-and-So Company were wondering at the same time how you manage to do such a big Record business. If you should both ask and answer such questions through the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY you would both gain.

Let us draw a little picture that will represent the facts. All Dealers in Edison Phonographs and Records are trying to pick the same kind of apples, which we will call Phonograph and Record sales apples. The question is,—won't more apples be picked if the Dealers help each other instead of working independently? We think so. Of course, some Dealers sit under the tree and wait for the apples to drop, but these fellows are being crowded out by the boys who take advantage of every windfall. The "wind" that shakes the tree—by the way—is our advertising. But the wind never blows all the Edison apples down. There are always plenty to be had for the picking after the strongest blow.

Yes, there are almost as many ways to gather apples as there are to skin a cat,—some good ways, some bad ways. A bad way, for instance, is to throw stones until you hit the apple you want; this is good fun but the energy required is all out of proportion to the results obtained, for when you finally get the apple aimed at you find it is bruised. Certain of the sky-rocket advertising schemes some of our Dealers indulge in remind us of the boys who gather apples by the stone throwing process.

The boys who get the most apples are the ones who help each other. They climb upon each others' backs, get every apple on the tree, and then divide.

In business people don't divide, but they can help each other, and when they do, they realize that "the greatest good to the greatest number" is also the greatest good to the individual. Concerted action in connection with any definite purpose has always proven more successful than independent action.

We desire to see Edison Dealers work with us and work together in one common purpose—the selling of Edison goods. The PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is naturally a medium for co-operation between Dealers and us. We wish to increase its usefulness by allowing it to be a medium of co-operation between Dealers. If two heads are better than one, aren't the chances good that 13,000 heads are considerably better?

We were recently informed by one of our Jobbers that a representative of a competing company had stated it as a fact that the "Edison Company regards the Amberol Record as a failure and would give $100,000 if it could take it off the market." As a rule it is no more worth while to pay attention to remarks like these than it is to notice the barks of a dog on the other side of the fence, but it does seem worth while in this case. The man in question represents a company of standing and is probably making the same statement to others, so that the sooner it is refuted the quicker it will stop it. The remark also furnishes another opportunity to say something about the success of the Amberol Record, and we are so enthusiastic about it that we welcome every chance to write and talk about it.

The slander—for it is nothing else—shows that our competitors regard the Amberol Record as a serious factor in the business or it would not find it necessary to resort to such statements. So far from being a failure, the Amberol Record is a greater success than the most sanguine Edison adherent had anticipated. The sale of Amberol Records and attachments has thus far exceeded every expectation. The trade is not only practically unanimous in its approval of the new Record, but it is manifesting a belief in its future and it is backing up that belief by its orders. The advance orders for the monthly list of Amberol Records is already a close second to the Standard Records, although there are still many more Phonographs that will play only the latter Record than there are that will play both. This shows that the public are also enthusiastic and that those having Phonographs equipped to play Amberol Records are buying a greater percentage of them than are those who use Standard Records only. Amberol Records are not only an immediate success, but the principle back of them—a greater number of threads to the inch—opens up a future the limit of which no one can foresee. When Edison Jobbers and Dealers hear men talk about our lack of faith in Amberol Records we ask them to put it down as being absolutely without foundation and as being actuated by nothing but jealousy of our success.

The Record exchange proposition that went into effect on January 4th served, among other things, to again emphasize the fact that many Dealers and often Jobbers were neglecting an important feature of the business, namely, keeping posted on what is being done for their benefit. The exchange proposition provided for the return of cut out selections. The only cut out list issued in 1908 was mailed to every Jobber and Dealer in August and was also reprinted in full in the September issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. In either form it should have attracted the attention of everyone in the trade. Its importance should have been recognized by all. Not only should this list have been preserved, but every Jobber and Dealer should have tagged his stock in a manner to show just what selections were to be dropped, so as to dispose of his stock of them.

Records represent real money to everybody, and it is better to sell than keep them. Even though cut out Records can be returned to the factory for exchange, it costs more real money to pack them and pay freight charges to Orange. Every consideration of self interest should prompt the trade to know all about cut out selections. Yet within a week after the exchange papers were mailed to the trade on January 1st we received a large number of requests for copies of the cut out lists and Jobbers reported that they too were besieged with similar requests. It was evident that hundreds of Dealers had paid no attention to an important trade matter—one that affected their own pockets. As a result many Dealers probably lost the opportunity to return cut out Records because they did not know what to return and by the time they received copies of the list, the limit given for the exchange had expired. No Dealer would have had to ask a question about cut-outs had he kept a file of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. With such a file he could in ten minutes have obtained from its pages all he wanted to know.

In constantly appealing to the trade to read and keep the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, we do so not alone for our own interests (which, of course, is the reason for its publication), but also because we believe it to be of real value to the trade. If it does not benefit Dealers first it cannot benefit us at all. Again we say to the trade:

If you would serve your own interests read every page of every issue of the Phonograph Monthly. If you will not read it, keep a file of it as each issue appears so that when you want information on trade matters you will know where to find it.

How many times have men and women been heard to exclaim, "Why, that's the best Phonograph I ever heard!" upon hearing an up-to-date Edison Phonograph for the first time? Or, "I didn't know that Phonographs are now made so clear and natural in tone or so pleasing to hear. They are very much better than those I heard years ago," is in effect the remarks of others. Dealers should make this the keynote of their efforts to sell Phonographs. Induce the people in your territory to hear the Phonograph. Get them into your store, either by special invitation or by getting them to attend concerts at regular intervals. Or, better still, put Phonographs in their homes on trial. Get their consent to do this, show them how easy it is to operate, and leave the machine and a few carefully selected Records for a few days. In a majority of cases they will not permit the machine to be taken out. To have a Phonograph in his own home, to realize how easy it is to operate it, and to know how much amusement can be had by its use, combines to make an appeal that it is hard for the average man to resist. Even if he holds back, his wife and children will want the machine and it will be an unkind father, or one too poor, that will not keep the machine for their sakes. One of the strongest reasons for the success of the mail order firms is that they put the Phonograph in on trial, knowing in advance that the percentage that will come back is small. If Dealers will do more work of this kind they will find their sales greatly increased.

S. L. Canary, Edison Dealer at Lebanon, Ky., has the right idea along these lines, as is shown by the following letter that he sends to prospective purchasers:

> I am even pleasure in presenting my 1909 Edison Phonograph THREE DAYS' FREE OFFER.
> You already know of the fact that the Improved Edison Phonograph is superior to all others, and Mr. Edison's own name on all his Machine and Records is the mark of Quality and a guarantee of Perfection.
> May I not place one of these Elegant Phonographs with you for a Three Days' Free Trial, as you can take plenty of time in the privacy of your own home hearing the Records and making your own selections. This privilege is yours for the asking.
> Remember, if you are not perfectly satisfied in every particular after Three Days' Free Trial, I will remove the outfit without trouble or expense to you in any way, just as cheerfully as same was brought into your house. Nothing could be fairer.
> I want you to try the improved Edison Phonograph, and our liberal terms of my Free Offer.
> You understand, this obligates you in no way. You have nothing to lose and a great deal is to be gained.
> Mr. Edison's latest invention is a Wonderful New Record, called the Amberol, that plays 4½ minutes—over twice as long as other records.
> I desire to serve you to the best advantage, so don't let this Great Free Offer pass. Let me hear from you at once.

This is an example worth emulating.

Does every Edison Dealer realize the value of the protection we give him against strained competition? If he does, let him look over his particular field and decide whether he is covering it so satisfactorily as to warrant our protection. If he is not, let him remember that as soon as an application comes in from his locality we will establish a new Dealer. This is not a warning; it is just a reminder.

No Protection to Dealers Without Sales

An impression seems to prevail among some Dealers that no matter whether they do a good business in Edison goods, a little business, or none at all, they are going to continue in undisputed possession of the territory they occupy. Such an impression is altogether wrong. If a Dealer expects us to protect him in his town and if he hopes to keep out competition, he must keep a fair stock of Edison goods and make a reasonable effort to sell them. His right to possession will be judged by his purchases of our goods and nothing else. It ought not to be necessary to put the matter in this way. Every individual or firm who has invested capital to put in an initial stock of Edison Phonographs and Records ought to be pushing the line for the profits in it, and without any urging on our part. The profits on Edison goods are greater than on 80 per cent. of the goods in any other line and ought in themselves to bring into play the best salesmanship of which the Dealer is capable. In any event, there will be no protection unless there is selling co-operation. So if you don't sell, don't look for protection.

Is your stock of Phonographs and Records in good shape, both as to quantity and variety? If not, bring it up to date.

Selling on Instalments

"I cannot afford to sell goods on instalments," or "Instalment sales take so much capital that I cannot do business that way," are remarks that Dealers are often heard to make. And with such remarks they dismiss the subject as if there was nothing more to be said about it. They realize that much additional business might be had if they could sell on instalments, but it never occurs to them to investigate further. It has never been the policy of the National Phonograph Co. to strenuously urge Dealers to sell goods in this way, and it is not our intention to do so in this article. What is said here is more for information than otherwise.

When instalment sales are made in accordance with a few simple rules it is a better way of selling Edison Phonographs and Records than for spot cash, and it is a better way of doing business in small places than in large cities. Both of these statements may sound ridiculous to Dealers in small places, but they are reasonable and practicable.

It is a better plan, because the more times a Phonograph customer can be induced to enter a Dealer's store, the more Records he can be induced to buy, and if he has bought his Phonograph on instalments he will be required by the terms of his lease to pay a visit once a week until the payments are completed. It is easier and safer to do an instalment business in small places than in large cities, because in the former everyone is known to the Dealer, or his standing can be easily ascertained, something quite difficult in cities.

There is nothing unbusinesslike and little uncertainty about instalment sales. Properly conducted the losses from them are smaller than from the ordinary credit sales. Those who make a success of the business do not sell on instalments to Tom, Dick and Harry, as many suppose who have not looked into the plan. They make a careful investigation into the standing of the prospective purchaser, and unless his record is good he does not get a machine. If he is regularly employed, is well spoken of by his employers and neighbors and has good habits, he is a good risk, for not one out of every hundred such men will fail to meet his obligations. Think how much easier it is in small places to get all the essential facts about instalment purchasers. Remember, too, that the Dealer retains ownership of the machine sold on instalments until all the payments have been made.

Let us suppose that a Dealer in a small town wants to try out the plan of selling on instalments and in a limited way. He needs first a blank form of lease. This should be one drawn in conformity with the laws of his State. If such a form cannot be had in his own town, his Jobber will get supply for him. He next wants a simple system for keeping track of the weekly payments. Since he is only going to try out the plan in a small way, he needs only the simplest system. A leaf in a blank book, with a column marked for each payment and having the date at the top is all that is necessary. He has found a customer whom he is satisfied is all right, and he is ready for the tryout. The customer intends buying a Standard machine at $30.00. This costs the Dealer $18.00. It is customary to require the purchaser to make a first payment of at least $3.00, so that when the deal has been made the Dealer has $15.00 capital invested. It is also customary to expect a purchaser to buy a half dozen Records or more and pay cash for them. If the weekly payments are one dollar the Dealer will get his capital back in fifteen weeks, and the payments thereafter are profit. For twenty-seven weeks the purchaser calls at least once a week, and it is not difficult to sell him one or more Records each time he comes in. It is a safe guess that in twenty-seven weeks he will buy at least four dozen Records, representing a profit of $7.20 to the Dealer. In this way the total purchases will reach $46.80—more than they would on a cash sale—netting the Dealer a profit of $19.20.

But no enterprising Dealer would stop with one such sale. The following table has been prepared to show that a sale of this kind can be made once every two weeks on a total investment of $64.00, and it will not reach even that sum until seven sales had been made. For convenience this table has been based upon the sale of Standard Phonographs only, and it is being supposed that the first sale was made on Feb. 6.

Oct. 2.	Two weeks' payments on 15 machs. out	30.00
	Cost of 18th machine, less first payment	$45.00 15.00
	Profit	$30.00

This table shows that when fifteen machines have been sold the Dealer has had his entire capital returned to him, and thereafter has a constantly increasing income as long as he continues the plan. Then think of the Record business to be had from the weekly calls of fifteen instalment customers. With double the capital one Standard machine could be sold every week. The Dealer of limited capital and skepticol about instalment sales should limit his instalment sales to one in two weeks, until he is convinced and has the capital necessary to swing a larger number. Even if a Dealer has no capital of his own, but has a good reputation, he will have no difficulty in getting his bank to advance the money and take the leases as security.

The foregoing has been presented for the benefit of the Dealer who has not believed in instalment sales. To him, therefore, such sales will be in addition to his usual cash business and consequently just so much additional profit.

Meeting of Eastern Salesmen

The semi-annual general meeting of the Eastern salesmen of the National Phonograph Company was held at Orange on January 5th. The salesmen present were: B. R. Barklow, H. D. Clark, F. W. Ewan, G. A. Hedden, F. H. Hird, F. L. Hough, Jr., J. W. Scott, J. F. Stanton, R. H. Veale, and C. D. Warren. The meeting was in charge of General Manager of Sales F. K. Dolbeer and Manager of Salesmen E. H. Phillips. The entire day was devoted to hearing detailed reports from the salesmen concerning conditions in their respective territories, listening to talks by President F. L. Dyer, General Manager C. H. Wilson, Mr. Dolbeer, Mr. Phillips and others. It was announced that John H. Gill had won the $100 prize for having established the greatest number of new Dealers in 1908; that J. W. Scott had won the second prize of $50, and E. A. Neff the third prize of $40. It was stated that the prizes for 1909 will be awarded according to a new plan by which a certain number of points will be allowed for various kinds of work accomplished and not for new Dealers only. It was the universal opinion that the Edison business was in splendid shape and needed only a return of normal business conditions to be greater than ever before. It was reported that the new Amberol Record had been enthusiastically received everywhere; that it was regarded as having injected new life into the business.

If you expect to keep other Dealers out of your town, do a business that will make competition unnecessary.

Imprinted Cap Labels

With the manufacture of Edison Records for January, the National Phonograph Company began the work of printing the number, title, and name of artist on the top label of each Record box. This is something that has long been wanted by the trade. Action on our part has been delayed because of the cost and because other things involving large expenditures seemed to be more urgent. Among the latter, for instance, have been the construction of a score or more concrete buildings and the purchase of a large amount of new machinery. The largest of these items are now out of the way and new cap labels will get the attention they deserve. The January Records bore imprinted labels and the supplement each month will be similarly treated. As fast as catalogue selections are made up for stock they will be labeled in the new way. It is hoped in another six months to thus change over all catalogue titles and have all Records go out in a uniform manner.

Printed Matter

With the February Bulletins, Supplements, Phonogram, etc, just mailed to the entire trade, was included a copy of the new Domestic Record Catalogue, Form 1460. It contains all selections listed up to and including December, 1908, and is bound in a new and attractive cover. Quantities are in the hands of Jobbers, or will be by the time your order for a supply reaches the one through whom you buy.

The Dealers' Discount Sheet, Form 1503, enclosed with this copy of the MONTHLY, is revised to January 1st. Keep it on file; it's sent you for that purpose.

Many Dealers are asking for a copy of the new Alphabetical and Numerical Catalogue. The requests were particularly numerous during the exchange proposition period. It was quite impossible for us to secure the new edition in time for enclosure with the exchange papers—nor are we in a position to say at this writing when it will be ready, despite the fact that the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

A new souvenir post card, bearing Form No. 1350, is now being distributed in quantities to Jobbers. A sample is enclosed in this issue. Get a supply with your first shipment of other goods. The post card furnished the trade some months ago was a decided success. This edition is printed in a better manner, and is more artistic in every respect.

How about those Grand Opera Records which may be in your stock? Have you a supply of complete catalogues, Form 1360, to help you dispose of them? If not, your Jobber has, and will be glad to see that you get same.

New price cards, Form 1457, for the combination type machines, were recently distributed to Jobbers who asked for them. You can use a few to good advantage for display purposes. Make this another item on your next printed matter order. If your Jobber didn't get a supply, your order will stir him up.

Selling Attachments on Instalments

In another article we have referred to some extent on the instalment plan of selling Edison Phonographs. While we avoid urging Dealers to sell Phonographs on instalments, there can be no question as to the advisability of selling attachments in this way, because in this way it will be possible to sell many more of them. To sell the attachments which equip a Phonograph for playing Amberol Records means increased sales on Amberol Records. All Records sell for cash, of course. Doubtlessly there are many Phonograph owners in your town who have not yet purchased the attachments. A circular or letter addressed to such people, stating the cost of the attachments, describing the features of Amberol Records and making an attractive time payment offer for supplying the attachments—aside from netting a profit on the attachments sold—would open up some good Amberol Record business. Any effort the Dealers make to see that every Phonograph owner is possessed of the attachments for playing Amberol Records should be well rewarded by increased Record sales.

Notice to Dealers

The attention of all Dealers is directed to the Sales Dept. Supplemental Bulletin printed on page 15. It covers in greater detail the furnishing of combination attachments for use on machines equipped with repeating attachments, a matter which apparently has not been thoroughly understood up to this time. A careful reading of the bulletin and compliance with the instructions contained in it, will facilitate the equipment of machines with repeating attachments, and prevent the complaints received in the past from trade and public alike.

Maurice Levi

The April list of Edison Standard Records introduces a notable musical organization to the Phonograph public in Maurice Levi and his band. Their first Record is No. 10097, "Happy Days." All who hear it will recognize it as the work of a band of superior merit. The Records of the band will form part of each month's lists and we predict great popularity for them.

Mr. Levi first attained prominence as musical conductor of the Rogers Bros. series of musical comedies. With them he wrote his famous Reuben songs, two of the most popular of which were "When Reuben Comes to Town" and "Wedding of the Reuben and the Maid." Last summer Mr. Levi and his band were the principal attraction at Manhattan Beach, the scene of the great P. S. Gilmore's former triumphs. Mr. Levi is now in Europe gathering material for his forthcoming comic opera, which he is to bring out next season.

In directing his band, Mr. Levi divides the honors with them. He furnishes more than his share of the entertainment by his highly interesting methods of conveying to the band and the audience his interpretation of the selection being performed. He is the best of the new school of musical conductors now so popular with the amusement going public.

Free Phonograph Concerts

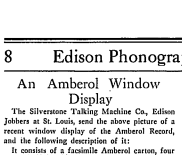
"The concerts are appreciated, and many would be willing to pay an admission fee to hear them a second time. I think the scheme is a good one and I expect good returns from them, as many who had never heard an Edison before are taking much interest and contemplate becoming owners of an Edison machine."

This is the way B. Thierien, Jr., an Edison Dealer at Laurentides, Can., writes when sending us a copy of one of the invitations he sends out in connection with his free Phonograph concerts. He has printed 20,000 of the invitations in French and 10,000 in English. Mr. Thierien has the right idea about letting the public know about Edison goods, and every Edison Dealer might follow his example with profit.

Corrections

A slight error crept into the printing of the February Record Supplement, Form 1471. In the Amberol section, "The Death of General Custer" is given number 79, when 80 is the proper number, as is quite apparent from the fact that 79 is also given as the number of the preceding selection. Dealers are asked to explain the mistake to those of their customers who may notice it.

In Sales Department Bulletin No. 23, which appeared in the January EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, an error was made in numbering the German Record, "Ein Mädchen oder Weibchen." The number should have read 12395, instead of 12396.



Phonograph Longevity

In your January issue of EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY I saw an item from H. C. W., Peekskill, N. Y., about his machine that he has run for 12 years. I think I can beat that. I have got an old Concert Edison machine—one of the first one out. I have known of it for 16 or 17 years. It has been all over Kansas giving concerts, but the Records, most of them, wore out, and the parties that owned it thought it was played out. I traded for it, sent it to the Schmelzer Arms Co., had it altered so as to play Gold Moulded Records. When the new four-minute Records came out I got an attachment for it and we keep it running a large share of the day time. It apparently is as good as new and will last a lifetime for all anything I can see. Edison machines never wear out, I guess. —S. R. Buell, Alton, Kan.

An Amberol Window Display

It consists of a facsimile Amberol carton, four and a half feet high, by two and a quarter feet in diameter, it being an exact duplicate of the new Amberol carton, twelve times enlarged. Now this carton revolves mechanically, so that all the reading on the carton could be easily read. At the base of the carton is placed the well-known old couple, taken from a banner and fastened to a backing of heavy pasteboard. The arm and heads are separate and independent and were made to move mechanically. The arm of the old man raises and lowers, apparently keeping time to the music of the Phonograph, to which he is listening; while at the same time the head moves at intervals away from the hand and then towards it, resting a slight period with the hand at the ear. The old lady occasionally nodding and shaking her head as if with pleasure and surprise.

A sign at the bottom of the display reads, "Listening to the new Amberol Record." Above the carton, not shown in the photograph, was perched an American eagle in white, holding in its bill streamers leading to the new Amberol Records and attachments, which were placed on pedestals to the right and left of the display. Posters explaining the new attachments and Records were each fastened to the pedestals, and these posters were taken from those furnished by the National Phonograph Co.

A semicircle canopy of streamers were draped around the carton and, from the upright posts to the corners of the windows, streamers were extended, upon which were written as follows: "Amberol Records," "Play four minutes," "The wonder of the age," "Twice as long," "Tones sweeter," "Edison's latest invention." As a background to the whole picture the regular Edison banner was hung, forming a striking contrast, with its background of yellow to the white and green colors, which predominated in the decorations and printing.

The above window display has attracted considerable attention here in the city, and the effects are apparent, as business has been considerably improved since placing the above in our window.

Among the Jobbers

Harger & Blish, Edison Jobbers at Des Moines, Ia., were the originators of a neat bit of enterprise last month. As soon as they received word about the exchange proposition of this Company they issued a circular letter calling the attention of their Dealers to it and giving the numbers of the cut-out selections. The latter feature will be hereafter followed by us in advising the trade about an exchange proposition.

Victor H. Rapke, one of the pioneer Jobbers of Edison Phonographs, has moved from 1659 Second Avenue, New York City, to 102 Mott Avenue, in the same city. Mr. Rapke is the originator of and still controls the Rapke Record labels.

W. E. Henry Company, Edison Jobbers at Youngstown, Ohio, have disposed of their entire stock to the Standard Talking Machine Company of Pittsburg and have ceased to be Jobbers at that point.

Peter Bacigalupi & Sons, Edison Jobbers at San Francisco, have taken a long lease on a new location at 941 Market street and have moved to this place their jobbing headquarters at 1021 Golden Gate avenue and their retail branch at 1117 Fillmore street.

The jobbing privileges of the J. M. Dean Co., Providence, R. I., have been transferred to the Household Furniture Co.

Changes in Prices and Discounts

Sales Department Bulletin No. 25, on page 15, gives information about a new price on Recording Horns and a change in discounts on repair parts.

"Hit the rubber wood's played"

Until you have heard the new Amberol Records you have not heard the Edison Phonograph at its best.

Edison Amberol Records have made the Edison Phonograph a more fascinating entertainer than it was before—added richness and sweetness to its tone, increased its repertoire and enabled it to give more people more of the kind of music they enjoy.

Consider the increased enjoyment of a Record that plays twice as long as the regular Edison Record, and longer than any other Record made.

The Amberol Records have opened an entirely new field of music for Edison Phonograph owners.

They offer music which, by reason of its length, cannot be secured on any other Record. They offer not only a wider range of music, but a higher grade and a better rendition than has before been possible.

The tone of Amberol Records is matchless. They have a clearer, richer tone and truer artistic interpretation than that of any other Edison Records, which means that they are superior to all Records.

Amberol Records are 50 cents and afford twice the entertainment of the regular Edison Records, at 40 cents. There are new selections every month for the Amberol Records as well as for the regular Edison Records.

Every Edison Phonograph, except the Gem, can easily be equipped to play Amberol Records without interfering with the playing of other Edison Records. Your dealer has the attachment and Records. Now—to-day—hear both kinds of Records. Go to your dealer and hear the Edison Phonograph play an Amberol Record.

Edison Phonographs are sold on the instalment plan if desired. Prices are $10 to $100. Ask your dealer, or write for booklet.

THE EDISON BUSINESS PHONOGRAPH reduces the cost of letter writing one half

Reduced fac-simile of the two-page advertisement of the National Phonograph Co., in the Standard Magazines for February.

February Advertising

The February monthly magazines all appear in January. Therefore any advertising done in them is the first advertising done in the new year. Dealers are doubtless disposed to regard the reference we constantly make to the advertising we are doing as a hackneyed and uninteresting subject.

Believing as we do, however, that advertising constitutes a large part of the life of the business, we feel it a duty, as well as a pleasure, to continually tell the trade what we are doing in this way to sell the Edison goods. All Dealers would see a few publications each month and would know that we were doing some national advertising. But they could not see all of the mediums we are using, and as a result would have no idea of the great amount of this publicity, if we did not tell of it in this way.

The advertising we are doing in what is really the first month of the new year must be accepted as the best possible evidence of our faith in the sale of Edison Phonographs and Records. It represents a very large expenditure and we would not make it if we did not believe it to be a profitable investment.

We print above a reduced fac-simile of the two-page advertisements that we are using in several monthly magazines for February. The same copy in single pages or in other size space is being used in the following publications:

Asociated Sunday Magazines, Collier's, Judge, Literary Digest, Outlook, Puck, Saturday Evening Post, Scientific American, Youth's Companion, American, All-Story, Argosy, Railroad Men's, Broadway, Bohemian, Century, Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, Good Housekeeping, Human Life, Ladies' Home Journal, Ladies' World, McClure's, Metropolitan, Munsey's, National, Outing, Pacific, Popular, Smith's, Red Book, Review of Reviews, Short Stories, Woman's Home Companion, World To-Day.

In addition to this advertising we are also using large space in a list of 39 agricultural papers; in a list of 16 weeklies having large circulations; the Religious Press, comprising 41 Southern weeklies; 20 papers printed in foreign languages, and in the publications represented in the following four Sunday Magazine combinations: Associated Sunday Magazines, Hearst Sunday Magazines, United Sunday Magazines, Illustrated Sunday Magazines.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

Let us again call Dealers' attention to the fact that this new department in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is the Dealers' Department. It is theirs—yours—to do what you will with it—make it worth while or not, as you please.

We strongly urge you to do your part to make it successful because we thoroughly believe if everybody takes hold, everybody will benefit. Taking hold isn't just reading what appears in this department.

Once we used to expend much effort to get Dealers to read the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, but we believe it is pretty thoroughly read nowadays, so we go one step further and ask the Dealers to contribute—not money—ideas!

We want you to ask questions—any that occur to you in connection with the selling of Edison goods—but we also want you to contribute answers—answers to questions asked by some of "the other 13,000."

Questions we can answer intelligently ourselves we will be very glad to answer; but most questions that come up for the retail Dealer's solution can often be answered in a more practical way by some other Dealer who has had the experience and knows.

C. L. Clark, Burghill, O.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on "Exchange of Edison Records to Consumers." I find many of my customers willing to sell or exchange their old Records at 10 cents apiece. The things I liked best in the January issue were the articles under the head of "Questions and Answers."

[If there was a single good reason why owners of Records should expect Dealers or ourselves to take Records back we would give the matter serious consideration. An Edison Record at 35 cents is worth every cent of its cost, and when it has been played until its owner is tired of it, he has had full value for his outlay. He might just as well expect a Dealer to take back sheet music when it has ceased to interest him. He might, with equal propriety, ask the haberdasher to allow him 50 cents for his old hat when he buys a new one. The absurdity would be carried still further when the haberdasher asked the manufacturer in turn to allow him 50 cents for the old hat, for this is really what would happen if an exchange of Records with customers was permitted. Suppose we encouraged the idea of an exchange of this kind and permitted Dealers to allow 10 cents each for old Records, but refused to take them back from Dealers, how long could Dealers continue in business with a profit of 5 cents on each new Record sold in exchange? Old Records have no value to us. We cannot sell them to the trade at any price, and the composition cannot now be used over again. For us to allow Dealers even 5 cents each for them would be a reduction of just so much in our profits. To allow Dealers to take back old Records on any basis would simply provide a way for cutting prices,—something we have fought for years, and expect to continue to fight for as many more. The whole matter is impracticable and impossible, and Dealers will be wise to do all they can to discourage the matter.]

N. D. Herbert, Manchester, N. H.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on benefits to be derived from the associating of all the Dealers in each city. The things I liked best in the January issue were Editorial Comments, "The Other 13,000," and I might say the whole magazine, from start to finish.

[We would like to see this subject covered by an article from Dealers in any city where a plan of getting Dealers into an association has been successful. As a rule associations of this kind attempt too much, and they fail because the keen business competition between its members soon overshadows its objects. An association of Dealers might succeed if begun as a social organization, and business later introduced when the members knew each other better and were less jealous of each other. We would like to print a letter or two each month on this subject.]

Wilmington Phonograph Store, J. H. Hale, Prop., Wilmington, O.—I have just received your announcement in regard to the exchange of defective and cut-out Records. I am glad to say I have none of either class on hand, for I have been careful to work off the cut-out Records as the change has been announced. Although the winter trade has been slow in opening I am now doing a good business.

A. D. Diener, Bellefontaine, O.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on difference in price on cash and instalment sales.

[In all business it is justifiable to charge interest on money. The instalment business, as practised by the retailer, is no exception to this rule. It is wholly within the bounds of fairness and square dealing to sell goods at a higher figure on the instalment plan than for cash. The point to be decided by the Edison Dealer is whether the extra amount of business he hopes for by instituting the instalment plan of selling can be obtained if he puts a premium on instalment sales in the shape of higher prices. The decision must be made by the Dealer himself, because so much depends on the sort of competition he has to meet. If higher prices can be asked without losing sales to competitors it would certainly seem desirable to institute an instalment plan on a reasonable basis of extra charge. On the other hand, if competition is keen (and it generally is when instalment selling has to be considered) it has been found that the amount of extra capital required in the building of a good instalment business is tied up for a comparatively short period of time, and therefore, it is thoroughly practical to allow time payments at regular prices.

Steinhauser & Eaton, Watsonville, Cal.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on "Reasons for making a charge to Dealers for Phonogram," thereby requiring the Dealer to pay cost of printing in addition to postage, where mailing list is used—in fact making the Dealer bear the whole load.

[When the Phonogram was revived four years ago it was as something apart from the usual policy of the Company concerning printed matter and it was stated that unless the trade wanted it printed on the basis outlined it would not be issued at all. We realized then (and the situation is the same to-day) that unless a charge was made, the Phonogram could not be issued at all, for otherwise there would be no way of limiting the demand. The fact that the monthly edition is now nearly 600,000 and that the trade is paying 25 cents a hundred for them, shows that our original decision was correct. Without a charge we doubt if 2,000,000 a month would meet the demand. The cost of such an edition, even though it was at least $60,000 a year, would not be a serious matter if it was the only expenditure for printing that was required. But when we must spend at least five times that sum for forms that we supply to the trade without cost, the additional expenditures must be considered. If Dealers could know what it costs to exploit a product like ours they would appreciate that even large corporations must put a limit on their expenses.]

L. F. Averill & Son, Pomfret Center, Conn.—Congratulations on omitting the announcement on January Records. Think it was a big step in the right direction.

T. H. Gillan, Mgr. Music and Phonograph Dept., Humboldt Piano Co., Humboldt, Neb.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on how to compete with Dealers who say to prospective customers, "I cannot give you machines or Records any cheaper, nor any extra Records, but I can give you a can of paint or anything else I wish to give you." The things I liked best in the January issue were the talks on window cards and mailing lists. I practice both. The suggestions are helpful.

[It ought not be difficult to compete with such Dealers, for practices of the kind referred to are a violation of our Dealers' Agreement, and therefore of an unfair character. Even though a customer may benefit by getting something extra with his purchase, he knows that the Dealer is doing something he ought not to do, and he will always be distrustful of such a man. Doing business by honest, upright methods pays in the end. Edison Dealers have pledged themselves to give us a "square deal," and those who stick to their word will have their own respect and that of the public.]

L. Earl Elshan, demonstrator for The Trafford Co., Mason City, Ia.—I would like to see the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY conduct a Testing Department, in which the various types of Phonographs and parts can be discussed. The things I liked best in the January issue were "Selling the Goods" and "Store Management."

[We hope to begin a technical department as soon as we can arrange for its regular continuance.]

Will A. Coucke, Gawler, South Africa.—It is with the greatest of pleasure that I read of the change of Edison Records in the pamphlet received from you. I have owned an Edison Phonograph for about 10 years now, and well I remember the first noticeable change in Records. I own one of the largest types of Phonos. When I first purchased it was a concert machine with the polyphone attachment. I used to use the large size concert wax Records. Then came the Gold Moulded. I secured an attachment to enable me to convert it to take the G. M. Records and have been using G. M. Records ever since. I would not part with the old machine for any of the new. I think it is nearly time something was done re Edison Records, something entirely new, as the market has been flooded with all kinds of cheap and nasty Records. I will be pleased to learn more about these new Records. It seems too good to be true, that an Edison is going to run four minutes. I suppose I will be able to secure attachments to apply to my machine. Again allow me to thank you for information that I have received.

Mrs. Anna Felt, Cortland, N. Y.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on "Practical Storage Batteries of proper kind to run one of your make Phonographs." The things I liked best in the January issue were Bulletin No. 4, and "Protecting Dealers."

[The Chloride Accumulator Storage Battery is thoroughly practicable for the purpose. It is listed in our Accessories Catalogue at $14.50. It will run a Phonograph thirty hours on one charge and can be recharged at a cost of about 50 cents.]

A. B. Davis's Sons, Ltd., Houma, La.—We would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on form of contract or lease for selling on installment plan.

[We are not willing to offer a form of lease for instalment sales because of the wide variation in the laws of many States covering sales of this kind. In every town of any size forms for instalment sales are sold. These as a rule are drafted to conform with the laws of the State and they may be safely used for selling any kind of merchandise. We will appreciate it if some Louisiana Dealers selling Edison Phonographs on instalment will mail one of their forms to the above-named firm.]

As an Edison Dealer, allow me to express my appreciation of the new Record labels. They fill a long-felt want.—J. B. Humphrey, Cameron, N. Mex.

Selling the Goods

Window Display

As much as we have said in the past about the importance of the store window, we are still of the impression that many Dealers' windows are "not working." Take a good look into your own window from the outside. Does it make you want to go inside where you can't see it? Would that poorly dressed, dusty, shabby window have that effect on passers-by? But strange as it may seem, that kind of a window has the opposite effect on them; they still remain passers-by and always will until you have a window that fairly greets everybody with a cheerful, irresistible "Come in." It takes more than the right kind of a window card to get people into your store. Nobody will see your window card unless your window is clean, fresh and carefully arranged. Don't pile stuff in your window just to show people what a big line you carry. Nobody likes to look at a pile of stuff. Display one or two articles. Make your window interesting. There are hundreds of ways to do it. You can get ideas from other good store windows. Don't steal the ideas—adapt them to your own needs. Why not keep a little window trimming book as one Dealer does to great advantage? He makes up a weekly schedule of window display plans, thinks them out several weeks in advance, making the necessary notes and crude sketches. He is just as systematic about attending to his window every week as he is in paying his bills.

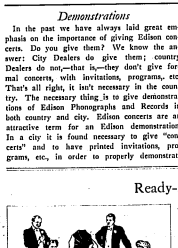
Louis R. Murray, Ogdensburg, N. Y.—At last you have struck the right idea. No more announcements on Records, if we are to believe the January Records—which Records bear no verbal titles.

And more, I often thought that your Records were so superior to any other that the announcement, "Edison Record" on the Records, was superfluous, because one could always tell Edison Records without this adjunct.

I have yet to hear the Phonograph owner who does not praise the Amberol—both outfit and Records—and my customers, every one of them, are having their Phonographs equipped as soon as circumstances or convenience will allow them, and those who already possess the new outfit buy 90 per cent. of their Records in Amberol style. All this is through the Dealer's knowing and his entire confidence in the new product.

All my patrons are pleased with the new form of lists of latest Records, as they are now more interesting and practical. My own praise also for your new Monthly Bulletin.

E. A. Waterman, Gordon, Neb.—I am a Westerner, born and raised in New England, and I would like to shake hands with Cal Stewart. His Records are among my best sellers.



We would not advise you to kill your competitor, but to excel him. About the only way of accomplishing this in the talking machine business is by carrying a more complete stock than he does.—The Whistle Monthly.

Demonstrations

In the past we have always laid great emphasis on the importance of giving Edison concerts. Do you give them? We know the answer: City Dealers do give them; country Dealers do not,—that is,—they don't give formal concerts, with invitations, programs, etc. That's all right, it isn't necessary in the country. The necessary thing is to give demonstrations of Edison Phonographs and Records in both country and city. Edison concerts are an attractive term for an Edison demonstration. In a city it is found necessary to give "concerts" and to have printed invitations, programs, etc., in order to properly demonstrate the Phonograph. In the country it is only necessary to open the front door while a Phonograph is playing in order to attract a few listeners.

Now we come to our point, and it is a delicate one, too. How many Dealers really demonstrate the Phonograph at their city concert halls or their country stores? It is our belief that most Dealers seek merely to entertain instead of to demonstrate. If this is true here is an opportunity for profitable reform. Just remember the following definition and you won't lose any sales on this score: Edison demonstration is entertainment with salesmanship added.

EDISON PHONOGRAPHS

WE want everyone who has not yet experienced the delight of owning and listening to an Edison Phonograph to come to our store and hear the Edison Phonograph play. There is only one way to know how good the Edison Phonograph is and that is to hear it. Nothing can describe it.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS

are the new Records which have just been made to play on the Edison Phonographs. They play twice as long as the old ones and play far better. This is the latest great discovery of Mr. Edison for the benefit of his favorite Inventions, the Edison Phonograph. Equip your Phonograph to play Amberol Records.

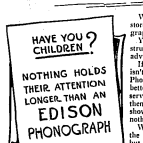
The Window as a Salesman

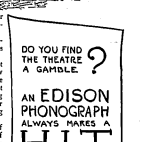
When a customer comes into your store you do not show him a Phonograph in silence.

You talk; you explain the instrument in detail and play up its advantages.

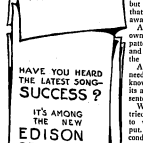
If your window doesn't talk it isn't a salesman. It may show Phonographs and Records, and the better it shows them the better it serves that purpose, but showing them without some talk, is like your showing them inside and saying nothing about them.



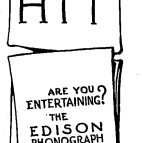
Window cards are the voice of the window. They must be brief but they must make a suggestion that those who read will carry away or act upon immediately.



A neck-tie in a window is its own argument because its shape, pattern and material are all evident and these are the qualities—and the only ones—that influence sales.

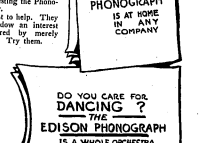


A Phonograph, on the other hand, needs explanation. People want to know what it means to them, so its abilities and its uses must be presented by words spoken or printed.



We have, in this month's series, tried to bring out a variety of uses to which a Phonograph may be put. We do it by asking about a condition and suggesting the Phonograph as a remedy.

These cards ought to help. They will give any window an interest beyond that secured by merely showing the goods. Try them.



Trade Bulletins

Supplementing Sales Department Bulletin No. 20, Regarding Combination Attachments for Phonographs Equipped with Repeating Attachments. (See E. P. M. for December, 1908.)

In order to avoid error in supplying the proper parts (on account of Phonographs of different models being in use) it will be necessary in every case to observe the following instructions:

First—If a customer orders a combination attachment for use with repeating attachment, it should be ordered from us complete, and the type and serial number of machine for which it is intended must be specified.

Second—If a customer has already purchased a combination attachment, and wants to fit it to a machine equipped with a repeating attachment, the combination attachment must either be returned to us through the Dealer or Jobber with the type and serial number of machine for which it is intended, and we will equip and return it with proper pulley and repeating attachment gear, no charge, or the Dealer or Jobber can take back and place in stock the regular combination attachment and order from us to take its place another attachment, specifying it is for use with repeating attachment, and giving type and serial number of machine for which it is intended.

One or the other of these methods is absolutely necessary, due to the various changes made in Phonographs, also some few changes in the combination attachments, which make it impossible for us to determine what style pulley and repeating attachment gear is required where pulleys only are ordered, as was instructed in our bulletin No. 20.

CHANGES IN PRICES AND DISCOUNTS.

The attention of Dealers is directed to the following changes in the new Dealer's Discount Sheet, Form No. 1503, enclosed herewith:

1. The retail price of our regular Recording Horn has been reduced from $3.50 to $2.00, and the Dealer's net price hereafter will be $1.50.

2. The discount on repair parts has been changed and made uniform with the discount on supply parts. Both will hereafter be 50 per cent. The former discount on repair parts was 33⅓ per cent.

Although the new Discount Sheet is dated January 1st, these changes will not be effective until February 1st. Dealers are asked to note these changes on their copy of the Dealer's Agreement and also to keep this sheet on file.

Edison Standard Records

10097 Happy Days March — Maurice Levi and his Band

This is the first Edison Record made by Maurice Levi and his Band. Levi has already made himself famous in this country as a distinguished conductor of the new school now so popular with the amusement-loving public. This march is from Mr. Levi's own pen and was first performed under his direction in connection with M'lle Genee's New York production of "The Soul Kiss." The march is full of novel and original effects, finely executed, a whistling chorus being one of the striking departures. Throughout the entire march the listener is impressed with the fact that a strong personality emanates from the rendition. That personality is Maurice Levi's. His band is simply his means of expressing himself. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10098 What Might Have Been — Manuel Romain

A sentimental reverie for high voice, sung in Mr. Romain's characteristic easy manner. The slow waltz refrain is especially pleasing. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Gumble; words, Dave J. Clark; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10099 Christ, the Lord, is Risen Today — Edison Concert Band

A Record for Easter of unusual merit. It is a presentation of the well-known hymn and alleluia "Christ, the Lord, is Risen To-day," arranged for the Edison Concert Band by F. W. Ecke, director. The singing of a quartette of mixed voices is appropriately introduced, which adds much to the charm of this number.

10100 Solitude of the Shepherdess — American String Quartette

This beautifully executed string quartette is a melody of a pastoral character. It is written by the famous Norwegian violinist, Ole Bull. This should give some idea of the worth of the composition. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10101 Uncle Josh's Second Visit to New York — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh tells in his droll way of experiences which the ordinary countryman visiting a large city as a stranger would keep to himself. Uncle Josh has no false pride. If he experiences a delusion that the "9d Ave. Elevated" is a part of Brooklyn Bridge he doesn't hesitate to mention the fact.

10102 Hello There, McIntyre! — Jack Lorimer

Jack Lorimer puts into his rendering of this song all the wit and humor of which he is capable, while his Scotch accent is one of those things which must be heard to be appreciated to the full. Orchestra accompaniment. Music by Scott.

10103 I Remember You — Ada Jones

The musical comedy "The Girls of Gottenburg" is responsible for the popularity of this comic song. It is now being sung at the leading vaudeville theatres all over the country. The story is of an unsuccessful episode in the life of a typical "confidence man." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry VonTilzer; words, Vincent Bryan; publishers, Harry VonTilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10104 Turkey Trot — American Symphony Orchestra

A new composition by Oscar Hasse, written in his characteristic style. An original melody is brought out by the trombones—the whole being played in perfect schottische or horn-dance time. Publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10105 If You Must Love Someone, Won't You Please Love Me — Byron G. Harlan

A love ballad which makes a strong appeal to the girl or the man who has many sweethearts. Mr. Harlan is very effective in this song. His enunciation is good and his tones are clear. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Johann C. Schmid; words, J. E. Dempsey; publishers, H. A. Weymann & Sons, Philadelphia.

10106 A Meeting of the Hen Roost Club — Peerless Quartette

A clever sketch written by Cal Stewart. The gavel is sounded, the roll called and the meetin' of this distinguished colored aggregation is opened by the singing of "In the Dead of Night," but 'de regluh ordah ob business am expensed wid' and the initiation of Pinckney Marcus White takes place. 'De white-washuh brush an' de burnin' feathuh' are applied and at last the candidate is placed on 'de slippery roost', whereupon he is declared to be a 'full feathered membah ob de Hen Roost Club.' The meeting closes with the singing of "Who Put de Lock on de Hen House Door."

10107 Jennie — Billy Murray

Here is a song that has a real "rag"—not only in the accompaniment but in the melody itself. This song will make a hit with all lovers of ragtime. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words by Wm. J. Montgomery; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10108 The Directorate March — New York Military Band

A fine reproduction of one of Sousa's earlier successes. It is a march that is as popular today and will be as popular years from now as when it first came out. Composer, John Philip Sousa; publishers, The John Church Co., Boston.

10109 Playmates — Ada Jones

This song has real child interest—takes the older ones back once more to the old, care-free days and tells the child something about the child-life of the grown-ups. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ralph Weekes; words, T. Edmond Leonard; publishers, W. T. Deane & Son, Sydney.

10110 Down Among the Sugar Cane — Collins and Harlan

A coon serenade sung in duet form by Collins and Harlan with some original effects in close harmony. Orchestra accompaniment. The chorus:

Cos's you see de sight an fallin'.
Whippo-will an singing low;
Don't you hear de crickets callin',
Callin' you and me to go.

Bode don't you keep me waitin',
If you do 'twill cause me pain;
Meet an a-shinin' and me hear an a-joinin'—
Meet me down among de sugar cane.

Music, Cecil Mack & Chris. Smith; words, Avery & Hart; publishers, Gotham-Attucks Music Co., New York.

10111 Uncle Josh's Letter from Home — Cal Stewart

Nobody else sees things in the humorous way Uncle Josh does. A common-place experience—like stepping into the modern post-office through a revolving door, for instance,—is to him an event and therefore a source for humor. Uncle Josh could see a funny side to a barn door.

10112 Moon Winks — Vess L. Ossman

A banjo solo "of the first water", finely played by an artist of known ability. Ossman was especially happy in selecting "Moon Winks" for reproduction; every note comes out clear and musical. Orchestra accompaniment. Composed by G. Stevens; publishers, Arnett-Delonais Publishing Co., Chicago.

10113 Jesus, Thy Name I Love — Miss Weber and Mrs. Waterous

A duet with orchestra accompaniment adapted from a well-known hymn. The two voices—soprano and contralto—blend together perfectly, and show to fine advantage in the solo passages of the duet. Miss Weber makes her debut as an Edison vocalist in this Record. Mrs. Waterous will be remembered by the splendid Records made with Mr. Waterous. Music, J. P. Holbrook; words, J. G. Deck.

10114 I'm Looking for a Sweetheart and I Think You'll Do — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

This song is making a "hit" in DeWolf Hopper's new operatic fantasy "The Pied Piper",—one of the successful musical productions of the season. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Manuel Klein; words, R. H. Burnside; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10115 She's No Friend of Danny's — Steve Porter

A vaudeville sketch in which "He" endeavors to exalt his brother Danny's character. But "She" knows Danny and with a brilliant show of sparkling wit rebuts every argument. The trouble was, Danny had "a thirst." The sketch ends with the song:—

My brother Danny, he said to me, he wouldn't drink any more.
I thought he was tellin' the word until I found him drunk on the floor.
Danny, I said to him, "What have you done, you've drinkin' more, ain't you Kid?"
"I'm not drinkin' none," Danny said to me,
"No more than ever I did."

10116 Ginger Two-Step — National (London) Military Band

In this gay two-step the quaintest eccentricities of rhythm are introduced, while the curious gyrations of the euphonium keep the listener on the tiptoe of expectation. Composed by Wurm; publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

Edison Amberol Records

95 Selection from Rigoletto — Edison Concert Band

The grand opera Rigoletto was first produced at La Fenice Theatre of Venice on March 11, 1851. At that time it was Verdi's most successful work and its production at once established his fame as a composer of the Italian school of opera. For this Record the most widely known passages of the opera have been selected and they are played in the following order:—Opening of Act 2; Aria, Caro Nome (Gilda), Act 1; and Finale, Act 1. Publishers, Boosey & Co., New York.

96 If With All Your Hearts — Reed Miller

This famous aria from "Elijah", sung inspiringly by Reed Miller, tenor, is a great work to say the least. It is without doubt the strongest solo number in this, Mendelssohn's most famous oratorio. The reproduction begins with a dramatic recitative: "Ye People Rend Your Hearts" (Joel ii, 12, 13) which directly precedes the aria proper, entitled "If With All Your Hearts"—the words of which are from Deut. iv, 29; Job xxiii, 3. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Felix Mendelssohn; publishers, Oliver Dinon Co., Boston.

97 Selection from "The Prima Donna" — American Symphony Orchestra

"The Prima Donna" is a new successful light opera, being played by Fritzi Scheff and a fine company. It will probably equal in popularity the last production Fritzi Scheff starred in—"Mlle Modiste"—the music of which was also by Victor Herbert. This selection contains the following "hits" of the show:—"Everybody Else's Girl Looks Better to Me than Mine", "If you Were I and I were You", "Dream Love", "I'll be Married to the Music of the Military Band", and "A Soldier's Love". Music by Victor Herbert; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

98 If You've Won the Only One in All the World You Want to Win — Manuel Romain

A new sentimental waltz song of the same style and character, and also by the same writers of "When Only Girl You're Not Forgotten by the Girl You Can't Forget" (our Record 9544). This Record contains the entire song. Orchestra accompaniment. The chorus:—

If you've won the only one in all the world you want to win,
What care you if bluets or blue
The eyes you've gazing in?

You live to love—you love to live—
Your heart's desire in the world can give,
If you've won the only one in
All the world you want to win.

Music, J. Fred Helf; words, Ed. Gardenier; publishers, Helf & Hager, New York.

99 My Bambazoo — Collins and Harlan

A new Jungle song similar in treatment to "Down in Jungle Town" (our Record 9041) and "In Monkey Land" (our Record 9700) which were also sung by Collins and Harlan. A laughable bit of love-making dialogue between a Zulu chief and the object of his affection is introduced between the verses. Being given in jungle dialect this feature of the Record is especially ludicrous. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ted Snyder; words, Norman Stadiger; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

100 Dance of the Hours — New York Military Band

This fascinating "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's famous opera "La Gioconda" is the best known excerpt from this impressive work. It occurs in the 3rd act of the opera, the scene of which is laid in the House of Gold. The music begins tenderly, indicating the Hours of Daybreak. Then the movement becomes more graceful and more refined as the dance of the Hours of the Day begins. This in turn is followed by the dances of the Hours of the Evening and finally by the Hours of the Night. The masked dancers representing the Hours of the Night then enter into combat with the other forces represented and finally, Day is victorious. The music is very picturesque and comes to a close with a rush of brilliancy wholly in accord with the triumph of Day over Night. Composer, Amilcare Ponchielli; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

101 A String of Laughs (Original) — Murry K. Hill

A most entertaining four and a half minutes of vaudeville by one of the cleverest of Edison entertainers. Spicy monologue, introducing some new "cracks", a clever song entitled "Don't", and "100 Nursery Rhymes Brought Up-to-Date" are the interesting features of this Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

102 Bedtime at the Zoo — Ada Jones

A song of a novel, imaginative character that is really funny. The scene is night-time at the Zoo with the sleepy animals. The music is written by a well-known composer of comic opera; the words portray a graphic picture of a Zoo at night. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Lionel Monckton; words, Percy Greenbank & Leslie Mayne; publishers, Chappell & Co., New York.

103 Wedding of the Winds — Frosini

A Record by a new Edison Artist, known on the stage as "Frosini, Wizard of the Accordion". He comes from the Milan Conservatory, Italy. The selection played is a favorite waltz with admirers of the better class of music. It is considered to be the best of John T. Hall's compositions, and is well adapted for an accordion solo with orchestra accompaniment. This waltz has also been rendered by the Edison Concert Band and is so listed (our Record 8128). Composer, John T. Hall; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

104 Once in a While — James F. Harrison

A sentimental song for baritone sung in fine voice by Mr. Harrison. This is one of the song "hits" in "Marcelle", the new successful musical comedy by Pixley and Lüders. There are two verses with refrains. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Gustave Lüders; words, Frank Pixley; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

105 Christ Has Won the Victory — Edison Concert Band

This inspiring Easter anthem is here given with a most elaborate and impressive musical setting. An original introduction has been written by F. W. Ecke, director of the Edison Concert Band. This harmonious prelude suggests the dawn of a glorious Easter morn, and trumpets herald the glad tidings of the resurrection. A brilliant burst of song by a quartette of mixed voices follows but an incidental soprano solo accompanied by a quartette of male voices is really the crowning feature of the composition as arranged. Composed by C. B. Hawley; arranged by C. W. Ecke.

106 The Butterfly — Eugene C. Rose and George Rubel

A duet for flute and clarinet that is always well received when given in concert. The brilliancy of the solo parts is only excelled by the dash and spirit of the duet passages. There is not a dull moment in the rendition. The orchestra accompaniment is full of interest and shines particularly at the beginning of the trio where there is a solo for the G string. Composer, Theo. Bendix.

107 There is No Love Like Mine — Will Oakland

A sentimental ballad for high tenor sung with much tenderness and sincerity by Mr. Oakland. There are few indeed who can vitalize songs of this character in the charming manner which this well-known artist invariably displays. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Leo A. Hirsch; words, Jean C. Havez; publishers, J. H. Remick & Co., New York.

108 Little Arrow and Big Chief Greasepaint — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An original vaudeville sketch, the first part of which consists of an amusing dialogue in Indian dialect. Big Chief Greasepaint represents the type of Indian seen on the stage. Upon learning that Little Arrow can dance he wastes no time in wooing her, for he sees the possibilities of her success in his Wild West Show company. This Record is replete in local color with its Indian grunts, yells and music. After the betrothal of Little Arrow to Big Chief Greasepaint is announced to the "tribe" Little Arrow sings the following song to her chief:

Now, my chief Little Arrow,
And you'll be my bride.
You're a big Chief, of the Indians and I love you so;

In a tent we'll live together.
One that's built for two.
Little Arrow, Little Arrow, she love you.

109 Three Dances from "Henry VIII." — Edison Concert Band

Edward German, the writer of these dances, is a well-known English composer who has been successful in writing incidental music to some of Shakespeare's plays. The Dances reproduced on this Record were written in 1892, German being especially commissioned by Sir Henry Irving for the purpose. The suite consists of three dances, Morris Dance, Shepherd's Dance and Torch Dance. They are heard often as concert numbers on many of the best programmes. Published by Carl Fischer, New York.

110 Choruses of Six Popular Songs — Peerless Quartette

A good male quartette has no rival in the entertaining line. The well named Peerless Quartette makes an excellent Record by singing a specially arranged medley which includes the choruses from the popular songs named: "Roses Bring Dreams of You", "In Grandma's Day", "When the Sheep Are In the Fold", "Mandy Lane", "Sweetheart Days", and "Rainbow".

111 My Uncle's Farm — Golden and Hughes

A side-splitting vaudeville sketch in the form of a dialogue between two chaps who are not particularly wonderful themselves, perhaps, but both of whom possess most extraordinary uncles—wonderful in the extreme, one is led to believe. In fact, it is difficult to determine which uncle is the greater man after listening to the vieing nephews.

112 Rubenstein's Melody in F — American Symphony Orchestra

No composition of Anton Rubenstein, the celebrated Russian composer and piano virtuoso, is better known than this simple "Melody in F". Although a famed writer of oratorio, symphonies, concertos and other complicated musical forms, the "Melody in F" is the universal favorite of his numerous compositions. In the Record this celebrated "Melody" is given in the form of a paraphrase which contains the entire composition. Composer, Anton Rubenstein; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

This Record will be illustrated on the cover of the April Phonogram.*

113 How Algy Didn't Propose Empire Vaudeville Co.

The answer is—"Father' cannot learn to care for 'Algy' (the reference is to Mavis's father, not Algy's). 'Father's' name is O'Brien. He is "not Swedish", and his life aspiration is not to have an 'Algernon' in the O'Brien family. So Algy leaves hastily,—in fact—hurriedly.

114 American Patrol New York Military Band

A typical and very popular patrol of patriotic character. In this Record the New York Military Band is at its best and the national airs "Red, White and Blue", "Dixie", and "Yankee Doodle", which are appropriately introduced, are played with the proper enthusiasm and just the right swing. Composed by F. W. Meacham; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

On Fame's Immortal Scroll

Edward Lyman Bill in the Music Trade Review.

Is fame a bubble?

Not in all cases.

The management of the New York Sunday Herald recently commenced the publication of a series of articles entitled "The Ten Most Famous Americans Now Living." It was announced that politicians are to be excluded from the Herald's "most famous" class, so a number of interesting characters are brushed aside.

The first American thus honored was Thomas A. Edison, and accompanying the article was a reproduction of Mr. Edison's features by a well-known artist.

When we come to consider it, could there have been a wiser selection for the first of the series?

What Edison has done through his marvelous inventive genius is known to every school boy, and his name and fame is not confined alone to this country, for he ranks not only as one of the greatest Americans from an inventive viewpoint, but from an advertising standpoint he outranks them all, with the exception perhaps of Roosevelt, who will make the world ring shortly with his lion hunting exploits.

Think of the millions of talking machine Records which have been put forth in cartons bearing the name, face and autograph of Edison. There have gone to every country in the world, and every island of the sea.

Edison has won undying fame in his reproduction of sound; then in the electrical field, his position is unquestioned.

I have seen the name of Edison advertised in connection with electrical inventions from the City of Mexico to Venice. There is scarcely a city in Europe where some Edison specialty is not exploited in the street cars and newspapers, and certainly in America, the name of Edison is familiar in every home circle in the land.

One does not have to ask who is Edison, for his name is everywhere, and yet there are those who say that fame is a bubble, and that it often costs more than it is worth.

That depends.

Sometimes a fleeting glimpse of notoriety is often mistaken for fame.

But really the scroll of fame is not crowded.

The immortals are few.

A man who perhaps occupied a high position during one generation is forgotten by the next.

Napoleon's name rests securely on Fame's scroll, and yet a great American, Ingersoll, once said, "I would rather have been a French peasant and worn wooden shoes, than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and murder, known as 'Napoleon the Great.'"

The works of men, whether good or bad, live after them and are not interred with their bones.

That song, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," is still a popular favorite, but its composer is unknown.

The fame of the great composers rests more securely than that of some statesman who struts across the stage and is quickly forgotten.

The fame of a man like Edison is not fleeting. It will not die with him like the fame of an actor, for instance, snuffed out with death.

It will live because Edison is a man who has done things. He has utilized natural forces for the entertainment—the education—the uplifting of man, and his name is chiseled on the imperishable scroll along with the greatest which this country has ever produced.

And yet Edison, like many another man, has won great heights, not by any easy route, but one paved with the roughest kind of obstacles. "The heights by great men gained and kept, were not won by sudden flight. For they, while their companions slept, were toiling upwards in the night."

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

Vol. VII. MARCH, 1909 No. 3

TO DETERMINE how many new Standard Records and how many new Amberol Records to put out each month has become a somewhat perplexing problem to the National Phonograph Co. Nor do the suggestions received from Jobbers and Dealers afford much assistance in reaching a satisfactory conclusion, for some of these suggestions are radically different. On one hand we are urged to cut the standard list down as low as ten a month and on the other the claim is made that it would be unfair to thousands of Phonograph owners, who have not yet added attachments to their machines, to give them a smaller list than twenty to select from. No one takes exception to putting out at least twenty new Amberol Records monthly. On the contrary not a few have expressed the belief that until the total number in the catalogue has been considerably increased, a still larger number might be put out each month.

Aside from these varying suggestions of the trade, the most important evidence we have upon which to base an opinion is the total of the orders placed in advance by Jobbers for each kind of Records. When the March lists were made up an arbitrary cut from twenty-four to twenty was made in the two-minute list, not because of any definite information, but because of a belief that the Jobbers' advance orders would indicate that such a cut was advisable. The Jobbers' orders, however, did not show enough of a falling off to confirm our judgment and they have not shown a great falling off any month since.

It is these conflicting conditions that make the question perplexing. Those of our people whose duty it is to decide upon the monthly list, have felt that there could be no doubt about putting out twenty new Amberol Records a month. There would have been no criticism had we put the Amberol Record on the market with a catalogue of 200 to 300 selections instead of the 50 that were issued in October. On the contrary, we have been criticised for not holding back the first list until it was 200 or more. Such critics have declared that the sale of attachments would have been even greater had there been 200 Amberol Records in the first list.

So far as the Amberol Records are concerned, we think that the trade should regard them just as if they were part of what should have been the first list and not as part of a monthly list. In our opinion, from the stock and cash standpoints the trade is better off to handle twenty Amberol Records monthly than if it had been asked to order a stock from 200 selections, and pay for the entire lot at one time. Then, too, the smaller list and the monthly lot of twenty, while they have limited the choice of buyers, have undoubtedly caused a greater sale of each selection than if 200 had been issued in October. This view is confirmed by the advance orders for Amberol Records, which are already nearly 75 per cent. of the advance orders for the two-minute selections. On the whole, we believe that our handling of the Amberol lists has been extremely conservative and such as to relieve us of any charge that we are desirous of overstocking the trade.

We do not feel so certain of our position concerning the two-minute Records. Considering the short time since October 1st, a remarkably large number of Phonographs have been equipped to play Amberol Records, but there are still a much greater number of Phonographs not yet so equipped. It seems to us to be our duty to continue to put out a fairly adequate list of two minute Records until such time as a much larger number of Phonographs have been equipped to play the larger Record. One things seems sure. If the public stops buying two-minute Records to any extent, the Dealers will cut down their orders, the Jobbers will decrease their advance orders and then we shall know just how to handle the list.

The trade should not lose sight of the fact that we are compelled to consider the entire country in making up the monthly list. Just as one section will have a large demand for a certain Record, while other sections pay little attention to it, so it is with the two-minute list. Almost on the same day last month we had a letter from a Jobber in one section suggesting a further cut in the Standard list, and a visit from a Jobber in another section during which he strongly advised against cutting the list to less than twenty.

Of this the trade may rest assured: It has never been the policy of the National Phonograph Company to work in any way antagonistic to the welfare of Jobbers and Dealers and we will not do so in handling the present situation. We are daily watching every phase of it and will adapt our plans to meet the changes as they develop. We want Jobbers and Dealers to be equally on the alert, so that their orders for new Records of both kinds will be representative of the true conditions in their cities or towns.

On another page is reprinted an article taken from the Quoin Club Key, the official organ of a club of representatives of thirty national magazine and weekly publications. The same matter also appeared in the February issues of the publications represented in the club. It is an interesting article, for it is literally true. The talking-machine industry owes more to the advertising done by the various companies than any other single factor and the greater part of this advertising has been done in the publications represented by the Quoin Club.

A matter for congratulation is the evident improvement in reading the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY by Dealers each month. We are constantly receiving letters and other evidence which shows that more and more Dealers are reading it and keeping files of it for future reference. We hope eventually to know that every Dealer pursues the same course. We shall then have the best and most aggressive lot of Dealers in the country, not alone because they read our house publication, but if they are live enough to read it they will be live to every other feature of the business.

The February issue of the Whitsit Monthly, published by the Perry B. Whitsit Company, Edison Jobbers at Columbus, Ohio, contains some breezy remarks and optimistic statements addressed primarily to the "calamity howlers" who are crying "hard times" and "poor business." Here are a few of the paragraphs selected at random:

Size up the situation. Take a good broad view of it. You have your money invested in a line which is as staple as flour and will sell as readily to a music hungry public as a life preserver will to a drowning man—more or less. * * *

Sit down and figure out what a small percentage of people in your immediate locality you have demonstrated the talking machine to. Relying wholly upon your recollection: Did you not sell the greater portion of these? What about that great big majority who know nothing of the merits of a high-class talking machine? Is it not reasonable to suppose that hundreds of these people could be sold by a little energetic work? Are these people to be allowed to go along forever without knowing the merits of the talking machine? This may all sound theoretical, but it is not. These are cold facts. * * *

Why not, then, get optimistic? Its just as plain as two and two make four. Whenever a Dealer remarks to us that he has sold an unreasonably small number of machines during the past month or year, it does not take us long to form our opinion. He simply has not gone about his work in a determined manner. If he had his machine sales for a year would not be limited to three or four. They would run into as many dozens. Do not get the idea that because your business in 1908 dropped behind the form it showed in 1907 and 1906 that it is going to continue to drop. The talking machine is growing in favor among all classes of people and more especially with the better classes.

The entire article referred to is full of sound advice and should do considerable toward improving conditions among Dealers in the territory where it circulates.

An Advance List of 10 Bohemian, 52 French, 29 German, 25 Italian, 8 Polish and 18 Swedish Records (two-minute) is given on pages 26, 27 and 28 of this issue. The important thing about the list is that all Jobbers and Dealers should read it over, make up their minds which of the languages will sell in their territory, order a quantity of each, get a supply of printed matter and go after the business that they ought to produce. Probably no one in the entire trade has such a patronage as will enable him to sell Records in all the languages named, but there are few who cannot carry and sell some of the languages. Many a Dealer would find that he could do quite a nice business in foreign language Records by making up mailing lists of foreign-born people in their vicinity and sending some printed matter to each nationality, first stocking such Records as are likely to be demanded. Carrying foreign Records means the sale of machines as well as Records. When a foreign-born man learns that Records in his native language can be had he is very apt to want a Phonograph, so as to hear them and to play them for his friends. Foreign Records are worth serious consideration at all times.

Occasionally our mail brings us a letter reading something like this: "I have in my collection of Records one of 'The Last Rose of Summer,' sung by Miss Marie Narelle. Can you give me the numbers or names of others in your catalogue of the same character?" If this question was asked of you or one of your salesmen, would it be answered promptly? Probably not, yet the secret of successful salesmanship lies in knowing the goods you are exploiting.

It would be manifestly impossible for us to publish in any one form, without considerable expense, a list of the Records which might be classed as "similar in character." But, reading over and studying the titles of our Records, along with the playing of them, will train the salesman to unconsciously think of selections similar to one called for in particular. Don't offer a "Fol-the-rol-lol" to a customer who asks for "Annie Laurie," or a selection "of about that character." You'll lose the sale and create a bad impression. Study the people who come into your store. Force upon them the musical education you secure through the constant handling of Records without realizing it, and in a manner that will not offend. They'll certainly appreciate your interest.

In a few days more Edison Dealers will have something absolutely unique in the history of the world, namely Phonograph Records made by the ruler of a great nation. Mr. Taft will, on March 4th, become the President of the United States, and the Edison Records made by him last summer will take on a new interest. It is a feature that ought to mean the sale of many more of the Taft Records, and it will sell more if Dealers take advantage of the situation. A year ago the mere suggestion that it would be possible to buy Records made by the President of the United States would have been received with incredulity. And yet in a few days they will exist and may be had at a price within the reach of the poorest. Truly we are a democratic people.

Now that the title numbers of the Amberol Records have reached 100 there is a slight danger of the numbers being confused with those of Standard Records. It is probable that within a year or so the low numbers of the Standard Records will be eliminated by being cut out or being made over, but so long as any duplications exist, Jobbers and Dealers, in ordering, should keep the lists separate, stating in each case whether Standard or Amberol are wanted.

Notice About Governors

About a year ago we made a slight change in the construction of the governor for spring-motor machines by attaching an additional collar to the governor shaft. This new collar is connected to the regular collar by a wire spring, but the old collar is still tapped for the set-screw. This small hole is purely for the convenience of our factory assembly department. Apparently Jobbers and Dealers seem to be under the impression that the set-screw is missing, and proceed to place one in the hole in the collar. To do so defeats the object for which the improvement was introduced.

From the numerous requests received recently from the trade for set-screws it appears that the detail is generally misunderstood. It is hoped that this notice will clear up the misunderstanding.

Corrections

Two slight errors were made in the printing of our Domestic Record Catalgue, Form 1460. On the bottom of page 28 the selection "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven," is given as No. 7582, when its correct number is No. 7852. On page 55, under the heading of "Miscellaneous Talking Records," the "23rd Psalm and Lord's Prayer," by Len Spencer, is given as No. 9155. Its correct number is 8155. Dealers are asked to make a note of these facts and explain the errors to any of their customers who may notice them.

Pushing Amberols

We take this means of thanking the hundreds of Edison Dealers all over the country who are advertising the Amberol and other Edison Records in their local newspapers.

Every mail we get is filled with advertisements clipped from newspapers and mailed us by Dealers, and all are carefully noted.

We are glad that you see the Amberol Record in the same light as we ourselves do, that is, as the greatest advance ever made in Phonograph Records.

Price-Cutting Suits

Principally to show that there is no let up in our efforts to prosecute price-cutting firms and also to show that the courts everywhere recognize the validity of our Jobbers' and Dealers' Agreement, we print below three out of a number of decisions recently made in suits brought by the National Phonograph Co.

A restraining order was recently granted in the suit against George J. Raymond, who does a large business in job lots of goods at Boston under the name of Raymond Syndicate. He is well known in all that part of Massachusetts, dealing principally in clothing and wearing apparel, but recently has been offering our Records at cut prices, whereupon we brought suit and secured this restraining order. The order in full is as follows:

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY
AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Plaintiffs,
vs.
GEORGE J. RAYMOND, Doing Business Under the Name and Style of RAYMOND SYNDICATE, Defendant.

Bill in Equity
Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 886,707.

RESTRAINING ORDER.

LOWELL, J. Jan. 8, 1909.

On reading the Bill of Complaint herein and the motion of the Plaintiffs for a temporary restraining order, the affidavits of Frank L. Dyer, Joseph W. Scott, Charles F. Trundy, Arthur W. Chamberlain, Albert C. Ireton, and Frank C. Dyer, Sylvester, in support of said motion, it is ordered that the said Defendant, George J. Raymond and his agents, attorneys, servants, and workmen, pending the decision of this Court on the motion for a preliminary injunction hereinafter filed and upon which a subpœna has duly issued requiring the said Defendant to appear and answer the Bill of Complaint herein, be restrained and enjoined from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used, or selling, or offering for sale, or causing to be sold, apparatus, articles, or devices embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 886,707, and from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever, and from aiding, abetting, or assisting, or who disposing of, or intermeddling with any Compositions for Making Duplicate Phonograph Records, or Phonograph Records covered by said Letters Patent and now in his possession.

By the Court:
(Seal) ALEX. H. THOMBERRY,
Clerk.

A final decree has now been entered in the suit of New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company vs. Wright-Metzler Company. This was a price-cutting suit, the defendant being a concern at Connellsville, Pa., and the suit was brought in the United States Court at Pittsburg. A preliminary injunction was granted last October. This suit was settled by the defendant consenting to this final decree awarding a perpetual injunction and costs. While the decree states that the complainants waived an accounting, this was because the defendant paid to the complainants fifty dollars in cash and sent to us their entire stock of Edison Phonographs and Records, namely, one Fireside Phonograph, one Standard Phonograph, 377 standard Records, besides several Phonograph parts and sundries. The decree in full:

At a stated term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, held at the United States Court Rooms, in the City of Pittsburg, on the 18th day of January, 1909.

Present: Hon. Joseph Buffington, U. S. Judge.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY
AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants,
vs.
WRIGHT-METZLER COMPANY, Defendant.

In Equity No. 39.
Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 798,476.

FINAL DECREE.

This cause having come on to be heard at this term of Court, upon the pleadings and proceedings had in the above entitled cause, and Messrs. Bakewell & Byrnes, Solicitors for Complainants, the defendant, Wright-Metzler Company, appearing by its Solicitors, Messrs. Hoesch, Knox & Hosack, and submitting and consenting to a consent decree, such consent is entered as follows:

That Letters Patent of the United States, No. 782,375, issued on the 14th day of February, 1905, to Thomas A. Edison, assignor to the New Jersey Patent Company for COMPOSITION FOR MAKING DUPLICATE PHONOGRAPH RECORDS, are good and valid in law, and that the said Jesse W. Ashworth is the original, first and sole inventor of the invention and improvement described and claimed in said Letters Patent;

That the complainant, New Jersey Patent Company, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and that the complainant, National Phonograph Company, is the lawful owner of said Letters Patent No. 782,375, and that the complainant, National Phonograph Company, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, for the manufacture, use and sale throughout the United States, of cylindrical phonograph records embodying the said invention, and as such licensee has the right to control the use and sale of such patented articles.

That Letters Patent of the United States No. 798,476, issued on the 29th day of August, 1905, to Edward L. Aiken, assignor to New Jersey Patent Company, a corporation of New Jersey, for MEANS FOR SUSTAINING PHONOGRAPH MOTORS, are good and valid in law, and that the said Edward L. Aiken is the original first and sole inventor of the invention and improvement described and claimed in said Letters Patent;

That the complainant, New Jersey Patent Company, is the lawful owner of said Letters Patent No. 798,476, and that the complainant, National Phonograph Company, is the exclusive licensee under said Letters Patent for the manufacture, use and sale throughout the United States of phonographs adapted to use cylindrical phonograph records and embodying the said invention, and as such licensee, has the right to control the use and sale of such patented articles.

And it is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that, the complainants waiving an accounting against the defendant as to their profits and damages, a perpetual injunction be and the same hereby is issued out of this Honble Court, directed to the said defendant and its directors, officers, attorneys, clerks, agents, servants and workmen, strictly enjoining them and each of them from selling or causing to be sold, or offering to sell any apparatus, articles or devices embodying or operating, or constructed in accordance with the inventions and improvements set forth in said Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 798,476, or either of them, or from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

That the complainants do recover of the defendant their costs and disbursements of this suit, to be taxed by the clerk.

PER CURIAM,
JOS. BUFFINGTON, Circ. Judge.

We approve the foregoing decree as to form, and consent to the entry thereof.

HOSACK, KNOX & HOSACK,
Solicitors for Defendant.

Dated January 15th, 1909.

A temporary restraining order has just obtained against Woodard, Clarke & Company, of Portland, Oregon, as follows:

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, FOR THE DISTRICT OF OREGON.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY
AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants,
vs.
WOODARD, CLARKE & CO., Defendants.

In Equity.

ORDER.

Upon filing the bill of complaint herein and upon the affidavits presented herein, complainants appearing by N. L. Pipes and Thos. A. Morris, their attorneys, defendant appearing by Chester U. Murphy, its solicitor, and Messrs. Bates & Sloan, of complainants' solicitors, for a preliminary injunction and restraining order.

It is at this time by the Court ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that the said defendants, Woodard, Clarke & Co., its agents, officers, servants, clerks, attorneys and employes, and each and all of them, be and they are hereby restrained and enjoined from violating any of the terms of the license contract and addenda thereto made and entered into between Woodard, Clarke & Co., and the complainant, National Phonograph Company, on the 12th day of February, 1908, and the 15th day of August, 1908, respectively, and from selling any Edison Standard records or Edison Amberol records containing the invention of Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 886,707 in suit herein, or any Edison Phonographs embodying or embodying the combination of the inventions of Letters Patent in suit, at prices less than the prices fixed by the National Phonograph Company or at prices less than those specified in the said agreement and addenda thereto above named or at less than the prices specified in the notice affixed to the carton in which said Edison Standard records and Edison Amberol records are delivered, and from selling any Edison Standard records and Edison Amberol records, and from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used, selling or causing to be sold, any apparatus, articles or devices embodying, operating or constructed in accordance with the inventions and improvements set forth in said Letters Patent without the consent of complainants, and from aiding, abetting or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever, until the further order of this Court.

(Signed) CHARLES E. WOLVERTON,
Dated February 1st, 1909. Judge.

IN every city of any size there are companies, corporations, firms and individuals who can make good use of the modern device for dictating business correspondence—the Edison Business Phonograph. We want Dealers in such cities (unless we already have one) to sell the Business Phonograph to such business people. The average sale is over $200, and the profits are good.

EDISON BUSINESS PHONOGRAPH CO.
Orange, N. J.

A Great Thing for the Dealer

Whatever makes the Edison Phonograph a better thing for the consumer, makes it a better thing for the Dealer.

Amberol Records make the Phonograph doubly attractive, and that means doubly salable. The wider range of high-grade music they afford makes the field wider and the demand greater.

Amberol Records add prestige to the Phonograph, put it in a class by itself and enable it to adequately express its wonderful powers.

It isn't the Records that sell the Phonograph—it is the Phonograph's rendition of the Records.

But it is the Phonograph that sells the Records, and with Amberol Records, costing the buyer but little more than regular Edison Records and netting you a considerably larger profit, a bigger and better-paying business is assured.

The minute you put Amberol Records on sale every Phonograph owner becomes, first, a purchaser of the necessary attachment for his instrument and after that a continuous purchaser of Amberol Records.

You will sell more Phonographs, you will interest people whom you could not interest heretofore, you will sell the attachments at a profit, you will sell more Records at a better profit, and you will have the one, conclusive, deciding feature for those who are debating as to which instrument to buy.

That is what Amberol Records mean to you.

A Tip

When a Dealer in your line (or in any line) hits on some advertising scheme that is highly profitable, put on your thinking cap.

Won't the same scheme make money for you, too, if you change it slightly to suit conditions?

An illustration: A large Edison Dealer has a special hall nicely fitted up for giving concerts every day from 12 to 5 P. M.. Why can't you clear out a space in your store, put a few chairs in and give free concerts?

Suppose you give these concerts and tell about them in your newspaper ads. and on cards in your windows—and suppose your competitor down the street doesn't. Who's going to get the most people in to hear the Edison? We tell you in the PHONOGRAM MONTHLY about what other Edison Dealers are doing, but it will not help you much if you simply take the part of the idle spectator. "The battle is to the vigilant, the active, the brave"—in business as well as war.

Selling the Goods

Two Kinds of Team Work

There can be no real success in Edison Phonograph selling without team work.

Team work means pulling together.

When we advertise Edison Phonographs and Records in your locality through the magazines, and you advertise them through your local papers, that is team work.

When we, in our advertising, tell people to go to their dealer—which means you—and hear an Edison play, and you, in turn, welcome all who come, and demonstrate the instrument to the best of your ability, that is team work.

But team work means more than harmony between our efforts and yours.

It means that your advertising and your store must agree, and this is something you should look closely to.

When you display a hanger listing the new Records for the month and saying they are ready, are they?

When a customer comes in and asks to hear certain ones, does he hear them? Or is he told that a particular one is sold out or that you have it but cannot lay your hand on it and will something else do?

Do your window cards invite people to come in and listen to their heart's content, and when they accept, find that your idea of their heart's content is a Record or two, hurriedly played, and apparent displeasure on your part if they do not buy?

Team work means carrying out your promises. It means instruments properly adjusted for perfect demonstration, so that what is claimed for the Edison Phonograph and Records can be shown.

It means a complete stock, systematically arranged so that what is wanted can be instantly found. It means courteous treatment of all who come in, whether they are prompted to call by a desire to buy, or merely by curiosity.

Your store will never make the progress it should unless every selling force at your command is put to work and so arranged that all are pulling in the same direction.

Demonstration

Advertising will not sell Edison Phonographs. Your arguments over the counter will not sell them.

Advertising excites a curiosity or arouses an interest, and that brings people to your store; but a sale depends upon a demonstration.

The expression "Show me" is generally credited to those skeptics who hail from Missouri, but when it comes to parting with money, everybody is a skeptic, and the "show me" of the Missourians has become a national catch phrase.

Everybody says "show me" and everybody means, "convince me."

The Edison Phonograph must convince people before they will buy, and therefore everything depends upon demonstrations.

The definition of demonstrate is to produce proof that precludes denial.

The demonstration of the Edison Phonograph is the vital thing in Phonograph selling.

Every other selling effort but leads up to this. Our magazine advertising to your customers, your local newspaper advertising, your hangers, the printed matter you distribute, the windows you trim, the clerks you employ—everything we do and everything you do is practically wasted effort if the demonstration of the Phonograph fails to convince.

If it fails it is the fault of the demonstrator. Given a Phonograph in perfect working order, properly oiled and adjusted, an Edison Record that is free from defects and a demonstrator who knows his business, and the Phonograph convinces.

Its sweet tone and faithful reproduction of the singing voice and notes of instruments carry conviction. It proves itself better than any claim ever made for it. It bears out the enthusiastic endorsement of those who own one. It sells itself.

But it suffers in inexperienced or careless hands. It must be wound; it must be oiled; it must be properly adjusted; it must be given perfect Records to play.

Do you understand your Phonographs as well as you should? Are they always in order? Do you take the time to demonstrate them so as to bring out the best that is in them? Are your Records so arranged that you can instantly change from a topical song to a grand opera selection, thus exhibiting its wide range of entertainment?

You cannot sell an instrument for which you must apologize. The Edison Phonograph needs no excuses. All it needs is a fair show.

Please see that it gets it.

The Phonograph Part of Your Store

No matter how you sell Phonographs—whether they are a side line in a big store, or whether you have a store which sells nothing but Phonographs—there are certain things which will make any Phonograph business better.

Never forget that selling Phonographs is an art.

The demand for Phonographs, even with our tremendous advertising, is an acquired demand.

People can be counted upon to buy food and clothing. Nature attends to the one, and custom to the other; but amusements, into which class the Phonograph falls, are a matter of acquired taste.

Therefore, the way to sell people Phonographs and Records is to remind them constantly that they want them. The desire for amusement is in everybody.

The Phonograph will always attract attention. Therefore, remember that the Phonograph is its own best advertisement. Keep one going in your store, and in the window in the evening when the people are on the streets. Keep your window full of Phonograph suggestions. Show and advertise the new Records, and remember that to the man who has not heard it, an old Record is just as good as a new one. Not enough old Records are sold. Both the Dealer and his customers get too interested in the new ones, but the profit on the old ones is just as good, and there are more of them; so do not forget the old Records for the new.

The Successful Store

Do you realize that if you have good store methods, good advertising and good window display, you have every advantage of the largest and most successful department store in the world?

You like to sell goods just to sell them.

The methods used by the successful stores are the best methods for all.

Bring the people to your store as often as possible. When in the store, keep them as interested as possible, and keep your windows full of your goods. This applies to any kind of goods, but we are interested in applying it to Phonographs and Records.

The business of the National Phonograph Company is not only the largest Phonograph business in the world, but it is one of the largest enterprises of any kind. Millions of Phonographs and many more millions of Records have been sold. The entire business has been built up by advertising. We have made people want something that they never knew they wanted before, by our advertising.

Certainly you can make the people in your town want it by your advertising. By "your advertising" we do not mean printed ads in the papers. We mean the advertising of the store itself, the windows and the display of the goods in front of the store.

There is nothing that reminds a man (or a woman) that he wants a Phonograph so much as seeing it every day, except hearing it every day. It is a good thing to make people in your town see a Phonograph every day. It is still better to make them hear it every day.

The Youngest Artist

A Dealer writes the following interesting letter:

A recent article on Home Made Records in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY strikes me as being of some importance. I have a record of my baby girl's voice at twenty-six hours old, also one at two weeks old. Expect to make one occasionally; they are well worth the price.

I don't know of a younger singer for the National Phonograph Co. than my two and one-half weeks old daughter. Of course she does not do so well as some of the older artists, but in my opinion she is simply great.

I hope to be able to play these records to her when she is old enough to deny crying as the recorder has recorded her cry on one of these blank records.

One of our Western salesmen a few days ago received a letter from an Edison Dealer in his territory, in which, after expressing an opinion of his own concerning the merit of Edison goods, said: "Another and more convincing proof is that out of forty-six members present at a recent meeting of the Musicians' Union of Duluth, twenty-six were owners of talking machines and twenty-two of these were Edisons. That, in my estimation, is quite a good 'tall' for your machine and its reproducing merits."

If you didn't read the article beginning on page 6, better do so now.

How to Win

Few of the great inventions of history have been the work of any one man. They have been evolved by many clever men, each taking up the work where his predecessor left off.

It's the same way when it comes to business. The way to succeed is to take the successful methods of others and improve on them.

When you see a good Phonograph window, sit down at your desk and frame up one to beat it. Do it right away while your dander is up.

When you run across a good advertisement, see if it does not contain a suggestion for your own advertising. If it does, jot it down before it slips you.

Again, if other Edison Dealers find that Free Daily Concerts are the biggest factor in their success, why shouldn't you find them just as profitable?

If other Dealers sell on the weekly-payment plan and increase their sales all the way to 500 per cent., what's to hinder your doing the same?

And if other Dealers find the losses on time-payment sales average less than 1-10 of 1 per cent., why shouldn't you be equally fortunate?

When a mail order house can ship Phonographs hundreds of miles away to people they never heard of—about whose honesty they know nothing—and collect their payments regularly, why can't you sell on installments to people you can find out everything about?

Which is better and more businesslike—to put in your time worrying about competition from catalog houses, or to simply show a small part of their business hustle, and see that they do not sell the people whose trade you should get on an even basis?

You haven't any right to expect a man to buy a Phonograph of you if you will not treat him as liberally as somebody else will, even if he does know you personally and your competitor is a stranger.

For instance, why should the people of your community pay you cash for a Phonograph if they haven't the cash and somebody else offers them the same outfit on weekly payments?

If a man prefers to buy for cash, well and good, but the majority would prefer to buy on time—nowadays especially.

If a firm gives a man a picture of an outfit, tells him just what it consists of and then offers to send it on free trial, without any risk or obligation on the customer, and then let him pay for it on easy terms, he is apt to do business with that firm unless he knows that you will meet the offer.

Right here is your opportunity. You know nobody can sell the Edison Phonograph for less than you can. Now you do as well for your customer as anybody else will and see to it that he knows you will. That is to say, advertise in your newspapers.

Some Dealers (there are not so many as there were, and the number is steadily decreasing)—some Dealers claim that the extensive advertising of the mail order house puts them at a disadvantage.

But a lot of others say the opposite, and we know the latter are right. They say it is a great advantage, for this reason: Such advertising creates a great demand for the goods—so great that people send hundreds of miles away to get them. That shows how badly they want them.

Now, if you yourself advertise, why can't you turn their desire to own an Edison Phonograph to your own account? They had rather buy of you and save express, delays, breakage, etc., than from a stranger hundreds of miles away who has no interest in them beyond the sale.

The mail order advertisement can be read only about once a month. Your daily paper will carry your advertisement thirty times a month if you say so.

Why They Get Tired

The Phonograph owners who get tired of their machines the quickest are those who have no regular place in which to keep their Phonographs and Records.

Suppose the Phonograph was played last night. Madam Housekeeper finds it in her way the next morning when she is sweeping and dusting, and consigns the machine to an out-of-the-way corner and the Records to a drawer or closet.

"Out of sight, out of mind," you know. There's an effort required to give another Phonograph concert. After a time both Phonograph and Records are apt to remain in seclusion, if they are not easily accessible, for, naturally enough, the Phonograph will not be used nearly so often if it does not have its regular niche in the home, the same as the piano or organ.

And when the Records are simply kept in their cartons, it is hard to find a drawer or shelf to accommodate them. The more Records, the harder the task. Not only that, but it's slow work finding the wanted Record.

What's the answer?

Sell your Phonograph owners a Record cabinet as soon as possible after he pays for the Phonograph.

It makes a nice, attractive piece of furniture—an ornament to the best room in the house—and it guarantees the Phonograph and Records a regular place, where the outfit can be seen and heard and admired by visitors.

A Phonograph owner can not afford to do without a cabinet, and you can not afford to have him do without, for it makes a tremendous difference in Record sales.

Printed Matter

During the past few weeks we have been shipping Jobbers small quantities of the new Order Sheets for Standard and Amberol Records. They have been corrected to date, and should be used by large Dealers for ordering stock Records from Jobbers. The Standard sheets (A, B, C & D) bear Form No. 1450, and the Amberol (No. 1) Form 1455. Don't bother your Jobbers with a request for a supply, unless you are buying a quantity of Records regularly which makes ordering on your own stationery an inconvenience.

With this issue we are mailing direct to every Dealer a copy of the new numerical and alphabetical catalogue, Form No. 1500. This is dated February 1st, but includes all Records, both Standard, Amberol, Grand Opera and Foreign listed in this country to April. The Records issued in March and April are shown at the end of those listed to February. With the catalogue is also mailed a special slip showing the May list of Standard and Amberol Records, (numerically arranged) for the purpose of pasting in the new titles in the proper departments. This slip will be made a feature each month, so that the catalogue may always be kept up to date. Dealers are asked to look for their copies of this catalogue and keep it for store use. Do not let customers coax them away, for you may not be able to get another copy, the edition being limited. Since copies will be mailed to Dealers direct, Jobbers will only require a small extra supply for emergencies. These will be sent on request.

The present size of the new style Record Bulletin (19 x 25) seems likely to be continued for some time to come, if not indefinitely, and it ought to be treated by the trade as a permanent form. We know of no better way to use it than to have a frame made in which to place it each month. It is nicely printed on good paper and placed behind glass in a frame will make a display good enough for any show window. Or if a frame is too expensive, a board a little larger than 19 x 25 might be arranged with strips top and bottom to hold the Bulletin smooth and show to good advantage.

Perhaps some of our ingenious Dealers would like to tell us how they display the Bulletin. We would like to print a page or two giving the best of these suggestions, and we know that the entire trade will find them interesting and beneficial.

New Jobbers at Seattle.

The Bruce & Brown Co. succeeded Kohler & Chase, Inc., on February 1st, as Edison Jobbers at Seattle, Wash. C. E. Brown, vice-president of the new concern, was formerly in charge of the talking machine department of Kohler & Chase, at San Francisco and Oakland, Cal. Mr. Bruce is well-known throughout the Trade in the far West. Mr. Brown, in writing us recently says: "We have moved into our new warerooms, and believe we will have, in time, the finest Jobbing house in your line in the United States. The writer will call on each Dealer in this territory at least once every six weeks, soliciting orders for your goods exclusively."

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Miss Madeline Edison and Master Theodore Edison, left Orange on Tuesday, February 16th, to spend two months or more at Fort Meyers, Fla., where Mr. Edison has a plantation. Mr. Edison was sixty-two years old on February 11th.

George M. Nesbitt, manager of the Chicago office of the National Phonograph Co. until it was discontinued and more recently manager of the Jobbing Department of Babson Bros., Chicago, has returned to the National Phonograph Co. and been appointed manager of the Mexico City branch, vice L. L. Lewis, resigned. Mr. Nesbitt assumed charge on February 1st.

E. H. Phillips, Credit Manager of the National Phonograph Co., spent two weeks last month visiting various Jobbers in Ohio. He also attended the convention of the National Manufacturers' Association, at Indianapolis, Ind., February 16 and 17.

F. K. Dolbeer, General Sales Manager of the National Phonograph Co., made a short visit to Toronto last month. Returning, he stopped at Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady and Albany.

The Phonograph of To-day

The Phonograph of yesterday was first one of the most famous and astonishing of American inventions. After that it became a mechanism for recording business correspondence—wonderful in its efficiency and economy for that purpose, yet meaning nothing whatever to the public at large in recreation and culture.

The Phonograph of to-day is another instrument altogether. If you are familiar only with the Phonograph of yesterday you owe it as a duty to yourself and family to become acquainted with the Phonograph of here and now. What this newer instrument is you can learn right in your own community, and it is what it is largely through the magazines.

Magazine advertising has put the talking machine into every nook and corner of the nation—of the world. Demand created by magazine advertising has enabled the various manufacturers to undertake research, find new substances, develop more delicate mechanism, and, above all things, safely invest the large capital needed in the making of fine Records for the in-strument.

In your own home to-day, no matter where you live, the world's great opera singers will sing their greatest parts for you, your family, your friends, at a first cost far less than would be paid for a few performances of opera in New York, even if you could go there. You can hear these singers again and again at your own convenience. Your talking machine will bring you songs of singers yes to rise into prominence, and keep the voices of the singers of the present at command years after they themselves have gone into retirement.

The capital invested in securing these Records for you would subsidize half the state opera in Europe. Yet they are yours at the cost of street music if you appreciate them, along with instrumental music of highest quality. For the magazines have provided for the new Phonograph a vast national audience of interested patrons, making the investment possible. That is why an authority stated, just the other day, that "the magazines have really made the Phonograph, and it is not possible to imagine the present instrument without them."

In 1909 our Phonograph industry was grouped with electrical supplies by the census-taker—not big enough then to be classed separately. Five years later it had to be classed alone, and to-day few of our industries are growing faster.

Only a few dealers sold the Phonograph ten years ago, while to-day there are seventeen thousand dealers in the United States taking care of local demand for the Phonograph. Moreover, each sale of an instrument means not merely a sale, but a permanent future connection in supplying Records. When a dealer sells a Phonograph he has made, not merely a customer, but a client.

Lauder Visits Edison

Harry Lauder, the Scotch vaudeville artist, who has made fourteen Records for the Edison catalogue, was a visitor at the Orange factory on February 6. He spent some time with Mr. Edison and met several officials of the Edison companies.

Closed for Inventory

The fiscal year of the Edison companies ended on February 28th, and the factories at Orange, N. J., were closed from February 26th to March 2d, to take inventory.

A New One

L. W. Broyles, an Edison Dealer at San Marcial, N. M., has hit upon a novel and interesting plan for selling Records, which, he says, lands him a great many machine sales as well.

There are a great many people who do not own Phonographs, but who come into the store often and ask to hear their favorite Records. Mr. Broyles' plan is to sell them the Records at the regular price and charge for playing them.

He keeps different customers' Records in separate trays and has tags on which he marks their names and the date on which the rental runs out.

He charges by the month for playing the Records—60 cents for three; 75 cents for six, and so on. The Record belongs to the customer and can be taken away if he wishes. At the same time the Dealer has the use of them for demonstrating to others and can even sell any he wishes, replacing them later.

Mr. Broyles says that he has a number of renting customers and that they are mostly unmarried men, who board, or who do not have the money to buy a Phonograph at the time. They get half a dozen or more Records almost before they know it, however, and when a customer begins to buy Records by this plan, it is a moral certainty he will own a Phonograph before very long.

Phonograph in Religious Work

The Phonograph is rapidly making its way into every walk of life, but it is becoming especially popular in church and Sunday-school work. The papers almost daily print articles describing such uses by ministers and others in religious work. John T. Dickinson, Edison Dealer at Abingdon, Ill., sends a programme of a sacred concert given by him at the opening exercises of the First M. E. Sunday School on January 24th. About 350 were present and the concert was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Dickinson sends the programme as follows:

PROGRAMME.

Concert Band, "William Tell Overture."
Duet, "The Glory Song" Anthony and Harrison
Mixed Quartet, "The King's Business."
Duet, "My Mother's Bible" Anthony and Harrison
Orchestra, "Angels Serenade."
Tenor Solo, "The Holy City" Reed Miller
Bass Solo, "Calvary" James Harrison
Mixed Quartet, "Sweet Bye-and-Bye."

A Business-Getting Letter

L. R. Porter, Brockton, Mass., is one of the many Edison Dealers who recognize the importance of getting Phonograph owners to put on Amberol attachments. The form letter he uses in going after this business covers the ground thoroughly. It is an excellent letter for Dealers to copy who would like to circularize their trade, but don't know just what to say. Mr. Porter also has the right idea in offering to put on the attachments and allowing plenty of time in which to pay for them:

DEAR SIR:

Have you as yet equipped your Edison Phonograph with the attachment so as to play the new Edison Four-Minute Amberol Records?

You will never get all the pleasure there is in your machine until you have some of these new Records. You remember how much you enjoyed it when you first bought it, and with these new Records it will be new to you again and worth much more.

After putting on the attachment you can play either the old or new Records at will. The Edison Company have already issued a large and varied list of these new Records, and are making more each month.

If you have not yet heard these new Records we invite you to call and decide for yourself if they are not the best music you have ever heard.

Remember, we will put the attachment on your machine, and you can pay for same on weekly payments. "We don't ask you to pay cash for it."

Trusting you will give this matter your careful consideration and favor us with your order at once, we remain, very truly yours,

New Use for the Phonograph

"No mail to-day."

"Why?"

"Landslide at Punta Gorda."

"Where are you, George?" and then the Phonograph began to reel off one of the popular songs of the day.

The conversation noted above took place in the local post office, on Friday, where George P. Austin, manager of the Oxnard branch of the Southern California Music Company had placed a Phonograph to disseminate the important information that all trains were tied up and no mail could be expected.

Mr. Austin prepared the Record himself, and the voice reproduction was so perfect that callers at the office believed Mr. Austin was giving the information personally, and the conversation between the Phonograph and one of our prominent citizens is said to have actually taken place.

The idea was a clever bit of advertising, and no small convenience to Uncle Sam's patrons, many of whom commended Mr. Austin's thoughtfulness and enterprise.

One lady was so pleased with the Phonograph's work that she repaired immediately to the store and bought a machine "just like the one in the post office."

The foregoing clipping from an Oxnard, Cal., paper was sent in by the South California Music Company, who also wrote as follows:

As stated, the trains were held up by landslides and washouts due to heavy rains. There is no free delivery in Oxnard, and the postmaster was pestered continually by inquiries as to mail, and if any trains had come in. Our manager, Mr. Austin, went down and asked the same question and the postmaster remarked that he wished he had a Phonograph there to answer that question, which was put to him many times a day. Mr. Austin was prompt to act on the idea, and immediately went back to the store, made an Edison Record to answer the question and took the outfit down to the post office. Scores of people listened to the novel use to which the Phonograph was put. The closing paragraph of the article is strictly true. The daughter of the postmaster at once called at our store and purchased an Edison Phonograph as a result. The postmaster stated that the Phonograph was no small convenience, as after it was installed whenever the mail question was asked of him, he simply started the Phonograph lever.

The Dealers who are constantly complaining of the "methods employed by mail-order houses," should not over-look the "How to Win" article appearing on page 8.

How to Put in a New Main Spring

To put a new mainspring in a Standard or Home Phonograph, unscrew and take the machine from the cabinet.

Spread a clean sheet of paper on the counter and lay the mechanism down so as to get access to the lower works.

The next step is to remove the governor shaft and the governor. This is done by loosening the pivot screw at the right end, so as to pull the governor pivot out, when the shaft can be removed.

Next take the small spring off the speed-adjusting lever.

There are four screws at the corners of the movement containing the gears. They hold the movement to the motor frame. Loosen the screws and lift the movement and spring barrel off the motor frame.

Now the barrel is to be taken apart from the movement so as to get at the mainspring which is inside. To do this slip the screw driver in between the winding gear and the barrel. This will release the shaft from the rest of the movement so that the spring barrel can be separated.

The top of the barrel will fall away readily leaving the spring exposed to full view. The inside end of the spring has a hole which fastens on a hook in the winding shaft. The outside end has a hole which fastens on a hook in the side of the barrel. When the spring is wound, only the winding shaft turns. When it is unwound, the barrel turns and not the shafts.

If the spring in winding does not retain enough tension to drive the mechanism, it may mean that the spring is broken or slipped from the hook in the barrel or shaft, or that either hook is broken.

If the shaft hook is worn or broken, all that's required is to remove it, put in a new one securely and slip the spring into place. There is no necessity for removing the spring.

If the trouble is in the barrel hook's being broken, take out the spring, drive out the part of the hook still in the barrel, replace and rivet, being careful not to batter the hook head.

If the spring is broken in two, a new one must be put in. To take the broken spring out, catch it firmly in the center with a pair of pliers, hold it off a little way and over a box or barrel in which a cloth or paper has been placed. Now give it a sudden jerk away from you, letting everything go into the box. This will allow the spring to uncoil in the box where it can do no damage and at the same time will protect the gear from injury. The illustration is made to show the manner in which the spring unwinds, but it must not be held in the hand after starting.

New springs come tied up with a stout wire. Lay the new one down with the outside end pointing to your left hand; with a hammer tap the wire down to within half an inch of the lower edge.

Next lay the spring in the barrel with the outside end of the coil pointing to your right hand. It will not work if it is put in pointing to the left.

It will not go all the way down because of the wire's being around it. Make the slot on the outside of the spring lie about an inch to the right of the hook in the side of the barrel. Place the screw driver, or a flat piece of iron, on the edge of the barrel under the wire and knock the spring down with a hammer. Do not strike it too hard. Force it down and out of the binding wire by degrees. See the foregoing illustration.

After it slips in is a good time to apply graphite. Make a paste of graphite and oil and lay right on the leaves of the spring.

Now place the top of the spring barrel on and twist it to the left. This will cause the hooks on the shaft and barrel to catch in the holes at both ends of the spring.

Put the mechanism back in place by the reverse of the method, used in taking it apart.

A Mechanical Department

The number of letters received daily by our Factory Superintendents is proof positive that there is need of a department in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for answering questions about the mechanical side of Edison goods. Many of these questions are of a character that will make replies to them interesting to the entire trade. We have arranged to maintain a department of this kind if the trade will show enough interest in its maintenance to ask questions. Some questions cannot be answered in this way and we will reserve the right to reply by mail to all such. No attention will be paid to letters not properly signed. In answering questions we prefer to use the names of Dealers, but will use initials only when so requested. We print below a blank coupon. If interested, fill in your question and mail it to the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, Orange, N. J.

Dealers Read This

Following is a reprint of a circular used by C. J. Brown, Edison Dealer at Bartlett, Neb.:

Actually now, don't you want an Edison Phonograph this winter? How can you improve your home as much with so little outlay in any other way? Of the thousands who have bought Edisons none need them more than we who are "pioneering" in Nebraska. You can hear as grand a sermon as any city dweller if you have Bryan's "Immorality" and the Edison. No city choir renders finer hymns than the Phonograph. No city theatre can show as great and varied a line of talent as the Edison owner has at his command. It educates the children. It teaches them what good music is. It keeps them posted on the latest popular music, or familiarizes them with the grand old classics.

$30 buys the Standard Phonograph, equipped with large horn and with attachment for playing both the Two-Minute Record and the new Four-Minute Record, the greatest recent advance in the talking-machine world.

We make it easy for you to buy and pay for the Edison. Don't be misled by mail order Edison Dealers. They can give you no better price than we can. They cannot fill your orders as promptly as we can. If you have to pay freight you are out just that much. We place the machine in your home and you assume no risk from breakage or damage on the road. Just drop us a card with your name and address and say "I want to be posted on the Edison Phonograph and your easy-payment plan." Write it to-day.

The Dealer who goes after business in this manner gets all there is in his vicinity, and he fears no competition. We commend the circular to every Edison Dealer.

Hadn't this striking Two-Page Advertisement in the leading magazines for March ought to help you sell Edison Phonographs and Records?

Thomas A. Edison did another wonderful thing lately

HAVING brought his Phonograph to a point where not even the most critical could ask for improvement, he multiplied its entertaining ability by two.

He did this by producing a Phonograph Record that plays, sings or talks twice as long as the standard Edison Records.

He did this without increasing the size of the Record, making it a Record that can be used on old instruments as well as new.

He did it without affecting in any way the clear, rich, musical tones for which Edison Records have always been famous.

He calls this double-length Record "Amberol."

Doubtless you have heard sound reproducing instruments; perhaps you have had it in mind to buy one; maybe you are uncertain as to which make to buy: but — —

Have you heard

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

Thomas A. Edison

play an Amberol Record?

YOU can do this at the store of any Edison dealer. When you go, note the Amberol music, not found on any other record of any kind; note also the reproducing point of the Edison Phonograph that never wears out and never needs changing; the motor, that runs as silently and as evenly as an electric device, and the special horn, so shaped that it gathers every note or spoken word and brings it out with startling fidelity. It is these exclusive features, vital to perfect work, that should claim your attention.

Edison Phonographs are sold at the same prices everywhere in the United States, $19.50 to $125.00.

Amberol Records, 50c.; regular Edison Records, 35c.; Grand Opera Records, 75c.

One of the greatest pleasures which the Edison Phonograph affords is making Records at home. This can be done only with the Edison.

Ask your dealer or write to us for catalogues of Edison Phonographs and Records.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

F. E. Grist, Ft. Gaines, Ga.—It may not be much to boast of, but it so happens that the National Phonograph Co. can claim and substantiate the fact that their "Dealer" in Fort Gaines, Ga., is the largest Dealer in United States (retail) in any Phonograph or talking machine goods, measured by population.

The place has not over 2,500 population. Has any other talking machine company a dealer in this size place who devotes a building especially fixed, glass front, 25x105 feet, on the most public street, with another music hall on next popular street, built for the Edison, carrying more stock in this second place than any competitor, both places owned by the Edison Dealer, who is out of debt (don't owe $1) and ahead? I am no new beginner. I was a ———— man until 1901; since then I have used Edisons only. I simply write to let you know I am alive. I sell in Alabama, and in the adjoining counties. The new Amberol is great. If I thought it could do good, I could give some advice to Dealers in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. I make sales by carrying a stock of Records. 300 or 400 Records is no stock even for small villages, and the Dealer will find an investment in 4,000 or 5,000 will add to the number of his sales and pay well for his investment.

[We feel sure that other Dealers will be glad to benefit by Mr. Grist's experience and will appreciate any contribution he may make to this department.]

J. B. Snee, Climax, Minn.—As a Dealer in Edison Phonographs and Records, I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on Stock of Records for small country towns, and kind of assortment. The things I liked best in the January issue were the article of A. W., retiling an Edison Home and twenty Records for $42 cash, in place of thirty-six thrown in. Now, how could that other fellow "throw in" and hold his "job" with the Edison family?

[There is nothing more difficult for us than to attempt to say what the stock should be carried in a small country town and of what selections it should consist. The size of a stock depends upon local conditions. Population is not always a guide. We know of towns of less than 1,000 population where Dealers find it pays to carry the entire Domestic Catalogue. Other Dealers in towns of the same size find that a stock of 500 meets every requirement. We believe that no Dealer, having no Edison competition in his town, should carry less than 500 different selections, and he should add to it as fast as his trade warrants. A stock of 500 Standard Records represents an outlay of $100 the interest upon which is $5. Every Record sold represents a profit of 75 per cent. on the cost. The profits on Amberol Records are larger still. What stock of any other kind can a Dealer carry that pays a better profit? As to what selections should make up a stock of 500 Records depends upon where a town is located. A list that would do for New England would not do for the Southern States. "Marching Thro' Georgia" is all right for a Northern town, but it would be dead stock in the South. Certain Records are always good, as, for instance, the old-time melodies, sacred selections, lively band airs, violin selections, especially the lively dance music, rube sketches, etc. Make a study of the Domestic Catalogue and get your jobber to assist you. Or ask him to submit a list and then check it against a Catalogue to see how your own judgment agrees with his.

The Dealer referred to by A. W. in the January issue will not retain his "job in the Edison family" if we can "catch him with the goods." We are more anxious than ever to eliminate this kind of Dealers. This is a good way to reduce the number in a town where there are more than needed.]

W. B. Tracy, a Dealer at Clinton, Iowa, includes in all his newspaper advertisements a coupon addressed to himself, and reading as follows:

"I am an Edison Phonograph owner and desire to have my name on your mailing list, so I may receive the Phonograph literature which you send out to Phonograph owners each month free of charge."

He claims that they bring him many good Record customers. This is merely a suggestion for those Dealers who haven't mailing lists now, and who desire to start one with little effort.

Louis Tyler, Monroeville, O.—New Attachments and Amberol Records are a big success with us. What is the correct definition of Amberol?

[Amberol is a coined word, and has no definition. It is simply the name of the new Edison Record. It means no more than "Ultra-Fine" does to a certain brand of soda-cracker or "Sapolio" to a cleaning compound.]

Charles J. Pommert, Greenfield, O.—I am sending you two photographs showing the way I carry Edison Records. The rack takes up only 8 feet and 4 inches of space, and holds 1,692 Records. The photograph shows the complete list of American, Amberol and Lauder up to February, 1909. I find this a fine way to carry Records. When one is sold out the space is empty till I get another of the same number. The nice part of it is I can find any Record asked for in a few seconds, and when it comes to ordering Records sold out there is no trouble to tell what numbers I am out of. The little block keeps Records from rolling together when a Record is taken out. The list is a little too large for rack now, but I have another rack about like this one for duplicate Records, and with the two I get along fine. You will notice some little three-cornered pieces of white paper on some of the boxes. That is the duplicates, or rather, numbers I have two or more of. I like the new label, as you see now nice they show up in this rack. I now have in stock over 2,100 Records.

[We regret that we cannot spare space to a reproduction of the two photographs referred to. The important feature is that the Records lie flat, with the top labels facing out. They are placed on shelves just far enough apart for one Record carton. The rack has 36 Records on each shelf and there are 47 shelves.]

O. J. Reynolds, Springfield, Ill.—Our copy of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY reached us to-day. We are always glad to receive it, and think it is getting brighter and better with every issue. I was especially interested in the article on demonstrations. I consider this one of the very best forms of advertising and a sure way of obtaining good live prospects.

We never lose an opportunity of demonstrating an instrument, and are always ready and willing to furnish churches, lodges, clubs, and social gatherings with a Phonograph, and it has become the custom of several of these organizations to call on us whenever they have any form of entertainment. We make it a rule always to have printed programmes, folders, or cards to hand to each guest, and by this a great many of our forms have gotten into prospective customers' homes. You will find that any of the above societies are willing to give you all the co-operation necessary in getting the advertising matter distributed.

Recently one of the great celebrities gave a concert in this city, and we arranged to give a musical to a number of the patrons after the concert. We played them Records of this singer's voice, and they were loud in their praise, so we felt that the talking they would do outside the store was bound to do us some good.

Another good form of demonstrating we have tried with success is to get the best music teachers to bring their pupils to the store of an evening, and there give them an hour's programme of classical and operatic music. We can now, on very short notice, arrange one of these concerts without any trouble at all.

C. B. Bergen, San Rafael, Cal.—I cannot refrain from writing you a few words of appreciation of your line of business, and the opportunities it brings to the music dealer during dull times. Here in San Rafael it has rained, I think, every day but three in the last thirty-three days, and this would indicate depression of business itself, but I must confess that the Edison goods have been the means of keeping myself within the bounds of safety financially. Your whole layout is far in advance of all others and occupies my first attention, for I recognize in it a great business, particularly on account of the new Amberol Record, and the omission of announcements. I have customers who say they do not play the Two-Minute Record any more on enthusiastic are they over the longer one. I am pleased to note in the list of April you have increased the issue and another improvement has had telling effect already—cap labels. Your PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is a source of interest and instruction. I have, I think, all that you have sent me, and often refer to them, as was the case with the cut-out Records.

J. Doersam, Waterloo, Ont., Can.—Allow me to congratulate S. L. Canary, of Lebanon, Ky., in the February EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, on the idea of the three days' free offer of putting out Phonographs to prospective purchasers. I tried it and it works immense. I am sending out a lot of Phonograms and monthly lists of Records to Phonograph owners in Waterloo and vicinity, and find it pays. I keep a well-selected stock of Gem, Standard, Home and Triumph Phonographs and Two and Four-Minute Records. I have a standing order for the latest Two and Four-Minute Records every month. Talk about old Edison Phonographs! I have had one in my store for nearly thirteen years, and it is as good as ever, since I put on a large horn and crane. There is no wear out to Edisons if kept oiled well. Same as Messrs. Daspits Sons, Ltd., Houma, La., would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on form of contract or lease for selling on installment plan.

H. C. Linnell, Blanchard, Mich.—I want to call your attention to a few things I think that are important. I have been an Edison Dealer for some time, and I find that it is not altogether the handsome profit that we derive from the Phonograph business, but it calls a great number of people to our places of business, and therefore gives merchants a good chance to sell the callers other articles.

J. French, of Ionia, Mich., called at my store and wished to sell me ——— machines, also to give me a stock of 1,000 Records. The price of his machine was $55. I put it beside my $35 Home and played them both. Every one present said that the Edison had it outclassed a hundred times. Before French left he told me he was an Edison Dealer and wished to cut out all other machines and keep nothing but the Edison machines.

Isn't this a good ad for the Edison machine?

In regard to the Edison Phonograph Monthly, will state that I do not believe that any one could publish a book that would be more beneficial than this pamphlet. The only thing I do not like about it is that we do not get them often enough. I take several magazines, but when I get the Monthly I lay them all aside and read it. I also keep them where I can have them to refer to.

I am going to make a suggestion that if we could only get one each week and pay $1 or $2 for it, I believe that it would be money well spent.

There are a great number of things I would like to mention, but not being a very good composer, but an enthusiastic Phonograph Dealer, and like to learn all I can in regard to the business.

[The Editor of the Phonograph Monthly appreciates the nice things Mr. Linnell says about the publication, but doubts if enough subscribers could be secured for a weekly issue to pay half the cost of printing, to say nothing of the cost of editing it. We will be entirely satisfied if we can get all Dealers to read one issue a month.]

Jurgens & Walker, of Sutton, West Va., send a printed programme of a concert given in their store, and write: "The three concerts that have been held by us have been handicapped by bad weather, but we hope to hold a concert soon, distinguished by both good music and fair weather. The audiences have always been extremely appreciative, though smaller than we wished. The Edison Phonograph will be a feature of our Spring fountain opening and all gala days."

C. M. Johnson Music Co., Parsons, Kan.—We want to take this opportunity to state that the new Amberol Record is the best thing we have had in a long time as a trade tonic, and believe it should be applied in liberal doses. While we have never handled any other cylinder machine than the Edison, we believe the recent step of the National Phonograph Company was thoroughly justified, and that a Dealer handling a good thirty-five-cent Record is better off by a long ways than the one handling a cheaper one of poor quality. We are also greatly pleased with the Record Exchange, and think it as fair as a company could possibly make with the interests of so many Jobbers and Dealers to be considered.

Robert C. Peck, Manager Talking Machine Department, A. S. Cook Co., Woonsocket, R. I.—We issue regularly each month a small four-page folder for the use of our Phonograph department. In the latest issue we have originated a plan for disposing of some of our surplus stock of certain Records. It appears to work well. Possibly other Dealers could use the scheme to good advantage. The article in question is headed "Edison Records You'd Like to Have." The following paragraph heads a list of twenty selections:

"To aid you in your selection of real entertainment, we offer the following list taken from our immense stock of over 1,500 numbers. We'd be pleased to have you hear them."

W. E. Bailey, Grand Ledge, Mich.—I wish to thank my brother Dealers for their information in the Edison Monthly. The February issue hits on a very good idea, I think, to have Dealers cooperate and work together. Each Dealer might ret aside one hour or more each month. I am ready, for one. I wish to thank one Dealer in particular for information concerning advertising by putting large horn outside of door, and have rubber tube run to Phonograph equipped with repeater. You may put what you wish on a blank record. For instance, ring a loud bell, then ask the ladies and gentlemen to call and hear the late Records or some great singer. Fix this to suit yourself. I find this a very successful way. I run two music rooms. If I ran six I should handle nothing but the Edison fine. I will be pleased to hear from any brother Dealer.

W. R. Auenbaum, Grant Park, Ill.—Amberol Records are taking hold in good shape here, and you have met a very popular demand in leaving off the announcements. The Phonograph Monthly is getting more interesting each month.

The Agency Co., Galveston, Texas.—We have received the Edison Phonograph Monthly for February. We always make it a point to read this publication upon its receipt, and we are very much interested in the editorial comment upon "Co-operation," and believe the time is ripe for the Dealers in every State to get "acquainted," and for a great deal of mutual good. We agree with you that they should come together and form an organization and to this end we are willing to do more than our part. If you will send us a list of the Texas Dealers we shall take great pleasure in formulating a circular and send to each and every Dealer, asking him to consider the proposition to establish a Texas Dealers' Association. At this time we do not believe we should go outside of our State for members, as it will become too cumbersome to handle properly.

[We regard our list of Dealers as the property of Jobbers who send Agreements to us, and following our invariable custom we were compelled to deny the above request for the names of Texas Dealers. We would suggest that all such Texas Dealers as are interested in the suggestion to form a State Association should send their names to the Agency Co., J. N. Swanson, manager.]

C. E. Holmes, Ames, Iowa.—It might interest some of your Dealers to know how a great number of Blank Records can be sold. We have a recorder and recording horn that we loan to our customers—let them use it free of charge—and it is wonderful how it increases Blank Record sales. We have one customer that has "borrowed" our recording outfit six different times, and each time he bought from five to seven Records (blanks). Every little bit helps, and there is good money in Blank Records.

James W. Atherton, Monence, Ill.—Amberol Records, new labels, no announcements and new attachments for machines are all big steps in advance. Your Monthly is all O. K., and read every word. I fill wagons at least once a week with talking machine ads. Have a large mailing list to whom I mail the Phonogram and other matters of interest. Keep big stock of Records—the bigger, the more trade you will get. Advertise. Ask customers as to kind of Records they like best, then play best of this kind. Get a sidewalk blackboard and change ads often. Have concerts. Sell on installments. Your answer to C. L. Clark on "Record Exchange" in February issue was "just right." Success to you.

[Mr. Atherton has given in a condensed form the principles upon which to do a successful business in Edison goods.]

J. H. Snyder, Lavelle, Pa.—As a Dealer in Edison Phonographs and Records I would like to see an article in the Phonograph Monthly on "Peddling Phonograph Records from House to House." I notice some Dealers are in the peddling business. The thing I liked best in the January issue was "Store Management."

[We hope that Mr. Snyder is not taking exceptions to this method of selling Phonographs, for in certain sparsely settled sections of the country it is a most necessary way of getting business. In other sections it is possibly less dignified and not necessary to success. We will be glad to print a letter from some Dealer who has made a success of it, telling of the plan upon which he works and other details.]

Daniel H. McRae, Glencoe, Ont.—As a Dealer in Edison Phonographs and Records, I would like to see an article in the Phonograph Monthly on renting Phonographs for concert or parlor use. Is such done by Dealers, and if so what charges for same? The things I liked best in the February issue were ready-made ads.

[We confess that we do not know to what extent Phonographs are rented, or under what conditions it is done. We know that many Dealers have loaned Phonographs to churches, societies, clubs, etc., for a night or two at a time, and have found themselves well repaid because of the advertising it gave them. We do not know what has been the charge, if one was made. Will not some Dealers who have rented machines write the Phonograph Monthly of their experience, for the benefit of Mr. McRae and other Edison Dealers?]

John S. Rice, Port Byron, N. Y.—While reading the February Monthly, it was quite amusing to me, as I travel quite a good deal for the Edison goods. I find many Dealers without much stock on hand complaining of poor sales, and that I am taking away their trade. I find that it pays to advertise and to travel around a little. My trade is 75 per cent. better than it was last year. I can say that in forty miles travel the last six weeks the trade of the Amberol Records and the attachments are fifty per cent. better. Some of our Dealers would like to see the snow so deep that I couldn't get through usually, but I've got quite a channel and a good strong train and expect to keep pushing ahead.

Earl J. G. Lovett, Titusville, Pa.—The following circular letter, which I am sending out to the names on my mailing list with the March Record Supplements and Phonograms, may be of some interest to "The Other 13,000":

I am enclosing, with the March Record list, a stamped addressed envelope. I want you to use this: I want you to make me a list of your favorite Records. I am asking this of each talking machine owner in this section of the country. When my replies are all received I will make up a list of Favorite Records and mail you one. This will, no doubt, interest you and may aid you in making your future Record selections. Look over your Records, put down the numbers of your favorites and send them to me at once. I will do as much to accommodate you when I can.

E. A. Keony, Winthorp, N. Y.—I would like to see an article in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY on "A Form for Installment Plan on Phonographs." Would be willing to pay for printed contracts furnished by you. The things I liked best in the January issue were the "Other 15,000," "Store Management" and Editorial comments.

[Our own Legal Department states that it is unable to supply us with any one form that can safely be used in all States for instalment sales. If such a form can be supplied to us by any one in the trade familiar with the subject, we will be very glad to get out such a form as you suggest. The laws in different States vary to a great extent, and we would not care to make ourselves responsible for a single form that Dealers in all States might use. Nor would we care to get up a form for each State, for this is a task that our Legal Department refuses to undertake. It has always seemed to us that the matter was one that must be looked after by the Dealers in each State and one by manufacturers like ourselves, who cannot safely undertake the work.]

Do Edison Records Last

When a customer asks if Edison Records last, mention the following testimony of Mr. E. A. Williams, Jackson, Mich.:

"Four years ago my cousin purchased an Edison, and I happened to be here at the time, and helped pick out his records, about one hundred. Many of these Records have since dropped out of the lists and I have been anxious to get a few of my old favorites for my collection.

"Last week I made a deal with my cousin and I am now in possession of sixteen four-year-old 'Gold Moulded' Records.

"They are every bit as good as when I last heard them (four years ago), they are not worn, still retain their full, rich tone.

"They take me back to the time they came out and I would not part with them at ten dollars a Record."

One of our Dealer friends writes us concerning a prospective customer who called at the store to hear the new Amberol Records. Two or three were played over for the delighted listener, after which he remarked, with a twinkle in his eye: "If these Records are Amberol, it strikes me that all others are Fol-de-rol."

My trade in Edison Phonographs has been very satisfactory. I am in a little country town of 200 population, and the first fourteen months I sold over $2,000 worth of Edison Phonographs and Records. I have now sold over $3,000. My trade is all with farmers, and I have not lost one dollar and have less than fifty dollars standing out.—O. R. Beckwith, Dodgeville, Ohio.

About Deductions for Broken Records

Our attention has been called to the fact that some Dealers when paying their accounts to their Jobbers, are arbitrarily making deductions for Records broken in transit, and for which Jobbers are in no way responsible.

On September 18th, 1907, we notified our Dealers of a reduction of one (1) cent each on Edison Records, the change in price being made effective, not only to insure Dealers a better margin of profit, but to cover any possible loss by breakage in transit.

Deductions made by any Dealer as above are unfair and unjust, and in future will not be entertained by any Jobber, nor will our Jobbers be permitted to allow such claims.

Playing Up Amberol Records

Ready-Made Ads

Edison Amberol Records are the biggest sensation in the talking machine world for years. They will make old General Public and his wife, and his sisters and his cousins and his aunts, and his children and his grand-children sit up and take notice. It is up to you to see that they also take notice of you.

The Dealer who lets people know that he has Amberol Records for sale will sell Amberol Records sooner, sell 'em faster, and sell more of 'em than the Dealer who waits for the public to find out that he has them.

One good way to let people know is your local newspaper. Here are three ads that will help you a lot.

If you will run the ads, we will send free, an electrotype of the illustration. The newspaper will set the type matter for you.

DANCING TO AMBEROL RECORDS

The Amberol Record plays for more than four minutes, long enough for a real waltz.

No. 8 is "Violets" waltz, played by the New York Military Band. The composer is Waldteufel, who has written some of the best waltzes that you ever danced to.

The advantage of the new Amberol Records is that they play long enough to make dancing to them satisfactory.

The Waltz Amberol Record is but one of nearly 200 new ones which can be played upon your Phonograph by means of a new attachment which we show you how to adjust, and a new reproducer. This is the greatest improvement in the Edison Phonograph for several years.

(Dealer's name and address)

THAT NEW RECORD WHICH PLAYS MORE THAN FOUR MINUTES

Mr. Edison has discovered a new composition for Records, upon which he can make a Record more than twice as long as the old one, although the cylinder remains the same size. These new Records are for sale here. They can be played upon any Edison Phonograph by means of an attachment, also for sale here.

Nearly 200 new selections, longer and better than any Edison Records, new attachment, or new Phonographs that play the Amberol Records without attachment. Amberol Records without attachment.

(Dealer's name and address)

"THE HOLY CITY"

This famous sacred song has never been given in its entirety and so beautifully as it is now given upon the Edison Amberol Record.

These new Records which play for more than four and a half minutes, make it possible to render the entire song and to give it in all its beauty.

The new Edison Amberol Records, comprising fifty subjects, are for sale here. They can be used upon your Edison Phonograph by means of a gear attachment and a different reproducer. Come in and let us explain about it.

Amberol Records 50 cents.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records for May, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before April 25th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on April 23rd. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on April 26th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after April 25th, but must not be circulated among the public before April 26th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on April 23rd, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for May Records on or before March 10th. Dealers should place May orders with Jobbers before March 15th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard Records

10117 Venus on Earth—Waltz — National (London) Military Band

A charming waltz air by Paul Lincke, the well-known European composer and director of the Apollo Theatre, Berlin, Germany. Mr. Lincke also wrote the popular "Glowworm" (our Amberol Record No. 61) and other attractive compositions.

10118 Won't You Even Say "Hello"? — Manuel Romain

The title is a question asked by a lover as he is parting from his sweetheart. Of course it is a sentimental song and it is sung as only Mr. Romain can render such a song. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Al Piantadosi; words, Edgar Leslie; publishers, Ted Snyder Music Co., New York.

10119 Oh, La, La, La, La, La — Sallie Stembler

These words and the line: "A little nonsense now and then, is relished by all the wisest men," constitutes all of the English known to the little miss in the Moulin Rouge. The same chorus was sung by a member of the Boston Y. M. C. A. who was found by a friend having the time of his life in the same resort. It is Miss Stembler's second Edison Record and it is all right, too. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Louis Weslyn; publishers, M. Witmark & Son, New York.

10120 Sterling Castle and Harvest Dance — William Craig

A xtraheppy and reel on the violin. Just the sort of Record to appeal to all who like the violin for the old-fashioned dance music that was played when our grandfathers were young. Piano accompaniment.

10121 A Confidential Chat — Press Eldridge

A heart-to-heart talk by the "Commander-in-chief of the Army of Fun," as Mr. Eldridge is everywhere known. The matter that Mr. Eldridge passes out is of the mirth provoking variety, especially his reasons why men should marry widows. This is one of his most popular monologues. It is always a "hit" at the leading vaudeville houses of the country. This Record marks Mr. Eldridge's entry in the Phonograph field and we predict that in it he will be no less popular than he is on the stage.

10122 Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Away — Collins & Harlan

A comic waltz song being sung by a number of vaudeville headliners. The title makes it clear that it is a slang song. Mildred Moore had the slang habit "bad." Bertie McClore, her best young man, wanted to break her of it, but every time he tried she replied in the words of the above title. They married, and Bertie had a chance to get back when Mildred wanted money for a new hat. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, Ren Shields; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10123 Beautiful Eyes — Ada Jones

A sort of novelty song with words quite different from what its title would indicate. It tells of what happened to a young miss who met a charming gentleman. With his beautiful eyes he hypnotized her, told her pretty things and took all her rings. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Music Co., New York.

* This Record will be illustrated on cover of May PHONOGRAM.

10124 Golden Trumpets — Albert Benzler

A bells solo with orchestra accompaniment. The selection is one of those song and dance style compositions, always chosen when the best results from the bells are sought. Composer, T. H. Rollinson; publisher, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

10125 Ayesha, My Sweet Egyptian — Herbert Payne

A fine Record having an Egyptian color, sung finely and with clear enunciation by a new Edison singer. The orchestra accompaniment is very attractive. Music, Maurice Scott; publishers, Star Music Co., London.

10126 How Firm a Foundation — Edison Mixed Quartette

Not to know this popular old hymn is to be stamped as knowing little about matters religious. A Record of it has been asked for by many Phonograph owners. It is also well known as the Portuguese Hymn. Unaccompanied. Music, M. Portogallo; words, G. Keith.

10127 I Used to Be Afraid to Go Home in the Dark — Billy Murray

"Now I'm afraid to go home at all." That is the plaint of a man who has a wife waiting for his coming, and he confides his troubles to the barkeep. It is a companion song to "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark" (our Record No. 9780) by the same writers and sung by the same Edison artist. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words by Williams, Van Alstyne & Burt; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10128 A Coon Band Contest — Maurice Levi and His Band

A characteristic rag time march and one of Arthur Pryor's well-known compositions. It features a contest between several members of the band, each playing a different air. The trombone wins. The selection is played with great success by Mr. Levi and his splendid organization. It will strengthen the position won by "Happy Days" in the April list.

10129 The Heart of Ninon — Florence Hinkle

A soprano waltz song written on themes of the celebrated Italian waltz "Tesoro Mio" by De E. Benecia. The English version is by T. H. Martens. The words are by G. Millandy. It is interpolated and is a striking feature in Lulu Glaser's "Mlle. Mischief," where it is sung in French under the title "Le Coeur de Ninon." Publishers, Boosey & Co., New York.

10130 When the Humming Birds Return, Sweet Irene — Harlan & Stanley

A sentimental song for tenor and baritone, that ought, by reason of its sweet melody and tender words, be quite as popular as any other similar songs that have caught the public fancy in the past few years. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ted Snyder; words, Edgar Farran; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10131 Uncle Josh at the Dentist's — Cal Stewart and Len Spencer

Another of Mr. Stewart's original Rube sketches. Mr. Stewart has no rival in Records of this kind, but Mr. Spencer is a close second in making successful talking Records. Together they make a great combination. Hear this Record and you can't help agree with this statement.

10132 Hallowe'en Dance — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic dance in which the music and effects introduced are of the mysterious and weird order, reflecting the spirit of Hallowe'en. A Record for those who want something different. Composers, H. Engelmann; publishers, Joseph Morris Co., Philadelphia.

10133 I Don't Care if There's a Girl There — Harry Fay

With an unusually good voice and a rollicking way of using it, Mr. Fay makes a Record here that will appeal to many lovers of the Phonograph. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Collins & Weston; publishers, Star Music Co., London.

10134 Shine On, Harvest Moon — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Scarcely less popular than Miss Jones' solo Records are those made with the assistance of Mr. Murray, himself one of the best of the Edison artists. The duet Records by Miss Jones and Mr. Murray are eagerly sought for in each month's list. This selection is a serio-comic song, featured in "The Follies of 1908." The dialogue between the chorus is also worth the cost of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Nora Bayes-Norworth; words, Jack Norworth; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10135 The Model Minstrels — Edison Minstrels

A miniature minstrel first part with an opening chorus "Broncho Buster"; jokes by the end men, and the closing chorus, "In the Good Old United States." It is hard to believe that so much can be put on a Standard Edison Record.

10136 Amina — Edison Concert Band

Still another fine composition by Paul Lincke, who has won world-wide fame as a writer of music of the better class and of whom much may still be expected. "Amina" is styled an Egyptian serenade, its music being of an Oriental character. Publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York

Edison Amberol Records

115 Reinzi Overture — Edison Concert Band

Reinzi, Richard Wagner's first successful grand opera, has always held a prominent position among his many operatic works. In the overture is found the most significant and interesting themes of the opera, appearing in a most brilliant instrumental garb and with all the grandeur of conception and originality of the famous master. The Amberol Record gives the Concert Band a splendid opportunity to do the selection justice. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

116 It is Enough — James F. Harrison

The most popular aria for baritone in the oratorio "Elijah" by Felix Mendelssohn. The text of the aria is taken from the Book of Job, 19th Chapter, 16th verse, and 1st Kings, 19th Chapter, 10th verse. Mendelssohn was born at Hamburg, Feb. 3rd, 1809. He conducted the first performance of "Elijah" at Birmingham, England, August 18th, 1846. At the time of making this Amberol Record the centenary of the birth of Mendelssohn was celebrated by a number of grand concerts, the programs showing some of the best works of this famous composer, including this popular aria from "Elijah." Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, G. Schirmer, New York.

117 Love and Devotion — Venetian Instrumental Trio

One of those quiet, tranquil compositions so well adapted to this combination of instruments—flute, harp and violin. It is delightfully written and charmingly played. A brilliant cadenza for the harp is introduced. Composer, L. A. Drumheller; publishers, Jos. Morris Co., Philadelphia.

118 To the End of the World With You — Manuel Romain

A ballad of the better class, similar in style and character to the famous "Love Me and the World is Mine" [our Record No. 0372] and written by the same composers. The air of this selection, combined with unusually well written sentimental verses, ought to make the song quite as popular as "Love Me and the World is Mine." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ernest R. Ball; words, Dave Reed, Jr., and George Graff, Jr.; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

119 Casting Bread Upon the Waters — Empire Vaudeville Co.

A comic vaudeville sketch with the following cast of characters:

Mr. Hiram Jones, Always Dreaming - - - - Edward M. Favor
Mrs. Hiram Jones, Head of the House - - - - Edith Sinclair
Rhodolph Proh, A Tramp - - - - - - Steve Porter

Mr. Favor and Mr. Porter need no introduction. Miss Sinclair in private life is Mrs. Edward M. Favor. Until Mr. Favor entered the comic opera field he and Mrs. Favor were widely known in vaudeville as Favor and Sinclair. This Record is a new departure and must be heard to be appreciated.

120 S. R. Henry's Barn Dance — New York Military Band

Recorded purposely for dancing and the first barn dance on the Amberol Record. The unusual length of the Record makes it especially advantageous for dancing. A dance orchestra, as a rule, does not play a dancing number any longer and sometimes not so long. The music for the dance Record was selected from among the best and most popular barn dances of recent issue. Composer, S. R. Henry; publishers, J. W. Stern & Co., New York.

121 Prize Song—"The Mastersinger" — Reed Miller

The "Preislied" (prize song) the famous tenor solo from "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg" by Richard Wagner, sung in English. In the German opera, it is sung by Sir Walther von Stolzing and won for him a place among the mastersingers. It is a song of noble and soaring beauty. Mr. Miller's splendid voice gives it a fine rendition. Orchestra accompaniment.

122 Golden Rod — Mabel McKinley

Miss McKinley is one of the most notable additions ever made to the staff of Edison artists. She is a niece of the late President McKinley; a composer of great merit, the possessor of a delightfully sweet soprano voice, a woman of charming personality and a universal favorite on the stage. "Golden Rod" is one of her own compositions. It is dedicated to Vice President Fairbanks. Miss McKinley also wrote "Anona" and other musical successes. "Golden Rod" is a song of the national flower. Its words are patriotic, its musical setting is perfect and Miss McKinley's singing of it is artistic in every sense of the word. Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

123 Awakening of Spring — American Symphony Orchestra

Styled a romance for orchestra. A favorite concert number. The composer's idea is to picture musically the coming of spring. The opening theme, soft and low, played by the 'cello, depicts this delightful season of the year still asleep in the clasp of winter. The oboe's plaintive strains portray the dawn of the approaching day and a fortissimo burst of melody by the entire orchestra heralds the awakening of a glorious springtime. Composer, E. Bach; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

124 Jerusalem — Edison Mixed Quartette

This joyful anthem opens with a tenor solo, followed by the baritone in a solo part; then a beautiful harmonized strain for quartette. After this comes a grand and inspiring melody in which all sing in unison: "Lord, now we meet thee, sing we Hosanna." The subject of the anthem is found in the 21st Chapter of St. Matthew, fifth to tenth verses. Organ accompaniment. Composer, Henry Parker; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

125 Good-Bye, Molly Brown — Ada Jones

A song of the different kind that gives Miss Jones an unusual opportunity to show her cleverness as a dialect singer. It has three verses and three choruses. The latter in turn are sung in cockney English, French and Irish, these dialects being used by the respective suitors for the hand of Molly Brown, from the country. The song is being used in the musical comedy "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ben M. Jerome; words, Edward Madden; publishers, The Trebuhs Publishing Co., New York.

126 Nina — Hans Kronold

A favorite 'cello solo of the popular virtuoso, Hans Kronold. It is played in his usual style and finish and makes another splendid addition to our list of violoncello Records. Piano accompaniment. Composer, Pergolese.

127 Even Bravest Heart — Thomas Chalmers

The recitative and cavatina sung by Valentine (Marguerite's brother) in Act 1, Scene 4, of "Faust," Charles Gounod's best known opera. It is a favorite baritone solo. It is here sung in English, Mr. Chalmer's noble voice meeting every requirement of a perfect rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

128 I Feel Thy Angel Spirit — Miss Chapman and Mr. Harrison

A fine rendition by soprano and baritone of a high class song. The text is translated from the German, written by the well-known composer, Gruben-Hoffmann. The combination of the voices makes it a fine Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, G. Schirmer, New York.

129 New Creation Two-Step — New York Military Band

Another fine Record made especially for dancing and selected for the purpose because of its excellent rhythm. The long playing length of the Amberol Record is going to make the Edison Phonograph more desirable than ever for dancing purposes, and it is our intention to put out one or two selections every month for use in this way. Such Records are equally enjoyable to those who do not dance. Composer, Edmund Braham; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

130 I'm Awfully Strong for You — Billy Murray and Chorus

The words of the title are the somewhat unique one used by a sentimental young man to his girl. Mr. Murray sings the selection in a fluting manner, accompanied by a quartette of male voices. Being sung in "The Yankee Prince," George M. Cohan's musical play. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, George M. Cohan; publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co., New York.

131 Come Where the Lilies Bloom — Metropolitan Quartette

A Record of unusual attractiveness, finely sung by a quartette of mixed voices, accompanied by the New York Military Band. It is some time since we have put out a Record with a band accompaniment. "Come Where the Lillies Bloom" is Will L. Thompson's most popular composition. It is an old-time favorite. For years it has been featured in the best singing shows. It is given complete on the Record.

132 Roses Bring Dreams of You Medley — American Symphony Orchestra

An up-to-date medley introducing "Finnegan's Irish Band," "I Remember You," "Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay," "Roses Bring Dreams of You," and "The Sweetest Gal in Town."

133 Si Perkins' Barn Dance — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Not the kind of barn dance now so much in vogue, but a most realistic side-splitting sentimental imitation of an old-fashioned country dance in the barn. The dialogue is by Miss Jones and Mr. Spencer as Susan and Elmer, the spooney couple, but other special features are introduced. The incidental singing has an orchestra accompaniment.

134 Fair Harvard Waltzes — Maurice Levi and His Band

A concert waltz composed and played under the personal direction of Mr. Levi. The state of perfect organization to which Mr. Levi has brought his band is at once recognized in this selection, and the many clever and interesting effects brought out show the remarkable control that as a leader he has won over his men.

Owns 3020 Different Edison Records

The Milner Musical Co., of Cincinnati, send the following letter recently received by them from Charles Wendel, a retail customer in their city:

After taking stock of my Records, which has taken about six years to collect, I have on hand three thousand and twenty, of which I could not tell you which I like the best, as very often I play the old ones and feel I could not part with one of them. This includes all operas and grand operas—all Edison Records. I have the largest size Edison Triumph Phonograph, which I bought three years ago, as my first machine was a small graphophone, and my second a Home. This last machine has always done perfect work and has never cost me one cent for repairs. My brass horn is about four feet long, which throws the sound for over a square, and if the time comes and you have anything superior to my machine I will only be too glad if you will let me know to purchase same.

The Invaluable Talking Machine

The talking machine is rapidly coming to the front as a medium for solving various troubles of man. An Albany, N. Y., man recently went into a local talking machine store and ordered a Record to repeat the words "He's not here," and nothing more. He explained his unique order by stating that one of his clerks had been married only a short time before and his bride insisted upon calling him on the 'phone numerous times during the day, usually at the busiest hours.

On each occasion she had to be told repeatedly that her husband was not in, and as the merchant got tired of her continual 'phoning and did not care to fire the man owing to his ability, he decided upon the talking machine record to do the work.—Talking Machine World.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

PHONOGRAPH

There is a great opportunity for you to sell I. C. S. Language Outfits to people who are going abroad or who desire to learn a language for the sake of the knowledge of it alone; to those who desire to qualify for positions as translators and foreign correspondents; and to foreigners who wish to learn to speak English. No sledge hammer is needed to get it clearly into your head that this presents a sure way of broadening your field of work and increasing your sales. For the sake of good business sense, boom the I. TEXT:

The rooster does the crowing, but it's the hen that meets the demand for eggs.

MAKING a noise about your business is one thing and a commendable thing, but just making a noise isn't going to put Edison Phonographs into homes where there are none, or Records into homes where Phonographs have gone.

We are advertising Edison Phonographs and Edison Records throughout the length and breadth of the land. There is probably not one man, woman or child in this whole country, who can read, who has not read about Edison Phonographs and Records in some publication at some time or other.

But our work in this direction is never done. It isn't enough to bring the Phonograph to the attention of everybody. We must talk about it month after month; we must continually present it from every point of view; we must urge investigation, comparison with other instruments and win the people over to it by every means within the scope of publicity.

This we are doing, liberally, thoroughly and, we believe, intelligently.

But—

You are the hen.

Your store must meet the demand we are creating.

Unless your store is inviting; unless your stock is complete; unless your enthusiasm is kept at a high pitch; unless your demonstations are well conducted and unless you are doing everything in your power to make sales and make satisfied customers, you are not getting full benefit from our advertising and we are not getting all of the co-operation which our efforts in your behalf deserve.

We promise nothing that you cannot deliver. We claim nothing that anyone can contradict. We ask nothing except that you make all of the money you can out of our goods and our efforts.

This requires effort on your part, but it is effort that brings in fitting returns.

Lets get a little closer together on this.

Don't Let Up

There is no disguising the fact that business conditions are not what they ought to be, especially in the East. It would be foolish for us to attempt to tell Dealers that conditions in their territories are only imaginary and that they could do just as much or more business if they tried. They know and we know that business is below normal. At the same time, too many Dealers are unconsciously influenced by adverse conditions and "lay down" to a much greater extent than the conditions really justify. Thousands of men are out of employment and many other thousands are working on reduced time or at lower wages. The total number of such men, however, is small as compared with the number that are doing as well to-day as they have ever done. To every man who is idle or only partly employed, there are perhaps ten who have not been affected in any way by business conditions of the past eighteen months. These men are earning as much money and are spending as much. There is no more reason why they cannot buy Phonographs and Records to-day than there was two years ago.

Only a comparatively small percentage of them own talking machines and they are as good material as ever for Dealers to work upon. If Dealers would look over their territory, make up a list of people who are as prosperous as ever, they would find in such a list material for an excellent business. There isn't a Dealer handling Edison goods to-day who couldn't, if he tried, make up a list of from fifty to two hundred or more individuals who do not have Phonographs, but who are going to be able to buy them.

With such a list, a Dealer ought to be able to get a certain percentage of them to have Phonographs put in their homes on trial, if sales could not be made in a more direct way. In many other ways effective work may be done in selling goods. The special point is that human nature is too apt to give up easily under adverse conditions and efforts are relaxed to a much greater extent than the conditions really warrant.

Give this a little thought, Mr. Dealer, and see whether there is not some truth in it. Look over your field and ask yourself if you are doing all that you might do to bring business back to the point so greatly desired by the entire country.

Ask some useful question in the Mechanical Department. There must be some things you want to know more about—our replies will interest your fellow Dealers.

Sell the Cut Outs

On another page Dealers will find a list of 500 Domestic Records that we intend dropping from our Record Catalogue to be issued on August 1st. As may be seen by inspection, the list is made up almost entirely of desirable and good selling selections. They are Records we would not think of dropping if we based such action upon their sales. They are selling in the aggregate nearly 400,000 Records a year, and in dropping them we deprive the trade and ourselves of that much business. We are dropping them solely because the trade has demanded that the total Records in our catalogue be materially reduced.

It has been urged that we ought to keep the total as near 1,500 as possible. Dropping 500 will still not reduce the total to 1,500, but it is expected eventually to keep the catalogue at approximately that number. If we continue to issue 20 Standard and 20 Amberol selections to and including August and drop 300 on August 1st, our catalogue will then contain 1,469 Standard selections and 194 Amberol. This is but little in excess of the desired 1,500 and later cut-outs will reduce the list.

Between now and August 1st Dealers will have four months in which to dispose of all stocks of these Records they may have on hand, and they ought to dispose of them so that there will be no necessity of returning any to the factory in exchange for other selections.

There are several reasons why Dealers ought to do this. In the first place, our loss is heavy enough in dropping numbers from the catalogues without being asked to take back those in the hands of Dealers and exchange other Records for them.

In the second place, they are, in most cases, Records that the public would be glad to buy if it had any idea that after August 1st they could not be had. Then, the cost to a Dealer in paying express or freight charges on returned Records is an added expense, to say nothing of the trouble of packing, making out the necessary papers, placing orders for new Records, etc.

There is scarcely a Dealer who cannot dispose of his stock if he will make an effort to do so. Many Jobbers and Dealers adopt a plan of marking the cut-out Records in a way to identify them and they instruct their salesmen to play one or more of them whenever a customer is making up a selection. We would suggest that all Dealers handle the matter in the same way. There is no imposition in selling these selections to customers, for they are in every way as good as any that will be retained in the catalogues. We would especially urge Dealers not to take the cut-out Records out of their stock and put them away. Let them stand on the shelves, properly marked, so that salesmen can pick them out, and make even a greater effort to sell them if they were not to be cut out. Under no circumstances will they be taken back at the factory until after the new catalogues dated August 1st have been in general circulation. This would mean not earlier than September 1st, and may possibly be later.

In issuing this cut-out list of 500 selections, we aim to accommodate Jobbers and Dealers. The least the Jobbers and Dealers can do is to make every effort possible to sell their stocks of them instead of returning to us. This is the kind of co-operation that we feel we are entitled to from the trade.

As Many Dealers as Ever

No policies ever adopted by the National Phonograph Company have been such a complete success as those prohibiting Edison Dealers from selling other cylinder goods and guaranteeing them protection from indiscriminate competition in their respective cities and towns. The policy of limiting Edison Dealers to one cylinder line required all Dealers to sign an addenda to our Dealers' Agreement. The work of getting this addenda signed was begun with some uncertainty as to the outcome. We naturally expected more or less objection on the part of certain Dealers to our new policy. We felt uncertain as to what percentage would prefer to handle other cylinder goods. To our great surprise, however, 90 per cent. of the total signed without delay or objections. On the contrary, most of them expressed their warmest approval of the new plan. Of the remaining 10 per cent., a few objected and decided to drop our goods. Most of the remainder were either out of business or so near out that they decided to drop talking machines entirely. A small number of cases are still being investigated. The result, however, of the six months that have elapsed since this work was begun is that we to-day have practically the same number of Dealers as we had up to October 1st, for the number of new firms that have taken up the line have offset the losses from other causes. We are really much better off than we were six months ago, for we now know that the Dealers we have on our books are real, live, active and progressive people. They make up an army of Dealers that will, when business gets back to normal conditions, do a business in Edison goods that will put all past achievements in the shade. On the whole, we are greatly pleased with the success of the new policy.

Second-Hand Machines

The number of applications made by Jobbers and Dealers for licenses to sell second-hand machines at special prices is surprisingly small. This shows that the number of such machines in the hands of the trade is hardly worth considering. It also shows that out of nearly 1,500,000 Phonographs that have been placed on the market in the past thirteen years, a very small proportion of them are inactive. The small number of applications shows that, after all, there was not much real need for second-hand licenses. The adoption of the plan, however, will give the trade the fullest opportunity to dispose of any machines it may have on hand.

Jobbers and Dealers should not overlook the fact that they are especially prohibited from advertising second-hand machines, either with or without a price; are prohibited from exhibiting them in show windows or in stores, placarded with the reduced price, and cannot do any other act that will give the impression that they are selling Edison goods at bargain prices. The purpose of the special license is merely to give the trade formal permission to sell at second-hand Edison Phonographs at less than list prices. It is an act of courtesy and accommodation on our part and no Dealer will be permitted to take improper advantage of it.

Notice to Dealers Contemplating Change of Location

The attention of Edison Dealers is called to the necessity for communicating with the Agreement Department before making any change in the location of stores. Under the new policy of limiting the number of Dealers we desire to avoid having Dealers locate too close to each other, particularly in the larger cities. When an existing Dealer desires to change his location we take into consideration the proximity of other Dealers before giving consent to the change, and if we find that the proposed store is too close to an existing Dealer, the request is refused. The same rule is applied to the establishment of new Dealers. We therefore suggest to Dealers that where they contemplate changing their location, they first communicate with the Agreement Department before completing arrangements for a new location.

Record Shipment Schedule

Advantage was taken by several Jobbers of the error made in printing the Dealers' Order Blanks for March Records to make shipments to Dealers on February 23rd, instead of February 24th. That this date was an error must have been obvious to all such Jobbers and there was no justification for their course in shipping Records ahead of the regular day. Some time ago a circular letter was issued by our Sales Department giving the shipping and selling dates until January, 1910. A copy of this was sent to every Jobber and Dealer and it was published in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. This schedule must be absolutely followed by the trade and no excuse will be accepted for violations of it. When Jobbers take advantage of an error such as occurred in the March list, they do an injustice to other Jobbers who recognize the error and live up to the prescribed schedule. A rule for Jobbers to adopt is never to make shipments before the 24th of the month, unless that date falls on Sunday or a holiday, when shipments may be made the day preceding. This plan is so simple that no one can be excused for not following it.

Printed Matter

A new slip, small envelope size, advertising the Edison Amberol Records, is now being shipped to Jobbers. It is attractively printed on two sides in orange and black ink, and bears Form 2490. Place an order with your Jobber for a supply, but if he doesn't fill it immediately, remember that shipments are just now being made, and in all probability his allotment has not been received.

With the April Monthly printed matter to Jobbers we included a hanger 9½ x 14 inches in size, calling particular attention to the Edison Records by Maurice Levi and His Band. If you ordered April Records, one of these hangers should have been included with the shipment. With the May printed matter it is our intention to include a hanger of about the same size referring to Amberol Record No. 122, "Golden Rod," by Mabel McKinley. These display forms will be a regular addition in future to the hangers now being supplied and Dealers should arrange to get one copy of each. We justly feel proud of the prominent artists we are adding these days to our already famous list. The issuance of these posters is one of the many methods of telling the public about them, our idea being to select for special consideration the one artist, combination of artists or selection of usual interest to Phonograph owners.

Show It in Homes

After all, nothing is more successful in selling Edison Phonographs and Records than demonstrating the goods. A Dealer may have an attractive show window, may have a splendidly fitted up stock, may have courteous salesmen, may do considerable advertising, may have up-to-date mailing lists, but none of these will be so effective as to show the machines and play Records for possible customers. This kind of work, too, is most successful when done in the houses of prospective customers. A possible buyer may hear a Phonograph in a well-equipped and comfortable demonstration room, but the impression made upon him can never be so good as if he hears the machine in his own home, where he can be permitted not only to hear it, but be shown how easy it is to operate it himself. We cannot point out too strongly the desirability of making sales in this way. Dealers should make every effort to get the consent of possible buyers to make a demonstration in their own homes. Once the consent is gained, take the machines to such homes, together with a carefully selected assortment of Records, selected with some reference to the tastes of the individuals, if their tastes can be learned in advance. Play some of the Records, show the individuals how to operate the machine and leave the whole outfit with them for a day or two. In only a small percentage of cases do the outfits ever go back to the store. This plan is by no means new, for many Dealers, even in small places, are doing a splendid business by following it. It is one of the greatest factors in the success of the mail order people, and it should be successful with every Dealer who adopts it and follows it up in the right way.

President Taft Records

Now that Mr. Taft is actually President of the United States, have you replenished your stock of the Edison Records made by him, and are you making the effort to induce your customers to buy these Records that their importance justifies? Mr. Taft is going to be one of the best loved Presidents the country has had, and Edison Records made by him are going to possess a continually increasing interest as time passes. It is the duty, therefore, of every one who hopes to make a success of the Edison business to carry an adequate stock of these Records and make every reasonable effort to interest Phonograph owners in them.

Selling the Goods

An Edison Phonograph customer is a good find.

Good, not only because a sale means a profit, but also because a Phonograph in a home will sell more Phonographs than a Phonograph in your store.

You can start a Phonograph playing through your window and draw a crowd. Your customer can start one in his home and create a desire for one on the part of all who are present.

It is the same way with Edison Records. Their appeal is stronger when played in a home.

There, both the Phonograph and the Records are in their proper setting. There they demonstrate all that you claim—entertainment in the home; entertainment for guests; entertainment for all.

You talk this home entertainment idea, of course, and you should. We talk it in our advertising. The home of one customer proves its value to others, verifies our claims and sales multiply.

Hence the importance of a satified customer. Hence the importance of keeping close tab on instruments that you sell. Hence, also, the wisdom of keeping Phonograph owners well informed as to the new Records so that they and their friends (who are your future customers) will retain their interest and keep up their enthusiasm.

Play Up the Talent

Notice the Edison Phonograph advertising in the April magazines.

We are using additional space in many of them to feature the Edison stars who are contributing their talents towards making the Phonograph more desirable.

This is but a beginning. Next month other well-known artists will be brought to the attention of your trade.

This is sure to stimulate a demand for Records. You should make the most of it.

You have doubtlessly received the Maurice Levi hanger.

Did you display it prominently? Did you play the Levi Record for the benefit of the passers by?

Did you do any local newspaper advertising so that those who learned from our advertising that Levi and Rosnin were represented in the Edison Records for April, learned also that you had them for sale?

That is the only way to get the benefit you should from our advertising.

Other artists will be featured in our May magazine advertising. A new hanger will be sent you for your windows.

We hope you will co-operate with us in making this special talent campaign a big success.

Two Dealers

Out in Wisconsin there is a small town of 1900 inhabitants where we have a first-class aggressive Dealer. One of our salesmen called on him recently and found—

That he had a mailing list of Phonograph owners.

That he understood thoroughly the repair of Edison machines.

That he sold machines on the installment plan.

That he advertised regularly and intelligently in local newspapers.

That he printed and distributed circulars to prospective purchasers.

That he carried a good stock of Standard and all the Amberol records.

And last of all that he had sold twenty-nine outfits since Christmas and had six more on order.

In the same county in a town of 3,000 inhabitants there is a dealer upon whom our salesman called the same day. This dealer—

Does not have a mailing list.

Does not thoroughly understand repairing.

Does not sell on installments.

Does not advertise regularly in any way.

Does not carry even a fair stock of Standard and none of the Amberol records—

And says that the Phonograph Business is a failure.

The reason is obvious—one dealer is in the business for all it's worth; the other doesn't care to work for even a reasonable return from his investment.

Enough has already been written in this publication about conditions as they exist in some localities. The above, however, are facts—not theories.

Take just a moment and classify yourself. Are you one of the "hustlers?"

The Edison Record Making Talent

Every Edison Record is an argument for the Phonograph. Each month a great array of famous artists is represented.

It is one thing to secure such talent; it is another thing to get from that talent Records that do them justice.

This is done in every Edison Record.

Have you noticed the artists who are contributing to your selling possibilities?

Have you brought them to the attention of your customers?

Are you equipped to meet every call for Edison Records?

Keep up your stock and your enthusiasm.

Only the Edison Phonograph Plays Amberol Records

Amberol Records are a new Edison Phonograph feature. No other instrument can play them and no other instrument offers a feature which means so much to your trade.

A Record that plays twice as long as a standard Edison Record at a trifle additional cost is a great selling point for the Phonograph as well as for the Records.

Are you stocked with Amberol Records? Are you getting the new Amberols as they come out each month?

Are you demonstrating them and putting back of them the interest and enthusiasm they warrant?

If not, you are letting a big opportunity slip by. The time to make the most of a good thing is while it is new.

That Home Record-Making Feature

Here's just one question for the thoughtful consideration of all Dealers. Have you fully realized the possibilities of doing an unusual business in recording horns and blank Records, now that the list price of the former has been reduced to $2.00? Remember, that amateur records cannot be made on any other type of machine. There's a strong talking point.

Still after Price Cutters

Judge Reed, of the United States Circuit for the Northern District of Iowa, in the Central Division, has recently handed down a memorandum opinion overruling the demurrer of the defendants to the amended bill of complaint in the case of New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company vs. Edward H. Martin, Fred N. Martin, M. M. Martin, Martin Telephone Company and R. S. Sterling. This suit was originally brought against Edward H. Martin alone, and he endeavored to hide behind the other parties who were afterward made defendants, his principal reliance being upon the contention that the Martin Telephone Company was responsible for the cut price sales which took place at Webster City, Iowa. To meet this contention the bill was amended to add the various additional defendants, and thereupon a demurrer was filed. A copy of Judge Reed's decision overruling the demurrer is printed below.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, NORTHERN DISTRICT OF IOWA—CENTRAL DIVISION.

NEW JERSEY PATENT CO. ET AL., Complainants
vs. No. 171. Equity.
E. H. HARMIN ET AL., Defendants Memorandum.

In demurrer to the bill of complaint as amended.
DYER and KELLEHER & O'CONNOR, for complainants.
WESLEY MARTIN, for defendants.
REED, District Judge.

The demurrer is for want of equity in the bill, and also challenges the jurisdiction of this court upon the ground that the bill is founded upon an alleged breach by the defendants of the contract entered into by them with the complainants for the lease of their phonograph records, and that the amount of damages sustained by complainants because of such breach is not sufficient as shown. But the original bill, as well as the amendment thereto, alleges that after the contract between complainants and defendants had been terminated, the defendants obtained from some source unknown to complainants, but not from complainants, phonographs and used them in this district without right or authority from the complainants or any of their authorized agents, and in infringement of their patent. This shows an infringement by defendants of complainant's letters patent after the termination of the contract, and is sufficient to confer upon this court jurisdiction of the suit under the patent laws of the United States to enjoin such infringement and for an accounting, regardless of the amount involved.

Whether or not a sale by defendants of the patented articles which they procured under the contract with complainants was a breach or violation of its terms, would at once terminate the contract, and at the same time be an infringement of complainants' letters patent, which the complainants and denied by defendants in argument, need not now be determined, for the bill and amendment plainly allege that after the contract had been terminated, and defendants no longer had any rights thereunder, they procured and operated articles from some unauthorized source and sold them in this district in violation of complainants' rights in the premises under the letters patent. The demurrer is therefore overruled, and defendants may answer the bill as amended by the March rules, if they shall so elect.

It is ordered accordingly.

A. J. VAN DUZEE, Clerk.

Filed February 3, 1909.

A suit was recently brought by the National Phonograph Company against Joseph G. Williams, who was an authorized retail dealer at Worcester, Mass. This dealer, desiring to close out his stock of Edison Records, began advertising to sell them at cut rates, and after we had warned him to desist we found it necessary to bring an infringement suit and apply for an injunction to restrain the selling of these goods at less than the list prices. Such an injunction was granted and we print herewith a copy of the same.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

MASSACHUSETTS DISTRICT, ss.

The President of the United States of America,

To JOSEPH G. WILLIAMS, a citizen of the State of Massachusetts, and a resident within the District of the District of Massachusetts, and having a regular and established place of business at Worcester, in the County of Worcester and State and District of Massachusetts, Your Agents and Servants, Greeting:

WHEREAS, The New Jersey Patent Company and the National Phonograph Company corporations created, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, and having their principal offices at West Orange, County of Essex, in said State, and both citizens of the State of New Jersey, have exhibited their bill of complaint before the Justices of our Circuit Court of the United States, for the First Circuit, begun and holden at the District of Massachusetts, on the first Tuesday of February, 1909, against you, the said Joseph C. Williams, praying to be relieved touching the matters therein complained of; and

WHEREAS, By an order of said Court made on the first day of October, A. D., 1908, it was ordered that a writ of injunction and writ of ne exeat issue out of said Court restraining and each of you, from doing all the matters and things, from the doing of which you are prayed to be restrained in said Bill, according in full with the prayer of said Bill.

We, therefore, in consideration thereof, ENJOIN AND COMMAND you, each and every of you, that from and after service of this writ upon you, each and every of you, or any of you, you shall not sell, or offer for sale, or advertise for sale, the so-called Edison Records, or any thereof, or indirectly make, use or sell, or cause to be made, used or sold, any apparatus, article, or device embodying the construction or operating in accordance with the invention and improvement set forth in the Letters Patent No. 782,375 and 880,707, and reissues and licenses of the complainants, New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company, or infringe upon, or violate the said Letters Patent, or the rights of the Complainant thereunder, in any way whatsoever.

Whereof you are not to fail, on pain of $20,000, to be levied on your said goods of your goods, chattels, lands and tenements to the same.

WITNESS the Honorable MELVILLE W. FULLER, Chief Justice of the United States, at Boston, this first day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and eight.

(Signed) ALEXANDER H. TROWBRIDGE, Clerk.

By L. C. TUCKER, Deputy Clerk.

One of the most recent instances of price-cutting of Edison Records occurred at Dover, New Hampshire, these goods being offered for sale by Harry C. Hopkins, doing business under the name and style of H. C. Hopkins & Company. Mr. Hopkins conducts a sort of dry goods or department store, but acquired in some way a stock of Edison Records and sold them at cut prices. Suit was promptly brought and an application made for a restraining order, which was granted by the Federal Court. This order reads as follows, and is dated March 4, 1909:

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
District of New Hampshire.

No.
NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY and NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Plaintiffs,
vs.
HARRY C. HOPKINS, doing business under the name and style of H. C. HOPKINS & COMPANY, Defendant.

Letters Patent in Equity. Nos. 782,375 and 880,707

RESTRAINING ORDER.

On reading the Bill of Complaint herein and the motion of the Plaintiffs for a preliminary restraining order, the affidavits of Albert C. Ivins, Frank W. Aylesworth and William Quigley, in support of said motion, it is by this court, this 4th day of March, 1909, ordered that upon the complainants filing a bond in the sum of $500, the said Defendant, Harry C. Hopkins, and his agents, servants, attorneys and all persons under the jurisdiction of this court on the service of a preliminary injunction hereinafter filed and upon which a subpoena has duly issued requiring the said defendant to show cause against the said motion, be temporarily restrained and enjoined from directly or indirectly using, or causing to be used, or selling, or offering for sale, or causing to be sold, any apparatus, article or device embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 880,707, and from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever, and from moving, secreting, or otherwise disposing of, or intermeddling with any Compositions for Sound Records, or Edison Records, or Edison Phonograph Records, covered by said Letters Patent, now in their possession. This order to be subject to modification upon hearing upon 24 hours' notice. Otherwise, hearing at Portsmouth on March 16, 1909, at 11 A. M., E. S.

By the Court.

A Good Idea

The W. G. Walz Company, Edison Jobbers at El Paso, Texas, have had a rubber stamp made reading as follows:

"Be Sure to Read
The EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY Every Month."

With this they stamp all letters going to Dealers. This strikes us as an original and excellent plan. We will be glad to have the assistance of all Jobbers in inducing Dealers to read each issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY and keep a complete file of it for constant reference. The PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY contains many things of interest and value to the trade and it is a duty that every Dealer owes to himself to read it, so as to be fully informed as to what is being done here for his benefit. For reference purposes only, it is invaluable. Many Dealers would have been spared considerable trouble in connection with the last exchange proposition if they had kept a file of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY and been able to look back over past issues to learn what Records had been cut from the catalogues.

Ask your Jobber for Levi and McKinley show cards.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

Roy E. Berthoff, Cherokee, Kansas—I have for some time now made it a practice to read the PHONOGRAM MONTHLY as soon as received. I desire to relate, for benefit of some, two of my little experiences. As soon as the Amberol Records and Attachments came out, I thought they would be winners, so ordered some attachments, one Home Combination Phonograph, and one each of the fifty records. They had just been in stock a few days when a railroad conductor came in the store Sunday A. M. When asked if he desired anything, said: "I noticed advertisements in the Post that Edison has out a new 4-minute record, and new machines. I suppose they are too new for you to have any, but I have desired to purchase a Phonograph, but have been waiting till they had a longer record." Well, I forgot it was Sunday. I told him, "You bet I have them, come right back and hear them." He said he didn't care to purchase now, but I insisted he listen to a few sacred pieces. It was 10 A. M. when he came in; he left the store at noon, with a Home Combination Phonograph, two dozen Amberol records, and I had his check in full payment. He has not purchased a single two-minute record as yet, but purchases Amberols every month. I scored a sale by having the New Goods Early.

Another little incident. I sold last Summer a farmer living eighteen miles from here, but close to Parsons, Kan. He had sent a list of records he desired, selected from a Mail Order House Catalogue, to a dealer in Parsons, one at Pittsburg, and one to me, asking we report by early mail how many of the list (48) we had. The others only had about half, I had all but one. I carry the full catalogues and it pays, though this town is less than 2,000. The result was, he took the train at McCune, twelve miles from here, and came over to see me. I sold a Home and forty-eight records, cash. About the first of February, I received a letter from him in reply to the announcement I had sent him of the Amberols and attachments, asking "If he would meet me at the morning train, would I come over, bring some records and attachments, and remain over night with him. He would drive me in next day to catch early morning train, and he would invite in some neighbors. Perhaps I might sell some other machines. Anyway he would purchase attachment and some Amberols." You bet I wrote I would come, for him to let me know the day. Meantime I just figured I would perhaps make a sale, so I packed up a Home (I sell nothing but Homes, have sold three Triumphs and two Standards outside of Homes); a suitcase full of Standards, and another suitcase of Amberols, and attachment, and went over. He met me, drove me seven miles to his home, had a fine country dinner, made over his machine that afternoon, played some Amberols. He got busy at the rural 'phone, called all his neighbors, and invited them over. Twenty-five arrived at about 7 P. M. and I played Records for six hours. I sold a Home and $16.50 worth of Records to one visitor and got the cash, and have several prospects, and invitations to return any time. I consider that a good night's work. It gave me an idea, and when good roads come, I am going to fit up my automobile touring car to hold machines and Records, and work all the surrounding country.

J. A. Huber, Ft. Atkinson, Ia.—Why don't you have more German and Bohemian Records made in this country? Those new ones made in Europe don't go with my trade. Good old common songs or plainer comics is what we want.

[It is not feasible to answer questions like these with any degree of satisfaction to the inquirer or ourselves. If the demand for German and Bohemian Records was larger, we might be encouraged to do much more in the way of putting out new lists, and if we found that the demand was for Records made in this country, rather than in the countries themselves by native artists, we would make more of them here. The demand, however, is limited at the best, and it is by no means certain that Records made in this country would be more satisfactory than those made abroad. We might say in this connection that we are contemplating in the near future putting at the command of the entire trade all of the Records that have been made and are being sold in Germany. Our present list of such German Records contain many humorous selections and you may be able to find many Records among them that will suit your trade. It is not likely, however, that we will be able to make any definite announcement about these German Records before May 15th or June 1st.]

John Henry Lynch, Edwardsville, Ill.—What can I do to stimulate the interest of my customers having from 100 Records up, who say they have grown tired of their machines and will buy no more Records, or at most only an occasional one? How, besides playing Amberol Records, is best to go about persuading a customer they need a 4-minute attachment?

[It is rather difficult to revive the interest of a man who states that he has grown tired of his machine. If a man lacks the necessary interest to buy new Records, it is not easy to induce him to buy. Possibly by getting him to come to your store and hear the new Records from time to time, he may find them so interesting that he will want to buy a few Records each month. Do not give him up, but send him lists of the new Records, and whenever opportunity offers point out to him that without new music interest is lost in all kinds of musical instruments. Individual performers on a piano would soon tire of the instrument if they did not play new selections from time to time. The same is true of the violin or any other similar instrument. If a man has only a collection of one hundred Records and plays them over and over, he can hardly fail to lose interest in playing the machine. Induce him to come to your store. If a Record comes in which you think will please him, drop him a line giving the title and tell him he ought to come in and hear it.

There is really no better way to induce the owner of a Phonograph to add an Amberol Attachment to his machine than to show him how easy he can play first one Record and then another by having an attachment applied and get him to hear some of the Amberol Records. You might write letters, advertise in newspapers and do other kinds of publicity work, but you would hardly succeed in persuading him without a demonstration both of the machine and Records.]

Geo. J. Ellett, Kaministikwia, Ontario—I am just through reading the PHONOGRAM MONTHLY, which I usually do same day as received, if I can anyhow do so, if not I always read it first chance I get, and am sure I benefit by so doing. Am specially interested in the news and advice of my fellow Dealers. I think that my case may probably convince some of what can be done in the Edison business. But maybe I am only one of many. I became an Edison Dealer some eighteen months ago, and started with the smallest stock, two Phonographs and 200 Records. The town I am running my store in is small, population about 200. I have general store and postoffice. Well, I did not make a sale for some time, but eventually I sold a Standard. Two days later another, and have up to date disposed of twenty-five machines—Gem, Standard and Home—and I think I may say thousands of Records, and my business is gradually improving. I am trying to put an Edison in every section house along our division, and I guess I will, although some of them have other machines. To show the superiority of the Edison machines I give the following instance: An operator near by had a —— machine. He came into the store one day. I took the opportunity of playing him a few Records and then casually mentioned that I understood he had a ——. He said he had a good one, but admitted that our machines were O. K. The third time he came into my store he had sold his, and bought from me an Edison Standard, remarking that "he thought he had the best machine going, but the first Record I played him made him want an Edison." Now if I can sell so many Phonographs in such a small town, what can a Dealer do in a large town? Well, I hope to try in a few months and see what luck I may have. I keep three Phonographs in stock, Gem, Standard and Home, one combination type and 500 to 600 Records, Record Cabinets, Carrying Cases and some Edison repair parts. Recorders and Reproducers, blank Records, etc.

Louis R. Murray, Ogdensburg, N. Y.—On the occasions of Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays I issued to the various schools throughout this city as many badges (same as sample enclosed) as the teachers could distribute to the pupils to good advantage. The pupils wore them at the exercises in honor of the memory of the patriots, and afterwards took them home as souvenirs. As this was an original advertising idea in this locality, you can make up your mind that it was effective. The children wearing these on the streets and at other places soon created much curiosity, and now when most any one sees one of these badges he immediately remembers my store.

My business is slowly but surely building up, and when it does reach a more paying plane it will satisfy me to realize that it was honestly elevated and thoroughly in accord with your contract and intentions, despite the fact that I often lose a customer for refusing to violate my contract even in the smallest detail. Why, last week no less than five customers were put out because of my refusing to make exchanges which possibly I could have done to the letter of the contract, but not to the spirit. The consequences are they do not trade with me now. But it makes no difference to me. I am positively opposed to exchanges in any way; if one cannot get his money's worth out of a Record, then I'm not going to be his "tool."

On page 10 of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, under "The Other 13,000," there is a reply to C. L. Clark, in regard to exchanging Records. I have made a typewritten copy of this and framed it and then hung it in a conspicuous place so all that wished might read it. And it has done wonders.

Emil Taussig, Elizabeth, N. J.—No doubt that your policy, in co-operating with all Dealers, has met with the success it deserves. I hope it will lead to an organization of the Dealers all through the United States. Have learned a great deal from the articles sent from "The Other 13,000," and am very much interested in everything they write about. I had quite a success with show-window trimming and it may help some Dealers to know how to display Phonographs or Records with a small stock on hand and without a big expense.

THIS ONE MADE A HIT.

Background—White cheesecloth, draped in folds one inch wide, one and one-half yards high, trimmed with a band of red cloth four inches on bottom and top. Sides of window treated same way. Floor same way.

Centre—Put a cabinet for Records in the centre of windows with an Edison Home Phonograph Combination Type on top of it, with horn and crane complete.

Sides—Build a pyramid from Amberol Records (empty boxes) about one yard high on the right side, and same on the left of the Cabinet, only using Standard Record boxes instead.

Signs—Two big signs, each one yard long and nine inches wide, marked "FREE." Cut the letters out and paste red tissue paper in back so as to make the letters transparent. Paste this sign, one in every corner on top of front glass. Make another sign about twenty inches square, with following: "FREE." This outfit will be given free to any person who can prove that the Edison Phonograph is not the best Cylinder Machine in the world." (Stand this sign in front of cabinet.)

ANOTHER ONE.

Background—You can use same background and sides for this display, but I had a scenery painted on a bed sheet representing bushes and swamp, to harmonize. Get a tank about four inches deep and at least one yard long and twenty inches wide. Your plumber will make one very cheap for you. Fill same with water and put some soil in, so as to cover the ground. Put tank on one side of the window and cover the rest of bottom of window with grass plots, leaving a pathway about ten inches wide, which you cover with some gravel. The whole thing should look like a swamp, with a pool and a pathway leading to it. Maybe you can find some dried up bushes, in an empty lot.

Borrow from some friends a stuffed stork; I have used a gray bird that looks something like it. Stand him up over the tank and suspend a Gem Phonograph with Horn over the bird with picture wire. Tie a Turkish towel around the machine, leaving front of it exposed, and make it look as if the stork was holding the knot in his bill. It should look as if the stork was bringing the machine out of the pond.

Sign—One big sign to cover the front window in a half circle: "What is a Home without a Phonograph?"

Your little folder, "See the Free Show Inside," gave me the following idea:

I own a machine that will run twelve hours on one winding, carry a weight of fifty pounds and is very handy for "live" displays. Have made a large circle out of wood about forty inches in diameter, made it on the style of barrel top, braced on bottom. Fasten this circle on machine and have it run very slow. Divide circle in about eight compartments with thin boards twenty inches wide and twenty inches high and nail them on circle from centre of circle out to the rim, forming little rooms (triangles). My painter supplied me with an old wallpaper sample book, with which I have papered these rooms, every room different. Some of it was used for the floor of rooms. Spread a sheet tent-like over the whole; high in centre with a small flag, and leaving front exposed just enough to show one room at a time, as the machine is running. Every room represents a parody on Edison Records. For instance:

Record No. 9392—"Next Horse I Ride on"—a wooden horse and a doll under it.

Record No. 9408—"Since Nellie Went Away"—showing a dirty kitchen with a toy stove all upset, some small toy dishes and pails on floor upturned. It looked as if Nellie had a scrap with Missus and after a good fight left the battlefield.

You can advertise this way almost any new Record, and don't forget to put a small sign in every room with number and title. Many an original idea can be worked out this way. If you can have a light in front to light up the rooms as they come in view.

E. C. Hagerty, Stephen, Minn.—I am enclosing you a copy of the "ad" I am running and thought it might be a good suggestion for you to make to the trade in the MONTHLY. It is the women and children in the country homes that Dealers need to reach, and I think this plan will do it quite successfully. Once they have had one for a time they will tease the old man till he will feel obliged to get one in self-defense. I have a customer now who is getting one simply because they happened to have a man with one for a time, and now the women and children simply cannot think of getting along without one. This is a very inexpensive way of creating interest in them and I feel will be a very successful way.

[The advertisement sent by Mr. Hagerty read in part as follows:

"Would you like to hear an Edison Phonograph in your own home? Then read this.

"I have decided to keep one machine and two dozen or more records just to loan out to anyone living in the country who will be responsible for the safe return of it inside of a week after receiving it. Application for it can be given in person or by mail and will be recorded in the order received by me and I will give you the date when you can get the machine. There will be no charge or no obligation to buy. Just take the machine to your home and play it for a week and return it to me. That settles the bill. I want all the country people to hear the Edison and at my expense. If after hearing my machine you decide you must have one I will sell you a new one and new records and on easy terms if desired. Why wait till you get rich when you can buy one on small payments for the amount of which you would not think of being without it even as rent? Call at once and register, or if you cannot call, write and I will let you know when your turn comes to have the free use of this outfit."]

Leopold J. Schreiber, Plymouth, Mass.—For the benefit of Daniel H. McRae, Glenora, Ont., and other Dealers, I wish to say I do quite a business in letting Phonographs and Records. I charge $1.50 a night for a Standard Phonograph and four dozen Records in a case. And I charge $5.00 a week for same outfit to Summer people at the cottages and allow them to change the Records three times a week. I have given free entertainments to many lodges and public times and bazars, which brought me good trade. Most anyone is willing to pay $1.50 to have a Phonograph and four dozen Records overnight to entertain their company.

For the benefit of J. H. Snyder, Lavelle, Pa., and other Dealers, I wish to say I sell more Phonographs and Records on my team route than I sell in my store. I have over 200 customers for Records. Every month when the new Records come out I drive out and leave the entire list with each customer overnight and call next morning. I replace the ones sold and leave these in next house and it keeps me agoing. By the time I get all around I can start right over for next month. Soon as I have a prospect for a Phonograph I leave the outfit at their home a few days, with two dozen late Records and wish to say I sell three to four Phonographs a week.

M. J. Roth, Edison Dealer at 1495 Third avenue, New York City, decided recently to follow out the suggestion contained in the Edison PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY and give Phonograph Recitals at regular intervals.

The invitations he issued to patrons were attractively printed and worded as follows:

"You are most cordially invited to be present at our first Edison Phonograph Recital on Saturday evening, Feb. 20th, at 8 o'clock. If you are a lover of good music, whether you own a Phonograph or not, don't fail to attend and bring your friends. These concerts will be given at regular intervals on the fifth floor of our building, especially fitted up for the occasion. A choice program of two and four minute Records will be rendered."

The Records selected for the recitals were taken from both the Amberol and Standard lists and the numbers were marked with one or two stars to indicate two minute and four minute selections respectively.

At the bottom of the program was left a blank for the name and address of any prospective purchaser and the following explanatory note:

"Patrons desiring to purchase any of the Records on this program may put an X in front of the number, fill out the name and address blanks, hand the slip to clerk and the Records will promptly be delivered to their residences."

Mr. Roth states that this scheme worked very successfully and recommends it to the attention of other dealers.

Chas. F. Sonnekorn, La Porte, Ind.—We are beginners in the talking machine business, but are learning fast. We put in a line of Edison Phonographs about the middle of December and have had a fine business. Our present stock consists of 500 Records and we ordered 500 more recently. By next fall we will carry a complete stock of Records. We like your PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY very much and read each issue from cover to cover.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

"A Useful Ally"

Imagine an entertainment where every performer is a star and every number a selection of your own

THAT describes the entertainment of an Edison Phonograph. You need not dress for it, go out after it, arrange your time for it or pay for admission to it. It takes place in your home, at your convenience, as often as you like.

You listen—that is the extent of your effort. You hear Manuel Romain sing just as you would if he stood before you. You hear Maurice Levi's Band play under his spirited direction and forget the medium by which his artistic efforts are brought to you.

Or you enjoy the talents of such clever entertainers as Ada Jones, Cal Stewart, Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray and Steve Porter.

Do you doubt this excellence in the Edison Phonograph? Then hear it. Go to an Edison store; select the Record of a singer you have heard and a song you know. This test has placed the Edison Phonograph in a million homes.

Ask particularly to hear an Amberol Record, Mr. Edison's latest contribution to Phonographic entertainment; a record that preserves the sweet, clear tones of the Standard Edison Records, yet plays or sings twice as long and costs but a trifle more.

Edison Phonographs are sold at the same prices everywhere in the United States, $12.50 to $125.00. Amberol Records, 50c.; regular Edison Records, 35c.; Grand Opera Records, 75c. One of the greatest pleasures which the Edison Phonograph affords is making records at home. This can be done only with the Edison.

EDISON RECORD TALENT

Maurice Levi

A Galaxy of Stars

LET a song make a hit, let a singer rise above the commonplace, let a band or orchestra achieve distinction, and a million homes immediately become the beneficiary through the Edison Phonograph. Each month the Phonograph offers entertainment of the highest order—the work of artists who have made names for themselves in the musical world.

Among those who have contributed to the Edison program for April are two of unusual eminence.

MAURICE LEVI offers his "Happy Days March," played by his band under his leadership. Levi is famous as a conductor of the new school. The march is his own composition and was first performed under his direction in "The Soul Kiss." It is full of novel effects, and in its rendition shows clearly the strong personality of Levi himself.

MANUEL ROMAIN contributes two songs, one a sentimental reverie with waltz refrain; the other a new waltz song with orchestra accompaniment—an Amberol Record containing the entire song. Romain is a marvelous tenor and never fails to make a Record that appeals.

April Records (Standard and Amberol) will be ready March 25th. Go to any Edison dealer and hear them. Catalog of April selections with descriptions, as well as a catalog of Edison Phonographs from the dealer or from us on request.

Just how much it helps depends upon your own efforts

W. G. Thomson, Nelson, B. C.—Referring to communication from T. H. Gillan, on page 11 of PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for February, in giving something away as a premium with machines or Records, and your comment on it, I fail to see any distinction between that and giving something off the price of machines or Records, or giving Records with machines, or an extra Record with a sale of a dozen Records, or any other form of rebate, or why any Dealer doing such a thing should not be regarded as violating his contract in the matter of rebates or price cutting, and treated accordingly. Would be glad to know what you have to say regarding this.

[We did not mean to give the impression that we approved of the practice referred to, for we do not. Giving merchandise of any kind or making any inducement whatever to sell Edison goods is a violation of our price agreement and we are constantly prosecuting cases of this kind. In commenting upon the letter of Mr. Gillan, we intended to say that offering inducements is a species of dishonesty, and dishonest practices do not win out against a Dealer who gives the manufacturer as well as the public a "square deal." The dishonest man may "get away" in a sale of this kind, but the man who benefits by the sale knows that the Dealer has been dishonest and he never again has the same opinion of him that he once had.]

F. E. Huffaker, Visalia, Cal.—Can an Edison customer receive the Phonogram for you every month, or are they supplied from Dealers?

[We do not mail Phonograms to Phonograph owners unless they pay the subscription price of twenty cents a year to pay postage. Most owners are supplied by Dealers, who buy Phonograms from Jobbers at 25 cents per hundred. This is the price that Jobbers in turn pay for them.]

George Frew, Cardington, Ohio—A lady was in my store the other day and I played Record No. 9994, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," by the Knickerbocker Quartette, for her. A well-known quartette recently gave a concert in our town and sang the same number. "Why," said the lady, when she heard the Record, "I understood those words ever so much better than I did when I heard it on the stage." Pretty nice compliment, wasn't it.

Bernard & Bishop, Reading, Mich.—Can music be made louder by using larger horns? Or which is the best way to furnish music for dances on Edison Machine?

[The use of large horns will slightly increase the volume of a Record and this volume ought to be sufficient except for a very large hall.]

Hopkins' Bazaar, Redfield, S. D.—Is a local Dealer allowed to prepay the express or freight charges on a Phonograph or Records, providing the same has been sold at full retail price?

[This is a matter that we never have attempted to regulate. If, for example, a local Dealer is permitted to deliver Phonographs and Records by means of an automobile or delivery wagon, either of which is an expense to him, we do not see how we can prevent another local Dealer who does not have an automobile or delivery wagon from making his deliveries by means of express or railroad companies. Of course, in all cases, we insist that the goods shall be sold at full retail prices. Therefore, our answer to your question is that a local Dealer is permitted to prepay express or freight charges.]

R. E. Shafer, Gering, Neb.—I have a drug and music store, 24x100. I display the Edison Record list (monthly) on a post in the center of the room, about fifteen feet from the main entrance. Everybody sees it.

Charles D. Blaine, San Luis, Obispo, Cal.—Your PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is O. K. I look for it anxiously every month. To prove what the Monthly did for me in one instance, will state that a little over a year ago when you gave your dealers exchange of Records, through some error of the postal department, my exchange papers failed to reach me and I knew nothing about the exchange until the Monthly appeared. I had a few days in which to take advantage of the proposition but no papers. I immediately "got busy" and borrowed papers from a dealer who was quitting the business (fortunately for me) and made shipment of my cut-outs and defective Records, the Monthly saved me from carrying that dead stock for another year.

Stephens City Furniture Co., Stephens City, Va.—In the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for March, Louis Tyler asks, "What is the correct definition of Amberol?"

We would reply in brief—A M-uch B-etter E-dison R-ecord, O-f L-ength.

An Aid to the Show Window

"Show windows are the 'eyes of the store,' and are supposed to reflect the character of the store," said a prominent merchant. Of what value is it to spend a large amount of money in the preparation of fine window displays and effective newspaper advertisements if people are subjected, inside your store, to discourteous or cold treatment and methods which are at variance with the splendid treatment pictured in your windows and advertisements. I would use every effort within my power to see that folks were not importuned to buy when they only wanted information, and were made to feel at home when they came in.—Exchange.

Mechanical Department

We have made a beginning here of a department for answering questions asked by the trade concerning the mechanical features of the business. We believe that this department will be a valuable one to Jobbers and Dealers, and we hope that they will freely ask questions that may be answered in the department. We would especially like to reply to questions on subjects of interest to the trade generally. The coupon on page 24 may be used for asking questions, or Dealers may ask questions by postal cards or by letter.

Thomas Riddell, Brooklyn, N. Y.—What is the cause of and best way to cure a quivering governor? This applies especially to new style Triumph Phonographs.

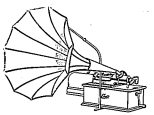
[This condition is known as a drunken governor, and it can be remedied in the following manner: First, allow the machine to run down completely, until the main spring is entirely unwound. Then remove the governor and shaft from the machine, and loosen the screws that hold the springs to the collar and press the balls of the governor down flat on the shaft, and reset the screws tightly. After tightening these screws, press the ends of the governor on its shaft, together, so as to bow out the springs, until they assume a slightly convex appearance, after which re-assemble to the machine, wind it fully, and test it with a Record on which the trembling was most noticeable.]

King & Gager, Savannah, Mo.—What makes the springs jump as though giving way and catching again, and what is the remedy? We have tried oil and graphite, and in one case a new spring.

[This condition is known as a chugging main spring, and is caused by the leaves or coils of the main spring becoming gummed and sticking together by the excessive use of oil. The remedy is to allow the motor to run until the spring is half unwound, then remove the Phonograph from the cabinet, and thoroughly wash out the spring with benzine, after which apply powdered graphite between the leaves or coils of the main spring, and a little Phonograph oil. Then replace the Phonograph in its cabinet, wind it fully, and allow the motor to run down two or three times, after which treatment the motor will operate smoothly, and the chugging will cease.]

Leopold J. Schreiber, Plymouth, Mass.—I find that the Standard Records play louder and better with the Model H Reproducer. Do you think it will hurt the Standard Records or the Model H Reproducer?

[It is true that a Model H Reproducer can be used on Standard Records with possibly better results than a Model C Reproducer. It is not, however, wise to use the Model H Reproducer on Standard Records. The reproducing point of the Model H is much smaller than in the Model C, and Standard Records are not made to withstand the possible wear of the smaller point. Standard Records are made of a different composition than Amberol Records, and a smaller point is more apt to cut the former. We would advise you and all other Dealers not to encourage the use of Model H Reproducers on Standard Records.]



C. D. Bonfoy, Claysville, N. Y.—Why are some Model C Reproducers louder and much plainer speaking than others? Is there any way to make them uniform?

[All of our Reproducers are tested by a standard and are uniform in tone or as nearly so as it is possible to make them. It occasionally happens that the rubber gaskets between which the diaphragm is placed will shrink and become hard, and when this happens the tone of the reproducer becomes impaired. It can be improved by tightening the clamping ring a little, which takes up any play there may be between the diaphragm and the gaskets and eliminates any tendency of the Reproducer to blast or rattle. Care should be taken, however, not to tighten the clamping ring too much, for if it is screwed up as tight as it will go the volume of tone will be reduced. It should be tightened just enough to take out any blast that may be apparent in the Reproducer.]

W. E. Fuller, Williamsburg, Ia.—What shall we do with the old main shafts and mandrels? How and when shall we turn them in?

[When the price of the attachment for playing the Amberol Record was fixed, the value of the old main shaft and mandrel was taken into consideration, and the price was based on the exchange of these parts for the new attachment. Dealers who have accumulated a quantity of these old main shafts and mandrels should return them to their Jobber, who will return them to us. The main shaft and mandrels are of no value to the user or the Dealer, but are of some value to us, and all of our attachments are sold with the understanding that the old main shaft and mandrel should be returned to us.]

Store Arrangement and Display

We reproduce below a few of the scores of photographs of Dealers' stores sent us by our loyal friends. These have been in our hands for several months awaiting a favorable opportunity to use them and we still have many more on a waiting list.

We wish we were able to use some of these photographs every month, for we would like to do all we can to encourage Dealers in improving the appearance of their stores. Whenever a Dealer arranges his stock and the interior of his store in an attractive manner, and has a photograph taken of it, he may be put down as the right kind of a Dealer. When a Dealer takes pride in his stock and store, it will be found that he advertises, has mailing lists and leaves no stone unturned to get business.

The photographs reproduced here should furnish some ideas to Dealers who have not given the proper attention to the display of machines and Records.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records for June, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before May 25th, 1909, all things being favourable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on May 24th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on May 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. There may be distributed to Dealers after May 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before May 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on May 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for June Records on or before April 10th. Dealers should place June orders with Jobbers before April 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard Records for June

10137 Brooke's Triumphal March — United States Marine Band

The first Edison Record made by Washington's famous band. We are indeed fortunate in being able to place at the command of owners of Edison Phonographs the music of this great band organization. A corps of Edison experts was sent to Washington for the sole purpose of having the Marine Band make a series of Records for us. Some of these were made for the shorter Edison Record, so that those who have not added an Amberol attachment to their machines may share in the work of the Marine Band. Composer, Roland F. Seitz.

10138 No One Knows — Manuel Romain

A sentimental song of much more than ordinary beauty, both in words and music. Mr. Romain never sang more expressively. This is loud praise, for his Edison Records have gained for him a world-wide popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Francis Mack; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10139 Did He Run? — Edward Meeker

A comic song, descriptive in the first verse of what happened when a pack of firecrackers was tied to lazy Pete Green, and in the second verse of how a milkman entered his horse at Sheepshead Bay and was winning handily until someone shouted "Milk." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Von Tilzer; words, Junie McCree; publishers, New York Music Co., New York.

10140 Chinese March—Kwang Hsü — Edison Concert Band

A characteristic march, in which the instrumental effects reflect the style and character of the music of the Chinese Empire. Composer, Paul Lincke; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10141 Bandy Legs — Ada Jones

A "kid" waltz song similar to "Smarty" (our Record No. 9822) and with an equally catchy air. The words relate the woes of a little girl in short dresses whose lower limbs are not as perfect in form as they might be. She was teased night and day by her playmates calling her "bandy legs." Miss Jones gives the words the right kind of "kid" interpretation. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, John B. Lowitz; publishers, Trebuhs Publishing Co., New York.

10142 He Will Hold Me Fast — Anthony and Harrison

A sacred selection that attracted much attention at the revival meetings in Boston, January, 1909, conducted by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman. It was there sung with great success by Evangelist Alexander. The fact that Anthony & Harrison make the Record of the song stamps it as an artistic performance. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Robert Harkness; words, Ada R. Haberson; publishers, Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

10143 Trans-Mog-Ni-Fi-Can-Ban-Dan-U-All-Ty — Billy Murray

A new coon song by the same composer as "He's a Cousin of Mine" (our Record No. 9412) and "Common Sense" (our Record No. 9886). The title is the word that puzzled Ephraim Jackson Brown to spell. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Chris. Smith; words, James Burris; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10144 The Jolly Clowns — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic composition by the writer of "Mosquito's Parade" (our Record No. 7393) and "Mouse and the Clock" (our Record No. 9434). It includes effective parts for the bassoon and oboe. The laughing of the jolly clowns is a feature. Composer, Howard Whitney; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10145 If You Were Mine — James F. Harrison

Mr. Harrison has not in some time made a more delightful Record than this new sentimental lullad by Kerry Mills, whose name alone makes for a successful production. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur J. Lamb; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

10146 Who's Your Friend? — Collins and Harlan

One of those duet Records in which these popular artists have made their greatest successes. It is typically "coon" in character, with clever verses and a swinging air. A laughable bit of by-play is the termination of a quarrel between the pair of dusky lovers. She is jealous and nags him till he strikes her. She cries "Police," but when the patrol wagon arrives she declares that he has only been demonstrative in his affection, and will not let the policeman arrest "her man." Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Ed. Rogers; publisher, Ted Snyder, New York.

10147 Almost — Edward M. Favor

One of the song hits in "The Fair Co-Ed," the successful musical production written by George Ade and played by the Elsie Janis Co. It is the song of "the average sort of a regular kind of a college man" who "almost" does many things. He "almost" made quarter back, "almost" ran on the cinder path, "almost" made the banjo club; the girls said he could "almost" dance, etc. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Gustav Lüders; words, George Ade; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10148 The Rolling Chair March — Maurice Levi and his Band

Another of Mr. Levi's own compositions. Mr. Levi's productions show that he has unusual talent as a composer of band music, as well as being a band leader of the first rank. The Records by this band are different from any band Records heretofore listed in the Edison catalogues and are already in great demand. Publisher, Chas. K. Harris, New York.

10149 Uncle Josh's Trip to Coney Island — Cal Stewart

Mr. Stewart has been selling the story of his trip to New York City's famous resort for a long time and millions of people have laughed when he told it. But, like wine, the story improves with age and it is still funnier than most of the humorous things more recently placed before the public. Thousands of Phonograph owners are acquiring a complete collection of the Uncle Josh Records, getting the new ones as fast as they appear.

10150 Isn't Love a Grand Old Thing — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

The title of this comic duet and the names of the artists singing it, at once suggest a Record that will be "in the money"—that is, one that will rank among the five best sellers of the month. Miss Jones and Mr. Murray present another Record fully as good as any made by them since they have been singing together. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Wm. J. McKenna (writer of "Mandy Lane," our Record No. 10033); publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10151 Schoolmates — Byron G. Harlan

A charming waltz song that may be called a companion piece to the familiar "Schooldays" (our Record No. 9562). It is written by the same composer and sung for our Record by the same artist. A pleasing feature is the unexpected responsive voice in the refrain of the little schoolmate of "not so many years ago." This refrain is sung by Miss Jane Rossmore. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Gus Edwards; words, Ed. Gardenier; publishers, Gus Edwards Music Co., New York.

10152 Moszkowski's Serenade — Venetian Instrumental Trio

Moritz Moszkowski, concert pianist and composer, was born at Breslau, August 23d, 1854. As a composer he is most widely known by his elegant and dainty salon-music for piano. The serenade is a gem among his many compositions. It was originally written for the piano, but it is here given with a musical setting that emphasizes its charming and graceful melody.

10153 Flanagan's Evening at Home — Steve Porter

Another good member of the Flanagan series. Flanagan puts in an evening at home. He reads the newspaper and in the "Lost" and "Wanted" columns he finds much to amuse him. Some of the advertisements he reads to Mary Ann will certainly amuse Phonograph owners.

10154 Good-Night Quartette—"Martha" — Metropolitan Quartette

"Martha," by F. Von Flotow, was first performed in Vienna in 1847. Its popularity has been so great and lasting that it has become known both here and abroad as "the ever popular." The "Good-Night Quartette" is one of its many charming and melodious numbers. It is sung in the second act, the scene being in the farm-house after Martha and Nancy have engaged themselves as servants to Lionel and Plunkett. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

10155 Denver Town — Premier Quartette

Another cowboy song, telling how a cowboy wooed and won his bride. It is sung by a new combination of artists, including Will Oakland, John H. Bieshing, Billy Murray and W. F. Hooley. Unaccompanied. Music, George Botsford; words, Harry Breen; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10156 In God We Trust March — United States Marine Band

A popular march of this famous organization. It was brought into added prominence because of the coin "In God We Trust" controversy. It introduces the following tunes: "My Country, 'Tis of Thee"; "Dixie" and "Down Upon the Suwanee River." Second only in interest to these selections is the spirited figuration for clarinets and cornets that appears almost as prominently as the melodies themselves. Composer, G. Rosati.

Edison Amberol Records for June

135 Ruy Blas Overture — Edison Concert Band

Among Felix Mendelssohn's celebrated concert overtures there is none that ranks higher than his famous "Ruy Blas." In symmetry of form and beauty of theme, it may justly be classed a masterpiece from the pen of this wonderful composer. The many admirers of Mendelssohn's composition will find our Record worthy of this renowned classic. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

136 Adam and Eve — Grace Cameron

This comic song was a hit in the musical comedy "The Pied Piper," De Wolf Hopper's latest success. It was sung by Miss Cameron while appearing in that production. Her rendition for our Record is quite as clever as her stage production. Miss Cameron is prominent and popular, both in musical comedy and vaudeville. This is her first appearance as an Edison artist. The Record will make the public want to hear more of her work. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Manuel Klein; words, R. H. Burnside; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

137 Whispering Flowers — Edison Concert Band

Originally written by von Blon, but specially arranged for reed instruments only by F. W. Ecke, leader of the Edison Concert Band. The composition is full of brilliant changes and charming effects, the composer's idea being to portray the murmuring zephyrs, the gentle breezes rustling through the leaves with whispering flowers nodding in the sunlight of a bright summer day. This conception is musically conveyed by the special arrangement for the reeds, the combination producing a splendid blending of woodwind, greatly enhancing the melodious beauty of this exceptional number. This arrangement is not published.

138 As the Years Roll On — Manuel Romain

As the years roll on,	In this world's vast space,
As they come and go,	None can take your place.
You are more to me,	And I'll love, and love, and love you!
Than you'll ever know.	As the years roll on.

Given words like these, with a sweet musical setting, sung by Mr. Romain and an attractive orchestral accompaniment, and all the ingredients are at hand of a delightful sentimental Record. Music, Melville J. Gideon; words, Edgar Selden; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

139 Hallelujah Chorus—"Messiah" — Oratorio Mixed Chorus

This chorus is the most inspiring part of "The Messiah," the greatest oratorio written by George Frederich Handel, one of the old masters. Handel was born February 23d, 1685. Whenever this oratorio is performed, it is customary for the audience to arise and remain standing while the "Hallelujah Chorus" is being sung. This custom originated with the first London performance of "The Messiah." When the "Hallelujah Chorus" rang out, the entire audience rose as one person, carried away by lofty enthusiasm. Band accompaniment. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

140 Semper Fidelis March — United States Marine Band

This composition is regarded at Washington, D. C., as the official march of the United States Marine Band and is played by them at all government functions. It is one of J. P. Sousa's best compositions. The Record is noteworthy because it is the first of the Amberol series made by this famous government organization. Mr. Santelmann, the conductor of the band, is one of the foremost leaders in the country. Publishers, John P. Church Co., New York.

141 Any Old Port in a Storm — Gus Reed

Mr. Reed's superb basso voice could hardly be heard to better advantage than it is in this descriptive song of the sea. His rendition for our Record is faultless. Incidental to the singing there are some effects, like the sound of water dashing against the side of the ship, that adds to its realism. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Kerry Mills; words, Arthur J. Lamb; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

142 A Possum Supper at the Darktown Church — The Cal Stewart Co.

This descriptive coon sketch, written by Cal Stewart, demonstrates that his ability is not confined to writing Yankee drollery and reproducing it on Records. It may not be generally known that Mr. Stewart is the writer of all the matter that appears on Records made by him. The story on this Record is very realistic of darkey life in the South. It includes a typical coon conversation, an address by "de Parson" and a song, "Boll That Possum Down," by Brother Lucius Livermore.

143 Peer Gynt Suite { No. 1 "The Morning" / No. 2 "Ase's Death" } — Edison Concert Band

144 Peer Gynt Suite { No. 3 "Anitra's Dance" / No. 4 "In the Hall of the Mountain King" } — Edison Concert Band

This suite is the best known of the numerous works of Edward Hagerup Grieg, the celebrated Norwegian composer. The subjects are taken from the dramatic poem, "Peer Gynt," by Henrik Ibsen. "The Morning" is of a pastoral character and exquisitely portrays the tranquility and quietude of the break of day. "Ase's Death" describes the overwhelming grief of Peer Gynt at the death of his mother. "Anitra's Dance" is a dreamy mazurka movement, picturing Anitra, the daughter of a Bedouin chief, in her graceful and languorous dancing, by which she fascinates Peer Gynt, who has fallen in love with her. "In the Hall of a Mountain King" expresses in mystic and wierd strains the departure of Peer Gynt from the hall of the mountain king in the pursuit of the goblins. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

145 The Longest Way 'Round is the Sweetest Way Home — Will Oakland

What fond lover will fail to recognize as the truth the title of this sentimental composition? Is not the longest way all too short to him? In this composition he frankly confesses before the wedding that it is the sweetest. A year after the marriage she asks that, for old times' sake, they again take the long way, and gives the same reason for her preference. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Kerry Mills, who also wrote "When You Love Her and She Loves You" (our Record No. 9778) and "Red Wing" (our Record No. 9622); music, Ren Shields; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

146 Wedding March—"Midsummer Night's Dream" — American Symphony Orchestra

No composition by Mendelssohn is so universally known and admired as this wedding march. It is part of the incidental music written by Mendelssohn to Shakespeare's dramatic comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." No wedding in these days would be complete without this march as one of the nuptial airs. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

147 Hear Ye Israel—Aria from "Elijah" — Edith Chapman

The best known and most popular aria for soprano from the oratorio "Elijah." The text is taken from Chapters XLVIII, LIII, XLIX, XLI and LI of the Book of Isaiah. Miss Chapman's beautiful soprano voice could not be heard to better advantage than on this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

148 Sweet Peggy Magee — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An Irish dialect story of the courtship of Paddy Flynn and Peggy Magee. Paddy has proposed many times, and as many times been refused by the coquettish Peggy. Paddy finally outwitted her and won her consent to be married. The Record includes more than the usual number of incidental effects, all of which add to its desirability.

149 Frau Luna Overture — Maurice Levi and His Band

The overture to Paul Lincke's comic operetta, "Frau Luna," a successful European production. It is one of Mr. Lincke's favorite numbers and always scores a "hit." The principal theme running through the selection is the chorus of "Castles in the Air," a charming bit of melody. The entire overture is very entertaining. Publisher, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

150 Anona — Mabel McKinley

"Anona" was Miss McKinley's first great success as a composer. The selection has indeed been a success, for ever since its first recognition by the public it has been a feature on musical programmes, especially of band concerts. The graceful way in which Miss McKinley sings the selection is delightful. Orchestra accompaniment.

151 Darkey School Days — Golden and Hughes

A screaming vaudeville sketch, given on our Record just as it is presented nightly on the stage by these vaudeville artists. The dialogue is between two darkey school-boys, and the statements they make, the sums they propound to each other and their antics generally, all combine to make an unusually funny Record.

152 Gavotte-Caprice — Samuel Siegel and Roy H. Butin

A mandolin and guitar duet by two experts on these instruments. The selection is an original composition by Mr. Siegel, the construction of which presents fine contrast and brilliant change, and affords a splendid opportunity to these artists to show a skilled and finished performance on these sweet-toned instruments.

153 Seven Favorite College Songs — Knickerbocker Quartette

A specially arranged Record of the following seven songs, so well known and popular among the colleges: "Upidee," "Bring Back My Bonnie to Me," "Boola Song," "Soldier's Farewell," "Stein Song," "Old College Chum" and "Good Night, Ladies." Sung by male voices, unaccompanied.

*This Record will be illustrated on cover of JUNE PHONOGRAM.

154 The Skater Waltz — New York Military Band

Another Amberol Record made for dancing. The composition is by Emil Waldteufel, an European writer, well known for his graceful and popular dance music. His waltzes are greatly admired for their sweet, flowing melodies and their splendid dance rhythm. They are favorite numbers, both in concert hall and ball room. This waltz is characteristic of its title, conveying by instrumental effects the clatter of the skaters, while the merry jingle of sleigh bells assist in picturing the life and action of this exhilirating sport. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

Trade Bulletins

Sales Department Bulletin No. 26, April 1, 1909
Trade Information for All Dealers in the U. S.

All correspondence concerning the Bulletin should receive its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

The 300 Edison Records named below will be withdrawn from sale August 1st, 1909, and will not appear in the Domestic Record Catalogue of that date.

In giving Dealers four months' time in which to dispose of their stock of these out-out selections, we hope that the trade will co-operate with us in reducing to a minimum the number of Records to be returned for exchange.

These Records are being dropped solely to meet the wishes of the trade that the total number be kept as near 1,500 as possible. Without exception, they are desirable and salable selections. Their withdrawal means the loss to us of a large amount of business and we are entitled to the assistance of Dealers in reducing the further loss that will be caused by the return of cut-out stock.

A Useful Computer

E. B. Hyatt, an Edison Dealer at Portland, Ore., has just gotten up an "Instantaneous Computer of Edison Amberol Records and Attachments." This seems like a long title for what is, after all, a simple table. In this table Mr. Hyatt has carried out the cost to the Dealer of from 100 to 400 Amberol Records and the cost to the Dealer of from 1 to 50 Standard, Home and Triumph Attachments. In other words, the table shows at a glance that 74 Amberol Records cost $20.72 and that 33 Standard Attachments cost $123.75. It saves all trouble of computing the cost of a given number of Records or Attachments. The computer is printed on a card 3⅝x13 inches and is very convenient for trade use. Mr. Hyatt is willing to mail copies of it to any of his fellow Dealers upon receipt of ten cents each.

An Alaska "Stunt"

The White Co., Edison Dealers at Valdez, Alaska, recently made a request for new electros illustrating our various machines, because those which had previously been furnished were lost in the fire which destroyed their local printing office. In referring to the fire William M. Wilson, president of the Company, writes:

"The printing office was almost completely destroyed, but the editor nevertheless issued a paper on the day of the fire. I enclose a copy for your perusal. The news matter was typewritten, pasted on a large sheet, and photographed. Prints from the negative were distributed to subscribers, instead of the usual type set newspaper."

Indians Make Own Records

We enclose herewith application from a new dealer located at Winnebago, Neb., wrote the Early Music House, Sioux City, recently. This is only a small town but it is the headquarters for a number of Indians who, strange as it may seem, are large users of Phonograph goods, especially machines and blanks. As an example of the way they purchase the latter it may be of interest to you to know that one of our Dealers in that vicinity recently sold a machine and twenty-five blanks to a buck, but was unable to sell him a single Standard Record.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

TEXT:

The spur does not give the horse more speed; it merely brings out the speed that is in him.

COMPETITION is a spur. Without it we would all be inclined to sit back and be contented with what business came our way.

Competition keeps dealers wide-awake, alert and eternally on the job. It is responsible for good goods, up-to-date store methods, inviting interiors, attractive window displays and liberal advertising.

But competition does not give a dealer more shrewdness and hustle; it merely brings out the business abilities that are in him.

You have competition in the sound-reproducing business. Do not let it worry you or discourage you; but do not ignore it, forget it or under-estimate it.

You can win if you will, and win signally, because you have in the Edison Phonograph an instrument that is worthy of all the enthusiasm and selling effort you are capable of putting behind it.

No competition, however fierce, can hold its own against the perfect work of the Edison Phonograph and Edison Records.

If it hadn't been for competition, the Edison Phonograph might not have been the perfect instrument it is today, answering every demand of people who have been taught to expect the best.

This same competition should induce you to exert greater selling efforts in its behalf, to give it every advantage, to make it more widely known locally and to see to it that every possible purchaser of an instrument hears it before making a decision.

Leave nothing to the imagination of the good people in your locality. Nobody can imagine what a great entertainer it is. Get a hearing for it.

Competition in this business is a matter of exploitation—not of machines.

The Future Bright and Full of Promise

From reports which reach us now and then, it would appear as if some Dealers were trying to make themselves believe that the talking machine business has seen its best day. Some of these pessimistic Dealers are fond of comparing the business with the history of the bicycle, pointing out that it, too, had its palmy days and went into a decline. This comparison is little less than silly, for there is nothing whatever in common between a Phonograph and a bicycle. The Phonograph makes its appeal to the ever-present desire of the human race for music and entertainment. It is true that the bicycle was used for amusement, but it was more like an outdoor sport than anything else. One might just as well claim that the human race was losing its desire for music, when the contrary is the case. The desire for music in one form or another increases hourly. And so long as it exists and increases, the Phonograph will continue to increase in popularity.

There is nothing whatever the matter with the talking machine business that is peculiar to the industry alone. It is true that its volume is not as great nor the demand for machines and Records as large as it was, but the same is true of hundreds of other industries. It is simply suffering from the same business depression that is affecting business everywhere. In fact, we doubt if it is suffering as much as many other manufacturing businesses. Even the Dealers who are disposed to croak would find by looking over their books, that the business they were doing was not so much less after all than they did in the past two years.

We, at the manufacturing end of the business, know that there is nothing the matter with the industry. If we did not believe in it, does the trade suppose that, acting upon the advice of counsel, we would have effected a settlement of the litigation in New York and other States, that has been in progress for the past ten years, when we could just as well have continued the contest longer, or done any one of several things less beneficial to the future of the business? We had promised the trade that we would assume all responsibility for the results of this litigation and we felt that the future of the business would be greatly benefited by a termination of the litigation and it was terminated. The cost did not in the least deter us from following this course.

If we did not believe in the future, does the trade suppose that we would be working upon new machines, working to improve existing machines, working to improve our Records, working to interest higher priced artists to make Records for us and, in fact, working harder than at any time in the past for the permanent improvement of the business?

Does the trade suppose that we would be formulating plans to add to the number and efficiency of our selling force? If we doubted the future, would we within the past two months have turned down three bona fide jobbing propositions simply because they would have encroached upon the territory that legitimately belongs to present Jobbers? Could we not as easily have taken the $30,000 that these propositions represented if we had any thought that the business would not continue indefinitely?

Would we have adopted a policy of protecting Dealers in their respective territories if we had not been looking forward to its effect upon the business of the future? Could we not just as well have continued our old plan and put in as many Dealers as possible and wherever possible just for the money that their business would bring us?

Would we have attempted so radical a thing as to limit Edison Dealers to the sale of our goods as their only cylinder line, if we did not regard such a move as lasting in its benefits and designed to improve the standing of Dealers?

If the future did not seem to us to be full of promise, would we at the present time be planning to spend a greater sum of money than ever, for advertising in publications and for literature to aid our trade in selling Edison Phonographs and Records? Does the trade suppose we would spend a half million dollars or more in this way if we did not expect to get it back with increased profits in the future?

We ask the doubting Dealers to give these facts a little consideration and have the same confidence in the business that we have here. Beyond the same conditions that are influencing other businesses, there is nothing the matter with the talking machine business and the Dealer who, because of the depression, goes out of it or lets up in his efforts to boost it, will in the near future regret his course.

Have patience for a few months longer and when business generally begins to come back, Dealers in Edison goods will come into their own and will find it even a better money-making proposition than it ever has been before.

Continuous Exchange Proposition

Immediately after May 1st, we will begin to mail to the entire trade, a special bulletin and a series of blank forms, concerning a plan by which the trade may return at any time, such quantity of cut-out and defective (not surplus) Edison Standard or Amberol Records (not Grand Opera or Concert) as it may have on hand. This arrangement will become effective on May 5th and will be continued until further advised. The matter will be handled on almost the identical lines as the exchange propositions of the past two years, the only important change being that Dealers must, when they advise us of shipments of returned Records, send an order for immediate shipment for a quantity of Edison Standard or Amberol Records, at least equal to the number of such Records being returned. This order will be forwarded by us to the Jobber designated when credit has been rendered for Records returned. Dealers will also be expected to send a bona fide list of numbers for the quantity designated in the order. The reason for this change is to prevent Dealers from imposing upon Jobbers by returning Records for credit and placing no orders to offset them. In other words, merely using the exchange proposition to pay part of their accounts.

Jobbers and Dealers are urged to watch for the envelope that will contain the exchange papers. They are urged to carefully read the bulletin giving details and to see that none of the blank forms are mislaid. If Dealers do not have a sufficient quantity of Records on hand to at once take advantage of the exchange proposition, they are urged to put the papers away so that they will know where to find them when needed. We expect to be in a position to furnish further copies of the Bulletin or blank forms as may be needed, but the trade will assist us materially if they will take good care of the present lot until more are needed. After the papers have been used to return one lot of Records, it will, of course, be necessary to write us for a set of the forms if desired to return another lot some months later.

This Continuous Exchange Proposition is, by long odds, the most liberal one ever made to the talking machine trade. It still further emphasizes the desire of the National Phonograph Company to do all within its power to aid our Jobbers and Dealers in selling Edison Records on a satisfactory basis. Dealers can no longer complain of their inability to return cut-out and defective Records. The subject will now be entirely in their hands.

By having cut-out and defective Records returned at all times throughout the year, and not in large quantities at one time, we will be enabled to give all details of the matter much closer consideration than heretofore. The inspection that we will give returned Records will make it impossible for Jobbers or Dealers to return Records not included in the scope of the Exchange Proposition and the trade is warned that any attempts to include surplus or broken Records will accomplish no other purpose than to have the entire shipment returned, or at least, credit refused.

Go After Unused Machines

Next to selling a machine, a Dealer cannot do a better thing for himself or his trade than to find Phonograph owners who are not using their machines, because they are out of order, and induce them to have them repaired, cleaned up, or otherwise put in running order. Many a man has stopped buying Records because his machine went wrong in some respect and he neglected having it repaired or looked over. Dealers ought to induce owners of such machines to let them take them and put them in good condition, making an extremely low price for the work in order to get the owner to buy Records again. Where a Phonograph has not been used for several months, for some such reason as the above, when the owner is able to use it again, he has much the same enthusiasm as he had when he first bought it and he buys a larger number of Records than the man who is buying every month. This matter is well worth the attention of every enterprising Edison Dealer.

Wanted—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to

EDISON BUSINESS PHONOGRAPH CO.,
ORANGE, N. J.

A Good Thing All Around

Much of the splendid success of the Amberol Record is due to the efforts of the trade to push it because of the largely increased profits over those made on Standard Records. Amberol Records are an excellent thing for the trade and the public. To the latter they are great value at fifty cents each. To the trade they afford a profit that makes it worth while to sell attachments, combination machines and the Amberol Records themselves. While we want Dealers to sell as many or more Standard Records than ever, we are equally desirous of having them push the Amberol Record wherever they can. There are lots of songs and musical compositions that are practically complete on the two-minute Record, and Dealers should point this out as one of the reasons why Phonograph owners should continue to buy two-minute Records.

The Amberol Record makes it possible to put out many songs, etc., that would not go on the two-minute Record. It is, therefore, possible to urge the sales of Amberol Records without materially affecting the possible demand for the shorter Record. Advance sales of Amberol Records have nearly reached those of the two-minute Record and it will not be long before the sale of Amberol Records will be the greater.

The Amberol Record has another advantage not to be lost sight of. It has made it possible to get up a considerable list of compositions and songs of the better class. Dealers should keep these in mind when they find a customer whose taste is for music of the better grade. In fact, it is sometimes good policy even when you do not know the taste of a customer, to begin by playing music from the operas, for even if the hearer does prefer popular music, he feels flattered that he should be regarded as one of superior musical taste. In all talking machine lines, the sale of high grade Records is limited, and one of their great advantages is to play them when first demonstrating a machine for a customer. The Edison catalogue has a large number of high-class Records in all languages and Dealers should have no trouble in showing that the Edison Phonograph is quite as well equipped in this field as in an other.

About New Locations

Before permitting a Dealer to transfer his stock from one location to another, in the same city, we are, where it is possible, making a personal investigation. That is, our travelling salesmen are instructed to make a careful inspection of the territory, and, where it is possible, we avoid placing a Dealer within say six blocks of another. Otherwise our decision rests upon the report of the salesman regarding the condition of the stock of Edison goods in the hands of the other Dealer who may be located in the same territory.

We have in many cases been successful in inducing the live Dealer to purchase the stock of Edison goods in the hands of the Dealer who has lost interest, thereby eliminating one Dealer, and making it possible for the up-to-date Dealer to do a much larger business. The remaining Dealers have been much pleased with the action taken in these cases.

We would point out that Dealers must not secure locations, or lease stores where they expect to handle Edison goods, without first taking the matter up with this company. The results we are obtaining from this careful inspection of territory are very encouraging, and, while we perhaps may make some errors, we guard against them to the best of our ability.

Protecting Dealers

Every now and then we get a letter from a Dealer having no other competition in his town. He asks questions which seem to indicate that he is somewhat uncertain about our new policy of protecting Dealers. He seems to be afraid that if he does a good business, we will put another Dealer in his town and take part of it away from him. We want to assure every Dealer having such thought in his mind, that he does us an injustice. If a town will only support one good Dealer and that Dealer is handling our goods in a way to get the most business out of the territory, he may depend upon it that we will not disturb him in any way. Our new policy in this respect is not, however, designed to shut out competition, but is rather intended to improve the total volume of our business by encouraging existing Dealers to make greater efforts in their respective territories. To this end, we expect Dealers to carry a sufficient stock at all times, to make proper efforts to sell machines and Records and otherwise to conduct the business to show there is no necessity for another Dealer in his town.

In the larger cities where there are several Dealers, we are going to keep them separated as much as possible and we will not put a new Dealer in a large city where he will interfere with the business of existing Dealers. We are aiming to keep Dealers at least six blocks apart, which, in a large city, should be sufficient separation. In the large cities, however, it is more difficult to treat the matter satisfactorily than it is in the small towns, and we do not expect to be as successful in insuring the city Dealer from competition as we are in the smaller places. We will, at all times, do the best we can to treat the matter with absolute fairness. We would again urge the progressive Dealers in towns where there are two or more to arrange to buy the stock of the weaker Dealer and thus eliminate so-called competition.

Concerning Dealers' Agreements

The following copy of Bulletin No. 44 to Jobbers only, dated April 10, is reprinted as a matter of record and to get the attention of Jobbers who may not have received the Bulletin itself:

It has been our practice in the past to acknowledge receipt of all Dealers' Agreements forwarded to us by Jobbers. Please take notice that hereafter, such acknowledgments, as a rule, will be discontinued. This action is taken to save correspondence.

Jobbers are urged to forward new Dealers' Agreements without delay after shipment of initial order, and, in case a new dealer does not qualify, or, for any reason, is not acceptable to the Jobber, would request that prompt notification be sent to us, so that our files may be cleared. This will save Jobbers' considerable loss of time, in cases where we receive subsequent applications from towns where a dealer has not qualified.

Jobbers very frequently send us signed Agreements and omit to send applications; this causes unnecessary delay.

We also find that many Jobbers send us signed agreements, together with signed applications, which necessitates returning the Agreements to the Jobber for statement of the initial order and shipment. This necessitates unnecessary correspondence, and delays the work of this department.

In all cases, Jobbers should hold the Agreements until advised of the acceptance of an application, and then forward one copy of Agreement to us with complete statement as to initial shipment.

We also call attention to the necessity for sending a signed application in all cases.

Edison Awarded Rare Medal

The Royal Academy of Sciences in Sweden has given Thomas A. Edison the Adelskiold gold medal for his inventions in connection with the Phonograph and the Incandescent light. This medal is conferred only once in ten years. It has been given to Charles H. Graves, American Minister, for transmission to Mr. Edison.

Following Up the Violators

A preliminary injunction has been granted in the Federal Court, in the case of the New Jersey Patent Co. and the National Phonograph Co., against the Paxton & Baker Co., of Hammond, Ind., by which the defendant is restrained, until further order of the court, from selling certain Phonograph Records at less than the prices stipulated in a contract with the National Phonograph Co. It was alleged in the complaint asking for an injunction that the defendant company had entered into a license agreement with the National Phonograph Co., by which the defendant company was to sell the Records at not less than specified prices. It was alleged that the defendant company had sold the Records at less than these prices.

A suit was recently brought by the National Phonograph Company against Helen M. Woodman, doing business at No. 339 Washington street, Boston, under the name and style of Home Entertainment Club. This defendant had been exchanging and selling Edison Records at cut prices for several months and had refused to desist from such practice. A suit was thereupon brought and a motion made for preliminary injunction. The case was referred to a Master, before whom the defendant and her husband, who acted as the manager of the business, were cross-examined. Upon the filing of the Master's report, the motion was brought on for argument before Judge Lowell, and the defendant, by her attorney, vigorously opposed the granting of the injunction. The court, however, ordered that a preliminary injunction should issue and the same was duly issued on March 16, 1909.

Another suit has been recently filed by the National Phonograph Company, in the United States Circuit Court at Boston, against S. Pollmer, doing business at 2012 Washington street, Boston, this suit being based upon the offering for sale of Edison Records at cut prices. A motion for a preliminary injunction was made and a restraining order was granted on March 16th.

Advertising puts a store or enterprise under a white light. Publicity directs public attention to something which would otherwise remain unknown. If that something is good—if it will stand the ordeal of the white light—then advertising makes it the vogue, makes it go, makes it a success. If the white light merely emphasizes the defects of the store, the enterprise or the article, then publicity would serve to warn away patrons or buyers rather than to attract them.

Cut-Out Record Hanger

We are shipping to all Jobbers a quantity of large hangers giving the list of 500 Edison Records, to be dropped from our catalogue on August 1. These hangers are intended to assist Dealers in disposing of such stock of these Records as they may have on hand. The heading on this hanger makes no reference at all to the fact that they are cut-out selections. It has been suggested that the trade might have better success in selling these Records if the public did not know they were to be withdrawn. Dealers can point out this fact where they think it will be better to do so. Dealers having any of these Records in stock are urged to get this hanger from their Jobbers and put it up in a prominent place.

Cannot Consign Goods

The attention of the trade is directed to Bulletin No. 27, printed on page 20. It refers to the matter of consigning Edison goods and was sent out at the request of the Executive Committee of the Jobbers' Association.

The complaint was specifically regarding the practice of certain Jobbers sending out Edison Records on approval, the plan usually being that they would send out the new Records and at the end of the month, or some future date, take back such portion of same as were not salable. This, of course, constitutes a consigning of goods, which is a violation of the Jobbers' Agreement.

Caution

A Philadelphia Dealer recently wrote us as follows:

"I would like to ask you whether you are aware of the fact that there are fellows going around over here that tell Phonograph owners they can improve the loudness and sweetness of sound on the four minute reproducers, by placing improvements on them. Several of my neighbors had their brand new reproducers totally ruined. It would be wise for you folks to warn your patrons through your monthly list against such inventors."

This paragraph explains itself. Dealers should not take up the sale of any so-called improvements to the Edison Phonograph without giving it the most careful consideration, and they should especially urge their patrons not to adopt any of these devices until they have been assured by a competent Dealer that it is safe to use them.

We all have higher ideals in trade than we practice—we can't practice them; for we must combat those of lower ideals.—Common Sense.

Spanish Amberol Records

The National Phonograph Co. have just finished at their New York laboratory a series of Amberol (4-minute) Records, intended primarily for their Spanish trade, but which should be well received by cosmopolitan music lovers, as they are a representative collection of typical songs of Spain and Spanish-speaking countries. They utilized the services of several Spanish artists now at New York, with the Anna Held Company in the successful musical play, "Miss Innocence," and made a set of fourteen Spanish-"Flamenco" Records—six soprano solos; three by instrumental trio, (two guitars and one "bandurria," a small guitar with wire strings being the baritone of a combination, the mandolin or lute being the soprano; and four guitar solos. The soprano, "Lola la Flamenca," is a prominent Spanish dancer and singer, very popular, not only in Spain, but in other countries, especially in Paris, from where she came direct to New York. She was born at Seville, Spain, and is a specialist of "flamenco" songs, songs typical of Andalusia, a region of southern Spain, and which have the same charm and languor which distinguish the songs of southern countries. The instrumental trio has played delightful selections. This trio is composed of Amalio Cuenca and Eduardo Salmerón, guitar players, and Miguel Casares, "bandurria" player. They are immensely popular in Europe and Spanish America. Eduardo Salmerón is especially popular in England. He resides at London, and has played before King Edward, who complimented him personally for his fine execution. Amalio Cuenca is also a splendid guitar player. He has a great reputation in Europe, and also in Mexico, where he played before Diaz and was warmly praised by him.

"LOLA LA FLAMENCA"

The National Company have also made twelve Porto Rican selections, sung by Gracia López, a young Porto Rican soprano, with a very fine natural voice, and by Jorge H. Santoni, a well known Porto Rican singer and musician. They are beautiful selections and are a representative collection of the songs of that delightful island possession, which, in common with all Spanish countries, has numerous typical and folk songs full of charm and sweetness.

Last, but not least, the company also made four "bandurria" solos by Joseph Ramirez, the best "bandurria" player in the world. Mr. Ramirez is a Spaniard and has a great reputation throughout the world. He is also well known in this country, as he was the originator and organizer of the Spanish troubadours, which toured this country with great success several years ago. He has also been with Maude Adams in "Twelfth Night," with Frances Starr in "The Rose of the Rancho," and of late with William Faversham in "The World and His Wife" and "The Barber of New Orleans." The selections recorded by him are delightful dance airs.

While these Records are intended chiefly for Spanish-speaking countries, they will shortly be placed at the command of the trade in this country.

Among the Jobbers

The Musical Echo Co., of Philadelphia, has disposed of its stock of talking machine goods to Landay Bros., of New York, and have discontinued the business, both at wholesale and retail. Louis Jay Gerson, formerly manager of this company, has become manager of the talking machine department of John Wanamaker, Philadelphia.

The Houston Phonograph Co., J. N. Swanson, manager, 709 Louisiana street, Houston, Texas, have bought from the receiver the stock of the Texas Piano and Phonograph Company, and will continue the business at the foregoing address.

The Pacific Phonograph Company, 1385 Sutter street, San Francisco, Cal., have succeeded to the talking machine department of Kohler & Chase of that city. They expect to make an aggressive campaign for business in the Coast and adjoining States.

The American Phonograph Co., Detroit, Mich., Edison Jobbers, will on May 1 remove from their present store at 106 Woodward avenue to new quarters at 252 Woodward avenue.

The Conroy Piano Company, Edison Jobbers at St. Louis, have sold their entire talking machine stock to the Silverstone Talking Machine Company, of the same city, and will retire from the talking machine business. With their retirement, the talking machine industry loses one of the pioneers in the business. P. E. Conroy, the head of the Conroy Piano Company, was one of the first half-dozen to enter the talking machine business. Mr. Conroy, and the company which was later incorporated to conduct the business, have since been steadily identified with the industry. They have seen it grown from almost nothing to its present magnitude. They are now giving up their jobbing privileges to devote more time and capital to piano and musical merchandise. Their retirement will leave the Silverstone Talking Machine Company and the Koerber-Brenner Music Co. as the only Jobbers in St. Louis.

It's the way a man sticks to a thing that marks him as a success or a failure. Many a fellow has won out at the eleventh hour, just because he wouldn't let go. Don't be a quitter. —Talking Machine World.

Selling the Goods

The sale of Amberol Records is increasing by leaps and bounds. Reports for last month show that sales of these sweet-toned, long-playing Records came pretty close to the sales of Standard Edison Records.

Considering the fact that the Amberol Records were never heard of until last fall, this is phenomenal, but considering the quality of the Records, it is but natural.

The point is: are you getting your share of this Amberol business? These Records are of no use to owners of Edison Phonographs unless their instruments have been brought up-to-date.

The new types of instruments play both Standard Edison Records and Amberols. Every time you sell one of these you add an Amberol Record customer, but think of the Amberol trade you might get if all Edison Phonographs heretofore sold in your territory were equipped with the necessary attachments.

It isn't as if putting on these attachments was a labor of love. It isn't as if it was entirely a move towards future Record business. Its a good, paying stroke in itself because you make as good a profit on the attachments as you do on anything else you sell.

So long as there are Edison Phonographs out in your locality not equipped to play Amberol Records, there is business you are not getting and it is easy business to get. Do not neglect this field.

From the Talking Machine World.

Now, there are some things in connection with the talking machine business that should not be lost sight of.

Not for a moment—follow the leaders—the business builders.

Do the manufacturers themselves show lack of confidence in the future of the trade?

Is there anything in their actions which would cause such a belief?

Are they unloading stocks in a manner which is detrimental to trade interests?

Are they pushing out their lines from irresponsible sources and through channels which seriously interfere or are intended to enter into competition with the legitimate dealer?

No. On the contrary they are doing everything to safeguard the industry.

They are carrying on aggressive advertising campaigns and investing huge sums of money in lines of publicity which could be saved if they so desired.

No, the talking machine men of the industry have faith and confidence in it.

Their actions prove it.

Now, just think it over, Mr. Talking Machine Man of the weak heart and shaky nerves, and just take a leaf from the leaders in the trade.

Follow out their line of policy and see if you can draw from it the belief that they have lost heart in the business.

No; certainly not.

But——

The stream cannot rise higher than the fountain, and the talking machine business cannot rise higher than the general trade conditions of the country.

It is ridiculous to suppose for one moment that it could, but it is surely rising with the general tide of prosperity.

Mark that.

Take heart. Draw inspiration from good sources.

Revitalize your business with the energy which will insure you success.

Get your business house in order.

There are always matters to consider in the conduct of your affairs which may have escaped you.

Keep close to the subject.

Watch the changes which mark the years.

Remove that clot from your business brain, that the talking machine has seen its best days.

It has not.

Look at the demand to-day for the higher-priced machines, which is so large that the manufacturers have been unable to meet it with the promptness most desired by Dealers and Jobbers.

The higher-priced machines were never in such demand as they are to-day.

Just hustle.

Good Display is Half the Battle

Display your Phonographs so that everyone who comes into the store or passes by will know that you sell the Edison.

You have everything to gain by letting everybody know this. The indifferent passerby of today may be the buyer of next week. Or he may mention that you sell the Edison to someone else who will buy.

You ought to keep a Phonograph or two in your window and you ought to arrange the display so attractively that nobody can help seeing and making a mental photograph of it in passing by.

Use plenty of window cards giving prices and telling about the easy-payment plan, if you sell in that way.

Inside the store give the Phonograph a good place up near the front. Keep them on Record cabinets or on the counter always ready to play. Keep a number of good popular Records near at hand so there will be no delay when a customer wants to hear the machine.

Have one machine of each type always ready to start up so that your customers can hear the type they prefer or make comparisons.

The Phonographs that are set in the window should be arranged so they can be gotten out readily. It is also desirable to have one or more of each type in unopened boxes just as they were received.

A customer may want one shipped or he may want to carry it a long ways in a vehicle. Then, too, you will sometimes have a customer who wants a brand new machine that has never been used—fresh from the factory.

Music stores find it pays to have a Phonograph in the sheet music department for demonstrating the sheet music, both vocal and instrumental. There are Edison Records for most piano and vocal pieces and it helps the sale of both music and Phonographs to demonstrate them.

Have your Phonograph department where everybody who comes in can hear the machine played. People who come in especially to hear it will do so much more readily if they have only to step inside the door instead of having to walk the length of the store.

Many Edison Dealers have told us that the Edison up near the front acts as a magnet to bring in customers who make purchase in other lines. It also comes in splendidly for entertaining customers when there is a delay in waiting on them.

The Edison is deserving of the very best location you can give it for it is a wonderful seller and is gaining every day. What other merchandise yields as large a profit as Edison Phonographs and Edison Records? What other merchandise brings the buyer into your store month after month and gives you a chance to build up trade in other lines?

About Advance Solicitation

Some weeks ago a Dealer wrote in, asking us to supply him with a small quantity of Dealers' order blanks, stating that he wanted to send them to those who have Edison Phonographs and in this way solicit orders for Records in advance. "By trying it three months," he said, "I will then know whether it will pay or not. I carry the largest stock of Records and Machines that any Dealer carries in this part of the country for over five hundred miles and it is my intention to push the business to its fullest extent."

Knowing that other equally enthusiastic Dealers may be thinking of the same plan for getting business, we reprint the reply we made to the above Dealer, as follows:

"We only print a sufficient quantity of Dealers' Order Blanks each month to mail copies to the entire trade. We have no supply that will permit us to supply them to the Dealers in compliance with the requests similar to yours. In fact, we would prefer to do all that we can to discourage any such use of these blanks. We believe that nothing whatever would be gained in attempting to solicit orders for Records one, two or three months in advance. On the contrary, we believe that sales would be lost by doing so. If the average individual could know any time in advance what Records were coming out, he would be disposed to wait for those he wanted instead of making a fairly good selection from the only list at hand, if he had but one.

"We believe that if you take up the proposed plan, even by doing the printing at your own expense, you will do something that will cause you considerable trouble with no corresponding increase in business. Our policy in the past has been to discourage the distribution of printed matter in advance of the selling date. Where Dealers do their own printing, we cannot prevent them from circularizing in advance, but we discourage it because we believe that, if attempted by Dealers in general, it would cause an endless amount of trouble and confusion, and in the end no one would profit. If you try it in your territory, you will very soon find that some Dealer whose territory adjoins yours will do the same thing and others will be compelled to follow in self-defense.

"We greatly appreciate the motive that prompts you to consider a plan of this kind, for it shows you are giving the business your best attention. We simply advise against it because we think that in the end you will regret it."

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

SOMETHING to enjoy in the evening, at home, in comfort, without effort. Something that is cleaner, brighter and more fascinating than most entertainment that is planned for and paid for.

Some Exclusive Features of the Edison Phonograph

GO to an Edison dealer's and compare the Phonograph with other instruments. Note particularly its sturdy construction, good for years of perfect work; its indestructible reproducing point, which never needs to be changed; its long-running, silent motor, most essential to brilliant work; its sensitive wax cylinder Records, famous for their clearness and sweetness of tone; its large, specially designed horn and its new Amberol Records, playing twice as long as the standard Edison Records and longer than any other Record.

Have you ever tried making your own Phonograph Records? It's no end of fun. This can be done only with the Edison.

Edison Phonographs are sold at the same price everywhere in the United States—$16.50 to $125.00. Ask your dealer or write us for catalogs of Edison Phonographs and Records.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO., 23 Lakeside Ave., Orange, N. J.

SOME can, at times, hear noted singers and famous bands and orchestras.

Everybody can, at all times, hear them, to equal advantage, through an Edison Phonograph.

In no other way than through an Edison Phonograph can you hear, to equal advantage, just those you care most for render selections of your own choosing.

Notable Contributors to the May Edison Record List

MABEL McKINLEY is a notable addition to the staff of Edison artists. She is a composer of great merit, the possessor of a delightfully sweet soprano voice and a universal favorite on the stage. Her own song, "Golden Rod," is her contribution to the May Edison Records. Press Eldridge, "Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Fun," enters the Phonograph field with a heart-to-heart talk called "A Confidential Chat," the biggest hit in his whole repertoire of monologues. 28 other Records, standard Edison and Amberol, all by artists of the highest class, are included in the May list. Hear them at your dealer's.

Thomas A. Edison

Are you doing your part by seeing that the public can't get away from your store when they want Edison Goods?

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

W. A. Whitmore, 3119 Cumberland street, Phila.—Several days ago I sent to you one of my advertisements, but neglected to say that I sold two outfits before the job left the printer's office. I took the tip from the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY and advertised to send outfits on trial. It is the way to sell Phonographs.

Ramsay & Co., Rocks, Md.—We notice in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY an item about a Dealer in a small town of 1,900 inhabitants getting orders or selling twenty-nine machines. If you will refer to your records you will find that in December, 1908, you did not think this town was large enough to put a Dealer in here and we had trouble to get the Dealers' Contract, as this town is down as ten inhabitants on the map or by mercantile reporters. Well, we succeeded in getting the contract through and received our initial order of three machines and 150 Records January 11, 1909. Up to the present time we have orders booked and signed and some already delivered for twenty-five machines, besides the Records and four-minute attachments, etc., sold and delivered. We are carrying about sixty-five of the four-minute Records and about 300 of the two-minute Records. Less than three months we have sold almost as many as the Dealer in the 1,900 town and we think will keep on increasing from now on. We thought we would let you know what we were doing.

Crescent Drug Co., Shawnee, Oklahoma.—We find our sales have greatly increased since we completed our list of Edison Records, and sales are so easily made. We are only sorry we did not take this step long ago. We find that mailing the Phonograms out each month to phonograph owners and prospective purchasers is a great help.

S. Finn, Walterboro, S. C.—Have you any connection with the sale of Edison Machines and Records in Russia at present? Also which principal cities of them?

[We have no direct connection, but our goods are sold by dealers in all of the principal cities.]

H. H. Caswell, Harrison, Maine.—We appreciate the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY very much. It is a great help to the Dealer.

Louis R. Murray, Ogdensburg, N. Y.—The contents of the Edison PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY are read with as much interest as any periodical I receive. What's more I find myself impatiently awaiting its arrival. I could not bring myself to miss one line, much less an issue.

You keep up the crowing; and we can't help laying eggs. I have just marked my cut-out so that I can tell them at a glance. You can rest assured that my efforts will be to sell every cut-out before August.

Amberol slips 1490 were just the thing to include with the April list, which went the rounds of my mailing list.

The Levi Records are winners. That London band is just as good, too.

For the Amberols, I have nothing but praise. In fact I have sold almost twice as many as the Two-Minute Records figuring from my total sales. Figuring from the new Records since the arrival of Amberols, I can safely say I have sold three to one of the Four-Minute.

I ordered several Cuban and Mexican Records (instrumental) and they struck a right vein as I disposed of them in three days by playing them between times.

W. A. MacPherson, Easton, Me.—Is it proper for any Dealer in Edison goods to put subagents into another Dealer's territory? Ought we as Edison Dealers, to "butt" into another Dealer's territory? Is it just the proper thing for any Dealer to have sub-agents, when the established Dealer is carrying a large stock and paying insurance and taxes. He should be allowed the business in his territory. The subagent has no money invested and can pick out the sales without any expense, only his time and then get the commission?

[The principle back of these questions cannot be satisfactorily answered. No matter what way be the right or wrong of the matter we cannot attempt to settle it. Except in a few somewhat isolated instances it is practically impossible for us to say where one Dealer's territory begins and another's begins. As long as Dealers will sell Edison goods according to the Dealers' Agreement we do not see how we can prevent one Dealer from selling in another Dealer's town, any more than we can prevent a Dealer from advertising and selling by mail in all parts of the country.]

The Wise Piano House, of Boise, Idaho, recently issued a circular letter, reading in part as follows, to the prospective purchasers of Phonographs in their vicinity:

"The African missionary, Royal J. Dye, who spent eleven years as a missionary among the natives of the Congo, was in Walla Walla a few days ago, and bought from us a $60 Edison Phonograph, along with a lot of Records, extra sound boxes, reproducers and Record blanks to take back there in May.

Those superstitious natives will surely scarcely be able at first to comprehend these wonderful entertainers, and must experience that awful sensation that any of us would feel if the Almighty spoke to us direct. And yet these everyday occurrences, grown common place with us, are still wonderfully wonderful. We may put in cold storage our fruit, can or preserve it for a few years, but to catch so fleeting a thing as sound to be released in full power for future generations, seems still to the wisest of us, a feat uncanny.

Mr. Dye will most likely record many interesting native chants and songs for our entertainment on his next return from the Congo.

It would afford great pleasure to many who read this, to reproduce, in after years, the childish prattle or little songs of the dear ones, now a daily joy, that will then be grown, or possibly passed away.

The opportunity is yours. Call and see us about it. Easy terms.

E. A. Schweiger, 664 Grand street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Kindly inform us how to distinguish the difference between the Type A and B Triumph machines so as to put on the Amberol attachments.

[The Model A Triumph Phonograph can be distinguished from the Model B Triumph Phonograph by the cabinet, the Model A having a fleminh or green oak cabinet, the Model B having the golden or antique oak.

The Model A Triumph Phonograph has a black japanned winding crank with a slot cut in the shaft to fit the pin in the winding shaft. The Model B Triumph Phonograph has a nickelled winding crank that screws on to the winding shaft.

The Model A Triumph Phonograph has a body which rests on the top plate between rubber cushions, and is held through the top plate from the upper side. The Model B Triumph Phonograph body has no lugs and rests on the top plate, being bolted from the under side of the top plate.

These three distinguishing features should enable the trade to identify the two types.]

G. B. & A. D. Clark, Dealers at Searchlight, Nevada, recently published a unique and convincing advertisement in their local paper. It reads as follows:

No. of Phonographs of all kinds in use in Searchlight 23
No. of Edison Phonographs in use in Searchlight 19
No. of Edison Phonographs sold by us in ten months 14

Merit Wins.

A Live Wire

The force of example may be applied with quite the same propriety to Jobbers as it is to Jobbers. If it is advantageous to tell Dealers through the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY what other Dealers are doing, is it not equally allowable to point out to Jobbers what means other Jobbers take to get business. Every month the mails bring to us one of the letters that the O. K. Houck Piano Co., of Memphis, Tenn., send out to their Dealers. Below is the latest one, dated April 15. We think this good stuff.

TO EDISON DEALERS.

The April list of Edison Records was a business getter par excellence and the June List enclosed herewith will certainly be a strong hot weather trade magnet.

Any legitimate way of getting people into your store should be taken advantage of by you, and we know of no better way than to push the new Records.

The National Phonograph Company spends thousands of dollars advertising these new Records in the magazines, all of which advertising accrues to your benefit if you do your part.

Your part is to have the new Records and to let people know you have them—which means selling them.

Some dealers (not many Edison, thank goodness) imagine the summer season is a necessary evil, others force the issue and reap their reward in increased profits.

Which one are you?

Confirm our belief that you are the latter by placing your order for June Records without further delay.

If a pleasant incident occurs in the store, one that has a news value or in which there is human interest, do not hesitate to "give it to the papers." They may not mention your store by name,—and then again they may. If they do not, those most interested in the item will be sure to do so, and every time a retailer's name is mentioned in a kindly way throughout his territory it is helping to make a customer.—Inland Stationer.

"Fou the Noo"

It is contrary to our custom to print the words of songs of which we make Records, but we have had so many requests from Dealers and the public for the words of Harry Lauder's song, "Fou the Noo," that we print the words below:

I've just come frea a weddin' or a fun'ral,
A Christ'ning or a something of the kind,
Of the stuff that I've been drinkin's took me noodle,
And I'm as fou as any lightship skipper.
I've the courage of a dozen'd men the noo,
I'm a miserable devil when I'm sober,
But I'm very very happy when I'm fou.

(Coughs). This is the whiskey cough I've got I think,
When I was going upstairs last night, the wife cried down: "Is that you, John?" I said: "I, my sin it is me, who was yer expecting?" Och dear me, I'm telling you.

I am fou the noo, absolutely fou,
For I've been drinkin' whisky from in,
But to-morra a Jock McGraw,
And I dinea care a straw,
For I've something in the bottle for the morning.
(Coughs.) Och I, Ah-so-lute-ly.

Co-operation

The employees of the Eastern Talking Machine Company, Edison Jobbers in Boston, recently formed a permanent organization among themselves for the purpose of recreation and good-fellowship. E. F. Taft, the General Manager of the Company, was elected President; A. W. Chamberlin was chosen Vice-President, and S. J. Freeman, Secretary. The most interesting thing about this organization is the spirit of co-operation that it represents. Employees of a company do not, as a rule, organize unless they are on pretty good terms with their employers and with themselves. And when this condition exists, the maximum amount of co-operation is secured. Organizations of this kind are a good thing for both employer and employed and the example set by the Eastern Talking Machine Co. might be followed to excellent advantage by the employes of other Edison Jobbers.

Of Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records for July, 1909.

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before June 25th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be exhibited or Dealers on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on June 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after June 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before June 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on June 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for June Records on or before May 10th. Dealers should place July orders with Jobbers before May 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard Records for July

10157 The Peacock — Edison Concert Band

A characteristic number by L. P. Laurendeau, the writer of numerous popular instrumental compositions, many of which are listed in the Edison catalogues. A truly pleasing selection. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10158 Help! Help! Help! I'm Falling In Love — Grace Cameron

The title is the wail of a young miss who has been made nervous and shy and whose heart has been set fluttering by meeting a certain young man. She declares she is falling in love and wants some handsome life saver to come to her rescue. Miss Cameron sings this song on the stage and naturally makes an excellent Record of it. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Vincent Bryan; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10159 Tittle, Tattle, Tattle Tale — Byron G. Harlan

A new "kid" song similar to "Smarty" (our Record No. 9872) and constructed around the derisive sentence so well known to every school child. Who, no matter how old, can forget the penalty imposed for telling tales? This song cannot fail to recall such childhood days. The air of the song is catchy and ought to make it as popular as "Smarty," "Schooldays" and similar compositions. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

10160 I Used to be Afraid to Go Home in the Dark Medley — Albert Benzler

Another of Mr. Benzler's clever xylophone solos. It includes these three popular hits: "I Used to Be Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," "My Rosy Rambler" and "When I Marry You." Orchestra accompaniment.

10161 The Whitewash Man — Arthur Collins

A coon character song by the writers of the popular "Meet Me in Rosetime Rosie" (our Record No. 10079) and many other widely known songs. It is spring and the whitewash man sings of his importance at this season of the year. No singer in the Edison catalogue could make a better Record of this kind of song than Mr. Collins. It will recall the success that he had in "Any Rags" and similar popular songs. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Jean Schwartz; words, William Jerome; publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co.

10162 Blue Feather — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

An Indian love song on the style of "Rainbow" (our Record No. 10049), which is also sung by Miss Jones and Mr. Murray. The publishers of "Blue Feather" expect it to be a great success and they predict that within a very short time it will be whistled and sung from one end of the country to the other. It possesses the essential qualities of attractive words and pleasing rhythm. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore Morse; words, Jack Mahoney; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York.

10163 Nobody Knows, Nobody Cares — Will Oakland

A sentimental song perfectly fitted to Mr. Oakland's remarkable counter-tenor voice. It was written by Chas. K. Harris and is regarded by him as one of his best songs in some time. Some of Mr. Harris' recent successes are "I'm Starving for One Sight of You" (our Record No. 9977) and "Always Me" (our Record No. 10009). Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, Chas. K. Harris, New York.

10164 Braham's Medley Jig — New York Military Band

A jig with the real dancing swing to it, compiled by the late Dave Braham, whose musical contributions to the old Harrigan and Hart shows were such a big part of those entertainers' success. The late Wallace Reeves, director of the American Band of Providence, and afterward successor to the late P. S. Gilmore, arranged it for Military Band and played it with great success with the organization of which he was the head. Publisher, W. H. Cundy, Boston, Mass.

10165 Abie, Take an Example from Your Fa'der — James Brockman

A Hebrew dialect song in which a prosperous Hebrew gives some timely, though humorous, advice to his son. The Record will show that Mr. Brockman is quite as good in Hebrew dialect as he is in Italian. He will be recalled as the writer of several excellent Edison Records in Italian dialect. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, James Brockman; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10166 Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love — Edison Mixed Quartette

Although a sacred selection, this Record will appeal to all Phonograph owners because of its delightful melody and its splendid rendition by the Edison Mixed Quartette. Unaccompanied. Music and words, P. P. Bilhorn.

10167 It Happens in Many Families — Billy Murray

A comic song descriptive of what happened in the years following the marriage of Joe and Flo. Many families will find some familiar things in the words of the song. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Edward Flanagan; words, Tudor Cameron; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10168 Yankiana Rag — American Symphony Orchestra

This composition is featured in Anna Held's musical production, "Miss Innocence." It cannot fail to please all lovers of light musical compositions when rendered by orchestra. Composer, Melville J. Gideon; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

10169 Uncle Josh at a Baseball Game — Cal Stewart

The baseball season is now increasing in interest, the fans are beginning to get a line on the leaders, and everything in the way of baseball will arouse considerable interest. Uncle Josh's baseball experiences, as given on this Record, are therefore timely and the Record ought to be in great demand. The words on the Record are original with Mr. Stewart.

10170 Heinie Waltzed 'Round on His Hickory Limb — Collins and Harlan

Although Heinie had a wooden leg he indulged in dancing. The song describes his success in waltzing with such a handicap. It is one of the hits in the leading vaudeville houses. Music and words, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

10171 I Want a Little Corner in Your Heart — Ada Jones

A coon love song that should, if merit of words and an attractive melody are an indication, be one of the successes of the year. It is above the ordinary in attractiveness. It will recall the success that Miss Jones had in singing "My Carolina Lady" (our Record No. 8948) and "Just A Little Rocking Chair and You" (our Record No. 9222). Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Kerry Mills; words, Andrew B. Sterling; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

10172 "The Fans" March — John Kimmble

An accordion solo. Another of Mr. Kimmble's own compositions. It is well written and played in his usual clever manner. Piano accompaniment.

10173 Go Easy Mabel — Edward Meeker

Mabel is a young woman with the champagne habit. Her "steady" is only a ribbon clerk, and when they go out to dine, Mabel's liberality in ordering things to eat and drink causes Percival to beg her to "go easy," because he is not a Pittsburg man, and, therefore, not able to pay the bills. Orchestra accompaniment. Music by J. Fred Helf, composer of "Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Away" (our Record No. 10122); words, Ren Shields, Ed. Moran and Will D. Cobb; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10174 Good Night, Moonlight — Premier Quartette

A sentimental ballad of the same style and character as "Blue Bell" (our Record No. 8655), written by Theodore Morse, who wrote the music of this selection. The Premier Quartette sings it in a manner that must please those who appreciate quartette singing. Unaccompanied. Words, Jack Mahoney; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York.

10175 Flanagan's Boarding House — Steve Porter

Mr. Flanagan's vaudeville specialties are always clever and amusing, but this is better than the average. It includes lots of funny things, such as the exclamation of the landlady, when the boarder found a needle in the soup, that it was a typographical error; it was meant to be "noodle," not "needle." If anyone thinks that the Flanagan series has run out, he wants to hear this one and he will change his mind.

10176 Thomas Jefferson March — United States Marine Band

The opportunity to hear another Standard Record by this superb band organization will be widely welcomed. William H. Santelmann, the conductor of the Marine Band, is the composer of the selection, and between the merit of the composition and his successful leadership, the Record is one that will delight all lovers of band music.

Edison Amberol Records

155 Egmont Overture — Edison Concert Band

This famous overture was written by Ludwig von Beethoven in his "second period" of composition (1800-1815), marking the zenith of his best works. It was composed for Goethe's tragedy of "Egmont." It is an intense and powerful tone-picture expressing the tragic events of this great drama. Beethoven was born December 16, 1770, at Bonn on the Rhine, and died in Vienna, March 26, 1827. Of all the musical composers he stands pre-eminent.

156 The Tough Kid on the Right Field Fence — Digby Bell

A doubly attractive Record. It is made by Digby Bell, one of the best-known men in comic opera and vaudeville, who hereby makes his initial bow to the Edison Phonograph public. Its other attraction is the realistic baseball talk indulged in by the youngster from a "deserved" seat on the right field fence. He tells the home team how to play the game and what he thinks of them when their playing isn't up to his standard. He is a type of baseball "fan" found alike on the grandstand and on the bleachers. The Record ought to be a real treat to everyone who understands the language of our national game. It ought to go a long way towards establishing Mr. Bell's popularity as a maker of Edison Records.

157 My Rancho, Maid — Mabel McKinley

Another of Miss McKinley's own compositions and as pleasing in words and melody as her others. Miss McKinley's rendition of the song for our Record is as charming as that of "Golden Rod" and "Anona," given in the May and June lists. Music and words, Mabel McKinley; publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

158 Clancy's Wooden Wedding — Edward Meeker

This selection was one of the largest sellers in the present catalogue of Standard selections, and its popularity has induced us to make an Amberol Record of it. It has been added to and worked up with a number of novel effects, making it a Record that will be wanted by those who already have the shorter Record as well as by those who do not have it at all. It almost makes one's head ache to hear Mr. Meeker's enumeration of the things that happened at Mr. Clancy's tenth wedding anniversary. Orchestra accompaniment. Words by Teddy Simons.

159 You're a Grand Old Bell — Byron G. Harlan and Chorus

A patriotic Record that will appeal to all sections of the country. Naturally, the "Grand Old Bell" is the Independence Bell of Revolutionary fame. The words pay a splendid tribute to it and the music, with incidental effects, combine to make up one of the most attractive Records we have put out in some time. Music, Johann C. Schmid; words, J. E. Dempsey; publishers, H. A. Weymann & Son, Philadelphia.

160 The Bachelors Waltz — United States Marine Band

Another composition by William H. Santelmann, the leader of Washington's famous band organization, and played in a manner most creditable to both composer and band. It is not easy to find proper words to describe band Records. They must be heard to be appreciated.

161 I Surrender All — Edison Mixed Quartette

An unaccompanied sacred selection that made a great success on the two-minute list. It is here given with additional verses and new features. The first and third verses are sung by soprano and contralto, the second and fourth by tenor and basso. The entire quartette join in the choruses. This Record will find a place in all collections of sacred selections. Music, W. S. Weeden; words, J. H. Van De Venter.

162 On a Monkey Honeymoon — Collins and Harlan

Another tale of the jungle, a monkey ditty written in the same style and by the same composer as "In Monkey Land" (our Record No. 9700) and "Down in Jungle Town" (our Record No. 9941). The song has its full share of swing so characteristic of these monkey songs. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore Morse; words, Jack Mahoney; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York.

163 Prelude and Intermezzo—"Cavalleria Rusticana" — American Symphony Orchestra

"Cavalleria Rusticana" won the prize offered by Sonzogno, the music publisher, for the best one-act opera. It created a genuine sensation at its first performance, in the Costanzi Theatre, Rome, May 17, 1890, and has since been heard the world over. The subject is a tragic tale of Sicilian peasant life, and the impressive characteristic of the music is its dramatic intensity. The Record contains the Prelude to the Opera and the famous Intermezzo. Composer, P. Mascagni; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

*This Record will be illustrated on cover of JULY PHONOGRAM.

164 When a Fellow's on the Level with a Girl That's on the Square — Billy Murray and Chorus

One of Victor Moore's songs in Geo. M. Cohan's musical comedy, "The Talk of New York." The lesson taught in this composition will meet even Mr. Roosevelt's ideas of a square deal. It also gives some incidental advice that's worth while. Music and words by Geo. M. Cohan; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

165 Thy Hallowed Presence — Edison Mixed Quartette

An anthem of the better grade and one that often finds a place in the musical programmes of the large churches where quartette singing is a feature. It is sung with organ accompaniment. Music, Charles Davis Carter; words, P. McNiven Bennie; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

166 The Marathon Two-Step — New York Military Band

Another Amberol Record made especially for dancing. It was made under the direction of a professional dancing master, and is guaranteed by our Recording department to be played in correct time for the two-step, if played on Phonographs running at the proper speed. Composer, Mark Phillips; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

167 Where is My Wandering Boy To-Night? — Frederick Gunster

The old familiar hymn, which is regarded as more of a temperance selection than sacred. It is a great favorite at temperance revivals and meetings. It is one of those compositions that will live many years after thousands of present day popular songs are forgotten. The Record is made by Frederick Gunster, another new Edison artist, who has a pleasing tenor voice. Music and words, Robert Lowry; publishers, Bigelow & Main, New York.

168 Moving Day at Pumpkin Center — Cal Stewart

Pumpkin Center, according to Mr. Stewart's telling, has passed through many notable days, but moving day is quite the greatest of all. You will believe this when you hear Uncle Josh tell of the many events which transpired on that day. There is a laugh at every sentence, which means that you laugh from beginning to end of the Record.

169 Levi's Famous "Reuben" Songs — Maurice Levi and His Band

The most popular compositions of Maurice Levi are his Reuben songs, which were written while he was director of the Roger Brothers' musical productions. This Record contains "When Reuben Comes to Town" and "Wedding of the Reuben and the Maid." Both of these were written and were popular several years ago, but they are no less attractive now than they were then and we believe that the Record will be one of the best sellers of the month.

170 Only a Pansy Blossom — Will Oakland and Chorus

In the opinion of the entire Edison organization, this Record will be the hit of the year. It will be scarcely less popular than "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which, when rendered by a counter-tenor voice, has become almost a classic. "Only a Pansy Blossom," is an old-time selection which was immensely popular years ago, and still retains its hold upon the public. Mr. Oakland's solo work is perfect and the chorus assistance given him is equal to any quartette Records put out in some time. Music, Frank Howard; words, E. E. Rexford; publishers, The John Church Co., New York.

171 Call to Arms — Peerless Quartette

A combination singing and talking Record. The sketch portion was written by Albert Campbell. It serves to introduce singing of war songs, bugle calls, beating of horses' hoofs, cheers, cavalry effects, drum rolls, fife and drum, and quartette singing. The variety of features in this Record will certainly make it popular. Unaccompanied.

172 Ballet Music from William Tell — Edison Concert Band

"William Tell," Rossini's masterpiece, was first given at the Paris Opera, August 3, 1829. In the opera a grand ballet is introduced in the second act, and the music of this contains some of the finest melodies of the score. The ballet music as an instrumental number is a favorite concert piece. Our Record contains two of the most popular numbers of the suite. It requires no musical training to appreciate this music, for its delightful character must appeal to everyone. Publishers, The John Church Co., New York.

173 That's Why I Won't Say Good-Bye — Harlan and Stanley

A descriptive song for tenor and baritone. It is the story of a member of the life boat crew who would not say good-bye to his sweetheart when the boat went out to sea. The ending is pathetic, for he did not return. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Alan Rattray.

174 National Emblem March — New York Military Band

A spirited and vigorous march which echoes a stirring strain of "The Star Spangled Banner." Composer, E. E. Bagley; publisher, E. S. Williams, Boston, Mass.

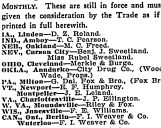
Trade Information for Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.



We have been reliably informed that some of our Jobbers are still consigning goods of our manufacture to Edison Dealers; this, notwithstanding the fact, that such action is a distinct violation of a clause in our Jobbers' Agreement

We were firmly convinced that this undesirable feature of our business had been entirely eliminated, until the matter was very recently drawn to our attention, and we would now respectfully request, that if any of our Jobbers have been indulging in this practice, that they immediately discontinue this method of handling our goods.

Regretting sincerely the necessity for issuing this letter, and hoping that it may not prove necessary for us to take any other action, we beg to remain,

"You're a Grand Old Bell"

The song with the above title, included in the Amberol Records for July, is the first song ever written about the Liberty Bell at Philadelphia. It seems incredible that the praises of a bell, so universally known and loved as the Liberty Bell, should, for all these years, go unsung.

The writers of the song have brought before every American a long neglected duty, and, incidently, have given to the public, a ringing musical composition, which, from an artistic point of view, stands as a classic, while the words have an instruction in themselves to both young and old. Twenty-seven of the public schools of Philadelphia are teaching the song to the school-children, showing that it can be used without regard to class or creed.

At the Children's Carnival, in Atlantic City, during the coming summer, it will be sung by a chorus of two thousand children's voices; all of which is evidence that the efforts of the writers have met with instant appreciation, and that "You're a Grand Old Bell" is destined to become one of the nation's own songs. It is published by H. A. Weymann & Son, Edison Jobbers of Philadelphia.

Watch for the papers of the Continuous Exchange Proposition. If you don't use them now keep them till you need them.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

TEXT:

Plant the crab tree where you will, it will never bear pippins.

A CRAB is an apple; so is a pippin. Both grow on trees, both require the same care and attention to raise, both take the same amount of time to mature and both require the same amount of work to gather.

But when they get to market it is the pippin that finds the most buyers and yields the biggest profit.

If you want to do a pippin business, concentrate your time and your energy on a pippin proposition.

Start right, or if you've started and are working along crab apple lines, start over.

It costs no more to carry a line of Edison Phonographs and Records than other kinds; it takes no more time to demonstrate them; no more space to show them, and no greater store expense to handle them.

But there is more in them for you. Among instruments of this kind the Edison is the pippin. It is the great, popular entertainer, gaining in prestige every day, tightening its grip on the public, month by month as Mr. Edison adds new features and as new stars join the Record-making staff.

The Edison was the first sound-reproducing instrument. It is the first to-day—first in quality, tone, simplicity, durability and in the length and character of its Records.

People want the instrument that Edison is responsible for because they know Edison and know that what he produces is the best that can be produced.

If you want the result to be pippins devote your efforts to presenting the Edison line.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

Victor Herbert Makes an Exclusive Contract with National Phonograph Company

Beginning on June 1st and continuing for an indefinite period, Victor Herbert, America's foremost composer, musician and conductor, will be actively identified with the organization back of the Edison Phonograph and Edison Records.

Mr. Herbert has just signed an exclusive contract with the National Phonograph Company, by which he will become the musical adviser and expert critic of all of the better instrumental compositions reproduced on Edison Records. He will also lead in person the famous Victor Herbert Orchestra, which will make records exclusively for the Edison Phonograph.

We never have had the pleasure of making an announcement that in our opinion means so much for the continued and increasing success of the Edison Phonograph. In entering upon this connection, Mr. Herbert promises to give the work his best endeavor. He will go regularly to our recording laboratory, suggesting compositions for reproduction, taking part in making up the musical organization to play them and criticizing the making of masters as the work progresses. Certain of these Records will be listed as having been made under his direction, in addition to those made by the Victor Herbert Orchestra under his leadership.

Mr. Herbert has for some years been an enthusiast over the possibilities of the Phonograph and has always believed that he could aid in its improvement. This arrangement will give him ample scope to work out the plans he has formed concerning talking machine records.

The contract with Mr. Herbert is of the greatest importance to Jobbers and Dealers in Edison goods, for its effect upon business will be far reaching and will more than ever make it worth while to push the business.

Sketch of Mr. Herbert's Life and Work

In the musical world Victor Herbert occupies a unique place—unique because there is no other just like him. And perhaps there never was another just like him. Some one somewhere once referred to him as Victorious Herbert. It was a slip of speech, but it concealed, unknowing, a singular prophecy; for the suffix thus unconsciously bestowed upon his given name has since been well won and fully deserved by Mr. Herbert. His is a name to be conjured with, and on the score of an opera it means more than mere jugglery of tunes.

Whence comes this maker of sugared melodies, and what is his mission? Is he a reincarnation of some past musical Golconda, flashing the brilliant jewels of its marvellous intonations for the benefit of a modern world, or is he merely a genius? Offenbach, Strauss and Sullivan rolled into one might make a Herbert, but it would be difficult to analyze these elements in any Herbert composition. Repetition of himself even is an absolutely rare fault, and in four operas written in one season some few years ago the musical plan and structure, technically, were so utterly dissimilar as to provoke comment and raise a doubt of uniform authorship. Yet the Herbert touch was there—an elusive similarity that defied comparison in the closest analysis. The inevitable conclusion would seem to make it necessary to place Mr. Herbert in the classification of a genius, for we then have his antecedents for a basis of judgment.

Mr. Herbert was born in Dublin, Ireland, on February 1, 1859, the son of a barrister and the grandson of Samuel Lover, the creator of that immortal hero "Handy Andy." Novelist, poet, painter, dramatist and musician, Samuel Lover is undoubtedly the mould in which is cast the present-day musical genius. Heredity showed early, for at the age of seven the young Herbert became a student of music in Germany, where his parents had established themselves. Here under capable masters he rapidly developed in his chosen profession, and at the age of twenty-seven, he became first 'cellist of the court orchestra at Stuttgart.

In the search for a broader field in which to exercise his fast-growing accomplishments, America claimed his citizenship, and here he has gone on and on, winning fresher laurels with each new achievement, until the crown is virtually his. Through a succession of triumphs he has emerged as the world's foremost light-opera composer, while as a conductor he has practically no superior. From his first arrival in this country he took a commanding position in the musical profession, playing first 'cello in the celebrated orchestra of Theodore Thomas and Anton Seidl, being associate conductor with the latter.

Perhaps nothing in musical history can take rank with Mr. Herbert's marvellous success as a composer. Of serious work he has to his credit not only the imposing symphonic poem, "Hero and Leander," but two violoncello concertos he wrote are in the repertoire of every noted 'cello soloist throughout the world. In light opera the list of his scores is formidable, comprising the really great successes of the past sixteen years. Among these are "Prince Ananias," "The Serenade," and "The Viceroy," which revived the waning fortunes of the old Bostonians; "The Wizard of the Nile," "The Idol's Eye" and "The Ameer," three operas that firmly established the popularity of Frank Daniels as a star; "The Fortune Teller" and "The Singing Girl," which served the brilliant purpose of Alice Nielson; "Cyrano de Bergerac," one of Francis Wilson's most ambitious offerings; "Babette," and "Nile Madiste," the latter the most finished operetta produced here in a quarter of a century, both written for Fritzi Scheff; "Babes in Toyland," "It Happened in Nordland," "Daily Dollars," "Wonderland," "The Red Mill," the latter with Montgomery and Stone as the stars. To these must be added "Algeria," "Prima Donna" and "Little Nemo."

With the clientele which this chronology has furnished him, Mr. Herbert is again successfully appearing with his own orchestra at present, playing a series of Sunday night concerts at the New York Theatre.

Mr. Herbert Talks About His New Work

We cannot better present Mr. Herbert's attitude toward the work he is about to take up than to reprint an article from the Music Trader of May 8th, which includes a long interview with Mr. Herbert on the subject. It is as follows:

An announcement of very great importance to the talking-machine trade and to the great public the world over was made by the National Phonograph Co. this week, in giving out the news that they have engaged Victor Herbert, famous musician, orchestra conductor and composer, to act in a supervising capacity in the making of artistic records and to lead his celebrated orchestra while it makes records for the company.

The National Phonograph Co. believes with Mr. Herbert that the composer should be consulted in the arrangement and interpretation of his works for use upon the Phonograph so that every record should be a guaranty to the public that it is adapted to reproduce a practically perfect rendition of a musical work by artists who render and interpret the work as the composer wrote and intended it to be performed.

The new contract is effective on June 1. The arrangement gives the National Phonograph Co. the exclusive right to Mr. Herbert's services in the talking-machine field, together with that of his superb orchestra. He will be consulted upon every phase of the work of making records of the better class of music, and especially of instrumental compositions.

He will assist in the selection of suitable music for record-making purposes, aiming always toward such music as will widen the field of the Phonograph. He will be consulted, too, as to the people who will sing or play the better kinds of compositions. He will also try to improve the records of popular music, although this has not been definitely decided upon.

Will Raise Standard of Compositions.

Mr. Herbert will go frequently to the record-making laboratory of the National Phonograph Co. and supervise and criticise the work of making records.

This innovation is sure to have a tremendous effect on improving the character of the compositions that the people will hear. Mr. Herbert is easily the most famous living American composer. He has written twenty-six operas which have had a wide vogue on the American stage, and many of which are being played at the present time in this country. Several of them have been sung in many foreign countries, even in far-off Australia.

His operas have made the reputation of many theatrical stars who have appeared in these productions. As a composer of serious music he has also written many compositions of high merit. As a musical conductor he is internationally famous.

For some years he was the conductor of the Pittsburg Symphony Orchestra, one of the leading organizations in music. At present he has an orchestra of his own, which ranks at the top, and which, while playing the world's leading compositions with splendid artistic finish, at the same time has a tremendous popular following.

In addition to the prestige that Mr. Herbert has as a composer and a conductor, he is a musician of rare equipment, a fine 'cello soloist and a student of musical literature and of musical conditions. A man more capably fitted for the task which Mr. Herbert will undertake for the National Phonograph Co., could hardly be selected, because, in addition to his musical abilities and experience, he also knows what the people want, having directed thousands of concerts.

Enthusiastic Over New Work.

Mr. Herbert enters upon his new work with enthusiasm. He has long believed that the talking-machine is the principal medium through which the people can imbibe correct musical ideas, providing that the records of good music be adequately and artistically rendered. He believes that by means of the Phonograph thousands can be reached who would hear good music in no other way. The advantage of a master hand in choosing music that will best be reproduced on the talking-machine, and in making the cuts in the compositions that answer Phonograph requirements, and, which, at the same time preserve the spirit and ideas of the composer, is instantly apparent to all students of Phonograph development.

Mr. Herbert talked enthusiastically about the Phonograph and its possibilities when seen in his beautiful New York home by a representative of The Music Trades this week. He was arranging some of the details of the musical programme for the Lambs' Club All Star gambol, the greatest collection of theatrical celebrities ever gathered together for a tour of the country, but willingly stopped to discuss the Phonograph. When the Lambs' gambol is ended this month he will be ready to take up the work for the National Phonograph Co. The only composing he is doing at the present time is an American grand opera which he is writing for Hammerstein, which will be produced on January 15, the first American grand opera to be heard in the Manhattan Opera House. Until this work is finished he will do no other composing.

"I have long advocated that the composer should be connected in the arrangement and interpretation of his work for use upon the Phonograph," said Mr. Herbert to The Music Trades, "and now that the National Phonograph Co. has given me the opportunity to see that my own works shall be interpreted by my own orchestra, led by myself, and we have also agreed upon an artistic supervision by me of important compositions in musical literature, modern and classic, I am very much pleased. I shall enter upon this work with genuine enthusiasm and interest, because I believe that there are endless opportunities for the spread of musical culture through the Phonograph, which enters every corner of the world.

"I regard my new connection with the National Phonograph Co. as in the nature of a public service. My friends know that my income is such that I am not taking this action for individual profit.

"Many Phonographic reproductions have been disappointing because while they accurately reproduced the musical notation, the interpretal, intangible element existing in every work, the throbbing, pulsating spirit of the composer were lacking, and the absence of this vital quality often made them insipid and lifeless. What a difference in effect upon the listener in the playing of the Tannhauser overture by experienced and artist musicians under the stirring leadership of a Seidl and the nondescript members of some park band led by a phlegmatic time-beater! Records prepared with care and discrimination in the arrangement and interpretation of the works they are designed to reproduce, because of their permanency of form, perpetuate the works and the spirit of them as above described.

Life and Color to Be Put into Records.

"Edison records made by the well-trained members of my orchestra, under my supervision and direction, will insure not only perfect reproduction of the works they are intended to reproduce, but interpretations as exact and artistic as possible, and will afford to the listener in different climes the same pleasure as derived from listening to my living orchestra in action.

"I contend that life, color and individuality can be and should be put into a talking-machine record. Naturally the composer will play his compositions with spirit and the enthusiasm of his reading will be communicated to the auditor. Thus, Phonograph owners in foreign countries, as well as here in America, will be hearing a live force, and not an automaton, conducted through the Phonograph.

"A great deal of foolishness has been written about so-called popular music. A general idea prevails that popular music is neither dignified nor inspiring, but my belief is that the only reason why the big general public apparently favors compositions which are unworthy is because they are not in a position to hear anything better. The wrong kind of music always does harm. From the simple principle that the people only love what they know, I am convinced that people would only love good music if they could only know it.

"I claim that the most beautiful compositions, the most beautiful works, would always appeal to any audience, even to the humblest wage earner or factory woman, if that music were properly presented. Unfortunately, often it is not.

"We subvention the bands, playing on the piers, but what do they play? The cheapest sort of music, which does not do a bit of good. These bands should play only the very best. If they did that, the people, hearing this good music on the one hand, and cheaper music in other places would have a standard lifted and, thus, could discriminate. It is the same principle as the man who for years has read nothing but flashy literature. He is not able to recognize a piece of inspired writing when he sees it.

"On the other hand, if works of high excellence are given, in parks, piers, concert hall or through the medium of the Phonograph they should be correctly and artistically rendered. Otherwise, their influence is destroyed.

"If Shakespeare is appropriately mounted, and acted by a capable company of intelligent artists, the theatre will be filled and the audience delighted. But no one wants to hear a Shakespeare play awkwardly acted by performers little removed from the grade of amateurs, who know nothing about elocution or have little conception of the ideas of the dramatist.

Intelligence and Common-sense Essential in Record-Making.

"Intelligence, common-sense and knowledge are just as necessary in recording music for the Phonograph. How foolish it would be for a recorder to take Beethoven's ninth symphony for instance, and chop it into a three-minute 'selection' for the talking-machine. I do not care to assume the attitude of criticising talking-machine companies, yet, particularly with some of the foreign companies, I have heard selections which have taken as great inartistic liberties with the composer. This is especially noted in the case of arias of operas, which sometimes are murdered in shameful fashion by a talking-machine bungler.

"Those arias or compositions which it would be futile to cut down to the time limit of a Phonograph record I shall avoid. There are many beautiful classic selections, however, that can be handled in such a manner that the composer's spirit and interpretation will be preserved.

"I feel sure that we can get out records that will astonish the world. And, too, I understand that a longer-playing record has been invented by Mr. Edison, which will greatly broaden the scope of selection.

"The steady stream of marvelous improvements in these Phonographs, the high standard of perfection and accuracy of their reproducing qualities, the enormous repertoire of the compositions they are reproducing, ranging from the popular songs of the day to the most serious symphony, the variety of methods of performance and rendition offered by them, including orchestra, single instruments, singers, duets, quartettes, are calculated to commend them to the untutored as well as to the most skilled in the musical art, as I pointed out some time ago in an article in The Circle.

"The perfection of these instruments as a popular institution is assured by the obviating of the laborious, tedious and often difficult studying and practising required to reproduce music from the printed staff notation on the piano, violin or other musical instrument. A great industry has sprung up devoted to their manufacture and exploitation, in which large capital is invested, and which is much greater in every respect than the sheet-music publishing industry.

Modern Phonograph Fast Supplanting Other Music-Producing Methods.

"The magnitude of this industry, the greatness of the demand for these automatic musical instruments, the completeness of the catalogues listing the compositions they are adapted to reproduce, and the decline in the demand for sheet music are positive indications that the modern Phonograph is supplanting and will eventually displace the old methods of reproducing music.

"It is the work of the composer that instils life into these inventions. Their only useful and profitable purpose is to impart to the consumer the conception of the composer, and enable him to enjoy the same. Their marketability is altogether dependent upon the character of the composition they are designed to reproduce and the standing of the author of the work."

Mr. Herbert's Past Interest in the Phonograph

Mr. Herbert's attitude toward the Phonograph, as evidenced by his arrangement with the National Phonograph Co., is by no means new. He has for several years regarded it as having a wonderful influence upon the people of to-day and as having great possibilities for the future. In March, 1908, when, as President of the Authors' and Composers' Copyright League of America, he was contending in Congress for his rights as a composer, he wrote an admirable article entitled "The Influence of Automatic Musical Reproductions upon the Musical Art," in which he took the broadest grounds on this subject. The article was published in the Circle Magazine for March, 1908, and attracted much attention. Following is an extract from the article:

"The capabilities of these inventions in spreading culture, instilling a sense of appreciation and discrimination of the best in art, and musically educating the people are beyond conception.

"In the rural communities, where opportunities for hearing good music are limited, in the many homes where no one is trained in the manipulation of a musical instrument, or where the repertoire of the player is confined to but a few well-known airs, the Phonograph and self-playing piano are indeed welcome messengers of amusement, culture and joy.

"The steady stream of marvelous improvements in these inventions, the high standard of perfection and accuracy of their reproducing qualities, the enormous repertoire of the compositions they are reproducing, ranging from the popular songs of the day to the most serious symphony, the variety of methods of performance and rendition offered by them, including orchestra, single instruments, singers, duets, quartettes, are calculated to commend them to the untutored as well as to the most skilled in the musical art, as I pointed out some time ago in an article in The Circle.

"The perfection of these instruments as a popular institution is assured by the obviating of the laborious, tedious and often difficult studying and practising required to reproduce music from the printed staff notation on the piano, violin, or other musical instrument. A great industry has sprung up devoted to the manufacture and exploitation, in which large capital is invested, and which is much greater in every respect than the sheet-music publishing industry.

"The magnitude of this industry, the greatness of the demand for these automatic musical instruments, the completeness of the catalogs listing the compositions they are adapted to reproduce, and the decline in the demand for sheet music are positive indications that the modern Phonograph and self-playing piano are supplanting and will eventually displace the old method of reproducing music.

"From this standpoint, the introduction of the automatic musical instrument becomes a matter of deep concern and serious importance to the composer. While these devices tend to increase the audiences of the composer, for the sale of each record and roll means a patient hearer of his latest efforts, and an appreciation of his labors, yet they are under the present state of our copyright laws portentous of much evil and injury to the musical art, and unless Congress comes to the rescue of the composer and extends his copyright so as to cover the automatic reproduction of his compositions, the art of music will decline. These reproducing devices of musical works were unknown when the present copyright laws were enacted, and consequently no express provision of law in respect to them was embodied therein. The manufacturers have taken advantage of this defect in the law by appropriating for use upon their machines the best compositions without the leave or license of the composer and without paying him any compensation for his efforts.

It is the work of the composer that instills life into these inventions. Their only useful and profitable purpose is to impart to the consumer the conception of the composer, and enable him to enjoy the same. Their marketability is altogether dependent upon the character of the composition they are designed to reproduce and the standing of the author of the work.

Good music being so essential to their industry, it would be supposed that the manufacturers of these devices would exert every possible effort to elevate and encourage the art which they exploit for profit.

Since the announcement was made of his arrangement with the National Phonograph Co. Mr. Herbert made the following statement:

It is very gratifying that the Edison Company was the first to appreciate the truth of my contention as expressed in my article published in The Circle of March, 1908, entitled "The Influence of Automatic Musical Reproductions upon the Musical Art," to the effect that the composer should be consulted in the arrangement and interpretation of his works for use upon the Phonograph, so that every Record should be a guaranty to the public that it is adapted to reproduce a practically perfect rendition of a musical work by artists who render and interpret the work as the composer wrote and intended it to be performed.

Many phonographic reproductions have been disappointing because, while they accurately reproduced the musical notation, the interpretal, intangible element existing in every work, the throbbing, pulsating spirit of the composer was lacking, and the absence of this vital quality made them insipid and lifeless. What a difference in effect upon the listener in the playing of the Tannhauser Overture by experienced and artist musicians under the stirring leadership of a Seidl and the nondescript members of some Park Band led by a phlegmatic time-beater! Records prepared with care and discrimination in the arrangement and interpretation of the works they are designed to reproduce, because of their permanency of form, perpetuate the works and the spirit of them as above described.

Edison Records made by the well-trained members of my orchestra, under my supervision and direction, will insure not only perfect reproduction of the works they are intended to reproduce, but interpretations as exact and artistic as possible, and will afford to the listener in different climes the same pleasure as derived from listening to my living orchestra in action.

What the Trade Papers Say

Far-reaching in its direct influence and what it portends as well is the announcement just made by the National Phonograph Co., makers of the Edison Phonographs, that it has signed a contract with the distinguished composer and musician, Victor Herbert, a man known throughout the world, to act in an advisory or supervisory capacity for all its Records in future; and this, be understood, is not an arrangement which provides for the use of a distinguished musician's name for a financial consideration, but calls for the active daily interest of Mr. Herbert in his new work, and is brought about by Mr. Herbert's own realization of the educational value of this connection and its splendid possibilities for raising the standard of musical education and musical appreciation not only in America, but wherever American talking machines go—and that is all over the world.

It is a serious, earnest and intelligent appreciation of the splendid opportunities open to them that caused the Edison house to enter into this arrangement, which will redound to the mutual advantage of both the immediate parties to the contract and of the larger and even more interested party, the vast American public.

The Edison Company secures not the mere salaried interest of Mr. Herbert, but the earnest, enthusiastic, whole-hearted devotion of one of the greatest living musicians, who realizes the unique possibilities thus offered him for gradually uplifting the musical taste of the masses and helping in a tremendously potential way to creat the musical atmosphere, which is the goal of all educators, humanitarians and public-spirited citizens.

With this unique knowledge of music and of the musical taste of the public, his unexampled musical abilities and freedom of action, Mr. Herbert will be able to reach and influence millions of people in the most effective way, and educate them to an appreciation of all that is best in music. A technically finished musician himself, he will be able to provide music that is popular without being common or bizarre, and classical music which has the gift of melody with an ennobling and not a depressing influence.

The advantages of this contract for the Edison Phonograph Co. and the Edison agents are so apparent that they need not be here enumerated, but as a business proposition it is evident that the Edison house has opened a marvelously prolific field.—Music Trades.

The announcement that the great composer and conductor, Victor Herbert, and his orchestra, have become associated with the National Phonograph Co. will be read with keen interest by thousands of talking machine men everywhere.

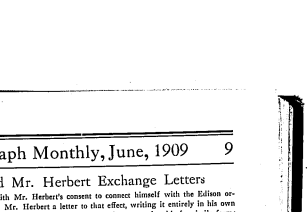
In line with this, what marvelous educational powers the talking machine has in bringing the works of the great composers within reach of thousands of people who otherwise would have no means of obtaining a knowledge of classical or popular compositions!

And right here, the educational value of the talking machine is beyond power of estimate.

The association of Victor Herbert with the National Phonograph Co. is but another move showing the progressiveness of the directors of this great institution, and the fact that they propose to exert all legitimate means to give to their Dealers and representatives the best obtainable.—Talking Machine World.

Dispose of the Cut-Outs

Dealers are again urged to take such steps as will enable them to sell any stock of the cut-out selections they may have on hand. These selections are not returnable until after August 1st, and Dealers will find it much more profitable to sell them than to return them for exchange. There is nothing the matter with any of the selections. They are as good as any in the catalogue. They are being cut out simply to keep down the total list and, but for this fact, would be continued in the catalogue indefinitely. In fact, it is with much regret that we are dropping fully half of the list, for they are numbers that should be retained. Many Dealers have declared their intention of keeping many of the Records in stock, even after they have been dropped from the catalogue, for they claim that their trade in them is too good not to have them in stock. If, however, Dealers want to carry in stock only such Records as appear in the catalogues they should adopt some plan of tagging their present stock of these cut-outs so that they and their salesmen will induce Phonograph owners to buy them before they are retired. There are many ways of marking the stock so that they can be readily picked out. Customers can frequently be induced to take one or more of these Records by simply playing them over.



Mr. Edison and Mr. Herbert Exchange Letters

Mr. Edison was so pleased with Mr. Herbert's consent to connect himself with the Edison organization that he at once wrote Mr. Herbert a letter to that effect, writing it entirely in his own hand, something he rarely does. His letter and Mr. Herbert's reply are reprinted in fac-simile form:

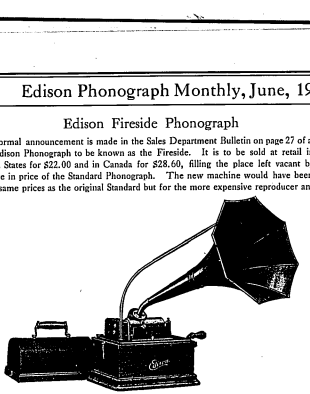
MR. EDISON'S LETTER.

MR. HERBERT'S REPLY.

Don't Ship Records Not Covered by Exchange Proposition

The attention of Dealers is again called to the fact that we will not accept at the factory any Records returned for exchange that are not covered by the conditions of the Continuous Exchange Proposition, papers for which were mailed the entire trade between May 1st and May 5th. Some Dealers have already returned to us Records with artificially made defects and Records that will not become cut-outs until after August 1st. We are returning such Records to the sender with charges collect. The same plan will be followed with any other shipments of similar Records from the trade.

The Continuous Exchange Proposition covers cut-out and defective Edison Standard and Amberol Records, but not Grand Opera or Concert. Cut-out Records mean those that have already been dropped from our catalogue, and not such as may be dropped from future issues. Defective Records mean those that are defective from a manufacturing standpoint. All returned Records are being carefully inspected at the factory and it will be useless for the trade to ship any Records for exchange not covered by the Continuous Exchange Proposition. To ship such Records will cause the shipper double charges for transportation.



The Continuous Exchange Proposition was designed as a permanent feature, and, if it is to continue, it is important that its conditions shall be thoroughly understood and lived up to by all concerned. The form letter and blank forms mailed to the trade give all details of it, and Dealers who have not understood them are urged to read the papers over again.

An Error

The Talking Machine World, in its last issue, stated that the new Edison Fireside machine was designed to take the place of the Edison Standard Phonograph. This was not correct. The Fireside is intended to take the place formerly occupied by the Standard, when the latter was sold at $20.

Edison Fireside Phonograph

Formal announcement is made in the Sales Department Bulletin on page 27 of a new type Edison Phonograph to be known as the Fireside. It is to be sold at retail in the United States for $22.00 and in Canada for $28.60, filling the place left vacant by the advance in price of the Standard Phonograph. The new machine would have been sold at the same prices as the original Standard but for the more expensive reproducer and the larger horn on the Fireside. It was a matter of much regret among the officials of the National Phonograph Company that a $20.00 price could not be adopted. But the Fireside at $22.00 is worth the difference and we are satisfied that no one after seeing and hearing it will object to the higher price.

The new features of the Fireside are its maroon finished horn and its combination reproducer. The horn is the same as used on the Gem except that it is colored and is made in two sections. The reproducer is in appearance and size like the Model C but it is equipped with two sapphire points, one for Standard and one for Amberol Records. These points are mounted on separate swivel arms which move one way for Standard Records and another for Amberol Records. This reproducer will be known as the Model K. The horn is supported by a crane which is attached in the same manner as the crane on the Gem Phonograph.

The Fireside is slightly smaller than the Standard but it has a highly polished antique oak cabinet with carrying cover to match. The cover is held in place by new style catches. The machine has a strong single spring and can be wound while playing. The change of gears for playing with Standard or Amberol Records is made by a button at the left of the machine.

The price at which the Fireside will be sold makes its success assured and leaves no doubt that it will be the best seller in the Edison line. The same discounts as on the higher priced machines will apply to it, making it equally profitable to the trade. The Fireside will be placed on sale everywhere in the United States and Canada on July 1st. Every dealer will need at least one Fireside and he will be wise if he places an order with his Jobber by which others can be had as fast as needed.

Read Bulletin No. 30

Sales Department Bulletin No. 30, printed on page 27 in this issue, is important in several other respects besides the announcement of the Fireside Combination Phonograph, and it is quite necessary that every Dealer should read it carefully. It also announces an Amberol attachment for the present Gem Phonograph. This attachment has been designed so that it may easily be applied to the Gem machines now in use and enable owners of such machines to enjoy the pleasures of the Amberol Record. This attachment is equipped with a Model H Reproducer, for use on Amberol Records, the owner of a Gem machine still using his Model C Reproducer for Standard Records. This attachment will be placed on sale simultaneously in the United States and Canada on July 1st. Its list price is $4.00 in the United States and $5.20 in Canada.

The bulletin also places a list price of $5.00 on the new Model K Reproducer. This, as stated in connection with the Fireside machine, is a reproducer with two different sized sapphire points, assembled so that the points may be moved to play either Record as required, so that only one reproducer will be required to play both Records. This reproducer has many advantages and doubtless numerous Phonograph owners will get one instead of using two separate reproducers as at present. The matter of putting in a stock of these is worth more than ordinary attention on this account. The Model K Reproducer will be placed on sale in the United States and Canada on July 1st.

Another very important announcement in the bulletin is the reduction in the list price of the Model C and Model H Reproducers from $5.00 to $3.50 each. This reduction will become effective on July 1st. On this date, the exchange on Reproducers, which has existed since 1902, will be discontinued.. Jobbers and Dealers who still desire to avail themselves of the exchange proposition must do so on or before June 30th.

The bulletin points out the importance to Dealers of placing orders promptly for such Fireside Machines, Gem Attachments and Model K Reproducers as they may require to meet the demands of their trade. Experience has been that no matter how carefully plans are made, every time new machines or other goods are placed before the trade there is always a larger demand upon the factory than can be supplied. Plans made in advance are speculative as to quantities, but when Dealers place orders through Jobbers, the latter know how to order and we in turn are enabled to increase our production to meet the demand.

What Better Argument?

What better answer can be made to those who doubt the future of the talking machine business than the plans now being carried out by the National Phonograph Company. The engagement of Victor Herbert, as referred to in other pages, is one designed to greatly improve the business and to make for it a greater and more permanent future. The engagement of such high-priced artists as Albert Spalding, Nat M. Wills, Mabel McKinley, Grace Cameron, Digby Bell and others, means an enlargement of the field of the Edison Phonograph and a greater popularity for its Records. The issuance of the new type Edison Phonograph and the various other new features covered in the bulletin to the trade printed on page 27 of this issue, should prove conclusively that present conditions are but temporary and that the business in a few months will be more attractive and more profitable to all engaged in it. All of the things referred to are but a part of the plans now being worked out by the National Phonograph Company, all of which will add to the prestige and the volume of the business. We are disposed to say more about the future of the business than would be necessary under ordinary circumstances, because of a feeling that there are some Dealers who are discouraged and are contemplating giving up the line. Edison Dealers who are now in good standing could not make a greater mistake than to go out of the business just now. They might better retain their privileges as Dealers, even if they did not make any profit for the next few months.

Consigning Edison Goods

The following is a copy of a letter mailed on May 3d by General Manager of Sales Dolbeer to all Jobbers:

In communications received from several of our Jobbers, they advise that it has been the custom of other Jobbers to send quantities of Edison Records to Dealers on approval, with the understanding that Dealers might retain such Records as they desired, returning balance for credit.

This method of handling Edison Records practically amounts to consignment of such goods, and is strictly prohibited under the terms of our Agreement, and was recently referred to in a circular letter sent to the Trade, and we must insist upon the discontinuance of this practice.

Suits Against Price Cutters

Nothing could demonstrate the success of our uniform one price selling system more conclusively than the fact that notwithstanding Edison goods are handled by more than thirteen thousand Dealers, the number of cases of price cutting is so small that the percentage is an almost entirely negligible fraction.

The price cutters that we wish to talk about in this issue, are Dealers, who, because of peculiar local conditions, or because they have failed to apply the necessary push to make the business a success, have decided to discontinue the business of selling Edison goods. We venture the assertion that if the facts and the policy of the National Phonograph Company with regard to such sales were fully understood by all Dealers, there would be no cases of price cutting of this sort. This is the most objectionable class of price cutting which is met with, for it is the height of unfairness for a man to sell Edison goods for years, during all of which time he is dependent for his entire success on the strict carrying out of the one price selling system, and then the moment he decides to go out of business himself, to begin cutting prices and to disrupt the trade of all Dealers in his vicinity, merely to get rid of a small stock of Records and other goods he may have on hand. Such price cutters as these would be the very first to object, had they still been in the business if the price cutting was done by some one else in the neighborhood.

There seems to be an impression abroad in some quarters that when a Dealer has ceased to buy new Records and other goods each month, he is no longer bound by his contract but is free to go ahead and sell out his stock at such prices as he may see fit. Nothing can be further from the truth, for he is bound by his contract and by the notices secured to the goods as long as he has any Edison goods in his possession, and he never can acquire the right to sell them to the public at any other prices than those prescribed by the National Phonograph Company. Again, parties who are going out of business, sometimes write to the Company notifying it of this fact and requesting it to take back the stock on hand at the prices paid and threatening, if this is not done, that the goods will be sold at cut prices. In this too, a very great mistake is made, for the Company does not put out its goods on consignment and will not take them back merely because a Dealer, for reasons of his own, has decided to go out of business, and the Jobber cannot take them back as this is specifically prohibited by his contract. The only proper way for a Dealer who has decided to go out of business to sell his goods is to continue selling them to the public at the prices prescribed by the National Phonograph Company, or else to make an arrangement with some other Dealer, either by selling the goods to the latter or by putting them in his hands for sale at full prices. If a Dealer proposing to go out of business will make such an arrangement as this with another Dealer who is in good standing, and will apply to the National Phonograph Company in advance, giving the details of the transaction, and they are found to be satisfactory, the National Phonograph Company will approve such an application and will permit the transaction, and the Dealer who is retiring will be able to dispose of his goods at a fair price and there will be no disturbance of neighboring Dealers by cut price sales, and last, and best of all for the retiring Dealer, he will not be subject to the necessity of defending an equity suit in the federal courts for an injunction and accounting which will certainly be brought against him if he persists in putting the goods on the market at cut prices.

Henry Spahr, who was a Dealer at No. 482 Palisade Ave., Jersey City, N. J., decided to go out of the business of selling Edison goods, and he began advertising and selling his goods at cut prices. A representative of the National Phonograph Company called upon him and notified him that if he did not discontinue the sale at once, the Company would proceed against him, but he scoffed at the idea and said that he was convinced that as soon as his sales became known the National Phonograph Company would be over there with a truck for his goods, and would take them back and pay the prices he had paid for them as if he had taken them on consignment, but instead of being visited by a truck he received a visit from the Marshal of the United States Circuit Court with a preliminary injunction, and the sale was stopped, but the Records remained in the store. A final decree has now been obtained against Spahr, and instead of making money by his cut price sale, he has enjoyed the pleasant sensation of being a defendant in a suit in the United States Circuit Court, and has been put to considerable expense. The moral is plain—do not go out of the business of selling Edison goods, but put some push and hustle into the business and make a success of it. The man around the corner or in the next town makes it succeed, why not you? But if you are bound to go out of the business, or if circumstances force you to do so, do not begin cutting prices right and left, for not only have you no right to disrupt the business of your fellow-Dealers, in common with whom you have shared in the past the benefits of the one price selling system, and to which your past success in the business was due, but you will have the same experience as Mr. Spahr of Jersey City and others who have tried the same thing have had, and you will find too late that it is unlawful, troublesome and expensive.

The following is an extract from the final decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of New Jersey, in the case of New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company, complainants, against Henry Spahr, defendant.

"It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that a perpetual injunction issue out of and under the seal of this court directed to the said defendant, and his clerks, agents, servants, workmen and attorneys and employees and each of them, under the penalties which may fall upon them and each of them in case of disobedience, that they forthwith and until further order, judgment and decree of this court, desist from (1) giving away or selling or offering to sell or otherwise dispose of Edison Records or any part thereof, records or blanks, at a discount or at less than current list prices, or in any manner otherwise than as permitted by defendant's license agreement of March 21, 1908, with the National Phonograph Company; (2) from directly or indirectly using, selling or offering to sell Edison Records or Edison Phonographs, articles or devices embodying or constructed or operating in accordance with the inventions and improvements set forth in Letters Patent of the United States, Nos. 782,370 and 789,670, or either of them, without the license of the complainants (New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company) under said Letters Patent, or under either of said Letters Patent or either of them in any way whatsoever.

That the complainants do recover of the defendant their costs and disbursements of this suit, to be taxed by the clerk.

W. M. LANNING,
United States Judge."

That they represent a certain amount of money to us and should be accounted for,

That your request represents about one five-thousandth of the sum total received in our Advertising Department and that the handling of these many requests is done in the most automatic manner possible.

So, if you should be reminded that you haven't sent us proofs of the cuts already furnished when you ask for a further supply, don't write us as some Dealers do occasionally:

"I don't ask for cuts when I don't intend to use them," or

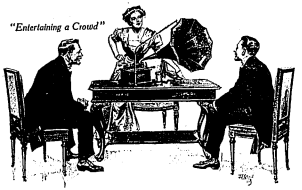
"If you don't want to send me a few inexpensive cuts when I ask for them, you needn't," or

"Do you think for a moment that I have time to bother with sending you proofs?" etc.

During the course of a year, the electros we furnish Dealers without cost amount to a very considerable sum—at least a few thousand dollars —and we have the same interest in that investment that each individual Dealer would feel if the expenditure were his, and was supposed to bring some definite return. Don't consider yourself "above" or think that we have singled you out or "the other 13,000" as being the only one who must show proofs of electros, for this is decidedly not the case.

All our efforts point toward the one object—the disposition of just as many Edison Phonographs and Records as is possible during the course of a stated period. In the accomplishment of the object the co-operation of all Dealers is essential. If we furnish cuts without charge, each Dealer should also take pride in forwarding the advertisements wherein they are used, for by so doing he is unconsciously assisting us to conduct in the least troublesome and most effective way the great advertising campaign, of so many branches, which is bringing the Edison product to the attention of prospective purchasers the world over.

Jobbers Convention July 6th and 7th



J. Newcomb Blackman, chairman of the committee of arrangements for the convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, announces that the convention will be held at the Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City, N. J., on July 6 and 7, instead of on July 12 and 13, as originally planned. The change of date was made owing to the fact that the busy season for the hotel begins about July 10, and by holding the convention before that date better accommodations could be secured. Another reason is that with the Fourth of July falling on Sunday and being celebrated on Monday, the visiting Jobbers may make the convention the occasion for a four days' outing at the seashore.

Did any of your friends ever drink your health to this toast?

Here's to the man who plans things—
Builds things—makes things—
Who prates not of wonders of old;
Nor gloats upon ancestral gold,
But takes off his coat, and takes a hold
And does things.

Isn't it worth while following the example set by this National Advertising and do some of your own in local papers?

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

Songs and music never before offered in Record form can now be had in Edison Amberol Records

MUCH of the world's best music has heretofore been too long for any record of any sound-reproducing instrument. If used, it had to be cut or hurried. Such music, executed as the composer intended it, is now offered in Edison Amberol Records.

Amberol Records play twice as long as standard Edison Records and longer than any other records of any kind.

Thus Amberol Records bring to Edison Phonograph owners an exclusive and unusual list of songs and musical selections.

The new Edison Phonographs play both the standard Edison Records and the Amberols. Any Edison Phonograph (except the Gem) can be changed to play both at a small expense.

No instrument, except the Edison Phonograph, plays Amberol Records; so if you want the music that Amberols have made possible your instrument must be an Edison Phonograph.

ANY Edison dealer will play these new Amberol Records for you and supply you with both Phonograph and Records. Any dealer will change your present Phonograph to play both standard Edison Records and Amberols. Ask your dealer or write to us for catalogues of Edison Phonographs and Records.

EDISON RECORD TALENT

These people are among the greatest entertainers in their lines in the country

YOU know them, at least by reputation. They have spent the best part of their lives in perfecting themselves for the sole purpose of entertaining others.

Each is a specialist; all are among the best that the field of opera, music hall, concert, musical comedy and vaudeville has produced.

They represent a few of the artists now contributing to the monthly programs offered in the form of Edison Records. The owner of an Edison Phonograph commands the services of this array of talent; not for himself alone, but for his family and friends; not on occasions, but all of the time.

The Edison Phonograph does not specialize. Its great and ever-increasing popularity is due to the fact that its powers of entertainment are as broad as the land—offering to each what each prefers.

IF all of the artists who have contributed to the June list of Edison Records were billed to appear at a single performance, neither distance nor price would keep you away. Yet they can do no better in their various lines than they have done in making these new June Records.

There are forty Records from which to choose, twenty of them Amberols.

Ask your dealer or write to us for catalogues of Edison Phonographs and Records.

Edison Phonographs are sold at the same prices everywhere in the United States—$12.50 to $125.00.

Standard Edison Records, 35c. Amberol Records, 50c. Grand Opera Records, 75c.

Printed Matter

Perhaps we didn't make ourselves quite clear last month concerning the Cut-out Record Hanger, form 1553. We said "quantities are being shipped to Jobbers," but neglected to state in what way. The supplies were included with Jobbers' stock orders for June Records, many of which were not delivered until after the May PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. This paragraph is inserted that Dealers may not think their Jobbers negligent in the matter of turning over copies for display purposes as suggested last month. If you haven't acted in the matter, now is the proper time to do so.

Letters received by us from Phonograph owners, prove that there is a generally wide-spread interest in these 500 Records to be withdrawn from our catalogs on August 1st. Among them are many very desirable selections which will mean sales to Dealers who have the enterprise to point out the proposed withdrawal of them to their regular customers. We have no way of assuring the Trade that these selections will ever be re-listed under new numbers and it seems quite logical that Phonograph owners would want at least a part of them before it is too late.

In South America, a manufacturer of artificial ice would do a rushing business but if he opened a branch in Greenland it stands to reason that the home office would very soon discover that the branch was not a success. The reason is obvious. In the one instance is being sold a necessity, while in the other natural ice is too easily obtained to permit a demand for the artificial product. The selling of Edison Phonographs and Records in times like these represent a parallel condition. It's easy enough to sell food-stuffs and the necessities of life, but to interest people in what they do not actually require is indeed a task worthy of the attention of the most ambitious Dealer.

But, if all efforts to interest the people in your town, are stopped, how can you ever expect to appeal to their taste for good music, if they know not of the way in which that music is to be obtained? Or if they do know, perhaps a little reminder from you in the form of an attractive piece of literature might just do the trick. If you've given up that mailing list of Phonograms and supplements, start it going again; if you've discharged the boy who did your house-to-house distributing, put him to work again. If your typewriter or mimeograph machines have been idle because you thought it not worth while to continue mailing out soliciting letters, the operation of them should be begun without further delay. Your Jobber has the printed matter,—or if he hasn't he can get it without difficulty. Business isn't coming back to you, you must go out and get it. As "Bill Barlow" says:—

"Opportunity knocks once on every door,—but sweeps out mornings for the man who helps himself."

What use have you made of the Amberol Slips, form 1490? This is a most excellent piece of small literature for boosting the sale of attachments. Every Dealer should have a supply.

The six-page extension folder, form 1434, "Three New Types of Edison Phonographs," is still as timely as it was the first day copies were distributed. The combination types of machines are yet zero to those who haven't investigated the improvements, so don't give up the distribution of the folders just because the Amberol attachment may seem like a familiar story to you.

The records of our advertising department show a decidedly falling off in requests from Jobbers for printed matter. While we do not want to encourage the indiscriminate distribution of literature where, because of local no national conditions, it would do little good, it does seem as if there has been a gradual "laying down" on the part of Dealers, a decided relaxation of their former efforts to get business.

Death of Bandmaster Voss

C. Frederick Voss, who died at Newark, N. J., on May 1st, was one of the best-known musicians connected with the early days of the Phonograph. Mr. Voss was a noted bandmaster and he was the leader of the first band that ever made an Edison Record. He and his band played at the Edison Laboratory in the early experimental days of the Phonograph, and, for several years after Edison Records were put on the market, the selections made by Voss's band were among the most popular. Every owner of a Phonograph who bought the old-style wax record will recall with pleasure those made by Voss's Band. Mr. Voss was a native of Prussia and was sixty-five years old. He came to this country in 1865. Since then he has been prominent in New York, Newark and vicinity as a musician and band leader.

Some of the New Artists Who Are Making Edison Records

Albert Spalding, Violinist

Albert Spalding, the American violinist, is a notable addition to the list of artists who are making Edison Records. Although he is not yet twenty-one years of age, he has acquired a reputation for a mastery of the violin exceeded by but few living artists. He has appeared in Paris, Berlin, London and many other European cities and everywhere created a sensation. Mr. Spalding was born in Chicago, Ill., on August 15th, 1888.

As a very young child he showed remarkable fondness for music. He would sit for hours listening to his mother, a fine singer and accomplished musician. At seven he asked for a violin, and quickly astonished his parents by his wonderful aptitude for the instrument. A three-quarter size Gallano was procured, and he commenced to study seriously with Chiti, of Florence (where his parents have a winter residence), and during the summer months, which they spend in America, he continued his studies under Juan Buitrago in New York.

He made his first appearance, when ten years of age, before the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. Professor Chiti became so impressed with the genius of the boy that, wishing for confirmation of his opinion, he suggested his charge should undergo the severe test of an examination for a professorship at Bologna Conservatoire. The committee of examination consisted of three violin professors, two of the 'cello, and the principal of the Conservatoire. The boy secured forty-eight marks out of a possible fifty, and, as the points required to pass were only thirty, it will readily be seen that young Spalding is phenomenally gifted. The professors were astounded that one so young—he was only fourteen—should have come thro' the trying ordeal so triumphantly, unanimously declaring that he was the youngest on record to pass such an exacting examination. A search of the books revealed the fact that, 133 years before, Mozart passed an examination for the piano at precisely the same age.

The young musician next went to Paris, and studied for two years with Lefort, where he made his professional debut on June 6th, 1906, at the Nouveau Theatre, and later, at the invitation of Coquelin, appeared with Patti at the Chatelet, and at once achieved great success. His successes have been confined to no one country, no one city—the same eulogistic reports come from well nigh all the great music capitals of Europe.

For his first Edison Record Mr. Spalding plays Wieniawski's Polonaise in D Major, a composition calling for ability of the highest order. Those who hear it will recognize it as the work of a superior artist.

Digby Bell, Monologist

The first Edison Record made by Digby Bell will go out with the July list. Few men in the comic opera and vaudeville field are better known than Mr. Bell. He has been constantly in the public eye since he made his first operatic appearance at the Madison Square Garden in 1879, when he appeared as Sir Joseph Porter in "Pinafore." He was a member of a number of the most prominent comic opera companies in his day and for a number of years was a star himself, assuming the principal roles in several notable comic and light opera successes. More recently he has appeared as a monologist in vaudeville and has been quite as successful as he was in his operatic work.

Mr. Bell's first Amberol Record is the story about the tough city kid who tells about the progress of a game at the Polo Grounds from his favorite seat on the right-field fence. Mr.

Bell has the "kid" dialect down to a nicety and, appearing at the height of the baseball season, the Record will be a great success.

Nat M. Wills

There is no better known performer on the vaudeville stage to-day than Nat M. Wills. There is no vaudeville performer whose efforts before the footlights give greater pleasure than

Mr. Wills in his tramp act, with its many variations of monologue and song. Mr. Wills has presented this act in probably every important vaudeville theatre in the United States and Canada. In inducing him to make a series of Edison Records, we have, therefore, done something that will meet with the immediate approval of every person who has seen him in vaudeville. We are glad to state, too, that his Records are unusually loud and clear and make his Record performance quite as satisfactory as the one on the stage.

Josie Sadler, Comedienne

Miss Sadler is unusually talented. Her special forte is German comedy characterization. She made her first professional appearance about twelve years ago, appearing as "Wild Rosie" in "Prince Pro Tem." Since then she has had prominent parts in many successful musical comedies. She is well known at all of the Broadway houses devoted to musical comedy or light opera. One of her greatest hits was the song "Hennsy," which she sang in "Peggy from Paris." Since then she has appeared as Mrs. Sibyl Schwartz in "The Galloper" and Fifi in "A Waltz Dream." She is a decidedly popular player and endeavors to adopt German dialect roles as far as possible, introducing a novel note in most of them and thus avoiding the pitfalls of a one-part player. Her success is a fitting tribute to her talents and abilities.

The 300 Records to be cut from our catalogs on August 1st, as published in the April EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY.

You will then have a complete list of active numbers. If a certain selection in your stock does not appear in this list you will know that it is a "Cut-Out."

This information is given in response to requests for it from several Dealers: who do not know what Records may be returned as Cut-outs against the Continuous Exchange Proposition.

It should be remembered that the Records to be cut from our Catalog on August 1st, are not to be returned until after that date.

No Place Too Remote

The West is noted for doing big things and the Western sales of Edison Phonographs and Records have proved no exception to this rule. Price cutting in Edison goods heretofore has been almost unheard of among the states on the Pacific Slope, and conditions have been very satisfactory in the Western trade. We were therefore very much surprised when at about the beginning of the year, Woodard, Clarke & Company, who have one of the largest stores in Portland, Oregon, violated their license contract and threw a big stock of Edison goods on the market at cut prices. A suit on the Phonograph and Record patents was promptly brought by our Legal Department, and the same was speedily stopped by a preliminary injunction. A perpetual injunction has now been obtained. These decisions are of special importance as they are the first to be obtained on the Pacific Slope, and they show conclusively that no price cutter is too far off to be reached in the enforcement of the license conditions under which Edison goods are sold.

We print below an extract from the decree granting a perpetual injunction:

"It is also then by the Court, CONSIDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED, that the said defendant (Woodard, Clarke & Co., its agents, associates, officers, attorneys, servants, clerks, and employees, and each and all of them be, and they hereby are, perpetually enjoined and restrained from in any way using, or causing to be sold, or offering for sale, or advertising for sale any Edison Standard Records, Edison Amberol Records or Edison Phonographs at less than the regular list or cut prices, or at prices less than those specified in the agreement and addenda thereto set forth in complainants' bill of complaint, which agreement was made between said defendant and said complainant, National Phonograph Co., or at less than the prices specified in the notices affixed to the cartons in which said Edison Standard Records and Edison Amberol Records are packed and sold: Thirty-five cents for Edison Standard Records and fifty cents for Edison Amberol Records, or selling the same in violation of any of the terms of the license contracts under which said Edison Standard Records and Edison Amberol Records and Edison Phonographs were originally sold by said National Phonograph Co. to its authorized jobbers and retail dealers, and from violating any of the terms of the license contract and addenda thereto made and entered into between the said defendant and the said complainant, National Phonograph Company, and from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used, selling or causing to be sold, or offering for sale, articles, or devices, embodying or operating or constructed in accordance with the inventions and improvements set forth in the Letters Patent Nos. 782,375, 708,678 and 880,707, without the license of the said complainants', and from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

(Signed) CHARLES E. WOLVERTON, Judge.

Dated April 13, 1909.

Records by Vesta Tilley

Ten Edison Standard Records by Vesta Tilley, the well-known English comedienne and vaudeville star, were put out as a special list on May 1st. These Records were made by Miss Tilley some time ago, but the special reason for putting them out now was because she is now making a tour of this country, appearing at the big vaudeville theatres of the large cities. The Records were cordially received everywhere, handsome orders being placed for them. Dealers who have not yet put them in stock should order at once. The Records are:

13571 I'm Following in Father's Footsteps.
13581 The King of the House is Baby.
13583 Jolly Good Luck to the Girls Who Love the Soldiers.
13593 It's Part of a Policeman's Duty.
13603 Algy ('The Piccadilly Johnny').
13620 The Royal Artillery.
13624 The Seaside Smile.
13634 When the Right Girl Comes Along.
13732 Following a Fellow with a Face Like Me.
13752 I'm the Idol of the Girls.

Every Phonograph Dealer should be a booster—not a quitter. A business in its infancy has no place for a quitter, and ours is one in particular where he has missed his calling.—The Whitit Monthly.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

Kaner and Company, Virginia, Minn.—We started to handle your Edison Phonographs and Records about two years ago. At first we had quite a time to sell the people around here but after hard working we started the ball a-rolling until we have worked up an ever increasing trade. We always keep a large supply of Records and machines. Our Record trade is increasing wonderfully.

John A. Wiseman, Union City, Mich.—I noticed in the May Number of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY that certain Dealers think that the Phonograph business is going back. I must say that my business in this little town is as good if not better than it was last year at this time, and also have more prospects than I had a year ago, and think the Phonograph has come to stay.

E. A. Schwieger, 664 Grand Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—In answering last month your question as to how the difference between the Model A and Model D Triumph Phonographs might be determined, a slight mis-statement was made. We were in error in describing the Model A Winding Crank as having a slot cut in it to fit a pin in the Winding Shaft. There is no slot cut in the crank for this type but instead it has a square hole which fits over the squared end of the winding shaft.

We thought it best to make this explanation to avoid any misunderstanding on the part of Dealers who may have read the paragraph on this subject last month.

Charles Hullinger, Corning, Cal.—Having received a good many pointers from the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, I will give you some of my experience, hoping it will be of some benefit to some one else. I put the large cotton banner received from you outside and I noticed the weather was beginning to fade it so I went to the painter and got some carriage varnish and gave it a good coat of that. Now it is good for several years' wear.

And for my Record lists, Form 1528, I took two strips of wood 36 by 1 inch and 22 inches long, drove small nails through one of them so as to pierce the top of paper, boring small holes in the other to match the nail, also cut a slot in each end one inch long to admit two screw eyes screwed into the other piece. Then I lay the piece with the nails pointing up and put on the paper face up, put on the other piece and turn the screw eyes crosswise to hold it in place and hang up by two small screw eyes in the back piece.

George W. Williams, proprietor of the Lyceum, St. Paris, Ohio.—I gave a novel entertainment at the Union Opera House, April 24, in a two-part program, using the Amberol Records. It was greatly appreciated.

PART FIRST.

No. 1. William Tell Overture. (Represented by shadow pantomime character pictures thrown on curtain.)
No. 64. Elks' Minstrels. (Represented by shadow pantomime character pictures thrown on curtain.)
No. 116. 'Tis the End of the World. (As an illustrated song with slides.)
One reel of Films.

PART SECOND.

No. 111. My Uncle's Farm. (Shadow pantomime.)
No. 110. Chorus of Popular Songs. (Shadow pantomimes, comic contests.)
No. 2. Roses Bring Dreams of You. (Illustrated song slides.)
One reel of Films.

It did good business and believe it was a good advertisement for the Amberol Records.

The San Francisco Call for April 19th, 1909, contains a news item relative to the removal of Clark Wise & Company, Edison Dealers, to their new building, 233 Grand avenue. A picture of the building is also run in conjunction with the article. From all indications these progressive Dealers are arranging to push the sale of Edison goods, for a large Phonograph sign appears in a conspicuous place on the outside of the building. The article states that the entire second floor will be devoted to their Talking Machine Department. In writing us concerning the removal these Dealers say—"Of course, we are not settled as yet but are laying strings for what we hope to be a very prosperous business in the best retail district in the city."

You mustn't lose sight of the great value of these Amberol Records to you, as a Dealer, not only in the extra profit they bring you, but also in the effect they have on the sale of Edison Phonographs. Though no longer new, do not forget that no other Records equal them in playing time or in clearness and tone quality.

A Word to Dealers who Don't Follow-Up Inquiries

A retail inquiry for catalogs of Edison Phonographs and Records was referred recently to C. M. Flomerfelt, at Califon, N. J. The inquirer was located some distance away from Califon, and in a section not easily accessible. But note what this enterprising Dealer did:

"I am enclosing inquiry No. 16,870 and trust that my report on it will meet with your approval. It may interest you to know that I found the prospect after a fifteen-mile drive out in the back-woods and he told me that he saw your advertisements and wrote for booklets believing the Edison the best machine to buy. This instance proves that 'advertising pays.'"

An Appreciative Editor

R. M. Bryant, Edison Dealer at Spiro, Oklahoma, recently sold the Editor of the Spiro Tribune an Edison Phonograph outfit. Soon after it came into his possession this editorial appeared in the columns of his paper. His appreciation is too well expressed to require further comment:

A person who can not appreciate the effects of a film by one of the great artists, when thrown upon the canvas must be either too young to observe, or else too old to see. Moving pictures by the greatest artists are far more popular to-day than they were five years ago, and that popularity is destined to increase and be lasting.

This is also true of Phonographs. What those artists are doing for man through sight, Edison is accomplishing through sound. In the film may be preserved the active, smiling features and movements of persons and objects of renown long after they are gone. Likewise on the cylinder he catches the waves of sound.

He reproduces every tender tremor and quality of the voice with perfect articulation, and the sweetest melodies of famous musicians with marvelous exactness. Through the sounds which his Records reproduce one can feel the passion of the heart, can see the beauty of the soul of the singer, or the musician.

The perfection of the Edison Phonograph and Record is approached by few others and is equalled by none.

His little machine is therefore destined to become as popular at the home fireside as the moving picture show is at the city playhouse.

It may please you to know that during my late cruise around the world with the ships that we never stopped at any place where I was not able to purchase Edison Records, even at that remotest city on this hemisphere, Punta Arenas, in the Straits of Magellan.—Joseph H. Darley, U. S. S. Kentucky.

A Good Dealer's Letter

The following letter mailed by L. H. Atkin, Houghton, Mich., to his patrons with the May Record supplements looks as if the "hard times" had not hit his territory:

Owing to the vast increase in our Phonograph business and desiring to place ourselves in a position to serve you in the best possible manner with Edison Phonograph Records and Supplies, we have increased our stock of Records, both Two-minute and Amberol to embrace every American Record in their catalogue comprising about seventeen hundred numbers.

We most cordially invite you to come in any time and let us play any number of Records of your selection whether you wish to buy or not. It is our aim to keep in close touch with every owner or prospective owner of an Edison Talking Machine in this vicinity, to send to their address the new monthly lists of Records and interesting discussions as contained in the "Phonogram," and by courteous treatment to merit your continued patronage and make friends and customers.

We herewith enclose list of May Records, many numbers of which are particularly bright and entertaining. We will consider it a special favor if you will advise us of any irregularity in receiving this monthly publication or give us the name of any friend who owns a machine and does not receive the new lists.

Personal

F. K. Dolberer, General Manager of Sales, left on May 17th for a three weeks' trip through the West and Northwest. He may go as far as Winnipeg, which city he has not yet visited. So much is being said about the present and future of Manitoba that he is anxious to look the field over and get some personal impressions concerning it.

Wanted—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Get Ready to Advertise the New Fireside Phonograph.

The who have seen the new Fireside Phonograph are unanimous in expressing their belief that it will have a tremendous sale. Its price is a popular one, well within the reach of the masses, and, since it is a perfect Phonograph in every way, it is going to sell by the thousands.

The important thing for every enterprising Dealer is to make preparations to push it just as soon as he can get a supply of the machines. There is no better way to do this than to advertise in local papers. We show below single column and double column cuts of the Fireside machine, both suitable for use in newspapers. We will send one of each to every Dealer who will agree to run them in his local paper and send us one issue of the papers in which they are used. These are the only cuts that should be used in newspapers. If Dealers want half-tones for use in printed matter where smooth papers are used, we have half-tones of the same machines. They are: Single column, No. 721; double column, No. 722. Here again, we only require a promise to use the cuts and a copy of the printed matter showing them.

Next month we will show some ready-made ads in which these cuts are used to advantage. Get the electros now, watch for the copy next month and then go after the business. Do it promptly, so that the other fellow will not get ahead of you.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records for August, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before July 24th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on July 23d. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on July 24th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after July 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before July 24th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, dispose Supplements and Phonograms in Music Boxes or Post Offices after 3 P. M. on July 23d, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for August Records on or before June 15th. Dealers should place August orders with Jobbers before June 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Edison Standard Records

10177 "La-La-La" March — Edison Concert Band

A hit in three New York shows: Anna Held's "Miss Innocence;" "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" and "The Girl from Rector's." Its composer, Vincent Scotto, is also the writer of "La Petite Tonkinoise" (our Record No. 9569). Publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

10178 Parody "Down in Jungle Town" — Nat M. Wills

In making his initial appearance in the ranks of Edison Record makers, Mr. Wills has chosen for his first selection, a parody on the well-known monkey song, "Down in Jungle Town," and he sings it to the music of that selection. The words, however, treat of the Roosevelt hunting trip to Africa in a facetious way that will make the Record popular. Mr. Wills is one of the best known artists on the vaudeville stage. His Tramp Act has made him famous from coast to coast. He makes an unusually clear Record and in this new role will make as great a hit as he does upon the stage. Mr. Wills is the author of the parody as well as the maker of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

10179 He Falls for the Ladies Every Time — Josie Sadler

This selection also serves to introduce still another well-known vaudeville artist to the Phonograph public. Miss Sadler is deservedly popular for the clever way in which she sings upon the stage in German dialect. For her first Record, Miss Sadler has chosen the above selection sung by her in the musical comedy, "The Mimic World." This song tells of the virtues of the young man who had no bad habits, but had a fondness for the ladies. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Alfred Solman; words, Arthur J. Lamb; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10180 Abide With Me — Albert Benzler

An organ solo and the first one to be made for the Edison Phonograph, since the introduction of the Gold Moulded Record. It is put out in response to a widespread demand for an organ Record. The title of the Record will add still further to its popularity. Composed by Wm. H. Monk, but the arrangement is a special one by F. W. Ecke.

10181 Under the Irish Moon — Byron G. Harlan

A march song rendered in Mr. Harlan's best style. It is a song rather different from those of which he usually makes Records, but his admirers will agree that he is quite at home in his rendition of it. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Geo. W. Meyer; words, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

10182 Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah — Edison Mixed Quartette

A sacred selection too well-known to need comment or description. It is beautifully sung by the Edison Mixed Quartette. Organ accompaniment. Music, J. P. Holbrook; words, W. Williams.

10183 Wise Old Indian — Billy Murray

Indian songs do not seem to be losing any of their popularity. Most of them of which we have made Records have been among our best sellers. This one possesses all the requirements needed for success. It is written by the same composer as "Blue Feather" (our Record No. 10162) and "Good-Night, Moonlight" (our Record No. 10174). Its words are extremely funny. They are set to an attractive melody and the Record is made by Mr. Murray, who has been very successful with songs of this kind. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore Morse; words, Jack Mahoney; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York.

10184 The Last Kiss Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

A composition that has the style and character of the French waltzes now so popular in this country. It is played in concert style by our orchestra and is a splendid reproduction. It is a Record that will find a place in every collection whether its owner desires either music of a better character or popular selections. Composer, Charlotte Blake; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10185 The Market on Saturday Night — Ada Jones

To those old enough this Irish character song will recall the days when the most popular place of amusement in New York City was the one conducted by Harrigan & Hart. It will also recall the comic plays featuring phases of New York City life which made Harrigan & Hart known throughout the entire country. In its day, "The Market on Saturday Night" was a great success, being sung and whistled everywhere. Miss Jones has given the song a rendition for our Record that will not only delight those of older years, but will also please the younger generation. Her Irish dialect is all that Harrigan & Hart would desire could they have chosen her to sing the Record, and her clear enunciation makes every word distinctly understood. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Dave Braham; words, Ed. Harrigan; publishers, Will A. Pond & Co., New York.

10186 Little Willie — Premier Quartette

Here is an unaccompanied selection for male voices that will score a success. It is a comic song with three verses and three choruses. "Little Willie" is the hero in the first verse. The other verses tell of the mishaps that befell Sammy and Tommy. Music, J. Lincoln Hall; publishers, Hall-Mack Co., New York.

10187 Dear Old Dear — Will Oakland

A sentimental song fully described by its title. Its melody is of the kind perfectly adapted to Mr. Oakland's fine counter tenor voice. Critics may not agree concerning high tenor voices, but the general public have but one opinion. These voices are the striking ones in minstrelsy and they are equally popular among the Phonograph public. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Benj. Hapgood Burt; words, John Hazzard; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10188 Marsovia Waltz — United States Marine Band

With this composition is presented another two-minute Record by Washington's famous government band. The air is characteristic, and is designed to be typical of the imaginary country of Marsovia. Its rendition will add to the high opinion already achieved by the U. S. Marine Band. Composer, Henriette-Blanke-Belcher.

10189 Any Old Place in Yankee Land is Good enough for Me — Edward Meeker

A descriptive march song quite Colonesque in name and character of melody, but not by Mr. Colon. The words tell of the content of the man who is willing to live in any city so long as it is in Yankee Land. Cleverly sung by Mr. Meeker. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Will Marion Cook and Chris Smith; words, Alex. Rogers; publishers, Gotham-Attucks Music Co., New York City.

10190 Can't You See I Love You? — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

One of the principal songs in "The Newly-Weds," a comedy with music founded on the cartoons by Geo. McManus, published in the New York World. Of course, the song is sentimental. Its chorus has a specially happy swing. It was selected for Miss Jones and Mr. Murray because it was one of those selections in which they have been so successful in singing together. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Nat D. Ayer; words, Seymour Brown; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10191 Prunes — Edward M. Favor

It goes without saying that a song with this title must treat of boarding house life. It is a song of a man whose misfortunes compel him to live in boarding houses and who gets prunes on all occasions. His imagination may conjure up apple sauce, ice cream and custard pie for dessert, but instead he always gets prunes. Probably no other Edison artist could so successfully render a song like this as Mr. Favor. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Seymour Furth; words, Geo. W. Day; publishers, Seymour Furth Music Publishing Co., New York.

10192 Love's Golden Dreams — Albert Benzler

A bright and snappy bells solo played in Mr. Benzler's unapproachable style. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Geo. Stevens; publishers, Arnett-Delonais Co., Chicago, Ill.

10193 Uncle Josh and the Lightning Rod Agent — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh is always getting the bad end of every deal he makes. However, he takes his misfortunes good-naturedly enough. He always sees the funny side, no matter how bad he has been "stung." In this case, he tells how the agent put up lightning rods on every stormary thing in sight on his farm, and how he signed a paper, stating that the job was a good one, only to find shortly afterward that he had signed a note for a considerable amount.

10194 Set 'em Up In the Other Alley — Collins & Harlan

A song by the same composer as "Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Away" (our Record No. 10122) and destined to be quite as successful as the latter song. It is a song of the bowling alley and will find a large call among the devotees of the popular game of bowling. Collins and Harlan are as clever as ever in their rendition of the song. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, Ren Shields & Andrew B. Sterling; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10195 If Ev'ry Girl Was a Girl Like You — Grace Cameron

A waltz song that will still further enhance the vogue of Miss Cameron as a maker of Edison Records. The words reflect the doubt of the young lover who wonders what would happen if all the girls were like his. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Seymour Furth; words, Will A. Heelan; publishers, Seymour Furth Music Publishing Co., New York.

10196 Our Victorious Nation March — New York Military Band

A stirring march which echoes strains of our national airs, a feature that ever appeals to the typical American. The air is bright and snappy. Just the kind to keep the feet a-going while the Record is being played. Composer, J. Lincoln; publishers, Vandersloot Music Publishing Co., Williamsport, Pa.

Edison Amberol Records

175 Selection from "Robin Hood" — Edison Concert Band

Of the numerous operettas by Reginald de Koven, "Robin Hood" is the most popular. It was first produced at Chicago, June 9, 1890, and for nineteen years it has been regarded as one of the best of the light operas by American composers. The Record contains the following numbers: Entrance of Robin Hood, Act 1; waltz song, "Sweetheart, My Own;" "Oh, Promise Me;" "Tinkers' Song and the Finale of the Opera. Always one of the most popular of the two-minute selections, the same music on the Amberol Record will continue its popularity for years to come. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

176 The Flag He Loved So Well — Nat M. Wills

This is Mr. Wills' first Amberol Record. It is twice as funny as the one in the two-minute list, for it is twice as long. The song is one that he has featured on the vaudeville stage and in which he has done his full share in adding to the mirth of the amusement-going public. To hear this Record is to see him standing before the curtain in his tramp makeup and with his coat decorated with medals, one of which, to use his own words, he obtained for singing and a larger one given him for stopping. This Record will make a strong fight with the older favorites for place at the top of the August list. Like most of his selections, this song is original with Mr. Wills and is not published. Orchestra accompaniment.

177 Polonaise in D Major — Albert Spalding

Mr. Spalding is a young American violinist, who, by virtue of his unusual talent, has scored a great success. We regard ourselves as fortunate indeed in inducing him to reproduce some of his marvelous talent on our Records. Further reference to his career and success will appear in the Phonograph Monthly. Violin solos of Henri Wieniawski, the composer of this selection, are very popular with concert performers and are found in the repertoire of every violin artist, Wieniawski was himself a renowned violinist as well as composer. His Polonaise in D Major calls for that artistic conception and brilliancy of technique so essential to the true violinist. Piano accompaniment.

178 Bear's Oil — Golden & Hughes

A vaudeville sketch that is a scream. It is one of several that Golden & Hughes are using in vaudeville, and it is even more funny on our Record than on the stage. Mr. Golden asks Mr. Hughes what he smells when he first enters a drug store, and then follows an enumeration of the odors of a drug store that is ridiculous in the extreme. The fun cannot be described, the Record must be heard.

179 Are You Coming Home To-Night? — Anthony & Harrison

Few sacred selections are better known to the entire country than this one. We could hardly put out a Record that would make a wider appeal among seriously inclined people. The interpretation of the selection given by Anthony & Harrison is fully as good as anything that these church singers have given either from choir lofts or on Edison Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, James McGranahan.

180 La Perle de Madrid Valse — American Symphony Orchestra

A Spanish waltz having the well-marked rhythm, swinging melody and cantinet effects, which give it the true Spanish color. In every sense a delightful orchestral selection, and finely rendered by our Symphony Orchestra. Composer, A. Lamotte; Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

181 The Arkansas Traveler — Len Spencer

An old, old favorite made over on the four-minute Record. It has been on the two-minute list since the introduction of the Moulded Record, and years from now will find it still upon the Amberol list. It is hard to say why it is so popular, but it has a hold upon thousands of lovers of the Phonograph that is unquestioned. Mr. Spencer carries on the dialogue in two different voices and has the assistance on the violin of a member of our Symphony Orchestra.

182 The Day of the Game Peerless Quartette

This is the big hit and the most stirring song in "The Fair Co-Ed," a musical comedy produced by the Elsie Janis Company. The subject of the song is a game of football, and its most attractive feature as performed in "The Fair Co-Ed" is a large and effective chorus, representing a crowd of lively, enthusiastic spectators, who encourage the players by cheering for their favorites with loud hurrahs and spirited college cries. Our Record is a clever reproduction of the stage performance and reflects much credit upon the Peerless Quartette, who make it with the assistance of a special chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Gustave Lüders; words, George Ade; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

183 Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms Arthur S. Witcomb

A cornet solo by Mr. Witcomb, who is the cornet soloist of the U. S. Marine Band and a player of marked ability. The song is one of the most popular of Thomas Moore's poems, the melody being by Sir J. Stevenson. The U. S. Marine Band played the accompaniment while Mr. Witcomb was making the Record.

184 Come and Hear the Orchestra Josie Sadler

A comic waltz song in Dutch dialect, in which Miss Sadler gives on our Record a clever reproduction of one of the acts in which she appears in vaudeville. Various instruments in the orchestra are featured during the song and add to the effectiveness of the reproduction. Orchestra accompaniment.

185 There's a Woman in the Case Murry K. Hill

Another of Mr. Hill's characteristic vaudeville specialties. The Edison Records already made by Mr. Hill furnish a good line upon the fun that may be expected from this one. The Record provides four and a half minutes of real laughter.

186 Tannhäuser March Edison Concert Band

This grand march movement occurs at the opening of the fourth scene in the Second Act of "Tannhäuser," written by Richard Wagner, the grandest and most original composer of all times. As an instrumental number, the "Tannhäuser March," with its stirring introductory strain and broad and majestic theme, so well known to admirers of Wagner, is without doubt the most popular and melodious composition written by this famous composer. Publisher, Carl Fischer.

187 Good Night, Dear John Barnes Wells

A love ballad by still another singer who now enters the ranks of Edison artists. Mr. Wells is well known in New York and vicinity. He has a fine tenor voice, has sung in some of the best metropolitan church choirs and his name frequently appears on the best concert programmes. The song is the one introduced in the comedy, "Love Watches," and sung with great success by Billie Burke. Its composer, Will R. Anderson, also wrote "Just Some One" (our Record No. 9847). Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

188 Holy! Holy! Lord God Almighty Edison Mixed Quartette

A sacred selection of the better class, sung in a stately and dignified manner by our Mixed Quartette. The high character of the Record, both in subject and rendition, would make it worthy of presentation as part of a religious service anywhere. Organ accompaniment. Music, Rev. John R. Dykes; words, Reginald Heber.

189 Garry Owen Medley Eugene A. Jaudas

Here is a violin solo that will not only sell big now, but will sell big as long as it is in the Amberol catalogue. In the medley are introduced the following jigs and reels: "Garry Owen" jig; "17th of March" reel; "Haste to the Wedding" country dance; "Reilly's Own" reel; and "Champion" jig. Interspersed with these selections are bits of the following favorite Irish airs: "The Minstrel Boy;" "Come Back to Erin;" "Wearing of the Green;" "The Harp that Once Thro' Tara's Hall" and "Killarney." Orchestra accompaniment.

190 While the Kids Played Ring a Rosie Will Oakland

A song descriptive of the days when school children sang and danced in this childish game. Few grown-ups will hear the words and melody without recalling the days when they and their childish companions joined hands in a circle and took part in "Ring Around A Rosie." Mr. Oakland's high tenor voice is just the one needed to successfully reproduce the song. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Emanuel Aroni; words, Billie Verne; publishers, Allan & Co, Melbourne, Australia.

191 Cuddle Up a Little Closer Lovey Mine Ada Jones, Billy Murray & Co.

The "production" song hit from "The Three Twins," first recorded as a duet by Miss Jones and Mr. Murray on our two-minute record (No. 9950). It is now given on the Amberol in the same form, but with several choruses added. The first one by Mr. Porter in imitation of "as Grandpa would sing it;" the next by Mr. Harrison as the soldier off to war and bidding good-bye to his sweetheart would sing it. Miss Jones then gives it "as the baby sings it," the Record concluding with all joining in a chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Karl Hoschna; words, O. A. Hauerbach; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

192 Poet and Peasant Overture Frosini

Frosini is a wonder as a player of the accordion. They way in which he plays the "Poet and Peasant Overture" for our Record will cause many an individual to revise his or her opinion of the musical popularity of the accordion. It will also cause them to accord to Frosini credit as being a player of remarkable talent. Unaccompanied. Music, Fr. Von Suppe; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

193 Arrah Wanna Collins & Harlan

Not a new song, for it has been on our two-minute list for several years (it is No. 9447), but it is even more popular to-day than it was when first published and reproduced on our Record. Many thousand two-minute Records of it have been sold and no doubt exists that many thousands more will be sold in Amberol form. The longer Record has made it possible to include more of the song and to add new features, which make it well worth the higher price of the Amberol Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore Morse; words, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Co., New York.

194 Teddy-After-Africa New York Military Band

A comic portrayal of Teddy and his trip to Africa in search of new animals to conquer. The finale shows a chorus of barnyard inhabitants, chickens, roosters, goats, pigs, cows, etc. This composition is Arthur Pryor's latest and one which his band will feature during the summer season. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

Many New Dealers

A few weeks ago our Sales Department sent to all Jobbers, a list of towns in the United States and Canada of 500 or more population, in which there are no Dealers in Edison Phonographs and Records. These lists have been made the subject of an aggressive campaign by many Jobbers and the result has been the establishment of a surprising number of new Dealers. A considerable number of such Dealers have already made their initial purchases and a still larger number of applications are being put through the Agreement Department. Results of this work show that there is no lack of confidence in the future of the Phonograph business on the part of hundreds of business men throughout the country.

There is no better way of seeking Phonograph buyers than through Edison Records, and that being true, the new Edison Amberol Records come as the strongest selling force for Edison Phonograph sales that has been put forth since instruments of this kind were invented. Tell the people in your community to insist upon a four-minute Record and tell them the advantages of it. That will bring them to the Edison line and no argument or series of arguments can get them away from it.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

TEXT:

While we stop to think we sometimes miss our opportunity.

DO YOU realize your opportunity in the Phonograph field?

Do you appreciate the decided advantage you have at the present time?

First, Amberol Records, the longest playing Records made, offering music that no other Records offer.

Second, Record-making talent of the highest order – stars in the entertainment world.

Third, the exclusive services of Victor Herbert, the eminent musician and composer as musical critic, and offering, in addition, the services of his famous orchestra for Record making, under his leadership.

Fourth, a new type of Phonograph, playing both Standard Edison Records and Amberols and one you can sell at a price within reach of all.

Are you me litating over these great advantages and wondering whether they will take with your trade?

If so, you are missing your opportunity. It is no time to ponder and argue with yourself. It is time to act, to stock up, reach out and make even dull old July a revenue earner.

We are telling the people about these great Edison achievements. We are furnishing you with printed matter and hangers on the subject.

The opportunity to cash in is now, while the news is fresh, the interest keen, and while competing instruments have nothing to offset these Edison advantages.

Don't miss your opportunity. The business you are going to do next fall isn't bringing you any money to-day.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA

Mr. Sousa has signed a contract by which his famous Band will make Edison Records.

Mr. Sousa Also Joins the Edison Forces

The National Phonograph Company has just signed a contract with John Philip Sousa, the noted bandmaster and composer, for the exclusive services of his band in making cylinder Records. The actual work of making Records by Sousa's band will not begin until August and the Records themselves cannot be issued for two or three months later. The fact, however, that Mr. Sousa has entered into this arrangement is little less than noteworthy than the arrangement that the National Company has made with Victor Herbert. Mr. Sousa has been more or less opposed to talking machines and this arrangement indicates a decided change in his attitude. He would at once begin the task of making Edison Records but for the fact that the engagements of his band organization make it impossible to do so before August.

While Mr. Herbert has been prominently identified with orchestra work and the composition of light opera, Mr. Sousa has been even more prominent as a band leader and composer of music of a more popular character. Of the two men, Mr. Sousa is probably the best known among the people to whom the talking machine makes the greatest appeal.

The arrangement made between Mr. Sousa and the National Phonograph Company gives the latter no rights to compositions that Mr. Sousa may copyright after July 1st. Any of his music that the National Phonograph Company may use must be had upon the same condition as that of any other composer.

John Philip Sousa was born at Washington, D. C., in 1859. Sousa's father was a musician. He had been a political exile from Spain and earned a precarious livelihood by playing a trombone in the very band at Washington where later his son found a stepping-stone to fame. His mother is a German. He was taught by John Esputa and George Felix Benkert. At eight years of age Sousa had begun to earn his own living as a violin player at a dancing school and at ten he was a public soloist. At fifteen he was teaching harmony. At sixteen he was the conductor of an orchestra in a variety theatre.

Two years later he was musical director of a traveling company in Milton Nobles' play, "The Phœnix," for which he composed the incidental music. Later he had a position in the orchestra with which Offenbach toured the United States. Later he played in a minstrel show. Later still, with a living picture company. He had many other interesting experiences before he was twenty-six. At this age he became the leader of the United States Marine Band. He was leader in this band for twelve years, developing this unimportant organization into one of the best military bands in the world. At one period of his Marine Band leadership, a bill was introduced in Congress to give him a commission as second lieutenant in the army, and if this had gone through Sousa would probably still be the leader of this organization.

In 1892 his fame had become so widespread that he left the Government service, and took the leadership of a band of his own, which was organized by millionaire friends of the popular composer-conductor.

Sousa has written more than 200 compositions. These are the most popular: "Washington Post," "High School Cadets," "Liberty Bell," "Directorate," "King Cotton," "Manhattan Beach," "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

He has also written some comic operas. The best known of these is "El Capitan," written in 1896, starred in by De Wolf Hopper and having as its chief air a march which every boy in America could whistle. Hopper next produced "The Charlatan," a work bordering upon opera comique. "The Bride-Elect" was entirely the work of Sousa, he writing the music and libretto of this opera. His earlier operas were "The Smugglers," written in 1879; "Desiree," brought out in 1885 by the McCaull Opera Co., and "Queen of Hearts," a one-act piece.

In his "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp," an extravaganza, the chief ensemble was worked up from a previous march, "Hands Across the Sea."

Some of Sousa's more serious compositions have won wide commendation. One of the best is a symphonic poem, "The Chariot Race." He has also written descriptive music, "Sheridan's Ride" and "The Last Days of Pompeii."

There is probably no composer in the world who has had a popularity equal to that of Sousa. Though he sold his Washington Post March outright for $15, his "Liberty Bell March" is said to have brought him $15,000. It is found that his music has been sold to 18,000 bands in the United States alone. Sousa's marches have appeared on programmes in all parts of the civilized world. At the Queen's Jubilee, when the Queen stepped forward to begin the grand review of the troops, the combined bands of the household brigade struck up the "Washington Post." When General Miles returned from his visit to European armies he said that he heard Sousa marches everywhere played by these army bands.

Getting-Ready Time

The talking machine trade will, between now and September 1st, be in the position of a lot of runners in a marathon race, waiting for the signal to start. With practically the same certainty that the runners know that the pistol will be fired for the start, so the trade knows that sooner or later the time will come for a new start in the talking machine business. And, when the start is made, the race will be interesting and long. Again comparing it to a marathon race, success will come to those who get an early start and who never let up in their endeavors to win.

It is not to be expected that Dealers can, under any circumstances, do as much business during the summer months as they do in colder weather. The Phonograph is principally a device for indoor amusement, and it is natural that its best season should be when people are more or less confined to the house. The summer affords too many outdoor pleasures and people are now too much interested in them to think of amusements that will keep them indoors.

During the summer, however, a Dealer can do much to get ready for the fall. It is an excellent time to clean house and to determine whether or not a stock of machines and Records is being kept in the best part of the store, and, if not, to build new shelving in a better place. If the location of the department cannot be improved, it is a good time to go over the entire stock, dust it off, dust off the shelving and rearrange the stock in a more attractive manner. It is a good season to make an inventory of the Records out of stock and place an order for shipment at a time when the demand for Records will be more lively. The summer season is a good time to write copy and prepare plans for advertising in local papers. It is a good time to go over mailing lists and make up new ones. Improvements can be made in the show window if it is not already suitable for good displays.

Many other things can also be done, all tending to making ready for fall trade. Notwithstanding the season, many sales of machines and Records can be made by a little extra exertion. While the season is naturally more quiet, don't make the mistake of thinking that no business at all can be done merely because the weather is warm. Thousands of people never give up the idea of owning a Phonograph and oftentimes it is just a little extra urging that gets their money.

Then, too, many people take Phonographs on their summer vacation at the seashore or mountain or woods. A Phonograph is good company in a camping party. It takes the place of all other musical instruments.

Mr. Herbert at Work

Victor Herbert put in three hard days at the Recording Laboratory of the National Phonograph Company on June 14th, 15th and 16th. He came all the way from Lake Placid, where he has a summer home, for the purpose of continuing his work in connection with the Edison Phonograph. He conducted his own orchestra while it made several selections. One of these Records was a selection of the best airs from "Algeria," another was the selection of the airs from "The Red Mill," both of which were written by Mr. Herbert. They will be issued in October and November lists.

Mr. Herbert and his people are getting more familiar with the work of recording and are making rapid strides toward the perfection that Mr. Herbert is aiming to secure. Mr. Herbert will probably fill a similar engagement each month during the summer and in the fall when he returns to the city, he will take a still more active part in the general work of the department.

Don't Delay Qualifying Notices

Jobbers are requested to notify the Agreement Department promptly as to whether or not parties qualify after they receive our acceptance of signed applications; that is, we should be advised if initial order has been shipped and accepted and signed Agreement forwarded to this office. We have found that Jobbers, in a number of cases, have delayed notifying us that applicants have qualified, and in some instances the applicants have refused to accept the initial shipment, or have cancelled the order. Furthermore, there have been a few cases where applicants have not been ready to receive first shipment, and have requested additional time in which to receive the goods. Jobbers will, no doubt, appreciate the importance of this department receiving notice without delay of the qualification of applicants who have been accepted, so that we will know what action to take on other applications that might be received from the same places. It will, therefore, facilitate the work of the Agreement Department very much if Jobbers will comply with above request.

Attention is directed to Sales Department Bulletin No. 32, on page 23, advising the trade that we will continue in our catalogue, Records Nos. 9051, Mariar, by Clarice Vance, and 9556, Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, violin imitation by Edith Helena. Stocks of these two numbers should not be returned for exchange.

About Reproducer Exchange

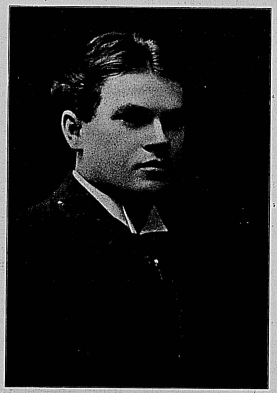
In the Sales Department Bulletin to Jobbers and Dealers, dated May 20, 1909, a reference was made to the discontinuance of the exchange on Reproducers. From the numerous letters received from Jobbers and Dealers, it would appear as if this Reproducer exchange proposition was misunderstood. It referred only to Model B Reproducers. The Model B was the Reproducer in use at the time the Moulded Record and Model C Reproducer were introduced, and in order that owners of the Model B Reproducers might exchange them for the Model C, it was arranged that the old speaker could be returned at a valuation of $2.00 so that a Model C Reproducer could be had upon the return of the Model B and the payment of $3.00 in cash. This exchange proposition has been in effect since the spring of 1908 and many thousands of Model B Reproducers have since been turned in. It is believed that practically all of the old style speakers have now been retired.

From the correspondence received on the subject we are led to believe that some Jobbers and Dealers think we intend to accept the Model C and H Reproducers in exchange for the new combination speaker, known as Model K. This is not so. We intend to continue equipping the Standard, Home, Triumph and higher-priced combination machines with two Reproducers; Model C for use on Standard, and Model H for Amberol Records, instead of supplying a combination Reproducer like the Model K which will be used on the new Fireside machine. All combination attachments (Gem excepted) will contain the present Model H Reproducer.

With this information Jobbers and Dealers will understand that their stock of combination Phonographs and all Attachments are entirely staple with the Reproducers now on the machines and attachments. Dealers should further understand that the owner of a combination Phonograph, wishing a Model K, must purchase it as an extra. No allowance, whatever, can be made for the Model C and H Reproducers now on the machine.

Keep the Cut-Outs

Although the 300 selections printed in the April PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY are to be cut from our active Record Catalogue on August 1st, we do not, ourselves, intend dropping them for some time to come. The demand for practically all of them continues to be active and it does not seem to us wise to take them off the market entirely. Our foreign offices will continue to list fully one-third of the number and we shall be compelled to carry a stock of such numbers to meet their demands. We shall also carry a stock of the remainder and will keep at least one mould of the entire list from which to fill orders after our present stock is exhausted. In other words, we are placing ourselves in a position where the trade cannot say to us, as it has in the past: "Why did you cut out such a selection—one of my best sellers? Can't I get more of them?"



Under the new exchange plan there is no reason why Jobbers and Dealers should return cut-out Records within a given time. All of the cut-out selections will continue in the present and previous editions of the Domestic Record Catalogue and since these catalogues will be in circulation for several months to come, there ought to be a continued demand for the entire list. In fact, the demand ought to be sufficient to clean up the stocks that Jobbers and Dealers may have on hand. We would strongly urge the trade not to hurry to return these cut-out selections, but to keep them a while to meet the demand of the public. If it is found that there is no demand for some of them they can be returned quite as readily then as now.

State Kind Wanted

In ordering Records, whether by Dealers from Jobbers or by Jobbers from us, it is now important that it shall be specified in every case whether Standard, Amberol or Grand Opera is wanted. Some of the Amberol numbers are duplicated in the Standard and Grand Opera list and unless the kind is specified our Order Department will be compelled to return orders and ask for the missing information. It would facilitate our work if Jobbers would write separate orders for each kind, stating the kind at the top of the sheet.

Italian Amberol Records

The trade will notice that we are listing three Italian Amberol Records with the regular lists for September. These are worthy the attention of every Dealer who has a demand for Italian Records. They are not only longer, but they are made by unusually good artists and the selections are such as find the greatest favor among Italian speaking people. They are high-class Records in every respect and should be in large demand.

RICCARDO MARTIN

The noted American Tenor, who has made a series of Grand Opera Records for the Edison Phonograph.

Amberol Grand Opera Records Coming

Among the many new things that the National Phonograph Company have in store for the trade and the public is a series of Amberol Records of grand opera music made by artists of the first rank. No time has been set for the issuance of these Records but they will not be put out before the fall at the earliest. Certain singers whose Records are now on the market cannot be had by us because of the existence of exclusive contracts. But just as these singers succeeded the stars of a previous day, so will the present favorites be succeeded by new stars and from the latter will the National Phonograph Company build up a catalogue of grand opera Amberol Records. Only a few years ago the Metropolitan Opera House controlled all of the grand opera stars known to this country and had a virtual monopoly of grand opera, in the East at least. But Oscar Hammerstein took up grand opera, found and developed new stars and the performances of grand opera at the Manhattan Opera House in the past two seasons have equalled in quality and excelled in novelty those at the older playhouse. Mr. Hammerstein could not get the artists bound to his competitor by exclusive contracts, but he found others as good and he has made an unquestioned success of grand opera. By a course much the same as that pursued by Mr. Hammerstein, the National Phonograph Company will build up a catalogue of grand opera music second to none.

A notable beginning has been made in securing Riccardo Martin to make a number of Amberol Records. Mr. Martin has a remarkably fine tenor voice, but little inferior to the famous Caruso. On several occasions last season he sang at the Metropolitan Opera House in place of Caruso and in the great Italian's favorite roles, and was hailed by the press and the public as Caruso's coming rival if not his successor as a solo tenor. His special hits have been made in "Tosca" and "Il Trovatore." Young as he is—being still but thirty—he has a brilliant career before him. Although he is a native of Louisville, Ky., so much of his life has been spent abroad that he speaks his mother-tongue with an accent. Curiously enough Mr. Martin has never had occasion to sing in English.

Mr. Martin has studied in Paris with Sbriglia, Monsieur and Madame Escalais and Jean de Reszke; in Milan with Franklin Cannone, and in Florence with Maestro Lombardi. Caruso, himself, has given him instruction and much valuable advice. Caruso, together with Scotti, advised Martin to study with Lombardi. He recently sailed to Europe to continue his studies under the latter, and is expected to divide Caruso's popularity at the Metropolitan Opera House next season.

All Business Now Done at Orange

For the better concentration of business, we have removed the Sales and Agreement Departments from our New York Office at 10 Fifth Avenue to the main office at Orange, N. J. For some time, part of the work of both of these departments has been conducted at New York and Orange, a separation at many times found to be inconvenient. With the new change, all of the work of both departments will be done at Orange. All correspondence of the company should hereafter be addressed to Orange, whether for the Sales, Credit, Legal, Agreement or Advertising Departments, or for any matters pertaining to the factory or its mechanical departments.

The New York Office will be continued and will be in charge of Walter Stevens, Manager of our Foreign Department. This department will be continued at 10 Fifth Avenue, together with the Bates Manufacturing Company, selling the Bates and Wizard Hand Numbering Machines, which are also Edison Products. We realize that in making this change we are making it a little more inconvenient for Jobbers and Dealers to meet the officials of our company, but we hope that the change will not deter the trade from coming to Orange. We are as anxious as ever to meet men connected with the business, and would regret it if any of them found the trip to Orange inconvenient. Orange is but forty-five minutes away from Sixth Avenue and 23rd Street, by the Hudson Tunnel and the D., L. & W. R. R., and the entire trip from any part of New York City to the factory can easily be made in an hour.

Going Some

T. H. O'Connor, an Edison Dealer at Seneca Falls, N. Y., told our salesman who called upon him recently, that he had disposed of nine outfits in sixteen days!

Rather enterprising for a small town, isn't it?

Our salesman adds in his report: "Mr. O'Connor is much pleased with the line. He is negotiating for a new location where he can secure a better display and representation of the goods. He has all confidence in the future of the Phonograph business."

Selling the Goods

Why July is a Good Month

There are twelve good months for the Phonograph business—July and eleven others.

That is one way to look at it.

The other way is to consider that there is only just one month as far as you are concerned, and that is next month, which happens to be July.

The only way to make a Phonograph business grow is to consider every opportunity.

Do not divide your year into dull months and busy months, and do nothing in the dull months. Consider every month a possible good month, and then proceed to make it so.

To go back to July:

July is the mid-summer month.

It is the month when people sit around on porches, in the dark, and smoke or chat, and friends drop in.

It is too hot to read, and a light attracts moths. The theatres are closed.

What people want is a nice, cool amuser that can sit around on the porch and perform in the dark.

It ought to be the star month for the Edison Phonograph.

It would be a star month if you worked as hard in July as you do in December.

While July is the month for your customers to sit around on the porch and keep cool, it is not a month for you to sit around and keep cool—that is, if you wish to get all the profit out of your business that you can.

Make a special July effort on possible Phonograph buyers.

Put some of these thoughts in your window. Follow up your customers with the idea that the one and only month they should own a Phonograph is July.

August and the rest of the months will take care of themselves.

Twelve good months would make a nice year's business, and the first month out of the twelve that you have to work on is July.

Raising the Musical Standard

You know just as well as we do that all kinds of people like the Phonograph.

There are a lot of people who prefer music and entertainment of the lightest and even trashier character. You have had big sales on Records of this kind, but that is no reason why the Phonograph should not appeal to every discriminating lover of music.

Its good music is just as good as any good music, but in order that the standard of music as applied by the Edison Records shall be the very best, we have made an arrangement with Victor Herbert to become a musical supervisor.

Victor Herbert will advise us about all of the music that should be selected with care.

He will supervise the making of the Records and will hear the master Records afterwards and decide whether they are good enough from a musical point of view.

This applies not only to the music he has written himself and the music which his own orchestra will play; it applies also to other good music which should be adapted to the Edison Records with intelligent supervision. That intelligent supervision Victor Herbert is to supply.

In one way he becomes a very important addition to our Record-making talent, and in another way he becomes our adviser and helper in making Edison Phonograph music second to none.

Victor Herbert himself believes that the kind of music that you hear from the average wandering band is not good enough; that a Phonograph can supply better music than the average person can get in any other way. He believes this implicitly.

He was willing to become associated with the Edison Phonograph because he believes the Edison Phonograph is the most perfect sound-reproducing machine that has yet been made.

Hence you will have the combination of Mr. Edison's genius as expressed in the Phonograph, his invention as expressed in the Amberol Record and Victor Herbert's acknowledged leadership in music, all combined in one perfect amusement-making machine.

Victor Herbert is easily America's leading musician. His orchestra, which he has trained and developed himself, is one of the very best. He is the author of a great many kinds of music, all of which has been exceedingly popular—both operas and march and dance music.

He is a better judge of what the people like than any other leader on account of the immense popular success of his own work as a conductor.

No better man or one more logically fitted for this position could be found.

You are not getting the advantage of this step which we have taken, as much in your interest as ours, if you do not sell more Records on account of it.

Getting at the $22.00 Man

You have probably met, in the course of conducting a Phonograph business, a great many men who have just $22.00 to spend for a Phonograph.

By this we mean that a great many people find the Gem not good enough for their purpose, and the $30.00 price of the Standard a little too high.

In the Fireside we have made a Phonograph almost as good as the Standard with a price almost as low as the Gem.

You ought to sell a lot of this number.

It is in every respect a first-class Phonograph.

It plays both the Standard and the Amberol Records.

It has a good, long-running spring, an attractive horn, and a nickel-plated horn support.

It ought easily to be possible to make at least five sales on the Fireside where before you have made two on the Standard.

Every time you go down in the price of a desirable article, you greatly widen your possible number of purchasers.

There ought to be a million people who did not buy the Standard because the price was too high for them, who can afford to buy the Fireside. Some of these people live in your town. You know them. They come into your store. Show them the new member of the Edison Phonograph family and make a sale.

Turn Your Store Inside Out

You have got the materials for a very good business inside your store, but the people do not know it.

The right kind of advertising is turning your store inside out. It is putting the facts about your goods in possession of the people who now go by uninterested.

There is not a Dealer in the business who could not sell more Phonographs if he would.

Not one-tenth the people who ought to own Phonographs have them. At least half of that one-tenth would buy them if they knew more about them. Of the other half you might get some of them by persistent effort. But the easy half is the half that can be reached by a little intelligent, persistent advertising.

Our advertising is not enough. We go as far as we can. We are spending more money advertising Phonographs than any other maker is spending.

We are reaching millions of people a great many times, but we do not reach them often enough. It requires your effort as well as ours.

There are a great many ways to advertise Edison Phonographs and Edison Standard and Amberol Records. For some of these ways we supply the material. For the others you have to pay yourself.

The best advertising is that for which you pay yourself.

Space in newspapers comes first; space in street cars second; window displays third; printed matter sent to the address of a customer fourth.

You certainly ought to be using at least one of these ways, and it is better if you are using all of them.

No advertising is so absolutely bad that it is all lost, but the better advertising is, the more results it brings.

Never forget that it is advertising that has made the Edison Phonograph business.

The desire for a Phonograph is not a natural one like the desire for food, warmth and shelter. It is an artificial one. It has to be created by suggestion.

Advertising supplied that suggestion. Advertising has made the Phonograph in the home almost as standard as the piano. More advertising will accomplish more.

Your advertising should begin where ours leaves off. Take a piece of paper and a pencil and calculate just how many homes there are in your town or in your territory. Make an estimate of how many of these homes have Phonographs. Deduct ten per cent. from the remainder to cover those that would not buy a Phonograph by reason of being superior to it or being too poor to pay for it. The remainder is your possible trade. You cannot get it all to-day nor yet to-morrow, but you can get a good deal of it.

Persistent advertising is the way.

This MONTHLY shows you every month ways in which you can utilize the advertising we furnish you. Put yourself behind this advertising, your personality, your acquaintance with people, your knowledge of business conditions in your town, your knowledge of the Edison Phonograph proposition, and you will sell more Phonographs and more Records.

This is not the hot-air talk of a man who sits in the office and has not had any experience. It is the opinion of a man who has sold Phonographs and who knows just how much further room there is for development in this business.

Every bit of development must come through Dealers like you. The more you get of it, and the quicker you get it, the bigger your share of profits.

There is no way we can keep you from getting these profits. They will wait there until you get them, but there is no reason why you should not be spending today the money that you would otherwise earn next year.

New Foreign Record Catalogues

Sales Department Bulletin No. 51, printed in full on pages 22 and 23, gives considerable information about a series of five different catalogues of Records either made in foreign countries or in foreign languages. Copies of these catalogues have been mailed to the entire trade. We strongly urge every Dealer to make a careful study of the Records listed in these catalogues. More than three-fourths of the total are now being put out for the first time in this country. They include a lot of selections for which there has been an active demand in the past, but which we have not been able to list until now because the original moulds were made and held in other countries. Now that all Edison Records are being made at the Orange, N. J., factory, it has become possible to supply the trade with every Edison Record made. We will also be in a position to fill orders for new lists as they are put out in other countries.

In placing these Records at the command of the trade, we have no desire to compel Jobbers and Dealers to carry any more of the stock than they can re-sell to advantage. We expect no one to carry the entire British list, the entire German list, the entire French list, nor any of the Spanish or miscellaneous languages unless it is to his advantage to do so.

Our position is this: We have the moulds and Records in stock, here are the catalogues, order such Records as you can sell, but do not feel obligated to carry stock simply because we have issued the catalogues. We, ourselves, don't know what the demand will be for the Records in these catalogues and this can only be determined after they have been out some time and Jobbers and Dealers have had an opportunity to learn for themselves just which are the best selling selections.

The catalogues we have printed are intended for but little more than trade use. They cannot be supplied for miscellaneous distribution. The supply of catalogues, too, must bear some relation to the quantity of Records ordered. We cannot furnish 1,000 catalogues on an order for ten Records.

Mr. Dyer on the Copyright Law

Frank L. Dyer, President of the National Phonograph Co., wrote the following opinion on the new copyright law at the request of the Talking Machine World, in which it was printed on June 15th:

Regarding the attitude of the National Phonograph Co. on the subject of the new copyright law, which goes into effect July 1, I will say that so long as the law remains on the statute books it will, of course, be observed in the letter.

"There are several features of the law which strike me as being very objectionable, entirely aside from its general provisions: If we manufacture a copyright Record and put it in our bins and the bins burn down, we still have to pay the royalty. If we sell ten copyright Records to the trade and the Records are later returned to us as 'cut-outs' and full credit is allowed for them, we still have to pay the royalty on the Records, which were practically never sold. If we manufacture a copyright Record and it is shipped to China, we still pay the royalty, although that particular Record may never be played in this country and no copyright law exists in the country where it would be used.

"These features of the law are all so very unfair that I have no doubt that eventually they will be remedied; but, as I have said, the law is here and we must observe it.

Personals

Frank L. Dyer, President of the National Phonograph Company, will sail for Europe on July 20th to join his family, who went abroad on June 12th. He will be gone two months.

F. K. Dolbier and E. H. Philips, of the National Phonograph Company, spent the week of June 14th-19th at the Annual Convention of the National Credit Association in Philadelphia.

Among the visitors at our Foreign Department, 10 Fifth Avenue, New York, during June was E. Davis, of the E. Davis Co., Edison Jobbers at Sydney, New South Wales.

C. B. Haynes & Co., Edison Jobbers at Richmond, Va., have dissolved partnership. Warren V. Youmans retires and Mr. Haynes will continue the business under the old name and at the same location.

C. L. Buckingham, counsel for the National Phonograph Co., in the suit of the New York Phonograph Co., died June 7th at his home in New York, from cirrhosis of the liver, aged fifty-six years.

Some of the New Artists Who Are Making Edison Records

Miss Ray Cox

Miss Ray Cox, whose first Edison Record appears in the September list, is another well-known figure in vaudeville. She has reproduced on our Record the characteristic study called

"The Base-Ball Girl," which has been given by her in all the best vaudeville theatres throughout the country and which has won for her a distinct position in the vaudeville world. She is the only artist who has successfully portrayed the enthusiasm, with the characteristic contradictions, of the girl "fan." This matter has never before been made on a talking machine Record and we have an exclusive arrangement with Miss Cox by which it will not be reproduced on any other cylinder Record.

Pete Murray

Pete Murray, who makes his bow to the Edison public in the September list, has appeared in vaudeville, but his special work is taking part in club entertainments. In this capacity, he has sung in many of the best athletic, social and boating clubs of the East. He has a fine baritone voice, which is not unlike that of Billy Murray. In fact, it is so similar that many Phonograph owners will think that the latter is singing and that the name of Pete Murray is fictitious, which is not the case, however. Pete Murray has his own individuality as may be seen by the accompanying picture. We think that Mr. Murray will become as popular as his namesake and that his Records will be a feature of Edison lists.

Wanted—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. EDISON BUSINESS PHONOGRAPH CO.

ORANGE, N. J.

The Fireside

The expressions of opinion from the trade on the new Fireside Machine have been numerous and uniformly approbatory. That it will fill nicely the gap left open by the increase in the price of the Standard Outfit when the Combination Attachment was added is universally recognized. The price will place it on about a par with the two-minute type of Standard which, up to listing of the Amberol Record and new machines, was by far our largest seller. We have long realized the necessity for a machine like the Fireside—our only regret now being that because of increased manufacturing expense the list price could not be made $20.00. Even at $22.00 in the United States and $28.60 in Canada it will prove sufficiently alluring to make it difficult for the average purchaser to pass by, because of the cost.

With its handsome cabinet, colored horn, new model "K" Reproducer, and Combination Attachment it will prove a boon indeed to small and large Dealers alike. Admittedly it is the coming machine for the mail-order business.

Talk "Fireside." It's something new, and that feature of itself always stimulates business. Get one or two or more of the machines in your stock and "boost" them.

Don't forget to point out the advantages of the new Model "K" Reproducer, and the maroon-colored sectional horn.

Printed Matter

A bulletin issued to Jobbers about June 15th announced that price cards, Form 1457, for the Fireside machine, were ready for distribution. Some Jobbers have ordered and received their allotments. If you want one or two for display purposes in connection with the new outfit, ask your Jobber for them.

By the time this issue of the MONTHLY reaches the trade, we hope to have in the possession of all Jobbers a supply of two new folders, Forms 1595 and 1615. The first is a comprehensive presentation of the superiority of Amberol Records over all others, and a comparison of the playing length of Amberol and Standard Records.

The latter form covers the Fireside outfit and Gem Combination Attachment, both announced last month for sale on July first. The folders are printed in two colors, red and black, and were made the usual envelope size for convenience in enclosing. Get a supply of each to boost the sale of what will be, without question, the most popular type of Edison machine before long.

With Jobbers' stock orders for July Records we included a supply of the usual placards, this one advertising Record No. 156, "The Tough Kid on the Right Field Fence," by Digby Bell. One of these cards should be in your show window or on display somewhere in your store.

Beginning with the new lists for August, the Monthly Bulletin of new Records will show half-tone photographs of one or more of the new artists who are making Edison Records. The August Bulletin will be illustrated with pictures of Albert Spalding, the young American violinist, and Nat M. Wills, the "King of Tramps." We believe that this new treatment of the Bulletin will be appreciated by the trade and make it a more attractive advertising form than ever before. It is more than ever worth a frame into which each new issue can be placed as fast as it appears. Two dollars ought to pay for a durable and good-looking frame with glass. We doubt if a better investment of this amount could be made.

A Good Record Placard

We show below a greatly reduced reproduction of a hanger that ought to have a prominent place in the store of every Dealer carrying a full list of Edison Records. Jobbers are being furnished with a supply and are either now or will shortly be in a position to supply them to Dealers. Every Dealer carrying the full line ought to get one of these hangers, put it in a suitable frame and display it where the public can see it. To be able to say that he carries the full list is a good advertising point for any Dealer, and he ought to be quick to take advantage of every opportunity to make the fact known. This hanger is printed on heavy paper, because of the difficulty of getting it distributed when printed on card. Therefore, it needs a frame to give it the best treatment.

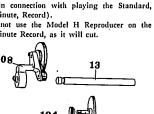
Combination Attachment for the Edison Gem Phonograph

The Combination Attachment for Edison Gem Phonograph consists of the following:—



A longer back rod (13) to replace the old one;

Change-gear-bracket (108), with gears assembled;

New intermediate gear-stud, with intermediate gear assembled;

Model H Reproducer, which is to be used in connection with the four-minute, Amberol, Record only. (The Model C Reproducer is to be used in connection with playing the Standard, two-minute, Record).

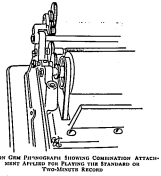
Do not use the Model H Reproducer on the two-minute Record, as it will cut.

NEW ATTACHMENT PARTS FOR EDISON GEM PHONOGRAPH

To put on the attachment, proceed as follows:

Replace old back rod with new one.

In fastening set-screw place the back rod and fasten it so that the gear-bracket (108) will come up close to the lug, but will swing freely.

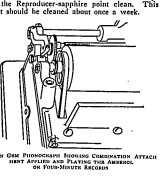


Next take off cylinder and take out intermediate gear-stud and gear, and replace with new one.

It will be necessary to take off knurled nut (104), put stud (77) in place and put nut back again. In order to get this nut tight, hold stud by pressing point of finger against head on gear-side. (Set screw that fastens the old stud can be left off.)

Next replace cylinder on shaft.

To play the two-minute Record, the change-gear-bracket (108) is to be swung upwards, out of the way, and the intermediate gear-stud (77) is to be pulled to the left, so as to engage with the cylinder and feed-screw-gear.



To play the four-minute Record, the intermediate gear-stud (77) is to be pushed towards the right, so as to disengage the intermediate gear from the cylinder gear, and change-gear-bracket is swung over so as to engage with the cylinder and feed-screw-gear. (It is not necessary to tighten change-gear-bracket on back rod.) The action of the gears keeps the gears in mesh. Then put in Model H Reproducer, and the machine is ready to play the Amberol Record. The changing of gearing is to be made while the motor is running.

With every combination attachment we furnish a screw-driver; also a small brush for keeping the Reproducer-sapphire point clean. This point should be cleaned about once a week.

New Argentine Records

The National Phonograph Co. has made another series of first-class Records in the Spanish language, both "Standard" (two-minute) and "Amberol" (four-minute). This series comprises some of the best songs of the Argentine and Uruguay Republics. Alfredo Gobbi, baritone, and Mrs. Gobbi, soprano, were brought to New York at large expense for the purpose of recording a number of selections. Mr. and Mrs. Gobbi are acknowledged to be the best singers of popular songs in those countries. The list of Records comprises baritone and soprano duets, baritone solos, soprano solos, and also national hymns of Argentine and Uruguay, sung by a mixed chorus under Mr. Gobbi's direction. These Records are to be immediately placed on sale both in this and foreign countries. All the selections are accompanied by orchestra, with the exception of sixteen baritone solos, which have guitar accompaniment.

The selections recorded are high class in every respect and include the very best of Mr. and Mrs. Gobbi's repertory, which is very large and varied. Mr. and Mrs. Gobbi have sung selections from the latest musical plays of those countries, and also a large number of popular songs typical of a quaint and picturesque type of Argentine and Uruguay, the gaucho. The gaucho is daring and very brave, and corresponds with the cow-boy of our Western country, but is even more picturesque. He is very musical, and no gaucho outfit is complete without a guitar, as this is just as necessary to him as his horse.

Mr. Gobbi is not a gaucho. He is a man of refinement, an intense lover of the customs and traditions of his country, and, owing to this, he has made a specialty of singing the gaucho songs, rendering them in costume. Besides, he takes the part of first baritone in the typical zarzuelas (light operas) of Spanish countries. His wife coöperates with him as the first light soprano. They have sung in the principal theatres of Argentine, Uruguay, Spain, Brazil, Paraguay, Chili, and also in Paris. They will now go to Italy, under contract to sing in several theatres there. Their last engagement was at the Teatro Nacional (National Theatre) of Buenos Aires, Argentine, at the head of a company of one hundred people.

As is the case with all other Edison foreign Records, these are intended for Spanish-speaking countries, but they will shortly be placed on sale in this country.

The Phonogram

The August issue of the Phonogram, now being shipped to Jobbers with their orders for August Records, will comprise twenty pages, an increase of four pages over any previous issue. To add these pages represents an increase of several hundred dollars in the monthly cost, but no change will be made in the charge being made to the trade for this useful little publication. We reserve the right to print sixteen or twenty pages each issue as circumstances make necessary, but it is expected that twenty pages will be the standard. In increasing the number of pages it is expected to add new features that will make it even more of a business getter than at present. For the benefit of Dealers not familiar with the cost of the Phonogram we append the following:

ORDERED THROUGH JOBBERS.

Blank, per 1,000 copies	$2.50
Imprinted, 500 copies, quantities you rate	1.50
Imprinted, 1,000 copies	2.75

No orders filled for less than 500 copies requiring imprints, and all imprinting orders must be for multiples of 500.

Jobbers will be glad to supply Dealers on the above basis.

BY MAIL.

Single copies, per year	$ 20
Five copies to one address, per year	.40
Twenty-five copies to one address, per year	1.50
Fifty copies to one address, per year	2.50

Unless they have open accounts on our books, Dealers ordering Phonograms sent by mail are requested to send cash or stamps with their orders. The amounts are too small to handle in any other way. Phonograms must be sold by the Jobber to his Dealers at the prices quoted above; any reduction of these prices will be considered as a violation of contract.

List of Interchangeable Motor Parts

We recently had a request from an Edison Dealer for a list of Interchangeable Motor Parts. Since the information may be of interest to the other enterprising Dealers who carry a stock of repair and supply parts it is reprinted below.

A word of explanation concerning it may not be amiss. It is quite likely that many Jobbers and Dealers are at present carrying four separate stocks of the Governor Spring Screw, designating them as numbers 1110, 1626, 2118 and 2828 for the Gem, Standard, Home and Triumph machines respectively. Since the screw is identically the same for each of the four types it follows that one stock bearing all four numbers is quite sufficient. The same remarks apply to the various other items on the list.

The Governor Carrier, Governor Carrier Set Screw, Speed Limit Collar and Speed Limit Collar Screw are not listed in the last Catalogue of Parts, but are here shown as numbers 2637, 2639, 1151 and 1152 respectively.

The Old Customer an Asset

Always bear in mind that an old customer is every bit as valuable to your store as a new one, and while you keep on expensively campaigning for additions you can do so successfully only by retaining what you have.

The store that takes good care of regular customers sends them out as advertisers and missionaries. They feel themselves so well treated that they gladly advise their friends to share the benefits of your good storekeeping.

That's why you must insist on a standard of ready exchanges.

That's why you should have clerks who can remember names and faces.

That's why you should have comfortable chairs and a rest-room.

That's why you and your clerks must always tell the exact truth about your goods and avoid the faintest suspicion of misrepresentation.

That's why you must insist on a standard of quality about your goods.

That's why your advertising is productive; because it rallies your old customers, while fishing for new ones, who come the more readily upon the advice of those who already know you.—Talking Machine World.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

Nicholas F. Greisch, Carry, Pa.—I send you a clipping which appeared in a recent issue of the Carry Evening Post. (The clipping reads as follows: A novel advertising scheme has been instituted by Mr. Greisch, proprietor of the Phonograph shop on East Main Street. A post which has been erected in front of the store has two phonograph horns, pointing both up and down the street, these are connected with a large machine inside and when started, the music carries for a long distance both up and down the street. This is quite a new scheme and has attracted quite a bit of attension and it is a puzzle to many where the music comes from.) I have a two-inch iron pipe running down from the inside of my store, under the sidewalk, and up through the hollow post. This pipe is 37 feet long. One end I have tapered down to allow for the horn connection. As stated in the newspaper clipping the music from the Phonograph can be heard five or six blocks.

One of our salesmen had occasion recently to call on James M. Wheat, an aggressive Edison Dealer at 2093 K Street, Sacramento, Cal. The first thing our salesman noticed upon entering the store was that Mr. Wheat carried a good line of Edison Machines, and over 2,000 Records in stock. It developed later that he had made $1,600 during his six months as an Edison Dealer. Whatever may be the reason for his success with our line, he is to be complimented for it. There is nothing in his experience which cannot be duplicated by hundreds of other Dealers the country over. The field is just as large to-day as it ever was, the profits from sales just as great. True, times are not as favorable as they have been and will be again, but nevertheless the business is to be had. Let every Dealer play over Record No. 9388 and apply the lesson it teaches.

L. D. Daniel, Dallas, Oregon.—I noticed an item in the May Edison Phonograph Monthly of a Dealer in a town of 1,500 population selling twenty-five Phonographs. I live in a town of 2,000 population and when I started in selling Phonographs there was not an Edison machine in the town. Since then I have sold 122 machines and the prospects were never better than now for increased business. I have a team and bugyy and when I can interest a party at all I take a machine and a choice collection of Records, show them how to manage the machine and leave it and go back in a day or so. It is seldom that I bring it away with me on the second call.

The Moiretta Phonograph Co., J. W. McCallum, Manager, Moiretta, O.—When you can approach as near perfection in reproducing the natural human voice as is the case of "Amberol Record No. 136" beg to say that you need fear no competition—Good! Well, I should say so—It is simply perfection itself and it is to be hoped that this is only one of many Records we may get from such artists as Miss Cameron. Anybody that can play an Amberol Record will buy this unless he is a fool or cynic.

Hyman Fried, Flemingsburg, Ky.—I hand you herewith letter from individual living in a town fifty miles from this place. I sold him a Phonograph on the installment plan. I have been sending out machines on free trial and haven't had up to this time one return. My business has increased fifty per cent. since I began this practice and I think that all other Dealers should take it up for their own good.

J. G. Lewis Music House, Manchester, Ia.—We send herewith a photograph of our stockroom here. We will operate six stores by August 1st, 1909. Will issue 200,000 pieces of advertising matter by that time. Have four men on the road. Sold 90 machines during January, 1909; 65 during February, 88 during March, 68 during April, 42 during May, including Triumphs and Idelias.

Messrs. Cowles & English, Edison Dealers at Red Bluff, Cal., are using a series of three good follow-up letters to secure new customers. They first approach Phonograph owners with this letter:

"Since you purchased your Phonograph, you have undoubtedly entertained many friends at your home with it's cheerful music and funny recitals.

Didn't some of your friends express the wish that they had a Phonograph, also? We feel sure that they did, and that if the matter was brought to their attention by a Dealer, they might buy one and enjoy it as you do yours. Will you not favor us by writing their names and address on the enclosed gold point card? Write as many as you can think of. We will do the rest."

To each of the people who have been entertained by the Phonograph according to the owners' letters this note is sent:

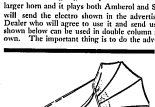
"We have heard that you were pleasantly entertained recently by the cheerful music and funny stories of an Edison Phonograph.

You enjoyed it, didn't you? We are sure you did. Now wouldn't you like to own one also, with which to entertain your home people and your friends, when they call?

We are sending you a booklet, telling you about the Phonograph. We sell them at the prices marked; you may pay cash or, if you prefer, you may pay a little each week or monthly payments.

Any further information that you may desire will be cheerfully furnished upon request."

If, after a reasonable length of time has elapsed, no reply is received, the following reminder is mailed:

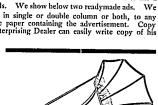


"We recently wrote you regarding our Phonographs, and sent you a catalog. Perhaps you have not yet been able to accept our invitation to call at our store to hear some Records.

Do not give up the idea of owning one of these entertainers, however. It will sing to you Grand Opera or popular songs; tell you funny stories; reproduce the music of all kinds of instruments or give you a brass band concert.

The cost is but little; the Phonograph will repay you for your investment over and over again. Make up your mind to own a Phonograph before you are a week older. We will be glad to have you call or write us in regard to an outfit."

Ready Made Ads for the Fireside Phonograph



It is going to pay well to advertise and push the new Fireside Phonograph. Every Dealer who was in business when the Standard machine sold at $20 will remember what a great seller it was at that price. The Fireside is going to duplicate the success of the $20 Standard. It is a better machine for it has a larger horn and it plays both Amberol and Standard Records. We show below two readymade ads. We will send the electro shown in the advertisement, either in single or double column or both, to any Dealer who will agree to use it and send us a copy of the paper containing the advertisement. Copy shown below can be used in double column form or any enterprising Dealer can easily write copy of his own. The important thing is to do the advertising.

Advance List

Of Edison Standard and Edison Amberol Records for August, 1909

THE Standard and Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before August 24th, 1909, allthings being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on August 23d. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on August 24th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after August 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before August 24th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on August 23d, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for August Records on or before July 15th. Dealers should place August orders with Jobbers before July 30th to insure prompt shipment when Jobbers' stock is received.

Two-Minute Selections

10197 Mazurka from Coppelia — National (London) Military Band

One of the favorite numbers from the ballet "Coppelia" by the celebrated French composer, Leo Delibes. This Record is made by the National Military Band of London and it clearly shows that the musical organizations on this side of the water have no monopoly in their ability to produce good band selections.

10198 Lena from Germany — Josie Sadler

Another vaudeville specialty by this clever singer in German dialect. Miss Sadler has "caught on" and bids fair to be one of our most popular artists.

10199 Just a Little Word Called "Welcome" — Byron G. Harlan

A pretty love ballad whose burden is a promise made amid rustic environments, with all the accompanying romantic effects of honeysuckle, kutydids, setting sun, etc. The verse is unusually good, the sentiment pure and sweet, and the rendition, as may be expected, in Mr. Harlan's best style. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, J. Fred Helf; words, C. M. Denison; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York City.

10200 Scotch Reels — Alexander Prince

A concertina solo, with piano accompaniment, introducing a medley of Scotch reels that are delightfully reminiscent of the land of the thistle. All the best known reels are included in it, the different melodies being carefully interwoven. Mr. Prince is one of our British artists and is justly celebrated for his skill with the concertina.

10201 I Love My Wife, But Oh You Kid! — Edward M. Favor

Because it is built around an unusual slang phrase, is written by one of the best writers of popular music and has a catchy air and chorus, this comic song has caught on like wild fire and is already known throughout the entire country. The words are descriptive of the man who loved his wife but who couldn't help expressing his admiration for another girl. Mr. Favor has outdone himself in his rendition of the song. Music, Harry Von Tilzer; words, Jimmy Lucas; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York.

10202 I'm Awful Glad I Met You — Ada Jones & Billy Murray

A serio-comic song with a particularly catchy air, expressing the mutual satisfaction of two lovers with each other's perfections and their complete understanding of the signs and language of love, which previous to their meeting had been to each a source of mystery. Miss Jones and Mr. Murray sing the duet most pleasingly. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, George W. Meyer; words, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

10203 I'm Tired of Living Without You — Will Oakland

The plaint of a heartbroken lover who parted from his divinity and is bemoaning his sad fate and impatiently counting the days that separate them. Written by the same composers as "If You Were Mine" (our Record No. 10145). Mr. Oakland's sweet, sympathetic voice may always be depended upon to give to songs of this description the necessary warmth of expression. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Kerry Mills; words, Edward Rose; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

10204 Grand Entry March — Albert Benzler

A xylophone solo of an excellent composition that is admirably fitted for solo work on the xylophone. Admirers of Mr. Benzler's solo work on this instrument need not be told that it is splendidly played. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer and publisher, King Kollins, Chicago.

10205 Whistle and I'll Wait for You — Ada Jones

"Bill Brown" has "thrown down" his "gal" who, after a week's separation can't endure his silence stay longer. She sues for reinstatement in his affections, implorting him to let her be his "little turtle dove" again. Billy's heart melts and his answering whistle is heard to good effect in the chorus. Miss Jones is exceptionally clever with songs of the serio-comic type and this Record is fully up to her usual high standard. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Geo. W. Meyer; words, Earle C. Jones; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

10206 Why Do You Wait? — Anthony & Harrison

It is rather surprising that this well-known sacred song has not before been listed in the Edison catalogue. Its widespread popularity among lovers of sacred music entitled it to a representation long ago. Still, it will be no less acceptable now, for Anthony & Harrison have given the selection an artistic rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, George F. Root.

10207 They All Take Off Their Hats to Mr. Murphy — Edward Meeker

A comic song of the "Harrigan" and "Sullivan" description, set to a rollicking air and sung as only Mr. Meeker can sing songs of this kind. The song itself recites the many accomplishments and achievements of Mr. Murphy, chief among the latter being the fact that he gave to the world the vegetable that is often jocularly designated by his name. The song is genuinely funny and is bound to be popular. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Nat D. Ayer; words, A. Seymour Brown; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10208 Frozen Bill — New York Military Band

A characteristic rag-time composition by the celebrated bandmaster, Arthur Pryor, and one that he is featuring at his concerts during the present season. Mr. Pryor is quite as clever in this composition as he has been in those already produced by him. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

10209 I Played My Concertina — Arthur Osmond

Here's a song by another of our English artists that is full of laughable situations and interspersed with selections on the concertina. The song relates the experiences of a draft chap whose faithful companion is his concertina, to the playing of which he has recourse in every extremity when in doubt as to the proper thing to do. Notably is this the case when his wife falls overboard and again when his clothes are stolen while bathing in the surf. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music by Mayo.

10210 Oh! You Loving Gal! — Collins & Harlan

A comic song of the kind that seems to have been made to order for these noted entertainers—a typical Collins and Harlan coon duet, set to a fetching tune with a pleasing orchestra accompaniment. The Record looks to us like a sure winner. Music, George W. Meyer; words, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Co., New York.

10211 Parody on There Never Was a Girl Like You — Nat M. Wills

Mr. Wills' success is due as much to his funny parodies as to his original songs. This is his second parody for our Records (first, No. 10178). It describes the consternation on shipboard caused by one "Heinie Smith" who attempts to smuggle limburger cheese across in a coffin supposed to contain the remains of his darling Lou. You can guess what they did to Heinie, can't you? Orchestra accompaniment.

10212 Napanee — American Symphony Orchestra

A well written characteristic Indian novelty finely played by the American Symphony Orchestra. Composer, W. R. Williams; publisher, Will Rossiter, Chicago.

10213 Take Me Up With You Dearie — Billy Murray & Chorus

Now come songs of the airship. This is one of the first to be produced, and it will, in consequence, attract more than ordinary attention. It is a story of a wedding in the clouds, with no one on board but the pastor and the loving couple. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Albert Von Tilzer; words, Junie McCree; publishers, The York Music Co., New York.

10214 Uncle Josh at a Camp-meeting — Cal Stewart

Like all of the Uncle Josh Records, their cleverness is best appreciated when heard. Get the Record and enjoy the fun to your heart's content.

10215 'Liza — Peerless Quartette

A coon song by the composer of some very popular melodies. It is rendered by a quartette unaccompanied, whose voices blend in sweetest harmony, producing a Record that will be a valuable addition to every collection. This Record should prove an exceptionally good seller. Music, Egbert Van Alstyne; words, Harry Williams; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10216 Salute to Mexico — United States Marine Band

A spirited march full of inspiring strains and military dash and swing. The rendition is of the superior kind that has characterized the previous Records made by this famous organization. Composer, T. P. Brooke.

Amberol Selections

195 Selections from "Mlle. Modiste" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This selection introduces to the Phonograph public the world renowned composer and leader, Victor Herbert, and his famous orchestra of skilled musicians. For his initial Record he has selected several numbers from one of his most popular operettes, "Mlle. Modiste," which was specially written for the celebrated prima donna, Fritzi Scheff, and has proved to be one of her most successful musical plays. The selection contains the following numbers—"Charity Bazaar," "Ze English Language," "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," "I Want What I Want When I Want It," "When the Cat's Away," and "The Mascot of the Troop." The fact that Mr. Herbert is one of our greatest living musicians, the character of his compositions and the brilliancy of their interpretation under his leadership will undoubtedly awaken immediate interest among lovers of high-class music so that an unprecedented sale of these Records is expected. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

196 The Baseball Girl — Miss Ray Cox

Miss Ray Cox makes her bow as an Edison entertainer with an imitation of a baseball "fan" who accompanies her best fellow to the game. It is a monologue that has earned her a deservedly enviable reputation with the theatre-going public, for it is really a marvelous portrayal of the conflicting emotions, the startling inconsistencies, the changing moods and opinions that mark the game's "fan." It is a scream from start to finish—from the moment she takes exception to the umpire's voice (which she characterizes as "an awful thing") through succeeding expostulations with the "man in blue" over his decision as the time the game is saved by what she persists in calling a "wallup." It is a succession of laughs.

197 Martha Overture — National (London) Military Band

With this number is presented the overture to Flotow's most popular opera, "Martha," first produced in Vienna in 1847. The artistic interpretation given this rendition makes the Record, from a musical standpoint, one of the best offerings of this month's list. Particularly noticeable is the splendid manner in which the finale is worked up.

198 Goo-Goo Land — Harry Fay

A visit to the magic realm of "Goo-Goo Land" with another of our noted English artist tenors, Mr. Fay. "Goo-Goo Land" is a country that may be reached though the medium of inspiration of a sentimental nature. In this realm, 'tis said that "even suffragettes become human" and that "a sojourn there results in an epidemic of wives"—not such an undesirable state of affairs after all. Set to waltz time with orchestra accompaniment. Published by Francis, Day & Hunter, London.

199 Clara Jenkins' Tea — Collins and Harlan

A descriptive coon song from Harrigan and Hart's great play, "The Major," famous in its generation. The contrast between these coon songs of years ago and those of the present day is interesting, marking as it does the passing of the old-time darkey with his quaint speech and manner. A soft shoe dance effect is introduced in the chorus. Messrs. Collins and Harlan seem to have imbibed the spirit of the occasion this song describes. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Dave Braham; words, Edward Harrigan.

200 Hello, People! — American Symphony Orchestra

This is the most popular number of the musical play, "Havana," which received the endorsement of Metropolitan approval. "Hello People" is one of those airs that the audience hums on leaving the theatre and that lingers in the memory to spring unbidden to the lips on days that follow. At intervals in its rendition a chorus assists with unique and pleasing effect. It is easily one of the best Amberol Records yet produced. Composer, Leslie Stuart; publisher, Chappell & Co., New York.

201 Desrie — Will Oakland

"Desrie" is one of the few songs that survive popularity, and its lease of life is due to the fact that few, if indeed any, efforts of recent years approach it in real merit of composition and charm of melody. Mr. Oakland's rendition is faultless. A xylophone effect in the chorus is a pleasing feature. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Clare Kummer; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

202 The Lost Chord — Reed Miller

Here is an old favorite given complete. Not a single note is omitted. Until the introduction of the Amberol Record, this was not possible. The words of "The Lost Chord" were written by Adelaide A. Procter some years before they were set to music by Sir Arthur Sullivan. The latter made several attempts to write suitable music, but did not succeed until one night while watching at the bedside of an invalid brother. He completed the composition during the night and it has come to be one of the standard compositions in the musical world. Full justice is done the selection by Mr. Miller's fine tenor voice.

203 Hungarian Dances—G Minor and A Major — Albert Spalding

Johannes Brahms, the composer of these dances, was born in Hamburg, May 7th, 1833, and died in Vienna, April 3, 1897. Brahm's Hungarian dances are too well known to need comment. The G Minor and A Major are great favorites, and the famous Joachim arrangements, while adding to their technical difficulties, emphasize the brilliancy of these stirring and richly colored folks dances. This is Mr. Spalding's second violin Record, his first appearing on the August Amberol list (Record No. 177).

204 If the Wind Had Only Blown the Other Way — Grace Cameron

A comic song in which a young matron attributes her early entrance into matrimony, with its consequent cares, to the accidental disclosure, by a gust of wind, of her silken hose, which proved an irresistible attraction to "dashing, mashing Alexander King." The same element embarrassed her on another occasion by relieving her of her "rats and curls" and "enough of her shape to start a bargain store." Miss Cameron is artistic as usual in her rendition and an excellent Record is the result. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Edna Williams; words, Edna Williams and Bessie Wynn; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

205 Herman and Minnie at Dreamland — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Herman and Minnie go down to Coney Island for a day's fun and the Record tells, with numerous sidelights, what a good time they had. Many of the best known features of this resort are brought out and Miss Jones as Minnie sings a song befitting the occasion. The sketch is original with Mr. Spencer.

206 Second Hungarian Rhapsody—Part 2 — Edison Concert Band

Of the many classic and romantic compositions written by Franz Liszt, the fifteen Hungarian Rhapsodies are undoubtedly the most popular. The one known as the Second Hungarian Rhapsody is a universal favorite. In this Record we get the second half of this celebrated composition. It is a spirited and brilliant movement characteristic of the life and abandon of the Hungarian national dance. The first half of this number will probably be recorded in the near future.

207 Lily of the Prairie — Pete Murray and Chorus

An Indian song of the same style and by the same composer as "Red Wing" (our Record No. 9622). Unlike poor "Red Wing," however, the Indian maid in this song finally weds her brave and is installed in a cozy wigwam. The story of his wooing is set to a very catchy air. This is Mr. Murray's first Record for the Edison Phonograph and we are glad to offer him our very earnest congratulations on the impression that it creates. It looks to us like an instantaneous hit." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Kerry Mills; publishers, F. A. Mills, New York.

208 I Will Sing of My Redeemer — Edison Mixed Quartette

The trained voices of the quartette, blending in perfect harmony, lend to the words of this sacred old hymn a new dignity and reverence, while the receding strains of the organ, after the amen is intoned, seem to leave the odor of the sanctuary in our midst. Music, James McGranahan; words, P. P. Bliss.

209 The Debutante Waltz — United States Marine Band

Another well-written composition by William H. Santelmann, which again displays his cleverness as a writer in addition to his ability to conduct Washington's famous band.

210 Sweet Genevieve — James F. Harrison and Chorus

The muse that inspired the sentimental balladists of bygone days must have withdrawn herself beyond reach of the voices of his successors of our time, else why the paucity of love songs of the "Sweet Genevieve" standard which are resurrected at intervals when we are surfeited with productions of inferior merit in composition and melody? This charming love ballad is featured in "The Man from Home." Mr. Harrison, assisted by a chorus, sings it with wealth of expression that has endeared him—through our Records—to thousands of music lovers throughout the world. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Henry Tucker; words, George Cooper; publishers, Wm. A. Pond & Co., New York.

211 Googy-oo — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Miss Jones and Mr. Murray have the field absolutely to themselves so far as comic love duets are concerned—they have no near rivals. This selection, which was sung in the musical comedy, "The Candy Shop," has all the elements that contribute to the work of these clever duetists in making a successful Record. The song consists of vain attempts by a wife to recall to her husband's memory the many "mushy" things he did in his courting days when he called her "Googy-oogy-oo." The music is catchy and the repartee funny. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Edward E. Rice; publishers, Theo. Bendix, New York City.

212 Our Boarding House — Nat M. Wills

Another original song by the inimitable "King of Tramps." This is a comic song that is really comical, which would sound paradoxical were not the opposite so often true. In it Mr. Wills describes his boarding house in detail, beginning with the landlady and elaborating on the menu, which he criticises with a familiarity that betokens experience. It's hard to believe that they actually used the bed sheets for table cloths and that the cook strained the coffee through her stocking, but it's Mr. Wills' boarding house and he ought to know.

213 Medley of Popular Choruses — Premier Quartette

It includes the choruses of the following five songs: "To the End of the World With You," "Keep a Little Feeling in Your Heart for Me," "The Longest Way 'Round is the Sweetest Way Home," "No One Knows," "In Old Vienna." Unaccompanied.

214 Staunch and True March — United States Marine Band

A stirring march of a military character whose bid for popularity will be the more effective because of its being introduced by this justly famous government band. Composer, C. Teike.

Trade Bulletins

Sales Department Bulletin No. 31, June 7, 1909

Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to the NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

The purpose of the five different catalogues enclosed is to advise the trade in the United States and Canada that we are now in a position to fill orders for all Edison Amberol and Standard Records made in other countries or in foreign languages. The catalogues are as follows:

Form No. 1556—British Selections.
Form No. 1557—French and French-Canadian Selections.
Form No. 1558—German Selections.
Form No. 1559—Argentine, Cuban, Mexican and Spanish Selections.
Form No. 1560—Miscellaneous languages, including Belgian, Bohemian, Chinese, Hebrew, Holland-Dutch, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Polish, Swedish and Welsh.

These catalogues will supersede Catalogue No. 1525, which has included such foreign selections as have been listed in this country.

The new catalogues are issues primarily to place at the command of the trade every Edison Record, no matter where made, and not with any desire to force Jobbers or Dealers to carry the full list. We would especially urge Jobbers and Dealers to make a careful study of the Records given in each catalogue and order such as will find a ready sale in their respective localities.

We will only be able to furnish small quantities of these catalogues and for little more than store use. We want the trade to know about the Records and we want orders for them, but we cannot afford to furnish large quantities of catalogues costing in the aggregate more than possible business gained by their use. When Jobbers order a stock of any of these Records, we will, upon request, furnish a limited number of catalogues of the Records ordered. Jobbers, in turn, will be expected to refuse catalogues to Dealers unless they put in a stock.

Because of the many different languages shown in Form No. 1560, we have in addition to the catalogues, printed a quantity of special Supplements in Belgian, Bohemian, Danish, Hebrew, Holland-Dutch, Hungarian, Italian, Norwegian, Polish and Swedish. These have been printed for the purpose of permitting Dealers having an especially active demand for Records in one or more of these languages to do a small amount of circularizing among their trade. Copies of these supplements are also enclosed and they will be supplied to Jobbers who order Records in the languages named.

The five complete catalogues have been arranged in much the same style as the catalogue of the Domestic Records, but to each has been added a numerical index, principally for the use of the trade. The numerical index of Foreign selections will hereafter be omitted from the Numerical and Alphabetical Catalogue of Edison Records issued for trade use. The indexes to the five separate catalogues should answer the requirements of Jobbers and Dealers for such stock as they may carry of the foreign selections.

Summary of Contents of Catalogues.

Form 1556—British Selections—Includes 30 Amberol and 659 Standard selections. Only 46 British titles were listed in Form 1525. Of the Amberol selections, 10 are instrumental and 20 vocal. These have been made within the past three months and are fully equal in quality to the Amberol selections made here. Most of them will be found quite as desirable as any of the American list, and owners of machines equipped to play Amberol Records will want most of these titles as soon as they know about them. Some of the Records are peculiarly English in their character and for this reason will be even more in demand among the natives of Great Britain. Of the 659 Standard selections in the British catalogue, 188 are instrumental and 471 are vocal. The band selections include many titles that will find favor among Phonograph owners everywhere. The typically English character of many of the vocal Records will make them popular among natives of Great Britain.

Form No. 1557—French and French-Canadian Selections—In this catalogue are listed 277 instrumental selections and 694 vocal, making a total of 971 French numbers. The old catalogue contained 149 vocal selections. Cut-outs have reduced the French-Canadian list from 22 in the old catalogue to 16 in the new. This catalogue is well worth the careful study of not only those who want Records for French patrons, but of those anxious to increase their business on general lines. A large number of the instrumental selections are made by the Garde Republicaine Band, an organization having few superiors anywhere. This band made a tour of the United States about a year ago and scored a great success. Most of the Records made by this band are of high-class music, and many of the titles have never been made or listed in this country. The selections from the operas are especially numerous. The list of vocal Records is especially strong in selections from Grand Opera. Every opera of note is represented with from one to ten selections. These Records have been made by singers of note, many being of the best opera companies of France. Among these vocal selections are two by Mary Garden, the star of the Manhattan Opera House in New York. They are numbers 17323 and 17595. Both of these Records are equal to anything ever made for the Phonograph and would be in our grand opera list, but for the fact that they were listed in France at the popular price.

Form No. 1558—German Selections—In this catalogue are listed 239 instrumental and 529 vocal selections, making a total of 768. The old catalogue contained 4 instrumental and 182 vocal. The complete catalogue comprises so many desirable features that it is difficult to refer to them in detail. The band Records and the instrumental solos include a host of typically German compositions, all of which seem to be in great demand among the German-speaking people. Among the vocal selections are a large number sung by Carl Jörn, who was a member last season of the Metropolitan Opera House Company, and who has been re-engaged for another season. Mr. Jörn's Records would also be in our grand opera catalogue, but for the fact that they were made before he had reached his present standing in grand opera. There is also a large list of humorous Records.

Form No. 1559—Argentine, Cuban, Mexican and Spanish Selections—This catalogue includes 26 Amberol and 1,091 Standard selections. Of the Amberol titles, 14 are in Spanish and are known as Flamenca selections. The other 12 are Porto Rican selections, all vocal. The other division of the catalogue is as follows:

South and Central American National Hymns 6
Argentine 207
Cuban 287
Mexican 548
Spanish 42

Foreign Record Catalogue, No. 1525, contained only 60 Cuban, 38 Mexican and 55 Spanish selections. The Flamenca, Porto Rican, Argentine, Cuban and Mexican departments are made of music characteristic of the several countries and by the best organizations and artists that could be obtained. Among the instrumental selections in each language are many that will undoubtedly have a considerable sale among Phonograph owners generally, whether or not they are familiar with the Spanish languages.

Form No. 1560—Miscellaneous Languages—Includes the following: Bohemian 89, Belgian 142, Chinese 45, Danish 54, Hebrew 76, Holland-Dutch 35, Hungarian 80, Japanese 14, Italian 121, Norwegian 46, Polish 95, Swedish 58, and Welsh 5.

A comparison of this list with the departments in catalogue No. 1525, will show the increase in each. An especially new feature is the listing of five Welsh Records, the first that have been put out in this country. This catalogue should have the especial attention of all Jobbers and Dealers located in sections of the country where the languages named are spoken.

Trade Information for Jobbers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to the NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

It has been decided to continue in our Domestic Catalogue, Records No. 9051, "Mariar," by Clarice Vance, and No. 9556, "Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana," violin imitation by Edith Helena. These two Records were included in the list of 300 selections that are to be cut from the catalogue on August 1st.

Please note this change, so that your stock of these two numbers will not be returned for exchange.

Trade Information for Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should be marked to receive prompt attention: NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Please note that the Standard Combination, Model D, machine is equipped with a left-handed feed-screw; whereas the Standard Models A, B, and C machines have a right-handed feed-screw. It is therefore necessary that on all orders for Standard feed-nuts it should be specified whether they are for the Models A, B, and C, or the Model D type. All feed-nuts are stamped on the face, or threaded side, either Model B or Model D, as the case may be.

Hereafter, all orders for Idelia, Triumph, and Home, and Models A, B, and C, Standard feed-nuts will be filled with feed-nuts that are fastened to the springs with screws.

All orders for feed-nuts for the Fireside, and Model D Standard and Gem machines will be filled with feed-nuts that are riveted to the springs.

Jobbers' Convention

The Annual Convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers will be held at the Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City, N. J., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 6th, 7th and 8th. Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation of members and others interested in the talking machine trade. Business meetings will be held each day and the Convention will close Thursday night with a banquet. The Committee of Arrangements, of which J. Newcomb Blackman is Chairman, makes the following statement in the announcement being sent to members and the trade:

The object of the convention will be to bring the manufacturers and Jobbers together as a harmonious unit to promote any subject that appears for the improvement of the industry.

It will be an opportunity for Jobbers to exchange views, make suggestions, get new ideas, study the ways of the most successful.

Just the time to visit the talking machine factories, as they are within a short distance.

Dealers are also invited to attend, and it would be a good time for a few "live" ones to organize a Dealers' Association.

We want this convention to be the "greatest ever" and all must "pull together." Everybody should come, everybody in the industry is invited and will be benefited.

Send the firm, send your managers, salesmen, and be prepared to do your share in making this convention the signal for the return of prosperity.

Don't forget to bring the ladies; we want them to come and enjoy Atlantic City; we want them at the banquet. Make this your vacation, if necessary. You will have plenty of time for pleasure, for the convention will last three days, and it is our intention to reserve the mornings and evenings for pleasure. Will you be with us? All inquiries will have prompt attention if addressed to J. Newcomb Blackman, 27 Chambers Street, New York.

The American Phonograph Company of Detroit has removed from 106 Woodward Avenue to 253 Woodward Avenue.

One of our Western salesmen a few days ago received a letter from an Edison Dealer in his territory, in which, after expressing an opinion of his own concerning the merit of Edison goods, said: "Another and more convincing proof is that out of forty-six members present at a recent meeting of the Musicians' Union of Duluth, twenty-six were owners of talking machines and twenty-two of there were Edisons. That, in my estimation, is quite a good 'ad' for your machine and its reproducing merits."

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

TEXT:

"There are no birds in last year's nest."

THE man whose eye is on last month's business, like a passenger facing backwards on a trolley car, never sees anything till it gets by. Get up in front and corral the opportunities as you come to them.

Last month's business is only the stepping stone to now. The real opportunity is just ahead if you take advantage of every facility. You've got everything in your favor, our suggestions for your advertising and display; our advertising to back up and co-operate with yours; and the two greatest talking points of the age—Victor Herbert and Amberol Records.

What do you sell that has anywhere near the accumulative value of the sale of an Edison Phonograph? Every Phonograph you sell means a goodly proportion of additional sales among friends and neighbors who hear it—besides Records and attachments for Amberol Records.

Advertise in your local papers. Advertise in the street cars. Systematize your mailing list. Make your show windows work. Aim at originality in this respect. Try to catch the eye of the passers-by with unique and striking designs and effects. Demonstrate. Keep your stock neat and clean. See that it is arranged orderly and systematically. Arrange concerts at your store. Vary your programs. Get after the foreign population in your locality. Invite them to special concerts for their benefit. Offer to put on Amberol Attachments. Emphasize the superior advantages of Amberol Records. Look up machines not in use and put them in condition.

These are just the bread crumbs, but they bring the birds. You'll catch 'em. August is a great month for birds.

A $500,000 Advertising Campaign

The statement given to the public at the recent convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, to the effect that the National Phonograph Co. proposes in the coming year to expend the enormous sum of $500,000 for advertising purposes alone should be the subject of profound reflection on the part of Edison Jobbers and Dealers.

Think of it, you who have lost faith or who are inclined to be "doubting Thomases" so far as the future of the business is concerned.

It is no idle statement. Coming from the lips of the officials of this company, it bears the ring of sincerity, the impress of truth.

Revolve the statement slowly and judiciously in your minds. Consider the fact that for a time necessarily we cannot expect to receive value for this expenditure. Reflect on the possibilities of this stupendous outlay if directed by us into other channels, and then ask yourselves in all honesty and sincerity if we are not entitled to your active and loyal coöperation and support.

During the period of financial depression from which the country is fast emerging we did not pursue a policy of retrenchment in this or any other public feature of our business, for we realize the necessity of sustaining the established reputation of the company. On the contrary, in the face of decreased sales and an apathetic trade situation we maintained our high standard and improved the opportunity by aiming to attain perfection in many things to which the previous rush of business did not permit us to give our full attention.

In the campaign that we purpose we are not actuated by motives of self-preservation. We believe that this fall and winter will see a restoration of normal business conditions in all lines, and we propose to share in the harvest that will follow.

We have the most sublime confidence and faith in the future of the talking machine business, and we intend to display that confidence by a carefully planned expenditure of this extraordinarily large appropriation.

We are optimists, first, last, and always!

We share the feeling that characterized the recent convention at Atlantic City.

We believe that the future of this industry is assured; it is not problematical, it is established.

And so, in a spirit of the most cheerful optimism, we are facing the future, determined to give to the further development of the business the best that is in us of enterprise, encouragement and moral and financial support.

We shall adhere to our policy of securing the best available talent for our Records, and in the accomplishment of this aim the question of expense shall not enter.

We realize that the uplift of this business is directly traceable to the high class of Records that has been and is being produced, and with that in mind shall do our share to satisfy a critically musical public in every respect by engaging artists of recognized ability and reputation in their respective lines.

We realize that it is our particular province to create a demand for the business, and shall do all in our power to accomplish the desired result, but our work to be successful must be supplemented by hard, conscientious work on the part of the Jobber and Dealer.

Our interests are so closely interwoven that the failure of any of the three branches of the business to coöperate with the other two is bound to reflect itself in the general result.

Lack of confidence on the part of either manufacturer, Jobber or Dealer will have a disastrous effect upon the trade and vice versa.

We are about to display our confidence; we shall expect the display of a corresponding enthusiasm and aggressiveness from the other branches.

We shall do everything in our power to create the demand; we have a right to expect that our business will be pushed.

It is not fair that we, as manufacturers, should do all the advertising.

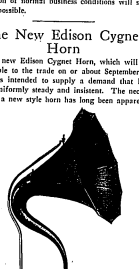
We believe that it is our duty to assume the burden of the general advertising, but that our work must be supplemented by local publicity to secure from the business the best that is in it.

We supply the data, the material, cheerfully and willingly furnish electros for local advertisement free of charge; it is then the duty of the Jobber and Dealer to interest the people of their localities by the re-insertion of our advertisements and by otherwise advertising their stocks.

The pathways that may be followed in local advertising are many and devious.

They suggest themselves in unexpected ways to the alert Dealer.

From time to time we shall publish suggestions that occur to us or are furnished by Dealers who have successfully employed them.



We solicit correspondence and ideas along these lines, and shall be ready at all times to devote time and space in our house publications to a discussion of the merits of any suggestions that are given us, or exchange views by means of correspondence where publication is not practicable.

By such means we shall secure Coöperation, which is the watchword of success.

Through Coöperation and mutual confidence and dependence we shall be enabled to fortify ourselves for the campaign that the speedy restoration of normal business conditions will soon make possible.

The New Edison Cygnet Horn

The new Edison Cygnet Horn, which will be available to the trade on or about September 1, 1909, is intended to supply a demand that has been uniformly steady and insistent. The necessity of a new style horn has long been apparent.

Its introduction to the trade was a matter of time depending upon the success of our efforts to devise a model whose attractiveness of style would not be secured at the expense of volume of sound, clarity of tone or distinctness of enunciation.

A great number of designs were submitted and considered by us only to be discarded because of some feature that did not permit of the attainment of perfection in utility and symmetry desired.

The result of all this deliberation on the part of our experts is the new Edison Cygnet Horn, on which they were able to unanimously agree.

We are confident that our endeavor to produce a perfect horn in every respect has been signally successful and expect its enthusiastic endorsement by the trade on the grounds of general excellence.

The only objection that was raised against the old style horn was the fact that because of its shape it occupied considerable space. In this respect the new horn will have a distinct advantage, the space in front of the machine being free and clear. This, together with the fact that it is possible to point it in almost any direction, assuring convenience of position, are its chief recommendations. In addition to these points of utility, attention should be called to its symmetrical appearance, which is enhanced by pleasing color effects lending to its general attractiveness.

Hereafter all "Idella" Phonographs will be equipped with mahogany Cygnet horns without additional cost. It should be remembered that it is our intention to continue to supply our regular horn with all of our present types of machines.

The new horn is intended to permit the trade an option on the upright styles, thus supplying more variety than has heretofore been possible.

More Cut Outs

It is the intention of our Sales Department to withdraw from sale on January 1st, 1910, another list of 900 Edison Standard Records. Formal notices of this intention will in due time be sent to Jobbers and Dealers. This reduction will keep the list very close to the 1,000 mark, as may be seen by the following table:

Total Edison Standard Records on January 1st, 1909	1,570
Total Edison Amberol Records on January 1st, 1909	344
	1,914
Less Cut Outs	300
	1,614

Our salesmen, some of whom are present at the factory for instruction, are unanimous in saying as a result of their observations, that during the past year those Dealers who did not get their share of the business, in most cases did not deserve it.

Invariably they were of the type that, instead of going after business, assume a supine attitude and voice their discontent because it doesn't come to them.

Are you content to be classed with such failures?

Cut Outs and the Exchange Proposition

Again we shall endeavor to impress upon the minds of our Jobbers and Dealers the advisability, the wisdom, and the necessity of keeping in stock, for some time at least, the 500 "cut-outs" that will be dropped from our Record catalogue of August 1st. We have rehearsed the excellent reasons that exist in support of this advice in excessive issues since the May number. A resumé of these reasons, which should be given attention and reflection by the trade, is now in order.

We advise against the immediate return of these cutouts because:

1st. These numbers appear in thousands of catalogues which will be in the hands of Phonograph users for a long time to come.

2nd. The demand for practically all of them continues active and for the foregoing reason promises no cessation. It must be remembered that these are dropped, not because they are undesirable in any way, but because of the demand of the trade for a reduction in the catalogue.

3rd. The demand that does and will exist for these Records should clean up practically all of the present stock that Jobbers and Dealers may have on hand.

4th. The expense of transportation of these Records is no mean item and this expense must be borne by the Jobber or Dealer.

5th. The dropping of these numbers from the catalogue is an accommodation on our part and entails a loss in business for us that should be taken into consideration by the trade.

6th. These Records, by the terms of the Continuous Exchange Proposition, may now be returned at any time and credit will be given.

These reasons we submit again, feeling that after their intelligent consideration the trade will make every possible effort to dispose of these "cut-outs" instead of returning them to us.

For the benefit and instruction, however, of those who are about to return any of the list we wish to remind them of some of the more important stipulations of the Continuous Exchange Proposition. It should be remembered that:

1st. Transportation charges must be prepaid to Orange.

2nd. Packing instructions should be carefully followed.

3rd. Bill of Lading should be enclosed with letter to Orange and order sent us at same time for at least an equal number of Standard or Amberol Records.

4th. Only genuine Edison Standard or Amberol Records in Edison cartons may be returned. This proposition embraces only Cut-Outs and defective Records. No broken, cracked, damaged, worn out Records, or Records of any other manufacture will be accepted.

5th. Surplus Standard, Grand Opera, Amberol or Concert Records are not included in this proposition.

6th. No deduction from bill or statement is to be made on account of this Exchange until credit has been allowed by Jobber.

The following is a list of the numbers to be withdrawn August 1st.

Important to Jobbers

In explanation of the statement made in Sales Department Bulletin No. 40, regarding crating allowance on separate Cygnet Horn Equipments and on Edison Phonographs equipped with Cygnet Horns, we wish to state that the crating allowance of 25 cents on each horn will be allowed only when 5 horns of the same size and finish are ordered. Multiples of 5, of course, are subject to the allowance. This supplements letter of our General Manager of Sales to Jobbers under date of July 21.

The Fireside Phonograph

That the new Edison Fireside Phonograph would be welcomed by the trade we were never in doubt. We had no reason to expect, however, that its sales would assume such proportions at this particular time. We thought the rush would not come until later but very evidently were mistaken, as it has already started.

Orders are being received in large numbers with every mail and it looks as though Jobbers and Dealers are making early preparations for a lively fall trade.

We reprint the following extracts from The Talking Machine World, issue of July 15th, as indicating the popularity it is already enjoying:

"The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., of Cincinnati, O., reports that the new Edison 'Fireside' Phonograph has had a tremendous sale, which is especially remarkable in view of the fact that trade in cheap instruments has been very light during the season. The sale of this instrument, however, shows the confidence that the Dealers have in the Phonograph proposition, and that while the little commercial merchant is temporarily neglecting the talking machine line, there are plenty of up-to-date merchants who are pushing the goods and making sales."

"C. M. Jones, manager of the Pacific Phonograph Co., reports a fair wholesale business, with considerable improvement in most parts of the country. The improvement is largely due to the arrival of the Edison Fireside machine, the sales of which have been fully up to expectations."

"The Southern California Music Co. have been shipping out the new Edison Fireside machine in great numbers. An increased demand is reported, especially from out-of-town Dealers."

These reports are very encouraging and lead us to believe that from now on there will be a steadily increasing demand for this attractive machine—attractive because of its new feautres and its popular price.

Its particularly attractive points are its handsome antique oak cabinet, its maroon finished horn and its combination reproducer. Dealers should be prepared to handle the rush on this machine by placing their orders with Jobbers now to insure their being able to secure the machines when needed.

Special Amberol Records

The special list of fifty Amberol Records that appears with the regular October list was created to meet the general demand of the trade for a greater choice of Amberol selections.

It was recognized that the present Amberol list does not offer sufficient variety, nor could it for several months to come, if we were to depend solely upon the regular monthly addition of twenty.

If we continue to add this monthly quota of twenty the Amberol Catalogue on January 1st, 1910, will comprise three hundred and forty-four Records, affording a better choice of selections.

Attention is called to the general excellence of this special list and particularly to the eighteen dance Records that it comprises.

They should be exceptionally good sellers for the early fall trade.

The Tray System

In another column we quote an extract from the letter of a successful Edison Dealer who, in the handling of his Record stock, employs the Tray System. The advantages of this system are to be found in the orderly, systematic arrangement of Records that it makes possible and the consequent ease with which a Record may be located. It keeps the Records in compact shape, thus effecting economy of space.

The labels on the trays indicate the number of the Record, its title and the name of the artist, thus giving complete information as to its contents.

We have frequently called the attention of the trade to this excellent system and shall continue to do so until a better substitute appears, which we do not think probable, for a time at least.

We are not advancing the merits of this particular system because of any especial interest we have in its sale outside of the fact that its employment facilitates the handling of our Records and consequently increases our sales.

That's where our interest lies—the better the system the larger the sales, and that's why we favor the Tray System.

Personal

President Frank L. Dyer, of the National Phonograph Co., sailed for Europe on July 10th to be gone two months. He will pay his first visit to the branch offices of the company in London, Berlin and Paris. In Europe he will join his family, who went abroad in June. During Mr. Dyer's absence the executive mantle will rest upon the shoulders of General Manager Carl H. Wilson.

LEO SLEZAK

Leo Slezak to Sing for Edison Records

Still another step toward the upbuilding of a Grand Opera catalogue second to none has just been made by the National Phonograph Company in arranging a contract with Leo Slezak, the noted tenor of the Royal Opera House, Vienna, to make cylinder Records exclusively for the Edison Phonograph.

Mr. Slezak will appear at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, next season. When he recently signed a contract for his appearance there, a Paris dispatch said:

"Leo Slezak, the noted tenor of the Vienna Opera, to-day signed a contract for his appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, next season. G. Gatti-Casazza, General Manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Director Andreas Dippel are very enthusiastic over the acquisition of the great tenor. They call him a second Tamagno and say that he has acquired a very high reputation at Vienna and Budapest, where he has been singing for the last nine years.

"Slezak will make his first appearance in Western Europe at Covent Garden, London, next month, singing in the rôle of Otello. It is expected that the Metropolitan officials will arrange a number of other contracts, but these are all subordinate to the signing of Slezak.

"Slezak has been the pride of the Vienna Opera for several years, and has sung all the leading Wagner rôles there. During the past winter he has been in Paris, studying the Italian repertoire with Jean de Reszke, and it is in one of the parts which he has studied, Verdi's "Otello," that he will make his London début. It is expected that he will only sing the German tenor parts in New York."

Leo Slezak, the possessor of a phenomenal tenor voice and one of the pillars of the Royal Opera House, Vienna, is certainly entitled to take foremost rank among the singers of the present age. Born in Schönberg in August, 1874, he showed tendencies that marked him out from early boyhood for a musical career, which has turned out to be one of unusual brilliance. He commands vocal powers that are nothing short of astounding, and it is not surprising that at the age of twenty-two he already enjoyed public acceptance as one of the leading Austro-Germanic tenors of the day. He first attained real prominence in Berlin, where he created a great stir in the part of "Lohengrin." This led to his being offered an engagement at the Court Opera House there, which he filled for several years subsequently. On leaving the Prussian Capital, he turned his steps to Breslau, where he appeared with extraordinary success, and he afterwards made a lengthy tour of the principal German towns. This has become almost historic among the operagoers of the fatherland. Everywhere he was received with unparalleled enthusiasm, and each town that he visited bore out the verdict of Berlin and paid tribute to him as an operatic star of exceptional brilliance.

Slezak made his first appearance at Covent Garden in the year 1900, and he was most favorably received by both press and audience. He is now returning to the scene of his former triumphs to appear in some of his favorite parts, and to take the principal rôle in "Tess"—Baron Erlanger's new opera, which met with such conspicuous success in Italy last autumn.

Since 1901 Slezak has practically been permanently attached to the Royal Opera House, Vienna, and he has now become one of the musical institutions of that great city. Austrian music lovers literally worship him, not alone for his great vocal gifts, but also for his many attractive personal qualities, and he plays a prominent part in the social and intellectual life of the capital.

Much dismay was occasioned when some short time back Slezak suddenly relinquished his engagements, and was reported to have left the country. It was not long, however, before Viennese opera lovers learned that their apparent loss was really to prove a gain, for their idol had with characteristic application betaken himself to Paris, there to undergo a lengthy course of artistic study under the direction of the great Maestro Jean de Reske. On his return from Paris some few weeks back, he sang again in Vienna at a concert, and once also at the Opera House. His return was made the occasion of a great demonstration, and at both performances he was received by the public with rapturous enthusiasm. As the critics then were not slow to point out, the time spent in study with Jean de Reszke has indeed yielded good fruit. Slezak's noble voice is produced with unmatched ease and with a flexibility that cannot fail to command admiration, and that proves him to be a master in all the arts and graces of the Italian School. His "piano" passages have great carrying power, while his "mezza-voce" is of that delicate subdued quality usually associated with Italian-born vocalists only. Slezak is peculiarly successful in the strenuous rôles of Wagnerian opera, which play such havoc with the voices of less robust vocalists. His organ is of such strength as to be well able to bear the strain of the most exacting parts; moreover, despite its vigor and fire, his voice never loses one whit of its artistic merit, and the "diminuendos" are invariably rendered in the most delicate and artistic fashion.

Slezak stands unique as a singer of such parts as Lohengrin, Romeo, Chevalier des Grieux (Manon), Raoul, the Troubadour and many others, and his latest appearance at Covent Garden will certainly prove a memorable event.

New Mexican Masters

Early last April George J. Werner and F. C. Burt, of the New York Recording Laboratory, reached Mexico City and immediately started on their work of making another series of Mexican Records. The work has now been completed, with the result that some of the finest Mexican Records obtainable have been added to our list.

A large number of Records, both Standard and Amberol, have been made by the famous Banda de Artilleria, under the leadership of Captain and Director Ricardo Pacheco. This famous organization has toured the United States on several occasions, and took first honors at the World's Fair at St. Louis in 1904.

Another prize lot of Records, both Standard and Amberol, have been made by the world-renowned Banda de Policia (Police Band), under the leadership of Captain Velino M. Perez. A choice collection of both Standard and Amberol Records has been made for us by the Jorda-Rocabruna Quintette. This organization is unique and without doubt the finest orchestra in the entire Republic. It is always selected to play at the Presidential receptions, diplomatic affairs, etc. The Records we have secured will undoubtedly be in great demand by all music lovers and no collection of Edison Records will be complete without several of them. The organization is under the leadership of Sr. José Rocabruna, a violinist of renown, who is immensely popular in Paris, Madrid, etc.

We have also secured a few violin solos by this eminent artist, and we have no hesitation in saying that they will surprise the most fastidious lovers of violin music.

In this connection it might not be out of place to mention that Sr. Rocabruna's violin is an Amati, which cost him $3,000 and it was on this magnificent instrument that our selections were played.

A large number of instrumental selections have been made for us by the famous Trio Arriaga, a pleasing combination of first and second mandolins and guitar. In addition we have made some fine mandolin solos by Sr. Joaquin J. Arriaga.

Sr. Octaviano Yañez bears the distinction of being the acknowledged champion guitarist of Mexico, and it is doubtful if his equal can be found in the entire world. We have secured a number of delightful selections, both two and four minutes, by this artist.

Srta. Rita Villa, a harpist of national reputation, has made some excellent selections for us, and we have also secured some novelties in the way of harp and cello duets, by Srta. Villa and Sr. Luis Rocha.

Of vocal Records we have secured selections by all the old favorites, such as Abrego and Picazo, popular singers; Rosales and Robinson, popular singers; Señoritas Herrera, Camacho, etc., and have also secured some fine Records by Señors Romero Malpica, Pablo Garcia Bofil, Adolfo Jimenez, Rafael Bezares, Felix de la Sierra, José Aparicio, Francisco Cascales, Srta. Emilia Sanchez, Srta. Emilia Vergeri, etc., etc., all artists of repute and many of them well known in Spain, Argentine and Cuba, as well as in Mexico.

To sum it up—this has been our most successful recording trip in Mexico, and we are proud of the selections we have obtained, and feel sure that our patrons throughout the world will appreciate the hand and instrumental selections fully as much as our Mexican friends.

These Records were produced under the personal supervision and criticism of Sr. Arturo Rocha, assistant director of the Conservatorio Nacional de Musica y Declamacion, Mexico.

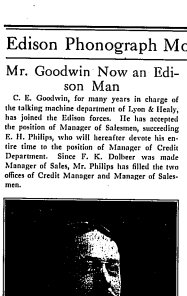
Advertising Record

We are carrying a stock of advertising Records of whose existence and purpose it is possible that many of our Dealers are not aware.

In fact we had temporarily lost track of them ourselves until our attention was recalled to them by a recent letter from one of our Dealers, suggesting the desirability of such a Record.

The original purpose of this Record was to serve as an announcer for the front part of a store to attract the attention of passersby, and for that purpose it has no superior.

It calls attention to the versatility of the Phonograph as an entertainer, and the composition is as clever as the elocution is perfect.



The Record was made for us by Len Spencer. It has frequently been used as the first number at a Phonograph concert or vaudeville entertainment and makes a pleasing introductory.

If your Jobber hasn't this Record in stock ask him to write us and secure one at once. It is supplied free of charge.

Don't change your windows too often; there are extremes both ways. Give the public time to see your display, but don't let them get tired of looking at it.

Mr. Goodwin Now an Edison Man

C. E. Goodwin, for many years in charge of the talking machine department of Lyon & Healy, has joined the Edison forces. He has accepted the position of Manager of Salesmen, succeeding E. H. Phillips, who will hereafter devote his entire time to the position of Manager of Credit Department. Since F. K. Dolbeer was made Manager of Sales, Mr. Phillips has filled the two offices of Credit Manager and Manager of Salesmen.

Mr. Goodwin is one of the best known men in the talking machine trade. He is not only prominent because of his former connection with Lyon & Healy, but because of the active part he took in forming the National Talking Machine Jobbers' Association, a work in which he has ever since been greatly interested. Mr. Goodwin assumed charge on July 1st. All of the salesmen now on the road were brought to the factory last month and there became acquainted with their new chief.

The National Company is planning to make a large addition to his corps of salesmen this fall, and Mr. Goodwin will be kept busy breaking in new men, to say nothing of the work incident to getting acquainted and laying out work for the present force. While the salesmen of the National Company rank second to none in faithfulness and efficiency, Mr. Goodwin's practical connection with the talking machine industry cannot fail to increase the value of their work.

The Whitney Bros. Quartette

The Whitney Bros., whose first Record appears on the October Standard list as No. 10230, are in the literal sense of the phrase "a quartet that was born, not made," for they are really brothers. Furthermore, there is another little (19 years of age and 6 feet 1 inch tall) Whitney at home who has a voice of the "Whitney" calibre so that they could make it a quintet if the old folks could spare the other son.

It seems quite remarkable that a deep basso, a high tenor, a beautiful second tenor and reader, and a heavy baritone and splendid pianist and conductor should emerge from one humble home to go out into the world and compete successfully with the best quartets in the business, but such is really the case. Their repertoire is confined to selections of the highest order.

The members of the Whitney quartet are: Alwin M., first tenor: Edwin M., second tenor; William F., baritone, and Yale R., basso.

Earl Cartwright

Earl Cartwright, who recently joined the Edison staff of Recording artists (his first offering appearing on the October Special Amberol list as No. 251, "The Two Grenadiers") is a baritone soloist of national reputation. He is a Western artist whose fame is due in a great measure to his extraordinary versatility, he being able to interpret the big works as well as the minor things. He is as much at home in oratorio as in the rendition of the simplest ballads. A thorough musician, he invests all he does with a rhythmic swing and uses his voice with extraordinary intelligence.

Italian Amberols

Three more Italian Amberol Records are being listed with the regular October list. Dealers are urged not overlook these desirable Records which should find a ready sale among the Italian people. While the selections are, of course, made with that end in view, their excellence of rendition and the popularity of the operas from which they are taken will commend them favorably to the attention of music lovers of all nationalities.

Selling the Goods

Last month's sales are only a pacemaker. That's the way to look at it. Make each month the pacemaker for the next.

Any pessimist will tell you that of all dead months August is the original mummy. That's just the time to catch your competitors asleep. Don't disturb them—just go after their business. And get it.

These hammock-and-porch-weather evenings are distinctly Edison Phonograph evenings. Nobody wants to do anything but listen. Here's an idea—a new one. Feature "Moon" song Records. Give them a full window display and play Moon songs for everybody. Make it a Moon song week. You'll unload every Record that has a moon in it and make a "clean up" on your old stock—to say nothing of what you'll do for the sheet music department.

Whenever you sell a Phonograph, remember, the profits have only just begun on that sale—for every customer is bound to come back constantly for Records. Therefore, every sale is a permanent investment, with the dividends continuously coming your way.

A Phonograph in the home is worth a dozen in the store—from a selling standpoint. In the home every listener is in a receptive mood, and every Record played more deeply plants the suggestion of possession.

Make friends of the Moving Picture shows. They are coming more and more to use the Phonograph between times. Aside from the fact that when they buy a Phonograph they'll buy a big one and will eat up Records about as fast as you can pass 'em over the counter, it's a mighty good advertisement for you.

$$2 + 2 = 4$$

You've got just the same instruments and just the same Records as every other Edison Phonograph Dealer. Nobody can undersell you.

You get just the same coöperation from us, and the grab you cut in the Phonograph business in your territory depends entirely on the way you take advantage of that coöperation—plus your own ability.

Blankety-Blank-Blank

How are your sales on blanks? Do you do any blank record business at all? Don't you ever talk to your customers on the fascination of making their own Records—of preserving the songs and stories of every member of the family?

You can make this a mighty profitable branch of your business if you go after it hard—because when the habit once sinks in it's permanent and continuous.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to go over your entire mailing list with a special card on Blank Records, something like this:

BLANK RECORDS!

Do you know the fun—the real fascination of making your own Records right in your own home—of having the favorite songs and stories permanently preserved?

There's a serious side, too. Some day your family may be scattered to all parts of the country. Get their voices on record now while you're all at home together.

Perpetual Motion

Once upon a time a wise man thought he had discovered perpetual motion and demonstrated his theory by the following illustration:

"The duck eats the worm, the man eats the duck, the worm eats the man, the duck eats the worm, the man——etc, ad infinitum."

Apply it to the Phonograph business:

The Phonograph absorbs the Records, the Records absorb the listeners, the listeners absorb the Phonographs. you absorb the profits, and there doesn't seem to be any stopping place. And that's the way it ought to be with your sales.

One for the Church and Two for Yourself

Every time there's a church social or chicken pie supper in your city you ought to be on the job with an Edison Phonograph. You'll add greatly to the evening's entertainment and it's a great opportunity for enlarging your mailing list. The people are less on the defensive than when they come to your store, and you are able to see who is really interested and what their particular tastes are. Then you can invite them to hear more of their kind of music when they're down your way—and it's certain to bring results.

The Jobbers' Convention

Ideal weather, which made it possible to enjoy the many and varied attractions of that popular resort, contributed in great measure to the success of the second annual convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, held at Atlantic City, July 6, 7 and 8. The presence of the wives and families of many of the members lent to the affair the aspect of a large family reunion and added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The meetings were held in the afternoon, the morning being devoted exclusively to pleasure. In point of attendance the convention was very satisfactory, more than half the entire membership being registered, many from distant points.

The presence of Thomas A. Edison, who was elected a life member of the Association, lent unusual interest to the affair. There were also present executive officers and representatives of the large manufacturing organizations of the business.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Percy B. Whitsit, of the Percy B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, Ohio; Vice-President, J. Newcomb Blackman, of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York City; Secretary, J. C. Roach, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburg, Pa.; Treasurer, Louis Buehn, of L. Buehn & Bro., Philadelphia, Pa. Executive Committee—E. F. Taft, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., Boston, Mass.; J. F. Bowers, of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, Ill.; Laurence McGreal, Milwaukee, Wis.; Rudolph Wurlitzer, of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; H. H. Blish, of Harger & Blish, Des Moines, Iowa.

The retiring president, James F. Bowers, who has worked indefatigably for the success of the Association since its inception, refused a re-election, pleading the stress of his business affairs.

The reports of the retiring officers were assuring, showing, as they did, a marked improvement in the trade for the past year and a promise of still greater progress for the year to come, and a satisfactory increase in membership of the Association, which now numbers 120, an increase of 10 since the last convention.

Questions of importance were reported to have been submitted to the manufacturers, and satisfaction was expressed at the kindly manner in which the suggestions made had been received; in most cases compliance with requests having resulted and in the case of the exceptions, which are still pending, favorable action being anticipated.

On Thursday a successful open meeting was held where those in the trade, not Jobbers, were invited to bring up matters for consideration and discussion. A number of papers were read by members of the Association—all very interesting and with no exception each expressing unbounded confidence and optimism.

Following the reading of the papers, short addresses were made by officials of the various talking machine companies.

At the close of the convention, and preceding the banquet, an informal reception was held at the Hotel Shelburne by Thomas A. Edison, at which the Jobbers and their friends were presented to him by F. K. Dolbeer.

During the banquet that followed Mr. Edison sat at the right hand of the toastmaster, James F. Bowers, who in his introductory remarks drew attention to the fact that it was one of the rare occasions on which Mr. Edison makes a public appearance, and called for a toast to his health and long life, which was drunk standing.

Speeches were made or papers read by prominent officials of all the talking machine companies. Frank L. Dyer, President of the National Phonograph Co., spoke on "The Relations Between the Factory and the Jobber."

Mr. Dyer spoke of the good feeling that has always existed between this Company and its Jobbers, and showed the necessity for a spirit of coöperation and dependence on the part of both.

Addresses on interesting subjects by representatives of the other manufacturing companies followed, each speaker echoing in the course of his remarks the expressions of confidence and optimism that Mr. Dyer sounded.

William E. Gilmore, former President of the National Phonograph Co., was presented by the toastmaster, and in response to an enthusiastic reception regaled the banqueters with anecdotes of his experience when identified with the business.

On Friday a large party of the delegates and ladies were met at the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Newark and conveyed in automobiles to the Essex County Country Club in West Orange and there entertained at luncheon as guests of the National Phonograph Co. Following this they were conducted on a tour of inspection of the big plant by officials of the Company.

Don't put too many signs in your window; one, or possibly two, is plenty. Make them plain and short; the public hasn't time to read a dozen signs; put the goods in; they will take time to look at these.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

We are in receipt of a letter from one of our salesmen enclosing a copy of the Saturday Evening Post showing how F. L. Mead, a Dealer of Merrill, Wis., included a full page insert in 150 copies of that publication which he delivers each week to his customers. We hasten to congratulate Mr. Mead for the cleverness of his idea, which we are confident will be productive of good results for himself and prolific of imitation on the part of other Edison Dealers. While the fact of Mr. Mead's being a newsdealer facilitated the carrying out of the idea, there is no reason why other Dealers by whom the Phonograph is carried as a side line should not be able to successfully apply the suggestion in some way to their own business with profit. It strikes us as being a forceful method of exploiting one's goods and if persisted in will create in the mind of the prospective purchaser an impression which is the beginning of a sale. Persistency and patience will accomplish the desired results every time.

The O. K. Houck Piano Co., of Memphis, accompanied their July mailing list of new Edison Records with a characteristically catchy and readable letter extolling the superior qualities of our Records, whose "exclusive features," they say, "put them on a pinnacle to which no other manufacturers of Records have ever aspired."

The Kipp-Link Phonograph Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., have dropped their other lines of talking machines and have discontinued their retail business, in order to devote their entire time and efforts to Edison goods.

We take the liberty of printing the following excerpt from a letter of George L. Kern, proprietor Kern Cyclery, Kern, Cal., who is an enthusiastic Edison Dealer:

"Every one of my customers is satisfied with his machine, and I see that they are always in talking order. When I make a sale of a machine I impress upon the customer what the machine is for, that it is part of my business to see that they work perfectly, and that I am at his service any time the machine gets out of order.

"I make a study of the machine from every point to overcome any defect in running that might show up and have never been stuck yet on any repair job."

Mr. Kern has evidently profited by the advice recently given in these columns to Dealers to follow up the machines they sell and keep them in good working order. The logic of this advice is to be found in the fact that satisfied owners of machines make good and consistent Record customers, and vice versa.

Don't you think the argument sound, Mr. Dealer?

A. W. Allen, Lawton, Okla.—Your salesman, E. A. Neff, called on me recently and I gave him an order for Fireside Machines and stock Records. The last time he was here I gave him an order which made me a "complete list" Dealer. I am more than pleased with the results. Carrying the complete line of Edison Records is certainly the only way to properly represent the company out here or in any locality.

G. C. Crabb, Columbus, Ind.—To-day is my sixty-first birthday, and makes my twenty-first birthday since I began using or handling the Phonograph in one way or the other as an exhibitor, etc. Who can beat it?

[Congratulations are extended to Mr. Crabb on his birthdays, together with the wish that we may be permitted to do so for many years to come. We will see whether the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY can dig up another exhibitor who can beat this record. We don't believe there is one.]

The following extract from a letter received from Geo. F. Harrell, an Edison Dealer of Rocky Mount, N. C., under date of June 21, 1909, impresses us as an example of enterprise that is worthy of emulation by others of the trade:

"I am sending you by to-day's mail photo of my store showing you how my stock is arranged. I carry a complete catalogue of Records and from six to ten machines; advertise in the daily papers. Have a mailing list of about 60. Have used most of the posters in prominent places.

"I will move on July 1st to a larger building and will send you photo of same as soon as I get it fixed up."

That letter explains the prosperous condition of Mr. Harrell's business that the accompanying photo indicates and we hasten to congratulate him and wish him continued prosperity in his new quarters.

Undoubtedly his success with Edison goods is due in great measure to the fact that he has followed the advice given through these columns from time to time in regard to carrying a complete stock of Records and machines and advertising his goods in the various ways we suggest.

The interior arrangement of his store is admirable indeed.

His several types of machines are so placed as to in turn catch the eye of a customer on entrance.

On the left wall of the store he has arranged his Record stock, using for that purpose, as the picture discloses, the tray system, whose superior advantages have frequently been recounted by us.

Suspended from the ceiling above the Record stock is a neat display of horns with dwarf palms artistically arranged between, creating a pleasing effect.

Mr. Harrell's success can be duplicated by any other Edison Dealer who is not content to wait for business to come to him but who displays the same energy and enterprise by going after the business.

The corporate name of the D. S. Johnston Co., of Seattle, Wash., was changed on July 1st to The Eilers Music House. The new firm will be a corporation with a capital of $3,000,000, of which D. S. Johnston will be the head, and will form a chain of forty stores, reaching from California to Alaska, and handling musical instruments and supplies.

Mrs. N. A. H. Bromley, an Edison Dealer at 5123 Market street, Philadelphia, writes us most interestingly of the methods she successfully employs to advertise her stock. Banner, window and sign displays to catch the eye of the shopper and passerby are supplemented by an evening concert. We regret that we have not space to print her letter in its entirety, for her enthusiasm is as infectious as her optimism is unbounded. To her suggestion that she be supplied with some advertising Records to use at her evening recitals for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that she handles Edison goods and inviting people in to see and hear them, we replied in part as follows:

"About two years ago we distributed to Jobbers and Dealers an advertising Record prepared for use at Phonograph Concerts, etc. We still have a small quantity of them on hand. We would suggest that you apply to your Jobber for one, and if he doesn't have them in stock, ask him to order a small quantity from the factory with his first shipment of other goods.

We have had in mind, for some time, issuing further Records along these same lines. Your letter again points out the necessity for doing so promptly and the matter will be taken up as soon as convenient.

At the present time our Recording Department people are very busy and we probably could not break in on their work by asking for more of these special Records."

We invite the attention of other Dealers to this proposition and shall be pleased to receive their early comments and suggestions.

The following is an example of how the news columns of a paper may be utilized at times to furnish material for original and efficacious ads. The point is of course to "strike while the iron is hot" by adopting the suggestion while the news item is still fresh in the public mind:

HOW TO EARN $3,000 A WEEK

The Buffalo Express of June 20th devoted a whole page to Vesta Tilley, the highest salaried artist in vaudeville, who is just completing a tour of this country, and who sails for her home in London, July 4th. Miss Tilley is the one woman in vaudeville who receives $3,000 a week. She has made 10 records for the Edison Phonograph, all of which may be had at

Stolen Phonograph

William Kuelman, an Edison Dealer of Antioch, Ill., sold a Triumph Machine, No. 60661, to one W. C. Wells, on the installment plan. After making one payment Wells left town, taking the machine with him. As it is possible that some attempt may be made to dispose of the machine Dealers are requested to be on the lookout and notify Mr. Kuelman in event of such an occurrence.

WANTED

Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Ready Made Ads

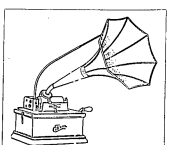
Sales to date of the new Fireside Phonograph prove that the public demand for this popular priced machine was not overestimated. The Fireside is the machine that you should push and advertise now if you would share in the profits of the first rush.

The below ready-made ads. will help you in your advertising.



Send for the electro at once. Insert your ads. in your local newspaper as soon as possible after the electros reach you—not once, but repeatedly—and watch your sales grow. Spasmodic advertising seldom if ever brings results; it is the persistent advertiser that brings home the money. Remember that we supply the illustrations only. We do not furnish copy. If the ads. accompanying the below cuts (and we consider them excellent for general purposes) do not appeal to you employ your ingenuity to produce something in that line that will satisfy your ideas.

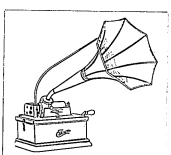
Try your hand at this and see how easy it comes to you.

The name of the machine itself should excite your imagination in that respect. The word "Fireside" is suggestive of an abundance of good, readable advertising copy that may be built around it.

Your local happenings, current general events, the season of the year—these and a thousand other things will furnish ideas for attractive, interesting ads. If you will sit down and devote a few minutes to the subject.

We will send electros shown in the ads. either in single column (No. 719) or double column (No. 720) or both, if you will agree to use it and send us a copy of the paper containing your ad. Write to us today.

THE FIRESIDE



We want everyone who has not yet experienced the delight of owning and listening to an Edison Phonograph to come to us today and

hear the New Fireside Model

There is only one way to know how good the Edison Phonograph is and that is to hear it. Nothing can describe it.

Jobbers are required to place orders for October Records on or before August 10th. Dealers should place October orders with Jobbers before August 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Standard Records for October

10217 Oriental Dance — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

One of the attractive numbers in "Wonderland," a musical extravaganza written by Mr. Herbert. The makeup of Mr. Herbert's orchestra includes a greater number of violins and other string instruments than is usually the case with orchestras used for Record-making and this selection, in particular, is unusually striking in the stringed instrument effects. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10218 My Wife's Gone to the Country — Edward M. Favor

The singer's wife has gone to the country, leaving him to his own devices, and his joy knows no bounds. The real comedy of the song is in the words, "Hurrah!" "Hurrah!" sung after some of the lines in the refrain. The song is a popular one in vaudeville theatres. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ted Snyder; words, Geo. Whiting and Irving Berlin; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10219 Lonesome — Byron G. Harlan

As may be expected from its title, this is a sentimental song in which the singer complains that he is lonesome without his loved one. It was written by Gen. W. Meyer who also wrote "Under the Irish Moon" (our Record No. 10181) and "Whistle and I'll Wait for You" (our Record No. 10205). Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

10220 A Passing Fancy — Edison Concert Band

C. H. Rollinson, the composer of this selection, is the writer of many band and orchestra compositions and his name is a familiar feature of every band or instrumental programme. This selection is attractive and it is well rendered by our Concert Band. Publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston, Mass.

10221 Pay More Attention to Me — Ada Jones

Eliza Jackson is admonishing her second husband to pay more attention to her and avoid the fate of Number One, who became careless in this respect at a Salome ball. The day following his carelessness an accident with a razor happened at his home, and then a carriage with some plumes on top took him away. Miss Jones' coon dialect makes Liza's meaning quite clear. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Benj. Hapgood Burt; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10222 Sweet Hour of Prayer — Edison Mixed Quartette

A delightfully rendered Record of this well-known sacred selection. Every collection of sacred Records will include it. Unaccompanied. Music, Wm. B. Bradbury; words, Rev. W. W. Walford.

10223 I'm Crazy When the Band Begins to Play — Pete Murray

A march song by the same writers as "Meet Me in Rotetime, Rosie" (our Record No. 10079). It is sung in "Miss Innocence," Anna Held's musical production. The chorus has a sweet melody that is out of the ordinary. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Jean Schwartz; words, Wm. Jerome; publisher, Shapiro, New York.

10224 Uncle Remus — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic march with special effects such as ought to go with a title like this. The accompanying effects are Southern. Composer, Marvin Bean; publishers, The John Church Co., New York.

10225 I'm Going to Tell On You — Frederic Rose
Another of those "kid" songs depicting happenings of childhood. Johnny Jones has played hookey, and one of his girl friends has threatened to tell teacher and his mother. The song is given with a two-voice effect, for Johnny repeats the chorus in a taunting manner. Mr. Rose's return this month will be welcomed by his large following among Phonograph owners. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, W. Raymond Walker; words, Jos. H. McKeon; publishers, Atlas Music House, New York.

10226 Under the Honeymoon — Miss Stevenson and Mr. Stanley
A serio-comic duet in which the singers declare they do not want to spoon in a wooden hut, in a palace or in any other place but under the sweet honeymoon. The duet work of Miss Stevenson and Mr. Stanley is most effective in this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ben M. Jerome; words, Edward Madden; publishers, The Trehuba Pub. Co., New York.

10227 Parody on "The Old Oaken Bucket" — Nat M. Wills
To attempt to say much about this parody would be to spoil its fun. You must hear Mr. Wills sing it for our Record and get it at first hand. It is well worth the hearing, and it's a Record that you'll play every time you want to amuse your friends. Orchestra accompaniment. The parody is original with Mr. Wills, as is the case with most of his vaudeville work.

10228 Lola. Waltz — United States Marine Band
A concert waltz played with the characteristic snap and vim of this famous band organization. No more successful series of band Records have ever been put out by us than those made by the United States Marine Band. Composer, Carl Friedemann.

10229 One Good Turn Deserves Another — Josie Sadler
A comic waltz song in German dialect. The title is the exclamation of Wilhelmina as she dances with Heinie Schmidt. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Alfred Solman; words, Alfred Bryan; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10230 Santa Lucia — Whitney Brothers Quartette
This Record introduces a new combination of artists to the Edison public. The Whitney Brothers Quartette, as its name indicates, is composed of four brothers, all of whom possess remarkably fine voices. Their quartette work is truly artistic. "Santa Lucia" is an old Italian folk song and many who hear it will recognize it by its melody, even if they do not by its title. It is sung unaccompanied.

10231 I Wish I Was In Heaven Sittin' Down — Edward Meeker
One of those coon songs that are marked for wide popularity, in spite of an inexpressive title and words without much meaning. It is a song of the coon who is always either hunting work or getting fired, and whose present ambition is to be in Heaven, with St. Peter handing him a crown. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Fleta Jan Brown; publishers, M. Witmark & Son, New York.

10232 Two Old Songs — Albert Benzler
An attractive bells solo with orchestra accompaniment of the old time favorite songs, "Suwanee River" and "Blue Bells of Scotland." Orchestra accompaniment.

10233 When the Meadow Larks Are Calling, Annie Laurie — Arthur C. Clough
The first Record made by Mr. Clough for the Edison Phonograph. Mr. Clough is a tenor, and his voice is unusually sweet. It is splendidly adapted to sentimental songs of this kind. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Theodore F. Morse; words, Richard H. Buck; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

10234 Down At The Huskin' Bee — Collins and Harlan
A "Rube" song, set to the music of the popular "S. R. Henry's Barn Dance," which was especially recorded for dancing on our Amberol Record No. 120. The words were written after the selection had been put out as an instrumental composition, which is in itself an unusual fact. The words are happy and it will be no uncommon thing to hear them sung while the composition is being played for dancing. The combination of attractive airs and happy verses will make this Record one of the best sellers on the October list. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, S. R. Henry; words, Monroe H. Rosenfeld; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

10235 Modern Love — Grace Cameron
A comic song, the sub-title of which is "Don't You Think That You'd Find Me a Useful Sort of Thing to Have Around the House?" The verses show a new way for a young man to propose to his girl. He uses such expressions as "I'm dying to pay your gas bills," "I'm longing to pay your rent," "I'm yearning to square that bill for the hair that you use as an ornament." It isn't the kind of a proposal that the average girl would care for, but it makes a funny song. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Leo Friedman; words, F. Clifford Harris; publishers, McKinley Music Co., Chicago.

10236 Grand Republic March — New York Military Band
A march number of a military character and with an air full of snap and go. Its interpretation by the New York Military Band could hardly be better. Publisher, Carl Fischer, N. Y.

Edison Amberol Records for October

215 Selection from "The Red Mill" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra
Another splendid Record made under the personal direction of Mr. Herbert. The music of "The Red Mill" was written by Mr. Herbert, and the Record, therefore, is made as he wants to see his compositions reproduced. The selection includes: "Every Day is Ladies' Day For Me"; "The Isle of Our Dreams"; "When You're Pretty and the World is Fair"; "Moonbeams"; "Because You're You"; "The Streets of New York"; "Mignonette"; "Finale." Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

216 I Wish I Had My Old Girl Back Again — Manuel Romain
A sentimental ballad echoing the regret of the singer because he had not mated with the girl whom at the time he thought was quiet and slow. He has come to realize that she would have made the right kind of a life partner, and he now wishes that he had her back again. An attractive air accompanies the words and the two make one of those songs in which Mr. Romain has been signally successful. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Paul Wallace; words, Hilliard MacDonald; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

217 Garden Melody — Albert Spalding
This beautiful melody shows the individuality of Robert Schumann, the famous composer. It is replete with that profound emotion and artistic refinement so notable with this eminent writer. The delicate passages of the composition are reproduced with a fidelity that cannot be obtained on any other form of Record. The absence of surface noises on Edison Records furnishes unequalled opportunities for fine violin work. The Record is made with piano accompaniment.

218 I've Got Rings On My Fingers — Billy Murray and Chorus
A comic song hit in Lew Fields's production, "The Midnight Sons." If this song does not become known from coast to coast, it will not be because it does not possess the essential features of catchy melody and words that attract attention. The hero of the song is Jim O'Shea, who was cast away upon an Indian Isle. The natives made him a chief and called him "Ji-ji-boo Jhi," and the fine in the chorus in which his name is used ought to alone make the song a success. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Maurice Scott; words, Weston & Barnes; publishers, C. B. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York.

219 Turkey in the Straw Sketch — Golden and Hughes
Another of the sketches with which Golden and Hughes are making such a hit in vaudeville. An exchange of funny remarks with the accompaniments of coon shouts in chorus, leads up to the singing of "Turkey in the Straw," a song with which Mr. Golden has been identified since he made his first Record for the Edison Phonograph. The rendition is even better here than given on the shorter Record. This selection will add to Mr. Golden's fame.

220 Selection from "Maritana" — Edison Concert Band
"Maritana" was the most popular opera written by William Vincent Wallace, who was born in Waterford, Ireland, June, 1814. "Maritana" was produced for the first time in London, November 15, 1845. It has since been regarded as one of the standard operas and is always included in the repertoire of English singing operas. This selection contains "Introduction to the Opera"; "That Voice, 'Tis Her"; "Duet and Ensemble"; "Finale of Second Act" and "With Rapture Glowing"; Finale of Third Act. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

221 My Pony Boy — Ada Jones and Chorus
A cowboy song with all the effects characteristic of Records of this kind. The song gives Miss Jones another opportunity to display her wonderful versatility. She is quite as much at home in singing about her cowboy as she has been in songs of various dialects. The assistance given her by a chorus of male voices adds to the attractiveness of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Charley O'Donnell; words, Bobby Heath; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co.

222 Dinah Dear — Collins and Harlan
These old-time Record-making artists were never more successful than in their presentation of coon duets, of which "Dinah Dear" is a simon pure specimen. The scene is laid in the South, and the words refer to the life so characteristic of the Southern darkey. The Record shows that Collins and Harlan have lost none of their ability to reproduce songs of this kind. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, John Larkins and Chris Smith; publishers, Thompson Music Co., New York.

223 Seneca Waltz — P. J. Frosini
An accordion solo unaccompanied and one of Mr. Frosini's own compositions. It is played in concert style. It is no exaggeration to say that this artist has no rival on the vaudeville stage. In playing at the leading vaudeville houses, he is always billed as "Frosini, Wizard of the Accordion."

224 I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go, Dear Lord — James F. Harrison
Of all the artists in the Edison catalogue, none could give a more impressive rendition of this sacred selection than Mr. Harrison. His fine baritone voice and his training as a church choir singer fit him for solo work of this kind. The selection is perhaps not as well known as some of the old-time favorites, but it will be none the less favorably received wherever it is heard. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Carrie E. Rounsefell; words, Mary Brown.

225 Love's Old Sweet Song — Whitney Brothers Quartett

The first Amberol Record made by this quartette. J. L. Molloy's sentimental ballad was never given a more delightful reproduction on a talking machine Record than is here presented. This Record, together with the one shown in the list of two-minute selections, will put the Whitney Brothers in a high niche among Edison artists. They sing unaccompanied. The words of this song were written by G. Clifton Bingham.

226 Old Comrades March — United States Marine Band

It is no exaggeration to class this Record as one of the best band Records ever produced by the National Phonograph Company or any other manufacturer of talking machines. It shows to an unusual degree the true band quality. Many instruments are heard and the definition of each is notably good. We especially invite attention to this Record. "Old Comrades March" is a well-known German military composition, its German title being "Alte Kameradin." Composer, C. Teike; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

227 If I Only Had a Home Sweet Home — Will Oakland

The counter-tenor Records being made by Mr. Oakland are eagerly awaited each month by thousands of Phonograph owners, who find his selections a source of great pleasure. Mr. Oakland has achieved remarkable fame, considering the short time he has been making Records. This song is descriptive of the poor lad who found life a hardship, because he never had a home, sweet home. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, A. L. McDermott; words, J. Johns; publisher, Will Rossiter, Chicago.

228 Cupid's Telephone — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

One of those conversational duets that reminds one favorably of the sextette in "Florodora." It is sung in the musical comedy, "Havana" and is one of the best things in the show. As may be inferred from the title, it is a song of the telephone, an instrument that gets considerable attention in "Havana." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Leslie Stuart; words, George Arthurs; publishers, Chappell & Co., New York.

229 Selection from "It Happened in Nordland" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"It Happened in Nordland" enjoyed a long run in New York and other large cities some two or three years ago. At the time, the numbers in the score were sung and whistled everywhere. Our Record introduces "Bandana Land." "The Mantree Maids," "Indian Dance," "Absinthe Frappe," "The Knot of Blue" and march finale, "The Commanderess-in-Chief." Composer, Victor Herbert; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

230 I Wonder if This Funny Little Boy Loves Me — Grace Cameron

Here is a "kid" song that will make a hit. It is a song of childish love making in which a little girl sings about the funny little boy next door, who kisses her through the pickets in the fence. Miss Cameron's imitation of a child singing the chorus is one of the best things she has done since she joined the Edison forces. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Seymour Furth; words, Geo. W. Day; publishers, Seymour Furth Music Pub. Co., New York.

31 Scatter Seeds of Kindness — Edison Mixed Quartette

An organ accompaniment adds to the charm of this well-known sacred selection. No other comment is needed about a hymn so well known as this. Music, S. J. Vail; words, Mrs. Albert Smith.

232 Dream of the Tyrollenne — Edison Venetian Trio

This delightful composition is included in the Edison catalogue of two-minute Records. (It is Record No. 8369) and is given as a violin and flute duet. It is even more attractive in the four-minute song, for the violin, flute and harp form an ideal combination for music of this character. Composer, Aug. Labitzky; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

233 R. P. O. E.—Elks Song — Nat M. Wills

Although Mr. Wills sings in a semi-humorous manner about the "best people on earth," there is much in the words of his song that reflect the more serious sentiment and motives back of this great organization. Elks generally will appreciate both the humor and sentiment of the selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Like all of Mr. Wills' selections this is original.

234 Operas — New York Military Band

An Indian Intermezzo having a musical individuality all its own. It does not copy earlier compositions, as many selections are disposed to do, especially if put out by the same writers. Composer, Jack Glogau; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

Three Amberol Records in Italian

5001 Del tempio al limitar,—"Pescatori di Perle" (Bizet) — Francesco Daddi and Vincenzo Reschiglian

5004 Ah! lo vedi,—"Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

5005 Verranno a te sull' aure,—"Lucia" (Donizetti) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

Advance List

Of 50 Special Edison Amberol Records for October

TITLE to Amberol Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before September 25th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on September 27th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on September 27th. Supplements and Bulletins will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after September 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before September 28th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on September 24th, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are urged to place orders for these Special Records on or before August 20th. Dealers should place orders with Jobbers before August 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

This Special List is being issued to partially meet the demand for a larger catalogue of Edison Amberol Records and also to provide an adequate number of Records suitable for Dancing. The longer playing length makes the Amberol Record ideal for Dancing purposes.

235 The Sunny South — Edison Concert Band

A selection of the following Southern plantation songs: "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe" and "Dixie." The arrangement is by J. Bodewalt Lampe; publishers, J. H. Remick & Co., New York.

236 Burlesque Opera — Nat M. Wills

The title of this Record and the fact that Mr. Wills makes it are sufficient to give any one a good idea of its character, especially if that one has seen Mr. Wills on the vaudeville stage. Mr. Wills' burlesque of an operatic performance is one of the funniest things in the list.

237 The Bird on Nellie's Hat — Ada Jones

Of all the comic songs in the catalogue of Standard Records few had greater popularity than "The Bird on Nellie's Hat." Additional verses are here given, and the fact that Miss Jones sings the song gives the Record even greater value. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Alfred Solman; words, Arthur J. Lamb; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

238 Selection from "Woodland" — American Symphony Orchestra

Another popular seller in the two-minute list. The two-minute Record included three selections from "Woodland." This one includes six, as follows: "Prince Eagle's Entrance"; "Bye Bye, Baby"; "The Tale of a Turtle Dove"; "If You Love Me, Lindy"; "Dainty Little Ingenue." The musical fantasy, "Woodland," is one of the most successful productions by Pixley & Luders. Publishers, M. Witmark & Son, New York.

239 Won't You Come Over to My House? — Will Oakland

A sentimental song of the kind adapted to Mr. Oakland's counter-tenor voice. This, too, is made over because of its great popularity in the two-minute list. Mr. Oakland's rendition will be found even more attractive than that given it by Mr. Gillette on the shorter Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Egbert Van Alstyne; words, Harry Williams; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

240 How Sandy Proposed — Ada Jones & Len Spencer

This original sketch by Mr. Spencer is rather a story of how Sandy did not propose. He had courted Jean for a long time and he was rather slow in asking the fateful question. The Record tells how Jean brought him around to the proposing point, and then he wondered how it happened.

241 Ballet Music from Faust—1 and 2 — Edison Concert Band

It includes the "Waltz Corps de Ballet" and "Ensemble of Helen and Trojan Maidens," both from Gounod's great opera. These selections from "Faust" are well known to music lovers. Publishers, Chappell & Co., New York.

242 Father Has a Tender Heart — Edward M. Favor

Still another of the "father" songs, in which he is again made the butt of a series of comic verses. One of his achievements in the tenderness line was to "beat" it to the rear when a battle took place and thereby save a number of men he might have killed. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Harry D. Kerr; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

243 The Old Rustic Bridge by the Mill — Ernest Pike & Peter Dawson

One of the old-time sentimental songs that tells the tale of love and unfulfilled vows. The singers are among the leaders on the staff of our London Recording Department, and the harmony of their voices on this Record will delight all who hear it. We have listed few duet Records so good as this one. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, T. Skelly.

244 Uncle Josh in a Photograph Gallery — Cal Stewart

Another four minutes of fun at the expense of Uncle Josh, whose adventures in a photograph gallery are quite as laughable as any of those previously given on Phonograph Records. As usual, the sketch is original with Mr. Stewart.

245 Nautical Airs — Alexander Prince

A fine concertina Record by one of the best artists in Great Britain. The selection includes, "Sailing"—that most melodious of seafaring songs; "Asleep in the Deep"; "They All Love Jack," with its delightful refrain; Stephen Adam's huge success, "The Midshipmite"; "Death or Nelson"; a most lively hornpipe, and "Rule Britannia."

246 For All Eternity — Alan Turner

This famous baritone song, the text of which speaks of love everlasting, is set to a melody that reflects the beauty of its lines. Translated into the different languages, it is sung by all the leading vocalists here and abroad. This song is also one of the best Records in the two-minute list. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Angelo Mascheroni; words, S. A. Herbert; publishers, Edward Schuberth & Co., New York.

247 Woodland Whispers — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic number, showing brilliant figures for flute and clarinet, with an original setting for strings that portray the composer's conception of the sounds of the forest. Written by Alphons Czibulka, the well-known European composer of operettas and concert pieces. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

248 Waiting — Edith Chapman

A sentimental ballad and one of the most popular compositions of Harrison Millard, a noted writer of high-class songs. It is perfectly fitted to Miss Chapman's delightful soprano voice. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, E. H. Flagg; publishers, T. B. Harms Company, New York.

249 Come Back to Erin — Ernest Pike & Peter Dawson

This song of world-wide popularity will serve to still further enhance the vogue that these British artists cannot fail to secure in this country because of their excellent duet work. The singers alternate in solo work and sing together in the choruses. Composer, Claribel.

250 Banjo Medley — Vess L. Ossman

A banjo solo introducing: "Wildflower," "The Whitewash Man," and "Yankiana Rag." The first two selections are vaudeville hits and the last-named is being featured in Anna Held's show, "Miss Innocence."

251 Two Grenadiers — Earl Cartwright

While too much cannot be said about the quality of this standard song, the most interesting feature about it is the artist who made it. Mr. Cartwright is one of the best-known baritones in the country outside of grand opera. He has a beautiful baritone voice. Whether singing from oratorio or simple ballads, he is a delight to all who hear him. This Record will please all who admire musical things of the better class.

252 Faust Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

This waltz from Gounod's famous opera is the finale of the second act. Its melody is known to everyone having any acquaintance with music. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

253 Crown Diamonds Overture — National (London) Military Band

This overture contains snatches of the principal airs in "Crown Diamonds," in which the unrivalled Patti once sang. The Record shows Auber's genius for composing lively music. The overture opens with a delightful melody and is followed by a gay air. A theme is then given out by the brass to an accompaniment of chromatic scales.

254 I'm Getting Ready for My Mother-in-Law — Edward Meeker

A song of the man who is preparing to receive his mother-in-law, who has promised to come for a six-weeks' stay. The things that he has framed up for her will either put her out of business entirely or establish her reputation for ability to overcome any situation and survive any hardship. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Jack Norworth; publishers, York Music Publishing Co., New York.

255 Teddy Bear's Picnic — American Symphony Orchestra

A still further makeover of one of the most attractive orchestra selections in the two-minute list. The Amberol Record provides an opportunity for a number of characteristic effects that were not possible on the two-minute Record. When we say it is twice as good as the shorter Record, Phonograph owners will appreciate that it is an unusually good selection. Composer, John W. Bratton; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

256 Where the Sunset Turns the Ocean's Blue to Gold — Byron G. Harlan

No one who has heard Mr. Harlan sing this well-known sentimental ballad on the Standard Record will fail to want it in its longer form on the Amberol Record. The latter Record will give it a new popularity and one that will probably keep it in the Amberol catalogue as long as it has been in that of the shorter Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, H. W. Petrie; words, Eva Fern Buckner; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

257 A Broken Heart — National (London) String Quartette

A delightful composition exquisitely played by a string quartette, which is a novelty in the Edison catalogues. "A Broken Heart" was written by Ernest Gillet, a composer of a number of selections of the better grade.

258 Ever of Thee — Ernest Pike & Peter Dawson

Here is an old-time sentimental ballad as well known that our Record of it will be hailed with delight by lovers of old-time songs everywhere. The admirable blending of voices and artistic singing of Mr. Dawson and Mr. Pike, give the song a rendition that is truly delightful. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Foley Hall; publishers, Willis & Hall, London.

259 Forgotten Melodies — Alexander Prince

A special arrangement for concertina, including the following songs: "Maggie Murphy's Home," "Molly and I and the Baby," "Knite Connor," "Daisy," "Two Little Girls in Blue," "See-Saw," "Annie Rooney," and "For Old Time's Sake."

278 Just Some One — Manuel Romain

This sentimental ballad is too good to confine it to the two-minute list, in which it is given as No. 9247, and where it is also sung by Mr. Romain. This Amberol Record adds another verse and chorus and gives Mr. Romain a better opportunity to do the song justice. The violin obligato played with the choruses is a pretty feature. Orchestra accompaniment. Music and words, Will R. Anderson. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

279 The Blind Boy in the Gallery — Digby Bell

A talking Record in which Mr. Bell portrays the city newsboy who has taken a little blind friend to the gallery of a theatre to "see the show." Of course, the blind boy cannot see, but the newsboy tells him about the show as it progresses, with all the characteristic language of the street. The Record is both humorous and pathetic. The words are original with Mr. Bell.

280 Sally In Our Alley — Whitney Brothers Quartette

This old English song is given an effective rendition by this remarkable quartette of brothers. The work of the quartette is a little different in character from any similar organization we have had. It shows the great palms that the Whitneys have taken to perfect themselves in quartette singing. Unaccompanied. Music, Henry Carey.

281 My Love, My Paradise — Thomas Chalmers

A sentimental song with words and music quite out of the ordinary. The music is by Ernest R. Ball and the words by Dave Reed. These writers became famous for their production of "Love Me and the World is Mine" (our Record No. 9371). This new song is different from their earlier success, and although it may not achieve the same widespread popularity, it is delightful both in words and music. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

282 He's A Cousin of Mine — Ada Jones

One of the best selling Records in the two-minute catalogue in spite of the fact that it has been before the public in Record form since December, 1906. It is our Record No. 9412. This Record contains more verses and Miss Jones' voice is better suited to the song than that of Mr. Roberts, who made the two-minute Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Chris Smith and Silvio Hein; words, Cecil Mack. Publishers, Gotham-Attucks Music Co., New York.

283 My Faith Looks Up To Thee — Miss Chapman and Mr. Harrison

A new musical setting in the form of a duet by soprano and baritone by P. A. Schnecker on the text of the familiar hymn by Dr. Lowell Mason. It is a sacred selection of the higher grade. It is impressively rendered by Miss Chapman and Mr. Harrison, both of whom had wide experience in church singing. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York.

284 When the Bell in the Lighthouse Rings — Gus Reed

The lover is leaving his bonny Kate, but declares that he will return and wed her when the bell in the lighthouse rings. Mr. Reed has a noble bass voice, and he displays it to good advantage in this selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Alfred Solman; words, Arthur J. Lamb. Publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

18 Records Made Especially for Dancing

260 Ange D'Amour — New York Military Band

One of the earlier and best known waltzes of Emil Waldteufel, the celebrated European composer of dance music. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

261 Confidence Waltz — New York Military Band

Another famous waltz by Emil Waldteufel.

262 Cremonia Waltz — New York Military Band

The waltz is arranged from the following celebrated classic compositions written by Theo. M. Tobani: "Flower Song," "Shabat Mater," "Nazareth," "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer," "Mignonne," and "Melody in F." Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

263 Gypsy Baron "Treasure" Waltz — New York Military Band

This waltz is from "The Gypsy Baron," the popular operetta by Johann Strauss, frequently styled "the waltz king." It is an attractive Record, whether used for dancing or merely for entertainments.

264 Good Night Waltz — New York Military Band

A special arrangement of the following selections: "My Dream Waltz," "Auld Lang Syne," "Good Night, Ladies," "Merrily We Roll Along" and "Home, Sweet Home."

265 Superba Lancers—1st and 2nd Figures — New York Military Band

266 Superba Lancers—3rd and 4th Figures — New York Military Band

267 Superba Lancers—5th Figure — New York Military Band

The lancers are given complete on these three Records, made wit calls. No one need now be without the facility for dancing the lancers on any and all occasions. The "Superba Lancers" were written by T. H. Rollinson, and are published by Oliver Ditson Company, New York.

268 Petunia Quadrille—1st and 2nd Figures — New York Military Band

269 Petunia Quadrille—3d and 4th Figures — New York Military Band

270 Petunia Quadrille—5th Figure (and Waltz) — New York Military Band

This quadrille was written by R. Schlepegrell and is given complete on these three Records. Calls are also included, for a quadrille with calls seems to be in greater demand than one without.

271 To the Front Two-Step — New York Military Band

An attractive band Record in addition to its utility for dancing. Composer, F. Karasek. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

272 Dixie Blossoms Two-Step — New York Military Band

A composition by Percy Wenrich. Made for dancing purposes but quite as entertaining when used in any other way. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

273 The Whitewash Man Medley Two-Step — New York Military Band

Introduces "The Whitewash Man," "Meet Me in Rosetime, Rosie," and "Yankee Doodle's Come to Town."

274 Dublin Daises Two-Step — New York Military Band

Another composition by Percy Wenrich. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

275 Lucky Moon Three-Step — New York Military Band

Specially recorded for the three-step dance. It is played in the proper tempo for dancing. Composer, George Stevens. Publisher, Vanderahoff Music Pub. Co., Williamsport, Pa.

276 Animation Schottische — New York Military Band

A useful Record for a dance whether at home or in a hall. Composer, J. C. Heed. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

277 How'dy Hiram, Barn Dance — New York Military Band

For the reigning barn dance. The music is characteristic of country life, in which the barn dance has always played an important part. Composer, Leo Friedman. Publishers, McKinley Music Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sales Department Bulletin No. 34
July 5, 1909
Trade Information for U. S. Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should receive its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past our corps of experts have been endeavoring to devise a plan whereby we could, in a measure, overcome some of the objectionable features of our present type of horn, and in presenting the Edison "Cygnet" Horn for your consideration, we believe we have secured a horn which will meet with your approval, as exhaustive tests have proven that we have not only obtained an increased volume of sound, but much better results phonographically.

The "Cygnet" Horn (together with a suitable crane), will be ready for shipment on or about September 1st, 1909, and this will place our Jobbers and Dealers in a position where they can secure such quantities of these goods as they may require for their fall trade.

Description.

We submit, herewith, a description of the new horn and crane for your information:

An upright horn, mounted on top of the Phonograph; in shape somewhat suggestive of a swan's neck; hence its name (Cygnet, or young swan), which leaves the space in front of the machine free and clear.

The horn is sectional (for convenience in packing), consisting of two parts—the bell and a detachable curved stem, with a metal flexible connection, which takes the place of the customary rubber horn connection.

The horn-crane consists of a socket, and two curved rods (also for convenience in packing). The lower part is called the support-rod and the upper suspension-rod. The socket is fastened to the back of the Phonograph cabinet, central with the cylinder.

Properly applied, the whole weight of the horn must be sustained by the crane when the Reproducer is raised up clear of the Record. (See instruction sheets re. Cygnet Horn and Crane.)

The new horn has a great advantage over the old style straight horn in that it does not take up any extra room, furthermore, it can always remain suspended on the crane, whether the machine is playing, or the cabinet is closed.

This horn also has the distinct advantage that it can be turned through an arc of 180 degrees, permitting the machine to be placed in a convenient position, and the horn can be pointed in almost any direction.

Separate "Cygnet" Horn Equipments.

Cygnet Horns, which may be used on any Edison Fireside, Standard, Home, Triumph or Alva Phonographs, together with a suitable horn-crane, may be obtained upon order, shipments to be made about September 1st, 1909, at the following prices:

CYGNET HORNS AND CRANES, COMPLETE.

Regular black, with gold stripe:

	Dealer.	List.
Cygnet No. 10.....	$6.00 net	$7.50 net
Cygnet No. 11.....	6.50 net	8.00 net
Oak or Mahogany:
Cygnet No. 10.....	10.25 net	12.50 net
Cygnet No. 11.....	10.50 net	13.00 net

In ordering, kindly specify—

Cygnet No. 10—for use on Fireside, Standard and Home Phonographs;

Cygnet No. 11—for use on Triumph or Alva Phonographs.

Edison Phonographs Equipped with "Cygnet" Horns.

The Edison "Cygnet" is a new type upright sectional horn, which may be used on any of the following types of Edison Phonographs, viz.: Fireside, Standard, Home, Triumph and Alva, which will be supplied upon order with any such machines (in place of the regular black horn), on and after September 1st, 1909, at an additional price of $5.00 each, list, making the list prices of such machines when so equipped, as follows:

Color—Regular black with bold stripes.

Standard, regular.....	$35.00 with 10 petal horn
Home, regular.....	40.00 with 10 petal horn
Triumph, regular.....	60.00 with 11 petal horn

Home, combination.	58.00 with 10 petal horn
Triumph, combination.	85.00 with 11 petal horn
Alva, combination.	110.00 with 11 petal horn

All of the above subject to regular Machine discounts.

NOTE—All "Idelia" Phonographs will be equipped with Mahogany "Cygnet" horns, without additional cost, the list price to remain at $125.00.

It is our purpose to continue all of our present types of machines, with regular horns, but the new horn permits the trade an option on the upright horn (in black, oak or mahogany finish), thereby supplying more variety than has heretofore been possible, thus meeting a trade demand which has been insistent.

These new goods may be placed upon sale as soon as received, but we will exercise caution in shipping into a certain territory at the same time, where Jobbers' orders have been received.

Orders should be placed immediately, thus giving us an opportunity to prepare for the demand, which we feel certain is assured.

Suspended List, July 20, 1909

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

Foreign Records

And now, Mr. Edison Dealer, we are going to have a short talk about a branch of the business that we feel is not receiving the attention on the part of Dealers that it deserves. We refer to the sale of Foreign Records.

Consistently and often we have pointed out to you in these columns the advisability of putting in a good stock of carefully selected Foreign Records and then going after the trade that they are most likely to attract.

Your choice of numbers must, of course, be regulated by the nationalities of the foreigners who reside in your locality; your method of attracting the attention of this trade, to be effective, should be a departure from the conventional "ad" in a local paper.

We make an exception to the statement if the "ad" be placed in a paper printed in the native tongue of the foreign population, as we consider such an "ad" one of the best possible methods of attracting attention.

If there is no such paper in your locality we suggest that some method be employed that will bring the subject in a forcible way directly to the attention of the prospective trade, such as a letter mailed to each family announcing your stock and inviting them to your store to hear the Records.

Or you might arrange a concert of native selections, being careful to give it as much publicity as possible.

An effective way of advertising the affair would be by hand bills or transparency printed in the native language and sent through the foreign district.

Give your program as much variety as possible and note the reception given each Record as played to guide yourself in future orders. We intend to suggest from time to time in these columns programmes for such concerts.

A great many Edison Dealers have awakened to the enormous possibilities of this trade.

Others have not, and we propose to continue calling the subject to their attention as there is absolutely no good reason why almost every Dealer in this business can not successfully attract such trade to himself, there being very few cities or towns that have not their quota of foreign born population.

Invariably they are music lovers and naturally prefer the music and songs of their native lands, so that it should only be necessary to make a sale or two to establish a good business in machines and Records.

Our Foreign Record Catalogues are most complete, embracing songs and musical selections given by the best talent of all the nationalities that are represented in any numbers in this country, so that there is no danger of inability to supply your trade once it is established.

In addition to the field that your locality may offer for sales among foreigners there is the probability of these Records finding popularity among the native born.

There is no reason why a music lover should not be attracted by the melodies of a foreign people when rendered by recognized artists and when such numbers are recorded as representing the best compositions of that people.

So that you have a double reason to carry a stock of Foreign Records—YOU CAN SELL THEM TO BOTH FOREIGNERS AND NATIVES.

Think the subject over carefully, Mr. Dealer, and act.

Correction

In the July issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY in an article treating on the subject of Reproducer Exchange we stated that "all combination attachments (Gem excepted) will contain the present Model H Reproducer." This was in error, as the Model H Reproducer will form part of all attachments.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

TEXT:

Blessed are the Pacemakers.

WHICH MEANS that if you set a hot enough pace at the start you'll kill off your competitors before they get fairly under way.

When Terry McGovern was champion he stayed champion longer than any other man in his class because he set the pace in the first round and had his opponent scared to death before the gong sounded. It took Terry more than one round to finish his man in some of his scraps but he won most of his fights in the first and many were won before he even went into the ring because the men he went up against knew they were licked before the fight started. Terrible Terry was a pacemaker.

And being a pacemaker applies just as aptly to your case. Get the jump on your competitor. Whatever you think he's going to do, do it and beat him to it. If his windows are twice as big as yours make yours work twice as hard.

If he advertises in the newspapers once a week, advertise twice and double on the space. If he sends out printed matter and circulars on Monday send yours out on Friday and follow them up on Monday so that while he may be hitting the nail on the head, by the time he's ready to hit again there's no nail for him to hit. You've driven it in and are starting on a new one.

As a precedent for pacemakers, take Edison for example. Everything he has done set the pace in its particular industry. He produced the first sound reproducing instrument and all such instruments have followed his pace. The Edison alone has held it.

With Amberol Records, the "Fireside," Victor Herbert and Sousa and the name Edison, you have enough talking points to set a pace so hot you'll put the "rock-a-bye" on your competitor before he comes within hailing distance.

Opening of the Fall Campaign

The first gun of the fall campaign was fired on August 16th, on which date practically the last detachment of the company's travelling staff, after receiving final instructions, left for their field of operation.

By September 1st every member of the staff will be at his post and the campaign will then start in earnest.

As is customary each year, the selling force came in from the road in two divisions (the first reaching here about a month ago) for a conference and to receive instructions from the officers and Sales Department preparatory to resuming their road work.

While here every department of the factory was inspected, with a view to gaining a thorough knowledge of the details of manufacture, views were exchanged at daily sessions, and suggestions and advices given by officials to the boys to guide them in their work.

The staff has been increased by the addition of nine new members, which will enable us to cover a greater territory than was formerly possible.

Some changes were also made in the territorial assignments of the old members of the staff.

The addition made to our selling force is an illustration of the aggressiveness of the campaign we propose to carry on during the coming season.

The Continuous Exchange Proposition Misunderstood

In our August issue we called the attention of the trade to the more important clauses of the Continuous Exchange Proposition.

Despite that fact, however, and the care with which every detail of its stipulations was explained in our Sales Department Bulletin of May 1st, we continue to receive shipments of Records that are not accompanied by the necessary order.

We reprint the particular clause affecting that feature of the proposition for the benefit of those who do not seem to understand it:

Immediately shipment is made, enclosed Form letter (Form 1570) must be sent to us addressed to the "National Phonograph Co., Exchange Department, Orange, N. J.," advising the total number of each kind (cut-out and defective) Records returned, stipulating the number of cases in the complete shipment. A prepaid Bill of Lading must also be enclosed with this letter.

You must also fill in on Triplicate Exhange Certificate furnished herewith, (Form 1567) the name and address of the Jobber through whom you want this exchange transaction handled.

Dealers must, at the same time, send us an order for immediate shipment (using enclosed Form 1571) for a quantity of Edison Standard or Amberol Records, at least equal to the number of such Records as he is returning, which order we will forward to Jobber you designate when credit has been rendered for Records returned.

NOTE: Orders MUST be for STOCK RECORDS ONLY, and not for any Records contained in Advance lists.

We wish it were possible to place greater emphasis upon this particular clause so as to make an indelible impression on the Trade; for the disregard of its provisions entails an amount of correspondence, delay and dissatisfaction that is quite as annoying as it is unnecessary.

Dealers should remember that we must get the order; it should not be sent to the Jobber.

It will reach him without unnecessary delay after we have rendered credit covering the return.

In further explanation we would advise that the orders sent with the returned Records may consist of either all Standard, all Amberol, or a combination of both; provided, however, that when a greater number is ordered than returned, or when Amberols are ordered and Standards returned, the Dealer ordering will have to pay the difference in price.

In any event the number ordered must equal the number returned.

To make the matter quite clear we would state that if 100 Standards are returned the Dealer may order 100 Standards, or 100 Amberols, or 50 of each, or 60 of one and 40 of the other, etc., but he will be charged the difference in price where the order exceeds in monetary value the return.

It must be understood also that as the Continuous Exchange Proposition is intended to be a permanent feature of the business, no special concessions will be granted to any one; all must abide by its conditions.

Important to the Trade

Jobbers and Dealers are requested to return to the factory for immediate replacement all the stock they may have of French Record No. 17124, Les Lanciers, (1re et 2e figures), ordered prior to August 15.

We recently discovered that the entire stock moulded previous to that date is incorrect and are anxious to make replacement at the earliest possible moment.

Don't neglect your Labor Day window display and don't postpone its preparation. Get it started now.

British Numbers Duplicated in Domestic Catalogue

We wish to draw the attention of the Trade to the fact that our Domestic Catalogue and Supplements contain certain Records that also appear in the British list.

The Records and artists are identical in every respect. The numbers were adopted into our catalogue in order to give them the publicity in this country that their excellence demands.

Following is the list complete, with corresponding numbers in the British Catalogue:

President Frank L. Dyer in London

The following contribution by its European branch appeared in a recent edition of the Talking Machine World:

"Frank L. Dyer, president of the National Phonograph Co., is a visitor to these shores, combining business with pleasure. He will visit Paris, Berlin, and possibly Italy before his return home on September 1. Interviewed by your correspondent, President Dyer had a few interesting words to say concerning conditions in this country. 'As in America, I find that the British markets are experiencing a similar general depression, which reacts upon this industry. Business with us has, however, held up remarkably well, chiefly owing to the increased trade which usually follows the introduction of something different—in instance the Amberol Records and attachment. In combination with these and our new machines next season's trade is likely to develop very rapidly.'

"We were glad to learn of Mr. Dyer's intention to give evidence before the Copyright Committee. His views upon the question of musical copyright must be recognized in relation to Records, the Parliamentary Bill should be so framed as to disturb our interests as little as possible. No monopoly on any one piece of music must be allowed, as such would create an intolerable state of things very harmful to the industry as a whole. Mr. Dyer's contribution to this question will merit the appreciation it deserves throughout the trade."

The New Catalogue of Phonograph Parts

We have been unavoidably delayed in the publication of our new catalogue of Phonograph parts because of the inability of our mechanical department to supply complete information.

The re-numbering of the new and old parts has entailed an unexpected amount of labor, and as the work is very far from completion, it is altogether unlikely that we shall be in a position to put the new catalogue in the hands of the trade for at least two months.

This information is published because of the numerous requests that are being received for copies of the old catalogue, the supply of which is completely exhausted and, of course, will not be renewed.

Victor Herbert Records

Are you pushing the sale of Victor Herbert Records? With the addition of the November list we have one Standard and four Amberol selections from the hands of Mr. Herbert.

The Amberol numbers are the gems of four of his most recent and notable successes—"Mlle. Modiste," "The Red Mill," "It Happened in Nordland" and "Little Nemo"—all tuneful operas, whose metropolitan reception and subsequent popularity throughout the country attest to their musical worth.

These Records were made under the leadership and personal observation and direction of Mr. Herbert himself and are as perfect mechanically as they are musically in consequence.

This fact should not be lost sight of in advertising these Records. They are Victor Herbert Records, first, last and always. The composition, the rendition, the supervision and the recommendation—all are his.

And that's a positive guarantee of merit that admits of no argument, for it is an incontrovertible argument in itself.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

Fireside and Amberol Sales

From all points of the compass we receive the most flattering reports of the success that has attended the introduction to the public of the Fireside Phonograph.

East and West, North and South, England and Mexico, and far off Australia—all contribute their quota to the ever increasing array of favorable comments.

Note what the trade papers have to say on the subject.

All agree that the Fireside is the one big hit, the best seller of the season.

And there's a reason—it's a rich man's machine at a poor man's price.

The Fireside is all that we anticipated and predicted for it. It filled a long-felt want in the talking machine market.

It met in every requirement the demand of the Trade for an inexpensive machine that possessed its exceptional advantages.

It's a Popular Phonograph with Popular Points of Perfection at a Popular Price.

That alliteration might be incorporated into a pretty good ad, at that, Mr. Edison Man.

Commensurate with and to a very great extent because of the popularity of the Fireside is the extraordinary impetus that the sale of Amberol Records has received since its introduction.

They sold on the strength of their own merits before; now their sales are increasing because of the popularity of the combination they form with the Fireside.

A $22.00 machine and a four-minute Record —a Phonograph that in the essential details of style, finish and tone reproduction is surpassed by no machine on the market, and a Record that offers more and more varied entertainment than any other made—is a combination that can't be beaten.

Just now it is "getting the money," as it deserves.

Demonstration at the Home

An old subject? Only in the sense that it has been discussed before.

A subject is never old so long as it is a live subject; and, viewed in that light, this one has not shown the first sign of age as yet.

In what sense is it a live subject?

Well, for one thing, the method of introducing goods that it suggests is (and necessarily always will be) in constant practice in all lines of business in which the merchandize can be brought into the immediate presence and observation of the buyer.

That's where a Phonograph Dealer has a big advantage—in the portability of his goods.

He is not handling an article whose unwieldiness or weight prevents him from introducing and demonstrating it in the home.

He is not reduced to the necessity of adopting some means of bringing the customer to him.

That calls for advertising, and advertising entails an outlay of money, the results to be obtained from which are to a certain extent problematical.

There is little or no expense to this plan. Where there is it is merely nominal.

There is no question of its feasibility.

The only question is, therefore, one of result —will it pay?

Life insurance is one of the greatest and most successful industries of the age.

Have you ever attempted to discover the secret of its success?

It can be attributed directly to the fact that its canvassers present their arguments most successfully in man's most vulnerable point of attack—his home.

And with studied shrewdness they make the home the subject of their arguments.

You can do exactly the same thing, Mr. Dealer. You have exactly the same subject on which to base your argument and the same vantage ground on which to present it—in the home. Your position and his are respectively those of attack and defense.

In his home, surrounded by his family (who nine times out of ten are interested and encouraging the sale), with leisure time at his command to give your demonstration and arguments the attention that is not possible at your store, even if you get him there, he is absolutely defenseless.

You have him at your mercy, and if he or any of his family is at all musically inclined (and who is not?) he will surrender with very little show of resistance.

Comparatively few Dealers, we are led to believe, realize the possibilities of this method of selling Phonographs, or if they do they dismiss the proposition because it entails time and effort.

The latter class will, sooner or later, succumb to the process of elimination.

The business is there—there is no doubt on that point; it's only a question of energy in going after it, and the amount required will not sap your vital force to any great extent either.

We are bringing this subject to the attention of the Phonograph public in the November PHONOGRAM and would suggest that you advertise your readiness to supply outfits and shave Records.

President Diaz Honors the Edison Phonograph

We have just been advised that President Diaz, of Mexico, as a compliment to his personal friend, Mr. Edison, has made a Record for the Edison Phonograph and has most kindly consented to our placing it before the people of his country, as well as before the people of other countries interested in him and the great work he has accomplished for Mexico.

The information about this Record was not received till this issue of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY was ready for the press and we have had no opportunity, therefore, to give it the attention that so important a matter deserves. We will treat the subject fully next month, by which time we may be able to advise the trade when the Record will be ready for its use.

New Combination Type Gem Phonograph

Sales Department Bulletin No. 35, reprinted on page 20 of this issue, formally announced to the trade the new combination type Gem Phonograph, which will be placed on sale simultaneously in the United States and Canada on October 1st, 1909.

Its retail price in the United States will be $15.00, and in Canada $19.50.

The Combination type Gem has been designed to meet the universal demand of the public for a low-priced Phonograph equipped with a reproducer that would permit of the playing of both Standard and Amberol Records.

For this purpose it is equipped with the new Model "K" reproducer, the same as accompanies the Fireside Phonograph, and which, by merely changing the position of a lever, puts the machine in position to play either Record.

We are satisfied that this particular feature of the new Gem will bring it into even greater popularity than the Fireside won, because of the difference in the price.

Its other new feature is a new specially finished maroon colored horn, 19 inches long, with bell 11 inches wide, which greatly adds to the attractiveness of the outfit. The horn will be packed in case with the machine.

The appearance of the machine body is like the Model "B" machine, except that the frame casting is a little larger.

The body is finished in a rich deep maroon, with black and gold stripes, and bears the name "Edison" instead of "Gem."

The machine will run fully one Amberol or two Standard Records, which fact will commend it to the public with little further argument.

We predicted a popular reception for the Fireside Phonograph and our prophecy was fulfilled. The reasons that brought the Fireside into existence and popularity obtain in greater measure with the new Gem, the most obvious being the price. We therefore repeat our prophecy for this new type machine, and we advise Dealers to anticipate the inevitable demand for the Combination Gem by placing orders with their Jobbers as early as possible.

Remember, the new Combination Gem Phonograph will be placed on sale on October 1st.

Among the Trade Papers

Leo Slezak, the famous tenor of the Royal Opera House, Vienna, Austria, and who will appear at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, during the coming season, has contracted to make cylinder Records exclusively for the Edison Phonograph. In operatic circles Slezak is hailed as a second Tamagno, and his signing with Gatti-Casazza has been hailed as a decided acquisition to the celebrated Metropolitan Opera Company. He has a phenomenal tenor voice of great strength and compass.

Another addition to the list of Edison Record artists is Earl Cartwright, a baritone soloist of national reputation, whose first offerings will appear in the October list of Amberols. Mr. Cartwright is a thorough musician as well as an accomplished vocalist.—Music Trades Review.

It is noticeable that Amberol Records are creating an increasing demand for Edison machines, persons who have heretofore not been interested becoming profitable customers. Owners of Edison machines are purchasing the four-minute attachment, with selections of Amberol Records, and all express themselves delighted with the improvement.—Talking Machine World.

Phonographs induce people to buy Records, but don't forget that Records make people want Phonographs. Each month there are 40 new Records and therefore 40 reasons why those who have no Phonograph should purchase one.

W. H. Hug Addresses Ohio Association of Talking Machine Dealers

W. H. Hug, traveling representative in Ohio for the National Phonograph Company, addressed the members of the Ohio Association of Talking Machine Dealers on the occasion of their summer meeting at Cedar Point, Sandusky, Ohio, August 4th and 5th. His remarks were cordially received by those present, and we are reproducing them for the benefit of the Dealers generally.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I dare say your worthy President scarcely realized, when requesting me to address you on the subject, "Ohio's Part of 'The Other 15,000'," the personal importance of the subject assigned me. All Ohio dealers engaged in selling Edison Phonographs and Records are undoubtedly interested to some extent in the success or failure of their neighboring dealer. However, you are responsible only to yourselves for your individual success or failure, whereas for myself, as representative of The National Phonograph Co., it is up to me to visit you from time to time, go over general conditions with you, listen to your complaints, (which I am glad to say are few), adjust them if possible, give you such selling pointers and information as I can, keep you enthused and help you to continue as successful dealers. You will therefore understand that I am personally very much interested in and in a sense responsible for the success or failure of each one of "Ohio's Part of 'The Other 15,000'" Edison dealers.

During the past three and a half years I have visited Edison dealers in eleven states besides Ohio. Ohio today has a few over 500 Edison dealers in good standing, a majority of whom we call first class dealers. A large percentage carry complete stocks, are prominent business men in their various localities and are hustlers. These facts, with observations while working in other states, permit me to say to you in all sincerity and with personal pride, "Ohio's part of 'The other 15,000'" Edison dealers in the United States is prominent with a capital P. This is further evidenced by the fact that you are the first, to my knowledge, to organize a state Association of Talking Machine Dealers, which in itself displays the progressiveness now so essential in successful merchandising. An association of this kind can do much, not only for its members by co-operation in forming selling plans and so forth, but for the business in general. Its officers and members are to be congratulated on the enterprise displayed, and you have my assurance of hearty co-operation for your continued success, and you need but advise me of anything I can do to that end.

The question often been put to me, principally by the dealer who sits and wails for business to come to him: "Is the Talking Machine business on the wane?" A few words of optimism might not be out of place,—your honorable President refers to it as soothing syrup. 'Tis true the Talking Machine business has been quiet for some time; so have all other lines. The business is not suffering any more, if as much, as many other manufacturing lines. Such questions show lack of confidence. Have the manufacturers lost confidence? Emphatically, no! They are going ahead improving present goods, designing and experimenting on new stuff, engaging high-priced and well-known artists and musical organizations for making records, arranging to spend more money than ever for advertising and so on. Surely they would not do all this if they did not expect to get it all back with interest in the shape of increased profits in the future. I doubt if it has ever occurred to many dealers that all engaged in the business are as one large family, yet such is the case. Manufacturers, Jobbers and Dealers, —one could not exist very well without the other. Of the three the dealer is of much importance for it is he who sells the goods to the user, consequently the business is largely in his hands. The National Polonograph Co. is willing to back on your ability to sell Edison goods, and it is only fair to ask that each dealer continue to do his part and join in the confidence we have in the future of the business.

Any dealer who reads each issue of the Edison Phonograph Monthly carefully and lets what he reads soak in cannot help but realize that present conditions are but temporary, and wise is the dealer who uses the present for getting-ready time—going over his stock, and dusting it off, seeing that each machine is in perfect running order, arranging them in a more attractive manner if possible, preparing plans for fall advertising, preparing a mailing list or revising the one he already has, making plans to give concerts in his store, arranging to entertain social gatherings of lodge and church members. The advertising thus gained cannot be had in any other way. Many other things can also be done which will be beneficial later on, one of which is to engage canvassers to work outside trade; for without doubt the return of normal business conditions means that Talking Machine business will be as good or better than ever.

It is of course a fact that the dealer carrying a complete and up-to-date stock has a natural advantage over his competitors. However, it does not follow that such a dealer will get the greatest amount of business out of a given territory. I have seen dealers in the small towns with smaller stocks do more business than their neighbors who carry complete stocks and have a larger field, simply because they put the ginger and energy into the business and used every method at their command for getting sales. I am sorry to say some dealers with large stocks are not nearly so enterprising.

A dealer in southwestern Ohio, who had been going along doing a fairly good business and carrying only a fair sized stock, was induced last March to put out a canvasser and sold 13 outfits the first three weeks. It is needless to add that when last I saw him he was carrying a full line and doing a rushing business.

I have in mind another dealer located in a town of about 4,500 people, who has sold over 500 outfits, mostly Homes and Triumphs, in the last three years through canvassers, and says his cash business carried his installment accounts. Any of you should be able to do as well.

Another good plan is the Free Trial Proposition. I know of a dealer in one of the large cities that has over 30 dealers, who advertised, "30 days Free Trial in your home." I happened to be in that city a few weeks ago and some of the other dealers thought it foolish and poor business method: Nevertheless the dealer actually sold 130 outfits in May and June of this year, stating that not more than two out of ten outfits placed were returned, and that a majority of the deals were closed inside of ten days. The outfits were all sold in the city.

It has been remarked by some dealers that they have sold all the Talking Machines that they can in their locality. When a dealer who believes he has done so can show sales in 70 out of every 100 homes, I will agree with him, not before. As long as people enjoy music and enjoy being entertained there is an opportunity to sell a Phonograph in every home. Jim Jones may not have wanted an outfit last year or last week, but with the constant improvements he may be ready to buy tomorrow. Keep everlastingly after him. Some of you may remember how I keep after you for an order.

It is necessary in these days of hustle for business that a dealer keep plugging away every moment. What is needed is confidence, enthusiasm and ginger. The latter is a good tonic, lets take some. It's helping Hughie Jennings' Detroit team win the American League Pennant again and will surely help us all sell more Edison Phonographs and Records. Gentlemen, let us get busy this fall and see if we cannot make even more prominent "Ohio's part of 'The other 15,000'."

I take this opportunity to thank you one and all for the many kindnesses shown me when visiting you, and to assure you that I have your interests at heart as well as those of the Company I represent.

Phonographs in the Arctic

H. D. Cockburn, salesman for R. D. Williams & Sons Co., Toronto, sends the following interesting letter:

"I have just returned from Cobalt, where we have a very active customer, Mr. Secord. This gentleman has sold some twelve machines lately, which have been taken up to Gow Gander, a mining camp about 500 miles north of Toronto. From the last railroad center, there is yet sixty miles to go by sleigh, the snow being about four feet on the level. One team takes about two and a half to three tons of provisions, etc. It takes five days to make the trip and the cost is from $85 to $90 per team. In spite of the tremendous cost of provisions, etc., the Edison Phonograph is not forgotten owing to the fact as above stated about twelve machines have already found their way into Gow Gander. There are 600 teams drawing provisions into this mining camp. I think they will soon have an Edison Phonograph in every tent and shed. There are no homes yet up there."

Home Recording

In the November number of the Phonogram we call attention to the attractive features of home recording and lend special emphasis to its value as a means of entertainment at parties, etc.

Coincident with the suggestion we have given the public should come your announcement that you are in a position to supply the equipment for making Records at home and are prepared to shave the blanks.

Don't lose sight of this feature of the business. It's profitable in itself and conduces to sales in other lines.

Home recording is a fascinating amusement and once started it grows on one.

It will attract Edison Phonograph owners to your store, which means the prospect of selling more regular Records.

It will also influence the prospective buyer of a machine to purchase an Edison, which is the only type of Phonograph on which Records can be made at home.

That's an advantage that you should dwell upon in all your Phonograph talks.

Write to us to-day if you are not supplied with a catalogue of accessories, or for further information on this subject.

New Operas by Herbert

Of interest to the trade is the announcement that Victor Herbert, who is supervising the work of our Recording Department in the capacity of musical critic, will offer two new operas to the public early in the coming season. Commenting on the fact, The Music Trades says:

"With the nearer approach of the coming musical season public interest centers more and more in the announcement of the latest works which will bear the distinguished name of Victor Herbert, and the legion of admirers of that great and gifted composer are prepared to hear that, as heretofore, he will be prominent in this year's new productions.

"Mr. Herbert is now at work on two pieces which are rapidly nearing completion. The lyrics of both are by George V. Hobart. One of these, as yet unnamed, will be brought out on Broadway by Lew Fields early in the fall. The other will also be produced by Mr. Fields in October, when that clever actor-manager will be seen in the stellar role. A name for the second production has not yet been finally chosen, but it will probably be called "Deutschland," and for it are promised many novelties in the way of music and lyrics, besides quaint and original settings. So confident is Mr. Fields of its success that he will spare no pains or expense in giving it to the public in a meritorious manner.

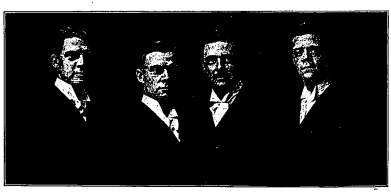
Locating Menlo Park

Not one passenger in a thousand traveling on the Pennsylvania railroad between New York and Philadelphia, knows where Menlo Park is located, although nearly everyone knows that the little town was made famous because Thomas A. Edison for ten years had his laboratory there. The "Wizard of Menlo Park" was the title given Mr. Edison because of the many important inventions born in the Menlo Park laboratory.

We have put Menlo Park on the map by erecting directly opposite the station an immense bulletin board, bearing the words "Menlo Park—Birthplace of the Edison Phonograph." The sign is reproduced in the above illustration. It is 20 feet high and 125 feet long, one of the largest of its kind in the country.

Its size and location can hardly fail to inform every passenger on the Pennsylvania railroad just where Menlo Park is located.

S. R. O.



S. R. O. is a sign, hung up more or less frequently in New York theatres, and means "Standing Room Only."

If any Edison Dealers are crowding their concerts to capacity and need an S. R. O. sign we'll be glad to see that they're supplied. But don't send out invitations to your concerts and then give your patrons an S. R. O. deal by providing no chairs for them to sit on. The merits of the Phonograph go hand in hand with comfort.

As James Russell Lowell says:

"He stood awhile on one foot fust,
And then awhile on t'other;
And on which one he felt the wust
He couldn't ha' told ye nuther."

"Standing Room Only" is legitimate after sitting room is all taken, but not before.

WHITNEY BROTHERS' QUARTETTE

Selling the Goods

Harvest Time

September is the month when all business is supposed to come to life.

It's all a matter of habit that got its start with the Spring and Fall styles in clothes.

The Phonograph business has no season handicap—it's the original every-day-in-the-year business. Nevertheless, thousands of people have got the habit of opening up and spending in the Fall, so the stunt to do is to humor their weakness and sell them Phonographs and Amberol Records while they're all in the spending mood.

The vast majority of people want the most they can get for their money. You've got them all on your side when you offer them Amberol Records. They're still with you when you show them the "Fireside."

The other kind of people aren't worth going after—'cause there isn't any other kind.

There's only one kind of "Fireside" that's popular in warm weather—that's an Edison. Push it, and watch the crowd gather 'round.

There's only one kind of Record that plays long enough to satisfy everybody—that's Amberol.

The Spread Barrel and the Bullseye

A two cent stamp is the biggest two cents' worth in the world if you use it right. Work it to death on your mailing list and don't forget that there are newspapers published in your town and the Editor may starve if you don't advertise—and so may you.

You can shoot more directly with a rifle than with a shot-gun, but the shot-gun may bring down something you didn't expect to get, besides whatever you're shooting at.

A mailing card or circular letter will bring in the business you're aiming at, but a newspaper ad will bring in business you didn't know existed.

When Teddy went to Africa he took more than one kind of gun 'cause he knew that all fish don't bite on the same brand of table d'hote.

Have You Tried This?

Here's a stunt! Use the telephone. Call up a live prospect, tell him to hold the wire, hold the transmitter to the horn of the Phonograph and let him hear one of the new Records. Then tell him to come down and hear some more new ones before his enthusiasm cools. He's yours.

Another Church Stunt

Get in at the church bazar. Take some blank records with you. Get the choir soloist to sing some favorite selections into the Phonograph right before the crowd. Then let the Phonograph play them.

Then auction the record off, starting the bids at the regular Record price—all above regular price to go to the church.

A raffle might be better yet, as the winner would possibly be a person who didn't own a Phonograph and would have to buy one to play the Record. Just like buying an automobile because your wife's got a pair of goggles.

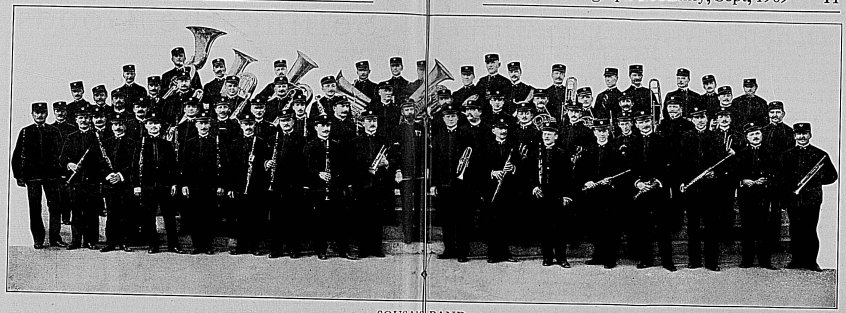
Coming and Going

A farmer sows the seed and waits for the profits.

Here's where you've got it on the farmer.

You sell an Edison Phonograph and you've not only planted the seeds for future profits on Records but you've got the profit on the Phonograph. Every sale of an Edison Phonograph is an investment—and it's the only investment that pays back a cash dividend on the spot equal to the principal and the profit, with no limit on the future.

Quirks



"All things come to him who waits."

That's a good maxim to sidestep.

"All things come to him who goes and gets 'em." That's better.

Remember that story about the "cullud puhson" what was scared by a ghost and was runnin' 'cross the fields when he stirred up a rabbit? He kicked the rabbit out of the road and said: "Get out o' mah way, yo' Cottontail, an' let somebody run that cah run." That's the way your mailing system ought to bowl over the other fellows.

Please note that our only mould of selection No. 17192, Souvenir d'Alarme, by M. Lejal, is defective and the selection is therefore to be treated as a "cut-out." If this selection is made over it will be re-listed later on and the trade advised concerning it.

SOUSA'S BAND

Imitated by many, approached by few, surpassed by none—is the record of Sousa's Band, to-day the most celebrated organization of its kind in the world. Its fame has spread to the most remote points of civilization.

In America Sousa is a household word. The supremacy of his band in the realm of music is unchallenged and unquestioned in this country; in foreign lands it is a standard of merit by which other similar organizations are judged. If imitation be the sincerest form of flattery then for no other reason will it be awarded the palm of superiority than for the scores of imitators that have followed in the wake of its many successes.

Its guiding spirit, John Philip Sousa, to whose brilliant leadership in the interpretation of his own inimitable compositions, as well as of the efforts of other composers, its successes are in great measure due, occupies a unique position in the musical world.

He is a native-born American, which, together with the fact that he first saw the light of day in the nation's capital, probably accounts for his skill in the composition of march numbers that fairly pulsate with patriotic spirit and fervor. It is this ability and the consequent popularity of his march creations that have gained for him the well-deserved sobriquet of "The March King."

Sousa's father was a musician. A political exile from Spain, he earned a precarious living by playing a trombone in the very same band at Washington which later formed his son's stepping-stone to fame. His mother is a German. The musical talent which young Sousa inherited and early evinced, was developed under the instruction of John Esputa and George Felix Benkert.

Sousa's career in the music world has been meteoric. At the early age of eight he began to put his ability to practical use, earning his own living as a violin player. At fifteen he was a teacher of harmony. At sixteen he was conductor of an orchestra in a variety theatre. Two years later he was musical director of a traveling company in Milton Nobles' play "The Phenix."

Through succeeding years he was identified with various orchestras and other musical organizations until at the age of twenty-six he became leader of the United States Military Band at Washington, which, under his development, became one of the foremost and best military bands in the world. At one period of his connection with this organization an effort was made to pass a bill through Congress giving him a commission of lieutenancy in the army. Had it been successful it is altogether likely that Sousa would still be leader of that organization.

His fame had become so widespread, however, that in 1892 he left the Government service and took the leadership of the famous organization that bears his name and receives the inspiration of his genius and energetic personality.

Sousa has written more than 200 march compositions, of which the most popular are "Washington Post," "High School Cadets," "Liberty Bell," "Directorate," "King Cotton," "Manhattan Beach" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

He has also invaded the operatic field, and with marked success. His earlier operatic compositions are: "The Smugglers," written in 1879; "Desire," brought out by the McCaull Opera Co. in 1885, and "Queen of Hearts," a one-act piece. The best known and most successful of his later compositions is "El Capitan," written in 1896, starred in by De Wolf Hopper and still a favorite repertoire piece with the prominent light-opera companies of the country.

Subsequent compositions that have added to his fame are: "The Charlatan," "The Bride-Elect," and "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp," an extravaganza, the chief ensemble of which was worked up from his march "Hands Across the Sea."

While his successes in the operatic field have been pronounced, it is as a composer-conductor of band numbers that he is best known and will be longest remembered. There is probably no composer in the world who has enjoyed a popularity equal to that of John Philip Sousa. His march numbers have made so powerful an impression on the American public that there is scarcely a boy in the country who is not able to whistle their chief airs.

It is found that his music has been sold to 18,000 bands in this country alone. Sousa's marches have appeared on programmes in all quarters of the civilized world and to-day are played by army bands in every country of Europe.

His first contributions to our Record Catalogue, appearing in the November list, are "The Stars and Stripes Forever" (Amberol) and "Powhatan's Daughter" (Standard). Both of these are march numbers—typical Sousa compositions that have been hummed and whistled and played and danced from coast to coast.

Reproduced by his incomparable organization of skilled musicians, they are given an interpretation that no band in the world could hope to approach. Those who have heard John Philip Sousa's band perform under his leadership can appreciate what a treat the reproduction by that organization of his inspiring marches will afford to those of the Phonograph public who have not yet had that good fortune.

Labor Day Displays

Monday, September 6th, is Labor Day, a general holiday throughout the United States. Which means that on that day there will be thousands of people on the streets where to-day there are hundreds. That's your tip to get busy with your window, Mr. Dealer. Don't wait until the Sunday before to arrange it. Get it in shape away ahead of time and get the full benefit of the attention it attracts. After Labor Day interest in the display will quite naturally wane, so it's up to you to anticipate.

Make your display as striking and original as possible—something typical of the day itself and the cause it celebrates. It is difficult to suggest anything suitable to individual cases. The cause of labor offers a wealth of suggestion in its watchwords and well known terms and phrases.

The words union, strike, boycott, lockout, arbitration, organization, etc., can be used to good advantage on your window cards.

Work in your "Fireside." The word will fit in well with arguments and phrases used in the cause of organized labor.

Local conditions may afford an inspiration, or your local celebration may be utilized for a suggestion.

So may the Bryan and Taft Records on the subject.

Here's a suggestion that could be worked into a striking window display, and it's inexpensive, too. Dress up a dummy in working garb, dinner-pail in left hand and stand it up in conspicuous view, right hand extended and pointing at a "Fireside" machine resting on a stand. Suspend from body of the figure a placard bearing this inscription:

I am a Union Workingman
and I Own My Own
Fireside

From the stand suspend a placard reading:

I am His Fireside
and I Only Cost
$22.00

"A Rich Man's Machine at a Poor Man's Price"

That's our suggestion—it may help you. Get your wits working.

Edison Phonographs Will Sell Amberol Records

Every Phonograph owner will want to buy Amberol Records as soon as he hears them. Their tone, the songs and selections they offer and the fact that they will play twice as long as the Standard Edison Records and longer than any other kind of Records, are arguments that no Phonograph owner can resist.

It is not alone the Amberol Records that is going to bring you this bigger volume of Record business; it is also the Edison Phonograph which so faithfully and clearly interprets them.

As there new Records improve the Phonograph, so the Phonograph enhances the value of the Records, so that every Phonograph sale is the beginning of a persistent and large Record business.

Both the Phonograph and the Amberol Records are worthy of your greatest selling effort. When you feature them you are featuring something that everybody knows about and is interested in.

Take advantage of the new things. There is an extra profit in Amberol Records for you and an extra profit in the attachments which present Phonograph owners want so that their instruments will play Amberol Records.

The Edison Phonograph will sell Amberol Records. Your part is to have them, play them and push them all you can.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

This department of the Monthly was created and is maintained for the convenience and information of our Dealers, in the belief that through their use of its columns ideas and suggestions of practical value would be disseminated for the benefit of the entire Edison Trade.

We suggest a more general and liberal use of this space through the exchange of individual experiences and ideas in regard to the most effective methods of advertising and selling the goods.

Describe your window displays, your stock arrangement, your newspaper or other forms of advertising.

Send us illustrations—we'll print them gladly. They'll benefit some of the other 13,000. That's sure. And some of their ideas cannot fail to benefit you.

That's reciprocity, which means co-operation, which is synonymous with success.

We will also, when requested and if space permits, answer in these columns questions in regard to mechanical and other details of the business.

We await your pleasure, Mr. Dealer. Let's hear from you.

We are in receipt of a communication from A. H. Bromley, proprietor of the West Philadelphia Camera Shop at 5113 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa., enclosing a weekly bulletin issued to the public by the 52d and Market Sts. Business Association.

This bulletin illustrates the "Friday Bargain" scheme that the merchants of that city have instituted.

Mr. Bromley, who is an Edison Dealer, took advantage of the "bargain day" that fell on Friday, Aug. 13th, to feature his Phonograph stock in his window display of "bargains."

In the bell of the horn on one of the Edison machines he hung a card bearing this inscription:

An Edison Phonograph
is always A Bargain.

That the combination of the day and date disproved popular superstition Mr. Bromley avers, for he says that his Record sales were unusually good on both Friday and Saturday.

Geo. P. Austin, manager Southern California Music Co., Oxnard, Calif.—I was amused at an item in the May PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY stating that a Dealer in a town of 1,900 had sold twenty-nine Edison Phonographs. This is a town of 2,000 and I have sold one hundred and nine Edison Phonographs and fifty-two of them were Triumphs and two were Idelias. My prospects for future sales are better than when I first started in here. Almost every sale brings a new customer.

Daspit Hardware Co., Ltd., Houma, La.—Having read the article, "Going Some," on page 7 of July PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, which states that T. A. O'Connor, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., had disposed of nine outfits in sixteen days, I wish to say that we have done as well. We disposed of two Regular Standards, one Combination Standard and one Combination Home Outfit in seven days. We carry a complete line of Phonographs and nearly every Domestic Record, Amberol and Standard, you manufacture, and expect to add some of the British selections to our stock.

Alonzo Wilkes, Amsterdam, N. Y.—A sure sign of the times! When Phonograph users come in and purchase from five to a dozen Edison Records it is a good sign of the return of Edison Prosperity. Many of my old customers are doing this instead of purchasing one or two. I predict a big winter for the sale of Edison Phonographs and Records.

I am sending you a picture of our store. We have been in business less than three years, and are exclusive Phonograph Dealers. We keep constantly on hand a good supply of Edison Phonographs and over 4,000 Records. The picture shows about one-half of the store. We have two booths nicely fited up with pictures, seats and brussels carpet. We have two large front windows 20x24x8 filled with machines, Records, horns, cabinets, etc. Population 1,000.—Mrs. S. C. Rowden, Red Wing, Minn.

Ready Made Ads

The response to our offers to supply without cost to the Trade these attractively prepared advertisements is very gratifying.

We are impressed by the fact that our Dealers are coming more and more to a realization of the fact that this offer is one of real merit.

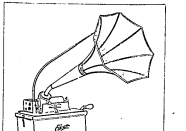
We don't say it's generous, for we regard it as a paying proposition for us if it is made use of by the Trade, because its use means increased sales for all of us.

But it is an item of expense (and, taken altogether, quite a large item at that) that we incur and the Dealer escapes.

It isn't likely that we would continue this offer if results did not justify it.

We are glad to say they do, and we have the evidence, and, necessarily, the Dealer has, too.

The cuts shown below illustrate the popular Fireside, which, with the Amberol Record, is the great big seller to-day.



If the wording of these advertisements does not please you, get your wits working and originate something that better appeals to local conditions or your particular case. It's easy when you try. Labor Day opens up a lot of advertising possibilities. Word your advertisement so that it will immediately strike the eye.

See that your paper gives you good space, which is very important.

Either the single column ad (No. 719) or the double column (No. 720), or both, will be sent you on request, we only asking that you send us a clipping of the ad from the paper in which it appears.

Don't send the paper itself.

Send the clipping only in separate envelope.

A rich man's Phonograph at a poor man's price—that's the popular verdict given of

Edison Amberol Records for November

285 Stars and Stripes Forever March — Sousa's Band

One of the many famous compositions that Sousa has given to the world, enduring in its popularity because of its undeniable excellence. It is one of his favorite and most popular marches and contributed its share to securing for him the enviable title of "The March King." The fact that the number is played by his famous organization will create an emphatic demand for the Record. Publishers, John Church Company, New York.

286 Just Plain Folks — Ada Jones and Chorus

A pathetic ballad with appropriate musical setting, describing the sorrow and disappointment of an aged couple whose visit to his city mansion is resented by the son they have not seen for many years. Miss Jones' has the assistance of a male quartette in the chorus. "Just Plain Folks" is a good seller in the Two-Minute list, and the longer Record can not fail to increase its popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Maurice Stonehill.

287 Selections from "Little Nemo" — Victor Herbert and his Orchestra

This selection by Mr. Herbert introduces his spirited "March of the Valentines"; "Won't You be My Playmate," a dainty, charming air; "Give Us a Fleet," a sprightly, captivating theme; "Won't You be My Valentine," plaintive and haunting; his "Slumberland Theme," a graceful, soothing melody; Dance; and March Finale. Publishers, Cohan & Harris, New York.

288 How She Gets Away With It is More Than I Can See — Grace Cameron

A comic song in which one footlight fairy "roasts" another, whose good fortune in being able to enjoy the good things of life the envious dame ascribes to a marvelous ability to "pull the legs" of her lung chain of admirers. Miss Cameron's clever use of the vernacular of the "front row" reminds one forcibly of that of Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady." Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Seymour Furth; words, Grace Cameron; publishers, Seymour Furth Pub. Co., New York.

289 Flannigen and Harrigan — Porter and Meeker

A side-splitting side-walk conversation between these clever artists introducing two original songs. After the opening song, which is labeled "No Matter How Hungry a Horse May Be, He Cannot Eat a Bit," comes a running fire of wit and repartee. The sketch is original for our Record and will not be published.

290 Gypsy Airs (Sarasate, Op. 20.) — Albert Spalding

This is one of those brilliant and fascinating variations on folk themes written by the celebrated Spanish violinist and composer, Pablo de Sarasate, who was born in Pamplona, Spain, March 10, 1844. Mr. Spalding's splendid conception of the composition is shown in the exquisite interpretation he gives to its difficult passages. Rendered with piano accompaniment.

291 Grandma's Mustard Plaster — Murry K. Hill

A monologue on everything in general and a goat in particular, precedes a song recital of the wonderful drawing qualities of "Grandma's mustard plaster" and their practical application to sundry individuals and cases. This is followed by more talk and another humorous song.

292 Waiting and Watching for Me — Anthony and Harrison

One of the best known and most popular of sacred hymns, rendered in the impressive manner that characterizes all of the work of these famous singers, whose sacred duets are known and appreciated wherever the English tongue is spoken. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Marianne Hearn; music, P. P. Bliss.

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of November Phonogram.

293 Eglantine Caprice — United States Marine Band

A captivating number executed in faultless style by this celebrated organization whose work requires no commendation. Their contributions to our Record catalog are among its best sellers. Composer, Edward Van Lonck.

294 Pansies Mean Thoughts, Dear, and Thoughts Mean You — Manuel Romain

Mr. Romain's rendition of the dainty love ballad will add to his fame as a Record singer, if that be possible. The language of the flowers is expressed in unusually pretty words, with a tuneful waltz setting, the pansy's definition being given in the chorus:

Pansies mean thoughts, dear, and thoughts mean you — My dreams are all of you, dear,
Give me one thought, dear. — If you only knew;
Pansies you'll be true. — For pansies mean thoughts, dear, and thoughts mean you.

Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Fleta Jan Brown; music, Herbert Spencer; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

295 A Thousand Leagues Under the Sea — Gus Reed

Songs of the deep are the forte of basso singers, because their notes better convey the feeling of awe and majesty that the ocean inspires. Mr. Reed's sonorous tones are admirably qualified to give to such selections the proper expression. There is a light-house bell effect in the refrain that is realistic. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, J. T. Branen; music, H. W. Petrie; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

296 Lasca — Edgar L. Davenport

A pathetic poem, by F. Desprez, of love and heroism on the plains of the Rio Grande, familiar to every high-school boy and girl in the country, who will find Mr. Davenport's dramatic recitation of it a great help in their study of elocution because of the excellence of his articulation and inflection. The selection as here given comprises the entire poem, which was not possible, of course, on the two-minute Record, in which list it is No. 9087. The burial of Lasca is recited to the violin accompaniment of extracts from "Hearts and Flowers" and Chopin's "Funeral March."

297 Just Before the Battle Mother — Will Oakland and Chorus

Mr. Oakland's splended voice has never been heard to better effect than in the verses of this well-known descriptive war ballad, in the chorus of which he has the assistance of a pleasing quartette. Between the lines of the second chorus are introduced realistic martial effects—a cannon shot, bugle calls of reveille and assembly, hoof beats and commands to action. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, George F. Root.

298 He Leadeth Me — Edison Mixed Quartette

A sacred selection rendered by a quartette of mixed voices with organ accompaniment. The work of our quartette in this reproduction is particularly effective and this Record is destined to find its way into every sacred collection. Words, Jos. H. Gilmore; music, Wm. B. Bradbury.

299 Wedding—Dance Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

A well-known standard waltz, played in concert style with pleasing effect. The composer of this waltz is Paul Lincke, whose reputation was established in this country through his composition of the popular "Glow-worm" (Amberol Record 62). The interpretation given this number is highly artistic. Its melody is catchy and its rythm well defined, making it particularly desirable as a dance number. Publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

300 The Song I Heard One Sunday Morn — James F. Harrison and mixed chorus

Mr. Harrison has improved the opportunity to display the quality and range of his splendid baritone voice in this Record. A mixed chorus assists in the rendition of the number. The song itself, a meritorious composition, describes the effect that the chanting of "The Palms" in a church produced upon a passer-by. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, E. H. Ellison; music, Robert H. Brennen; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York.

301 Run, Brudder Possum, Run! — Collins and Harlan

This is a typical Southern "darkey" song, set to a rollicking air by one of the foremost colored artists and musicians in the country. In the reproduction are introduced clever effects imitating characteristic noises of the possum hunt. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, J. W. Johnson; music, Rosamond Johnson; publishers, The Rogers Bros. Music Publishing Co., New York.

302 Carnival of Venice — Ollivotti Traubadours

A charming violin and guitar duet by accomplished musicians. The "Ollivotti Troubadours" are well-known artists of high rank who have appeared with success at concerts and at the leading vaudeville theatres throughout the country for the past three years. Mr. Michael Banner, the violinist, is a virtuoso of recognized ability, while Mr. Roy H. Butin, the guitarist, is equally proficient on his instrument. Arrangement by Paganini-Banner.

303 My Old Kentucky Home — Knickerbocker Male Quartette

This fine old Southern melody, which will never lose its popularity with the American public, lends itself so readily to quartette work that no professional "four" can afford to omit it from their repertoire. We doubt the possibility of a more pleasing reproduction than that given on this Record. Unaccompanied. Words and music, Stephen Foster.

304 A Georgia Barn Dance — New York Military Band

Here is an opportunity to secure a Record that, in addition to being an unusually good dance number, possesses exceptionally attractive features as a band Record. It is by the same composer as "Kerry Mills' Barn Dance" (Standard Record No. 9089) and is written in the proper tempo for that popular style of dance. Novel effects characteristic of the country life are introduced in its rendition. Composer, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

Amberol Records in Italian

5005 Quell' uom dal fiero aspetto.."Fra Diavola" (Auber) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

5007 Serenata d'Arlecchino.-"Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

5012 Addio alla madre,-"Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni) — Francesco Daddi

Amberol Records in Hebrew

5036 A Mensch soll men sein (Perlmutter and Wohl) — Simon Paskal

5037 Das Mzuzele (H. Altman) — Simon Paskal

5038 Was zu Gott ist zu Gott und was zu Leute ist zu Leute (Kannapoff) — Simon Paskal

Edison Standard Records for November

10237 Powhatan's Daughter March — Sousa's Band

With a typical number that reflects the genius of that peerless composer and band-master, we introduce to the Philip Sousa to the Edison Phonograph public which has been waiting some time for a Record bearing the stamp of his originality and approval. Like all of his marches there is an inspiring swing and dash to this number that defies description.

10238 Pennyland — Manuel Romain

A pretty song of childhood days—the days of 'lasses candy and cookies—when a penny was far more desirable in our childish eyes than coins of larger denomination, because of the ease with which it might be exchanged for sweetmeats. It is written in very catchy waltz-time and Mr. Romain renders it as usual in faultless style. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bartley Costello; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10239 She's an Awful Nice Gal — Edward Meeker

Pete Dimple, a simple coon, got engaged to the "College Widow" of Darktown. When, at the wedding, the Parson asked, "Who'll give the bride away?" the entire male congregation rose to its feet and explained in chorus Sal's attempts to land each one in the matrimonial net, concluding with the advice to Pete not to get "cold feet" on that account, however. The song is set to a rollicking two-step air, and Mr. Meeker gives it the full benefit of his inimitable coon dialect and style. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edward Madden; music, Geo. W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York.

10240 La Zingana — American Symphony Orchestra

"La Zingana" is a well-known piano piece. It is styled a "Dance Hongroise" and was written by Carl Bohn, a popular European composer. The Record gives a brilliant and effective orchestra arrangement of this favorite number, which will appeal most forcibly to lovers of the better grade of music. Publisher, Carl Fisher, New York.

10241 I Want Somebody to Play With — Byron G. Harlan

Mr. Harlan is particularly artistic in the rendition of "kid" songs, of which the above is a pleasing specimen. It expresses the plaint of a little one who wants someone to share her loneliness until the return of her Mamma, who "went away with the Angels" Set to waltz time. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Williams and Van Alstyne; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10242 There'll Come a Day — Stanley and Gillette

A sentimental song presented in duet form by two well-known Edison artists whose rich voices, blending in sweet harmony, produce an exceptionally pleasing Record. This is a new voices, blending in sweet harmony, produce an exceptionally pleasing Record. This is a new voices, blending in sweet harmony will receive a general and enthusiastic encore from combination and we prophesy their work will receive a general and enthusiastic encore from the Phonograph public. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10243 Sadie Salome — Edward M. Favor

A comic song. Sadie Cohen had aspirations for the stage, on which she eventually shone as the original "Salome Baby," much to the surprise and horror of her sweetheart, Mose, whose the original "Salome Baby," much to the surprise and horror of her sweetheart, Mose, whose the objection forms the chorus and real comedy of the song. Mr. Favor gives the number the proper Yiddish flavor. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Edgar Leslie and Irving Berlin; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10244 Oakley Quickstep — Olly Oakley

This number introduces to the Edison public one of our English artists, Mr. Olly Oakley, whose skill with the banjo is nothing short of marvellous. We predict a rousing reception for this Record, which is of his own composition. The true tone of the banjo is so wonderfully reproduced. Orchestra accompaniment.

10245 We've Been Chums for Fifty Years — Will Oakland

An old couple, at the sunset of life's sunset, are reminiscing over the fifty years of their married life and finding pleasure and satisfaction in the fact that during that time their relations have been the ideal ones of lovers and chums. A clever composition, a pleasing air, a capable artist—can more be said? Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Thurland Chattaway.

10246 Whiter Than Snow — Anthony and Harrison

A beloved old gospel hymn, very popular at revival services, is here given a powerful rendition by these two capable singers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, James Nicholson; music, Wm. G. Fischer.

10247 Arrah, Come in Out of the Rain, Barney McShane — Ada Jones

It's leap year and the widow Nolan, spying Barney McShane coming down the lane at the mercy of the elements, embraces the opportunity to exercise the feminine perogative. We don't know what Barney's reply was, but we're gallant enough to assume that a four-minute Record wouldn't be necessary to record it. Miss Jones' reputation with this type of song is long established. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Andrew B. Sterling; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10248 The Coquette — United States Marine Band

This characteristic number is the first ("A") of a series of three numbers entitled "Maidens Three," composed by John Philip Sousa. The remaining two—("B") "The Summer Girl" and ("C") "The Dancing Girl"—will be recorded by Sousa's Band. The general excellence of Records produced by the U. S. Marine Band, of which Mr. Sousa was leader for twelve years, is sufficient guarantee of this number.

10249 Oh! Doctor — Grace Cameron

A coon song. Liza Green's sickness is diagnosed by the doctor as a love malady, and he prescribes "lovin' by a loving man every day." On request he administers the first dose himself with the result that Liza has frequent relapses in which she calls for the same doctor. Miss Cameron's dialect and voice do full justice to the number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co.

10250 Baboon Bungalow — Collins and Harlan

A jungle song duet, describing a Simian honeymoon in "Mange Lane" where "clunky monkey chimpanzees" are "tuning up their cocoanut shells to make them sound like wedding bells." The song is of the same style as "Down in Jungle Town" (Record No. 9941) sung by the same artists. Jungle sounds in imitation of the chattering of monkeys and the rattling of cocoanut shells are introduced throughout with good effect. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edward Madden; music, Dorothy Jardon; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co.

10251 It's Hard to Kiss Your Sweetheart When the Last Kiss Means Good-Bye — Arthur C. Clough

Another sentimental number in waltz time by Mr. Clough whose first Record appeared in the October list. The song, as its title would suggest, voices the depression of a lover in parting from the girl of his heart. It is fully up to the required standard of sentimental selections in every respect and Mr. Clough's rendition will confirm the good impression his first Record created. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Robert F. Roden; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

10252 Ripples—A Serenade — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic concert number of a Spanish style of construction admirably expressing the grace, warmth and languor of the music of that country. From a musical standpoint this is one of the best of the many good things of this month. Composer, R. B. Brewer; publishers, Sun Fee Publishing Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

10253 Uncle Josh at the Opera — Cal Stewart

A talking Record by this master in the delineation of the rural character. Uncle Josh was attracted to the "Opry" house where he bought two tickets of admission because a fellow at the door tore the first one he presented into halves. His observations on the audience, the orchestra and the curtain (which he thinks is the "Opry" house) are as unique as humorous.

10254 Zep Green's Airship — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

A very clever Record. Zep Green is making his initial trip as a navigator of the air, as well as of the sea of matrimony. The two voyages start at the same time for they take the parson up with them in the airship—and down also when it collapses and falls into the river. Mechanical devices, a band, singing, cheering and remarks from the crowd contribute to the novelty of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

10255 Dublin Daisies — Peerless Quartette

A rollicking Irish song with a typical air, in which glowing tribute is paid to the charms of Erin's colleens in general and to those of "Ould Dublin Town" in particular, "whose eyes and sighs win the hearts of all the boys." It is sung without accompaniment by the Peerless Quartette, comment on whose rendition is superfluous. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10256 Daughters of America March — New York Military Band

This march, which is respectfully dedicated by the composer to the Daughters of the American Revolution, is constructed on themes of popular national airs and is an inspiring number in consequence. Composer, J. Bodewalt Lampe; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co.

Trade Information for U. S. Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

GEM COMBINATION TYPE PHONOGRAPH.

Descriptive.

A new Combination Type Phonograph, at a list price well within the reach of every one, and at the same time containing the same excellent features embodied in our newer type Phonographs equipped to play both Standard and Amberol Records.

In appearance this Phonograph is like the model "H" machine, except that the frame casting is a little larger.

The motor has been changed, and is fitted with a special main spring, made of a particular kind of steel, and is slightly thicker than the old spring. The machine will run fully one Amberol Record, or fully two Standard Records. This new spring is very powerful and produces perfect regulation.

(The trade is warned not to replace these springs with ordinary ones that can be purchased in open market.)

The motor is also equipped with a new winding ratchet and pawl, which is absolutely noiseless when winding.

Price.

List price, $15.00, subject to regular Dealers' "Gem" machine discounts; 30 per cent. from list.

Equipment.

Equipped with a model "K" reproducer, having a model "C" and model "H" sapphire assembled in separate arms, mounted on a swivel plate set in the overhanging weight; attached to this swivel plate is a pointer or lever, thereby enabling the user to readily change the position of the sapphires for playing either the Standard or Amberol Records.

To play the Standard Record the index pointer must be turned against stop-pin at figure 2. To play the Amberol Record the index pointer must be turned against stop-pin at figure 4. In order to make these changes, the reproducer must be taken out of the diaphragm-arm.

Caution.

In replacing the reproducer, care should be taken that the sapphire does not come in contact with the lower part of the opening of the speaker-arm, also that the reproducer is located correctly, and that the set-screw is tightened.

Finish.

The machine body is finished in a rich deep maroon, with black and gold stripes, and bears the name "Edison" instead of the word "Gem."

Horn.

A specially finished maroon colored horn, which will be packed in case with the machine; 19 inches long; bell, 11 inches wide.

Horn-crane.

Regular nickel two piece Gem Crane set in socket in machine body.

Selling Date.

To be placed on sale simultaneously in the United States and Canada on October 1st, 1909.

Suspended List, Aug. 20, 1909

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the Edison Phonograph Monthly. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

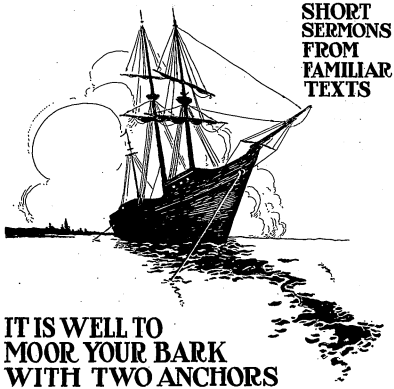
PHONOGRAPH



There is a great opportunity for you to sell I. C. S. Language Outfits to people who are going abroad or who desire to learn a language for the sake of the knowledge of it alone; to those who desire to qualify for positions as translators and foreign correspondents; and to foreigners who wish to learn to speak English. No sledge hammer is needed to get it clearly into your head that this presents a sure way of broadening your field of work and increasing your sales. For the sake of good business sense, boom the I. Short Sermons from Familiar Texts

TEXT:

It is well to moor your bark with two anchors.

HERE is a bit of nautical wisdom that isn't bad for a business motto on land.

Most Edison dealers consider the Edison Phonograph their main stay. They figure it out that if they can sell Phonographs, the Records will sell themselves and bend every energy in that direction.

That is true to a certain extent but only to a certain extent. While the Phonograph sells the Records in some cases, in others, the Records sell the Phonograph.

When an interested party drops into your store you do not offer the Phonograph for his inspection and let it go at that. No, sir. You get a line on the kind of music the L. P. likes, pick out a few Records and play them.

The sale depends upon two things —the Record and the manner in which the Phonograph brings the music out of it.

Records, therefore are the other anchor with which to moor your business bark. It is the Records that keep a Phonograph purchaser enthusiastic over his purchase; it is the Records that carry his enthusiasm to his neighbors and lead to other Phonograph sales; it is the Records that bring Phonograph owners back, month after month, to spend money over your counter.

See that your stock is complete so that every Record called for can be furnished when called for. See that your stock is so arranged that you can find what is wanted promptly. See that the new Records—both Standard and Amberol —are brought to everybody's attention in every possible way.

You sell but one Edison Phonograph to a family. You can sell Edison Records to one family as long as you make the effort.

The Phonograph and the Records are your two business anchors —don't try to dispense with either —they are equally important.

The Edison "Amberola"

Official announcement will shortly be issued by the Sales Department apprising the trade of the exact date on which the new Edison "Amberola" will be placed on the market. Preliminary to such announcement a brief description of the machine, preceded by a recital of the reasons that are responsible for its manufacture will doubtless prove interesting to the trade.

MISSION OAK FINISH (CLOSED)

The "Amberola" is the product of a popular demand, equally as insistent and emphatic as prevailed before the "Fireside" and new combination "Gem" were produced, although emanating primarily from an opposite source. Jobbers and Dealers have long and persistently urged upon us the necessity of putting in their possession a machine with which they could appeal to that portion of the music-loving public whose incomes would permit them to purchase a high-grade machine that combined utility and perfection of tone reproduction and projection with the highest ornamental effect.

It was pointed out to us that with such a machine they could approach a trade that either would not be interested in the present type of Phonograph because of a prejudice formed by hearing some of the types that at first brought the instrument into disrepute, or that, if interested, preferred a high-grade instrument that would harmonize more thoroughly with the home surroundings. We felt the force of the arguments and set our experts to work to devise an instrument that would meet all requirements.

The result is the "Amberola." It is not the creation of a week or a month; it is the result of patient, intelligent effort on the part of men who are pioneers in the details of Phonograph manufacture. We are proud of the "Amberola," for we feel that we have given to the public a Phonograph that will appeal with irresistible force to the discriminating music-lover and will emphasize the exalted position that the Edison Phonograph has assumed in the realm of musical instruments.

MISSION OAK FINISH (OPEN)

It is an Edison product and fully maintains the standard that name demands. It carries the guarantee of excellence in every respect that accompanies Mr. Edison's name.

The distinctive features of the "Amberola" are its combination of mechanical excellence, (which means that it is a perfect musical instrument) with originality of design, grace of contour and perfection of style and finish.

It is a concealed horn machine with a highly artistic and useful Record cabinet.

The cabinet is finished in either mahogany (piano finish) or mission oak. It is mounted on patent roller castings. Four drawers equipped with special clamps in bottom accommodate one hundred and twenty Standard or Amberol Records in original cartons. Its dimensions are: height, 49 inches; width, 21 inches; depth, 22 inches.

It is equipped with a traveling mandrel and has a stationary, new style diaphragm reproducer. It has also an automatic stop and a combination starting lever and reproducer lift. By lifting this lever the feed nut is released and sapphire raised for return of the mandrel and removal of the Record. When lever is pressed down the sapphire is lowered to a contact with the Record and the motor is also started. The motor is of improved type.

The "Amberola" opens up a new field for the Dealer. It is an additional and valuable asset to his business. It will appeal strongly to people of refinement and means because of its beauty of design and finish, which will harmonize with the most artistic surroundings, and should prove an exceptionally good seller for the holiday trade. It is peculiarly adapted, because of its design, to hotels, clubs, restaurants, lodge-rooms, reading-rooms and places of public amusement, and the alert Dealer will find in such places a profitable field for its introduction. The list price of the "Amberola" is $200.00 and the discounts so attractive as to permit of a wide margin of profit to the trade.

We urge upon every Dealer to place his order with his Jobber at once for at least one to use for exhibition and sale purposes. The "Amberola" will be placed on the market on December 1.

Our Advertising Campaign Begins

The widely discussed $500,000 advertising campaign which the National Phonograph Company will wage throughout the coming season, has been inaugurated. If among our Jobbers and Dealers there was one (and there were undoubtedly many) to whom the statement of the Company's intentions made at the Atlantic City convention, sounded extravagant in face of the then widespread business depression, let him now dismiss the doubt. The National Phonograph Company makes no rash promises. The contract has been let; the work is well under way. It is probably the largest single advertising contract ever placed by a talking machine company. We shall utilize the columns of four hundred and fifty newspapers and the twenty-five leading magazines of the country. We regret that we are unable to advertise in every city and town in the United States, but we have to keep within the bounds of the appropriation, which is universally admitted to be pretty generous. We had to content ourselves with the selection of such papers and magazines as in our judgment would do the best work in creating a general demand, at which point the duty of the manufacturer ends. We shall have some interesting news on this subject in succeeding issues. Watch for them.

President Dyer's Views on the Situation

In fine health and spirits, after a two months' tour of the Continent, President Frank L. Dyer is back at his desk prepared to direct the affairs of the National Phonograph Company in the vigorous campaign for business it has already begun. He arrived on September 9th on the "Deutschland" of the Hamburg-American Line, accompanied by Mrs. Dyer and son Jack, and was given a hearty welcome by officials and department heads of the Edison interests who had assembled at the pier to greet him. Mr. Dyer has been abroad since July 10th and spent the greater part of his time in England, France and Germany, combining business with pleasure. One of the objects of his trip was to secure Grand Opera talent for Edison Records. The most important acquisition made in this respect was an exclusive contract with the celebrated Austrian tenor, Leo Slezak, with whom he spent a couple of days in the little village of Cauterets in the Pyrenees, a few miles from the Spanish border. He found Slezak to be a man of most attractive personality and predicts that he will score a tremendous "hit" with the American public on his coming tour. Asked to express through the columns of the Monthly his views on the talking machine situation in general and his advice and suggestions to the trade for the coming season, Mr. Dyer said:

"The outlook for business in the Phonograph line on the Continent is very encouraging, and in Great Britain particularly I anticipate a brisk restoration of normal conditions. In this country the prospect is even brighter. With the passage of the tariff measure the confidence of manufacturers was restored and the great industries of the country, which were in a state of uncertainty until its provisions were defined and understood, began to resume active operations. Added to this is the fact that crops were never better than they are this year, which condition alone guarantees the permanency of our returning prosperity. Reports of railroad earnings and of unusual activity in the coal and iron industries confirm the belief that the country will soon enjoy a measure of prosperity approximating that which prevailed at the start of the financial depression. The return, however, will not be immediate in all lines, especially in those branches that do not contribute to the actual necessities of life, in which the Phonograph is included. Luxuries, quite naturally, must wait until the necessities have been provided for. I do, however, anticipate a fall and holiday trade of unusual magnitude in the Phonograph line. Why? Well, for one reason, the farmers, who were least of all affected by the hard times and who are consistently good customers of ours, will soon have their crops harvested and be in a position to devote some time to amusement. That means a lot. And mechanics and laborers, already reassured by promising conditions, will do likewise. For another reason, the line has been made more attractive this year to holiday buyers. During the period of lessened activity we have improved the opportunity to perfect the Edison Phonograph in several details that have greatly enhanced its value as a musical instrument and will make it more desirable than ever as a Christmas gift. The greatest of these, and by far the most important advance in the talking machine industry since Mr. Edison invented the Phonograph, is the Amberol attachment which made possible the Amberol, or four-minute Record, the longest playing Record in existence. It not only doubled the amount of entertainment but made possible a wider choice of selections for our Records. Other improvements are the new Cygnet horn, which economizes the space that the Phonograph will occupy, and the new Fireside and Combination Gem Phonographs, which are popular priced machines with all the attractive features of those of a higher price.

We will shortly place upon the market our new concealed horn machine—the Amberola—a beautiful combination of artistic and mechanical excellence in which sound reproduction and tone-projection are perfected to a marvelous degree. The tones of this instrument are round and full and wonderfully natural. Other machines of a similar type are to appear in the near future. Consistent with the advances made in mechanical excellence has been the improvement in the character and quality of our Records. We are placing before the public the best offerings of the most celebrated masters of music and composition. We are employing the services of musicians who stand at the head of their profession and of the most widely known and highly esteemed vocal artists. Sousa and Herbert and Strauss are examples of the calibre of the artists we are employing in our Recording plants.

In the Grand Opera field we have lately added Leo Slezak and Riccardo Martin to complete a catalogue that already includes the names of such famous artists as Constantino, Van Rooy, Abbott, Blass, Campanari, Scotti, Dippel, Jacoby, Resky, Burgstaller, Ancona and others.

All these improvements in a line that offers extraordinary inducements in profits to be realized make the retailing of Edison Phonographs a more desirable branch of business now than ever before, and, realizing that fact, we are preparing to extend our territory. For that purpose we have increased our sales force by fifty per cent. As if that were not sufficient proof of our confidence in the future of the business, we have recently placed a contract for advertising probably larger than any similar contract ever closed by a talking machine company. We are going to spend half a million dollars this year in advertising Edison Phonographs and Records. We shall employ about four hundred and fifty newspapers and thirty popular magazines for that purpose. That's a pretty good example of optimism, is it not? Don't you think it's worthy of emulation by the trade? We are trying to infuse in the Dealer a spirit of buoyancy and faith in the immediate future of the business. We are going to create a general demand for Edison Phonographs and Records. The Dealer who appreciates that fact will at once prepare to anticipate the demand. He will overhaul and replenish his stock for the holiday trade and make preparations to supplement our work by local advertising, by revision of his mailing list, by attention and thought to effective window displays—in short, by every means of intelligent effort of which he is possessed. The dealer who does not catch the spirit of the occasion will fall by the wayside—this is to be a campaign of the finest. Optimism and co-operation are the watchwards; there is no room for the doubting or the idler. The man who has lost faith in the future of the business is not wanted. He has lost the force of the lesson taught by the recent depression—that the talking machine business, by its survival and elasticity, proved that it has passed from the category of a musical toy to that of a high-class musical instrument, and has established its permanency among our commercial institutions."

New Edison Cygnet Horn

Utility + Symmetry + Style = Perfection.

That equation is the epitome of the new Cygnet Horn as consideration of these three essentials as they apply to it will prove.

Utility: The fact of its being an upright horn and that it consequently takes up no more room than the machine itself, except in a perpendicular direction, is the proof of its utility. It will very nicely fill a perhaps otherwise vacant corner of the room and make a decidedly pleasing addition to the furniture. It remains suspended in the same space from the horn crane after the cabinet is closed. It can be turned in an arc of 180°, so that if placed in a corner it has the range of the entire room. So much for its utility.

Symmetry: Its name, Cygnet (young swan), suggests its shape which is similar to that of a swan's neck and follows the same graceful curves. Its size (29 inches above the cabinet) is admirably proportioned to the size of the machine itself and consequently adds to the general effect. The horn crane conforms in shape to the horn, so that its graceful outline is preserved.

Style: Its colors, oak, mahogany, or black with gold striper, are selected because of the choice they offer to the purchaser of selecting a horn that will harmonize with the general color effect of the room. Each of the three designs is peculiarly pleasing to the eye and adds to the general attractive appearance of the horn.

That's the proof of the equation. No more perfect horn in any particular has ever been placed upon the market. Its sale goes merrily on because of the fact that, like other Edison Products, it was created by a popular demand. Its appearance in the market was not made until a model was devised that would combine these points of perfection without detracting from the volume of sound, the clarity of tone or distinctness of enunciation.

It has been on the market since September 1, and the volume of orders received to date indicates that a popular chord was struck by its introduction. It is an indispensable part of every Dealer's equipment for the holiday and winter trade, and the wise Dealer is the one who will recognize that fact and equip himself to supply the demand at once.

Agreement Department Bulletin to Jobbers

The attention of our Jobbers is drawn in a particular manner to Agreement Department Bulletin No. 56 of September 2 in which we emphasize the necessity of signed applications sent to the Company from parties who desire to take up the Edison line being accompanied by a statement of the initial order, specifying the number and types of machines and quantity of each style of Records. The non-receipt of this information will only result in unnecessary correspondence and delay that will be obviated by co-operation in the slight degree requested.

Johann Strauss

The musical world in general and the Edison Phonograph public in particular will be interested in the announcement that Johann Strauss, Europe's foremost conductor and composer, is now under exclusive contract with the National Phonograph Co., by the terms of which we have the sole option on the services of his famous orchestra for the reproduction of musical selections on Phonograph Records.

The arrangement made with Herr Strauss is very similar to that which exists with Victor Herbert in this country.

Herr Strauss, in addition to leading his own orchestra, will act in a supervisory capacity at our Recording Plant in Berlin over the better class of compositions reproduced for our German catalog.

The work of recording the Strauss selections is now going on and several numbers will shortly appear in the German list of Edison Records.

It is expressly stipulated in the contract that Johann Strauss shall personally conduct his orchestra so that the public may rest assured that the Records that bear his name will be genuine Strauss Records in every sense of the word.

The engagement of so prominent a figure in European musical circles by the National Phonograph Co. has excited extensive and flattering comments from the press of the continent.

Johann Strauss is to Europe what Victor Herbert is to America, and this supervision of the compositions that will be recorded for us at Berlin is bound to have a tremendous effect in improving their character.

Like Herbert his musical talent is inherited.

Two generations of musicians, to whom not Europe alone but the entire world unhesitatingly awarded the palm of supremacy in the composition of dance music, combined to bestow upon him the heritage of their genius.

A synopsis of the career of his distinguished predecessors would serve to give some idea of the wealth of genius which the young Strauss naturally inherited, but space forbids.

Johann Strauss, the third in succession of the world renowned Viennese "Waltz Kings" to bear that name. His grandfather, the original Johann, formed with Josef Lanners the creative duo of the Vienna Waltz and his uncle, the second Johann, won world-wide reputation by his composition of "On the Beautiful Blue Danube." Johann Strauss 3rd, the subject of this article, was born in Vienna in 1866.

At the early age of six he received piano and violin instructions and later on took a course in the theory of music with Prof. Navratil.

After passing through the "Gymnasium" he studied jurisprudence at Vienna University and in obedience to the wishes of his father, devoted himself to an official career.

In 1890 he entered the service of the Austrian Government and after five years connected with the Board of Culture and Education was promoted to the position of Chief.

Despite the stress of his duties as a government official he continued his musical studies during this time with unflagging energy, his natural inclination for a musical career being stimulated by the encouragement of "Uncle Johann" who had long recognized and assisted in the development of the unusual talents of his nephew.

In 1898 he gave up his official position much to his uncle's delight and thenceforth devoted himself entirely to the musical profession, as his predecessors had done.

In that year he wrote the Opera "Katze and Maus" (Cat and Mouse) the text of which was worked out by Fred. Gross and Victor Leon after the "Damenkreig" (Ladies War) of Serilhe.

This was produced in December of the same year at the Vienna Theatre and met with a flattering reception.

In 1899 he reorganized his own orchestra and conducted it during a six months' tour of Germany with signal success.

In the beginning of the year 1901, after his father's retirement, he was called to the Austrain Imperial Court to act as director of music at the various court functions at which post he remained until 1907.

In the meantime he annually toured the continent with his now famous organization greatly adding to his reputation and popularity.

On the occasion of the Coronation of King Edward VII at London in 1902, he was signally honored by being chosen to direct the music at the court festivities, his own maricians donning for that purpose the uniforms of the English Court Orchestra.

In the same year he played before almost all of the crowned heads of Europe.

In 1902 on the occasion of a concert tour of the Orient he appeared before Sultan Abdul Hamid II in the Yildiz Palace.

He is the composer of many dance numbers, principally waltzes, of which his "To the Brave Belongs the World" is probably the best known.

In recognition to his remarkable talent he has been decorated by the courts of Europe and other countries in which he has appeared.

Thomas A. Edison Guest of Honor

In the brilliant glow of thousands of the lights his fertile brain has given to the world, surrounded by friends and associates—some of them men who were identified with him in the days when he was an obscure, struggling inventor—the Wizard of Menlo Park sat as guest of honor at the banquet at Briarcliff Lodge, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., on the evening of September 2, which marked the close of the thirtieth annual convention of the Edison Illuminating Association. The association, which is composed of men who have been actively engaged in exploiting the lighting inventions of Mr. Edison, annually brings together the most prominent figures in the electrical field in the United States. It was the first time in fifteen years that Mr. Edison had found it possible to attend the convention and the warmth of his reception indicated that the members fully appreciated the honor he did them by his presence. He was kept busy during the day renewing old acquaintances and exchanging anecdotes with the pioneers of the industry. At the banquet in the evening, which he attended in company with Mrs. Edison, he occupied the post of honor and was made the recipient of many flattering tributes to his wonderful genius and inventive powers. Following his inflexible rule, Mr. Edison did not respond in person, his acknowledgment of the compliments being conveyed by his old-time friend and associate, Mr. Samuel Insull, of Chicago, who expressed the pleasure Mr. Edison felt at meeting so many of his old associates. Other speakers were Edward H. Johnson, formerly president of the old Edison Electric Co.; S. P. Fish, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and Prof. Chas. P. Steinmetz, of the General Electric Co. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cortelyou, Anthony N. Brady and F. A. Vanderlip.

The Diaz Record

In our September issue we made brief reference to the fact that President Diaz of Mexico had done us the honor to make an Edison Record and had also given his consent to our placing it before the people of the United States and foreign countries as well as those of his native land. The Record was made by President Diaz on the invitation of Thomas A. Edison, whose acquaintance with the distinguished soldier-statesman dates from the early days of the electric light in New York. It is a tribute of recognition of the wonderful genius of the inventor of the Phonograph. By a happy coincidence the machine used for the recording is the identical one into which President Taft spoke when he made his famous series of speeches prior to the late election. In view of the coming meeting between the presidents of the two great republics of North America, the Record should prove of the greatest interest to the people of this country and Mexico, and ought to be in demand in other countries as well, as it is the first time that the ruler of a great nation has made a Record of his own voice for distribution in this manner. The matter on the Record, which is No. 20,315 "El Presidente Diaz al Señor Edison" ("President Diaz to Mr. Edison") is in Spanish and addressed to Mr. Edison, being a reply to a letter by him to President Diaz. The Record, which will be a unique and valuable addition to every collection, will be placed on sale in Mexico about October 15, after which date it may be sold in the United States.

The Protection of Our Jobbers

The attention of the trade generally is invited to a letter of our Sales Manager, dated September 10, 1909, and directed to the California Trade in particular. It is scarcely to be believed that any Jobber would lend himself knowingly to so flagrant a violation of the terms and conditions imposed upon the sale of Edison products: it is unquestionably a case of unfamiliarity with the particular clause of the contract covering the matter of payments. The promptness with which the Company acted in the matter is indicative of its vigilance where the interests of its Jobbers and Dealers are concerned. The letter follows:

September 10th, 1909.

TO THE TRADE:

Our attention has been called to a circular issued by one of our Jobbers, quoting special terms on goods of our manufacture, the Jobber agreeing to accept notes, without interest, in payment of Edison Phonographs.

We would respectfully point out that this would be a direct violation of the terms and conditions under which our goods are sold, as our terms on these goods are strictly 30 days net, and where a note settlement is accepted, the notes must bear legal rate of interest.

We regret sincerely the necessity for calling your attention to this matter, but it is being done in justice to our other Jobbers, who are adhering strictly to the terms of our contract.

Selling the Goods

"Because," or "In Spite of"

The most famous pitcher in the National League is "Three-Fingered" Brown of Chicago. In one of the championship games between New York and Chicago last season, when New York was badly beaten, one of the newspapers said that the only way for New York to win the pennant was to get a pitcher with only two fingers.

Brown isn't a great pitcher because he's shy a finger. He's great in spite of it. He uses his head.

If the other fellow's got the advantage of you on show windows, you've got to use your head to do the business in spite of him. You've got to make yours work overtime, keep the display changing and make the attractiveness of your windows simply a sample of the attractiveness inside your store.

P. T. Barnum once said, "The people like to be fooled." The fact that he always gave a better show than he advertised proved that he didn't believe it himself—but his competitors swallowed it and practiced it. He did the big business while they played to empty benches. So it really looks as if old Barnum just tossed off that epigram to fool his competitors, and they bit.

Give a better show than you advertise. Make your window display as striking as you can, but make the interior of your store even more so. Advertise concerts and give more than you advertise. Impress your prospects with that kind of attitude, and when they buy of you they'll feel they're getting more than they paid for.

Bailey, Mr. Barnum's partner, was one of the quickest men to see an advantage and use it. A rival show once telegraphed to Bailey offering him a mammoth salary. Bailey had a twenty-sheet poster made of the telegram, with a heading, "This is what our rivals think of men who produce shows like ours," and had it pasted up along the entire route of the circus.

It isn't often you catch your competitor at just this kind of a disadvantage, but it's up to you to lay for your chance and at the same time keep your eye open to see that he doesn't get anything on you.

It's a lot easier to keep ahead than it is to catch up after the other fellow gets the start.

Ad Records

You have blank records and Recorders. Make up an ad record now and then and slip it in between numbers at your concerts and demonstrations. Make them timely and local. For instance:

"Mrs. Sonnso's tea was one of the most delightful affairs of the week. Just at the time where the usual reception begins to grow tiresome and folks begin to wonder why they came and what their hands are for, the Phonograph came to the rescue with Victor Herbert's "Red Mill" and a song by Yetta Tilley. It was the first reception we've ever seen where the crowd was sorry to leave."

Get solid with the newspaper reporters. They can do you a lot of good just slipping a mention of the Phonograph into the news in connection with a story now and then—and if you can work up a story that has real news interest the editor may be persuaded to run it when real news is scarce.

The best authorities on salesmanship say that it's bad salesmanship to sell a man anything he doesn't want. Good salesmanship is in making the man want what he thought he didn't have any use for—in creating a real desire.

Even though a purchaser may feel beforehand that he ought not to afford an Edison Phonograph, if he is thoroughly instilled with the idea that he really wants it (and it's pretty hard to find anybody who doesn't want it) he'll never be sorry he bought it.

Therefore it's up to you to get a line on the kind of music your prospect likes best and demonstrate it to him—to show him the amount of pleasure to be derived from an instrument and at what small expense. If you sell on monthly payments, make clear to him the fact that he enjoys the full benefit of the Phonograph all the time he's paying for it, and that the outlay is so small he'll hardly feel it—that its novelty never wears off so that he's never "paying for a dead horse" as in purchasing most anything else on payments.

Done anything as yet to interest the foreigners in your neighborhood? Arranged a concert for their (and your) benefit? Get them interested before the holidays, by all means.

Are You Prepared for the Holiday Trade?

Do you realize that the holidays are fast approaching? A few weeks more and the Christmas spirit will begin to manifest itself by suggestion in newspapers, advertisements and window displays. How are you preparing to take care of your share of that trade? Have you done anything as all? Look over your mailing list? Repaired and polished up your machines? Inventorial your stock of machines and Records? Given any thought to how you are going to advertise your holiday attractions? Surely you are not going to wait until the eleventh hour to do all these things. If you do, some will be poorly done and others won't be done at all. That logical, isn't it? You know what procrastination did for you on other occasions: it will do the same thing again if you let it. You know the inevitable result of waiting until the last minute to place your holiday orders—delay, dissatisfaction and disappointment, not to speak of lost sales. Give US a chance. Place your orders early so that we in turn can lay our plans to take care of them. Let's see if we can't improve things in that respect this year. Let's try to avoid the unnecessary mistakes and disappointments of previous years. Read what our sales department has to say in regard to Dealer's stocks in their letter to the trade under date of September 18—it contains food for reflection on your part.

TO THE TRADE:

In view of the continued improvement in business conditions, we have deemed it advisable to issue this letter to the trade, as due to the approaching fall season, in connection with the vast sums of money we are expending for advertising, we have every reason to believe the demand for our goods will be unprecedented, which leads up to the question: IS YOUR STOCK of "Edison" goods in a condition which will ENABLE YOU to fully and promptly meet the requirements of YOUR trade?

Our line is so extensive and varied, that time and space prevent our calling attention to all the "good things" individually, so some will be passed over with but casual comment, as for instance,—regular Phonographs and two minute Records; our list of the latter, however, being kept up to the usual high standard as to quality. The later models of Phonographs are adapted for the use of both types of Records and to these we direct your special attention, in connection with the Amberol, or four minute Record (which by the way, plays longer than any other make of record now on the market), thus affording double the amount of enjoyment which is to be had from the use of Standard Records, and with LARGE RETURNS TO THE DEALER. Our list of Amberol Records has been steadily increased, and with the special fifty numbers to go on sale October 1st, 1909, a variety of selections is offered which will meet the approval of even the most discriminating tastes.

It would also seem opportune to point out that at the present time there are many thousands of regular type Phonographs still in use, equipped only for Standard, or two minute Records, and we believe with but a slight effort on your part, many Combination Attachments could be disposed of, thus netting you not only a profit from the sale of the Attachment, but the increased margin which would accrue from future sales of Amberol Records, and as there are doubtless many of your customers whom you could approach on this subject,—ISN'T IT WORTH WHILE?

Trusting you will accept our remarks and suggestions in the spirit in which they are intended, and wishing you continued success in the handling of our line, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,
F. K. DOLBEER,
General Manager of Sales.

Amberol Attachments! Amberol Records! Amberol Sales!

The greatest impetus that the Phonograph business has received in many years was unquestionably caused by Mr. Edison's invention of the attachment which makes it possible to play the four-minute Amberol Record. That it played an important part in instilling life into the business during the late period of financial depression every Dealer must recognize. He must also be alive to the fact now that we are facing a speedy return of prosperity its value as a money-getter will increase a hundredfold. Comparatively few Edison Phonographs have been equipped with the Amberol attachment. The field has hardly been surveyed as yet, let alone invaded.

Do you realize the possibilities that are latent in your immediate territory, Mr. Dealer? Have you stopped to consider the many Phonograph owners who stopped buying Records because of the hard times and consequently lost some interest in the Phonograph, but who are now in a position to spend some money for home entertainment? Can you figure out what it will mean to you if you succeed in reviving that interest by inducing them to equip their machines to play the Amberols? It won't be hard to do so if an owner has heard the Amberol; if he hasn't it's up to you to see that he does. When he does hear them he will be in a receptive frame of —the man who knows how to make popular music good and good music popular, who has built up the finest orchestra in the world, who has written some of the most irresistible and unforgetable music in this country—Victor Herbert will have a big part in the musical success of the Edison Phonograph and the Records that are made for it.

Victor Herbert

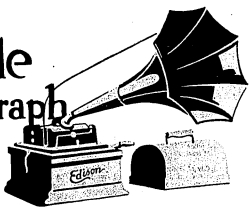
This means that the music on the Records is going to be better and more popular, that Victor Herbert will write some of it and that his orchestra will play some of it exclusively for Edison Standard and Amberol Records, and that Victor Herbert looks upon the Phonograph as the natural method of distributing good music around the country, just as a writer would use a book.

Good dealers, who will demonstrate the Edison Phonograph and have a large collection of Edison Records, are everywhere. There is one near you.



"The Edison Phonograph and the Home" is the name of an elaborately illustrated book, giving some of the reasons why you should have a Phonograph.

Edison Phonographs, $12.50 to $125; Edison Standard Records, 35c; Edison Amberol Records (twice as long), 50c; Grand Opera Records, 75c.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.
Lakeside Ave., Orange, N. J.

The Fireside Phonograph

$22.00

This Edison Phonograph plays both Amberol and Standard Edison Records. It is equipped with horn and long-running motor, is beautifully finished, compact and convenient. Its purchase means the opportunity of hearing all kinds of music in your own home.

EDISON STANDARD RECORDS play two minutes, and there is an infinite variety of music available in this form.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS play four minutes, and are adapted to longer pieces and to those that would be sacrificed by cutting.

New Amberol Records are offered each month together with the New Standard Records —all the world's best music to date.

The Fireside Phonograph can be seen and the Standard and Amberol Records heard at the store of any dealer.

There are dealers everywhere with whom you can make arrangements for purchasing, frequently on the Instalment plan.

There is no excuse for any home being without good music now.

Mr. Edison has said that he would like to see an Edison Phonograph in every home.

mind and that's your cue to talk attachments. Our sales department, in a circular letter of August 10th, called attention to a plan found successful by one of our large Jobbers. For the benefit of those who may have neglected to accept the suggestion we will briefly outline the scheme. Its requirements are:

1. A list of owners of Edison Phonographs.
2. Type or hand-written letter explaining the merits of the Amberol Record and offering to send your repair man to the house to adjust an attachment without cost.
3. Amberol folder (form 1413).
4. Post-card reading as follows:

Date.....

(Name and City of Dealer)

Gentlemen:—I desire to take advantage of your Special Offer. Therefore, please enter my order for one .....attachment.

(Style of machine)

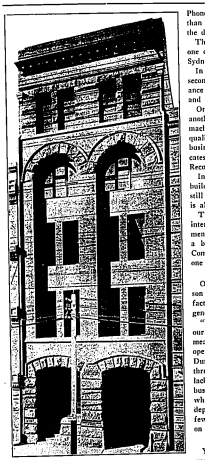
Your expert may call.....or as near that time as possible.

Charge .....
C. O. D.....
Name .....
Address .....

Write a personal letter to each name on the list; enclose a post-card and a folder, and mail sealed with a two-cent postage stamp. Have a good repair man ready and a supply of Attachments on hand, so that when the orders come there will be no delay in filling them. When your man puts on an Attachment, have him leave at least a half-dozen Amberol Records to try out the machine, or get an order for Amberol Records in advance to offset the trouble of putting on the Attachment. Afterwards, get permission to send some Records each month on trial, taking back what the customer does not want.

If you have a list of 100 machine owners, send the letter to 20 each week, or 3 a day, and not to the entire number at one time. It will get much more attention in this way, for everyone appreciates a personal letter, and you will not run the risk of getting more orders than your repair man can take care of.

Give the scheme a trial and watch your list of Amberol Record customers grow.



Taft Window Display

President Taft is now engaged in a very extensive tour of certain sections of the country. The enterprising Dealer who is located in a city or town covered by the itinerary of the Presidential party should immediately prepare to take advantage of that fact and dispose of his stock of the Records the President made before his election. The subjects treated by him on these Records are as live now as they were during the campaign of that time. His presence in your city will naturally create a lot of interest. People will struggle to see him and hear him speak and anything bearing his name will of course attract immediate attention. You can best turn that fact to your advantage by a window display featuring the Records. Call the attention of the passers-by to the Records in some striking manner. For instance, announce by means of a huge placard the time of his arrival in the city and when he is to speak, reminding the public at the same time that he is inside your store at that moment prepared to address them on any or all of the twelve live subjects. Use small cards to advertise the subjects, one for each; don't crowd everything on one card. You could arrange them in an artistic manner with the President's picture for a center-piece. There are many ways in which you could arrange an attractive "Taft" window to aid you in disposing of these Records. Employ your ingenuity at once. It will give you an opening wedge to introduce the balance of your stock once you get the people inside your store. Don't miss this chance—it's too good.

National Phonograph Company Entertains

Our New York office, at No. 10 Fifth avenue, was the rendezous of a number of out-of-town Jobbers who arrived in the city during the first week of the Hudson-Fulton celebration. A huge stand had been erected in front of the building from which the parades of Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday were reviewed. While no formal invitations had been issued because of the inability to accommodate a large number of visitors in a satisfactory manner, it seemed to be understood by the visiting Jobbers that the latch string would be hanging on the outside as usual and in consequence the accommodations provided were taxed to the limit. Every effort was made by the officials of the Company to make the visitors feel at home, while they were our guests and it is safe to say that they departed from the city with pleasant recollections of their visit to No. 10 Fifth avenue.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Our Australian Office

The above is a cut of our Australian headquarters at 340 Kent St, Sydney, N. S. W.

While excellent photographically, it fails to give an adequate impression of the dimensions to which our business in the Antipodes has grown.

Furthermore, there is nothing to indicate that the building is used exclusively by the National Phonograph Company of Australia, Ltd., other than the small signs appearing on either side of the doorways on the lower floor.

The truth of the matter is that this is only one of the four buildings our people occupy in Sydney.

In this building the first and a portion of the second floor are occupied as offices. The balance of the second floor and the entire third and fourth floors are used to carry Record stock.

On the opposite side of the street they have another building five stories high, in which their machines are temporarily stored. We use the qualifying adverb advisedly, for the volume of business transacted in "Kangarooland" indicates that the stock of Edison Machines and Records is never stagnant.

In addition to this they have a four-story building used for the storage of Records, and still another building on another street, which is also used for storage purposes.

The prosperous condition of our Australian interests is evidenced by the fact that arrangements are about completed for the erection of a building which will permit our Australian Company to carry on its entire business under one roof.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic Edison Jobbers in the country paid a visit to the factory early this month, and in speaking of general trade conditions said:

"We're still after business despite the fact that our line is strictly a luxury, or at least by no means a necessity. I have over six hundred open accounts on my books at the present time. During the past nine months there have been but three failures, and these due more to the Dealer's lack of enterprise than the general condition of business. Can you point to a single other line, which can boast of so few failures during the depression? I venture to remark that there are few indeed. It does seem as if Edison Dealers on the whole are made of the right stuff."

Your hardest competitor is not the man who undersells you, nor is he the man who underbuys you. But he may do both of these. The competitor you need most to fear is the man who uses brain plus energy plus system to keep things moving all along the line—always. Competition is no longer so much a matter of price as it is a matter of brains. The slovenly show window has a hammer out all the time for the store; it will knock any business.—Talking Machine World.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

In the parade which was the feature of the Labor Day Celebration in Wagner, So. Dak., our enterprising Dealers in that place, The Wagner Drug Company, entered a large float, attractively decorated on which a machine playing Edison Records was set up. As the float passed through the streets of that town advertising matter was distributed among the crowd. Unfortunately lack of space prevents our reproducing the interesting photograph which The Wagner Drug Company sent us of their float. We are assured, however, in a letter accompanying the picture, that the advertising value of the float more than offsets the cost and trouble of entering it. Other dealers might do well to bear in mind this method of advertising the Edison product, when similar celebrations are held in their cities.

STORK VISITS THE EDISON CO.

BORN—To the National Phonograph Co. —a new baby, weighing about 30 pounds —stands about 10 inches high without any shoes on—Has already been christened, and answers readily when called Fireside—Everybody doing well, especially the new baby—Family resemblance to the older brothers and sisters is remarkable—Will be ready for adoption after May 10th—

This is the unique way Harger & Blish, of Dubuque, Ia., headed a letter to their Dealers concerning the new Fireside Phonograph.

According to a report of our Minnesota salesman, F. L. Hough, Jr., the store of L. Breckenridge, Pine City, Minn., is the most popular in that town, and the proprietor is a splendid example of the enterprising Phonograph Dealer. He gives concerts at all lodge and church affairs and gets after the business in every conceivable way. He has introduced quite an innovation in the line in the shape of some original advertising Records, with which he is increasing his sales of Amberol Records and attachments.

A Good Letter

Dear Sir:—

Have you a Phonograph? If not you do not realize the pleasure you are missing, for it is true that if you have an Edison machine in your home for thirty days, you would not have it taken out for $100 if you could not replace it.

The pleasure of making your own records, is worth the price of the machine.

Think of listening to the voices of your friends that are far away.

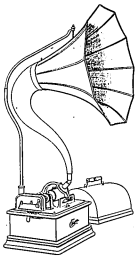
A Record made by absent children and loved ones, is beyond price.

With one you may learn foreign languages.

You may hear the latest songs, and music, and all for a few cents a day, the cost is small.

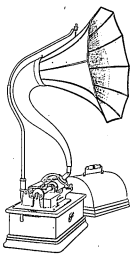
We handle only the genuine Edison Phonograph and Records. On the instalment plan if you wish.

Machines fitted with large horns and cranes $22.50, $25.00 and $35.00 each.



Call at our store and listen to the latest improved Edison machines and records—The Winnek Co., Prineville, Ore.

Scott & Jones, Edison Dealers of Youngstown, Ohio, recently moved into their new and commodious four-story structure at 254 West Federal street, the occasion being marked by a public reception for which a special musical program was provided. The store was beautifully decorated for the occasion, palms and vases of roses being scattered throughout the building. Their building is considered the finest of its kind in the city. The entire basement is devoted to the talking machine department, under the management of Robert M. McGowan. A full line of Edison machines and Records is carried.



The following extract from a letter received from H. S. Jones, an Edison Dealer of Spencer, Iowa, late in August will make some other Dealers sit up and take notice. It goes to show that Mr. Jones realizes that the method that some people still employ of waiting for business to come to them died a natural death about a quarter of a century ago:

"I am sending a few clippings to let you know how things are running out here in spite of the torrid heat. I have sold a Phonograph every day for four days in succession, in spite of the boiling heat. I go out among the people and work, and that's all there is to it. In addition, I sold 132 Records one day, but not by aiming idly in the store for business to drop in my lap, but by going out and stirring it up."

New Stock Electros

Electro of above cut is No. 527

Electro of above cut is No. 547

Electros of Machines with Cygnet Horns

The above line cuts illustrate the Home Phonograph equipped with the new Edison Cygnet Horn. We wish to advise the trade that we are now in a position to supply electros of four types of machines with the new horn equipment. Please note that the cuts will be furnished in this size only. In ordering, the following table will serve as a guide:

Line Cuts of Machines with Cygnet Horns.		Half-tones of Machines with Cygnet Horns.
Fireside	No. 723	Fireside	No. 724
Standard	No. 527	Standard	No. 528
Home	No. 547	Home	No. 548
Triumph	No. 567	Triumph	No. 568

The trade should bear in mind the fact that the half-tones, while of course more pleasing to the eye, are not at all practicable for newspaper ads. They are sure to blur and spoil the effect of the ad. They should be used on heavily coated paper only to secure the best results. Use the line cuts for your newspaper work and don't forget to send us clippings of the ads from the papers in which they appear. Send them in separate envelopes, please. Exercise your ingenuity to compose a good ad to accompany your cut—it should not be hard to do so just now. Get busy.

Electro of "Old Couple"

Electro of above cut is No. 620-A

The line cut of "The Old Couple" with the word "Edison" added in the upper left-hand corner, was designed to match the Victor cut of the dog with the word "Victor" in a corresponding position. This is a very attractive cut and makes an excellent and striking accompaniment of an ad. The cut is furnished in two sizes—1½ inches wide, which is No. 620-A and 2 inches wide, No. 620-A. "The Old Couple" ad of the Edison Phonograph is perhaps as familiarly known by the public as any other ad now in use in the United States. The slight addition here made improves the original.

Advance List

Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on November 23rd, for delivery on the following day. Jobbers are required to place orders for December Records on or before October 20th. Dealers should place December orders with Jobbers before October 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for December

305 Angels from the Realms of Glory — Edison Concert Band

Our annual specially arranged Christmas band number. This glorious hymn of thanksgiving over the birth of the infant Saviour is given a most charming setting, which includes a quartette of mixed voices, a well-trained chorus and an appropriate introduction of Christmas chimes. The interludes between the five stanzas of the hymn (which in given complete) were composed specially for this selection by F. W. Ecke, Director of the Edison Concert Band. Words, James Montgomery; music, H. Smart.

306 When the Evening Bells are Chiming Songs of Auld Lang Syne — Manuel Romain

A sentimental ballad to the charm of whose melody is added an unusual degree of merit in composition. A most pleasing and appropriate feature is the introduction of a church-chime effect in the orchestra accompaniment. Mr. Romain's rendition of this number is surpassingly fine. Words, Robt. F. Roden; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York City.

307 Bach's Air — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

J. Sebastian Bach, one of the world's greatest masters of music, was born at Eisenach, March 21, 1685, and died at Liepzig, July 28, 1750. Bach's celebrated air on the G string was originally written for a violin solo. This number is a special arrangement by Victor Herbert of this famous composition for string instruments and the rendition is necessarily of the highest order of merit. It is one of the most beautiful Records we have ever listed.

308 Down Where the Big Bananas Grow — Collins and Harlan

No Record list would seem complete without a Collins and Harlan coon duet. This selection is pleasingly acceptable in words and melody. It expresses a darkey's longing for a return to banana land and his dusky queen. This tropical charmer appears on the scene at the end of the second verse and a humorous conversation ensues. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Louis Weslyn; music, Ted S. Barron; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

309 Life's Highway — Ada Jones and Chorus

Interesting and attractive in composition, air and rendition. With mingled humor and pathos it describes three stages in woman's life and her characteristics at each. "Sweet Sixteen," with its pleasures and romantic dreams; motherhood, with its realization of care, responsibility, and its joys; and old age, with its cessation of labor, its dependence and reminiscences. The choruses of Fritz Emmett's "Lullaby" and "Love's Old Sweet Song" are introduced in the rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Felix McGlennon.

310 The Bride of the Waves — Herbert L. Clarke

Mr. Clarke is the assistant leader of Sousa's Band, and is perhaps the leading cornet soloist of the world. This number, which gives him an opportunity to display his splendid quality of tone and brilliancy of execution, is his own composition and is always a "big hit" when played by him. It was his most successful solo during the European tour of Sousa's Band in 1900. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Lyon and Healy, Chicago.

311 In the Garden of My Heart — Reed Miller

A sentimental ballad voicing a lover's contrition over bitter words spoken in a quarrel and his appeal for forgiveness. It is by the same composer who wrote "Love Me and the World is Mine" (Record No. 9371). The air is appealing and the rendition in the usual style of this artist, the purity and quality of whose tenor voice need no commendation. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Caro Roma; music, Ernest R. Ball; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

312 The Golden Wedding — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

An original vaudeville sketch whose inspiration was a song that has delighted thousands. The dialogue, which is the happy reminiscence of an aged couple on the morning of their fiftieth wedding anniversary, is interspersed with songs and the pealing of church bells, concluding with the chorus of "The Golden Wedding." Mingled pathos and comedy in the lines of the dialogue combine to add attractiveness to this Record.

313 Selection from "The Gay Hussars" — American Symphony Orchestra

The successful military opera, "The Gay Hussars," contributes this tuneful selection, which contains the three most popular songs: "Kitty, Please Give Me a Kiss," "O Silver Moon," and "My Friend Lebel." It is certainly a most charming composition, and needless to say its interpretation by the American Symphony Orchestra is all that could be desired. Composer, Emmerich Kalman; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

314 Good Luck, Mary — Billy Murray and Chorus

A march song, with a captivating air, that recommends it to instantaneous popularity. Billy Murray sings it with dash and spirit and is ably assisted by a pleasing male chorus. This Record is easily one of the best of the Amberol collection and we confidently expect it to be a leader among the good sellers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bryan and Leslie; music, Al. Piantadosi; publishers, The Harry Copper Music Pub. Co., New York City.

315 The Garden of Dreams — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

A soprano and tenor duet, with Miss Wheeler singing the verses. The song is a sentimental composition of a higher order of merit, both in words and melody, by the same author who wrote "Dearie" (Record No. 9054). This is a Record that will find its way into every collection of high-class numbers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Clare Kummer; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

316 Waltz Caprice — Samuel Siegel and Roy H. Butin

A mandolin and guitar duet arranged in concert style and played by artists of national reputation. Any attempt to describe this number would fail to do it justice. It is an exquisite rendition of a charming composition. Composer, Samuel Siegel.

317 Paddy Duffy's Cart — Edward M. Favor and Chorus

Here's something to make the old-timers sit up and take notice. "Paddy Duffy's Cart" is an old and well-known favorite song from one of the famous Harrigan and Hart musical plays of some years ago. There is an indefinable something about these old songs of our fathers that enables them to survive the competition of succeeding years with unimpaired vitality. Mr. Favor sings this number with pleasing expression, assisted by a splendid male chorus, who introduce "Twinkling Stars" and "Little Fraud," also old-time favorites. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ed. Harrigan; music, Dave Braham.

318 Annie Laurie — Knickerbocker Quartette

A special arrangement of evenly balanced male voices seems to impart a new vigor to this beautiful old ballad, whose charm will never die. The harmonization of this number is especially fine, and the fact that the complete song is rendered will make it a necessary adjunct to every Record collection. Unaccompanied.

319 Manhattan Beach and El Capitan Marches — Sousa's Band

Here are two complete selections on one Record and rendered by Sousa's marvelous organization at that. They are two of his favorite and most popular compositions—excellent specimens of the unique style and quality that won him world-wide fame. "El Capitan" is the leading number from his celebrated comic opera success of the same title. Publishers, The John Church Co., New York City.

320 In the Gloaming — Will Oakland and Chorus

That Mr. Oakland's remarkable voice has found favor with the Edison Phonograph public, would be stating it mildly. The steadily increasing demand for his Records is sufficient proof of his popularity. In the rendition of this old and popular selection, the lines and melody of which shine brighter by contrast with the efforts of the present day, his voice is given a setting that emphasizes its wonderful range and purity of tone. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Meta Orred; music, Annie F. Harrison; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

321 He Was a Wonderful Man — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

One of those conversational duets in which these singers are always happy. The solos are sung in dialogue and the chorus, which is especially catchy, is rendered as a duet. The song itself recounts the wonderful accomplishments of the "Father of Our Country." A soft shoe dance effect is introduced during a dialogue following the second chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, George M. Cohan; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

322 Medley of Country Dances — Eugene A. Jaudas

A violin solo with orchestra accompaniment, introducing the following ten well-known and popular airs: "Huskin' Bee," "Little Brown Jug," "Limber Up," "Old Oaken Bucket," "Chicken Reel," "Old Dog Tray," "Turkey in the Straw," "Jingle Bells," "Arkansaw Traveler" and Reel,"

"Auld Lang Syne." The violin plays the initial number, the orchestra the second, and so on alternately throughout the list. This Record is not only original and unique, but musically of more than ordinary merit.

323 Strawberries — Arthur Collins

An Italian character song describing Michael Tony Angelo, a strawberry huckster with a stentorian voice. Pete Mascagni tried to make an operatic star out of him, but Mikhael Tony forgot his lines and could only yell "Strawberries." Mr. Collins introduces some good comedy between verses. In a conversation with a female customer who is trying to "jew" him his horse neighs, and Michael Tony informs her that she "make da horse laugh." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Thomas S. Allen; publishers, Daly Music Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.

324 To Thee Waltz — New York Military Band

This is one of the best known waltzes of Emil Waldteufel, the celebrated European composer of graceful and popular dance music. The number is here played in concert style, and needless to say the rendition is artistically perfect. Publishers, Blossy & Co., New York City.

Edison Amberol Records by Harry Lauder

12065 She's My Daisy

One of Harry Lauder's earliest and perhaps the most popular and tuneful number of his repertoire. It is the song that he is invariably called upon to render in his encores. It is already listed in the catalogue of Standard selections (Record No. 10174) but of course is doubly more attractive as an Amberol selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Francis, Day and Hunter, New York City.

12070 I've Loved Her Ever Since She Was a Baby

Here we have one of the latest as well as one of the best of the inimitable Scotchman's droll songs. It is one that he is making a specialty of on the stage at the present moment and we are first in the field in issuing a Record of it. It is full of the Lauder patter and although it is a tale of unrequited love a humorous turn is given to it that will appeal to every one. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Francis, Day and Hunter, New York City.

12080 Bonnie Leezie Lindsay

If we didn't know Harry Lauder better we'd suspect him of becoming a Mormon when he last visited the United States. No sooner do we get acquainted with one of his "bonnie lassies" than he switches on to another in the description of whose charms he waxes still more enthusiastic. "Leezie Lindsay" is his latest flame and in this Record he tells about her in his characteristic way. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Francis, Day and Hunter, New York City.

Edison Amberol Records in Italian

5008 Tu qui Santuzza, "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

5009 Ai nostri monti, "Trovatore" (Verdi) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi

5014 Alla Stella confidente (Robandi) — Francesco Daddi

Edison Standard Records for December, 1909

10257 While Shepherds Watched — Edison Concert Band

A Christmas band selection specially arranged by F. W. Ecke, Director of the Edison Concert Band, who also composed the interludes between the stanzas of this beautiful carol which proclaims to the world the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem. The joyous pealing of Christmas chimes is introduced throughout the rendition of the hymn which is given by a quartette of mixed voices. Words, N. Tate; music, G. F. Handel.

10258 You Can't Stop Me From Loving You — Manuel Romain

A sentimental ballad whose theme is a lover's profession of devotion though his cause may be hopeless. The kind of song and air to which Mr. Romain's voice most readily responds. A violin obligato is a pleasing feature of the second chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Thomas S. Allen; publishers, Daly Music Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.

10259 I'm Going to do What I Please — Ada Jones

A tuneful coon song in which a "yaller gal" whose matrimonial prospects have been blighted through her attempts to please others, describes the many and various ways in which she intends to henceforth please herself exclusively. Miss Jones is artistic as usual in her rendition, which is a guarantee of the merit of this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10260 Mendelssohn's Spring Song — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

Who has not heard this delightful number and marveled at the genius of its youthful composer, who because of his precocity and talent occupies a unique position in musical history? The interpretation given by Victor Herbert and his famous orchestra to this gem of Mendelssohn composition has resulted in a supremely beautiful Record.

10261 In the Shadow of the Carolina Hills — Arthur C. Clough

The addition of Mr. Clough to the staff of the Edison entertainers was most judicious, as will be evidenced by the popularity of his Records as he becomes better known to the Phonograph public. Like his previous contributions to our catalogue, this number is sentimental in theme and particularly engaging in words and melody. It is a lover's plaintive yearning for his sweetheart back among the palmetto trees of the Carolina Hills. Words, Beth Slater Whitson; music, Leo Friedman; publishers, McKinley Music Co., New York City.

10262 Swanee Babe — Premier Quartette

A pretty plantation ballad with an exceptionally pleasing air, in which a happy darkey lad voices his preference for his "sugar plum lady" to "bamboo trees and sheltering palms." It voices his preference for his "sugar plum lady" to "bamboo trees and sheltering palms." It will prove a most acceptable offering to those who prefer the old-time plantation darkey song to the more up-to-date "rag" selections. The voices of the quartette blend most harmoniously in this selection. Unaccompanied. Words, Jack Drislane; music, Dick Richards; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

10263 Ring Me Up Heaven, Please, Central — Will Oakland

There is a wealth of pathos in the lines of this plaintive little ballad that demands for its proper expression a sweetly sympathetic voice such as Mr. Oakland possesses. The theme of the song is a child's request of "Central" to permit her to send a message to her papa in Heaven. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Beth Slater Whitson; music, Leo Friedman; publishers, McKinley Music Co., New York City.

10264 Lincoln Centennial March — United States Marine Band

A magnificent march that will serve to dispose of the most aggravated case of ennui. It is played with that snap and brilliancy that are characteristic features of all Records made by this famous organization. Composer, Leo Sanford.

10265 Whose Baby Girl Are You? — Grace Cameron

Miss Cameron's original composition has been given a decidedly pleasing musical setting. It deals with the sad predicament of poor "Jim," who found after marriage that "Mamie" was the mere possessive of his name. Orchestra accompaniment.

10266 Dreamland Faces — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

An unusual degree of attractiveness in composition and melody marks this number, which is rendered in duet form by soprano and tenor. The sentiment of the song is daintily expressed in lines that are refreshingly original and clever. The artists are so well and favorably known as to require no special words of commendation—their work is consistently artistic. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Georgie Reed Bradbury; music, J. B. Mullen; publishers, J. B. Mullen Music Publishing Co., New York City.

10267 B L - N D and P - G — Josie Sadler

A clever and popular "hit" of the "kid" style, in which Mamie Warner explains to Buddie Horner the original and unique spelling she gave to the words, "blind pig" at the spelling bee in school. Buddie, being in love with Mamie, agrees with her that her spelling is correct, for "blind pig has no eyes." The air is pretty and Miss Sadler's rendition clever, her enunciation being remarkably clear and distinct. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Junie McCree; music, Albert Von Tilzer; publishers, The York Music Co., New York City.

10268 Lily of the Prairie Medley — American Symphony Orchestra

Two popular songs—"Lily of the Prairie" and "Lonesome"—which will survive for a long time because of their decided musical superiority to contemporaneous selections, are here given as an instrumental number and make a very desirable Record. "Lily of the Prairie" has also been listed as a song by Pete Murray and Chorus (Amberol Record No. 207) and "Lonesome" by Byron G. Harlan (Standard Record No. 10219). Music, Mills-Joyce; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

10269 Let's Go Into a Picture Show — Byron G. Harlan

A catchy waltz number whose rhythm is particularly well defined. Johnnie loved the "drammer," but his sweetheart, Mary, preferred the picture show for the excellent opportunities it offered her "spoony" propensities. In the words of the song she prefers "spoonlight" to moonlight. Mr. Harlan's rendition is most graceful. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Junie McCree; music, Albert Von Tilzer; publishers, The York Music Co., New York City.

10270 Shadows — Anthony and Harrison

An extremely beautiful and touching hymn given a most effective rendition by these peerless artists. It is one of the finest Records they have ever made. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Robert Harkness; publishers, Revival Times Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

10271 Broke — Edward Meeker

Mr. Meeker is not only in his element, but is absolutely without a rival, in the rendition of coon songs of the rollicking, hilarious type. This is one of them, and as good as the best. It ranges in theme from the disaster that overtook Jim Jackson's spendthrift manner of living to the effect of "Teddy's" trust busting, the real comedy appearing in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Jean C. Havez; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co.

10272 The Yankee Shuffle — Sousa's Band

The interpretation given to this well-known number by Sousa's incomparable organization is marked by a buoyancy and swing that are simply irresistible. A pleasing feature is a fife-and-drum effect. Composer, Fred L. Morcland; publishers, Dixie Music House, Chicago, Ill.

10273 Foolish Questions — Billy Murray

The foundation of this song is the popular propensity to ask questions that are foolish because unnecessary. In each of the three verses of the song a common specimen is given, and each chorus contains a suggestion for a suitable answer that is comical and witty, in addition to being decidedly apropos. Mr. Murray renders the song with the expression of one who has had considerable experience with such questions. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, William See; music, H. Baldwin Sloane; publisher, Charles K. Harris, New York City.

10274 How Do You Do, Miss Josephine? — Collins and Harlan

A dainty coon duet whose particular recommendation is a melody that is most infectious. The song is a deservedly popular "hit" and, with the Collins and Harlan flavor to accentuate it, the Record will prove popular. The second chorus is followed by a school of instruction in the proper way to say "How do you do, Miss Josephine?" Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Junie McCree; music, Albert Von Tilzer; publishers, The York Music Co., New York City.

10275 Uncle Josh Invites the City Folks to Visit Him Down on the Farm — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh is leaving New York, after having had the time of his life, and in gratitude is inviting all his city friends to visit him at the farm, the many attractions and curiosities of which he recounts in side-splitting fashion. As usual, his infectious laugh is a feature.

10276 Carolina Brown Two-Step — National (London) Military Band

In this Record the instrumentalists have again distinguished themselves, and as makers of band Records they are unsurpassed. Attention may well be drawn to the liveliness of "Carolina Brown." The piece in itself is a tonic—it is musical champagne. Old and young, cheerful and sad—all are carried away by its insidious melody. Composer, Karl Kaps.

Edison Standard Records in Italian

19430 Ah, Mimì, tu più "Bohème" (Puccini) — Francesco Daddi and Vincenzo Reschiglian

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of December Phonogram.

TRADE BULLETINS

Agreement Department Bulletin No. 5, September 15, 1909
Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should invariably be numbered and addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, AGREEMENT DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

We are led to believe that Jobbers and Dealers are under the impression that this Company will sanction the handling of certain makes of cylinder machines for the purpose of advertising their business, or obtaining names for mailing lists, etc. This impression is an erroneous one, and we hereby notify Jobbers and Dealers that it is distinctly contrary to our Conditions of Sale for them to sell, cause to be sold, or supply or deliver for others, cylinder machines and records of other than Edison manufacture. Any arrangement involving the sale of Edison Records as a consideration for the purchase of such other makes of machines by users is also prohibited.

Suspended List, Sept. 20, 1909

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

The New Combination Type Gem Phonograph

Did you take time by the forelock and lay in a stock of the New Combination Gems that were formally introduced to the public on October 1st? Or did you follow the example of the Edison Dealers who, when the Fireside was first brought out, refrained from placing an order until its popularity was confirmed by the amazing sale that is still going merrily on? We hope not, for the sake of your pocketbook and your longevity as a Dealer in Edison products. Isn't it astonishing how little foresight some people have? There's the Fireside—a machine that the public simply demanded—and yet some Dealers actually were skeptical of its success!

To be sure, at the time of its introduction the country was not in the most flourishing condition financially; which fact may help palliate their weak-kneed attitude, but can not entirely pardon it for they knew that its existence was necessitated by a demand and should have prepared to meet it. And what was true of the Fireside is true of the new Gem—only in still greater measure.

If the Fireside at $22.00 could astonish the Phonograph trade by the tremendous sale it enjoyed what will the new combination Gem at $15.00 do? That's the way to figure it out. One is popular, the other should be still more popular for it combines the same excellent features that are embodied in the newer type Phonographs at a much smaller price.

It is equipped with the new Model "K" reproducer and therefore plays both the Standard and Amberol Records, which is the greatest selling point of a Phonograph these days. It will make a big "hit" with the holiday trade for its price puts it within the reach of everyone. Don't wait for the holidays, however; they're two months off. If you do you'll find that somebody else has got in on the ground floor and done business while you slept. If you haven't ordered your stock, do it now; if you wait any longer you will have occasion to feel the bitter experience of thinking over "What might have been."

Criminal Neglect

The astounding fact has recently been brought to our attention that in a certain city of the South, whose population is approximately 60,000, Amberol attachments and Records are comparatively unknown. The city in question, whose name we are withholding for obvious reasons, boasts of one Jobber and three Dealers! It seems almost incredible that such a condition could exist, and the matter is receiving a prompt and thorough investigation at the hands of our Sales Manager. It seems to prove that there are localities where our agents are not alive to their opportunities. These localities will be discovered in the near future by our traveling representatives and we shall begin to ask questions. We are entitled to KNOW WHY if our goods are not being pushed and, once the information is in our hands, we shall take prompt steps to remove the obstacle, whatever it may be, that interferes with their advertisement. It is of course possible that in this instance local conditions may be responsible for the apparent inertia on the part of Jobber and Dealers, and we are suspending judgment pending the receipt of complete facts of the case. It is hard to believe, however, that business conditions were so bad in a city of that size that this most attractive and salable features of the line could not find some market. The Amberol attachment is the biggest "boost" the Edison Phonograph business ever received and the Edison Dealer who is not aware of that fact simply has not been keeping pace with the strides of the business. He is allowing an opportunity to re-establish his business on a sound and sure basis to slip through his fingers. He is throwing away a chance to profit by the acquisition of the hundreds of old and new Record customers that the Amberol attachments will bring to his store. Whether his oversight is deliberate or due to neglect it is criminal and deserving of the most severe censure.

We sincerely trust that further investigation throughout the country will disclose the fact that this case is without a parallel, for we should hate to believe that our Jobbers and Dealers in every instance, are not giving us the support of their co-operation and enthusiasm.

Get the consent to a home demonstration, Mr. Dealer, and your Phonograph, with a few carefully selected Records, will do the biggest share of the work.

Correction in Form 1620

Despite the very careful checking given the proofs of it an error has crept into the Domestic Record Catalogue, form 1620, just shipped to all Jobbers.

On page 40 the violin imitation of "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Edith Helena, is listed as No. 9556. Its correct number is 9556.

TEXT:

The cat in gloves
Catches no mice.

THE Phonograph dealer who depends upon the Phonograph to do all the work of selling itself, who doesn't keep his mailing list up-to-date and his windows alive, has a glove on each paw—and stands to last about as long as a snowball on a tin roof in June.

You've got to relieve yourself of every selling handicap. You've got to pull those gloves off.

Your first job is to get the crowd into your store, and the second, to sell 'em the goods after they get in.

How many issues of your local paper get by without your ad?

How often do you give concerts, and how much do you advertise them?

Do you circularize you entire mailing list, advertising a concert every time you get a stock of new records?

These are the things that bring the crowd into your store.

Now you've got to think of taking care of the crowd after they get in.

Don't let your store get "cluttered up." Keep your stock in shape so that you know right where to lay your hand on everything a customer wants or ought to have.

Systematize your arrangement of Records by the most approved method yet devised—the Tray System.

You will then have your Records in compact shape and can pick one out in the twinkling of an eye.

Teach your clerks the necessity of politeness and a thorough knowledge of your goods.

At your concerts give your audience a chance to sit down—comfort is one big, important item in selling Phonographs. Make your audience feel as if they were listening to it right in their own homes.

Get them in a receptive mood and they'll listen just as intently to an occasional advertising record as to the rest of your program.

The Amberola Stirs the Trade

The new Edison Amberola, which was described and illustrated in our October issue, was formally announced to the trade by Sales Department Bulletin No. 36 of October 18, reprinted on page 26 of this number. Its informal or preliminary introduction to the trade was given during the Hudson celebration week at our New York office, No. 10, 5th avenue, where were gathered representatives of the trade from various sections of the country to witness the celebration.

If in reciting the result of that and subsequent exhibitions of the Amberola we strike a note of exultation, we trust that we may be pardoned; it is only the expression of a natural feeling of pride that every manufacturer is entitled to when the product of his time, skill and labor receives the stamp of instantaneous approval from men who are competent and unbiased judges of its merit or demerit. That these trade representatives were lavish in their praise of the splendid tone quality and artistic appearance of the Amberola, after a most critical examination of its mechanism and design and after hearing it render a program embracing a wide variety of vocal and instrumental selections, is an eloquent testimonial to its superior qualities.

Since that time the machine has been demonstrated by a special corps of salesmen to Jobbers and Dealers in various sections of the country and the verdict rendered in New York has been sustained in every instance. Instead of mild, formal approval its appearance has elicited the most unqualified praise. It has been unhesitatingly pronounced to be the most perfect high-grade Phonograph ever submitted to the public. Our Jobbers are delighted with the Amberol, and we are proud to have given them an instrument that awakened such a degree of enthusiastic interest as is everywhere being evinced.

The proof—the conclusive, undeniable proof—of the general high opinion of its excellence and salable points is to be found in the volume of initial orders that we have received to date. To say that we are amazed at their grand total would be putting it mildly. Quite naturally we expected that the trade would display considerable interest in the appearance of the Amberola, for it is their insistence that brought it into existence, but we were entirely unprepared for the emphatic endorsement that is finding expression in every mail. Orders are multiplying thick and fast. Initial orders are being supplemented, in some instances doubled, and in many trebled.

No product of this Company has ever evoked a corresponding enthusiasm. That is a broad statement to make, for there have been many popular Edison products placed on the market since we laid the foundation of the Phonograph business, but we reiterate it in all sincerity without any reservation whatever. Among all the Jobbers and Dealers who have seen and heard the Amberola there has not been one dissenting voice from the universal opinion of its supremacy among instruments of its kind. Its success is assured; of that there is not the slightest question.

There is but one logical reason for its popularity and that is that it fits a niche—that it will respond to a popular demand. We were long ago assured that the musical public was in a receptive mood for the appearance of a high-grade Edison Machine, but we purposely delayed its introduction until satisfied that our creation was all that long experience, mechanical skill and ingenuity and the best quality of materials could make it. That, we are satisfied, has been accomplished.

The Amberola is an instrument with which the Edison Dealer may, with supreme confidence, appeal to the most critical music lover, inviting the fullest and most rigid comparison with any and all of the high-grade machines on the market to-day. Its introduction to the public comes at a particularly appropriate time, for it gives the Dealer sufficient time to advertise and exploit it before the holiday trade begins.

It needs only to be brought into public notice; its appearance and tone quality will make for it friends on sight. Every Edison Dealer should order an Amberola at once and make a special effort to give it immediate and the widest possible advertising. A public concert, or if that be not possible, a specially arranged concert at the store would seem to be the most effective way of giving it publicity.

We urge that orders be placed at once. The demand is assured, the profit is exceptionally large, and the time between now and the holidays very short.

Business as We Find It

The talking machine business is looking up; of that there is no question. The most encouraging reports reach us from all parts of the country, and orders are arriving in a constantly ascending scale. We are beginning to receive orders by wire which is a healthy indication of improvement in trade conditions, particularly as a goodly proportion of these telegrams are from Eastern manufacturing localities which bore the brunt of the business depression. Machine and Record sales, as well as those of equipment parts, have taken a decided spurt within the past month.

While a certain percentage of this business is undoubtedly due to the near approach of the holidays, a comparison with our sales during the corresponding period last year is satisfactory proof of a general improvement all along the line. The Fireside continues to be the leader of the lower-priced Machines, with the new Combination Gem giving every evidence that it will be equally as popular as soon as its advantages become better known to the public. Both of these machines should be exceptionally good holiday sellers. The increase in Amberol Attachment orders until lately was gradual but slow—too slow in fact, when the extraordinary talking points for the sale of the wonderful device are considered. We anticipate a big business in attachment orders during the winter, for it is very evident that Eastern Dealers delayed pressing their sale until times began to improve.

Cygnet Horn orders have been coming thick and fast,—in fact, we are snowed under just at present although doing all in our power to obtain relief. We are taking all necessary precautions to prevent a repetition of this embarrassment in the case of the Amberola, and will endeavor to have the situation as well in hand that we shall experience no difficulty in executing orders. Summarizing the situation, we are happy to be able to say in all candor that the present conditions and prospect of the talking machine business are better, much better, than they have been at any time since the start of the business inactivity.

Edison Phonographs and Records Win First Prize at Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exhibition

Official notification has reached us that the International Jury of Awards at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition has given to Edison Phonographs and Records the Grand Highest Award for cylinder Machines and Records. The necessary medals, documents, etc., made out in our name are to be forwarded to us as soon as they are issued by the Department of Exhibits. In view of the fact that no special effort was made to win the award, the decision is particularly gratifying.

Our Advertising Plans

Our advertising campaign, begun in earnest on October 1st, is being conducted on an intelligent, orderly and aggressive plan. We are directing the force of our attack at those points where we are convinced the most effective results can be obtained. It is a matter of regret with us that we cannot utilize every magazine and newspaper in every city in the country, or at least in every city in which an Edison Dealer is located, to advertise Edison Phonographs and Records. That, of course, is out of the question; it would require the wealth of Croesus.

We are spending an enormous sum of money willingly and cheerfully, with an unbounded optimism in its efficacy, and the conviction that our example will be emulated by a large percentage of the trade. We will not let ourselves believe that there are more than a very few Edison Dealers who will so little appreciate the extensive general demand for Edison goods that our advertising is bound to create as to fail to supplement it in their own cities and towns. There is comparatively so very little for them to do—merely to call local attention to the fact that they are Dealers in those products whose desirability we are indelibly fixing in the minds of the general public—that the logic of their taking active part in the scheme will, we are sure, appeal to them with irresistible force.

On October 1st we began to advertise in four hundred and fifty newspapers published in three hundred and seventy-one different cities. This month our magazine advertising will embrace the following fourteen popular weekly and monthly magazines: Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Associated Sunday Magazines, American, Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, McClure's, Munsey's, Argosy-All-Story, Review of Reviews, Success, Hampton's, Woman's Home Companion and Good Housekeeping. In nine of these we use a two-page ad; a single column in one more; a half column in still another, and the entire back covers of the remaining three. To one familiar with magazine advertising rates the estimated cost of these insertions will tell a story of confidence and optimism more eloquent than pages of the most carefully worded copy.

Watch these magazine ads in this and succeeding months, Mr. Dealer. You will find a lot of valuable information in them for your end of the business, and if you make your local ads conform to them in subject matter you will insure a local benefit from the general interest and demand the magazine work will create.

The excellence of these Records in respect to selection, rendition and recording will commend them at once to music lovers and give them an extraordinary sale value from the Dealer's standpoint, even did there not exist another and all-important reason for their desirability—the fact that they are four-minute Records, which places them on a pedestal far above competition. Dealers are urged to place their orders for these Records at once. They are an indispensable adjunct of the Amberola. With the new Amberola and the new Grand Opera list the Edison Dealer is in a position to make an irresistible appeal to that portion of the holiday trade whose incomes are proportionate to their inclinations.

The Fatality of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration

In the only serious accident of the Hudson-Fulton celebration, Miss Frances Isabella Stevens, only daughter of Walter Stevens, manager of our Foreign Department, was instantly killed, and the Misses Edna and Ruth Dolbeer, daughters of Sales Manager Frank K. Dolbeer, were severely injured. The accident occurred Saturday night, September 25, during the progress of the naval pageant with which the celebration opened. Miss Stevens and her parents, with Mr. and Mrs. Dolbeer and their daughters Edna and Ruth, were on the sight-seeing ferryboat, Hopatcong, of the Lackawanna R. R. Co. line. When opposite 110th street, the Hopatcong was run into by the Ward Line Steamer Seneca.

At the moment of the collision Mr. Dolbeer and the three young women were on the main deck, just forward of the cabin. Mr. Dolbeer saw the liner approaching and shouted a quick warning to his companions to run back. His daughters reached the companionway, but Miss Stevens, apparently confused, was unable to avoid the prow of the ship and was crushed against the cabin. Her death was instantaneous.

Miss Ruth Dolbeer was struck by a flying timber. Her arm was broken and she was otherwise bruised. Miss Edna Dolbeer, who was thought at first to be seriously injured, was removed to a Hoboken hospital. Mr. Dolbeer escaped injury. One of the pathetic features of the accident was the fact that until two o'clock of the following morning Mr. and Mrs. Dolbeer were in complete ignorance of their daughter Edna's survival of the disaster, she having been removed from the scene in the ensuing confusion.

When the sad news of the fatality reached the factory profound grief was pictured upon every countenance, from that of the highest official to the humblest employe. The warm personal regard and esteem in which Mr. Stevens is held by his associates, and the immense popularity he enjoys among the Company's employees were manifested by the heartfelt expressions of sympathy for him and his wife that were heard on every hand. The grief of the employees was echoed by the representatives of the trade, who were enjoying the Company's hospitality during the week. The plans formulated for their entertainment were carried out, but in a perfunctory manner, a repression of the spirit and enthusiasm that are always in evidence at the Company's functions being plainly noticeable. It seemed at that time, as it does now, after the lapse of over a month, that in the bereavement of our friend and associate each one of us sustained a personal loss.

The PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY takes this occasion to extend to Mr. and Mrs. Stevens on behalf of the Company's employees the abundance of sympathy that each individual has been deterred from expressing in person only by fear of accentuating their grief. It deplores the feebleness of human expression which prevents us from conveying in words the true depth of our sorrow over their great loss, and prays that the same Divine Providence, whose inscrutable workings were manifest in the accident, will strengthen them and enable them to bear their affliction with Christian resignation and fortitude.

New Plan for Distributing Record Bulletins

For some time we have been mailing a single copy of the hanger showing a list of new Edison Records to each Dealer with copies of the Record Supplement and Phonogram for the same months, etc. Many Dealers were able to use more than one hanger regularly. This demand in the past has been filled through Jobbers, they receiving a quantity of the bulletins with their shipment of new Records for the same month. We have found, however, that this method of distribution resulted in considerable waste and it has been decided, therefore, after consulting with several Jobbers on the subject, to put a new plan into effect beginning with the December Bulletin.

We will discontinue sending any quantity to Jobbers with Records, and Dealers must in future get their extra copies direct from this department by mail. Those who are interested in receiving one or possibly two extra copies will kindly fix their names with our Advertising Department at once with the understanding that the Bulletins will be forwarded by mail immediately after the single copies are sent out in the usual way each month.

Do not blame your Jobber if he discontinues sending any extra copies you have been getting in the past after the November issue. The fault is not his but ours. Let us hear from you at once if you are interested in having your name put on a special mailing list for extra copies.

Have you advertised the October dance list?

A Compliment from Mexico

The Mexican Herald, in a lengthy article referring to the recording of native selections in which we were recently engaged, after speaking in glowing terms of the reputation and ability of the artists employed and of the enterprise and progressiveness of our Mexican branch, pays tribute to the excellence of the National Phonograph Company's product in the following terms:

"Very few of the countless thousands who are now able to enjoy the world's musical masterpieces, as rendered by that most wonderful of modern inventions, the phonograph, have any conception of the infinite pains, labor, time and expense that it requires to produce those results that appear to be almost superhuman. Many thousands of dollars may be spent upon a single record before it ever becomes of commercial value, and the amounts that a great concern like the National Phonograph Company of Orange, New Jersey, expends annually upon the production of its matchless records run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. The making of records is a very interesting process, and at 18 Cinco de Mayo the same method is followed as has been adopted at the great laboratory of the National Phonograph Company at Orange, New Jersey. "Performances," as they are called, are held twice daily, morning and afternoon, in a room especially arranged for the purpose, the sound being focussed to the receiving phonograph. A record is not permitted to pass until it is as perfect as it is possible to make it. Sometimes a band may play a dozen or more times into the phonograph before a perfect record is made, infinite patience being one of the absolute essentials in the process."

Victor Herbert's New Opera

The new opera which Victor Herbert is engaged in writing for Mr. Oscar Hammerstein will not be completed until about the middle of next February. Spanish local color will prevail throughout, the scene being laid in Santa Barbara, California, at the period of 1810. Mr. Reading, of San Francisco, is the librettist.

Fireside and New Combination Gem

The Dealer who does not attempt to push the sale of these popular-priced machines can have but one excuse—he must be located in a neighborhood whose inhabitants would scorn the most perfect musical instrument because its price might savor of the plebeian. In that case it's up to him to feature the Amberols. Such neighborhoods, however, are chiefly distinguished by their scarcity. The majority of Dealers are so located that they can make these two machines a most desirable business asset, and the minority are those who are not alive to the fact.

The permanent address of all "dead ones" is not the cemetery, by any means; some there are in the world of business who have passed away so quietly and unostentatiously that their departure has escaped the attention of the public. Which is quite characteristic of the public, by the way. When a business man "dies," in the sense that he ceases to show by his activity in business circles that he is "alive," the public promptly forgets that his place of business ever had an existence and he is likewise supposed to be consorting with the shades of those mortals who have gone through the regular process of disintegration.

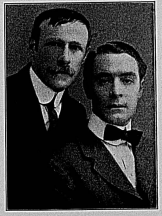
We don't doubt, in fact we know, that there have been some such informal interments among the ranks of Edison Dealers; we trust there will be none in the future. If there are, we do not wish to be considered as occupying the position of mourners; on the contrary, we shall philosophically bow to the inevitable and turn our attention from the obituary to the "agents wanted" column. For Dealers of that type who have not sunk too deep into the coma of inactivity or despondency we recommend the Fireside and New Combination Gem as being of extraordinary merit as stimulants. They are capable, if prescriptions are carefully followed of effecting a most complete and permanent cure in even the most chronic cases. The danger of relapse, moreover, is small unless the patient wilfully disregards advice; in that case there's no hope.

Seriously, however, these two machines are an invaluable holiday asset. Their popular prices, combined with the completeness of their equipment, will appeal most forcibly to the holiday buyer whose salary does not justify the purchase of a high-priced machine, but who wishes a Phonograph possessing exactly the superior features that distinguish these two. The live Dealer will go after such trade intelligently and persistently, and will start in early to do it. He will get the trade, too. A holiday buyer, who is in the market for a Phonograph to give as a present, won't hesitate long before these machines. Push their sale, Mr. Dealer. Get your own little corner among the "live ones" in the holiday market. The Fireside stirred up things when times were dull. Times are different now.

New Edison Record Talent

Bessie Wynn

Bessie Wynn is one of the cleverest, daintiest and most popular of America's footlight favorites. Her first Record is No. 10278, November list—"It's Hard to Find a Real Nice Man."



Herbert L. Clarke

Assistant leader of Sousa's Band and perhaps the leading cornetist of the world. Mr. Clarke's first solo Record is No. 310, December, "The Bride of the Waves."

Arthur C. Clough

A noted tenor who possesses a singularly sweet and sympathetic voice. His first number appeared in the October list, No. 10253, "When the Meadow Larks Are Calling, Annie Laurie."

William Banner and Roy H. Butin

"The Olivotti Troubadours," well-known in concert and vaudeville, whose charming violin and guitar duet appeared in November list, No. 302, "Carnival of Venice."

Edison Genius in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration

Without attempting to minimize any of the glory that has been given the memory of Hudson and Fulton, Rev. Charles T. Walkley, rector of Grace Church, Orange, in a sermon on the recent Hudson-Fulton celebration, paid a forceful tribute to Thomas A. Edison for his inventive genius, which made possible the success of the celebration. Mr. Walkley deplored the fact that while the achievements of electrical science had added much to the success of a celebration in honor of an adventurer and a dead inventor, nobody had thought to honor a living genius, whose discoveries were largely responsible for the brilliancy of the display.

"Not the least factor in this whole celebration," Mr. Walkley declared, "is the electrical display, thousands of lights of a variety of kind, the wonderful searchlight of the battleship and the incandescent burners in the street, all making a vast display viewed by the crowds as never revealed in the world before. The great marvel of the electric current generated in the dynamo, carried with the mysterious power of the copper conduit and blazed in the myriads of lights, rivaling the stars in the firmament—all this is a part of the honor paid an adventurer and an inventor of the past.

"One hundred years hence there will be a greater display and one of our own townsmen, Thomas A. Edison, will be remembered as an inventor. He is one of our 'rivers flowing into the sea,' gathering force and strength. The influence of his inventive genius is pouring out comfort and safety and joy to human life all over the world.

"We fall signally, as residents of the Oranges, in the very purport of the celebration if we forget in our admiration of the inventor of 100 years ago to expres our admiration for the great inventor of our time, our neighbor and our friend. May God bless him with many more years of fruitful labor, and may our Father's peace rest upon his home and family."

Correction

An error was made in listing No. 5014 as one of the three Italian Amberol Records in the January, 1910, list on our Dealer's Order Blanks. This number has already been put out as part of the December, 1909, list. It should be stricken from the January list and No. 5013, La Serenata (Braga) by Francesco Daddi substituted.

The demand for Edison Phonographs is going to last as long as people demand songs and music. Don't forget that.

Among the Jobbers

Messrs. Kohler & Chase, Edison Jobbers and the pioneer musical firm of San Francisco, in which city they have been in business since 1850, will, about December 1st, occupy their new ten-story building at 26 O'Farrell St. It is a magnificent structure and a monument to the enterprising and successful business methods of the firm. The new building is ten stories high with 50,000 square feet of floor space. The first floor of this veritable palace of music will be devoted entirely to the wholesale and retail handling of the Phonograph business. On this floor eight booths will be constructed in which the various Records may be heard played. Weekly recitals of the Edison Phonograph will be given on the second floor, which houses of a $200,000 pipe organ. THE PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY wishes to extend its hearty congratulations to Messrs. Kohler & Chase on the prosperity that is evidenced by the sumptuous scale on which they have conducted the construction and equipment of their splendid new home.

The Williams Echo is the name of the "newsy" and attractively designed house publication of the R. S. Williams & Sons Company, Edison Jobbers of Toronto, Ont. The appearance of the first edition of the Echo was the occasion for numerous congratulatory messages from their Dealers, who were quick to see the advantages that will result from such a medium for exchange of views and confidences between themselves and their Jobber. Edison Jobbers generally, especially those that handle musical merchandise, would find it profitable for themselves and their Dealers if they were to emulate the example of our hustling Canadian friends.

Peter Bacigalupi, the well-known Jobber of San Francisco, Cal., who was the first trade representative to hear the Amberola, expressed himself in the following enthusiastic terms:

"I expect to do an immense business with the Amberola. It is undoubtedly the most perfect product ever turned out by the Edison people, and is a remarkable creation in every respect. The beautiful quality of its tone, the absence of scratching, the superb finish of the cabinet, all make a creation that will win an army of admirers."

Mr. Bacigalupi evidenced his faith in the Amberola by placing a substantial initial order on the spot.

Mexican Band Records

Among the many records obtained by our experts during their recent stay in Mexico, those by the Banda de Policia (Police Band) are of more than usual merit. We have already issued sixty-eight records by this famous organization, and further monthly lists of both Amberol and Two-minute Records will follow. We cannot express ourselves too highly in describing the general excellence of these Records. There is not one in their number that does not measure up to the high standard of our Records, and we can only add that it is a great pleasure to offer a list so perfect.

CAPT. VELINO M. PREZA

The Banda de Policia is one of the most popular bands in Mexico, where every one is a connoisseur of band music, and its members are the flower of the instrumentalist of Mexico. Organized and patronized by General Felix Diaz, nephew of President Diaz, and Chief of Police, and under the direction of Captain Velino M. Preza, who is an eminent composer of band music, the band has reached its present perfection and is now recognized as one of the leading bands of the world. This band has toured the United States on several occasions, and has always met enthusiastic audiences wherever it has played. During its last visit to the United States, in the fall of 1908, a concert was given on the steps of the Sub-Treasury building in New York, by special permission of the government and as a compliment from President Diaz, of Mexico.

Many of the selections played by this band are typical of Spanish and Mexican music, and the peculiar charm of the music of these Southern countries cannot fail to appeal to a large public in this country. Most of us have heard, and remember with pleasure, snatches of this class of music, but few have enjoyed such a treat as we now offer. All these selections were made under the personal direction of Captain Velino M. Preza, to whose magnetic personality and large musical knowledge the phenomenal success of this band is mainly due. The Captain was delighted with the records just obtained and has expressed his pleasure in a letter to us, which we give below:

MEXICO CITY, July, 1909.

Mexican National Phonograph Co., City: (Mexico City):

Gentlemen: The lot of records which the Police Band, under my direction, has recorded in your laboratory, and it is a pleasure to me to state that I have found them to be excellent in every way, and that the playing length of the "Amberol" records of four minutes, enabled me to have the satisfaction of recording the pieces of my Band with all the artistic coloring which they contain.

I congratulate myself on being reckoned among the numerous admirers of the genius of Mr. Thomas Alva Edison, and with kind regards, I beg to remain,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) VELINO M. PREZA.

Personal

General Manager Carl H. Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, left on October 30th for a six weeks' trip through the Pacific Coast States, the Southwest and the South. He will combine business with pleasure, visiting Edison Jobbers in the cities included in his itinerary. Vancouver, B. C., will be his first stopping place. Leaving there, he will be at Seattle, Wash., Nov. 10th-12th; Spokane, 13th; Portland, 15th-17th; Sacramento, 19th; San Francisco, 20th-26th; Los Angeles, 28th. From Los Angeles, his trip will include the Grand Canyon of Colorado, El Paso, New Orleans and Atlanta, the latter city being his last stopping place. He will return about December 15th.

Have you advertised your readiness to supply outfits for home demonstration? Don't neglect it.

"Amberola" and "Amberol" will be found in next revised edition of the dictionary.

The Holiday Trade

The holiday season is within hailing distance; its advent is now a matter of only a week or two. By the time the next PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY reaches you the stores in your town or city will be in Christmas garb, their windows decorated with inviting displays to catch the early Christmas shopper. The early Christmas trade is the desirable trade with all merchants; it is necessarily so with you, Mr. Dealer, for yours is a line of goods the purchase of which requires a little reflection. It is not a line that is often resorted to as an eleventh hour inspiration for a Christmas gift. You want to anticipate this holiday rush, for rush it always is in this country of proverbial Christmas generosity.

There are many things you should do to prepare for the holiday trade; there are several that you should do now. Here are a few of them, the most important:

(a) Replenish your stock of Machines and Records. Take an immediate inventory, compare it with your catalogues, place your order at once for your holiday requirement. If you haven't a stock of the big sellers—Fireside and Combination Gem—get them at once. Their superior salable points make them a holiday temptation. Get in your order early and give your Jobber and us sufficient time to fill it.

(b) Put your present stock of machines in perfect working order, and arrange your Records so that your salesmen will be able to instantly locate any particular Record.

(c) Revise your mailing list and make up your mind to spend a few dollars postage in sending out your Phonograms, supplements and other advertising matter.

(d) Try to get permission to introduce a machine and a few Records for home demonstration. Greatest selling scheme in the world, that —and as easy as it is effective. Don't wait for people to come into your store and beg of you to sell them a machine. A lot of Dealers who followed that method exclusively are now in a position to spend all their time wondering why they did. Don't give people a chance to make up their minds that they want a Phonograph; they might die before they decide.

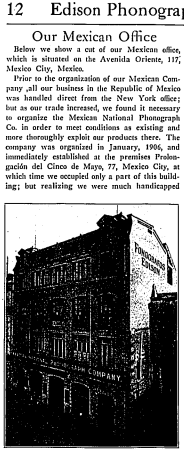
(e) After you read the Monthly insist on your salesmen doing the same thing; in fact, make them read all Edison literature so that they can talk the goods intelligently to customers.

(f) Give immediate thought to your advertising and window display. Remember the holiday newspaper space is precious and competition for the most prominent positions is always keen. Pick out a good paper and a good space and get your bid in early. Start your windows working now and make a big "splash" on the Thanksgiving window. If you get people in the habit of expecting something novel in your windows, their eyes will instinctively turn in your direction every time they pass.

(g) Don't neglect your concerts above all things. Give them on regular, stated nights so that the public will know when to expect them. Put an ad in the paper or send a postal to prevent their forgetting; it's inexpensive when contrasted with results. Keep you machines playing at other times as well; it draws the crowd.

(h-z) Don't wait; don't procrastinate; do these things now. This is the acceptable time—the day of your holiday salvation. If you're a "dead one" at this time the public is very likely to consider you as such for all time.

Amberol Attachments



While the sale of Amberol attachments has been uniformly steady, and is now on the increase, it has not begun to reach the proportions that the selling value of these devices warrants. It will be noticed that in our November magazine ad we are featuring the Amberol Attachment. We strongly urge Dealers to incorporate some of that ad in their local advertising. Among the many thousands who will read the magazine ad, a very large percentage of Phonograph owners will undoubtedly learn for the first time of the attachment and its wonderful possibilities. It is only reasonable to assume that a certain number of this class may be found in every Dealer's neighborhood, and the man of enterprise will turn the fact to his own good advantage while the ad. is fresh in memory.

The Amberol Attachment has opened up a world of possibilities to the Dealer; it practically caused a reincarnation of his business. It has made it possible for him to bring back the Record customers who discontinued their patronage because of waning interest. Those machines that are standing idle now because their owners are not aware of the pleasure that the addition of an inexpensive attachment will insure them can all be restored to activity, every one of them. It's up to the Dealer to seek the owners out. We suggested an excellent plan in the October Monthly for approaching the dormant trade. We advise every Dealer who has not already done so to put it into immediate practice. It will pay.

Our Mexican Office

Below we show a cut of our Mexican office, which is situated on the Avenida Oriente, 117, Mexico City, Mexico.

Prior to the organization of our Mexican Company ,all our business in the Republic of Mexico was handled direct from the New York office; but as our trade increased, we found it necessary to organize the Mexican National Phonograph Co. in order to meet conditions as existing and more thoroughly exploit our products there. The company was organized in January, 1906, and immediately established at the premises Prolongación del Cinco de Mayo, 77, Mexico City, at which time we occupied only a part of this building; but realizing we were much handicapped for want of room, the entire building shown above was leased in December of 1906. The entire building is now occupied by our Mexican Company, with the exception of the first floor, the general offices being situated on the second floor, and the third and fourth floors used for storing stock.

They carry a full supply of our several types of Phonographs, together with a large stock of both foreign and domestic Records, besides a stock of special Mexican Records. They also carry a full line of Projecting Kinetoscopes, Films, Batteries and Numbering Machines manufactured by the Edison Companies here at Orange.

In order to meet the large demand for Mexican Records made by native talent, we have been sending our recording experts to Mexico City for the past three years, and have already issued 444 Standard and 41 Amberol Records of this kind. These have already been placed on the market and we still have several hundred selections, both Standard and Amberol (which we shall issue monthly.

Mr. George M. Nisbett, formerly manager of our Chicago office, now has charge of the Mexican Company; and under his management we expect the season of 1909-1910 will be a record-breaker, as the prospects for doing a large business in Mexican territory were never brighter than at present.

Sousa Now Touring Country

After a phenomenally successful engagement at Willow Grove, Philadelphia's beautiful suburb, John Philip Sousa, conceded to be one of the greatest bandmasters in the world, with his magnificent aggregation of fifty musicians whose services we are employing for the benefit and entertainment of the Edison Phonograph public, is now engaged in a tour of the Pacific coast. Returning, his tour will end with a grand final concert at the New York Hippodrome on December 12. This is Sousa's thirty-fifth semi-annual and ninth transcontinental tour. The most prominent soloist traveling with the band is Herbert L. Clarke, one of the most accomplished cornetists in the world. Mr. Clarke has made a Record for us of his favorite cornet solo, "Bride of the Waves," which appears as Amberol No. 310 in the December list.

The Next Jobbers' Convention

Atlantic City was chosen as the next convention city of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers at a meeting of the Executive Committee held at Pittsburg, Pa., on September 19. The dates selected were July 5, 6 and 7, which will give the members and delegates attending the benefit of a five days' outing, July 4 falling on Monday next year.

In advertising the October dance list don't forget to mention that square dance numbers have calls. It's their big feature.

Suggestions for Thanksgiving Window Display Cards

Below we print suggestions for eight display cards that will be found useful in the preparation of the Thanksgiving window display. Get out your brush and pen and transfer them to paper or cardboard. You need not be an artist to do it; in fact, we are inclined to think that the most artistic cards do not always attract the most attention. Better by far that the cards be unique in design and lettering than that they be marked by sameness, even though perfect as to lettering, etc.

And, by the way, have you noticed how readily the Cygnet horn lends itself to a window display? Takes up very little space and permits unobstructed view of the machine. You will have your Cygnet Horns long before you prepare your Thanksgiving window. Make them part of your display.

Why wait till Christmas for your Edison Phonograph?
Buy it now.
The new Amberol Records will take care of Christmas.

A clever housewife can make a Thanksgiving turkey last a week.
Your Thanksgiving Edison Phonograph will last a lifetime.

Start this Thanksgiving by being thankful all the year round. Come in and select your Edison Phonograph now.

The turkey will taste twice as good to the accompaniment of an Edison Phonograph.

What are you going to do after dinner on Thanksgiving Day? How about an Edison Phonograph?

Don't think only of Thanksgiving—think of all the other days that come after. Get an Edison Phonograph and stay thankful all the year round.

Thanksgiving Day may come and go, but your Edison Phonograph is always new. Start being thankful to-day—buy one.

The Edison Phonograph isn't a big thing to buy, but it's a big thing to own.

Some Things to Be Thankful for

This is the season when wide-spread discussion arises as to which is our national bird, the eagle or the turkey.

We are thankful that the eagle still roosts upon the dollar and the turkey upon the platter.

We are thankful that we have on the average a live bunch of Edison Dealers on the list who are thankful for the day they began handling Edison Phonographs.

And you've got a lot more things to be thankful for, too. Incidentally, so have we—because we're both thankful for profits and we can't make money unless you do.

Take Amberol Records, for instance. Just when many of the old stagers had about decided to tuck the Phonograph away in the attic, along came Amberols and Amberol attachments to bring them to life. New start—more profits. Thanks!

Take Victor Herbert. Maybe you don't care for his music—maybe we don't. But the crowd does, and the Herbert Records certainly brought the money home. Thanks again!

But the big thing you've got to be thankful for is the fact that Thanksgiving is the big front end of the holiday season, and if you work it for all it's worth you can make a regular Christmas of it.

Your customers can't eat their turkey and have it, too—but they can play their Phonograph as long as they live and still have it. That's for them to be thankful for.

And remember this. The Phonograph is the only thing you sell this Thanksgiving that will bring home new profits on the new Records at this time next year.

Since the spring a sifting out of undesirable and unrepresentative dealers has been going on, and the manufacturing companies whose products are known have been putting forth special efforts to place the trade on a better footing in this respect than ever before. No mercy has been shown the weaklings in this weeding-out process, and this is as it should be. The jobbers and distributers who have been imposed upon by unconscionable dealers—people who are entitled to little or no credit—have also been active factors in assisting to eliminate dealers who are no good to anybody, and often not even to themselves. The clean-up has been so satisfactory that business this season should be transacted on a safer and more secure way than for several years.—The Talking Machine World.

This striking two-page advertisement is appearing in all the big Magazines and National Weeklies for November unless your Edison Phonograph is equipped to play Amberol Records

you are missing a lot of good things. Your present Phonograph will give you three times as much pleasure as it does now if you will arrange for the Amberol attachment—three times as much, because an Amberol Record is twice as long and more than twice as good as a Standard Edison Record.

All Edison Phonographs made since the invention of Amberol Records are equipped to play both the Standard or two-minute and the Amberol or four-minute Records.

All Edison Phonographs made before this time play only Standard Records unless they have been equipped with the Amberol attachment.

This attachment can be put on any Edison Phonograph by your dealer or by yourself, making available an already large list of four-minute Amberol selections.

For a small sum—$4.00, $5.00 or $7.50, according to the style of your machine—you practically get an entirely new Phonograph out of your old one, one that is able to play the world's best music, reproduced on the longest records ever made and the most perfect playing Records.

While the Standard list has the best selections that can be given in two minutes, there are many pieces of music that cannot be reproduced in this time at all and are only available for the longer Amberol Records.

If you have never heard any Amberol Records, pick out from the following list some Records that particularly interest you, go to the nearest Edison dealer on October 25th and hear them played upon an Edison Phonograph with the Amberol attachment. Any dealer will be glad to do this for you.

November Amberol Records

285 Starsand Stripes Forever March (Sousa) Sousa's Band
One of Sousa's most popular marches, played by his own band.

286 Just Plain Folks (Standall) Ada Jones and Chorus
An appealing ballad, with appropriate musical setting. Miss Jones has the assistance of a male quartette in the chorus.

287 Selections from "Little Nemo" (Herbert) Victor Herbert and his Orchestra
This selection introduces the "March of the Valentines." "Won't you be my Playmate." "Come on a Picnic." "Won't you be my Valentine." "The Slumberland Theme." Dance and March Finale.

288 How She Gets Away With It Is More Than I Can See (Furth & Cawthorn) Grace Cameron
A comic song in which one "chorus lady" vents another. Miss Cameron's very clever in her use of the "least now" remark.

289 Flanigan and Harrigan (Original) Porter & Meeker
A side-splitting side-walk conversation between these clever artists, introducing two original songs.

290 Gravy Ain (Sousa's Co. 20) Albert Spaulding
This beautiful composition is exquisitely rendered by Mr. Spaulding as a violin solo. Piano accompaniment.

291 Grandma's Mustard Plaster (Original) Murry K. Hill
A very funny monologue covering a song about the wonderful drawing qualities of "Grandma's Mustard Plaster."

292 Waiting and Watching for Me (Howe & Dix) Anthony & Harrison
One of the best known and most popular of sacred hymns.

293 Eglantine Caprice (Von Tilzer) United States Marine Band
A captivating number executed in faultless style by this celebrated organization.

294 Pansies Mean Thoughts, Dear, and Thoughts Mean You (Howe & Sweet) Manuel Romain
Mr. Romain has given a particularly fine rendition of this dainty love ballad.

295 A Thousand Leagues Under The Sea (Braun & Penn) Gus Reed
Mr. Reed's sonorous bass is admirably qualified to give to this selection its proper expression.

296 Lasca (F. Desprez) Edgar L. Davenport
A recital of this well known ballad of western frontier life. Mr. Davenport's ability as a reader is heard to as well advantage. Given in its entirety.

297 Just Before The Battle, Mother (Root) Will Oakland and Chorus
Mr. Oakland's splendid voice has never been heard to better effect than in this war ballad.

298 He Leadeth Me (Gilmore & Bradbury) Edison Mixed Quartette
A sacred selection rendered by a quartette of mixed voices with organ accompaniment.

299 Wedding—Dance Waltz (Lincke) American Symphony Orchestra
A well known waltz by the author of "Glow-worm" (Amberol Record 68.)

300 The Song I Heard One Sunday Morn (Elliot & Stamon) James F. Harrison and Mixed Chorus
This song describes the effect that the chanting of "The Palms" in a church produced on a passer-by.

301 Run, Brudder Possum, Run! (Lukeas & Johnny) Collins and Harlan
A typical Southern "darkey" song act to a soliciting air.

302 Carnival of Venice (Operatic) Creatore
A charming solo and guitar duet by accomplished musicians.

303 My Old Kentucky Home (Foster) Knickerbocker Male Quartette
We doubt the possibility of a more pleasing reproduction of this fine old Southern melody.

304 A Georgia Barn Dance (Mills) New York Military Band
An eminently good dance number as well as a fine band Record.

Ask your dealer for a complete list of Amberol Records and see what wonderful pieces of music you are now losing for lack of a simple attachment.

Edison Phonographs are the same price everywhere in the United States. $12.50 to $125.00.

Cygnet Horns

The demand for the new Edison Cygnet Horn has been almost phenomenal in the history of Edison products. The volume of orders simply took us by surprise and, as a result, we have been unable as yet to supply our Jobbers with initial lots for separate equipment only; everything furnished so far having been absorbed in the shipment of complete outfits. As this issue goes to press, we are not in a position to say definitely when we will be able to fill the standing orders. We are urging the horn manufacturers to use every effort to supply our requirements, and have been assured that they are forcing the capacity of their plants to the utmost to expedite deliveries. We regret the delay very much. It is one of those conditions that are met in business and that cannot well be anticipated. We trust that by the time the Monthly reaches the trade the situation will be relieved and the equipments moving. It is very evident that the Cygnet horn is destined for popularity with the public, a popularity that will increase in proportion as its style becomes more familiar.

The price of the horn may seem high when compared with the prices of other types that we have been furnishing with our outfits, but we are really supplying it at the lowest price practicable. The manufacturing cost is so very high because of the peculiar shape and construction of the model that we are obliged to cut deeply into our profits in order to market it at its present price. It is true that the customary margin of profit in the sale of the horn does not exist when sold as an extra, but this condition does not prevail in the sale of a complete outfit, in which case the profit is the same on both horn and machine. It is understood, of course, that we do not insist that our trade shall stock the Cygnet Horn. It is being placed upon the market merely to afford the prospective buyer an option on style. It is so very attractive in design and appearance, however, and the results phonographically are so much better than in the case of the horns regularly supplied, that we feel it will prove a valuable talking point in the sale of machines and, consequently, will become very popular with the trade.

Printed Matter

An outline of the new forms distributed to Jobbers during the month is given below:

Form 1671. This is a card 3½ x 6¼ inches in size, showing a late picture of Mr. Edison and a fac-simile of his signature on one side and a talk about Edison Phonographs and Amberol Records on the other. A space is left for Dealer's imprint. The picture of Mr. Edison is reproduced by a special lithographic process with the result that the picture is very like a photograph. All Jobbers have a supply of the form.

Form 1674. The unusual demand for Edison Cygnet Horns seemed to make it advisable that we get out a folder describing them. The edition is limited, but Jobbers have a small supply. If the requests for this folder exceed the quantity we have secured, more will be printed later on.

Form 1683. A four page folder telling the circumstances under which Record No. 20315, "El Presidente Diaz al Señor Edison," was made. Printed to fill what we anticipate will be a rather limited demand. Samples have but recently been mailed to Jobbers so it is quite likely that quantities will not be in their hands until the middle of November. Dealers should bear this fact in mind when ordering.

In addition to the above new forms, the attention of Dealers is directed to the following:

" 1490—Amberol Card.

" 1595—Four page folder on Amberol Records.

" 1615—Four page folder on Fireside.

" 1650—Four page folder on Gem Combination Type.

" 1667—Supplement of 15 Swedish Records, issued Sept., 1909.

" 1668—Supplement of 25 Italian Records, issued Sept., 1909.

Supplies of any of these may be had upon application to Jobbers.

We feel that an explanation is due Dealers for our delay in getting a new machine catalog to supercede Form 1310 which is out of print. The final "O. K." of the proofs for the new catalog was held off until we could round up additional information which should be included. We are pleased to be able to report that the printing is now well along and that we will begin shipping to Jobbers in the far West, who have placed orders, within a very few days. The indulgence of Dealers is asked for a little while longer.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

Harry Lauder on American Tour

Harry Lauder, the world's greatest and highest paid comedian, is back in the United States for a twenty-week engagement over the Morris circuit at the princely salary of $100,000. His engagement began at the Plaza Music Hall, New York City, on October 11th, and the tremendous ovation he received indicated the immense popularity that the inimitable Scotchman enjoys in this country. His name is now on the tip of every tongue. The papers are teeming with press notes and comments and people who live in the path of the circuit will let nothing prevent them from hearing Lauder sing his favorite songs.

In addition to being the best money-maker for William Morris, Harry Lauder is the biggest advertisement that the Edison Dealer has ever had. He works for the Edison Dealer as industriously, if indirectly, as he does for Mr. Morris. No one who has ever heard Harry Lauder would miss the opportunity to hear him again; ergo, any one who does hear him once will be not only willing but eager to hear his Records. And those who have never heard him at all,—well, there are a few easy things in this world and selling Harry Lauder Records to such people is one of them. His best songs—those that are always demanded after his repertoire of new numbers is exhausted—are already in your catalogue and should be in your stock, Mr. Dealer; and on the 24th Inst. three of his latest and most popular songs (Amberol Records, at that) may be placed on sale by you. Your city may not be on the Morris circuit, Mr. Dealer, but it is on the Edison circuit, and so is Harry Lauder—not for twenty weeks, either, but perennially. Let the people in your city get acquainted with that fact. Hang a card in your window, and put an ad in your paper now. Harry Lauder's is a magic name; why not start to conjure with it?

Electros of Monthly Record Lists

Two or three years ago, we put into effect a plan for furnishing Dealers with electros of the lists of new Edison Records. At that time we were putting out only 24 Standard selections a month. The numbers and titles of the Records, and the names of the artists making them, were set in small type and an electro made of the whole list. This was sold to Dealers at 30c. net. We started out originally with orders for the electros from about forty Dealers. These orders gradually dwindled to a point where we could no longer furnish the cuts at the old price, because of the cost of composition. Therefore, the service was discontinued.

The matter has been brought up again by a Dealer who says:

"I would suggest you furnish these again because the average country printer hasn't the type small enough to set the list. The cost of the space occupied by the list when set in type that the printer can furnish is greater than the small Dealer cares to spend."

With forty selections a month (twenty Amberol and twenty Standard) the list would probably occupy a space approximately 5½ inches long and single column width. We could furnish electros of this size for, approximately, 45c.

How many Dealers are interested in this service? If you would care to subscribe regularly for this electro at the price quoted, communicate at once with the Advertsng Department.

Territory of National Phonograph Company Salesmen

In order to protect the trade by eliminating the possibility of any misrepresentation we print the following list of our salesmen and the territory assigned to each:

E. P. Stanton—Pennsylvania.
C. P. Trump—Western New York.
C. D. Warren—Virginia, North and South Carolina.

Pretty formidable array of salesmen, don't you think? Hustlers, too, every one.

The Lesson of the North Pole

The North Pole has been discovered. Whatever may be the outcome of the dispute between the rival claimants for the honor and credit of being the first to reach the goal that for three centuries has been sought by the most intrepid explorers of the civilized world—whether the pages of history in years to come shall recognize the claim of Dr. Cook or of Lieut. Peary to priority of discovery really pales into insignificance before the conceded fact of its discovery. The siege of the frozen North has been raised and the baffling obstacles that Nature interposed in the path of man for centuries have been overcome. The Stars and Stripes have been planted upon the topmost point of the earth. American enterprise, determination, patience, pluck and perseverance have won out in this as in all other great events in the present day of progress, discovery and invention. Is is a powerful lesson to us all. It shows us what devotion to purpose will accomplish. It illustrates the fact that to a man of persistence, of dogged determination to accomplish an object nothing is impossible—no obstacle exists that can not be removed or overcome. We intend to assimilate that lesson and apply it to ourselves in our end of the talking-machine business. We have an object to accomplish, an object in which you are vitally interested, and we ask that you follow our example. We have increased our sales force 50%. We stand irrevocally committed to the statement that during the coming season we propose the greatest outlay of money for advertising purposes in the history of the talking-machine business. We have already taken the initiatory steps to distribute our expenditure. Four hundred and fifty leading newspapers in the United States, in towns whose population number 10,000 and upwards, are being utilized, in addition to twenty-five of the most popular magazines in the country.

We intend to advertise Edison Phonographs, Accessories and Records as they have never been advertised before. We are going to create a greater demand for Edison goods. And we don't propose to let anything discourage us from that object. That's our goal and we are going to reach it if determination and persistence will avail. And when we have reached the goal you will know it by your increased sales and by the demand for Edison goods. We are not doing this for philanthropic purposes to be sure—we are not animated purely by a desire to enrich the other branches of the trade. No; we are selfish enough to want to reap our share of the harvest. But we cannot hope to realize the benefit of our efforts until the other branches begin to work. Our interests are common. Each one—Manufacturer, Jobber, Dealer—shares in proportionate measure the effect of the energy or listlessness of the other. The framework of our business and its mechanism are so delicately intervoven that the slightest discordant act or movement on the part of one reflects upon the others. Hence it is that our efforts, dogged and untiring though they may be, are possibly of greater or less frustration by the attitude of either of the two branches of the trade.

The apathy of the Jobber or the Dealer may minimize the measure of our success (which is his success) just as his co-operation will emphasize it. Don't misunderstand us. We are not starring out on the assumption that either Jobbers or Dealers will fail to appreciate the value and possibility of the work in hand. We know that the great majority will. But there are always some laggards, some drones, in every undertaking, and it is the exceptions that we are trying to spur on to mental and physical effort for our common cause. We have taken up our share of the burden. Our work is defined.

We are to create the general demand. It is the province of Jobbers and Dealers to accentuate that demand in their localities and to prepare to meet it when it comes, for coming it is, as surely as night follows day. Don't forget the lesson of the North Pole. What Cook and Peary did in their sphere, we can do in ours. Let's work in harmony, and by intelligent, concerted and determined effort, bring back the talking-machine business to its former footing, and then we will all—manufacturer, Jobber, Dealer—come into our own.

Get busy on the Harry Lauder Records. It's one grand opportunity. Lauder's like a holiday—he comes only once a year. But when he does come he makes people sit up and take notice.

Window displays are the best form of local advertising. Don't wait for the holidays to change your display; do it now. Arrange a Lauder window and, later on, a Thanksgiving display.

If John Wanamaker sees fit to advertise Amberol attachments in thirteen papers in New York and vicinity and four in Philadelphia—big ads, too—there's a reason! Wanamaker doesn't frequent the morgue.

Edison Records for Christmas

We are planning to issue a special hanger for store use, giving a list of Records appropriate to the Holiday season. This will include the Records shown on the attached sheet. All of these have been regularly listed in the United States and Canada, with the exception of 12098 to 12103, inclusive. These are just being put out by our London branch and have not yet been brought to the attention of the trade in this country.

They are desirable Records in every respect and would have been issued in the regular way, but we did not want to exceed the number being issued each month. This special hanger will naturally create a demand for these Records, and we would suggest that you place an order for your needs at the earliest date practicable so that both your Jobber and ourselves may have an opportunity to provide for the inevitable holiday rush. Don't make the mistake of waiting until the last moment. Give us a chance so that we may plan our production; otherwise you may be disappointed in your order.

Give this hanger a conspicuous place in your window display and keep the Records handy to play them over. You will note the variety given the list. It cannot fail to create a big Christmas demand. Govern yourself accordingly and order on a wide enough margin to prepare yourself for an unexpectedly large trade. Better to be on the safe side than to fall short. The Records will always sell. They are among the best numbers in the catalogue.

Some Aphorisms

The weeding-out process is going merrily on. Lethargy is the prime cause. "The survival of the fittest" is the slogan of the manufacturers in this respect.

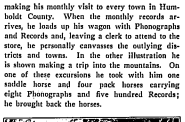
If the Phonograph was limited to but one kind of songs or one kind of music, there would not have been any Phonograph to-day, but its repertoire changes as people's tastes change; it is always ready with what is wanted.

There is no better way of seeking Phonograph buyers than through Edison Records, and that being true, the new Edison Amberol Records come as the strongest selling forces for Edison Phonograph sales that has been put forth since instruments of this kind were invented.

It is the Records that keep the Phonograph in demand and it is the up-to-dateness of Edison Records that makes the Edison Phonograph an always-new proposition in the eyes of those to whom you look for trade.

The quickest road to bankruptcy is reached by the Dealer who doesn't devote his leisure time to consideration of the methods employed by his successful competitors. Obstinancy is a business liability.

The Dealer who only at rare intervals overhauls his window display produces the same effect upon the public as does the slovenly housekeeper upon a caller who surprises her in the midst of disorder and uncleanliness.



The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

The accompanying cuts illustrate the aggressive methods employed by the Eureka Phonograph Co., of Eureka, Cal., to get new Edison business. By his bustling, energetic manner of doing things, Mr. Hillman, the proprietor, has built up the reputation of being one of the most enterprising and aggressive Phonograph Dealers on the Pacific Coast. In one illustration he is shown making his monthly visit to every town in Humboldt County. When the monthly records arrives, he loads up his wagon with Phonographs and Records and, leaving a clerk to attend to the store, he personally canvasses the outlying districts and towns. In the other illustration he is shown making a trip into the mountains. On one of these excursions he took with him one saddle horse and four pack horses carrying eight Phonographs and five hundred Records; he brought back the horses.

He disposed of not only that stock but also of twelve more Phonographs and three hundred more Records which were sent to reinforce him; a total on that trip of twenty Phonographs and eight hundred Records. Some business, don't you think? Eureka is a town of 13,000, and Mr. Hillman has a man out canvassing the town exclusively. In the near future he intends to add another outside worker so that he will have three outside and one inside salesmen of Edison goods. He intends also to put two new demonstrating booths in his store. It's refreshing to find a "live wire" in the business like the Eureka Phonograph Co., after listening to the stereotyped complaints of that class of Dealers who confound their own inertia with business ailment.

When Opportunity Knocks

As Mr. Dooley once said, "Opportunity knocks at ivry man's dure wanst. On some men's dures it hammers till it breaks down the dure, an' thin it goes in an' wakes him up if he's asleep, an' affhersards it wurruks f'r him as a nightwatchman."

It doesn't have to do that in Davenport, Iowa,—at least not at No. 322 Brady street, where H. Schmidt & Son Co., Edison Dealers, are located. They know and grasp Opportunity before he gets a chance to even tap lightly. Cal Stewart, "Uncle Josh," was in the city and taking advantage of the fact they sent a copy of the following letter (on which appeared a half-tone of "Uncle Josh") to each of their Edison Record customers, about 300 in all, enclosing a ticket of admission to the theatre where he was appearing.

DEAR FRIEND:—The original Cal Stewart, the "Uncle Josh" of the Phonograph, will be at the Elite Theatre, Davenport, Iowa, Friday, Aug. 27th, at 8 p. m.

We take pleasure in enclosing a ticket, which please accept with our compliments. At this performance he will make a Record, telling and showing how it is done, and as the number of seats in the theatre is limited to machine, and our patron, should be present. If you find it impossible to attend, please hand the ticket to someone who is interested in the Phonograph.

Trusting you will find the venture a splendid evening of entertainment, we remain,

H. SCHMIDT & SON CO.

They thus did in the belief that they would be fully repaid by the sale of "Uncle Josh" Records alone. Incidentally, they advise us that "they are still hammering away on the sale of the Edison Phonograph." If they always use as effective a "hammer" as in the above instance there's no question of results.

Sound-Proof Booths

We recently received a communication from a Dealer who inquired information in regard to the erection of a sound-proof booth in which to demonstrate Records. Being without any data on the subject we were compelled to call into requisition the kindly offices of one of our New York City Jobbers, whose demonstrating booths are excellent models of construction. For the benefit of any of the trade who may be contemplating the erection of such booths we publish the reply received to our request for information in regard to their dimensions, cost, etc.

"The booths we use for demonstrating Records only are 9 feet long and 6 feet wide and about 7 feet high. We think a better effect would be obtained by having the booths much higher. Aside from the size of the booths which, of course, must depend on the space the dealer has to use, we think our method of sound-proofing has proved quite satisfactory. The frame work of the partitions between each room is made of 2x4 lumber and on each side of this frame work is a covering of heavy paper, quite similar to very thick blotting paper, but much tougher. This we bought from the West End Manufacturing Company in Murray street, New York, and it can be obtained in various thicknesses and it is very cheap. This paper is then covered, in our case with ceiling board, although we think a much better finish is obtained by what is known as Compo board, as this makes a very smooth finish the surface of which can be painted or papered. We use this construction on all sides as well as the top and while the rooms are not absolutely sound-proof a machine playing in one room does not at all interfere with the demonstration on either side,—in fact the sound from the adjoining room would not be noticed at all. The ends of our booths are of oak partitions with glass panels. These booths cost on an average of about $50 apiece as outlined above."

Allow me to tell you how I have trimmed one of my windows. They are 10x14x8 feet. I have a cabinet on which is placed a Standard Phonograph fully equipped with horn. Record on mandrel, empty box and brush on cabinet. Beside the machine is placed a large easy chair with a dummy seated in it. The dummy is very real in appearance—wax head with hair, and wax hands. He sits in a reclining position, one hand with open catalogue of selections in it resting on arm of chair. On his lap is a list of latest Records and beside him on the floor sits a dog. Both man and dog are gazing at the Phonograph. A large card reading against the chair and facing the window reads, "You cost me $30.00, but as a rest producer you are worth $100.00." The floor of the window is covered with red bordered by blue, representing a rug. Framed picture of Mr. Edison hangs on wall of window. Does it attract attention? I should say so. Crowds will stop and look, then come in and ask questions. My windows have electric lights around them on the inside and when the lights are turned on the interior is plainly seen from the opposite side of the street one-half a block away. I am now exclusively an Edison Dealer. I am unable to sell any other kind.—Mrs. S. C. Rowden, Rowden Phonograph Parlors, Red Wing, Minn.

How One Dealer Sells Phonographs

The following extract from a communication received from Dr. C. I. Daniels, an enthusiastic Edison Dealer of Eaton, Ind., illustrates his methods of going after Phonograph customers. Dr. Daniels is another Dealer who doesn't believe in the archaic method of waiting for business to beseech his attention:

"First, I get permission to place an instrument in the home for three days, get acquainted with the family, learn what kind of music they like, find out their circumstances without asking outright, and then decide what kind of an instrument I can sell them. By that I mean what kind they can afford. Then I take six two-minute and six four-minute Records of the class I believe will please them, selecting plain and clear Records and only one funny one in each six, and go to the house with a Standard or Home, show them how easy it is to operate, and teach one of the family to operate the instrument. Tell them that these machines speak louder and more plainly than any other instrument on the market except Edison's best, one of which I will show them when I call again. Three days later I call again, bringing a few choice Records and a higher grade machine, and explain the difference between the various types, pointing out that the larger machine brings out the bass notes better and smoothes the high notes, and appears to put a polish on the whole Record. Then in a few, well-chosen words I explain the desirability of the better machine from their point of view and close the deal—or leave the better instrument with them for a day or two and then close it."

Mexican Record No. 18,750 Made Over

The trade is hereby advised that Mexican Record No. 18,750, "El Desprecio," formerly by R. Herrera Robinson, has been made over in the form of a duet by Rosales & Robinson.

Don't think the more money you spend the better your display. Arrangement is of greater importance than lavishness, always.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for January, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before December 24th, 1909, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on December 27rd. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on December 27th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after December 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before December 29th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on December 23rd, for delivery on the morning of the 24th. Jobbers are required to place orders for January Records on or before November 20th. Dealers should place January orders with Jobbers before November 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for January, 1910

325 Washington Post and the High School Cadets Marches — Sousa's Band

As is to be expected, the "March King's" splendid aggregation of musicians has striven to give an unusually fine rendition of these, the two compositions that perhaps more than all others served to spread his popularity, because they represent in a superlative degree that swing and dash that are his peculiar style. It is a magnificent Record—or rather two Records. Publisher, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia.

326 Redhead — Ada Jones

Ever heard clever Irene Franklin sing this very popular "kid" song? If you have, you'll appreciate Miss Jones' versatility, for really her imitation is artistic in the extreme. The song recites the troubles of a pugnacious "kid," the unfortunate color of whose hair has earned for her some choice and suggestive nicknames, the most repugnant of which is "Redhead," The air lends itself greatly to the proper "kid" expression. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Irene Franklin and Burt Green; publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

327 Annie Laurie and Home, Sweet Home — John F. Burckhardt

A bell solo. No more appropriate selections could have been chosen for this Record than these endearing melodies, which are also given with variations. A heavy chime effect is introduced that is most acceptable. Mr. Burckhardt shows himself to be an artist of more than ordinary ability and this Record will recommend itself as much for its artistic qualities as for its novelty. Orchestra accompaniment.

328 Ring o' Roses — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

This number is from "The Dollar Princess," a musical comedy which is both a European and an American success. It is now playing to crowded houses in New York. "The Dollar Princess" deals with the fad of John W. Cowler, an American millionaire, for surrounding himself with servants and office employees picked from the ranks of bankrupt foreign nobility. His niece, Daisy, in this way secures the Marquis de Jolifontaine as her footman, and proposes to him a "make-believe" marriage, which will enable them to take a little pleasure trip a la "Hansel and Gretel." This introduces the duet, "Ring o' Roses," which is the most melodious and attractive number in the production and always elicits many encores. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Adrian Ross; music, Leo Fall; publishers, Aschenberg, Hopwood & Crew, London.

329 The Bird With the Broken Wing — Edison Mixed Quartette

The well-balanced work of our quartette is particularly noticeable in the rendition of this beautiful hymn while the orchestra accompaniment is smooth and finished. This is a very desirable number for a sacred collection. Words, H. Butterworth; music, R. H. Beveridge.

330 Ballet Music from "Mlle. Modiste" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

A rare musical treat. Those who have heard the Victor Herbert Record No. 195, "Selections from 'Mlle. Modiste,'" will all the more thoroughly appreciate this supplemental number, for it sparkles with the inspiriting elan and abandon of all his dance movements. It correctly expresses the great composer-conductor's idea of the unwritten law of rhythm.

331 When You Were Sweet Sixteen — Manuel Romain

Who does not know or has not heard this sweetly sentimental ballad, the beauty of whose composition is surpassed only by the charm of its melody? It is a number that requires for its proper rendition a voice of unusual sweetness, range and power such as nature has favored Mr. Romain with. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, James Thornton; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

332 Gobble Duet from "The Mascot" — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

We confidently expect that this beautiful soprano and tenor duet number, which is given with orchestra accompaniment, will prove one of the most popular Records in our catalogue. It is the famous "Gobble Duet" from the comic opera "The Mascot," which was first produced at Paris in 1880 and, up to August 29, 1897, had reached its seventeen hundredth performance. "The Mascot" was one of the most successful operettes ever produced in America. Edmond Audran, the composer, was born at Lyons, France, April 11, 1842, and died at Tierceville, August 16, 1901. He also wrote "Olivette," "Miss Helyett" and others.

333 Monte Cristo Waltz — Jorda-Rocabruna Instrumental Quintette

It is difficult to give an adequate idea of the exquisite beauty of this Record. It is a waltz number with all the warmth, languor, and haunting melody of the Spanish style. The Record was made in Mexico by the most unique and concededly the best orchestra in the Republic. The instrumentation consists of first and second violins, 'cello, piano and organ. The violin used by Sr. Jose Rocabruna, the leader, is an Amati, valued at $1,000. The Record is especially desirable as a dance number. Composer, Kutlar.

334 Don't Be an Old Maid, Molly — Byron G. Harlan

A lover's passionate plea to his sweetheart to give immediate consent to his suit and name the wedding day forms the theme of this catchy little waltz song, which suits Mr. Harlan's voice to a nicety and serves to display his rare power of expression to the best advantage. There is a pleasing wedding bell effect in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York.

335 A Race for a Wife — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

A clever race-track sketch built upon a jockey's ride against tremendous odds to redeem the fortune of his sweetheart. From the start of the sketch, when the bond plays the chorus of "Pony Boy," to the finish, when he wins her hand, it is realistic and exciting, all the characteristic noises of the track being brought into play to create that effect. Original for our Records.

336 Pique Dame Overture — Edison Concert Band

This brilliant composition is the work of Franz von Suppe, one of the most popular of German composers, who was born at Spalato, Dalmatia, April 18, 1820. Von Suppe's overtures are known the world over, "Pique Dame" being a universal favorite. This Record contains the most effective movements of the overture, including the charming flute duet, one of its most attractive features. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

337 Down in Sunshine Alley, Sally — Billy Murray and Chorus

A Captivating march song of a sentimental turn, into the rendition of which Billy Murray enters with the spirit and spirit that it requires. Mr. Murray is thoroughly in his element with songs of this description, as the Edison public well knows. He is ably assisted by a capable chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edward Madden; music, Geo. W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland & Co., New York.

338 Flow Gently, Sweet Afton — Metropolitan Quartette

The melodies of our forefathers are the best after all—best because of their simplicity, which is their charm and strength, and their appealing tenderness of sentiment that sprang from poetic geniuses whose muses seems to have taken flight with their departure. The rendition given this favorite ballad of the ploughman-poet is in every respect worthy of the number, and most creditable to the artists. Unaccompanied. Words, Robert Burns; music J. E. Spilman.

339 Bercause De Jocelyn — Jean Schwiller

Lovers of high grade music will be especially interested in this number which is a Record of the best known composition of the gifted Frenchman, Benjamin Godard (1849-1895). It is the exquisite "Lullaby" from Jocelyn. It is played most artistically by Mr. Schwiller with a delicate and subdued orchestra accompaniment. This Record is adopted from our British catalogue, in which it is No. 12091.

340 From Time to Time — Thomas Chalmers

A descriptive song of a sailor's departure from his sweetheart to battle for his country; of his death in a foreign land, and her lonely vigil for his return. Mr. Chalmer's fine baritone voice is quite equal to the occasion and he gives the number a most graphic and realistic rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Tony Stanford; publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

341 Lead Kindly Light — Knickerbocker Quartette

This priceless gem of sacred hymns, whose strains were the last earthly sounds to reach the ear of its eminent composer as his eyes closed in eternal sleep, is sung by a male quartette with a wealth of harmony and expression that cannot be excelled. It is deserving of a place in every collection of Records. Unaccompanied. Words, John H. Newman; music, J. B. Dykes; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

342 Selection from "The Dollar Princess" — American Symphony Orchestra

The music of this popular musical comedy is fascinating and tuneful in the extreme, and the Record embraces its best numbers, including: Introduction to the opera; "Ring o' Roses"; "My Dream of Love"; "The Dollar Princess"; Inspection and Finale. Composer, Leo Fall; publisher, Emil Ascher, New York.

343 Emmaline — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A coon song in which a darkey boy and his "honey gal" sing their love lay in the land of the cotton blossoms. The quaint melody of the song and its composition are more truly characteristic of the real darkey nature than the "rag-time" style of delineation, and for that reason the plantation ballad is again coming back to popular favor. The work of the artists needs no eulogy. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Wm. Jerome and Jean Schwartz; publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co., New York.

344 Maria Theresia March — United States Marine Band

A stately march whose noble strains are a tribute to the wonderful genius of its talented composer. A magnificent composition finely played by an organization whose name is synonomous with excellence. Composer, J. F. Wagner.

Edison Amberol Records in Hebrew

10000 Schenkt A Neduwe (Perlmutter & Wohl) — Regina Prager
10001 Arie aus die Zwei Tanuim (Perlmutter & Wohl) — Regina Prager

Edison Amberol Records in Italian

5092 Solenne in guest' ora-La Forza del Destino (Verdi) — Francesco Daddi and Vincenzo Reschiglian
5010 Ciribiribin (Bolognese) — Maria Avezza and Francesco Daddi
5013 La Serenata (Buzzi) — Francesco Daddi

Edison Standard Records for January, 1910

10277 The Summer Girl — Sousa's Band

This selection is the second ("B") of a suite of three numbers, entitled "Maidens Three" and composed by John Philip Sousa. The first ("A"), "The Coquette," was rendered by the United States Marine Band. It is Record No. 10248. The remaining number ("C"), "The Dancing Girl," will also be played by Sousa's Band. The playing and reproduction of this number are above criticism. It is a superb Record.

10278 It's Hard To Find a Real Nice Man — Bessie Wynn

Winsome Bessie Wynn, one of the best known and most popular stars of the vaudeville stage, makes her initial bow to the Edison Phonograph public with a comic song that gives her plenty of opportunity to display the talents that have made her a headliner as a comedienne. The song itself expresses her unsatisfactory experiences with the male sex, but the song is only incidental—Miss Wynn's rendition is the thing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur Gillespie; music, Terry Sherman; publishers, Gus Edwards Music Publishing Co., New York.

10279 Sweetheart's a Pretty Name When It Is Y-O-U — Manuel Romain

Sentimental ballads are the particular forte of this famous singer, and the popularity of his Records is due to the fact that they are distinguished for volume, clearness of enunciation and sweetness of tone. This selection is meritorious in composition and tuneful, while Romain gives it the full benefit of his remarkable voice and artistic style. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edgar Leslie; music, Al. Piantadosi; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York.

10280 Oriental March — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

Anything more than the briefest possible description of a Record made by this genius and his skilled musicians is superfluous. It is only necessary to say that this is a popular number from "The Tattooed Man" and, as its title indicates, it is a selection that in movement and orchestration reflects the style of Oriental music. It is a Record that no music-lover should miss. Composer, Victor Herbert.

10281 Funny Nursery Rhymes — Billy Murray and Chorus

A comic song in which familiar characters in nursery rhymes are transported to the twentieth century and made to do "stunts" that would seem incredible were not Billy Murray's assertions convincingly corroborated by his chorus. Picture Old King Cole in the divorce courts, Little Jack Horner in an automobile accident and Sinbad the Sailor giving the "double-cross" to his tailor! It's a shocking disillusionment, but humorously and tunefully conveyed. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, R. H. Burnside; music, Manuel Klein; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York.

10282 From Greenland's Icy Mountains — Edison Mixed Quartette

An exquisite Record in every essential of rendition and reproduction. The work of our quartette in this number is deserving of unusual praise. The rendition of this well-known sacred hymn could not well be improved upon. Unaccompanied. Words and music, Lowell Mason.

10283 Have You Got Another Girl at Home Like Mary? — Harry Fay

Harry Fay is one of our British artists, a tenor singer of immense popularity on that side of the water. We have selected this number because of its unusual excellence. It appears as No. 13848 in our British Catalogue. "Mary had a lot of sweethearts," we are told, and when she became a bride, one of her unsuccessful suitors addressed himself as follows to Mary's Mama:

"Have you got another girl at home like Mary
Another little peach upon the family tree?
If you've got another little girl at home like Mary,
Then that little girl will just suit me."

Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Lawrance & Godfrey.

10284 Medley of Irish Reels — John Kimmble

An accordion solo with piano accompaniment introducing a number of well-known and popular Irish airs that are as infectious as they are melodious. They possess that mystic and irresistible power to set the feet to tapping and the lips to humming that the Celtic nature loves and demands. Mr. Kimmble is too well-known as an artist par excellence with the accordion to require special commendation. The recording is splendid.

10285 Eiley Riley — Ada Jones

A delightful little waltz song with a particularly engaging melody, the theme of which is the charms and wiles of "Sweet Eiley Riley." This selection is a feature number of "The Midnight Sons," a popular musical comedy now running on Broadway. This song is bound to be popular, and because of that fact and the cleverness with which Miss Jones sings it, the Record should be a good seller. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Glen MacDonough; music, Raymond Hubbell; publishers, Chas. K. Harris Publishing Co., New York.

10286 Ting Ting Song — Collins and Harlan

A pleasing proof of the versatility of these popular artists. Into this comic duet, which is a Chinaman's recital of his brother Tang Tang Sang's sporty propensities in contrast to his own superior virtues, they inject a surprising amount of comedy, the conversation that follows the chorus being funny. The air is characteristic as well as the effects that are introduced. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Henry S. Creamer; music, Tom Lemonier.

10287 I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now — Manuel Romain

After reciting in sentimental fashion the many arts of love practiced by the serener sex to win the affections of a maiden until "new game" appears upon the horizon, the singer, who is no exception to the rule, falls to wondering whether his "first flame" may not be doing the selfsame thing in her own way. The air is pretty and the popular tenor in excellent voice. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Hough & Adams; music, Jos. E. Howard; publishers, Chas. K. Harris Publishing Co., New York.

10288 Territorial March — National (London) Military Band

A band number of unusually good volume and quality. It is no exaggeration to say that it is one of the most invigorating quicksteps ever listed as a Phonograph Record. Composer, Blankenburg.

10289 Ma Li'l Sweet Sunbeam — Mabel McKinley

One of those delightful old "Mammy" songs with the daintiest of characteristic musical settings. After hearing Miss McKinley's artistic rendition of this little plantation melody, the words and music of which are of her own composition, it is not difficult to understand the popularity she enjoys with her audiences everywhere. This is one of the many good things of the month. Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

10290 Meet Me To-night in Dreamland — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

In this charming love ballad, the lines of whose verses are sung by the artists alternately and the chorus in duet form, Miss Wheeler and Mr. Anthony display in a marked degree those talents that have established their popularity with the Phonograph public. The chorus will give an idea of the quality of this selection:

Meet me to-night in Dreamland
Under the sil'v'ry moon;
Meet me to-night in Dreamland
Where love's sweet vows bloom.

Come with the love-light gleaming
In your dear eyes of blue;
Meet me in Dreamland, sweet, dreamy Dreamland,
There let my dreams come true.

Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Beth Slater Whitson; music, Leo Friedman; publishers, Leo Friedman Publishing Co., Chicago.

10291 Wild Cherries—Coony, Spoony Rag — Edward Meeker

A rollicking, rapid-fire coon song just becoming popular. It describes the erratic actions of Lucinda Morgan White, who is hopelessly infatuated with Wild Cherry Rag. The rendition of this song at other than Mr. Meeker's hands would be difficult, the action is so rapid, but he sings it with remarkable ease and clearness of enunciation. It is a great "rag" number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Publishing Co., New York.

10292 The Portly Major March — American Symphony Orchestra

A brilliant march number whose rhythm is unusually well defined. The interpretation given this selection by the orchestra is nothing short of superb. It deserves a place in every collection. Composer, Walter Rolfe; publisher, Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

10293 I Said "Hooray" — Jack Pleasants

Another of our English artists, a comedian, and a "top-notcher." A comedian who merely by the influence of his voice can convulse an audience is genuinely funny, and that's what Jack Pleasants will do repeatedly in this selection. The adventures he relates in his song are funny, but the real comedy is in his droll manner of singing it. This number is Record No. 13896 in the British list. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Weston & Barnes.

10294 Wedding Bells — Premier Quartette

A sentimental ballad that lends itself readily to quartette singing. Those who appreciate Records of this character will find the number particularly satisfying, the combination of male voices being an unusually happy one. Unaccompanied. Words, Robert F. Roden; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York.

10295 Flanagan and His Motor Car — Steve Porter

Vaudeville number. Flanagan buys a motor car for $4,999.87, reduced from $5,000.00, and a chauffeur (which, he says, is "French for plumber"), and the adventures he had with the combination furnish the theme for his side-splitting monologue, which concludes with a song about gasoline. Original for our Records.

10296 Kaiser Friedrich March — United States Marine Band

A splendid band Record. The selection is essentially martial in character and the rendition up to the usual high standard maintained by this famous organization. Composer, Carl Friedemann; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

TRADE BULLETINS

Sales Department Bulletin No. 36

Trade Information for Dealers

All correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Continuing the progressive policy synonymous with the name "Edison," we are pleased to announce that a distinctively new type concealed horn Phonograph will be placed upon the market, on or about December 1st, 1909, which will be known as the "Amberola."

This latest Edison creation is the result of patient, intelligent effort on the part of experts who are pioneers in the details of Phonograph manufacture, and who have succeeded in combining mechanical excellence with a highly artistic and useful record cabinet.

The "Amberola" opens up a new field for the dealer, as it will gain for him ready access to people of refinement and means, who have been anticipating a high-grade machine combining utility and perfection of tone reproduction.

EDISON "AMBEROLA."

CABINET: Mahogany (Piano finish), or Mission Oak. (See note.) Mounted on patent roller castings, is beautifully finished, and has four drawers supplied with special clamps in bottom, holding a total of one hundred and twenty Standard or Amberol Records in original cartons.

(NOTE: We will also be able to supply (ply the option of a mahogany cabinet) (with dull, or satin finish; and a gold-) (en oak cabinet if so desired. Where) (in order only specifies mahogany, reg-) (ular "piano finish" will be supplied;) (and where oak only is specified, it) (will be supplied with the "mission") (finish.)

DIMENSIONS: Height, 42 inches; width, 21 inches; depth, 22 inches.

MACHINE FEATURES: Equipped with a traveling mandrel. Has stationery new style large diaphragm reproducer, to be known as type "L." It also has an automatic stop, and a combination starting lever and reproducer lift. By lifting this lever, the feed nut is released, and sapphire raised for return of the mandrel, and removal of Record. When lever is pressed down the sapphire is lowered to a contact with the Record, and the motor also is started. The governor is of the four-ball type, and the retarding helix are mounted on a swivel friction fork. The speed adjusting screw is mounted on the rear of the top plate, and the button to change the gearing from the two to the four-minute position is also on the rear of the top plate, and is constructed so that the engagement of the gears is semi-automatic and positive.

MOTOR: New and powerful double-spring motor. The spring-barrels are very large, thus preventing the layers of the spring form coming too close together, and what is called chugging (one of the most objectionable features in the spring motor), is thereby elliminated. One complete winding of the two springs will play five four-minute Records, and in playing the last Record, the spring has the same force and strength as when playing the first Record.

PRICE: List price $200 ($260 to Canada), subject to a discount of 40 per cent.

Illustrations of the "Amberola" are shown in the October Monthly.

We trust you will use your utmost endeavors in exploiting the sale of this new type Phonograph, as it affords an unusual margin of profit, besides making a permanent customer for high grade Records; and we would further suggest that you place an order with your Jobber at once, for at least a sample outfit for exhibition and sale purposes, as we have every reason to expect a heavy demand, which will tax our capacity to the limit, and it will be to your decided advantage to have an order on file, thus enabling the Jobber to supply your requirements promptly upon receipts of the goods.

It would also seem well to advise that an Amberol list of Grand Opera Records, made by talented artists, will be issued at about the same time the Cabinet Machine is introduced.

Addenda to Sales Department Bulletin No. 29 dated May 1, 1909.

Beginning November 1st, 1909, and until further advised, authorized Edison Dealers may return direct to the National Phonograph Company, Exchange Department, Orange, New Jersey, for exchange through a Jobber, cut-out and defective (not surplus) two-minute Grand Opera Records, under conditions clearly set forth in Bulletin No. 29, relating to Dealers' Continuous Exchange Proposition, except that orders accompanying the Exchange Papers to be returned to us, must be for an equal number of other two-minute Grand Opera or Amberol Grand Opera Records; Dealers to pay the difference in price, if any, between records returned, and records ordered.

Enclosed cut-out list clearly indicates what Records are returnable under this Exchange, in addition to those that are defective.

Dealers who may be in doubt as to the provisions set forth in Bulletin No. 29, should write us and a complete set of Exchange Papers will be forwarded promptly.

Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

The 28 Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records, shown on page 4, will be ready for shipment to Jobbers from Orange, N. J., about November 10th. Dealer's orders should be placed with Jobbers at once. The Records may be placed on sale at retail as soon as received. No effort will be made to have a uniform selling date.

The retail and trade prices of these Grand Opera Amberol Records will be as follows: List $1.00 each; Dealers, 60 cents each. The Dealer's price will be subject to a discount of 35½ per cent. to cover possible breakage. This discount will be allowed by Jobbers on all invoices to Dealers for Grand Opera Amberol Records. This 35½ per cent. discount is being made to obviate any possible demand for replacement or allowance for breakage.

These Grand Opera Amberol Records have been made by the best artists available,—artists of world-wide reputation. They are the best Records ever put out by this company and they compare favorably with any similar Records now before the public.

They will be an important factor in the demonstration and sale of the new Amberola Phonograph.

They will be put up in a new style carton, which will be covered with a maroon-colored, pebble-finished paper and lettered in gold with the word, "Edison" only. This carton will be shipped in a strawboard container, which will be thrown away after it has served its purpose of protecting the carton till it reaches the retail buyer.

We hope the trade will share in our expectations that the Grand Opera Amberol Records will be a great success and will aid us in placing them before the music-loving public in a proper manner.

28 Two-Minute Grand Opera Records to be Withdrawn from Sale, November 1st, 1909

The following list of Records may be returned under the provisions of the Continuous Exchange Proposition, effective November, 1909, as outlined in Sales Department Bulletin No. 29. Dealers are urged to again read the bulletin carefully and follow its conditions to avoid error:

The Edison Phonograph in the Soudan

Early last year our Paris branch supplied to the French Colonial Office a Home Phonograph with accessories and a quantity of blank Records. These goods were intended for a political expedition to the Soudan (West Africa) preceded by the Governor, Monsieur Léon Richaud. This expedition was organized for the purpose of determining the frontier of the Republic of Liberia and the French colonies surrounding same, that is to say, French Guinea, Soudan, Ivory Coast, etc. Governor Richaud had to visit the chiefs of the different native tribes inhabiting the territory between the frontier and the French colonies in order to win their submission to the French Government. The Records which Governor Richaud brought back and which are at the present time in our possession are composed of speeches of the chiefs of the various native tribes expressing their submission to the French Government; orchestra selections played by native bands, the different instruments of which were made of ivory, wood and brass by the natives themselves; also native songs and instrumental solos which, although not very harmonious, are interesting as well as of scientific value. Although the recording is made on ordinary blanks, it is marvelously well done. The reason for this, as Governor Richaud explains, is the silence and good acoustique prevailing in the large forests of that country.

Governor Richaud will hold a conference on this expedition at the Geographical Society in Paris at an early date at which representatives of this company will be present.

The following is a translation of a letter received by our Paris representative from Governor Richaud expressing his pleasure at the successful part played by the Edison Phonograph in the work of the expedition:

PARIS, July 29th, 1909.

GOVERNOR LEON RICHAUD,
Chief of the Mission for the Marking Out of the Franco-Liberian Frontier.

To the Manager of the Edison Company, Paris.

DEAR SIR:—Replying to your letter bearing date June 29th, last, which has been forwarded to me by the head of the Colonial Office, I beg to inform you that the Phonograph supplied by the Edison Company to the mission sent out to mark out the French-Liberian frontier, has given complete satisfaction.

In spite of the shocks received during the carriage and of the changes in the temperature, both Phonograph and Records have worked to a perfect style.

We have been able to make a few records during the voyage, which records I have sent to you so that you could see the result we have obtained.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) L. RICHAUD.

Do You Read the Monthly?

If you do, you are keeping in touch with the general news of the trade and are storing up practical knowledge and information that will prove a valuable asset to your business in time, present or future. If you do not read it, you are doing yourself and your business an injustice, and you are not treating us with the consideration that we deserve. You should reflect upon the fact that this publication represents a very considerable outlay of time, effort and money, on our part, and ask yourself if it does not merit the sacrifice of the few moments of your leisure time that the perusal of its columns would consume.

Read it when you receive it. Absorb its contents and if you don't like something that appears in its pages—if you have a word of criticism to offer, sit down at once and write us. That will prove your interest and your example will invite imitation.

Broaden Your Field

—and increase your sales. A dealer makes a serious mistake by selling records and instruments for amusement purposes alone. There is besides the amusement field the vast field of education from which can be reaped an abundant business. Here the dealer can increase the sale of records to those who already own phonographs, and can sell both instruments and records to a very large number of cash customers who would never think of buying a phonograph except for educational purposes. All this is made possible through

PHONOGRAPH

There is a great opportunity for you to sell I. C. S. Language Outfits to people who are going abroad or who desire to learn a language for the sake of the knowledge of it alone; to those who desire to qualify for positions as translators and foreign correspondents; and to foreigners who wish to learn to speak English. No sledge hammer is needed to get it clearly into your head that this presents a sure way of broadening your field of work and increasing your sales. For the sake of good business sense, boom the I. TEXT:

"Go While the Going is Good."
—From "The Red Mill."

IT takes six times as much power to start an engine as it does to keep it going after it gets started. It's pretty much the same way with advertising and selling Phonographs—only that with no "let down" in salesmanship after getting well under way, you gain at least six times the speed in unloading your stock that you had when you began.

And when you come to the top of the holiday season—NOW—"when the going is good," there is no speed limit on the sales you ought make—GO IT.

Here's some gasoline for your engine, too:

Our newspaper advertising, the biggest newspaper campaign ever put out in interest of a sound-reproducing instrument, started in October and will continue right on through this holiday season clear to the last of May, giving your sales enough momentum to carry you over the so-called dull spots on the high speed.

This newspaper advertising reaches 55,000,000 people—your own prospects and customers—nine times a month.

Your local ads alongside of ours in your newspaper will head the holiday crowds your way.

And, besides all this, our magazine campaign has been increased from full pages to double-pages each month.

Aren't we doing our part? Do yours—push this holiday opportunity on Phonographs and Records for all it's worth. Make it a record breaker.

The Message of The Season

This is the time for action,—intelligent, vigorous and persistent action. December, the usher of the holiday season, that short but joyous period of the year when rich and poor, old and young, alike shelve deep into their store to gladden the hearts of friends or relatives by some token of love and esteem. December, the long awaited twelfth month, is with us again. In its sentimental significance—and a pretty bit of sentiment it is that impels mankind at Christmas time to turn its thoughts from business application to the kindlier and more inspiring things that go to brighten the human pathway —its welcome rings from the inmost recesses of our hearts.

But before we can devote ourselves to the sentiment of the Yuletide we of the Phonograph Industry have a certain duty to perform that demands our immediate and undivided attention. For us the season has an absorbing commercial significance. In common with the rest of the business world we have waited long and patiently for its advent, eager and anxious as the time drawn near to know what may be the prospects for our particular line of business. We have each (or should have) been considering ways and means to deflect our share of the holiday trade to ourselves; studied how best to exploit our product in the public market to render it attractive from a purchaser"s standpoint.

As Manufacturers, we have given you of the trade products of undeniable quality and attraction; have assisted you in their exploitation by a mighty and persistent campaign of advertising, which is still being waged; have aided and encouraged you by suggestion and advice as to the most practicable and effective methods to employ in the marketing of those products. Our duty, therefore, as manufacturers, is done; yours, with the responsibility of the sales end of the industry, is only begun. For you still remains the task of presenting these products in your respective localities to the best of your abilities. Into the competition of the holiday trade we urge that you carry two fixed thoughts —Optimism and Enthusiasm. That is the message of "The Season,"—that all your work be done with enthusiasm, prompted by a feeling of optimism, genuine and deep laid. Don't falter; go ahead and persevere to the last minute. With this message and the conviction that its practical application will bring you success unbounded, we wish you all—Jobbers and Dealers —a very Merry Christmas!

About Those Attachments

We intend to keep on talking Amberol Attachments until we succeed in impressing upon every one of our Dealers the absolute and crying necessity of giving this feature of the business his immediate and persistent attention. We know that a very large percentage of the trade has not taken up the sale of Amberol Attachments except in a perfunctory, half-hearted way. Whether or not this has been due to local conditions we are, of course, unable to say; we only know that there are many thousands of Phonographs throughout the country that have not as yet been equipped with this ingenious device, and whose owners of course are not aware of the wonderful amount and quality of entertainment that is theirs for a comparatively nominal sum. We don't propose that they shall remain in ignorance long if our advertising can reach them, and we think it can.

You may have noticed that the Amberol Attachment and Amberol Records were the features of our last month's newspaper and magazine ads. Can you form an idea of how many people those ads reached, and how many machines they will be the means of dragging out of the dust and cobwebs of some dark corner? We know those ads have sold a great many attachments wherever the Dealers were wise enough to take local advantage of them by approaching their old customers on the subject. If you haven't done anything with the attachment proposition you simply must get to work and give it your immediate attention, Mr. Dealer. You can't afford to lose any old customers. Your Record trade is the backbone of your business; it is the source of a steady, assured income if you look after it. In justice to yourself you must not neglect it. It's to your own good interest to make every effort now to win back any old customers who have stopped buying Records; and you can win them back very easily if you try.

The Amberol Record is the magnet; only get it before them. Give them a chance to hear it played. If they won't come to you, go to them. Send out a machine equipped with an Amberol attachment, and some Amberol Records among your old customers and let them satisfy themselves of the vast difference between the two and the four-minute Records, as well as the small expenditure that will secure the new entertainment. You will have no trouble in interesting them. It is safe to say that those Phonograph owners who have not put on the Attachment are not aware of the splendid talent that the playing time of the Amberol Record permitted us to add to our list. When it is demonstrated to them in their own homes they will be surprised at the small expense of the Attachment and the superiority of the Records, and you will have no necessity for further arguments.

Some Dealers find it an excellent plan to send out a man with Attachments and Records with the proposition to put the Attachment on and leave it, with a few Records, on three or five days' trial. The instances are very few where such a proposition does not effect a sale.

If you have not pushed the sale of Amberol Attachments because of financial conditions in your neighborhood the time is ripe now, both because of the holiday trade and the business boom. To the man of family the Attachment, with some of the new Amberol Records, will appeal as a sensible and very desirable Christmas gift to his family; and when presented to him in that light he will undoubtedly make a purchase. If you do not find it feasible to use an outside man go after the business by means of a personally signed letter and return postal card as outlined in the October Monthly, offering to equip his machine with the Attachment without cost at his home, and at the same time repair and clean the machine. Give that plan a trial and watch results. You cannot afford to have those idle machines in your neighborhood. It's in your power to restore them to activity.

The Amberola and Cygnet Horn Situations

At this time of the year when we confidently expected, depending upon repeated assurances of manufacturers, to have the Amberola and Cygnet Horn situations well in hand, we find ourselves seriously handicapped in the production of these two most recent and desirable of our products. We have done everything that lay in our power to supply the heavy initial orders of the Amberola, have exhausted every resource that could be brought into requisition to accomplish that end; but we simply could not secure enough cabinets from manufacturers to take care of the unexpected volume of initial orders by the date at first anticipated,—December 1.

It is most unfortunate, both for the trade and ourselves, that this condition of affairs exists, but it is a condition that could not have been foreseen or anticipated and must be accepted as philosophically as is possible. The plea of the cabinet manufacturers is the same as is heard among manufacturers everywhere, and bears out the prediction that was freely made at the time of the financial depression,—that when the country began to recover its equilibrium the volume of the ensuing business would temporarily embarrass the manufacturing world. That, of course, is little consolation in the premises; neither do expressions of regret relieve the situation. Cause and effect are only too familiar; remedy is the order of the day. The remedy is in sight but we regret to say that it will not materialize in time to supply the entire requirements of the holiday trade.

The fraction of the initial orders that we have been able to fill, and can yet supply before Christmas, has been and will be distributed proportionately and without favor among our Jobbers. It is but a small proportion of the total, to be sure, but it will at least permit of the securing of some holiday benefits from the new machine, in that the Amberolas that reach the trade in time can be displayed and orders taken from them for future delivery. We are promised a goodly supply of cabinets by the first week in January, which we can equip and ship by January 15th. After that time we expect to be in a position to handle the situation more easily. Our disappointment over the discouraging state of affairs is partly relieved by the emphatic endorsement that has been placed upon the Amberola by trade, press and public. We are convinced that it is going to justify by its stability all the nice things that have been said about it.

The Cygnet Horn situation is much the same in many respects as the Amberola, although for obvious reasons hardly as regrettable. We have supplied a great many orders and are shipping as fast as the horns can be rushed to us from the manufacturers, so that the market will be fairly well supplied for the holidays. The promises of the manufacturers are being fulfilled to the extent of their ability, (of that we have assured ourselves), and we are confident that it will be only a very short time become the situation will be entirely relieved. Meanwhile we must crave indulgence during the brief interval that will elapse before we can truthfully say that both the Amberola and Cygnet Horn situations are entirely in hand. We feel assured that if the trade knew of the extremes to which we have resorted in order to provide immediate relief they would show their appreciation by a corresponding degree of patience.

The Advertising Proposition and Its Application

Our advertising is your advertising, Mr. Dealer, and vice versa. In other words, we must get together and systematize our work; get down to team work, as it were. Nothing succeeds like unity and harmony of action; that's an axiom as old as time itself. So we are going to propose that our monthly assaults upon the citadel of publicity be in the nature of a concerted attack, you to take your inspiration from our ads in magazines and papers, the while not forgetting to keep up a guerilla warfare with the other weapons at your disposal. Catch the idea? We advertise, say Amberol Records, in the big magazines and newspapers. That fixes Amberol Records in the public mind, gives them a wide general publicity. It's up to you then to localize that publicity, to apprise the people of your locality that you are in a position to supply that product in which we have aroused public interest.

If you are located in one of the cities whose local paper is on our advertising list you can best do that by arranging with the papers to place your ad as near as possible to ours. That is the plan followed by John Wanamaker, who is conceded to be one of the most extensive and persistent advertisers in the country. On October 23rd, our ten-inch three-column ad in the New York Evening Journal, advertising Amberol Records, was followed by his three-column 555-inch ad advertising that he sold Amberol Records and offering Amberol Attachments on easy terms of payment. On that date the same advertisement appeared in thirteen papers in New York and vicinity, and on the following Monday in four Philadelphia papers. Don't you see the ingenuity of the scheme? John Wanamaker's name and place of business becomes instantly identified in the reader's mind with Edison Amberol Records and Attachments. Result: The impression brings the prospective customer direct to John Wanamaker! Think that over at least twice before you proceed to read any further.

If you are off our newspaper circuit you should follow the suggestions given in our magazine advertisement in preparing your local paper ad. In December we are featuring the Edison Phonograph in magazines and impressing its desirability as a Christmas gift upon the public. There's the impression again. Now while that impression lasts, and it will last all month, tell the people of your city or town that you sell the ideal Christmas gift for the home, the most perfect musical instrument that man's ingenuity has yet devised. That's a strong point to dwell upon,—the wealth of pleasure and entertainment that the Phonograph brings to the home. Of course you realize how the public at this time of the year searches the columns of the magazines and newspapers for holiday inspirations. During this month they will see the Edison Phonograph illustrated and extolled in alluring phrase in the leading magazines and newspapers throughout the country. The more frequently the Edison Phonograph meets their gaze the deeper and more lasting the impression it will make in their minds.

Those ads are working now, Mr. Dealer. Night and day they are doing herculean work in shop, office, street and home. They are associating the Edison Phonograph inseparably in the public mind with the Christmas idea. If you intend to get your share of the benefit of that publicity you must work at once by getting your ads into your local papers. This is the acceptable time for your local advertising; not a week before Christmas, when holiday shoppers have made up their minds what they are going to purchase. And be liberal in your newspaper advertising this year, Mr. Dealer, if you never were before. Don't make the mistake of being too economical at that point or you will lose out. There is nothing to gain and everything to lose by such economy.

We don't only preach that doctrine; we practice it. Our newspaper ads alone for December, as they did in November, will reach 11,000,000 out of the 16,000,000 families in the United States—55,000,000 out of 80,000,000 people nine times a month. Stupendous figures those, but their authenticity is proved by the certified circulation of the publications themselves. Just imitate that example in proportion, Mr. Dealer. Extend yourself a little more than usual during the coming month and you'll have cause to congratulate yourself after the holidays.

Correction

In the Bulletin issued by our Sales Department to the trade covering the Amberola, a slight error was made. The height of the cabinet for this machine was here given as 42 inches. Its correct height is 49 inches, as stated in the other forms we have issued on the outfit in question.

Get you mind on that Xmas window now. Don't delay—time's too precious.

The Advance in Record Prices

The slight advance made in the prices of our Records to the trade has been received by both Jobbers and Dealers in a spirit that is eloquent of the confidence they repose in our decisions and statements. We have yet to hear a word of protest against the advance; on the contrary, in personal interview and letter we have been given assurance by a large proportion of the trade of their entire satisfaction with the new arrangement. An example of this assurance is the following letter under date of November 11, from the Haller Music Co., Edison Dealers of Blair, Neb.:

"We are in receipt of your notice of raise in prices on January 1st and are pleased to say that we are perfectly satisfied.

We trust you, inasmuch as you have volunteered to reduce prices heretofore, and have given the trade the opportunity to keep their stock in good salable shape by exchanging, etc.; also, as you say, by perfecting the goods, and by many other favors shown us—we say, we fully trust you and believe your claims are just.

"The National Phonograph Company have certainly endeared themselves to the trade by the course they have taken in all matters in the past, and we are encouraged to labor to the best interests of one another."

The above is a sample of many. Our surprise at this remarkable unanimity of feeling on the subject is exceeded only by the deep gratification we feel at such an expression of confidence. It was quite natural to expect that there would be some objections to the increase, slight as it is; the fact that there have been absolutely none convinces us that the trade has implicit faith in our statement when we say that the advance is justified for the very excellent reasons enumerated in our Sales Department bulletin No. 40 reprinted on page 25 of this number. We are proud, immensely proud, of this testimonial from our Jobbers and Dealers, and hasten to give assurance of our deep appreciation. It shall be our constant endeavor in the future to cement stronger than ever the friendly relations that exist between us and the distributive branches of the trade.

The reasons that prompted the advance, as well as the practical illustration of the fact that the new arrangement works out with but little additional cost and considerable advantages to the trade, are so well and thoroughly set forth in our bulletin that elaboration is unnecessary.

We would suggest that the bulletin be re-read by Dealers in order that its provisions in respect to Jobbers' acceptance of orders at the old prices may be thoroughly familiar. In our January 1 issue we shall print for the benefit of the trade a table that will show gross and net (less 35½%) extensions of all quantities of Records from one to one hundred at the new prices. This will comprehend the four types of Records and will be invaluable for purposes of extension and comparison of invoices.

A Trade Paper Compliment

As will be noted in the four-page advertisements of the National Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J., in this issue of The World, they have inaugurated one of the greatest campaigns of publicity and exploitation of their products known in the talking machine trade. Daily newspapers in all parts of the country are being used, samples of the advertisements being exhibited, with the size, date of insertion, etc. In the magazines double pages will be employed, in the choicest positions, many covers being under contract. By this extraordinary and stupendous expenditure of money the Edison phonograph and its manifold advantages of entertainment will reach "55,000,000 people and 16,000,000 homes nine times every month." This may well be termed the opening gun for the holiday trade, and such a magnificent undertaking on the part of the National Co. to popularize their goods and create a substantial market is solely in the interest of the dealer. It is therefore up to the dealer to second and aid this splendid work by following it up with local advertising. Every effort should be made by Edison Dealers to reap the full benefit of this great and effective campaign in every way possible at their command. Trade is brought directly to their doors, and it remains for them to "close the deal."—Talking Machine World.

Machine Stolen

Home Phonograph No. 339,082. The trade is requested to advise our Agreement Department as promptly as possible of any information that may come to their notice in regard to this machine. We trust that Dealers generally will not lose sight of this and requests of a similar nature which may be made in the future.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take up this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

The New Cut-out List

On page 27 of this issue, we print the numbers of 300 Standard Two-Minute Records that will be dropped from our catalog February 1st, 1910. These Records may be returned after that date, in accordance with the provisions of the continuous exchange proposition. It seems hardly necessary at this time to call the attention of the trade to the salient features of this most attractive proposition. Most of our Jobbers and Dealers are thoroughly familiar with it, and space is too valuable to utilize in rehearsing its details for the benefit of those few who have not taken the trouble to familiarize themselves with its provisions. We do wish, however, to impress upon the trade the advisability and wisdom of keeping in stock, for a time at least, the 300 cut-outs. There is no occasion for hurry whatever in returning these Records. According to the terms of the continuous exchange proposition they may be returned at any time and credit will be given.

There are many good and excellent reasons to advance against the immediate return of the cut-outs and for their retention, the most formidable of which, and one that is worthy of the serious consideration of every Jobber and Dealer, is the fact that these numbers appear in thousands of catalogs which will be in the hands of Phonograph users for a very long time to come. Quite naturally, therefore, there will continue to be an active demand for these Records, and for that reason it would be the height of folly to remove them from stock. There is a demand for them at the present time, and we sincerely regret the necessity of being compelled to drop these excellent selections from our catalog. It is done, however, merely as a convenience to the trade and in response to their demand for a reduction in the catalog list.

The demand that exists for these Records should clean up practically all of the present stock that Jobbers and Dealers have on hand. We urge that the trade make every possible effort to dispose of these cut-outs instead of returning them to us. The dropping of the numbers from our catalog is an accommodation on our part that entails a considerable loss in business for us. This should be taken into consideration by the trade and reciprocity shown in an unusual effort to dispose of the selections by giving them preference in sales. We feel that this is the least that could be done to show appreciation for this sacrifice on our part.

Printed Matter

For the holiday season, three special forms have been prepared, viz.: No. 1680, Hanger, lithographed in five colors, showing the Edison Fireside Phonograph with part of a Christmas tree in the background, and with caption, "Make this a Record Christmas by giving the Edison Phonograph and Amberol Records"; No. 1690, four-page folder, in three printings, with practically the same design as on the Hanger, but showing a Home outfit in place of the Fireside; and No. 1699, Bulletin of Records especially suitable for this season of the year. The latter form is in two colors, red and green.

By the time this issue of The MONTHLY reaches Dealers, we hope to have quantities of all of the above forms in the hands of Jobbers. We cannot mail copies direct to Dealers. The trade should remember, in connection with all new forms of advertising matter, that delays of one kind or another are very likely to occur in the distribution of them. Therefore, if a Jobber cannot fill your order promptly, it quite frequently happens that he is not entirely to blame. Jobbers should give us their kind indulgence, and Dealers should, in turn, be willing to bear with Jobbers, when instances of delayed shipment occur. However, just as soon as you do get a quantity of the Christmas advertising matter, arrange to make quick distribution to the names of prospects on your mailing list, for the time for holiday business is short.

All Jobbers are being sent a supply of placards, 14x21 inches in size, printed in red and black on buff stock, bearing Form No. 1689, and reading, "You can "Amberolize" your Edison Phonograph at small Cost. Ask for particulars." This placard, as is evident, is to assist Dealers in their efforts to sell combination attachments. The word "Amberolize" has been "coined" and Phonograph owners may wonder what it means. It's up to the Dealer to explain. Consequently, it will be to your advantage to get one of the cards, if you are carrying attachments in stock, and display it prominently.

A word about printed matter on the Amberola and Grand Opera Amberol Records: Some shipments of these goods have gone to the Pacific Coast, via freight, but we will make mail or express shipments of the advertising matter so as to reach Jobbers there with the machines. The rest of the trade will be taken care of as promptly as our printers deliver the forms in question.

Mexican Talent

JORDA-ROCABRUNA QUINTET

The Jordá-Rocabruna Quintet, whose first Record appeared in our January list (No. 353, "Monte Cristo Waltz"), is a unique organization, undoubtedly the best orchestra in the City of Mexico. Under the joint leadership of Srs. José Rocabruna and Luis G. Jordá it has attained a distinction unrivalled. It is composed of a first and second violin, violincello, piano, and organ. Sr. José Rocabruna, the first violin, is immensely popular, not only in Mexico but in the capitals of Europe and South America. His violin, made by the celebrated Italian violin maker, Amati, is nearly four hundred years old and valued at $3,000. Sr. Luis G. Jordá, whose place is at the piano, is one of Mexico's best composers, and has written many beautiful dance pieces and operettas. We have secured a total of thirty-two selections (12 Amberol and 20 standard) by this quintette, comprising some enchanting dances as well as classical and operatic pieces. They have made Records for no other company.

Harvey Hindermeyer

Harvey Hindermeyer is a well known tenor soloist whose work on the concert stage has won him a musical reputation. In addition to possessing a voice of unusual range and sweetness Mr. Hindermeyer has a distinctness of enunciation which will at once commend him to the Phonograph public. It is the addition of such noted artists as Mr. Hindemeyer to Edison ranks that is elevating the Phonograph to its proper place in the category of musical instruments and in the eyes of the public.

The Vienna Instrumental Quartet

The Vienna Instrumental Quartet is composed of four artists who, after careful study in celebrated European institutions, have devoted themselves to an art which in adequate interpretation equals the importance and significance of what is generally indicated as a classic art. The leader, Ludwig Schönberger, a native of Vienna, is the late leader of the Imperial Burg-Theater of that city, and the favorite pupil of Joachim. Licco I. Liggy, the "youthful master," and Otto Krist, violincello virtuoso, are also natives of Vienna and graduates of the Conservatory. Jacques Grünberg is a well-known European pianist whose concert tours throughout the continent and this country have been signally successful.

Stella Mayhew

Stella Mayhew, who is introduced to the Edison Phonograph public by Record No. 10298, February list, is a well known star of the vaudeville and burlesque stage. Her first number is a delicate (?) bit of sarcasm directed at her inclination to embonpoint, which is manifest in her picture. Miss Mayhew is a general favorite with the theatrical public and we feel pretty sure that the Phonograph public will think equally well of her. She has a style of expression and an individuality all her own, which is the chief asset of every successful artist.

Notes of Our Talent

Advertising Food for the Dealer.

Leo Slezak, the Austro-Germanic tenor, as was predicted in the Monthly, is the sensation of the operatic world. His initial appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on the evening of November 17, in the role of "Otello" stamped him as one of the greatest operatic artists of the day. Read the following clippings from press comments:

His voice is tremendous in its dramatic moments, and when he employs it lyrically it is fresh and beautiful in its quality. He has a voice combining the dramatic strength of a soldier with the lyric and dramatic strength of that famous tenor, but it is far more beautiful in moments of tenderness.—N. Y. Herald.

A tenor of prodigious physical height and of lofty artistic stature. His voice is of a kind of much beauty throughout its range.—Tribune.

A voice of rare quality that is passionate, powerful and penetrating.—N. Y. American.

Out of the aggregation of singers, his gigantic figure looming high like a giant of mythology, emerges the colossally Leo Slezak, the most imposing operatic tenor New York has heard in many years.—N. Y. Tamagno. After the intermission his name was on every lip, and his appearance before the curtain at the close of each act was a signal for tumultuous applause.—N. Y. Press.

Mlle. Blanche Arral, who recently made her debut in Carnegie Hall, New York, received the most flattering praise from the Metropolitan press. Here are one or two samples:

A voice of much natural beauty, clear, vibrant and flexible.—N. Y. Press.

Her singing was tasteful and well under her command.—N. Y. Herald.

An artist of distinction and ability.—N. Y. American.

Riccardo Martin is singing again this season with the Metropolitan Opera House (New York) forces and is eclipsing his successes of last year.

Florencio Constantino, the great Spanish tenor, was the "star" at the opening of Boston's million-dollar opera house on the evening of November 8. His reception was in the nature of an ovation, and he did not disappoint his thousands of admirers who were vociferous in their applause of his efforts.

Harry Lauder has retained all his old friends and made many new ones during a protracted stay in New York. No comedian on the stage to-day vies with him in popularity, as is evident from the packed houses that greet his every appearance. He is featuring "Bonnie Leezie Lindsay" at all performances as well as his old favorites, "Foo the Noo" and "She's Ma Daisy."

"Old Dutch," the new musical farce in which Lew Fields is now appearing, has been pronounced an unqualified success. It is said to contain some of the catchiest numbers that Herbert has yet composed. After its initial performance at Williamsport, Pa., on November 6, Daniel Hart, president of the International Press Club, who is also city treasurer of Wilkesbarre, presented Victor Herbert with a musical director's baton made of an unusually big piece of coal resembling a black agate and studded with "sulphur diamonds." "Old Dutch" is now being presented at the Herald Square Theatre, New York.

Reed Miller, Reinald Werrenrath, Florence Hinkle, Earl Cartwright, Harvey Hindermeyer and Jean Schwiller are some of the Edison talent who will be heard on the concert stage throughout the country this season.

Albert Spalding, the brilliant young American violinist, is now engaged in an extended European tour and winning deserved success.

John Philip Sousa is still on tour with his famous band, eclipsing his successes of previous years. His tour will end with a concert at the New York Hippodrome on December 12.

Our New Grand Opera List

We are proud to be able to say that the initial orders for our new Grand Opera Amberol Records are highly satisfactory; in fact, we must confess that we are quite surprised at their volume, considering that with but two exceptions the artists, although ranking high in the operatic circles of their native lands, are comparatively unknown in this country. With but one exception they are new additions to our Grand Opera talent. That our claims in respect to their ability are verified in fact may be seen from the flattering press notices that followed the recent initial appearance of two of these artists in this country. As the singers become better known to the American public their Records will increase in popularity.

We attribute the heavy initial orders to the fact that the trade recognizes in a four-minute operatic selection a Record that is destined to be immensely popular with the musical public. No Dealer will make a mistake in ordering a supply of these Records. The instantaneous appeal that the domestic Amberola made to popular favor may be safely taken as a criterion by which to judge the reception that longer-playing Grand Opera Records will meet at the hands of lovers of the high-class of music. In respect to selection, rendition and recording these Records are not surpassed by any Phonograph Records now before the public. We are greatly encouraged by the manner in which the trade has expressed its approval of our efforts so far to build up a catalogue of Amberol Operatic selections and shall spare no pains or expense to supplement the present list in the near future by adding numbers of equal popularity and excellence.

Selling the Goods

Going After It

There are two ways of doing business, going after it and waiting for it to come to you. Forget the latter way. It died several years ago, and time is too precious to waste on post-mortems.

Going after it is the principle of the new order business,—Going after it, getting it and holding it.

You can do all of these things, better and more easily now than at any other time of the year, because the public is more susceptible and open to suggestions at the holiday season; and there are a thousand and one reasons why you will have to do them too, the most urgent of which is the fact that all your competitors are doing it. If you don't do it, you lose out; your competitors win.

You have only a couple of weeks left to make your bid for the holiday dollars. We take it for granted that you have the stock, handily and neatly arranged. If you haven't,—no use!

If you have, then about your windows. Your window is the frame that holds for the holiday shoppers the picture of your goods. If the picture is well conceived it attracts, and vice versa. Give thought then to your window arrangement. Of course it must have a suggestion of Christmas, the more original and unique the better. Don't forget that window. Arrange it now.

Your ad. In another column we discussed newspaper ads. We said nothing of concerts, however, which is the most attractive form of advertising. You ought to give nightly concerts from now on, and advertise them by newspaper, by mail and by transparency. In short, advertise your concerts and your line by every practical method you can devise. It will all come back to you.

Work your mailing list at once with a good, concise and pointed letter. Emphasize the Phonograph's superior claims as a holiday gift. This is the time of the year when people absorb every word of holiday literature. Don't forget that.

Home demonstration. You ought to work this end of the selling game for all its worth. It will bring you in contact with the people who are still skeptical of the Phonograph's improvement, and who don't respond to invitations to your store. You can "get" them at their home, their vulnerable spot, if you go after them.

Whatever you do, put enthusiasm into it. Make your clerks do likewise. Tell them to smile and be courteous. Good nature is contagious with the holiday crowd. They have no use for a "grouch."

These are a few suggestions for going after the holiday trade. Think them over. And above all don't delay. Do it now.

A man once came to Stuyvesant Fish with a hard luck story about continued business failure. Mr. Fish said:

"Your goods last too long. Why don't you go into the soap business?"

The man took the tip and made a fortune.

The Phonograph lasts a lifetime—but the novelty of a popular song Record only lasts about as long as a cake of soap.

The difference in the size of the profit on a Phonograph Record and that of a cake of soap is like the difference between "breakfast for nothing" and "nothing for breakfast."

The popular song Record is a fortune builder for you because its novelty wears out quick.

Here's one good way to look at your proposition:

Consider that selling Records is your main business. Regard every Phonograph you sell as simply the establishing of a local sales manager —the natural outlet for your goods.

The more "local agents" you have out, the more goods you sell—just as we sell more goods now, though you and the other 13,000 Dealers, than we did when there were only 5,000 Dealers handling our goods.

The Records follow the Phonograph, but you've got to keep the interest up—don't let your "local agents" shirk on the job.

Keep "The Phonogram" and all Record lists going out all the time to help the Phonograph make sales—just as we keep our big ads going in magazines and newspapers month after month, to help you bring the money home.

There is no other business in which you can make every initial sale an active sales manager for life. Every Phonograph you sell brings not only its own substantial profit, but makes just so much increase in your annual income as long as you stay in business.

The Records follow the Phonograph—keep the interest alive.

Holiday Window Cards

A few suggestions for display cards. Every Dealer realizes the necessity of appropriately worded cards. Here are a few ideas. We don't claim superiority for them, but they may help you to originate something better. If they don't, use these; they sound pretty good to us—they're expressive at least. Transfer them as legibly and neatly as possible to cardboard and use a few in your holiday window.

A man's home is his castle. Our "Home" is music for the castle all the year round. Step inside and we'll prove it.

Looking for an inspiration? Come inside and I'll sing one to you. I am the Edison Phonograph—the universal singer.

I sing of Xmas joys in all lands and tongues. I am about to sing "Angels From the Realms of Glory." Come inside and sit down.

I bring joy and good cheer at Xmas. I continue to do so all the year afterward. I am the Edison Phonograph.

Santa Claus speaks to the little ones through the horn of an Edison Phonograph.

Don't go to the theatre on Xmas. Bring the theatre home to your family by means of an Edison Phonograph.

An Edison Phonograph is a present for the entire family.

The New Cygnet Horn

Dealers will do well to feature the new Edison Cygnet Horn in all their talks and letters to prospective customers, during the holidays especially. Dilate upon its graceful outlines and the economy of space it effects. The latter is its big, appealing talking-point, and really comments it without any further argument. The Cygnet Horn is a tremendous boost to the Edison Phonograph. It will recommend the instrument to thousands of people who formerly found fault with the Phonograph because of the old style horn, which usurps a considerable amount of space.

The Edison Phonograph, equipped with this Cygnet Horn is vastly more artistic in appearance than it is when the straight horn forms part of the equipment, and the public has been quick to recognize the fact. Boost the Cygnet Horn out of reciprocity, Mr. Dealer, for it is boosting the Edison Phonograph for you. The popularity of a product is the Dealer's cue to feature it in his sales. Enough said.

Mr. Dolbeer to the Trade

The following letter from Sales Manager F. K. Dolbeer under date of November 24, is printed here for the benefit of those Dealers who may have overlooked the original. It is to be hoped that the suggestions it embodies will be carefully read and followed, not only during the holiday period but subsequently, for they are equally appropriate at all times of the year:

TO THE TRADE:

Edison Dealers should now be alive to the fact:

That with the approach of the "holiday season," the possibilities of the EDISON line are almost without limit, and while we feel assured our Dealers will make an aggressive effort to obtain for themselves all the "business in sight," a few suggestions will doubtless be acceptable from us, in calling prominently to your attention a real money maker—the COMBINATION ATTACHMENT.

That numbered among your customers are possibly many who are still using the older type Machines, adapted only for the two minute Records, and we believe surprising results would be obtained if the Combination Attachment was called to their notice, pointing out that it would not interfere in any way with the use of Standard Records, but in addition would permit of the use of Amberol Records, which play, sing or talk twice as long as the Standard Records; in fact —longer than any other Record made.

That the strongest argument you can offer to effect the sale of a Combination Attachment, is on the Record proposition, as the Amberol Record costs but slightly more than the two minute type, and affords double the amount of amusement, and as "valued received" is what the public is looking for, this feature can be used with telling results.

That the Edison Amberol Record list embraces such eminent artists as Victor Herbert, Johann Strauss, John Philip Sousa, Harry Lauder, Nat. M. Wills, Bessie Wynn, Constantino, Riccardo Martin, Slezak, and a host of other high-priced stars of the Operatic, Concert and Vaudeville stage.

That the sale of an Attachment means a new and lasting customer for Amberol Records, which as you know, afford a profit of over 75% per cent. and which should be an incentive for your most strenuous endeavors.

That to such of your customers whom you cannot interview personally on this subject, a well-worded letter in which the advantages of the Edison Combination Attachments, and the Amberol Record are clearly defined, will be helpful and "Uncle Sam" will prove a first-class salesman, at a minimum of cost.

Yours very truly,
NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.,

General Manager of Sales.

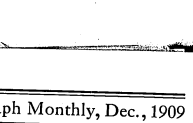
What they are doing and what they want to know about.

Protection to Our Dealers



The following letter from Geo. H. Kellogg, Edison Dealer of Cresco, Iowa, is self explanatory. It proves that the National Phonograph Co. is always ready to extend its protection from local competition to a Dealer when he can prove his ability and willingness to take care of the business in his territory:

"I thank you very much for your kindness in turning the application for another agency down. I will say I am handling your machines exclusively in the talking machine line and am doing a nice business with them, and it is growing all the time. I have had three traveling men try their best to get me to take on the ——— line. I simply turned them down and told them I was well pleased with the Edison. I buy your machines in lots of six; keep a good stock always. I have 900 Standard and 250 Amberol Records on hand and have just placed an order for 100 more. I have the only exclusive music store in the county, and have been in business here 10 years. I like the new Fireside with Cygnet horn very much and am satisfied they will be very popular. Shall do all I can to push the sale of machines and records."

Look This Over

The Dealer who pleads lack of space as a reason for limiting his Record stock will have to search for a new excuse. F. N. Bishop, Edison Dealer, of Holley, N. Y., has shattered that argument completely. His store was packed so full with his regular line that, to use a popular slang expression, he was decidedly "up against it." His solution of a difficult problem is as ingenious as it is feasible for other Dealers who may be similarly situated. He utilized the ceiling of his store to carry a large portion of his Record stock by suspending from it a rack. In this way he was enabled to provide for between seven and eight hundred Records. To quote the expression of our salesman he "tied his Records to the ceiling," which goes to prove the truth of the old adage—"Where there's a will there's a way."

Edward L. Kerste, Edison Dealer of Schenectady, N. Y., was recently elected Alderman of the Second Ward of that city. Congratulations.

The above picture was taken during the progress of the parade at Webster City, Iowa, on "Watermelon Day," October 5th. Ruegnitz is the surname of F. C. Ruegnitz, proprietor of the Ruegnitz Drug Company, Edison Dealers at that city. Mr. B. M. Johnston, manager of the firm, advises us that they are conducting a persistent advertising campaign with most encouraging results. If the picture of this float is a criterion on which judgment can be based, the Ruegnitz firm need have no fear of their ultimate and emphatic success.

H. E. Jones, Spencer Phonograph Co., Spencer, Iowa.—I often hear Dealers claim that the interest in Phonographs is on the wane. I don't believe a word of it—the Dealers are on the wane themselves. I find it easier to make sales now than seven years ago. Some Dealers display poor judgment when playing Records for prospective customers and in many cases run the same Record over and over again until it becomes worn or monotonous. I have only been able to put in one-third of my time canvassing with a machine, but I have been able to sell a good many dozen in this way and I can't tell how many Records. Prospects for winter trade seem better than ever.

I saw the Amberola machine in your Fifth Avenue office and was very much surprised at the tone and volume. I kind of had an idea that the present type of machine was about the limit in cylinder machines.

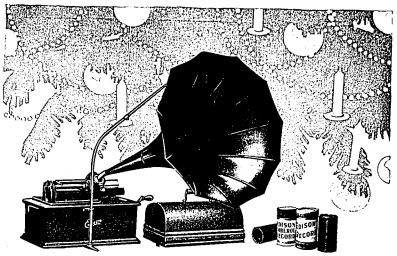
No Exchange Permissable

One of our Dealers recently complained to us that in attempting to effect a sale of the new Cygnet Horn he is invariably confronted with the request by his prospective purchaser that he be permitted to offer his old horn as part payment. He also says that a similar suggestion is made to him when advancing the Amberol Attachment proposition,—that is, that the customer be permitted to return his Standard Records in exchange for Amberol. Every Dealer, of course, understands that the terms of his contract explicitly forbid him to accept such an exchange. The customer has no right to expect such a concession nor has the Dealer the privilege of granting it. If all of our improvements were to be marketed on such a basis there would be very little inducement to us as manufacturers for conducting experiments with the object of improving our products.

The unreasonableness of such a proposition can, we think, be convincingly pointed out to the purchaser. It seems to us, moreover, that it takes but very little persuasion to effect a sale of a Cygnet Horn. Its unusually attractive appearance will commend it at sight while its peculiar style, which enables it to effect such an economy of space, is the strongest selling point in its favor. Then, too, the greater volume of sound and improvement in tone quality are added features that contribute to its desirability. A prospective customer will not hesitate long if these particular points are dwelt upon with proper emphasis.

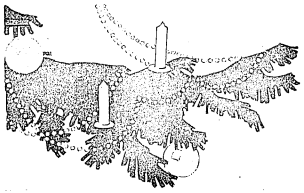
As for the Amberol Attachment, we fail to see where a customer has the least shred of an argument in advancing such a proposition. The mere statement that the Amberol Attachment permits the playing of both Standard and Amberol Records, and that we are continuing to list an equal number of each in our monthly quota, robs the customer's argument of all its force. The Standard Records, in so far as quality of selection and rendition are concerned, are equally as desirable as the Amberol; the advantage of the latter lies in the greater amount of entertainment provided and the fact that it is possible to list selections on the Amberol that could not be given adequate reproductions on the Standard Records because of their running time. These arguments if properly presented will, we are convinced, be sufficient to overcome any and all objections or arguments that a prospective customer may bring up.

Gem and Fireside



Your holiday nest-eggs, Mr. Dealer, are these two popular-priced Phonographs. Their appealing points are approached only by their appealing prices. The one commends and the other secures. Attractive in appearance, unsurpassable in mechanism and strength of construction, superior to any other musical instrument in the amount of entertainment they afford at a price which places them well in the reach of the holiday shoppers, they constitute a convincing argument in themselves.

There are many families, many lovers of good music, who would gladly purchase a high-priced Phonograph if in a position to do so. Unfortunately for them and you, they are not; so they seek to invest their holiday funds in other and less tempting articles. That's the trade you should make a strong bid for, Mr. Dealer. If these people knew that the barrier to their possession of a high-class Phonograph has been removed, they would be only too willing to invest in one.



You can't be too aggressive in pushing the Gem and Fireside. There is a great, big market for both. That was proved by the extraordinary popularity of the Fireside when times were dull, and the unmistakable manner in which the Gem is catching on now. Feature their strong mechanical points, their artistic appearance and musical possibilities as well as their popular prices in your ads, Mr. Dealer; and emphasize the fact that they play both two and four-minute Domestic, Foreign and Grand Opera Records.

We are in receipt of a sample letter sent out by Goldsmith's Music Store, of Columbus, Ohio, Edison Dealers, under date of November 1st, to their customers, in which they called attention to the particular excellence of the November lists of Records and the fact that their talking machine department has been remodeled in such a way as to permit the installation of three separate compartments for Record demonstrations. They point out in a most convincing manner the superior attractiveness of the Phonograph as a ready source of entertainment and impress upon their customers the necessity of regularly adding to the Record list in order to derive all the pleasure that is possible from the Phonograph. This letter, they advise us, merely represents a little extra effort that they made to get the business. If every Edison Dealer would make a little extra effort like this he would find his holiday trade assuming pleasing proportions.

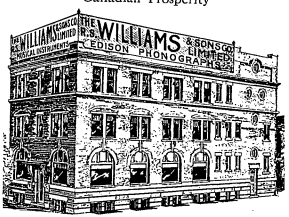
This two-page Christmas advertisement is appearing in all the big Magazines and National Weeklies December.

In every home somebody ought to buy somebody an EDISON PHONOGRAPH for Christmas this year

THE one thing that brings joy to all the household, big and little, old and young, is an Edison Phonograph with a selection of Edison Amberol Records.

The best Christmas present is something all can enjoy. All can and do enjoy the Edison Phonograph.

If every member of the family would take the money he or she expects to use to buy presents for the other members of the family, and put it together, there will be enough not only to buy an Edison Phonograph, but also a large supply of Records.



Edison Phonographs sold everywhere in the United States at the same prices $12.50 to $125
Edison Standard Records - - 35c
Edison Amberol Records (play twice as long) 50c
Edison Grand Opera Records - 75c and $1.00

There are Edison dealers everywhere. Go to the nearest and hear the Edison Phonograph play both Edison Standard and Amberol Records and get complete catalogs from your dealer or from us.

Canadian Prosperity

The accompanying pictures are eloquent of the prosperous conditions of the Phonograph business in Canada. The new warehouse at Winnipeg, Man., of the R. S. Williams & Sons Company, Ltd., Edison Jobbers, and Manufacturers and Importers of Musical Instruments, is the subject of the upper picture. As will be seen at a glance it is an imposing structure, three stories with basement, on a lot 30 x 80 feet, which gives them 2,400 square feet of floor space per floor. The building is of fireproof mill construction, built entirely of concrete, brick and stone. The foundation is such that two additional stories can be added when necessary. The adjoining lot, 30 x 90 feet, is also the property of the Williams Company, and their present intention is to hold this until increased business warrants their duplicating as nearly as possible the present warehouse. The ground floor of the new warehouse is devoted to sample rooms and offices, while in the basement is a complete repair department, including an electro-plating plant, which is installed in connection with their band instrument business. The upper floors are used entirely for stock room purposes. An idea of the increase in their business may be gleaned from the fact that on opening their Winnipeg branch, four years ago, a single floor of 3,600 square feet floor space was found quite ample for their requirements.

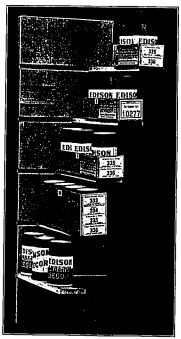
The Winnipeg branch of Babson Brothers, the well-known Chicago Jobbers, is shown in the lower picture. We regret that limited space does not permit our showing a comprehensive view of the interior of the store, as we are sure it would prove of interest to the trade generally because of its admirable arrangement. Some idea of the size of the interior may be obtained from the statement that, occupying a portion of a side wall, is a tray system rack composed of nine sections with sixteen compartments, each holding 18 Record trays, or a total number of trays in the case of 2,592. Figuring four Records to a tray we arrive at a total number of Records in the case of 10,368. It certainly looks as though our Canadian brethren are making pretty extensive preparations to corral the Phonograph business in that territory which, according to all reports, is a promising field for Edison goods.

The Foreigner's Passion for Good Music

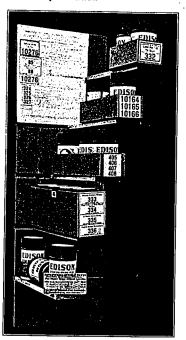
There was a moving picture show proprietor in Cincinnati who didn't know any more about grand opera than a cow does about an automobile. One day, however, he heard some one say that the music was sung in French, Italian and German. The moving-picture man went away thinking, says the Circle Magazine. The next day he opened a "penny arcade" in the foreign quarter—the sort of a place where you put a penny in the slot and hear a phonograph play. Everybody warned him against the venture because every "penny arcade" that had been tried in that quarter had ended disastrously. The newcomer smiled and hung out his sign. Within a week his place was being crowded. He had filled his phonographs with the French, Italian and German grand opera selections. He couldn't tell one record from another but the people who paid him their pennies could.

THERE was ONE man who recognized the possibilities that lay at his very door awaiting development. He succeeded because he was awake to his opportunities. Are you alive to yours, Mr. Dealer? Is there a foreign-born population in your locality? If so, why don't you make customers of them? All it costs is a little effort on your part; they will do the rest. You can make their presence equally as profitable to you as the picture show proprietor did, if you will. You have the Records at your disposal—Records of selections from the masterpieces of grand opera, sung by the world's foremost operatic stars. You have Constantino, Scotti, Dippel, Van Rooy, Campanari, Knote, Abbott, Rappold and others to interpret the compositions of Wagner, Verdi, Rossini, Flotow, Mascagni and other musical geniuses. Don't delude yourself by thinking for a moment that your foreigner will not spend his money to secure entertainment of a high class. Visit the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City and see the crowds of roughly-garbed foreigners struggling for admission to hear their operatic favorites sing, and at a price that would seem suicidal to the average American.

You have also a wide choice of selections of folk-songs and music to offer them at a lower price—selections that in every instance are rendered by the best talent obtainable in the country in which they were recorded. As if with a magician's wand you can transport them in fancy to their beloved native shores, there to hear the songs and music that are hallowed in their memories by the traditions of centuries. You can stir their blood and fire their imagination with songs that recount the glories of the land of their birth, the valor of its heroes, the beauty and charms of its women; you can make them live over again scenes of their youth with national airs and music of the native dance. Can't you realize what this will do for you? Can't you see, as did the picture-show proprietor, that it is only necessary to get the foreigner interested to open up a new avenue of profit? You are not limited in any way. Our catalogues contain an abundance of selections from every civilized land under the sun and they are constantly being added to. If you have neglected this opportunity, if you have hitherto contented yourself by appealing to the English-speaking trade only, change your methods now. Get a few foreign and grand opera Records that will appeal to the nationality of your foreign population. You don't need many Records to try out the scheme. Advertise in your local paper (preferably one printed in the native language) and in your window display your list and invite the public in to hear the Records. Print your invitation and list in the native language, too. Get up a little concert at your store and advertise it by hand-bills or a transparency printed in the native language and sent through the foreign district. Do this during the holidays; it will double and triple your sales of both machines and Records. Do it now and you'll thank us for the advice long after the holidays are past.



Dance Records



Are you doing anything to push the sale of dance Records this winter? If you have overlooked this feature of the catalogue so far don't let this reminder get away from you. The dancing season is now in full swing, which means that the time is ripe to let the public know the possibilities of the Edison Phonograph in that respect. We are commenting on this feature of the Edison Phonograph in the February PHONOGRAM and you should take the cue at once. The Edison Phonograph and Amberol Records will furnish more and better music for dancing than the best orchestra in the average town, and at very little expense. The catalogue is replete with splendid two-steps, waltzes, three-steps, barn-dance and square-dance numbers. There are eighteen Amberol Records, made especially for dancing, in the October list; the square dance numbers with calls. Advertise the fact and call attention to the perfect tempo of these Records. It means business for you.

The Tray System of Carrying Edison Records

Believing that the information will prove of benefit in the handling of Edison goods, we take occasion to again enumerate the advantages of what we consider the most perfect and satisfactory system yet devised for carrying a retail stock of Edison Records. The system in question, known as the Tray System, was originated and introduced by Victor H. Rapke, Edison Jobber of 302 Mott Ave., New York. Its requirements are Record trays and labels and a Record rack. For convenience we will first discuss each requirement separately, taking as our model the Rapke trays and labels, with the explanation that there are other makes on the market, full information in regard to which will be furnished by Jobbers on request.

Record Trays. As will be seen from the accompanying illustrations, the Rapke Record trays are of four sizes, viz: No. 2, holding two Records; No. 3, holding three; No. 4, holding four and No. 40, which also holds four but which is distinguished from No. 4 in that it accommodates twin labels bearing number, title and artist's name for each one of four different selections, and is consequently higher than the others, standing 4 inches while the others are 2½ inches high. These trays are collapsible, and are built with or without compartments as may be desired.

The prices of the Rapke Trays will give a good idea of the average prices of these of other manufacture, and are as follows:

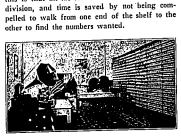
WITH COMPARTMENTS

	per 1,000	per 500	Less than 500
No. 2	$ 8.00	$ 4.00	$ 1.10
" 3	10.00	5.00	1.40
" 4	11.00	5.50	1.60
" 40	25.00	12.50	3.00

WITHOUT COMPARTMENTS

	per 1,000	per 500	Less than 500
No. 2	$ 6.00	$ 3.00	$ 1.00
" 3	7.50	3.75	1.25
" 4	9.00	4.50	1.50

" 40 (Built only with compartments).



No charge for packing. Delivery F. O. B. N. Y. City. Prices for special trays furnished by Mr. Rapke on application.

Record Labels. The labels for the trays, as the illustrations show, are of four different styles, viz: The single label for tray carrying either two, three or four Records of one selection, and showing title, number and name of artist; the twin label for tray carrying two Records (two different selections), or four Records (two selections); or four Records (four selections); single label, with three numbers but without title and artist's name, for tray carrying three different selections, and single label, with four numbers but without title and artist's name, for tray carrying four different selections.

It will be seen from the foregoing that the variety of labels and trays will meet the stock requirements of any Dealer. The prices of these labels are very nominal. Lack of space forbids our printing the schedule which, of course, covers all styles and lots as the Dealer may require. To illustrate their inexpensiveness we will say that the single label (title, number and artist shown) costs $1.20 for a year's supply, while the same quats of the twin labels costs only $1.00.

Record Racks. The best and most economical (both in respect to floor space and cost) design for a Record rack is constructed of three boards of ¾-inch stuff, 10 inches wide by 14.8 feet long, 12 uprights (grooved as in illustration) each 34 inches high and 10 inches deep and 50 ½-inch shelves to fit into grooves of uprights. This rack consists of two sections, divided by the center board running equidistant from the top and bottom; the two parts being doweled together. Each section of the rack contains five compartments formed by the uprights placed 14 inches apart. Each compartment is divided by five shelves, with a 5¼-inch clearance between each, thus affording 50 shelves in each section or 60 in all. As each shelf will accommodate twelve trays, the rack will hold a total of 720 trays, or 2,880 Records, if the tray with four compartments is used. This will permit the carrying of two Records of each selection in the Domestic Catalogue. The rack is securely fastened to the wall and rests upon a platform standing 4 inches above the floor and projecting far enough beyond the rack to form a step by means of which it is possible to easily reach the top of the rack. The top is an ideal resting place for horns. The total cost of this design will not exceed $15.00 unless, of course, the Dealer wishes to elaborate on it.

In recommending the above design we also strongly advise the use of the No. 4 tray with compartments, and the twin label. The advantage of the compartments is that each Record is held in its proper place and is not easily dislodged when the tray is being removed from or restored to its place. The No. 4 tray is preferable because it economizes space, and the twin label used with it permits of the carrying in stock of two Records of each number, thus insuring a complete catalogue at all times. The upper number on the label represents the first two Records in the tray and the lower, the last two. As the twin label shows title and artist's name in addition to the number its advantages are obvious. We further suggest that the numbers in the racks should run up and down and not lengthwise on the shelves. The advantage of this is that all the low numbers are found in a division, and time is saved by not being compelled to walk from one end of the shelf to the other to find the numbers wanted.

In order to convincingly illustrate the superior advantages of the Tray System we show herewith an interior view of the retail store of Babson Bros., at Winnipeg, Manitoba. Only a portion of the rack may be seen but some idea of the amount of floor space the system here conserves may be formed when we say that the nine sections of this rack hold a total of 10,368 Records. The advantages of the tray system, in addition to the vast economy of floor space it effects are that it keeps the stock in neat, compact form,—"a place for everything and everything in its place." It enables the customer to see at a glance the name and number of any selection in stock and tends to expedition in choice and sale; for to a great extent the catalogues may be dispensed with. The Dealer can instantly locate a Record when it is called for, and he can make up an order list with numbers in sequence for any selections he may not have in stock without any trouble.

In order to advertise his system to the trade Mr. Rapke authorizes us to say that he is willing to supply to all Jobbers sample outfits of 3/5 dozen trays and labels covering January and February selections to be sent to their Dealers with the monthly orders. All Dealers are privileged to obtain this sample outfit from Mr. Rapke in case it is not supplied by their Jobbers.

Japanese Welcomed by Thomas A. Edison

On the afternoon of October 27th the members of the Honorary Commercial Commission of Japan, together with a party of Western business men, their companions and guides on their present tour of Industrial America, paid a visit to our plant here in Orange. Included among the Oriental group were some of the wealthiest and most influential men in the commercial life, as well as the most prominent figures in the educational circles, of the little Island kingdom. The women of the party, with a solitary exception, the Baroness Shibusawa, were in native costume, their picturesque attire adding a pleasing bit of novelty to the group. The big flag on the library building of Mr. Edison's laboratory was flying at half mast, out of respect to the memory of Baron Ito, the deceased Japanese statesman.

Mr. Edison with Mrs. Edison, President Frank L. Dyer and Harry F. Miller, Mr. Edison's private secretary, received the visitors in his library. After they had been introduced and assured of a hearty welcome by Mr. Edison a quick tour of the plant was made, the lateness of the hour preventing a protracted stay. The members of the party, during the progress of the tour, besieged Mr. Edison with questions in regard to his inventions. His enthusiasm and good nature were never more in evidence than on this occasion, as was shown by the pains he took to reply at length to each of his questioners. The Japanese displayed the most intense interest in everything they saw in the big plant, and were profuse in their praise of its products as well as of the inventor himself, for whom they expressed their unbounded admiration.

Speaking of Mr. Edison and his many inventions, Baron Shibusawa, the leader of the party, said: "Edison's name is well known in Japan; it is a household word. Mr. Edison, we all think, is a wonderful man; he has done so much for the whole world through his wonderful inventions." They were particularly impressed by Mr. Edison's unbounded enthusiasm in his inventions, which was manifested by his willingness to discuss and explain the most minute detail for their benefit. The inspection of the plant concluded, the party sat for a photograph with Mr. and Mrs. Edison the center figures of the group, and then took their departure, after expressing their thanks to Mr. Edison for his courtesy, together with the hope of some day having the opportunity of welcoming him to their homes in Japan.

Business at the Factory

During the past month business at the factory has been on the "rush" order, and in consequence we were compelled to work most of our departments overtime. The fact that this condition of improvement still keeps up convinces us that it is not due entirely to the holiday trade, but that the general resumption of industrial activity throughout the country has begun to reflect itself in the music trade. We anticipate a still greater increase in the early After the holidays and believe that the Phonograph branch will very soon find itself restored to a normal condition.

The results of our advertising are beginning to show themselves, and the fact that this tremendous appeal to public attention on behalf of the Phonograph is to be kept up until May, confirms us in the belief that the industry is about to experience a degree of prosperity as pronounced as it will be lasting. In optimistic anticipation of such a revival of business we are preparing to increase our output so that we may be in a position to take care of our Jobbers and Dealers when the "stocking-up" process after the holiday depletion engrosses their attention.

Correction

The attention of the trade is called to the fact that in our Machine Catalogue (Form 1675) the list price of our horn crane for Fireside, Standard, Home, Triumph, Balmoral and Alva Phonographs is incorrectly given as $1.25. The correct price is 25 cents.

Be liberal with your advertising as you expect the public to be in their holiday purchases. The public pins its faith nine times out of ten to a live man.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for February, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before January 25th, 1910, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on January 25th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on January 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after January 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before January 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on January 24th, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for February Records on or before December 10th. Dealers should place February orders with Jobbers before December 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for February, 1910

345 Rose of the World — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This is the popular feature number of Herbert's latest and brilliant operatic success, "Algeria," and is conceded to be one of his most pleasing compositions. "Algeria" scored an emphatic Metropolitan success and is now at the height of its popularity. The same care and attention to detail that distinguished the work of his orchestra under Victor Herbert's candlestick is evident throughout the selection, which introduces a trumpet solo of the number, played by M. Borsdkin, Herbert's trumpet soloist.

346 My Pretty Little Piece of Dresden China — Bessie Wynn

This charming little conceit from across the water is almost as dainty as Bessie Wynn herself —and that's the highest compliment that could be paid it. Serio-comic in style, it tells in three verses and choruses of the love of a connoisseur of ware for the bewitching proprietress of a china shop, and the happy culmination of their romance. The air is sprightly and the selection in every way suited to Miss Wynn's original and refreshing style of rendition. We predict a big sale of her Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Cecil Johnson, A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott; publishers, The Star Music Publishing Co., London.

347 Amoureuse Waltz — Frosini

Responding to the magic touch of Frosini, the accordion seems to develop a latent charm of tone quality that is absent when the instrument is in the hands of less skillful artists. This tone quality that is absent when the instrument, is the best known and most popular of the selection, which is played without accompaniment, is the best known and most popular of the well-known French waltzes written by Rudolphe Berger, a celebrated European composer and writer of this style of waltz. Publishers, Enoch & Co, Paris.

348 Hello, Mr. Moonman, Hello! — Harvey Hindermeyer

A pleasing melody, whose theme is in the nature of suggestions to lovers for relief when the moon's rays interfere with their spooning, is the vehicle that Mr. Hindermeyer uses with which to return to Edison ranks. He will be remembered as having contributed Record No. 9614, "She Was a Grand Old Lady," to our catalogue. Mr. Hindermeyer is the possessor of a magnificent tenor voice whose effectiveness is greatly increased by his unusually distinct enunciation. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Alb. H. Fitz; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

349 The Homeland — Anthony and Harrison

This sacred gem is too well known to require description, and the mere statement that the manner in which it is sung is up to the usual standard of these artists would seem to be sufficient recommendation of its merit. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Rev. R. H. Haweis; music, Geo. C. Stebbins.

350 Benediction of the Poignards — Sousa's Band

The "Benediction of the Poignards" is heard in the 4th act of Meyerbeer's celebrated opera, "The Huguenots," and is one of the most impressive and dramative numbers of the opera, the music of which, by common consent, is given an enviable position in the world's library of musical masterpieces. A wonderful selection, interpreted by a galaxy of skilled musicians whose leader is recognized as the greatest bandmaster of his day. Could more be desired? Publisher, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia.

351 If I Had the World to Give You — Reed Miller

A sentimental song with a pleasing air and unusual merit of composition. A swain's fervid declaration of the boundless extent of his devotion, were he possessed of the power to gratify his loved one's every whim and pleasure, furnishes the theme. Mr. Miller's clear and expressive tenor voice is excellently adapted to this manner of song. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, J. Hayden-Clarendon; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

352 Juanita — Metropolitan Quartette

This charming old Spanish love song, whose mournful melody haunts the memory long after its strains have died away, to-day occupies as warm a place in the hearts of the public as it did on its first appearance many years ago. It lends itself very readily to quartette work, particularly of mixed voices; and we doubt the possibility of a more exquisite rendition than is given on this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Mrs. Norton.

353 When the Bloom is on the Cotton, Dixie Lee — Manuel Romain

Sentimental, with a note of sadness, is this pretty ballad, which tells of farewells spoken and lovers' vows plighted under the romantic spell of a Southern twilight, and of their failure of consummation because of the death of "Dixie Lee." The air harmonizes pleasingly with the theme, and Mr. Romain sings the ballad with incomparable tenderness of expression. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, C. M. Dennison; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, Helf & Hager Co., New York City.

354 Ireland Isn't Ireland Any More — Edward M. Favor

Here's a comic song and a rich one—six verses and choruses, describing the startlingly revolutionized conditions in the dear old land. Who can picture a Russian wrestler training on Blarney Castle's roof? Or an Irishman talking German, and christening his children Hans or Herman? Or a Jew commercializing the Lakes of Killarney? Everything mentioned is so highly improbable as to compel a laugh. Mr. Favor's inimitable brogue is without a trace of offensiveness, and the air is very catchy. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Vincent Bryan; music, Harry Von Tilzer; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Company, New York City.

355 I Will Sing the Wondrous Story — Edison Mixed Quartette

In bringing our catalogue of sacred selections up to its present completeness we have invariably endeavored to combine popularity of selection with excellence of rendition. We can truthfully recommend this number as ranking with any that we have as yet listed. Sacred selections are invariably good sellers and this Record will prove no exception. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, F. H. Rowley; music, Peter Bilhorn.

356 Forosetta-Tarantella — American Symphony Orchestra

Tarantella, a dance of Southern Italy in 6-8 time, played in a very rapid tempo. It is a well-known orchestral composition by Luigi Arditi, who was born at Cressentino, Piedmont, July 16th, 1822, and died at Brighton, England, May 1st, 1903. Besides holding prominent positions in European musical circles he conducted the opening performance of the New York Academy of Music in 1854, becoming better known through a tour of the country as conductor for Adelina Patti. Publisher, D. Miller, New York City.

357 Prologue from Pagliacci — Thomas Chalmers

The Prologue from Pagliacci, sung by Tonio before the curtain rises and considered to be one of the most remarkable numbers of the opera, is here rendered in English. Mr. Chalmers' singing of this famous baritone number is exceptionally artistic, his voice showing a surprising wealth and purity of tone. The fact that the prologue is sung in English should emphasize the popularity of this Record. It should make an instantaneous appeal to those whose tastes incline to the higher grade of selections. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Ruggiero Leoncavallo.

358 Slip on Your Gingham Gown — Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan

A coon duet in which Jasper Green (Collins) urges Jane Brown (Harlan) to slip on her gingham gown and hustle over to Parson James. Jasper is nervous, but importunate, while Jane is willing but coquettish; moreover she pleads inability to comply with the suggestion because "it is a princess gown with forty buttons down the back." It is a rollicking song, with the conversational interruptions that are always a humorous feature of the Collins and Harlan duets. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, James Burris; music, Chris. Smith; publisher, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

359 In Cairo—Oriental Patrol — New York Military Band

A fascinating composition which correctly typifies the style of music that is peculiar to the Orient. The interpretation given this number is surpassingly fine, and the Record claims more than usual prominence in band Record collections. Composer, Fr. von Blon; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston.

360 That's the Doctor, Bill! — Billy Murray

Coon song. Bill Brown's ebony-hued charmer can't resist a flirtation whenever she gets an opportunity. Surprised by Bill, she invariably introduces her new friend as "the doctor." Bill "gets wise," takes a short course in medics and informs Sadie that hereafter when she feels ill he'll act as the herb concoctor. Billy Murray sings the three verses in his customary style. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Henry S. Creamer; music, Silvio Hein; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

361 The Darkies' Jubilee — American Symphony Orchestra

A descriptive orchestra selection, reproducing, with the assistance of singers, dancers and novel effects, a darky jubilee along the Mississippi levee. The following is a synopsis of the number which, however, only weakly conveys an idea of the entertainment it contains: Scene—On the levee. Time—Busiest season of the year. Action—Darkies congregate for a jubilee; Trouble with the "Ox-chee-ter"; Arrival of the "Boss"; "Doan pay no 'tention to him; make b'lieve you doan see him"; Everybody promises to be ready for work in the morning; Boss goes away satisfied; Resumption of "ole festivities"; Dancing; Singing by the quartette; The "Ox-chester" plays a joke on Miss Johnson. The novelty of this Record will make it a top-notcher in the selling list. Composer, John M. Turner; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

362 I'm Glad I'm a Boy and I'm Glad I'm a Girl — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A tuneful conversational duet, one of the "hits" in the musical production "Follies of 1909." A "kid" scrap followed by recital of the reasons why one is jealous of the other's sex is the theme. It is difficult to realize from the rendition that the principals are grown-ups and not real "kids." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

363 Medley of Emmett's Yodle Songs — George P. Watson

George P. Watson needs no introduction to the Edison Phonograph public. Our Standard catalogue contains numbers that bear witness to his remarkable talent as a yodler. In this, his first Amberol Record, he has given us a delightful medley of Emmett's favorite songs, including his charming "Lullaby," by which he will be longest remembered. Orchestra accompaniment.

364 The Rifle Regiment March — United States Marine Band

The very fact that the composer of this dashing number is none other than the "March King" himself would be quite recommendation enough, without any further comment, but it seems only proper to again refer to the fact that Sousa, as leader, brought this celebrated organization to its present degree of efficiency. Surely the U. S. Marine Band is capable of giving the proper Sousa flavor to his compositions.

Edison Standard Records for February, 1910

10297 Venetian Love Song — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This selection is from the Suite Romantique, entitled "A Day in Venice," by Ethelbert Nevin, the celebrated American composer, author of "My Rosary." The Suite, which is a favorite concert selection and is played by only the best orchestras, contains four numbers, as follows: "Dawn," "Gondoliers," "Venetian Love Song" and "Good Night." The "Venetian Love Song" is an andante movement with beautiful melody and rich harmonies, and is undoubtedly one of the most attractive numbers of this Suite. The rendition of the selection is in Victor Herbert's best style, which is eloquent of its excellence.

10298 I'm Looking for Something to Eat — Stella Mayhew

To properly appreciate the humor of this song one must remember that the singer, who sternly protests that "her thinness will cause her to fall out of her clothes" unless some kind friend treats her to the appalling menu she enumerates, could not by any stretch of imagination be designated as generous in proportion—so, not even abundant; immese is better. She is clever, is Miss Mayhew—one of our leading vaudeville stars. Her first Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Billie Taylor.

10299 The Star, the Rose and the Dream — Stanley and Gillette

A sentimental baritone and tenor duet. The selection is of a high order in composition, both words and melody differing in this respect from the majority of the present-day efforts. The words and melody differing in this respect from the majority of the present-day efforts. The rendition accentuates the beauty of the number, the trained voices of these two noted singers harmonizing in a manner most delightful to the ear. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Albert Lang; music, Ted Snyder; publisher, Ted Snyder Co., New York City.

10300 The Dancing Girl — Sousa's Band

This sprightly band number is the third ("C") of a suite of three selections entitled "Maidens Three" and composed by John Philip Sousa. The first of the suite, ("A") "The Coquette," and played by the United States Marine Band, appeared in the November list as No. 10248, and the second ("B"), "The Summer Girl," rendered by Sousa's Band, is listed in January as No. 10277. Lovers of band Records will want the entire suite.

10301 Nobody Knows Where John Brown Went — Arthur Collins

Coon song. A stranded and penniless "coon" scout, awakening in a graveyard before a monument bearing the inscription, "Here lies John Brown. Prepare ye all to follow me," is seen hearing the inscription, "Here lies John Brown. Prepare ye all to follow me," is seen hearing the inscription, "Here lies John Brown. Prepare ye all to follow me," is seen reconciled to his apparently inevitable fate by the consoling reflection that the direction John Brown took when he went is still unsettled. The air "John Brown's Body," etc., is appropriately introduced. Mr. Collins' dialect and expression are unsurpassable. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Arthur Longbrake; publisher, Joseph Morris, Philadelphia.

10302 Sweet Bunch of Daisies — Elizabeth Wheeler and Harry Anthony

A dainty little effusion, wedded to a particularly sweet air, and rendered in duet form by a soprano and tenor whose names are synonyms of excellence, is a concise and truthful description of this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Anita Owen; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10303 It's Moonlight all the Time on Broadway — Billy Murray

A comic song in which the singer contrasts the simple life of his former home on the farm with the allurements of Broadway, where "chorus girls have awful appetites and folks have touching ways," finally, however, concluding that Broadway agrees with him and he'll "stick." Billy Murray's original style of singing does ample justice to the number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ren Shields; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, F. B. Haviland Pub. Co., New York City.

10304 Tin Soldier — Vienna Instrumental Quartet

This is an instrumental arrangement of the popular Viennese song, "Der Zinn Rieser" ("The Tin Soldier"), which is a warm favorite at all vaudeville and concert performances in the Austrian capital. The instrumentation consists of two violins, 'cello and piano. Fascinating in melody, the selection is rendered in a most artistic manner, resulting in a Record of more than usual desirability. Composer, I. Lize.

10305 My Dad's Dinner Pail — Ada Jones

This number will need no recommendation to the old-timers who well remember the long popularity it enjoyed. It is another old favorite of the Harrigan and Hart days and scored quite as big a "hit" as "The Market on Saturday Night," Record No. 10185. Miss Jones' conception of the Irish brogue has been endorsed so often that repetition is superfluous. Her enunciation is splendid and there is more than ordinary volume to the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ed. Harrigan; music, Dave Braham; publishers, Wm. A. Pond & Company, Boston.

10306 When I Dream in the Gloaming of You — Manuel Romain

The heartache of a lover, whose constancy has remained unshaken through years of separation and silence, finds expression in the sentiment of this pretty and melodious composition. There are few, if any, singers before the public to-day more capable of doing justice to songs of this description than Mr. Romain. His Records are popular, and deservedly so. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

10307 Dixie Land, I Love You — Edward Meeker

A snappy coon march song of that particular type whose proper rendition requires a singer of Mr. Meeker's strength of voice and ability to enunciate his words quickly and distinctly. That Mr. Meeker excels in this department is beyond dispute. The song itself is a description of the appealing charms of Dixie Land. In the chorus a banjo's strumming is decidedly appropriate and pleasing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, A. Seymour Brown; music, Nat D. Ayer; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10308 A Bushel o' Kisses — Edison Concert Band

A band number par excellence. It is a medley of selections from popular airs arranged in a most unique manner and entertainingly rendered. Composers, Lewis F. Muir and Matt Connes; publishers, Helf & Hager Company, New York City.

10309 In the Sunshine and the Shadow I'll be True — Byron G. Harlan

There is a wealth of tenderness in Mr. Harlan's voice as he sings this pathetic ballad, whose theme is a lover's profession of fidelity to his sweetheart at the hour of parting. The novel manner in which the chorus is sung—an interruption occurring in the middle of alternate lines—adds interest to the number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Beth Slater Whitson; music, Leo Friedman; publishers, Boswell & Friedman, Chicago.

10310 Jerusalem the Golden — Edison Mixed Quartette

Sacred hymns are so familiar in respect to both words and air to the great majority of the public that little remains to be said in describing a Record of this character. The selection is sung without accompaniment, which fact emphasizes the more strongly the beautiful harmony that prevails throughout its rendition. Words, J. M. Neale; music, A. Ewing.

10311 A Creole Lullaby — Arthur C. Clough

With each succeeding selection from his repertoire Mr. Clough strengthens his hold upon the Phonograph trade and public. The increasing popularity of his Records is due to the clearness of his enunciation as well as to the sweetness of his tenor notes. "A Creole Lullaby" is a plantation cradle-song, the croon of an old "nigger mammy," characteristic in composition and peculiarly soothing in melody. Orchestra accompaniment.

10312 Ciribiribin Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

This delightful waltz takes its inspiration from the quaint Italian waltz-song, "Ciribiribin," whose popularity is by no means confined to the natives of "Sunny Italy." It has scored a remarkable success in the other countries of Europe, as well as on this side of the water. The instrumental arrangement is a prime favorite at both concert and dance throughout the country at the present time. The Record is excellently adapted to dancing and should prove a tremendous "hit" with the public. Composer, A. Pestalozza; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

10313 I Think I Hear a Woodpecker Knocking at My Family Tree — Edward M. Favor

A comic character song, one of the "hits" of the musical comedy, "The Golden Girl," which had a successful run in Chicago and will probably show in New York shortly. This song recommends itself to great popularity for it abounds in humor and has an appealing air. Mr. Favor sings the chorus with an air of mystery that greatly enhances the effect introduced of a woodpecker knocking on a hollow bark. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Will M. Hough and Frank R. Adams; music, Jos. E. Howard; publishers, Chas. K. Harris, New York City.

10314 Telling Lies — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A conversational duet in waltz time. The moon is gazing upon two lovers who are rehearsing the "old, old story" in a new garb—that of telling lies to each other, with kisses for penalties. A cute little song in a decidedly neat musical setting, and well rendered. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

10315 Long, Long Ago — Manhattan Mixed Trio

A love lyric of much charm and refinement, sung by soprano, tenor and bass. As a Record this is one of supreme beauty, whether considered in relation to the exceptional calibre and exquisite blending, or the perfect reproduction of the singers' voices. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Thomas Hayes Bayley.

10316 Two Thomas Cats — New York Military Band

An interesting band number of good volume and spirit. There are novel plays of instruments throughout as well as the effect of two male representatives of the feline family engaged in a heated discussion. Altogether a decidedly desirable number for every band Record collection. Composer, Lew C. Smith; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Trade Bulletins

Sales Department Bulletin No. 40
November 1, 1909
Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning the bulletin should receive its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Due to causes hereinafter stated, we find it necessary to slightly advance the prices of Edison Records for all types to the Dealer, but in no case is the advance sufficient to justify a change in retail prices, which remain as heretofore.

The principal reason for the increase in price is the fact that the recent Copyright Law, which went into effect July 1st, 1909, for the first time extends the protection of copyright to Phonograph Records, so that in the future we shall be required to pay large sums as royalties to authors and composers.

We anticipate that these royalties will amount to about two cents on each copyright Record, and although the proportion of copyright Records used has been small so far, it undoubtedly will be necessary for us to use larger numbers of copyrights in the future. Furthermore, we shall be required to pay these royalties even if many of the copyrighted Records are later returned under our exchange proposition, so that from this source alone, there will be a probable additional heavy loss.

Another reason for the increase is the enormously greater sums we are paying for talent than ever before, not only in the Grand Opera line but for standard talent, as well as for special artists such as Victor Herbert, John Philip Sousa, Johann Strauss, and others.

A further reason for the increase is the higher cost of raw materials and of factory operations under which all Records not of absolutely the highest standard are rejected and returned to scrap.

A comparison of Edison Records with other Records on the market, or in fact with our own Records as made several years ago, will demonstrate to what degree of perfection in tone and quality they have been brought up to the present time.

In view of these circumstances the prices of Edison Records will be advanced on and after January 1st, 1910, as follows:

Edison Standard Records.....21 cents
Edison Amberol Records.....30 cents
Edison Grand Opera (Two-Minute) Records.....47 cents

In every case, as above stated, the list prices of these Records remain unchanged, viz.:

Edison Standard Records.....35 cents
Edison Amberol Records.....50 cents
Edison Grand Opera (Two-Minute) Records.....75 cents

We wish to point out with all sincerity to our friends in the trade, that the slight advance in prices given above is considerably less than the added expenses which have been imposed upon us by the special circumstances referred to, and were these advanced prices net to Dealers, we would still have to share a heavy burden which might very properly be placed on the goods themselves.

Notwithstanding this fact, however, we propose to make a radically new proposition and will assume a part of the increase by making a very liberal allowance for breakage in each case, whereby the net prices will be only very slightly higher than at present. By making this allowance the annoyance of adjusting claims for breakage between ourselves and Dealers, and between Jobbers and their Dealers, will be entirely removed. The allowance for breakage we propose to make to Dealers is 3½%—this allowance to be also made by Jobbers in transactions with their Dealers. It will be obvious that these allowances are far in excess of any breakage that may reasonably be expected, even in the case of exceptional rough handling. In order that the manner in which allowance is to be made in billing may be understood, we print herewith sample invoice showing exactly how invoices will be made out by us against Dealers; and Jobbers are being advised that in billing goods to Dealers the form proposed by us will be followed. From this example it will be seen that the proposed net prices, as compared with those at present in force, figure out as follows:

Standard 2-Minute Records: Per 100.

Present Prices:

Dealer	$20.00
Dealers' profit	15.00

New Price:

Dealer (21c. less 3½%)	20.30
Dealers' profit	14.70

Amberol Records: Per 100.

Present Pieces:

Dealer	28.00
Dealers' profit	22.00

New Price:

Dealer (30c. less 3½%)	14.70
Dealers' profit	21.00

Grand Opera (e-Minute) Records: Per 100.

Present Prices:

Dealer	45.00
Dealer's profit	30.00

New Price:

Dealer (47c. less 3½%)	45.43
Dealer's profit	29.57

From the figures above presented it will be seen that with all Records the profit to Dealers is slightly reduced, but in no case does it exceed one cent per Record, net.

It is unnecessary for us to say that this very slight reduction in profit does not in any way alter the fact that Edison Records are the most profitable line of talking machine records on the market today.

The new prices go into effect January 1st, 1910. Jobbers will accept for as complete shipment as their stocks will allow, all bona fide orders for Records, received up to and including Saturday, December 18th, 1909, at present prices, subject to existing terms and delivery. Orders received on and after December 20th, 1909, will be accepted subject to the express condition that such numbers as it is possible for the Jobbers to ship up to and including December 31st, 1909, will be billed at present prices, with usual terms and delivery; all unfilled balances to be cancelled.

Positively no Edison Records of any kind will be billed at old prices after December 31st, 1909.

A True Story With a Moral or Two

Early last May we received an inquiry from a prospective customer living in an obscure corner of the great Mojave desert, eight miles from the nearest place of human habitation, in which he inquired the price of various types of Edison Phonographs and Records. Replying at once, we sent him a Phonograph booklet and complete catalogues of Edison Records, and referred him to the nearest Edison Dealer for the consummation of the sale. At the same time we acquainted the Dealer with the facts of the case, requesting him to follow it up and advise us of result. A month passed and not hearing from the Dealer, we again wrote and elicited the information that the sale had not been effected. The Dealer had written once, and not receiving a reply, took it for granted that the prospective customer had given up the idea and therefore considered the incident closed.

Did we lose further interest in the matter? By no means; we never do that. We took up the subject again with the prospective customer, learned that he was still in a receptive mood although obliged to temporarily postpone the contemplated purchase. At his request we referred him to another Dealer as he expressed an unwillingness to do business with Dealer No. 1 whose stock of Records, he said, would not offer the choice he desired, and he wished to make the purchase without further delay. We did so and shortly received the thanks of Dealer No. 2 for an order of a Home Phonograph and Edison Records to the total value of $80.20, with the assurance that "further inquiries of like nature would receive prompt and energetic attention."

That's the story; what's the moral? There are two. First is that persistence wins in the long run—all that is necessary is patience. Had we been as easily discouraged as the Dealer—had we not put our "follow-up" system into operation, a nice sale and a good customer would have been lost. Had Dealer No. 1 followed up his man as we did, instead of dismissing the subject after a single inquiry he would have eventually won one—if he had kept up his stock, which he didn't. That's moral number two.

No Dealer who allows his stock to dwindle can expect to do business successfully in these days of up-to-date methods. It doesn't take the public long to discover the fact that a Dealer is losing interest in his business and when the discovery is made, the public promptly loses interest in the Dealer.

The Market for High Grade Goods

Some Dealers there are who labor under the false impression that the market for high grade Phonographs and Records is confined to the wealthier class of people, and they even despair of interesting them in the Phonograph to any great extent because of the preconceived idea that they are prejudiced against the instrument. Let us grant, for the sake of argument, that such people have a long standing prejudice against the Phonograph,—that in their eyes it is still the talking machine of a score of years ago, whose rasping, raucous tone offended the ear and annoyed rather than pleased the listener. Why do they retain that impression? Simply because no attempt has ever been made to convince them to the contrary.

Does it seem reasonable to believe that any person who listens to the Phonograph of to-day can associate it, from a musical standpoint, with its predecessor, which was more in the nature of a novelty than anything else? We think not, and we are equally positive that no one can hear the present-day Phonograph pouring forth its abundance of sweet music and melody, with a beauty of tone and expression that no automatic musical instrument can hope to approach, without experiencing a desire to possess one. In very naturalness, coupled with the great variety and excellence of selections the Record catalogue contains, and the impressive array of the world's greatest and best talent that contribute to them, are strong points that will make an instantaneous impression. And when the attractive appearance of the high-grade machine, its beauty and symmetry of outline and style of finish are demonstrated, but little more of argument will be needed to introduce one in the home of the most aesthetic.

Can any more elegantly and gracefully designed musical instrument be conceived of than the Amberola? It will satisfy the requirements of the most fastidious, will harmonize with the most luxurious or severely elegant surroundings, will be an ornament to any home. With such a Phonograph and the present Amberol Record list, Domestic and Grand Opera, the Dealer need not hesitate a moment to invade the precincts of the most conservative home. And that is the course you must pursue in order to interest the wealthier class, Mr. Dealer. If they do not respond to your literature and advertising (and they will not if they are severely prejudiced), it is your business to make a personal call and interest them to the extent of securing their consent to a home demonstration. Once you have secured an entering wedge by introducing one or two machines they will begin to advertise themselves and your work of solicitation will be reduced to a minimum.

It is a serious mistake on the Dealer's part to assume that only the wealthy class may be appreached with a high-grade Phonograph, however. The family in moderate circumstances, nine times out of ten, can be induced to invest in an expensive musical instrument if given the privilege of paying for it in installments. The proof of that is in the fact that the home of the prosperous mechanic is seldom without a piano, organ or other high-priced instrument, invariably purchased on easy payments. Whether or not the Dealer is in a position to accept payment on such a plan is a question, of course, that each must settle for himself.

We are simply pointing out the fact that a market for the high-grade Phonograph does exist among the middle class of the public; that their tastes run to the better grades of music and higher priced instruments, and that they dignify their homes by musical instruments of quality and price even as their more prosperous neighbors do. Furthermore, they are more accessible and respond more quickly to suggestions.

But the market for the high-grade product does not stop at the home. There is still the hotel, restaurant, church, lodge, club, play-house (especially the moving picture theatre), and every other place of public amusement and entertainment to consider. The field is broad and fertile; the opportunities for the enterprising Dealers are many and exceptional. Edison Dealers should bear the above fects in mind in connection with the sale of the new Amberola and Amberol Grand Opera Records.

Among the Jobbers

W. D. Andrews, the energetic Edison Jobber of Buffalo, N. Y., on October 18th opened his headquarters at 632-634 Main Street. In his new place of business, which is the largest and most handsomely decorated and appointed talking machine and sporting goods stores in that section of the State, Mr. Andrews carries a large and complete stock of Edison Records, Phonographs and accessories. The Phonograph Department is in charge of Mr. Ray F. Crandall, an expert in that line.

Mr. Andrews is a most liberal advertiser in the Buffalo papers, which is undoubtedly a large contributing factor to his success. He features Edison products in all his ads. We congratulate Mr. Andrews on his present prosperity and wish him increased success in his new location.

E. F. Droop and Sons Company, formerly of 925 Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C., has moved to the southwest corner of "G" and Thirteenth streets, N. W., same city.

The Flint and Brickett Company, of Springfield, Mass., has sold its entire stock of Edison Phonographs, Records and Supplies, to the Pardee-Ellenberger Company, of New Haven, Conn., which company is taking care of the Springfield territory as Edison Jobbers.

The O. K. Houck Piano Co., Edison Jobbers, of Memphis, Tenn., is nothing if not up-to-date in its methods of stimulating Dealers to activity. We have lately received some samples of the "stuff" being used, and cannot refrain from classing it among the most original and comprehensive Phonograph literature that has yet come to our attention.

The Standard Talking Machine Co., Edison Jobbers, of Pittsburg, Pa., was out on November 1 with a pointed letter to its Dealers urging the necessity of immediate forethought in the "stocking-up" line. A well-worded epistle that must have stirred up some grey matter.

Klipp-Link Phonograph Co., 10-12 East Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind., is now located at 445 East Washington street.

Numbers Assigned for Use on Amberol Records

Our attention was recently called to the fact that in several instances our Amberol Record numbers conflict with numbers appearing in our Standard Catalogues. We were aware of that fact but felt that because of the difference in the two types there would be little or no liability of error in placing orders. For the benefit of any who may be confused by the present arrangement we print the following list of numbers assigned for use on Amberol Records. The trade will be duly notified of any changes in the future:

Vol. VIII. JANUARY, 1910 No. 1

Short Sermons from Familiar Texts

TEXT:

Be sure you're right then go ahead.—Old saying.
If you can't be sure, go ahead anyway.—Modern version.

THE way to begin the New Year is to go ahead. The way to go ahead is to keep right on selling Edison Phonographs and Edison Records just as if you didn't know the Holiday rush was over.

Most of this after-the-holidays slump idea is a superstition. If dealers would put the same push and energy into the game in January that they exert in December there wouldn't be any slump worth complaining about.

Everybody who received an Edison Phonograph for Christmas is a prospective Record buyer. Go after this business. Everybody who received money for Christmas is a possible Phonograph buyer. Go after this business.

The New Year starts out with Amberol Records more in demand than ever. It marks the advent of the new Amberola, the aristocrat of sound reproducing instruments. It brings forward a new galaxy of grand opera stars, headed by Slezak, whom the musical critic of the New York World refers to as the rival of Caruso.

New Record-making talent is being recruited all the time, interest on the part of the music-loving public is increasing, selling helps from us are multiplying in number and effectiveness.

There is no time to sit around and pass New Year's resolutions or wait for the next buying flurry. The way to have a big year is to make every day produce.

You can be sure you are right on Edison Phonographs and Records, so go as far as you like.

After the Holidays What ?

Relaxation, mental and physical, for some Dealers,—an apathetic surrender to the conviction that all the business has been done during the holidays that the community is going to afford for some time to come. The sales force is cut down to a minimum; stocks are permitted to dwindle; the interior of the store revels in disorder and confusion; the window display is a sad looking reminder of the festal season; newspaper ads are promptly removed,—in short, the energy that characterized the few weeks immediately preceding the holidays is succeeded by a general listlessness.

That's true of some Dealers, happily not of all. That used to be the post-holiday attitude of retail merchants. It isn't popular any more because it isn't profitable. It is a "blockwoods" method that present-day enterprise has retired to oblivion, and the Edison Dealer who pursues it will find himself in the same habitation. January is no more a month to take a supine view of business than any of the other eleven months of the year. On the contrary, the Dealer who has attracted public attention to his goods by unusual advertising owes it to himself to continue that publicity in order to reap the full benefit of the money he has invested for that purpose. He cannot afford to relax in his efforts to keep himself in the public eye. The advertising that he has done is but a foundation for the structure that enterprise and persistence will assure him in the coming year.

January is the month in which the Dealer should begin to fortify himself for the balance of the year. He should start at once to put his store in order, to overhaul his stock and replenish it. His holiday ads should be replaced by more timely appeals to the public. His window display should give place to a new arrangement of goods. His mailing list should be revised at the earliest possible moment to take care of the new customers he has secured. He should look about him to discover new and untried methods to interest the public in Phonographs and Records during the winter months. There are many things to be done. They must be done promptly to insure the best results.

January is a dull month for the Edison Dealer who convinces himself that it is going to be a dull month. If he starts it in that frame of mind he will not be disappointed. For the Dealer who attends to the immediate necessities of his business it will mark the beginning of a New Year of happiness and prosperity.

Slezak

Leo Slezak, the giant Czech tenor, continues to delight New York audiences with his marvellous voice. In the short time he has been in the country he has supplanted the other "stars" of grand opera in the affections of the musical public and is today the idol of the metropolis. The tremendous success that greeted his initial appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House, when in the exacting rôle of the jealous Moor in "Otello," he made history in that temple of art, has been duplicated at his every appearance since. There were those who were inclined to believe, basing their judgment on the wonderful interpretation he gave the rôle, that he might be a one-part singer. That he effectually removed any such suspicion may be judged from the following criticism by the New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser, following his appearance as Maurice in Verdi's "Il Trovatore," when the demonstration that greeted him was even more remarkable than on the evening of his debut:

"As on the occasion of his first appearance here, Slezak disclosed a full, powerful, vibrant and manly voice of fine dramatic quality, while both his phrasing and enunciation commanded something more than mere respect. He sang all the famous airs of Maurice with fine effect, concluding the "Di quella pira" with a high C that brought the curtain down with a storm of applause in which even the members of the orchestra joined. Seven curtain calls followed this act."

Slezak's contract with this company covers a number of years, and is exclusive, we having the sole right for talking machine purposes to his entire French and Italian repertoire, as well as to all selections used by him on his present American tour. Slezak's Records are bound to be eagerly sought by lovers of high-class music as his successes grow in number and emphasis. The ten Records that were placed on sale December 1 are among his very best and favorite selections. With them as an asset and the question of competition entirely removed, the Edison Dealer has an enormous advantage over competition from Dealers in rival products.

There is only one Slezak and he is singing exclusively for Edison Records, and will be for some years to come. A "star" of his magnitude is not discovered every day. We intend to promote the demand for his Records by national advertising, as our January magazine ad proves. These ads will do a world of good, but the Dealer must supplement them by notifying his community that he sells Slezak Records,—Records by the world's most famous tenor, and at a price that in comparison with Grand Opera Records of other manufacturers is ridiculously small. We urge immediate attention to these Records during the month of January. Give them all possible publicity by newspaper ads, by window displays and by Slezak concerts.

General Manager Wilson Returns from Vacation

General Manager Carl H. Wilson, who with Mrs. Wilson has been travelling through the Northwest and Western Coast States since October 15, returned to his desk on December 10. During the trip, which was in lieu of a summer vacation and on which he combined business with pleasure, he visited Vancouver, B. C., Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles, stopping long enough in each city to visit the trade and acquaint himself thoroughly with business conditions.

Returning East, a visit was made to the Grand Cañon of Colorado and other well-known points of interest. The last stop made was at Chicago, from which point Mr. Wilson hastened homeward, the volume of business at the factory requiring his immediate presence. Because of the curtailment of time it was necessary to depart from the original itinerary of the trip. Mr. Wilson received much physical benefit from his vacation and expressed himself as delighted with the results obtained from both a business and social standpoint. He met a great many of our Jobbers and Dealers and was pleasantly entertained by them. In detailing the result of his observation of business conditions, he said:

"I was particularly impressed with the possibilities of the Amberola on the coast. The few samples that had reached there had inspired the trade with something more than enthusiasm, an example of which is found in the experience of one Jobber who told me that one of his Dealers on seeing the Amberola for the first time placed an initial order for ten machines immediately. The more expensive types of machines are being sold extensively out there and I was assured on every hand that the Amberola and the new Grand Opera Catalogue would find a ready market. Our Jobbers and Dealers seemed to be elated over the machine and its prospects, and grateful for our having given them products of such a superior order. We can't turn them out too quickly to suit our Western trade, who did not seem at all surprised when I explained the total that the initial orders had reached. The Amberola is destined to be a big factor on the Pacific Coast this season, as are also our Operatic Records.

The popularity of the Fireside Machine has not diminished and, strange to say, the sales of Standards have been excellent all during the long run on the Fireside. The New Combination Gem is proving to be a winner, too. Cygnet Horns were in heavier demand than at any time since their appearance and there didn't seem to be any prospect of a let-up. The optimism of the Western trade is unbounded and encouraging, and their naturally aggressive methods, together with the stimulation the business will receive from our advertising campaign ought to insure one of the biggest years in the history of the Phonograph trade on the coast."

The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition Prize

The official diploma and medal constituting the Grand Highest Award of the Exposition, which closed on October 15, are now in our possession. The award is particularly gratifying in view of the fact that, following our usual custom, no extraordinary effort was made to secure same. The superiority of Edison Phonographs and Records is so generally conceded that even official confirmation of the fact by an International Jury of Awards can scarcely add to their reputation. For that reason we are not unduly enthused over winning the prize, although we appreciate the compliment involved.

The Award was given for superior excellence of Cylinder Machines and Records. The Grand Highest Award for Disc Machines was given to the Columbia Phonograph Company. The Victor Company received a gold medal or second prize. The Edison exhibit was promoted by the Eilers Piano House, our Jobbers at Portland, Oregon, to whose personal efforts our successful display was largely due. The following unsolicited testimonial from the International Jury of Awards, which is a forceful tribute to our products, invites speculation as to what the verdict would have been had the "Amberola" figured in the display:

August 27, 1909.

COL. HENRY E. DOSCH,
DIRECTOR OF EXHIBITS, A.-Y.-P. EXPOSITION, SEATTLE, WASH.

SIR:—The National Phonograph Co. deserve the greatest commendation for its comprehensive display of Edison Phonographs and Records.

This firm has attained the highest standard of excellence in the manufacture of cylinder talking machines and Records, in reproducing there are no scratching, grating sounds, simply a pure and true reproduction of the original rendition.

Special mention must also be made of the Business Phonograph invented by this firm, which in our opinion have now perfected the most practical and useful machine value, yet unquestionably will revolutionize our present system of business letter writing.

Respectfully submitted,
INTERNATIONAL JURY OF AWARDS.

Amberolas

The very best we were able to do was to supply each of our Jobbers with a sample outfit before the holidays, as predicted in our December issue. Try as hard as we might it was simply impossible to do better than that. The cabinet manufacturers failed utterly to come to our relief, despite all the pressure we brought to bear on them. They promise us better things from now on and we are convinced that they are doing their level best to provide for our requirements, so that there is hope of improved conditions in the near future.

The trade may rest assured that we are doing everything that lies in our power to put them in possession of Amberolas at the earliest possible opportunity, in order that they may be in a position to reach the market that is awaiting the appearance of what is conceded by unbiased judges to be the most perfect Phonograph yet produced. We are busily engaged in creating a demand for the Amberola now as is attested by the two-page ad that is appealing to millions of magazine readers during the month of January. We are convinced that the Amberola is the door to golden opportunity for the trade and ourselves, and we propose to unlock it just as soon as human effort will make it possible for us to do so.

Amberol Reproducers

The Amberolas that we have shipped so far have been equipped with but one reproducer—the model "L," for use on Amberol Records only. This is due to the fact that we are unable to supply the special type model "C," which would make the machine complete. We expect in the near future to be able to provide a special combination type reproducer, which will play both two and four-minute Records. It is very probable that the new reproducer will be designated as model "X." When a sufficient quantity is in readiness we shall be pleased to receive the model "L" reproducers back, we sending the new models in their place.

A New Attachment Proposition

We are about to put into effect a very liberal plan to promote the sale of Combination Attachments with a view to increasing the sales of Amberol Records. Notice of this purpose was given in our Sales Manager's letters to the trade under date of December 6, in which Dealers were requested to immediately advise Jobbers on forms provided for the purpose, of the number of attachments they had in stock. Jobbers were requested to communicate the information to us on official form without delay. It was hoped that complete information could be obtained by December 27, but, as frequently occurs, many Jobbers and Dealers have entirely ignored the request. As a result we are seriously handicapped in the matter. We must have this information, and at once, if the proposition is to be successfully launched. The time is not ripe to divulge its nature in these columns, but we wish to assure the trade that it will prove to be a most agreeable surprise. It is one of the fairest and most liberal propositions in the history of the Phonograph industry and will boom the sale of Records as never before. Send in your report at once to your Jobber, if you have not already done so, and let us get the scheme launched.

Cygnet Horn Situation Clearing

Slowly, to be sure, but steadily. Although still far behind in filling orders we think we can see a little light. The schedule is improving, thanks to the amount of moral persuasion we have brought to bear upon the manufacturers, who, to do them justice, are bending every energy to meet our requirements. They are pushing their production to the limit, working their factories night and day for this purpose. As a result the daily schedule has been increased almost 50 per cent. Unless the stocking-up process creates an abnormal demand, we can safely say that in a satisfactorily short time we shall be able to fill orders as they come.

Pardon Us, Please

In our December issue we stated that the list price in our Machine Catalogue (form 1675) of horn cranes for Fireside, Standard, Home, Triumph, Balmoral and Alva Phonographs should be 25 cents instead of $1.25 as given. The correction was intended to apply to Fireside cranes only. The $1.25 price applies to the other types.

Lost or Stolen Machines

Information is wanted, by our Agreement Department, in regard to the following machines, which have been missing since June, 1909: Triumph, No. 77,771; Home, No. 62,185; Standard, No. 671,919, and Home, No. 348,767.

New Edison Record Talent

POLK MILLER

POLK MILLER'S "OLD SOUTH QUARTETTE"

We regret that space will not permit us to dwell at length upon the respective talents and career of each of these recent accessions to the ranks of our talent; a tabloid description is all that can be given. Jack Pleasants is one of our British artists and a comedian of high repute. His delivery is peculiarly droll and rendered more effective by the nice little inflections and suggestive pauses he employs. Polk Miller and his "Old South Quartette" of genuine negroes in old-time plantation melodies have been heard in almost every city of note in the country. Marie Dressler is concededly one of the funniest and most original comediennes the American stage has ever produced. She has been particularly successful in the delineation of certain types of everyday life, one of which will be imitated by her on a Record shortly to be listed. H. Benne Henton, saxophone virtuoso, is acknowledged to be the world's greatest artist on that instrument. His technique is a marvel of precision and agility, while his tonal production has been pronounced by critics to possess a quality comparable to the purest human voice of like register.

British, German, French, Mexican, Argentine and Filipino Amberol Records in Regular Catalogue

The next edition of the regular Domestic Catalogue of Amberol and Standard Records (to follow Form 1620) will include all Records listed to February, 1910, and be issued some time in February. It will also include all British Amberol Records and all German, French, Mexican, Argentine, Portuguese and Filipino Amberol instrumental Records issued to and including January, 1910. The British list and the several instrumental lists will appear in the various special catalogues of foreign Records, but since they are equal to any Amberol Records on the regular list, we deem it advisable to give them wider publicity by including them in the regular Domestic Catalogue. The complete list of these Amberol Records is printed below in order that the trade may, if it desires, order a stock in advance of the appearance of the catalogue in February. In some instances, Records have been given American numbers and put out in our regular supplements. In such cases both numbers are given in the list below.

12037 Arcadians, Selection, Monckton and Talbot
12069 Belle of St. Mark, Rimmer
12101 Christmas Hops
In also No. 253 in American Amberol List.

Selling the Goods

Did you ever hear the story of the man who was walking through the park in the early Spring? Well, he sat down on a bench to rest and listen to the birds. Pretty soon along came another man, and, as he sat down on the bench, remarked to the first man on the sweet singing of the birds, and added "Those little birds are singing for me." The first man replied, "You are mistaken, sir. Those birds are singing for me." Then there was a fight. A policeman arrested both men, took them to court, and the judge, as he fined each $10.00 and pocketed the money remarked: "You were both mistaken. Those little birds were singing for me."

Leo Slezak, the world's greatest lyric tenor, now sings for New York audiences at the Metropolitan Opera House, at the rate of $5.00 per seat, and for every owner of the Edison Phonograph who wants to hear him, at the rate of $1.00 per Record—but every time you pocket the profit on a Slezak Record you can pat yourself on the back and say to yourself: "Slezak is singing expressly for me."

It doesn't hurt a prospective customer a bit to give him credit for wanting to buy a higher priced instrument than he had figured on.

Take a case like this for example:

An advertising solicitor for a publication comes into an advertiser's office and says: "How about a double-page ad for our next issue?" or words to that effect.

Now, it may be that the advertiser had just been thinking that he ought to have a double page, and he takes it. But, on the other hand, he may say: "Double page? That's too strong—I'll take a page."

Now, if the solicitor had asked the advertiser to take a quarter-page, although the advertiser may have been thinking of half-pages or pages, it's a cinch that publication wouldn't get more than a quarter-page for that issue, and it's doubtful if it would get even that much space.

Now, in offering the Amberola to a customer it doesn't matter who he is or what his circumstances, you don't hurt his feelings a bit by presuming that he is able to buy it. If he feels that the price of the Amberola is beyond him, it is easy enough for you to drop to the lower priced instrument and sell him a Triumph, Standard, Fireside or even a Gem.

Whereas, if you had started out by offering him a low-priced machine, and he had really considered buying a machine that cost more, the chances are a hundred to one against your getting him up to the price he had intended to pay, and it's doubtful if he will buy at all.

You can't tell what a man's purchasing ability may be by the cut of his clothes, any more than the length of a frog's tail is an indication of how far he can jump. And that fact is well illustrated in the following story:

Sometime ago a seedy little man dropped in at the City Hall, in Chicago, to declare his taxes. The clerk at the window began asking the usual questions, and in a rather supercilious manner.

"Have you a piano?"

"No," said the seedy little man.

"Any horses or carriages?"

"No."

"Any automobiles?" This last from the clerk with a supercilious raise of the eyebrows.

"Yes," said the little old man, "two—a runabout, value $2,000.00, and a touring car, value $6,000.00."

"Well, what do you know about that?" said the clerk to the next man in line, as the little seedy man left the room.

Give every prospective customer credit for being able at least to buy an Amberola. Then, even if he can't afford the Amberola, he's pretty certain to buy the best Phonograph he can afford. It doesn't hurt any man's feelings to have his bank roll over-estimated.

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

A Striking and Effective Ad

A brilliant idea was adopted by the Sante Fe Watch Company, Edison Dealers, of Topeka, Kansas, to suggest Edison Phonographs as a suitable Christmas gift to holiday shoppers last month. The huge electric sign shown in the accompanying illustration was strung across Kansas Avenue at the corner of Eight street. It was referred to in a local paper as one of the largest electric signs ever built across a main thoroughfare. The sign consisted of two lines of about thirty letters each, the length of the sign being about seventy-five feet and the height of each letter two feet. Between seven and eight hundred incandescent globes were used in the lighting. As the illustration shows, the effect of the illumination was striking. That it proved to be all that was expected of it may be adduced from the following extract of a letter received from A. S. Thomas, Prop., in which it will be noted he also recognizes the benefit derived from our advertising campaign:

"This sign was up eight days and brought a great many inquiries, sold a number of machines, clinched some doubtful prospects and on the whole paid us big. Our Christmas business was larger than ever before. We sold fully 50 per cent. more Edison machines than we have ever sold, and I believe it mostly due to your advertising in our Daily Capital and our following it up with ads of our own. Our Record business by actual figures has increased 100 per cent."

This testimonal to the value of intelligent advertising preaches an eloquent lesson that every Edison Dealer ought to take home to himself. The wisdom of following up our newspaper ads has been repeatedly urged in these columns. As for the illuminated sign, when we consider that it will be serviceable for years to come, it will be seen that it was not so very expensive after all. Yet, we wonder how many Edison Dealers would show the same enterprise as did the Sante Fe Watch Company.

Out of the Golden West

Additional evidence of the gratifying results that attend a display of aggressiveness and enthusiasm on the part of the Dealer is to be found in the following extract from a letter received by us under date of November 26, from K. H. Nishkian, Edison Dealer of Fresno, California:

"I am pleased to say that I am now selling one to two machines every day, and expect to dispose of about fifty more between now and Christmas."

That short paragraph is eloquent of what may be accomplished by any Edison Dealer who is alive to the opportunities that are within his grasp. It is safe to assume that Mr. Nishkian did not wait for the expression "fifty more" to seek him out, but on the contrary applied himself to the remunerating task of discovering them by the methods found most effective for that purpose. We expect to hear that his holiday expectations were fully realized.

A Canadian Dealer's Testimony

The following extract from a letter received from Fred E. Stevenson, Edison Dealer of Killarney, Man., Canada, proves that the superiority of Edison products is given material recognition by our northern neighbors. Incidentally it lends confirmation to the oft repeated contention that small towns can be made profitable fields for the sale of Phonographs:

"Got two Firesides and a Gem Combination Outfit on Thursday, November 18th, and had both Firesides sold by the following Saturday night. This makes a Home, a Standard, two Firesides, and a Gem sold in less than three weeks in a town of 1,200, where there are two other jewelers handling —— and —— machines. Edison has them beat a mile and sells itself,—practically. Am ordering three more machines to-day."

A New Edison Phonograph

—improved, enlarged—an Edison Phonograph converted into a most attractive piece of furniture, charmingly simple in design, with the horn removed from sight—built in as a part of the cabinet.

The new style reproducer, together with the aging of the wood, gives a full mellow tone far beyond anything heretofore possible in sound-reproducing instruments. Its life-like reproduction of all Edison Records, both Standard (two minute) and Amberol (four minute) carries the listener entirely away from the fact that it is a mechanical instrument. It has drawers in the lower part for 120 Records.

It comes in several finishes of Mahogany and Oak. Price $200. ($240 in Canada)

You can hear and see the Amberola at all Edison Stores.

New Amberol Records

by Slezak

Leo Slezak, the giant tenor, formerly of the Royal Opera, Vienna, and now of the Metropolitan, is one of the new stars making Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records. Among the ten Slezak Records are the famous "Ora E Per Sempre" and "Morte di Otello" from Verdi's great opera, Otello, in which he made his American debut. Slezak's great versatility is also shown in his renderings of "Celeste Aida," the "Swan Song" from Lohengrin and the great tenor arias from Tosca, La Boheme and Tannhäuser.

Other prominent stars of Grand Opera who have made and are making Records for the Edison are Antonio Scotti, the famous baritone, Constantino, the great Spanish tenor, Blanche Arral, the coloratura soprano, Agostinelli, the dramatic soprano, and Riccardo Martin, the first great American tenor. Only on Edison Amberol Records can you get these great Grand Opera arias as composed and meant to be sung, and only on the Edison Phonograph can you get Amberol Records.

Hear them at any Edison dealer's. Complete list from your dealer or from us.

Dealers should place March orders with Jobbers before January 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for March, 1910

365 "Roses"—Waltz from Suite, "Rose of Shiraz" — Sousa's Band

The exquisite waltz number from the Idyllic Ballet Suite, "The Rose of Shiraz," composed by Richard Eilenberg, a popular European composer of many well-known dance and concert numbers. This Suite consists of four numbers, as follows: (1) Waltz, "Roses"; (2) Polka, "Buds"; (3) Gavotte, "Zephyr"; (4) Polka Mazurka, "Centifolie." Two of his compositions appear in our present catalogue—"Blue Violets" (Record No. 9901) and "Little Flatterer" (No. 10056), both played by the Edison Concert Band. This selection is of unusual grace and beauty, while the interpretation is in the masterful Sousa style. Publishers, Boosey & Company, New York City.

366 Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet — Frederic H. Potter and Chorus

For Mr. Potter's first Amberol Record we have chosen a catchy and popular march song that embodies a beautiful sentiment. An old couple on their golden wedding day rehearse the trip to the church at Dover in the same old shay, and through the same fields of clover through which they had driven fifty years before. An effective and pleasing feature is the repetition of the chorus in subdued tones. This number has considerable vogue in vaudeville at the present time. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Stanley Murphy; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

367 Do They Think of Me at Home? — Manhattan Mixed Trio

Heimweh, the wanderer's longing for a return to his home, tinged with the bitterness of fate that compels him to roam over the world and the dread that his memory may not endure, finds expression in the lines of this well-known selection. A sad but beautiful melody given a most impressive rendition by this trio, whose voices blend in a manner delightful to the ear. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, J. E. Carpenter; music, C. W. Glover; publishers, Oliver Dison Co., Boston, Mass.

368 Conversations — Edward M. Favor

This popular comedian at his best in a selection that affords him plenty of scope for the display of his versatility. A comic character song in which Favor describes several conversations that he has overheard, and imitates the principal characters in each. The first is an English fop attempting to create an impression at a ball, the next a society lady roasting her neighbors and the last a couple of lovers in a game of "mush." The characterization that Favor gives to each of these subjects is inimitable. A "scream" all the way through. Words, Frank Redmond; music, Walter Redmond.

369 Badinage — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This selection is one of Herbert's concert pieces and is frequently used by him in his programs. A typical Herbert composition, graceful and inspiring, and a typical Herbert interpretation, artistic and finished, the master's hand in evidence in the care of even the slightest detail. A superior Record whose charm of composition and brilliancy of rendition entitle it to a place in the collection of the most fastidious musical critic. It bears the stamp of Herbert's own approval, which is guarantee of its excellence in every respect. With such Records as the higher grade of music.

370 Monologue on Married Life — Murry K. Hill

A vaudeville specialty following the usual lines of this artist's always acceptable contributions. In this number he injects an amazing amount of sometimes sage and always side-splitting advice to married men, the wisdom of which he avers was gained by personal experience. At the conclusion of the monologue he gives a neat little recitation in which he compares life to a game of cards.

371 There Were Shepherds — Edison Mixed Quartette

It is doubtful if any sacred selection has ever been listed in our catalogue that surpasses this number in impressiveness and grandeur. A composition of supreme beauty, the inspiration of a noted (and late lamented) composer, rendered by a quartette of mixed voices whose harmonization is especially fine. They are accompanied throughout by the Edison Concert Band. Composer, Dudley Buck; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

372 White Wings — Manuel Romain

Does anyone need an introduction to this charming old ballad? Few have been written that can vie with it in length of popularity, which can be traced to its superior merit of composition and tuneful air. Mr. Romain's clear, expressive voice seems to invest the song with an added charm. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Banks Winter; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

373 Fantasia on Themes of Léonard and Paganini — Michael Banner

This Fantasie introduces Themes from "Souvenir de Hayn," by Hubert Léonard, and the "Adagio Amoroso" from the 8th Sonata by Niccolo Paganini. Hubert Léonard, a celebrated violinist and composer of violin numbers, was born in Bellaire, Belgium, April 7, 1819, and died in Paris, May 6, 1890. Niccolo Paganini, most famous of violin-virtuosi, was born in Genoa, Oct. 27, 1782, and died May 27, 1840. The description of this Record is complete with the statement that in its rendition Michael Banner, the well-known violin-virtuoso, displays to perfection the consummate skill that has won him fame in concert and vaudeville throughout the country. Mr. Banner's skill as a musician is not unknown to the Edison public. He will be recognized as the violinist of the Olivotti Troubadours, who were heard in Amberol Record No. 302, "Carnival of Venice."

374 I'm a Woman of Importance — Stella Mayhew

Miss Mayhew here contributes a Record that stamps her as an entertainer of the highest order and that will assure her standing with the Phonograph public. It is a comic song describing a court scene in which Miss Mayhew is successively a "cullud" lady suing for a limited dower, and "Sof-shoe Sadie, the pride of Herald Square," arrested for fighting in a Childs' restaurant. The song, of course, is only the vehicle for her plea to the Judge. The description that she gives the Judge of the incident that provoked the fight, as well as the battle itself, is excruciatingly funny. If it it possible to surpass Miss Mayhew's dialect in either one of the two characters she assumes, we are open to conviction, but candidly we doubt if it is possible. This Record will be a big seller. Words and music, William Jerome and Jean Schwartz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

375 Lynn Oh, Oh, Miss Lynn — Collins and Harlan

Plantation melodies of merit never appeal to the public in vain. There is always a ready reception for such as possess the requisite degree of tunefulness. The musical setting of this selection is composed by a shining light of vaudeville and minstrelsy whose original style has placed him on a pedestal by himself. The theme is a darkey boy's song to his lady-love in the land of Dixie. As usual Collins and Harlan introduce a spice of comedy into the rendition; in fact it wouldn't seem like a Collins and Harlan Record if their usual conversational by-play were omitted. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Rogers and Franczon; music, Eddie Leonard; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

376 Dreams — Elizabeth Wheeler

To those who discriminate in favor of vocal selections of the higher grade this sentimental number will make a distinct appeal. Miss Wheeler's beautiful voice and artistic style are strongly in evidence in this selection, which she sings with an ease and brilliance delightful to hear. Piano accompaniment with violin obligato. Words, Baroness Porteous; music, Ant. Strelezki; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

377 American Students' Waltzes — New York Military Band

This delightful waltz is constructed on themes of the following popular college songs: "My Love at the Window"; "Dear Evaline"; "The Spanish Guitar"; "Climbing, Climbing, Climbing"; "Bring Back My Bonnie to Me" and "Ching a Ling Ling." This Record contains the entire three numbers and coda of the waltz. The Record is an appealing dance number and should be popular, particularly during the Winter season. Composer and publisher, Jean M. Missud, Salem, Mass.

378 Davey Jones' Locker — Gus Reed

This selection, which is a descriptive song of the deep, gives Mr. Reed an opportunity to display the exceptional range and timbre of his truly noble voice. The result is a most impressive and pleasing Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, H. W. Petrie; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

379 Nearer My God to Thee — Knickerbocker Quartette

A most harmonious and impressive rendition of this beautiful old hymn, without which no catalogue or Record collection can be considered complete. It is here sung by male voices without accompaniment, which fact, we think, emphasizes the rare beauty of its melody. Words, Sarah F. Adams; music, Lowell Mason-Herbert Johnson; publishers, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

380 I'll Be Cross, Arabella — Jack Pleasants

To hear a comedian like Jack Pleasants is most refreshing. His delivery is absolutely unique and his humor unforced, as those who heard his Record in the January Standard list (No. 10291) will agree. He is one of the most original singers we have ever had on our list, and his singing of this funny song will cement the good impression his first Record made. This Record is 12080 on the British Amberol List. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Murphy & Lipson; publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

381 Balmy Night — Vienna Instrumental Quartette

This is an instrumental arrangement of the song, "Lauschige Nacht" ("Balmy Night"), the most popular song in the Viennese Operette, "Land Streicher," composed by C. M. Ziehrer, the well-known European composer and conductor of the Court Orchestra in Vienna. There is a peculiar fascination and compelling charm to this selection, which is played in captivating style by these masters of Viennese music.

382 The Hat My Father Wore Upon St. Patrick's Day — Billy Murray and Chorus

An Irish character song with a rollicking lilt, very popular at present in vaudeville, in which it is being featured by several well-known singers. Its theme is the respect an Irishman in capital style, assisted by a chorus who contribute to its effectiveness by a clever imitation of bagpipes between the second verse and chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, William Jerome and Jean Schwartz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

383 The Rube and the Country Doctor — Harlan and Stanley

"Uncle Jerry" and the doctor meet and, after exchanging confidences and retailing village gossip, start a horse-trade. The dialogue between them fairly bristles with good jokes and witty repartee. The sketch concludes with the singing of "Sally Come Up" to a violin accompaniment in the tavern in which they take refuge from a storm. A novel and amusing Record.

384 King Karl March — New York Military Band

A splendid band number of unusual tunefulness, volume and spirit, rendered by an organization whose popularity has been won by the very excellence of their Records. Composer, C. L. Unrath; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Edison Amberol Records by Harry Lauder

12119 The Bounding Sea

One of Lauder's very latest songs, which has been warmly received in this country. This number, with its refrain "Out on the bounding ocean, over the bounding sea," has a characteristically good tune, but the patter concerning the way "Sandy" and "Shack" (Lieut. Shackleton) nearly discovered the South Pole is the feature. "Sandy's" description of how he "skoffed off" Day & Hunter, New York City.

12132 When I Get Back Again to Bonnie Scotland

Seven years is a long, long time to be away from home and lassie, but John consoles himself by singing the praises of his betrothed, and promises himself the pleasure of rolling her in the heather when he gets back again to Bonnie Scotland. A very charming and sweet Record with an appealing touch of pathos. Already listed in the Standard list as No. 13764. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

B178 L'Africaine—O Paradiso (Meyerbeer) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Florencio Constantino, Tenor

Vasco di Gama, the celebrated Portuguese navigator, taken prisoner upon his approach to the Indies, sings the praises of this fruitful land of tropical splendor. Meyerbeer's opera, so full of beautiful music and dramatic situations, possesses nothing which quite equals this number in beauty, and which is and will remain deservedly a favorite everywhere.

B179 Ernani—Infelice ("Ocrd") Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Luigi Lucenti, Bass

The aged suitor Silva, upon paying a visit to Elvira, the heroine of Verdi's opera, Ernani, finds a desperate struggle going on in Elvira's apartment between King Carlos and Ernani, the bandit. This struggle is being watched by Elvira, who is the cause thereof and which is to determine who will carry her off. Silva, convinced of her infidelity, sings to her this famous and as well-liked cavatina, "Unhappy one! and I so trusted thee." As a bass solo this number has probably never been excelled in tunefulness.

* This selection will be illustrated on cover of March Phonogram

B180 Cavalleria Rusticana—Voi lo sapete (Mascagni) Sung in Italian Orchestra accompaniment — Ester Ferrabini, Soprano

Santuzza, deceived and cast aside by her lover, Turiddu, calls on his mother and, in a most dramatic and heart-rending manner, tells her of her plight. In this number, which is one of the gems of modern compositions, she tells of his former love for Lola, of his disappointment when finding her married upon his return from military service, how then he courted Santuzza, only to leave her when his former sweetheart called him.

B181 La Tosca—E lucevan le stelle (Puccini) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Riccardo Martin, Tenor

Cavaradossi, about to be shot for having aided in the escape of a political prisoner, asks permission to write his farewell to Tosca, his love. In this number, which never fails in its effect, the doomed painter calls back the memories of his love and tells of his despair at his untimed death, "when never he did love life more."

B182 I Puritani—Suoni la tromba (Bellini) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Ernesto Caronna, Baritone, and Luigi Lucenti, Bass

I Puritani, by Bellini, although but seldom given at present, has still a great hold by some of its beautiful music on old and present-day opera-goers. Of all its numbers, there is none better known or liked than the duet "Suoni la tromba," or the "Liberty duet." It is the most stirring martial and patriotic air which has perhaps ever been given to the world, and will always make its appeal wherever heard anew.

Edison Standard Records for March, 1910

10317 La Lettre De Manon — Sousa's Band

This selection is a well-known concert number by Ernest Gillet, a popular French composer of Salon Music, one of whose efforts is the celebrated "Loin du Bal" ("Echoes of the Ball"). The melody of this number is of a most unusual and appealing type, and Sousa's incomparable organization interprets it in a manner that will commend it to instantaneous favor. No collector of band Records can afford to miss this. Publishers, Chappell & Company, New York City.

10318 I'm a Goin' to Change My Man — Marie Dressler

Still another accession to Edison ranks—Marie Dressler, who has probably convulsed more audiences in this country and Europe than any other female artist now before the public. Her humor is at once spontaneous and infectious and in coon songs she finds an excellent vehicle for its display. In her initial Record she details her reasons for leaving her man, chief among which appears to be that she's "tired o' lookin' at his ole black face," although she insinuates that he is lacking in other respects. The song, like its style of rendition, is original with Miss Dressler. Orchestra accompaniment.

10319 Hunting Song — Stanley and Gillette

A brilliant tenor and bass duet—a composition well worthy of the finished rendition that is here given it. Frederic Field Bullard, the composer, was born in Boston, Mass., Sept. 21, 1864, and died there June 24, 1904. He wrote many well-known songs of the better class, among which his "Stein Song" gained immense popularity. This selection is the best known of his duets. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Richard Hovey; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston.

10320 Laverne—Waltz Caprice — H. Benne Henton

A saxophone solo. For Mr. Henton's introduction to our Record Catalogue, he has chosen a very tuneful number entitled "Laverne," a waltz-caprice of his own composition. It is certain to be much admired and possibly will be considered one of the most beautiful Records we have turned out in some time. As to Mr. Henton's artistic ability we quote a letter from Bohumir Kryl, world-famous cornet virtuoso and band master:

"To my best judgment I think that H. Benne Henton is the greatest artist on his instrument that I have ever had in my band, or that I have ever heard in Europe or America." (Signed) BOHUMIR KRYL.
Chicago, Ill., Nov. 14, 1909.

10321 When I Am Away from You — Manuel Romain

A sentimental waltz song of the type that seems to always find favor with the public. Its burden is a lover's lament over his separation from the girl of his heart. Mr. Romain sings this dainty number in a manner that will sustain his enviable reputation as a balladist of the highest order. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Lawrence B. O'Connor; publishers, Jos. M. Daly, Boston.

10322 Sun of My Soul — Anthony and Harrison

Particularly impressive is this magnificent sacred number in both words and air. These famous singers, with whom sacred selections are a specialty, have fairly outdone themselves in its rendition. This Record is equal in every respect to the best in our catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, J. Keble; music, Peter Ritter.

10323 Irish Blood — Ada Jones

In this number are detailed some unique reasons why England should always be Ireland's best friend. "Irish Blood" was sung with great success by Andrew Mack, the popular Irish singing comedian, in several of his best-known plays. It is introduced into our catalogue in response to numerous requests, and in its Record form it should be as big a favorite as it was in the days when featured and sung by its composer. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Andrew Mack.

10324 Hungarian Dance—G Minor — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

The difficult arrangement of this composition requires the skill of a master for its proper interpretation. Could it be entrusted to more capable hands than those of the foremost American conductor, one of the world's greatest living musicians? This number is one of the most popular of the celebrated Hungarian dances, composed by Johannes Brahms, whose brilliant compositions are part of the world's history in classical music.

10325 Home With the Milk in the Morning — Pete Murray

A rollicking Bacchanalian air describing the sensations of a party or "rounders," whose convivial inclinations have carried them well into the "cold gray dawn of the morning after," when the only witnesses of their necessarily slow and tortuous homeward journey are a waning moon and "the man who delivers the milk." Pete Murray's voice has the proper shade of sympathy. He will be pleasantly remembered as having contributed Record No. 207, "Lily of the Prairie." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, William Jerome and Jean Schwartz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10326 Some Day, Melinda — Collins and Harlan

A particularly catchy negro melody in duet form. This song scored a distinct "hit" on its first introduction to the public, and is now being sung from coast to coast. It is really superior in every respect to the average "coon" song. The rendition given it on this Record is in Collins and Harlan's best style, which is enough said. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Ben Fitzgibbon; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10327 Uncle Josh in a Department Store — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh is inveigled into exploring a department store whose many curiosities and novelties are the subjects of some screamingly funny comments. Among other things he tells triumphantly of his forestalling an attempt to steal his money by closing the little tin box in which it had been placed all over the store until he caught up with it! That's a sample—there are others equally as funny.

10328 Four Little Sugar Plums — American Symphony Orchestra

Whose pulse does not quicken when the rhythmic strains of a dance reach the ear? This Record will prove unusually popular with devotees of the "light fantastic," as it is suitable for either a schottische or barn dance. It will also recommend itself to the Phonograph public in general because of its tuneful quality and the artistic manner in which it is rendered. Composer, Lawrence B. O'Connor; publisher, Jos. M. Daly, Boston.

10329 Not For Me — Bessie Wynn

A "kid" song in which the precocity of a remarkably up-to-date youngster on three separate occasions is recited. Three verses and choruses abounding in the entertainment that Bessie Wynn's refreshingly different style assures. This clever, vivacious little composition was written by Bessie Wynn herself. Orchestra accompaniment. Publisher, Leo Feist, New York City.

10330 What Makes the World Go Round — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

In this conversational duet are propounded many questions that require for an answer but one magic word of four letters. Pretty as the composition is, the air is still prettier, and the rendition is additional proof, if proof be needed, that in this style of selection at least these artists acknowledge no superiors. They are capable of extracting an artistic value from the most mediocre composition. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Harry Williams and Egbert Van Alstyne; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10331 Falcon March — New York Military Band

The falcon, a bird of prey trained and used by falconers to pursue other birds and game, furnished the composer with his inspiration for this selection. The rise, flight and descent of the falcon is ably portrayed, the piccolo representing the height to which the bird ascends. In the descent the entire range of the band is employed, finishing with the lower bass instruments as the bird with its prey touches the ground. Composer, Paris Chambers; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Edison Standard Record by Harry Lauder

13918 I've Loved Her Ever Since She Was a Baby

One of the most tuneful and popular numbers in the inimitable Scot's extensive repertoire. It is a bit pathetic, too, for it relates how the girl he loved so long finally laughed at his proposal. This number is listed in the Amberol list as No. 12070. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

SPECIAL RECORD LIST

Amberol Masonic Records

Sung by Male Quartette with Organ Accompaniment.

385 Entered Apprentice Degree Hymn—"Behold How Pleasant and How Good"
Complete two verses. Sung to the air of "Auld Lang Syne."

386 Fellow Craft Degree Hymn—"His Love Inspires Our Being"
Complete three verses. Sung to the air of "Missionary Hymn."

387 Master Mason Degree Hymn—"Let Us Remember in Our Youth"
Complete three verses. Sung to the air of "Bonnie Doon."

388 Master Mason Degree Dirge—"Solemn Strikes the Funeral Chime"
Complete four verses. Sung to the air of "Pleyel's Hymn."

Amberol Records by Polk Miller's "Old South Quartette"

389 The Bonnie Blue Flag — Polk Miller and Quartette

One of the most popular war songs of the South, surpassing in popularity even the world-famous "Dixie" in the days from '61 to '65. It was sung by Polk Miller around army campfires and he sings it now at reunions of Confederate veterans. Banjo accompaniment.

390 Laughing Song — Quartette

It takes a genuine Southern negro to sing this song, which is typical of the happy darkey nature. The laughter of the quartette is natural and contagious. Guitar accompaniment.

391 What a Time — Quartette

A favorite church hymn of the Virginia country negroes, with a charateristic plantation air, quaint and pleasing. Guitar accompaniment.

392 The Watermelon Party — Quartette

An original "stump" by James L. Stamper, the basso of the quartette, and for which no music has ever been written. Mark Twain referred to the number as "a musical earthquake."

Standard Records by Polk Miller's "Old South Quartette"

10332 Rise and Shine — Polk Miller and Quartette

Polk Miller, whose imitations of the darkey character are as inimitable as enjoyable, sings the selection just as the old darkies used to sing it on his father's plantation before the war. The harmonization of the quartette's voices is sweet and appealing. Guitar accompaniment.

10333 The Old Time Religion — Polk Miller and Quartette

This hymn is of negro origin, but owing to the fact that its words and melody stir the popular heart, the Southern whites have introduced it into their church services. Unaccompanied.

10334 Jerusalem Mournin' — Polk Miller and Quartette

A favorite camp-meeting song, whose fame is by no means confined to the South. This is probably the catchiest of the seven numbers. The lines are sung alternately by Randall Graves, the first tenor, and the quartette. Unaccompanied.

Sales Department Bulletin No. 43
December 13, 1909
Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

It is our purpose to issue as a special list, on or about January 3rd, 1910, seven Edison Records by Polk Miller and his "Old South Quartette," as also four Edison Records covering Masonic Hymns.

Shipments of these Records will be made from the factory at one time to all Jobbers in the same territory. They may be placed on sale by Dealers as soon as received.

POLK MILLER'S RECORDS.

These were made especially for the Southern trade, and any remarks from us as to the popularity of "Polk Miller" and his "Old Southern Quartette" will seem entirely superfluous to our Southern clientele, who have long and favorably known these famous entertainers; but to those with whom the name is not familiar, would advise, Mr. Miller is the foremost delineator of the old Southern plantation negro that has ever appeared on the public stage,—who has organized and drilled a quartette of the best negro singers ever heard on the platform, with voices naturally sweet, though uncultivated, thus producing a harmony unequalled by the professionals, and which goes straight to the hearts of the people, and to those who know of Southern plantation life from much reading, the songs will prove a pleasant and educational pastime. While, as above stated, these Records were especially prepared for the Southern trade, they are so admirably rendered that we believe they will promptly meet with general favor and prove to be ready sellers.

MASONIC HYMNS.

We have had many requests for these Records for lodge purposes, and while we recognize that the immediate demand will possibly not be as great as for some other type of Records, we believe they will greatly stimulate the sale of Machines as, if a Phonograph is installed in a lodge room, it will be used for musical Records as well as for the special Masonic Hymns, and in this way some of the members may become impressed and obtain one for home use.

(For descriptions of these Records see page 19.)

Suspended List, Dec. 20, 1909

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

WASH., Seattle—Woolley—Turney Music Co.
LA., Shreveport—J. C. Pipes.
MINN., Browns Valley—F. E. Patrotsugh.
N. Y., Dunkirk—C. F. Brooks.
N. M., Clovis—Clovis Furniture & Coffin Co.
WIS., Oshkosh—Webb's House Furnishing Co.

Jobbers and Dealers are asked not to supply any of the above named firms with our apparatus, at addresses given or any other address.

HEINEMANNISM.

N. Y., Brooklyn—Max Mandel, Prop., Gunranteo Phonograph Co.

This is the dancing season. Don't neglect the opportunity to call attention to the Phonograph as the best orchestra ever, and to the excellence of Amberol dancing Records. Explain that many Records in the Catalogue were made especially for dancing, that their tempo is precise, and that the square dance numbers are with calls.

New Grand Opera Records

Commencing with the March, 1910, list we will issue five Grand Opera Records monthly, the shipments and sales of which will be governed by the same conditions that obtain with the Domestic Records. With this schedule in operation it will be seen that our Grand Opera catalogue will soon assume such proportions as to permit of a wide choice in both selections and artists. That's what we are striving for—to equip our Dealers with all the necessary sinews for a vigorous and persistent campaign to capture the "high-class" trade.

We gave you twenty-eight new Records on December 1, ten of them by the marvel of the operatic world, Leo Slezak, and the balance by "stars" of lesser magnitude, but renowned singers all of them. The numbers that appear in the March list are a worthy supplement to that collection and may be considered a standard by which to judge what is to follow. One is by Ricardo Martin, the favorite tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House (N. Y.) staff, from the ever popular "La Tosca," in which he has scored his greatest triumph; and it is, undoubtedly, the most delightful number of the opera. The great Spanish tenor, Florene's Constantino, whom many consider equal to any of the tenors of the present day, contributes the famous "O Paradise" from "L'Africaine," a number of extreme beauty and tunefulness.

The remaining numbers are well-known selections, the offerings of artists who have received the endorsement of Metropolitan audiences and critics. Although not very well known as yet in this country, they are held in high esteem in the musical circles of their native land. Their contributions will attest to their respective abilities as well as to the wisdom of our choice in securing them for our Records. We are being guided in the choice of singers and selections for our Records by the advice of a Grand Opera expert whose reputation is second to none. This fact, together with the extreme care and attention to details that we are using in the work of recording, will insure our Dealers Records that can not be surpassed by those of any other manufacture on the market.

About the New Cut-Out List

We deem it advisable to again draw the attention of the trade to this subject in order to emphasize one or two matters in connection therewith. The first is the fact that the Records may not be returned until after February 1. Furthermore, in returning the Records all the provisions of the Continuous Exchange Proposition must be faithfully complied with; failure to do so will only retard the issuance of credit. We urge, therefore, that Jobbers and Dealers follow instructions carefully in returning their Records.

What we want to particularly impress upon the trade, however, is the fact that these Records should not be returned until every reasonable effort has been made to dispose of them. There are two reasons to urge against haste. First and most important is that these Records are active, salable numbers and are, therefore, not an encumbrance upon the trade; and the second is that the trade owes it to us to promote their sale for a reasonable length of time after February 1 before returning them. It cannot help but be recognized that in eliminating these Records from our catalogue we are incurring a heavy loss solely to accommodate the trade. That imposes an obligation upon our Jobbers and Dealers that cannot conscientiously be ignored.

A bulletin (form 1720) containing a list of these February 1st cut-outs is now being mailed to Jobbers. It has been designed to assist Dealers to work off their stocks. Dealers are urged to immediately secure copies of the bulletin and hang same in conspicuous places.

Misuse of Order Blanks

On several occasions recently we have been caused considerable perplexity by receiving from manufacturers acknowledgment of orders apparently emanating from us and covering shipments of goods to some one of our Jobbers, of which order we had not the slightest knowledge. Inquiry in each case developed the fact that the confusion arose through our Jobber having carelessly used one of our order blanks in the transaction. The manufacturer, quite naturally, accepted the order as coming from us and charged the goods to our account, thereby causing considerable annoyance to all concerned. To prevent a recurrence we are calling the matter to the attention of our Jobbers generally and ask that our blanks be not used for the placing of any orders outside of those intended for ourselves.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

TEXT:

"Two Strings To Your Bow."

NOW that you've got Slezak and the Amberola to take care of one class of your customers, and all the other styles of Phonographs and all the other Records, both Standard and Amberol, to take care of the other classes, you're equipped to take out all the profit there is in the business.

The class of customers whom you could not formerly have got within a mile of, with the ordinary styles of Phonographs, are welcoming the Amberola with open arms. And the Grand Opera lovers, from one end of the country to the other, are crowding for the Slezak Records—because Slezak has not only proven to be the drawing card at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, but has been acclaimed by the ablest musical critics of the New York newspapers as the greatest lyric tenor of all times.

That's what we mean when we say, "two strings to your bow."

Because, while the Amberola class is resting and the Grand Opera lovers are saving up to buy more Records, the good old "ragtime-coon-songs-Sousa-Herbert-monologues-sentimental ballads" crowd will still be on the job buying Phonographs of the other styles, and Standard and Amberol Records, until there's frost on the sun.

Whoever said February was a dull month didn't have the Phonograph business in mind. Did the ground hog see his shadow? Sure he did. Six weeks more of long winter evenings—there ought to be a Phonograph in every home.

Figure up all the homes in your vicinity that didn't get a Phonograph for Christmas and go after them—don't let them wait till next Christmas. Try them on the Amberola first—give everybody credit for being able to buy the Amberola. It's easy enough to swing them to the other styles if the Amberola costs more than they feel they can afford.

Do You Read the Monthly?

If you do, you are keeping in touch with the general news of the trade and are storing up practical knowledge and information which will prove a valuable asset to you at some time, either present or future, in your business. If you do not read it, you are doing yourself and your business an injustice. Furthermore, you are not treating us with the consideration we deserve. This publication represents a very considerable outlay of time, money and effort on our part, which certainly ought to merit the sacrifice of the few moments of your leisure time which the perusal of its columns would consume.

The mission of the Monthly is to disseminate among the trade, as concisely and intelligibly as possible, whatever general and special information we have to offer about our products and our policies, to confide in you our prospects and our impressions, to air our views as manufacturers and yours as distributors, to suggest and receive criticisms and opinions on all subjects of common interest,—in short, to serve as an intelligent medium for the conveyance of information and the exchange of confidences between the manufacturing and distributing branches of our business.

We aim to make the Monthly valuable and interesting from a Distributor's point of view. In its columns we explain carefully and exhaustively each new product of our manufacture, pointing out its attractive features and specifying its sales conditions. We suggest ideas for increasing the salability of our products and for their better advertising. We offer suggestions for your window display and acquaint you with the means by which to better and more effectively bring your goods before the public. We rehearse the experiences of others and the methods they have found most practical and effective in exploiting our goods. We enable you to lay your plans by giving you advance information in regard to what we are doing and propose doing.

Don't you think that all this is worthy of your appreciation, at least to the extent of scanning the pages of the Monthly twelve times a year? We think it is, and so do you if you are an intelligent, conscientious Dealer. In fact, if you are such a Dealer, you consider it worth while to read every line of literature that the Company sends out. But perhaps you are neglectful. When the Monthly arrives, you lay it to one side, intending to look at it later on—and later on you forget all about it.

If that is the case, make up your mind to correct the mistake in the future. Look for the Monthly as you would your newspaper or magazine. Read it when it comes, and if you have something of interest,—a criticism, a commendation or an experience—to offer for the benefit of your fellow Dealer, sit down and send it to us. We'll print it gladly and it is a 100 to 1 shot that it will incite worthy imitation by other Dealers. Someone may suggest exactly what you need in your business. We want to make the Monthly adapt itself in every way to the requirements of the trade. For that reason we suggest that every Jobber and every Dealer appoint himself an associate editor of this publication and offer suggestions for its improvement along those lines. Don't hesitate; send us any idea you think worth while. It will receive every consideration. We want your help in shaping the Monthly so as to minister to your needs; you can best show your appreciation of the publication by reading it and giving us the benefit of your advice. We need co-operation, and so do you; for co-operation is the synonym of success.

The New Attachment Proposition Still in Abeyance

The new Combination Attachment proposition, reference to which was made in our January number, has not as yet been launched, partly by reason of manufacturing congestion, but principally because some of our Jobbers and Dealers have neglected to send in the information requested by our Sales Manager in his letter of December 6th.

Until this information is received we shall be unable to make a definite announcement of the scheme, which we can assure the trade will be one of the most liberal propositions, from the standpoint of both trade and public, in the history of the business.

We again urge that those Dealers who have not already done so immediately advise their Jobbers of the number of attachments they are carrying in stock (on the forms provided by the Sales Department for that purpose), and that Jobbers communicate this information to the factory without further delay. We cannot emphasize this request too strongly. If the trade but realized the importance of the proposition, as well as the absolute necessity of the information called for, it would not have been necessary to reiterate the request a third time.

Are you doing anything with the Harry Lauder Records? He is on tour now. Why not a Lauder window? Good ad.

Sarah Bernhardt Secured for Our Records

Sarah Bernhardt, "The Divine Sarah," whose superior as a tragedienne the world has never seen, under exclusive contract for Edison Records! Seems almost incredible, doesn't it? It is true, however, absolutely true. "The Bernhardt" has made five Records for us, which will be placed at the disposal of the trade at an early date. They are extracts from the rôles in which she has won the homage of kings and queens and the idolatry of countless thousands in the course of her remarkable career—selections from "L'Aiglon," "Phèdre," "Cyrano de Bergerac," "La Samaritaine" and "Les Bouffons," all of which are splendidly chosen to give her the widest possible latitude for the display of her God-given talent.

What a triumph for the Phonograph! And what a tribute to the Edison Phonograph and Records! The greatest actress of all times has consented to transmit to posterity Phonographic Records of the voice that has enthralled the civilized world, bringing to worship at the shrine of its owner's art the royalty of the Old World and the wealth and genius of the New; and out of all of the types of sound-reproducing instruments from which she might have made a selection, she has chosen as the ideal instrument to record and reproduce that voice—the Edison Phonograph! Yet what more fitting than that the genius of this wonderful artist and remarkable woman should find expression in and be perpetuated through the invention of a contemporary genius, the greatest inventor of all times?

It was no child's task to secure the great actress's consent to make these Records, as may well be believed. Professional aversion to exploiting her talent in this manner had to be overcome; and it was not until the life-like fidelity of reproduction that distinguishes the Edison machine was demonstrated to her that her consent was finally won. That pecuniary considerations did not influence her choice is proven by the fact that she has been besieged for many years by representatives of other types of machines, and offered the most enticing monetary inducements for even one Record of her voice. She has consistently refused until now—not because of dissatisfaction with the terms offered (Bernhardt is an extremely rich woman), but because she did not consider that the reproducing qualities of their machines were of a character to insure perfect Records; and she was unwilling that posterity should obtain, through an imperfect Record, a wrong impression of her voice and art of expression. That was the reason for her previous determined stand against leaving a Phonographic legacy to the world, and it was by demonstrating to her that her argument lost its force when applied to the Edison Phonograph that we succeeded in securing these Records.

The Bernhardt Records ought to be advertised to the limit by every Dealer. They will sell like hot cakes among lovers of the dramatic stage. We suggest that right now every Dealer sit down and send a note to his local paper announcing the fact that these Records are forthcoming. No paper will refuse to publish the news, as everything that the immortal Bernhardt does is eagerly seized upon by the press. Advance advertising of this nature will prepare the public for the later announcement of the Records and will unquestionably swell the demand. Send your paper a note today.

Return the Old Mandrels and Main Shafts

We wish to call the attention of our Dealers to the fact that the old mandrels and main shafts, which were taken from Home and Triumph machines at the time the Combination Attachments were placed upon them, may be returned direct to the factory, with any Record Shipments that they may be making under the Exchange Proposition, or in fact with any factory shipments. This will obviate the necessity of sending the parts to the Jobbers, who in turn have to handle them in order to return them to the factory.

Our salesmen report that some Dealers are carrying these parts in stock, not knowing exactly what disposition to make of them. We suggest the above as the most convenient method for all concerned. It is understood, of course, that no credit will be allowed for the returned parts, as the question of return was taken into consideration at the time that the price was fixed on the attachments proper. As the mandrels and shafts, being of no value to the Dealer, are only in the way, the suggestion will undoubtedly be welcomed.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

Our Grand Opera Talent

We stand irrevocably committed to the promise to give our trade a Grand Opera Record catalogue worthy in every respect of the Amberola. Our distinct pledge, as we recall it, was that our catalogue would acknowledge no superior. It will undoubtedly be interesting to the trade, therefore, to be given a resume of what we have accomplished so far.

In the first place, we gave you Slezak, the sensation of the operatic world. Slezak, whose debut on the Metropolitan stage in "Otello" was the occasion of the most remarkable demonstration in the history of that famous temple of art. Slezak, whose subsequent appearances in the same rôle, as also in Aida, in Il Trovatore and in Tannhäuser, have satisfied critics, press and public that his equal as a dramatic tenor does not live and has not lived since the memorable days of the great Tamagno. In comparison with him the vocal powers of other tenors occupy the same relative position as do their physical proportions. His last appearance, as we go to press, was in Tannhäuser, on January 13th. Of his work on that occasion the New York American said:

"The Metropolitan held almost a record house last night when Tannhäuser was sung with Leo Slezak in the title rôle. It was the Bohemian tenor's first appearance in New York in German Opera, and if enthusiastic and prolonged applause mean anything then Slezak has added another success to his three great Italian impersonations. Indeed, the first act there were no fewer than seven curtain calls."

The New York Sun summarized a long and flattering review of his work in these words:

"On the whole Mr. Slezak's impersonation of Tannhäuser was notable, and it must be recorded a triumph in the first line of Wagnerian portraits in the rich gallery that belongs to the history of the Metropolitan Opera House. It aroused much enthusiasm in the audience."

The following is an extract from the Evening World's criticism:

"Slezak, who sang Tannhäuser for the first time here, received much of the outbreak of applause by his brilliant singing of the Rome narrative. * * His singing in the tournament was characterized by great reserve power and fine dramatic effect at the climax."

Of such vocal dimensions is Slezak, whom we have secured with an iron-bound contract which prevents his singing for any other firm. The Edison trade can sell his Records, undisturbed by competition, for a number of years to come.

We gave you, also, Riccardo Martin, the first great American operatic tenor; Constantino, the renowned Spanish tenor; Blanch Arral, the gifted coloratura soprano, whose advent created a furore in musical circles in this country, and Adelina Agostinelli, the Milanese soprano, at present singing in Italy, but who, from April 1st to September 1st, will be leading soprano at the Colon Theatre, Buenos Aires. M. Duclos, tenor, Louis Nucella, baritone, and Gaston Dubois, tenor,—all recognized as artists of the highest calibre in Paris—are also in our Records.

Luigi Lucenti, a noble basso, who has sung in all the Latin countries and is an especial favorite at the La Scala Theatre in Italy, contributed from his extensive repertoire to the March supplement. So did Ernesto Caronna, baritone, who is well known in Italy, France, Belgium and in the large South American cities, and who has recently been very successful in France in the opera "Iris." Ester Ferrabini, whose name is also in the March supplement, is a young artist whose career has been short, but meteoric. When Leoncavello, the composer, made his tour of the United States, Miss Ferrabini was one of the members of his troupe and was splendidly received everywhere.

In the April list is also Marguerite Sylva, the leading American prima donna, who is firmly established in the hearts of her countrymen by her successes in light and grand opera. Mme. Sylva recently left Hammerstein's and contracted with the Russell forces of Boston for appearance in some of our larger cities, which fact will lend greater value to her Records.

Among the artists with whom we have recently contracted (all our contracts are exclusive in the full sense of the word), are Maria Labia, a lyric soprano, at present appearing in Berlin, but whose work last season with the Manhattan forces, with whom she voluntarily broke her contract, won the admiration and praise of the critics.

Maria Galvany is another recent acquisition. She is a coloratura soprano who adheres closely to the style of singing made popular by Patti, Melba and Sembrich. She is a great favorite in Spain and the Latin countries, and we consider ourselves fortunate in being able to enlist her services.

Of Walter Soomer, a favorite Metropolitan baritone, who made his reappearance here on January 19th, the New York Sun said:

"Walter Soomer's return to the Metropolitan was signalized by his appearance as Telramund last evening in Lohengrin, and his personality, admirable in its dramatic puissance and its vocal quality."

From the above the trade may form an idea of what we are doing in the way of securing operatic artists. We will make an announcement of the names of some more acquisitions in the near future, which will cause something of a sensation in Phonographic circles. In the choice of artists and selections, as well as in the recording, we are guided by the advice of a noted operatic critic. Don't you think we are progressing fairly well in the work of building for you a Grand Opera catalogue inferior to none?

Foreign Records for February

The five special catalogues of Foreign Records, namely British, German, French, Spanish (including Mexican, Argentine, Portugese, Porto Rican) and Miscellaneous Languages, are now being reprinted and will shortly be ready for use.

New Records in some of these foreign languages are being issued every month and each language is wanted by some different part of the trade at all times. If a Dealer has a large demand for German Records, for instance, it seems hardly fair to make him wait for the yearly revision of the German catalogues before he may know about and be able to order German Records as they appear each month. On the other hand, if a Dealer has no demand for German Records, it cannot affect him any way if information about new monthly issues is printed each month.

Consequently, we have decided to print in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY each month a list of new Records as they are put out by or in the interest of our foreign branches. The first of these lists is given below. This list is printed simply for information. It is not intended to issue special printed matter in connection with any of the languages, for we do not want to appear as if forcing the trade to stock them. Orders for any of these Records will be filled as received and they may be placed on sale immediately.

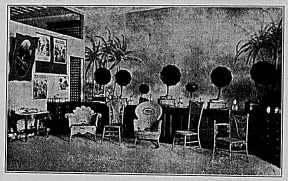
Monthly Record Reviews

We are sending out monthly with the Record bulletins a page containing three or four reviews of the Records, with the explanation that they are intended for newspaper use between the 24th and 27th of the current month. The Dealer who is doing some advertising in his local paper can get the paper to give him a complimentary insertion of one of these reviews, with his name added to it. If he is doing no display advertising it will cost him but a fraction to have one run as a paid reading notice with his name used in connection.

These reviews are being written in attractive, readable style, and we urge our Dealers to make use of them. Even as a news item they will be accepted by nine out of ten papers, and will do good general missionary work. The live Dealer, however, will pay a small sum for the privilege of attaching his name to them. Use them, by all means,—as gratuitous advertisement if possible, as a paid ad. if necessary.

Exchange Transaction in Violation of Agreement



Our attention has recently been called to the fact that some of our Dealers are disposed to accept second-hand Edison Phonographs in exchange for goods other than those of our manufacture, in a number of cases taking such machines in part payment for the products of other talking machine manufacturers. This is in direct violation of Section 6 of the Dealers' Agreement, which reads as follows:

"Exchanging, tendering or accepting Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Blanks, in whole or part payment for privileges of any character, or for advertising, or for merchandise of any description, except cash, is prohibited, and Records of other make or character is not permitted. This does not prohibit the acceptance of an Edison Phonograph at full list price, if good as new, or less cost of repairs to make it good as new, in exchange for an Edison Phonograph sold at full retail list price, but does prohibit the acceptance of second-hand Edison Phonographs or Parts, Edison Records or Edison Blanks."

This section is sufficiently clear to prevent any misunderstanding on this subject, as is the Application for Special License to sell a second-hand machine, in subscribing to which the Dealer expressly stipulates "that the machine was not obtained in whole or part payment for any goods other than Edison Phonographs." The Dealer who violates this clause of the agreement renders himself liable to proceedings, which will be promptly instituted where evidence of the violation reaches us.

Two "Live Wires" in the Trade

The above interior view represents the demonstrating room in the store of C. Frederickson, a recently established Edison Dealer of San Juan, Porto Rico, who is located in Plaza Colon, Teruan 74, Trenta al Teatro. That Mr. Frederickson is an enthusiastic Edison man and has sublime confidence in the superior excellence of Edison products was proven by the size of his initial order, which ran well up into four figures. Mr. Frederickson took up the sale of our line very enthusiastically, and has since evidenced an aggressiveness which augurs well for the success of his enterprise. There is no doubt that as a result of the intelligent effort he is making to interest the people of our island possession in Edison Phonographs and Records, success in bountiful measure will be his.

Below is shown a view of the interior arrangement of the store of C. F. Brobeil, Edison Dealer of Lytton, Iowa. The picture was taken just before Christmas when his store was adorned in its pretty holiday garb. It will be seen that while Mr. Brobeil deals in general merchandise, he considered that Edison Phonographs and Records deserved the position of prominence in his holiday display. To our mind the arrangement is both novel and pretty and suggests that Mr. Lytton possesses an eye for the artistic as well as good judgment, which latter is proven by his selection of the Edison line to approach the music-loving people of his community. Mr. Brobeil is a hustling Edison Dealer, with a record for "doing things" in the past and a generous supply of reserve energy for the future.

Decalcomania Slides Ready

We are prepared to supply lantern slides of the decalcomania illustrated above, which was especially designed for use at moving picture shows, magic lantern exhibitions, etc., in response to a general demand on the part of our Dealers. We at first contemplated reserving space for the Dealer's name and address on the slide, but abandoned it, on second thought, as it occurred to us that it would be a better plan for the Dealer to use a home-made slide of his own, either preceding or following the decalcomania on the canvas, on which he could make such announcements of prices, terms, concerts, etc., as best suited his individual wishes. These slides can be furnished either in plain black and white or in colors (the latter, of course, being the more attractive), at a price of 15c each for the former, and 90c for the latter. As can be easily imagined, the decalcomania slide makes an excellent picture on the canvas, leaving an impression that lasts. It's a winning ad.

James H. Barney, Jr., & Co., the enterprising Edison Dealers of Newport, R. I., have recently moved into a new and larger building. Mr. Barney has taken great care to give the talking machines great prominence, having five large and splendidly equipped demonstration rooms at the rear of the main floor and using more than half this floor for displaying phonographs. The piano wareroom is on the second floor and can be converted into a nice recital hall, where Edison concerts are to be given each week. The Phonograph repair department occupies a separate room. Mr. Barney reports the Phonograph business on the increase and expects far greater results in the coming months from machines equipped with Cygnet Horns, and from the Amberola.

The Utica Cycle Company, of Utica, N. Y., has changed its headquarters to 117-119 Columbia Street, same city.

The View of an Optimist

Your Mr. Womble called on me to-day with the advance list of Edison Records for December and I was so much impressed with the improvement made in the line generally since I have been selling Edison goods (three years) that I feel that there is still a great future for Phonographs. The line can be handled with success in towns of from 500 people up, or at least such has been my experience. I live in a town of about 1,000 people and have sold far more than I anticipated when I accepted the agency. In towns where there are no Dealers I would strongly recommend to prospective agents that they take the matter up at once.

J. C. Mansell,
Trinity, Tex.

The following is an extract from a letter received from Turner Brothers, Marionville, Mo., who are consistent advertisers, and keep "pegging away" all the year round:

"About two years ago we decided we wanted an Edison Phonograph. As we are in the retail grocery business, we tried to induce our furniture man and our book store man to take an agency. This they failed to do. We took the agency ourselves, but considered it only a sideline. We sold a Phonograph and a few Records occasionally. About three months ago we began to see the possibilities of the line. We began to push it, with the result that in a very short time we have sold ten Phonographs (one Triumph—no Gems) and about 500 Records. We no longer consider it a side line; in fact, we consider the Edison agency the strongest feature of our business. We are using the many suggestions in the Phonograph Monthly with excellent results. You may depend on our hearty co-operation in the future."

That's the way to talk. Keep up that spirit. There's more money in Phonographs than there is in groceries if you run your business on the right lines, as you are very evidently doing now.

The Worcester Phonograph Company, Edison Dealers in Worcester, Mass., made a novel use of form 1671, photograph of Thomas A. Edison. With the photograph pasted on a dark green background they made a unique and attractive calendar. In addition to its attractiveness, it is decidedly inexpensive. While the suggestion comes rather late for adoption by other dealers, it is an excellent example to show the novel and varied uses to which our advertising literature may be put.

Don't Relax Your Advertising

On the opposite page are reproduced two double-page ads, appearing in the big magazines and monthlies during February. Pretty nearly everybody reads at least one of the big magazines or monthlies, and it's a curious fact that the ads. are generally read first. At least the most prominent and striking are; and these ads. certainly belong in both categories. They ought to start something, don't you think? If you have the least shred of faith in advertising you don't think,—you know.

These magazine ads., however, are only a part of our advertising scheme. Our newspaper campaign embraces the entire United States and Canada in its scope. And what a campaign it is! If our Jobbers and Dealers could but realize how enormously our mail has increased since the campaign began,—could see the huge stacks of ads., clipped from papers sent us as proofs, marked and filed for reference, some conception of the magnitude of this tremendous appeal to publicity would be formed. We venture to say that the sight of this evidence alone would effect a complete regeneration in the most weak-kneed talking machine man in the country.

And it must be remembered that these embryo mountains of paper are our ads. alone. We have others sent us by Jobbers and Dealers to indicate what they are doing to supplement our work; and to the credit of the Edison trade be it said that they did nobly in the ante-holiday campaign. There were exceptions, of course,—there always are, and probably always will be—but the trade, generally speaking, did themselves proud. The result of that advertising is to be found in the reports that are heard from all parts of the country. The holiday trade was big. With many Jobbers and Dealers it was the best in the history of their business.

Now that the holidays are past there may be a disposition on the part of some to relax in their efforts. To such we want to say, don't do anything of the kind. You haven't yet realized all that is your due from that advertising; if you suspend further effort you never will. Advertising, to be effective, must be persistent. The occasional ad. causes little curiosity and carries less conviction. It is the persistent ad. that makes the impression. Phonographs and Records are not a holiday luxury. They can be sold as readily in February as in any other month of the year,—more readily than in some months.

Keep your ad. in the paper. Don't relax one iota. We are not going to, why should you? Surely you can afford to do on a small scale what we are doing on a large one, when it is vital to your interests to do so. So we say to you, go ahead with your advertising. Advertise in February as you did in December, in March as in February, and so on through the year. You may depend upon it that we will supply you with plenty of new things, well worthy of the space you are using. Advertising is the royal road to success in any business; in the Phonograph business it is not only advisable but essential.

Keep Up Your Stock—Don't be a "Piker"

The Phonograph Dealer who willfully lets his stock run down and is attempting to "pike along" with a machine or two and a few Records, has about as excellent a chance in this day of fierce competition as the proverbial snowball In Hades. The Dealer who can afford to do it has passed the acute stage in his business career when it is longer necessary to battle for an existence. Neither type will ever be accused of longevity in the Phonograph trade. That's as certain as that night follows day. The time has come when a Dealer who wants to get from his business everything there is to be had must put something into it. He has to be aggressive. He cannot be aggressive unless he is equipped with a complete stock to meet every emergency. He has got to be prepared to produce everything that his line calls for. Otherwise he places himself entirely at the mercy of his rival and is sure to experience the mortification of seeing a prospective customer go where he can be accommodated with what he wants.

The public has little or no use for a "piker," anyhow, if you have never noticed it. It's the man who does things on a decent scale who wins out. Therefore, Mr. Dealer, if you have made up your mind to worry along with a stock depleted by the holiday demand, take warning. You are running a dangerous risk of being placed in the "piker" class with disastrous effect. You ought to carry in your stock a sample or two of every Edison machine and accessory, as well as a complete and reserve stock of the entire Record catalogue. It is only by doing so that you can keep ahead of your rivals and escape the undesirable classification of a "piker," an appellation which, while inelegant, is at least expressive.

Our Double Page Ads Appearing Now in the Big Magazines and National Weeklies

Will interest millions of music lovers throughout the world. Thousands in your community will want to hear the AMBEROLA play the SLEZAK and other Amberol Records. Have you offered them that opportunity? Do so while the ads are working.

Selling the Goods

Don't get it into your heads for a minute that the Amberola is only a rich man's instrument. Just stop and consider how many people there are in your vicinity who are by no means rich, yet who have pianos in their homes. And you know as well as we do that you can't get much of a piano for $200.00.

Any one who can afford a piano can easily afford an Amberola—and many people who are now considering buying pianos will be more than glad to have the Amberola instead, and especially when you make it clear to them how much more and how much better entertainment they can get from an Amberola than they would ever get from a piano, even though some members of their family were accomplished players. Then consider the hundreds of people who can well afford a piano, but have never considered buying one because no member of their families play. Think what the possession of the Amberola means to this class.

But where you can't land a sale of the Amberola, there is always the Triumph, Standard, Home, Fireside or even the Gem to fall back upon.

Ever hear the story of Davy Crockett and the squirrel?

What—No?

Well, Davy could shoot some and one day when he was walking through the woods he saw a squirrel and at exactly the same moment the squirrel saw him.

"That you, Davy?" says the squirrel.

"Yep," says Davy.

"Don't shoot—I'll come down," says Mr. Squirrel.

There's such a thing as being the Davy Crockett of the Phonograph business.

Get a reputation for going after sales and bringing home the money and you'll find that a whole lot will come home without your having to go after it.

They say George Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac River and nobody's been able to do it since—because a dollar went farther in those days.

Whoever said it evidently forgot how far a dollar will go toward buying an Edison Phonograph.

A little, well-dressed colored man strolled into a cigar store, asked for a fine Havana, and, just as he pulled out a roll of yellow bills big enough to choke a drain pipe, from which to pay for his cigar, a big colored man about six feet eight came into the store.

"Whah'd you git all that money?" said the big man.

The little man paid no attention.

"I ast you, whah'd you git all that money?" persisted the giant. "Do you all's know who I is? Ise the town bully."

The next thing the big fellow knew he was lying flat on his back with the little fellow standing over him.

"Say, man, who is you?" said the big fellow.

"Ise the fellow you thought you was," said the little man, as he tucked his cigar in his face and strolled on his way.

The dealers down the street may "have it on you" in the way of location and floor space, but if you're on the job, you'll be able to put one over on him every now and then in the way of real salesmanship that will let him know you're the fellow he thought he was.

Abe Lincoln said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time; you can fool all the people some of the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time."

Apropos of which, the people realize that only on the Edison Phonograph, playing both Standard and Amberola Records, can they get all of the best of all kinds of music.

Of course the territory is better twenty or fifty miles from you, but you're not there—you must make good in your own little town—to cheer up.

The majority of talking machine sales don't turn up until some hustling dealer turns them up.

A talking machine dealer has facts worth telling and goods worth selling.

Watch Your Windows

Don't let your window arrangement go stale. It suggests neglect and untidiness within. A window either repels or attracts. It is an indication of what may be expected on the inside. Change your display at frequent intervals. Catch the eye of the passers-by with something new and original—and give them something to talk about. There are good suggestions for displays in the February holidays—St. Valentine's Day, Lincoln's Birthday and Washington's Birthday. St. Valentine's day offers plenty of suggestions in the way of Cupid's, hearts, etc. For the other two, if you don't happen to devise something novel, use portraits of the two patriots with "Old Glory" entwined about them—an arrangement simple and appealing. The point is, do something; don't let the opportunities pass. Use window cards, too. Here are a few suggestions which ought to help some:

On Washington's Birthday listen to "The Sword of Bunker Hill" sung by the Knickerbocker Quartette on an Edison Phonograph.

On this day "The Stars and Stripes Forever" rings out stronger and more sweetly on an Edison Phonograph.

Hear the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" Lincoln loved so well on an Edison Phonograph. Come inside and hear it.

Send her an Edison Phonograph for a Valentine.

No Valentine Party is complete without an Edison Phonograph.

Two big holidays this month. How are you going to spend them? Better have an Edison Phonograph in your home now, so if the weather is bad you won't mind it.

How Shall I Advertise the Amberola?

That's the question you will soon be revolving in your mind, Mr. Dealer, if you have not already been called upon to consider it. We are now filling the most urgent of our Dealers' orders (if any can be considered more urgent than others) and expect to soon have the trade fairly well supplied. With the prospect of soon having the most superb Phonograph that human ingenuity has yet devised in your possession, the question of advertising is decidedly apropos. While it is, of course, necessary to employ all the usual methods—newspaper ads, window display, circularizing, etc.—to give the widest possible publicity to this wonderful instrument, we are convinced that the most effective way to bring the Amberola directly before the public is by means of public concerts.

All the advertising that can be done will never give the public a true conception of the marvellous perfection of sound reproduction that is represented in the Amberola—will never convince them of its superiority among Phonographs as will the hearing of one Record played upon it. You may tell the public that you have the most musically perfect and attractively designed Phonograph on the market—and it is necessary that you should do so in the most convincing phrase you can command, and as often as possible—but you must give the public the opportunity of learning for themselves that all you say is true. In the public concert you give them that opportunity.

The O. K. Houck Piano Company, Edison Jobbers in Nashville, Tenn., are employing the concert plan on an elaborate scale, and with splendid success. Taking advantage of a protracted operatic engagement in their city they are giving concerts twice daily, at which Records of selections from the operas to be sung during the season there are played, the program being changed daily. The concerts are advertised in the daily papers and by announcements sent by mail, with which are enclosed tickets for the series and booklets containing stories of the operas to be sung. This is by far the most elaborate plan for advertising Phonographs and Operatic Records that has yet come to our notice, and we are very glad to learn that it has been successful. It proves that the public is in a receptive mood for such suggestions.

We urge our Jobbers and Dealers to follow out this plan in advertising the Amberola—elaborately if possible, modestly if necessary. The Amberola's superiority to other types of high-grade instruments is acknowledged by all who have heard it. That it represents the highest development in tonal quality and grace of design of any Phonograph on the market is generally conceded. Our Jobbers, and those Dealers who have received samples, are enthusiastic in its praise, as is evidenced by the mass of testimonials in our possession. It will prove to be its own salesman if given a proper introduction to the public, and as the best means to that end we strongly urge the concert idea.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for April, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before March 25th, 1910, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 5 A. M. on March 26th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 5 A. M. on March 27th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after March 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before March 27th. Jobbers to Dealers after March 20th, for delivery on the morning of the 27th. Jobbers are required to place orders for April Records on or before February 15th. Dealers should place April orders with Jobbers before February 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for April, 1910

393 Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna — National (London) Military Band

A descriptive overture with an extremely brilliant introduction, followed by a reposeful melody and concluding with a vigorous martial strain. One of the most popular compositions of the versatile composer, Franz Von Suppe, who has been called "The German Offenbach." His best-known works in this country are, perhaps, "Boccaccio" and the famous "Poet and Peasant Overture." This number possesses, in a marked degree, many of the distinguishing characteristics of his compositions. Publishers, Hawkes & Sons, London.

394 I'm Longing for the Old Days, Marguerite — Manuel Romain

In verses of more than ordinary poetical merit a lover is dwelling in reminiscence upon scenes of the past ere he had faded from his sweetheart's memory. His longing for the old days to return is set to a sweet, plaintive air that reminds one forcibly of the ever popular "Marguerite." The singing of birds is cleverly imitated in the accompaniment. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur J. Lamb; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

395 That Mesmerizing Mendelssohn Tune — Collins and Harlan

Here's a song that bids fair to break all records for popularity—one of the catchiest "rag" melodies ever composed. The mesmeric quality of Mendelssohn's celebrated "Spring Song" is its inspiration, and the theme of that number breaks out in spots in the song; in fact, the chorus is constructed on it. This is the kind of a "rag" that one unconsciously absorbs and finds one's self whistling or humming days afterwards. The opportunity for comedy was too good to let pass, so Collins improved it by attempting to mesmerize Harlan between verses. We predict a big sale of this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Irving Berlin; publisher, Ted Snyder, New York City.

396 Selection from "Babes in Toyland" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"Babes in Toyland" is one of the best known and most popular musical productions that Herbert ever wrote. Its numbers possess in great abundance that indefinable charm of melody which runs through all of his compositions. This arrangement includes the following numbers, recognizedly the catchiest in the opera: "March of the Toys"; Song—"Toyland"; "Floretta"; "Never Mind, Bo Peep"; "Children's Theme" and "Before and After." That the musical public will evidence its appreciation of this beautiful Record we have not the slightest doubt. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

397 Sheridan's Ride — Edgar L. Davenport

A poem that has stirred the blood and fired the ambition of patriotic young Americans from the time of its appearance. Mr. Davenport is a past master in the art of elocution, which fact he proves unmistakably in the recitation of this famous poem, whose author was the gifted Thomas Buchanan Read. The recitation is rendered the more effective by a pleasing and suitable orchestra introductory, "The Dawn of Day," and by cheers at the close, after which "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" is played. This Record ought to make a distinct appeal to popularity, both by reason of the nature of the selection and the reputation of the artist.

398 Old Jim's Christmas Hymn — Anthony and Harrison

A baritone and tenor duet of a well-known descriptive song, which, by reason of its long-continued popularity, has become almost a classic. Its simple, homely words and melody appeal direct to the heart. Although not a sacred selection, its theme is such as to merit it a place in that category. The sympathetic voices of the singers impart to it an odor of sanctity, which is intensified by the introduction of a heavy cathedral chime effect in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, William B. Gray.

399 It's a Lie — Edward M. Favor

A much misunderstood (?) individual sings of his troubles in this comic character song, which is quaint in construction, being partly declamatory and partly interrogatory in form. Querulous in the tone of his complaint and vociferous in his protestations of complete innocence, the singer describes his accusations in detail. It isn't the song; it's the singer that makes this Record so acceptable, although the original construction of the song is refreshing in itself. His novel and original style of rendition, with the peculiar inflection he lends to words and phrases, gives it an individuality all its own, and will establish its popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Sax Rohmer; music, George Rohey.

400 Cavatina from "La Favorita" — H. Benne Henton

"La Favorita," by Gaetano Donizetti, was first produced in Paris, December 2nd, 1840, and is one of his most celebrated operas. This cavatina, "O mio Fernando," is sung by Leonora in the third act of the opera and is certainly one of the gems of its many beautiful melodies. This is a special arrangement of the number as a Saxophone solo, and is well adapted as such, its charming melody showning the beautiful tone of the instrument, while the cadenza gives the performer the opportunity to display his brilliant technique. Mr. Henton's contribution to the March two-minute list (No. 10320, "Lavenue"—Waltz Caprice) will insure the ready reception of this number by the public. We doubt if more beautiful Phonograph Records were ever made than these two Saxophone solos. Arrangement, W. J. McCoy; publisher, Jean White, Boston, Mass.

401 Rastus Take Me Back — Marie Dressler

This is the Record informally announced in the March list—a selection that gives Miss Dressler splendid latitude to display her power of mimicry. A coon song—or rather, a coon monologue—for she talks it—in which a wench who acknowledges that her transgressions include gin-drinking, chicken-stealing, policy-playing, and husband-beating, pleads for re-instatement in Rastus' affections, assuring him of penitence and intended reformation. Rastus relents, and she proceeds to celebrate the occasion in his absence. The third verse and chorus tell how successfully she does it, and also prove that Marie Dressler is without a near rival in her line. This Record is unique, and as a mirth provoker cannot be surpassed. It will prove to be one of the most popular Records in our catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Hattie Starr.

402 Down in the Little Mossy Dell — Stanley and Gillette

A bit plaintive in theme, but decidedly sweet and appealing in melody, is this sentimental number, which evinces a lover's longing to greet the sweetheart of his boyhood days amid the romantic surroundings of her Southern home. To attempt to praise the rendition given this selection by these famous vocalists would be like gilding refined gold. Their voices are splendidly balanced and the Record is an example of the most perfect harmony throughout. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, C. C. Cornell; publisher, C. C. Cornell, Chattanooga, Tenn.

403 The Two Happy Darkey Boys — Golden and Hughes

Two clever artists, whose vaudeville sketches are eagerly sought and keenly enjoyed. We expect this Record to rival in popularity their famous "Bear's Oil" Record (4-minute No. 178). The jokes are new and timely and their manner of springing them inimitable. They extract a lot of fun out of the subject of matrimony, but don't confine their attention to that alone; they let of fun out of the subject of matrimony, but don't confine their attention to that alone; they manage to discuss a number of topics and get a good laugh out of every one. The Record concludes with the singing of a coon shout, "Since Ma Linah Hinda Jined de Syndicate," to a banjo accompaniment. We predict a good sale of this Record.

404 The Thunderer and The Gladiator Marches — Sousa's Band

Two Records in one again by Sousa—two of his earlier marches, and considered by many to be the best he has written. They are immense favorites in military parades because of their splendid precision and spirit. The heavier brass instruments are prominent in both selections, giving a pleasing volume to the Record. A superior Record of its kind. Publisher, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia, Pa.

405 Betsy Ross — Frederick H. Potter and Chorus

A march song possessing all the elements of tunefulness and patriotic suggestion that combined to popularize such selections as "Good Bye, Dolly Gray." The son of a soldier is protesting his love for his country and the namesake of the designer of the American Flag, and appealing to her patriotic instinct to choose July 4th as the day for their wedding bells to ring. Mr. Potter sings the number with spirit, ably assisted by a chorus in the refrain. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Barney Costello; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

406 Saved by Grace — Edison Mixed Quartette

Another of those supremely beautiful Sacred Records by our quartette, the excellence of whose work defies expression by adjectival phrases. Their Records must be heard to be appreciated. Sung with organ accompaniment, which, as always, imparts an additional touch of reverence to the selection. The harmony of this Record is superb. Words, Fanny J. Crosby; music, George C. Stebbins.

407 Lady Love — Billy Murray and Quartette

"Lady Love" is a dainty coon love song that has earned well-deserved popularity. Its words and melody it is delightfully appealing and distinctive; far superior to the majority of present-day compositions. Billy Murray sings it in a most artistic manner, bringing out all its possibilities; in fact, we think that his rendition of this song will be accepted as one of his very best efforts. In a subdued repetition of the chorus he is assisted by a male quartette, the nicely harmonized voices of the singers enhancing the tunefulness of the selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, William McKenna; music, Albert Gumble; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

408 Mia Cara Waltz — American Symphony Orchestra

Composed by Oscar Hammerstein, the well-known impresario, it was first introduced to the public at the Manhattan Opera House, New York City, in 1909, and became the waltz "hit" of that year. "Mia Cara" not only possesses those two essentials that every good waltz must have, namely, crisp rhythm and catchy melody, but what is still more important, it has that indefinable potency of popular appeal that always identifies the genuine "hit." The interpretation given it by this organization of capable artists brings out the merry optimism and gay charm of its seductive melody. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

409 My Love is Greater than the World — W. H. Thompson

Mr. Thompson's return to Edison ranks will be welcomed by the thousands of Phonograph owners who recall the pleasure his splendid baritone voice gave them a few years ago. Among his contributions at present in our catalogue are "The Rosary" (No. 8234) and "Handful of Earth from Mother's Grave" (No. 8531). The number with which he elects to make his re-appearance is a charming sentimental ballad of a high order of composition, and melodious. Mr. Thompson not only possesses a fine voice, but he knows how to use it artistically, and his enunciation is refreshingly clear. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur J. Lamb; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

410 Ludwig's Air Castle — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

The title of this sketch is derived from the description of the cottage which the amorous trombone player, Ludwig, holds out as an inducement to his "schatz" to marry him—a cottage surrounded by gastronomic comforts that would delight the heart of the most exacting Teutonic epicure. Sauerkraut vines are to climb about the porch, a big "Dill" pickle tree to grace the front yard, and a river of beer will be handy to the rear. The dialogue between Ludwig and Augustine is amusing in the extreme, and the brogue of the two artists is rich. The sketch concludes with a wooden shoe dance, and a song with a trombone accompaniment.

411 Wait for the Wagon Medley — Premier Quartette

This melody, which is sung by male voices without accompaniment, embraces the following five old and popular songs: "Wait for the Wagon"; "Nelly Was a Lady"; "The Little Brown Jug"; "Auld Lang Syne" and "Jingle Bells." In the last number a sleigh-bell effect is introduced to good advantage. The harmonization of this selection is exceptionally well balanced, the words are distinct and the singing shows spirit and precision.

412 A Day at West Point — New York Military Band

This descriptive fantasy is one of the greatest military medleys ever compiled. It is a prime favorite with all the best bands and orchestras, and is always a big "hit" wherever performed. The following is a synopsis of the action of the piece: 6 a. m.—reveille; drum assembly; sunrise gun; adjutants' call; dress parade, introducing fife and drum corps and band; assembly of buglers; boots and saddles; cavalry drill; salute to the colors; national anthem; West Point yell—"Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! West Point, West Point! Army!"; taps; "Auld Lang Syne," which is played by the brass, while "Garry Owen" and "Dixie," as counter melodies, in the form of variations, are played by the reed instruments; finale, "Yankee Doodle." Composer, Then. Bendix.

Edison Amberol Record in Hebrew

10002 Ich Benk A Heim (Friedsell) — Sadie Rosenthal

From the Hebrew musical play, "The Jewish Soul," performed last season with great success at the Jewish Theatre in New York City.

Edison Standard Records for April, 1910

10335 Dixieland — Sousa's Band

A characteristic march constructed on the well-known Southern melodies, "Dixie" and "Old Black Joe," the tunefulness of whose strains has made them universal favorites. Could more inspiring selections be arranged for a march than "Dixie," the merriest, jolliest and most infectious of all airs, and "Old Black Joe," plaintive and impressive? Or could they be interpreted by more capable bands than the peerless Sousa and his superb organization? Composer, Chauncey Haines; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10336 I'd Rather Say "Hello" Than Say "Good Bye" — Manuel Romain

This song is somewhat of a departure from the usual style of Romain's contributions to our Records, the air being brisk and spirited, although the selection is sentimental in character. It is none the less appealing, however; in fact, the change is somewhat welcome, his Records in the past having been confined to one class of selections perhaps rather closely. This number has a very pretty march refrain which chimes in well with the cheery type of the verses. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

10337 Zoo Loo — Collins and Harlan

The title betrays the character of the selection—a typical "jungle" duet, with plenty of jungle effects, such as the whining of jackals and the crying of hyenas. The second verse shifts the scene to Central Park, where "Zoo Loo" transfers her affections to an awakened "zopper." This serves to introduce some Central Park Zoo effects. The air of this song is sprightly, and the rendition in the usual clever style of these artists. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Harry Williams; music, Egbert Van Alstyne; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10338 To a Wild Rose — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This dainty and melodious composition is the favorite number of Edward MacDowell's well-known "Woodland Sketches," op. 51, for piano. Mr. Herbert has arranged this popular piece for strings only, and the Record proves the arrangement to be a most delicate and charming musical setting. An exquisite Record in all the essentials of engaging tunefulness, artistic interpretation and perfect recording.

10339 Before I Go and Marry I Will Have a Word With You — Ada Jones

A dainty song of the serio-comic type, which relates how a jealous little maiden detects her sweetheart flirting with a rival. Reproached for his disloyalty, he reassures her with this refrain:

"I may take a walk with Molly,
I may smile at pretty May,
I may take a talk with Molly,
Or with Polly, or even Fay.
But before I go and marry,
I will have a talk with you."

Miss Jones sings this number charmingly, and it is safe to venture the prediction that the Record will enjoy a big sale. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Irving Berlin; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York City.

10340 Blest Be the Tie That Binds — Anthony and Harrison

A selection that will be greatly appreciated by collectors of sacred Records. It will fail to be impressed by the artistic manner in which the popular hymn is sung by these renowned duettists. A Record that will grace any collection and compare favorably with any precious efforts of these singers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Rev. John Faucett; music, H. G. Nageli.

10341 Come After Breakfast — Edward Meeker

Jasper informs Mandy Lou that he is going to call on her, which elicits the invitation from her to "Come after breakfast, bring your lunch and stay till suppertime." She extends the same invitation later on to the W. C. T. U., when notified of an intended official visit. A rollicking coon song of the type that Mr. Meeker is so successful with. Despite the fact that his selections are almost always difficult of rendition, because they must be sung rapidly, his enunciation is invariably perfect. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Brymn, Smith & Burris; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10342 The Despatch Rider — Alexander Prince

A concertina solo of a particularly lively and captivating number in the rendition of which the player's wonderful mastery over his instrument is fully manifested. The clearness of tone, the neatness of the runs—each note standing out distinctly—and his splendid work in the sustained passages, makes this Record a most desirable addition to our catalog. Composer, Ellenberg.

10343 Uncle Josh in a Chinese Laundry — Cal Stewart

Uncle Josh gets "in wrong" again—this time with a "heathen Chinee," who refuses to produce Uncle Josh's shirts unless the latter tenders his laundry check. Uncle Josh doesn't understand what "John" is driving at, and anyhow he hasn't the check, having sold it under the impression that it was a lottery ticket; but he gets the shirts—or at least, some shirts—and manages to use the "Chink" up pretty badly in the operation, which very evidently was not altogether unpleasant as far as our inimitable "Uncle" was concerned. His recital of the melee, in which he imitates the excited Chinaman, is uproariously funny.

10344 The Belle of the Barbers' Ball — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A song that proved a "hit" with the Cohan & Harris Minstrels, in which it was sung by Julian Eltinge, the well-known female impersonator. It is here rendered as a conversational duet, to which style of rendition the composition of the number readily lends itself. The air is especially pleasing, like all of Geo. Cohan's compositions, and the rendition, needless to say, leaves nothing more to be desired. Words and music, Geo. M. Cohan; publishers, Cohan & Harris Publishing Co., New York City.

*This selection will be illustrated on cover of April Phonogram.

10345 How Can They Tell I'm Irish? — Edward M. Favor

A gentleman of unmistakable Milesian ancestry, fresh from the "ould sod," is perplexed by the fact that he is unable to escape a classification evidently obnoxious to him; and this despite the fact that he has changed his name from Gilligan to Brown, and adopted other similar disguises (?), which he proceeds to enumerate. Favor's rendition of this number is humorous in the extreme, he employing numerous little inflections and voice shadings which prove especially effective. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, C. W. Murphy; publishers, T. H. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

10346 Cloud-Chief — American Symphony Orchestra

A characteristic number of the popular "Indian style" of composition, in which there are novel instrumental plays, war whoops, beating of tom-toms, etc., to secure the desired effect. Aside from the novelty of the selection it has an agreeable air that would recommend it, even though it were stripped of its embellishments. If it were necessary to do so we would speak a word of praise for the interpretation, but why anticipate what every one naturally expects from this capable organization? Composer, J. Ernest Phillie; publisher, Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

10347 Can't You See? — Byron G. Harlan

A refreshing little waltz song with a peculiarly infectious air that has carried it along to popularity. Just now this song is being sung and whistled everywhere. We have put it on the list in response to numerous requests, and expect it to be a pronounced favorite with the Phonograph public. Mr. Harlan sings the number with all a boy lover's fervor, bringing out the full charm of the selection. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Albert Gumble; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10348 A Coon Wedding in Southern Georgia — Peerless Quartette

At the beginning of the sketch, wedding bells are heard, then follow the comments of the crowd on the bride and groom's appearance, and "Hear Dem Bells," sung by the choir. After the parson (Arthur Collins) in sepulchral tones requests "de unfortunate palsies goin' to participate in de catastrophe to step before de congregashun" and "denounces" them as man and wife, exacting a vociferous kiss from the bride, the collection is announced by Deacon Jones (Frank Stanley), who precedes it with explicit instructions as to the character of donations that will be acceptable, and the congregation joins in "Hail, Jerusalem, Hail!" The description gives only a vague idea of the nature of this Record—it's a laugh from beginning to end.

10349 Miss Liberty March — New York Military Band

One of the best band Records it has been our good fortune to list in a long time. A rousing march of unusual volume, played with snap and brilliancy. Better than some and equal to the best Band Records in the Catalogue. Composer, Jos. M. Daly; publishers, Daly Music Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.

Edison Standard Record in Hebrew

21015 Die Toire (Friedsell) — Sadie Rosenthal

From "The Jewish Soul," a successful musical play. Miss Rosenthal's voice is a soprano of excellent quality. She is a favorite at Hebrew concerts and vaudeville theatres in New York.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

B-183 Freischütz—Grand Air d'Agathe (Weber). Orchestra Accompaniment. (Sung in French) — Marguerite Sylva

The "grand air d'Agathe" is too well known as a concert number to require any further praise. In this wonderful aria, beginning with a melody full of prayer, hope and tender longings, and ending with an outburst of rapture at the approach of the beloved one, the leitmotif, probably used as such for the first time in the history of opera by Weber, finds its fullest expression. Mme. Sylva gives this exquisite number all the needed artistic treatment and justifies her great reputation as the leading American prima donna. This Record, as also others to follow, will prove a constant source of delight.

B-184 Carmen—Romance de la fleur (Bizet). Orchestra Accompaniment. (Sung in French) — Florencio Constantino

Carmen, before her escape by the aid of Don José, has thrown him a flower, which he picks up and retains during his imprisonment. Later, when Carmen, upon her meeting with Don José, at the inn, tells him that he does not love her, he sings this famous aria, in which is so plainly told the battle of his soul. Once blessing, then cursing the fate which caused Carmen to cross avovwal: Carmen, I love you.

B-185 Romeo et Juliette—Valse (Gounod). Orchestra Accompaniment. (Sung in French) — Blanche Arral

This waltz, which is deservedly as popular as Gounod's jewel song in Faust, is sung by Juliette in expression of the happiness of her life unmarred by the feuds then existing in full among some of the noble families, and she asks that her fairy dreams may remain undisturbed, and with it her pleasure in life. Mme. Arral sings this number in exquisite taste and style.

B-186 Hamlet—Brindisi (Thomas). Orchestra Accompaniment. (Sung in Italian) — Ernesto Caronna

Hamlet, after having arranged with the invited actors to rehearse before the Queen, King and Court, the murder scene, invites them to be merry, orders the wine and himself joins in the merrymaking, singing the praises of wine. This aria is a great show piece for baritones, and Mr. Caronna does full justice to the score.

B-187 Tannhauser—Blick ich umher (Wagner). Orchestra Accompaniment. (Sung in German) — Walter Soomer

At the reunion of the noble bards, Wolfram, in greeting, compares the noblemen, bold and wise, to a forest of fresh and green oaks, and the ladies to a multiflowered wreath. Then, singing to his one star, Elizabeth, he pours forth his beautiful, idealistic love, his adoration. This is one of the most poetic numbers of this poetic opera.

J. W. Scott Appointed Special Travelling Representative

The many friends among the trade of J. W. Scott, who is perhaps better known by the affectionate sobriquet of "Scotty," will be delighted to hear of his appointment to the post of special travelling representative. By this appointment, which comes in the nature of a well-deserved promotion, Mr. Scott's territory is made to cover the entire country in special assignments. His first assignment included Birmingham, Mobile and some of the other large cities of the South. Despite his far from gigantic proportions, "Scotty" has a manner of making himself seen and heard, which undoubtedly has already been recognized by our Southern friends.

Changes in Salesmen's Territories

The following changes in territorial assignment of our travelling staff went into effect on a recent date:

J. H. Altgaler will hereafter travel the Southern half of Illinois in addition to Missouri.

J. H. Gill will hereafter travel Central and Western New York instead of California, Arizona, and New Mexico.

F. L. Hough will hereafter travel North and South Dakota in addition to Minnesota.

A. A. Keeler will hereafter report on Kansas City, Mo., in addition to the Iowa cities.

F. H. Stewart, formerly travelling Louisiana and Mississippi, has been transferred to the Edison Manufacturing Company's Kinetograph Department.

Personal

On January 22nd, Walter Stevens, Manager of our Foreign Department, sailed for a journey of three months in South American countries. He will visit all the chief cities on the East Coast, including Para, Rio de Janeiro and other ports in Brazil, Montevideo, Paraguay, but most of his time will be spent in looking after our interests in Buenos Aires and the Argentine Republic.

From there he will sail through the Straits of Magellan and stop at Punta Arenas and Chile, the southernmost city in the world. This will be the turning point of his journey. It will be Mr. Stevens' first trip to South America and for that reason will be particularly interesting.

Advertising Manager L. C. McChesney was in attendance at the National Convention of the Association of American Advertising Managers held at the Waldorf Astoria, New York City, on January 20th. Immediately after the Convention he left on a short trip to Buffalo, N. Y., and Cleveland, Ohio, in the interests of the Company.

Mr. Edison Off for the South

Accompanied by his family and a number of chemists, experimenters and mechanics, Thomas A. Edison left on February 1st on his annual visit to his winter home at Fort Myers, Fla. He expects to spend the next two months there, alternating his time between work in his laboratory and tarpon fishing, of which he is very fond. To what extent he will permit the sport to encroach upon the claims of his experimental work the trade is invited to judge.

Transportation Charges on Defective Machines

We have received some requests from Jobbers to stand transportation charges on machines which they have shipped to their Dealers and which have proven to be imperfect, either through a broken main spring or through the machine having been damaged, possibly in transit. Invariably the Dealer has made claim for the transportation charges covering the return of the machine upon the Jobber, who in turn has made a counter-claim upon us.

So that our position on this subject may be thoroughly understood in the future, we wish to say that we are always willing to replace a broken part or any parts which appear to be imperfect through manufacturing causes; at which point we feel that our duty as manufacturers rests. We are not willing to stand transportation charges, partly because nine times out of ten there is no necessity of the machine being returned, but principally because of the abuse to which such a concession would tend. For these reasons it was necessary to make a rule, general and absolute, and we feel that reflection will convince the trade of the necessity and fairness of our decision.

Correction

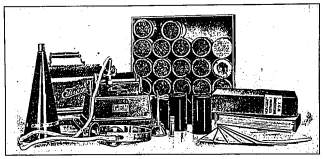
In all of the literature we have put out on the Edison Idella Phonograph with Cygnet Horn equipment the width of the bell horn has been given as 24 inches. It remained for a purchaser up in Canada to discover that the bell is 21½ inches wide. How this misstatement occurred no one seems to be able to tell. However, we admit the error and will thank the trade to explain that the 24 inch width is an error if the subject comes up in connection with the sale of any of these equipments.

Among the Jobbers

M. W. Waitt & Company, of Vancouver, B. C., were out before Christmas with a very pretty card of holiday greetings, which were conveyed in verse above a design representing a switch-back railroad with a train bearing the message to an Edison Phonograph, shown on the horizon as a rising sun. A novel and striking design. On the opposite page was the following verse, the composition of their Mr. J. W. Bowes:

"Emblazoned on the scroll of Fame,
Dazzling bright, there glows a name,
Inventive Genius, Wizard, Seer,
Since time began thou hast no peer.
On history's page there shines out one
Name among names,—'Tis EDISON."

The Standard Talking Machine Company of Pittsburg, Pa., have for some time been furnishing Dealers with a specially prepared letter, which they recommend sending out with the monthly list of new Records as a personal letter, mailing same under a two-cent stamp. A sample copy recently sent us is delightfully personal in tone, and bright and cheery throughout, with comments on the weather, the attraction of the home on cold winter evenings and other small talk in a similar vein, all leading up to the desirability of the new Records to complete the picture of home comforts which the letter draws. The letter cannot fail to be read throughout because of its personal appearance and tone, and for that reason will certainly produce results where the old method of mailing the supplements will fail.



This special personal letter is a splendid idea which ought to be adopted extensively.

With the first Amberol Grand Opera list the Penn Phonograph Company, of Philadelphia, sent out a letter to their Dealers which was stimulating in tone, and hit the nail right on the head. In it they took occasion to urge the sale of Amberol Attachments in connection with the new Records. We trust that their Dealers imbibed some of the spirit of the letter and followed the suggestions it embodied.

Delayed mention is made of the splendid exhibit made by W. G. Walz & Company, El Paso, Texas, at a County Fair held there from Nov. 1-7, 1909. The exhibit, which occupied three large booths, was a most comprehensive display of samples of the various kinds of Phonographs and musical merchandise their stock embraces. Edison Phonographs and Records, needless to say, occupied the position of prominence.

This is the New I.C.S. $35 Language Outfit

One firm has ordered 300 outfits. Another firm sold outfits 24 hours after their receipt. They are ordering them all along the line wherever the outfits are shown. Why? Because they are sellers; they are profit makers; and they cater to a field that will quickly appreciate and purchase them.

This outfit provides the very best method for teaching foreign languages in the world; a method that is indorsed by professors of the leading colleges and by the French, German, Spanish, and Italian Embassies in the United States. It teaches French, German, Spanish, and Italian to English-speaking people and teaches English to foreigners.

The I. C. S. outfit consists of an Edison Gem Phonograph made especially for language work, small horn, head-band hearing tube, oil can, and 25 conversational records teaching pronunciation that is guaranteed to be absolutely correct with native intonation and inflection. Accompanying these conversational records, there are pamphlet instruction papers teaching the theory of the language.

Not only is this the most complete and by far the best language outfit on the market, but it is the cheapest, as it sells for only $35. If you are alive to your best business interests, you will write today for further particulars—for the sake of increased business write us today.

Vol. VIII. MARCH, 1910 No. 3

A False Rumor Nailed

A newspaper item, which received its inspiration from a transaction involving the sale of some shares of stock in one of the Phonograph Companies in which Mr. Edison is the controlling factor, appeared recently in the columns of several of the metropolitan dailies and was copied extensively throughout the country. The article was so misleading in character that President Dyer, fearing that its misconstruction would work injury to the Phonograph industry, prepared a statement which will appear in the trade papers and those newspapers throughout the country that are carrying our advertising. We suggest that the trade supplement this, in every city in which the article referred to made its appearance, by giving President Dyer's statement to the local press as a news item. The statement follows:

"My attention has been called to a recent article in a New York daily newspaper which has been widely copied, and wherein it stated that the future of the Phonograph was not very bright. This article is entirely misleading and does not accord in any way with the views of myself or anyone connected with the Edison Companies. The future of the Phonograph was never so bright as at the present time; in fact, I feel that the surface has hardly been scratched. Orders are coming in so rapidly at the present time that we are not able to fill them promptly and the sales are entirely satisfactory. The fact that we are just starting in with the Amberola and a full line of Grand Opera Records is certainly an indication that so far as we are concerned the future does not have to be questioned. If any one of us had the slightest doubt as to the future of the business, why should we be spending hundreds of thousands of dollars each year in advertising and a corresponding amount in the development of new lines and in experimental work?

"In connection with the very article under consideration it is interesting to inquire why, if Mr. Edison has any doubt as to the future of the business, he should be willing to spend $155,000.00 in cash to acquire a minority stock interest? The whole transaction was simply this, that in the early days of the Phonograph business this particular minority block of stock of the Edison Phonograph Works was acquired by outside interest, and was later put up as collateral to secure the issue of bonds of another independent company (not controlled by Mr. Edison) having rights in certain foreign countries, and on which the interest payments were defaulted. These bondholders were anxious to realize something from their investment and Mr. Edison was willing to buy the stock, so that the transaction was consummated.

"The Edison Phonograph Works, as persons familiar with the business know, is a separate company located at Orange and engaged only in the manufacture of machines, which are turned over to and are distributed by the National Phonograph Company. The National Company manufactures all Edison records and sells directly to the trade. The National Company in assets, prosperity and amount of business done is immeasurably larger than the Edison Phonograph Works.

"The purchase of this stock by Mr. Edison was a personal matter and has no direct bearing on the future of the Phonograph business, other than showing his confidence and a desire to withdraw the stock from litigation."

February At the Factory

There was very little evidence of the oft-quoted post-holiday "slump" at the factory during the month of February. The merry hum of industry was heard uninterruptedly from 7 A. M. on Monday until midnight on Saturday throughout the month, and the indications are that it will be necessary to employ equally as large a night force during the month of March. The demand for all types of machines has been unusually good for this time of the year, due in part to the holiday depletion, but in greater measure to judicious advertising.

Special Record Proposition

As explained in letter of Sales Department dated February 1, we propose hereafter to advance the selling date by one month on such Records in the regular monthly lists as are unusually popular or give evidence of becoming popular "hits." These Records, designated as "Special Records," will be shipped with the previous month's list, accompanied by all necessary printed matter, and will go on sale at the same time as the Records in the previous month's list. This plan, which was inaugurated with the May list, is in response to a long-existing demand of the trade that they be placed in a position to realize upon a Record while the song or instrumental selection which it represents is at the height of its popularity. Our solution of the problem is considered a move in the right direction and is receiving the enforsement of prominent Jobbers and Dealers.

Quite naturally the question will be asked, how is the Company to know what selections will or will not prove "hits?" The answer is that the Company receives first-hand information as to the selections upon which the big music publishing houres intend to spend unusual sums in advertising. From the same source we learn how extensively a selection is to be featured by prominent concert and vaudeville artists. Such information, it will be conceded, is invaluable, but even fortified with this it is not our intention to feature a selection in this manner until we are satisfied from the attitude of the public toward it that it is assured of emphatic popularity.

"By the Light of the Silvery Moon" and "The Cubanola Glide," the first of these special Records, are songs that possess all the elements which make for a long continued popularity, and we are satisfied that their selection will demonstrate that the trade may safely rely upon our discretion in the choice of special Records. We doubt if better selections could have been made by us for the purpose of testing the plan which, of course, is more or less an experiment, its continuance or discontinuance depending upon its reception by the trade.

To successfully carry out the plan it is necessary that Dealers immediately place standing orders with their Jobbers for these Special Records, designating at the same time whether or not a second shipment of the Records is to be made with the regular monthly list. It must be understood that it is not our intention to offer such Records every month. We will do so only at such times as we consider the selection of sufficient merit to warrant such action.

New Attachment Proposition Still in Abeyance

Because of manufacturing congestion we have been compelled to postpone announcement of the nature and plan of the Amberol Attachment proposition, which we had originally figured on giving to the trade not later than March 1st. Our Record Moulding plant is now being taxed to its utmost capacity day and night to take care of the regular output, so that it has been absolutely impossible to make the necessary preparations for the abnormal demand which is bound to follow the introduction of the proposition. It is our intention before launching the proposition to fortify ourselves with an immense reserve stock of Amberol Records so that we may experience no embarrassment in filling orders as they are received. To increase our Record output and thereby expedite matters we are installing additional moulding apparatus in our Record plant, which will be very soon in operation.

We are confident that this attachment proposition is going to awaken tremendous interest among trade and public as soon as its conditions are explained and advertised. As we have stated before, it is without doubt the most liberal proposition in the talking-machine line that has ever been given to the trade and public. Once it gets under way we predict that the demand for the Amberol Records will be unprecedented in the history of the Phonograph business. We deem it wise, therefore, to take all possible precautions at this time in order that we may be able to satisfactorily carry out our end of the proposition when the rush begins.

It is doubtful now if we will be in a position to make a definite announcement of the plan before April 1.

Exchange Proposition Again

Despite the exhaustive manner in which the requirements of the Continuous Exchange Proposition have several times been explained in these columns we continue to receive requests for information in regard to same. For the benefit of those of the trade to whom the matter is not yet clear, we repeat that defective Records (meaning those only which are defective from manufacturing causes) may be returned at any time, and that cut-out Records may be returned at any time after the date on which they are to be omitted from the catalogue. This, of course, applies to the Records which were dropped on February 1, but which still appear in the catalogue.

Lauder Still An Edison Artist

THE statements made broadcast by a competing company that it has an exclusive contract with Harry Lauder and that the latter will hereafter make Records for no other company are incorrect and without foundation.

The National Phonograph Company has a contract with Mr. Lauder by which the latter agrees to make Records for it until April 10, 1912, of all songs he has produced or may produce up to that time.

The company claiming exclusive services of Mr. Lauder has admitted to this company the incorrectness of its claims and has promised to make a retraction that shall have the same publicity as its original statements. The latter appeared in trade papers, newspapers and several forms of printed matter.

Folders and hangers issued by the company in question, and claiming the exclusive services of Mr. Lauder, should not be circulated or exhibited by Edison Dealers, for to do so will be unfair to our interests and be taking part in an attempt to injure the sale of Edison goods.

Harry Lauder has already made eighteen two-minute and five four-minute Records for the National Phonograph Company. Shortly after his return to England (he sailed the latter part of last month), he will record several more selections for us, which will shortly be placed on sale in this country.

We suggest that Edison Jobbers and Dealers everywhere publish the fact that Mr. Lauder will continue to make Records for the Edison Phonograph, thus supplementing the retraction referred to above.

New Grand Opera Talent

To the group of brilliant artists who are now contributing of their repertoire to the catalogue of Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records the May list adds two whose names are known well and favorably to every grand opera enthusiast in the world. Carmen Melis and Gustave Huberdeau are artistes of such prominence and high standing in the realm of grand opera that reference to their respective careers and attainments must seem worse than superfluous to the patrons of that particular form of entertainment.

Carmen Melis, the present star of the Manhattan Opera House, is one of the brightest luminaries in the operatic constellation to-day. Born in Sardinia of an old and patriotic family, she reflects in the intensity of her acting and singing the true Italian temperament. She has been in opera only a trifle over four years, yet in that short time she has achieved wonderful success. Her first appearance on the operatic stage was made in Italy in 1905 when she sang the title rôle in "Tosca." Since that time she has traveled all over Europe, and by her extraordinary talent in a very large repertoire has proven herself nothing short of a sensation. The large opera houses of Rome, Venice, Naples, Turin, Genova, Cairo, Warsaw and Odessa have been the scenes of veritable triumphs. At the Costanzi of Rome she created the part of Thais. Her repertoire includes the modern Italian operas such as "Madame Butterfly," "Tosca," "Boheme," "Manori," "Pagliacci," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Iris," "Andrea," "Chenier," "Zaza," "Fedora" and older ones such as "Otello," "Mefistofele," "Aida," "Faust," etc. She is an actress of extraordinary natural gifts, combining beauty of face and grace of carriage with the ability to interpret emotion, gay or stressful, with amazing truth and sincerity. As a singer her voice is full of warmth and color, clear, resonant, lovely in quality and fluent in delivery. Her instructors were Jean de Reszke, Tiberini, Tresura Singer and Castelfranco Cesare. We feel that we have achieved a signal triumph in securing exclusively for Edison Records only so distinguished an operatic singer as Mme. Carmen Melis.

Gustave Huberdeau is also one of the prominent singers of the Manhattan Opera staff, and probably his services are requisitioned more frequently than any other one of Hammerstein's singers because of his extensive repertoire. He sings first bass in all the French and Italian Operas, and by his magnificent voice and artistic work has won high favor with the New York operatic public. He is a laureate of the Conservatory, and for ten years, from 1898 on, was leading bass of the Opera Comique in Paris, where he sang with great success all the bass rôles of the repertoire and also created numerous parts. For a season after leaving the Opera Comique he sang brilliantly at the Concert Colonne. Huberdeau is a singer whose name will add prestige to any catalog, and we flatter ourselves that we have chosen wisely in securing him for our Records.

These two splendid artists, whose names will add weight and dignity to any collection, bring to our catalogue choice offerings, worthy in every respect of their fellows and predecessors and bound to win the appreciation of the music loving public.

Slezak Records Big Sellers—His Latest Triumphs

Of the Grand Opera Amberol Records that have already been placed on sale those made by Leo Slezak, as was to be expected, have proven the most popular. The demand on the heaviest for the celebrated "Morte di Otello" and "Ora E per Sempre" from "Otello," undoubtedly because of the fact that it was in "Otello" that he scored his first and so far greatest success in this country. His "Celeste Aida" and "Morir Si Pura E Bella Terra" from "Aida" are pressing them closely for honors, however, and since he sang "Tannhäuser" on January 19, the demand has been big for his "Loblied der Venus" Record, which is considered by many the most brilliant of the ten that he has contributed so far to the catalogue.

Of his performance on that occasion the following extracts from New York press criticism are of more than ordinary interest for the reason that "Tannhäuser" is one Slezak's favorite operas. The Sun spoke as follows:

"Wagner's 'Tannhäusser' was sung at the Metropolitan Opera House last night. There is nothing new as a rule in a performance of this familiar but much misunderstood work, dramatically the greatest of Wagner's great creations. Yet last night there was something new, and it was more than a matter of mere record. Leo Slezak sang the title rôle for the first time here, and for the first time was heard in one of those German parts which gained him fame in Vienna. It is quite safe to say that he took a little more care with his vocal treatment of the rôle than he used to at the Imperial Opera of Austria, and it is undeniable that he has learned something about pure singing since he escaped from wholly Teutonic influence.

SLEZAK AS RHADAMES IN "AIDA"

CARMEN MELIS, SOPRANO

GUSTAVE HUBERDAU, BASS

"But he brought with him to last night's representation that profound love of Wagner's work and that beautiful devotion to high dramatic ideals which are displayed mostly by singers of Teutonic training. When these are coupled with splendor of voice, skill in tone production, clear enunciation and temperament admirable and moving results may be expected.

"Mr. Slezak sang with a wide variety of expression and with many fine and significant details. For example, his second delivery of the hymn in praise of Venus was taken at a quicker tempo than the first, thus conveying the idea of the sudden stress of emotion under which the repetition was made. The exquisitely developed diminuendo in the chromatic passage of the prayer after the departure of the pilgrims in the first act was paired with a beauty of tonal color and of emotion. His exclamation, 'Zu ihr, zu ihr,' instead of being hurled out like a challenge, was sung with melting tenderness.

"These are but a few of the artistic touches he put into his treatment of the music. His delivery as a whole was characterized by nobility of tone and style. His conception of the part was compellingly human as the drama itself is. His bearing was excellent and his gesture graphically broad. His costumes were good, but not as good as some others he has worn. However, those of last night were a remnant of days in Vienna.

"On the whole Mr. Slezak's impersonation of Tannhäuser was notable and it must be accorded a place on the first line of Wagnerian portraits in the rich gallery that belongs to the history of the Metropolitan Opera House. It aroused much enthusiasm in the audience."

The New York Herald's criticism was as follows:

"Mr. Leo Slezak for the first time in the Metropolitan Opera House sang the title rôle in "Tannhäuser" last night and received an ovation from one of the largest audiences of the season.

"After the first act there were half a dozen recalls for the giant tenor, who brought Mme. Fremstad, the Venus, out with him. But after the tournament scene in the Wartburg the audience broke into cheers that continued until the artists were tired of coming back and quiet was lost of the recalls. It had been hard to repress outbursts of applause during the whole act.

"That the applause was chiefly for the tenor was clear when he finally came out alone and the demonstration redoubled in vigor. Upon most of the recalls Mr. Slezak brought with him Mme. Gadski, the Elisabeth, and even Mr. Herrz, the conductor, made his appearance on the stage."

The Evening World contributed the following:

"A notably fine performance of "Tannhäuser" was given at the Metropolitan Opera House last night before a large audience that broke into frequent applause in the middle of scenes, quite against Wagnerian tradition.

"Slezak, who sang Tannhäuser for the first time here, caused most of the outbreaks by his brilliant rendition of the part. His commanding and dramatic presence and his general romantic aspect, together with his vocal gifts, made his Tannhäuser an unusual one. It was a particular pleasure to be able to understand every word he uttered, his German diction being unusually fine and his manners delicate and refreshing, where often in Wagnerian opera they are scorned for louder effects. His singing in the tournament was characterized by great reserve power and fine dramatic effect at the climax. His narrative to Wolfram of his journey to Rome was sung with genuine pathos and acted with convincing sincerity."

This makes four great successes for Slezak since he came to this country, his previous ones being his three great Italian impersonations—Otello in "Otello," Radames in "Aïda" and Manrico in "Il Trovatore." He has also captured a light opera, "Strodella," in which he sang on February 4th and, as the New York Herald said, "proved that in light, lyric rôles he was as much at his artistic ease as he is in heavy dramatic ones, singing beautifully and acting well."

Since our contract with Slezak is exclusive for Edison Records only, covers a goodly number of years and includes his entire French and Italian repertoire as well as all songs used by him in his American appearances, and since his contract with the Metropolitan forces has been extended for two more years, it follows that the Edison trade have in Slezak alone an enormous asset. His Records are popular now, and daily the demand for them is growing. What will they be in a year from now when he is more firmly established with the American public, for, as The New York Sun truthfully says "This singer, who seems destined to attain the very first place among musical dramatic artists, is the natural successor of Jean de Reszke. Slezak is but coming to his prime. The future is all before him. He will leave his mark deep in New York musical history."

Sarah Bernhardt Coming

Announcement has been made of the fact that Sarah Bernhardt contemplates a tour of the principal cities in the United States, Canada and Mexico, beginning in November, probably in Chicago. This will be Mlle. Bernhardt's first appearance in this country in five years, and the announcement has already excited a great deal of interest among the theatrical public. She will appear in several new plays and many of her old repertoire, which means that most of the plays from which she has made selections for Edison Records will undoubtedly be presented. We suggest that Dealers everywhere give to their local press the information that Bernhardt is coming and that she has made five Records for the Edison Phonograph.

Amberola Causes Trouble.

The trouble, however, is confined to the fact that we are unable to supply the demand. Handicapped as we were by reason of the inability of our cabinet manufacturers to meet our requirements we have struggled with the heavy initial orders until now, with an improved schedule, they promise to be soon taken care of. The improvement in the cabinet schedule and in our own machine production has had no perceptible effect upon the grand total of unfilled orders, however, for every mail brings us its quota of new orders which more than compensate for those we are able to fill.

The Amberola has made the biggest kind of a hit with the Edison trade and public, as the volume of new orders and the mass of testimonials from pleased purchasers prove. That we struck a popular chord when we placed before the public a high-grade Phonograph with the stamp of Edison guarantee upon it is very evident.

We are doing everything in our power to improve the schedule of shipments. Our machine production is in a most satisfactory condition, but our cabinet manufacturers are unable as yet to keep pace with the factory in supplying cabinets for the machines. They hold out plenty of encouragement, however, so that the patience of our Dealers, which it must be admitted has been sorely taxed by the delay in filling their orders, promises to be very soon rewarded. We cannot praise in too warm terms the splendid attitude of our Jobbers and Dealers, who have waited patiently and uncomplainingly for us to supply them with Amberolas which had been ordered by them three months and more back. It is only another example of the feeling of mutual confidence that exists between the respective branches of the Edison trade.

Record No. 2613 by Ruby Brooks Wanted

The A. Gressett Music House, of Meridian, Miss., Edison Dealers, have a customer who is very anxious to secure banjo solo Record No. 2613 made by Ruby Brooks. This selection was made over in 1905, and at that time moulds of the master made by Brooks were destroyed and the stock scrapped. If any of our Jobbers or Dealers have the Record in stock, we request that they advise us or the A. Gressett Music House direct of the fact.

No Town Too Small for Business

Marmouth & Pflum, Edison Dealers, of Plevna, Mo., in the course of a recent conversation with one of our traveling representatives, imparted some information that would seem incredible were it not substantiated by the facts in our possession. The town of Plevna has a very small population, 200 or less. In a town of that size it would seem as though it would hardly pay to install an agent. In spite of its size, however, the Phonograph business is pretty good in Plevna. In the first three months that Marmouth & Pflum were in business they bought $1,600 worth of Edison goods, their third order being for one Standard and ten Home Phonographs and 400 Records. They have been Edison Dealers now for about three years and carry at the present time six Machines and 1,200 Records in stock.

All of which goes to show that because a man lives in a small town he necessarily does not lose his taste for good music, and that a hustling Edison Dealer can do business in any city no matter what its size may be. These two Dealers relate rather an amusing incident of their experience in Plevna that carries a moral with it. They had a "prospect" for a machine and decided, judging from his appearance, that, it would be possible to sell him a Home. They therefore showed him the Home machine and explained its particular points in detail. After a short time the customer expressed a desire to see the Triumph outfit, but they, believing that type too high priced for him, kept on playing the Home machine. The customer listened in patience while several Records were being played and the particular advantages of the Home Phonograph diluted upon. After the entertainment and discourse were concluded he renewed his request to see the Triumph Phonograph, and they accordingly showed him the machine in operation. "That's the machine I want," said the customer as soon as he had heard it play a Record, and he bought it on the spot. Moral: Don't be afraid to offer your best goods first.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

The Other 13,000

What they are doing and what they want to know about.

To quote the words of H. A. Hardy, proprietor of Hardy's Music Store at Standish, Mich., "his success with the Edison line has been due more to the way in which he has handled it than anything else." Located in a town of only 1,000 inhabitants Mr. Hardy has found the Edison line very profitable, although severely handicapped at the start with a limited capital.

He started out convinced that the Edison Phonograph business was not a side line, but a business by itself, and firm in that belief he used every means at his command to push it. He uses the team shown in the cut to canvass six counties in his vicinity. In this manner he recently sold twenty Phonographs in six weeks. As he says, "We don't wait for the customer to come into the store to buy, but if we find he is in the market we take a machine and a good selection of Records and drive out, and we hardly ever bring the outfit back."

In speaking of his system he says it is no different from that of any other Phonograph installment business. He never sells a machine on open account, however, but always secures himself with a contract and is methodical and strict in the matter of payments. He uses a mailing list, sending out the Phonogram and Record supplements each month. A copy of the Arenac Independent, which he sends us, contains his 15-inch triple-column installment ad.

Mr. Hardy's is an example for Edison Dealers to keep before them. Practical business methods, faith in the present and future of the business and aggressive tactics in pursuing trade will insure success to every Dealer who puts them into practice.

The above cut, representing the interior of the store of Charles S. Sacker (The Cæsar Misch Store), of Brockton, Mass., illustrates very convincingly how it is possible to carry a large stock of Records displayed in an attractive manner. As the picture shows, the tray system of carrying Records is employed. Each tray holds four different Records, from which it will be readily seen that within a very small space (about 15 feet long, 6 feet high and 10 inches deep) Mr. Sacker is able to stock over two thousand Records.

The table on the right is used for duplicates, the rack on the left for cutouts and on the table in front of the machines, ready for immediate use, are the latest Records. With this admirable arrangement of stock, despite the fact that he is severely handicapped for space, he can quickly place a hand on any Record desired.

Mr. Sacker informs us that the Amberola, which it will be noted is prominent in his display, attracts a great deal of attention. He keeps the machine playing most of the time to attract attention to its tonal magnificence, which he says is freely commented upon and through which and the attractive appearance of the instrument he expects to effect a good many sales during the present year.

Mr. Sacker is to be congratulated upon the splendid success he has won with the Edison line, due to the enterprising manner in which he has handled it.

A Dealer who adopts methods which tend to neatness and expedition in the service he gives his patrons has the battle half won.

A Page from One Dealer's Ledger

The following is a verbatim copy of a letter received by Perry B. Whitsit, Edison Jobber of Columbus, Ohio, from one of his Dealers. The lesson it teaches is so eloquent and convincing that comment upon it might only detract from its effect:

Quincy, Ohio, Jan. 29th, 1910.

PERRY B. WHITSIT CO.,
Columbus, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN—Enclosed find check for what I owe you, also an order for Machines and Records.

The following is the Phonograph business I have done this week:

1 Amberola	$200.00
1 Combination Home	40.00
1 Combination Standard	30.00
1 Regular Standard	25.00
1 Home Attachment	7.50
84 Amberol Records	27.30
36 Standard Records	12.30
Total	$342.80

How is that for a town of about 700?

Yours truly,
O. W. DECK.

A Novel Record

Acting on a suggestion offered in a recent issue of THE PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, A. J. Dorland, proprietor of Dorland's Music House, Vancouver, Wash., introduced an innovation at a recent banquet of the local Fire Department in the form of an original Record made by members of the department. A clipping from the local press gives the following interesting description of the occurrence:

"One of the most interesting numbers on the program was furnished by a Phonograph Record, the suggestion of Arthur Dorland, who manipulated the Record. The entire fire membership present stood in line according to position, and each one called off his name and the part he plays in the department. The string orchestra then played a selection into the recorder, and the members shouted applause at the end. The Record was then played several times, much to the merriment of all. Several Records were made in this manner and filed away to be played at the next annual banquet."

Mr. Dorland reports that the Record was a good ad for his business, a great many people having called at his store expressly to hear it played. Edison Dealers generally can find food for reflection in this incident. The Edison Phonograph is the only machine in the market that offers the very attractive feature of recording; hence, the field is their own. There are similar events of nightly occurrence in every city, in which such a suggestion would be welcome, and the ensuing advertisement for the Dealers who take advantage of them is simply invaluable. We shall be glad to hear that Mr. Dorland's example has been productive of extensive imitation.

An Enthusiastic Dealer

Alonzo Wilkes, of Amsterdam, N. Y., is one of those cheerful, enthusiastic individuals from whom optimism radiates as do the rays from the morning sun. During the recent period of depression, when every mail brought its quota of complaints and disconsolate echoes from all parts of the country, his communications were as welcome as an oasis in the desert. With him a pessimist is as much an object of detestation as original sin. We suggest the reading of his most recent letter at frequent intervals as a positive and effective cure for "cold feet":

"This morning I sold two Edison Phonographs and a quantity of Records. Still the pessimists howl that the business is going down. I am writing for the two Amberolas that have been shipped from your factory. Will order three more on their arrival if they please the people who are waiting for them, and there is no doubt about this. With the splendid Edison policy of protecting the loyal Edison Dealers, I know of no business that has a brighter outlook to-day than the Phonograph business.

Good Stuff

A novel and effective method of approaching prospective customers is employed by the W. G. Walz Co., in the form of a "dummy" bill, which is sent by mail and which, as can be imagined, is provocative of immediate interest in the party who receives it. The bill reads as follows:

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 1, '10.

Mr. John Doe

To W. G. WALZ CO., Dr.

1 Edison Standard Phonograph, Model D, with Cygnet Horn	$35.00
6 Edison Amberol Records	2.00
6 Edison Standard Records	2.10
1 Automatic Chip Brush	.15
	$40.25

NOTE—On looking over our books we find no charge account against you for an Edison Phonograph.

OUR OFFER—We will put the above outfit in your home on free trial. All we ask is that you invite some of your neighbors over to your house to listen to Mr. Edison's latest improved Phonograph with the Cygnet Horn. If you do not purchase at this time maybe some of your neighbors will.

An Edison is not a big thing to buy, BUT it is a BIG thing to own.

We sell for cash or on easy payments.

You will never miss the money, but you will miss a great deal of pleasure if you do not own an Edison Phonograph.

If interested kindly write or call on

Yours truly,
W. G. WALZ CO.

Foreign Records for March

As announced in the February number, it is our intention to continue to print in each issue of THE PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY hereafter a complete list of Foreign Records as they are put out by or in the interest of our foreign branches.

This list is printed for the information of such Dealers as have a demand for these Records, and will enable them to offer their customers Records as they appear, instead of waiting for the yearly revision of the Foreign catalogue. No special printed matter will be issued in connection with any of these supplementary lists. Orders for any of these Records will be filled as received, and the Records may be placed on sale immediately.

Eastern Talking Machine Dealers' Association

The above is the prospective title of the new Association of Talking Machine Dealers in New York and neighboring States, the preliminary plans for the perfecting of which were made at the Hotel Breslin, New York, on January 26th, and at a subsequent meeting on February 4th, when a rough draft of the proposed constitution and by-laws were discussed and arrangements made for the next meeting of the Dealers at the New Grand Hotel, New York, on Wednesday, March 9th. At the preliminary meeting Frank C. Storck, who is the pioneer of the movement, was elected temporary chairman of the committee on organization, and to him were entrusted the preliminary work of organization and the plans for the next meeting. Mr. Storck informs us that the management of the New Grand Hotel has quoted special rates for those Dealers who will attend the meeting, which rates will be furnished on application. He also requests us to announce that those Dealers who are unable to attend the meeting should communicate with him at his place of business, Red Bank, N. J., that they may be kept informed by mail of the progress of the work.

The objects of the Association are as yet in an embryonic state, but roughly speaking the organization is to be founded for the purpose of keeping in closer touch with the manufacturers, of promoting the exchange of ideas upon advertising, collections and the handling of stock and other matters that may make for the general betterment of the industry. Organizations of this character are of incalculable benefit to every Dealer and it is to be hoped that every Edison Dealer in the Eastern States will avail himself of the opportunity to become affiliated with such an organization.

Our March Advertising

We are going right along with our persistent advertising campaign and, as business at the factory proves, with splendidly satisfactory results all around. Our big double page ads. are doing grand good work in the big magazines and national weeklies, while our newspaper work has exceeded even the immense proportions it assumed at the start of the campaign.

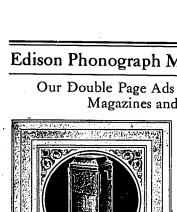
Our March double page ads., which are reproduced on the opposite page, must be classed as striking and effective suggestions to the purchasing public, millions of whom will see, read and be impressed by them for months afterwards. They appeal directly and forcibly to the Grand Opera enthusiast by offering him the world's greatest dramatic tenor in one of his most popular and successful roles, as well as other operatic artists of acknowledged ability and reputation; and with equal strength and directness they claim the interest of those to whom entertainment in the home is the ideal form of entertainment. They are bound to promote the present public demand for the Amberola and Amberol Grand Opera Records.

Our March "broadside" to the five hundred odd newspapers carrying our advertising consists of nine different ads., which will be used during the month. The largest of these is a ten-inch triple-column ad., four are six-inch double-column and four are five-inch single-column. These ads. are artistic in form, illustrated with striking cuts and are designed to cover all the various types of Edison Phonographs and Records, the special Records, etc.

Apropos of our newspaper advertising we quote the following compliment which the Talking Machine World in its issue of February 15 pays to it:

"The recent daily newspaper advertising of the Amberola by the National Phonograph Co., is not only high class—cleverly and forcibly written—but should be convincing, as it is impressive in tone and quality. To quote a recent advertisement will suffice to prove the truth of this assertion in part as follows: 'Compare the ecstatical beauty of the Amberola with that of the highest grade piano, and you will find it even more charmingly designed and just as beautifully finished. Consider the lifetime of study required to become a proficient piano player. You need no musical training whatever to enjoy the Amberola. Now compare the Amberola with a player-piano. Anyone can operate a player-piano, but when all is said and done it gives you nothing but piano music. The Amberola gives you all the best music of all kinds. It is the limitless entertainer.' A clean line cut, treated with emphasis, so that it stands out clear and conspicuous, is an added attraction. Such advertising is hard to beat, as it will certainly attract the attention of readers intelligent enough to appreciate the descriptive merit of desirable articles. These remarks are by no means detractory of what the other companies are doing along similar lines for their own products. It is only recognition of excellent work, which the trade should not overlook. Few lines of business create a market for the jobber and dealer and then hand it over for their benefit."

January Edison Records in the Northwest



The Evander Drug Company of Maddock, N. Dak., write us under date of January 17th in reference to our January list of Records as follows:

"We wish to congratulate your Company on the start made in 1910 in getting the best Records for the month of January that you have ever put out. We get the new Records by express regularly every month, and always have an eager crowd waiting to hear them as soon as the train arrives out here on the extreme northern branch of the Northern Pacific Railway. The January list of Records came in for more than ordinary praise, it being the general opinion that there was not a poor one in the whole list. The Edison Phonograph is more popular here than it ever was. Our sales during the past six weeks have been more than double what they were a year ago. Inasmuch as you are adding new Swedish Records quite often (and they are among our very best sellers) we would suggest that in the next lot you add the song ——— rendered by a male quartette. We assure you it will prove a bigger seller even than your No. 20506, of which we simply cannot get enough. There is also a big demand out here for ——— in a band Record, and we believe it would be well to add this to the list as a two-minute Record. We think that 1910 will be the biggest year that the National Phonograph Company has ever had, as it surely will be with us. Mr. Edison's prediction that he wants to see a Phonograph in every American home will soon be an accomplished fact, as the Edison Gem is well within the reach of all."

In reference to the suggestion embodied in the above letter, we wish to state that we are always glad to entertain the opinions of our Jobbers and Dealers in matters of this kind. The suggestions have been forwarded to our Recording Department for such action as they may think advisable. If more suggestions of this nature were received by us, we would be able to form a better idea from the consensus of the opinions as to what selections would appeal most to the greater number of the trade and public.

Edison products will always be found exactly what we represent them to be.

Our Double Page Ads Appearing Now in the Big Magazines and National Weeklies

Of all sound-reproducing instruments of the cabinet type, this newest Edison Phonograph should be your choice.

First: Because the Amberola is the only instrument of the cabinet type that gives you all of the best of the longer musical compositions, played as they were originally composed and meant to be played.

Second: Because the Amberola combines all the most beauty of the Edison Phonograph, with a cabinet, in Oak or Mahogany, that is a masterpiece of the cabinetmaker's art.

Third: Because its speedway reproducing point is permanent—it never needs changing, and does not scratch or wear out the Records.

Fourth: Because Leo Slezak, the greatest lyric tenor of all time, sings the wonderful Italian arias in which he has made his great successes exclusively for the Edison.

The Amberola comes in several finishes of either Mahogany or Oak, to harmonize with surroundings in any home. It has drawers in the lower part for holding 100 Records. The price is $200.00.

All types of Edison Phonographs play both Standard and Amberol Records, including the Grand Opera list.

The Amberola is but one of a number of types of Edison Phonographs sold at the same prices everywhere in the United States, from $12.50 to $200.00, each one a perfect instrument in itself.

The Amberol Record is one of two kinds of Records made for the Edison Phonograph, playing more than twice as long as other Records (four minutes instead) and longer than any other kind of record in existence.

Edison Grand Opera Records, both Amberol and Standard, are a representation of one kind of music reproduced on Edison Records, but only one kind.

A proportionate share of the millions who read these Ads are in your immediate locality. Do they know you can supply their wants?

Cases in which Injunctions Have Been Granted—A Good List to Keep Out of Restraining orders or injunctions or both have been granted against the defendants in the list of cases given below to restrain infringements consisting of price cutting in Edison goods or of other violations of the conditions of sale. There ought never to be any occasion for the National Phonograph Company to bring any more price cutting suits, for as will be seen from these cases which cover practically the whole of the United States, the courts have again and again endorsed the selling system of the Company, and the law on the subject is settled. The Company is thoroughly committed to the maintenance of its selling system, which has not only been endorsed by the courts, but which long experience has demonstrated works out to the best interests of all concerned—public, dealer, jobber and manufacturer.

So take a friendly word of warning: If any one who reads this has any idea of selling Edison goods at cut prices or of violating any of the conditions of sale under which the Edison goods are put out, don't do it. It will get you into trouble, cost you money, and will result in adding your name to this list.

The Vallorbes Jewel Company Enjoined

Final decree in the suit brought by the New Jersey Patent Company and National Phonograph Company upon Edison Re-Issue Patent No. 11,857, against The Vallorbes Jewel Company of Lancaster, Penn., has been entered in our favor, and the suit terminated. The defendant had been selling button-ball styluses in infringement of above patent, these styluses being mounted in lever arms suitable for use in Edison Model C Reproducers. After the issuance of a preliminary injunction the infringement was discontinued and a settlement quickly arrived at, the injunction being made perpetual.

New Chinese Amberols

On January 25 we issued 56 Chinese Amberol Records described in a four-page folder in Chinese with introductory in English. These Records were made by four of the most prominent Chinese actors in the country, one of whom was killed during a recent war of the Tongs in New York's Chinatown. Nine different selections are represented on these Records, one selection alone requiring twenty-two Records, another eleven and so on down. While the demand for these Records proceeded principally from Chicago, New York, San Francisco and the coast cities, there will undoubtedly be a market for them wherever Chinese are found in any number. A folder in Chinese is being prepared and will be issued later on.

Selling the Goods

In the good old days of mythology there lived a famous Grecian bully, Achilles by name, who had fought his way up to the all-round championship of the world in the heavy-weight division. Considered invincible and in fact invulnerable by his satellites, he soon grew insolent in power and began to terrorize the neighborhood.

Things went on in this way for some time and Achilles' stock was way above par, until one fine day a sly "dude" warrior named Paris, who had been tipped off to the fact that there was one weak spot in Achilles' make-up, hid behind a convenient pillar and drew bead on the husky "Champ" with his dainty bow and arrow.

The little perfumed shaft sped straight to the mark and imbedded itself in the mighty "scrapper's" heel, the only vulnerable spot in his body. Exit Achilles!

What's the moral? It's obvious, Mr. Dealer.

You may consider yourself secure in your position with the music-loving public of your locality, even as did the mighty Greek Chieftain among the warriors of his day, but leave yourself open to attack in any one vulnerable spot,—by neglect of your stock, your advertising, your mailing lists, your window displays or any one of the many things that are necessary for your success—and your competitor is very liable to take a fall out of you just as the woman-warrior Paris did out of Achilles.

Never overlook the fact that your competitor is always looking for that opportunity. Don't give him the chance. Turn aggressor yourself. Fortify yourself first at every necessary point and then go after his scalp. After you have made your position impregnable you can afford to spend your time in considering ways and means of beating him to the trade.

The surest evidence of a wide-awake, progressive and successful Dealer is a complete and well-displayed stock. A Dealer who does not carry a full line of Phonographs and Records is only standing in his own light.

You know how it is yourself. You have undoubtedly dropped into a store some time or other to purchase an article which should have been carried in stock, only to be disappointed by "Sorry, we haven't that in stock just now, but here's another——"

Didn't wait, did you? And if you ever did go back there again and the performance was repeated you crossed that place off your shopping list for good, didn't you? You can bet you did and so would everybody else.

Next to a complete stock comes the arrangement and display. In addition to being in good taste so as to make the first impression a favorable one the stock should be arranged with an eye to convenience. The dimensions of the store, of course, control the arrangement of the machines, but so far as the Records are concerned there is to date no better, more convenient, more attractive or generally satisfactory method of keeping a stock of Records than the tray system which is adopted to any and every store, big or little. We refer you to the December PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for a detailed and comprehensive description of the system.

How much are you going to spend on advertising this month? March is always a good month. People have had plenty of time to recover from the holiday demands upon their finances and are beginning to loosen up again. Get you ad. in early and pick out a good prominent space. Get it next to ours if we are advertising in a paper in your town. And in return for your advertising ask your paper to publish one of the monthly Record reviews which accompany your bulletins every month. Don't overlook these reviews. Your paper will print them free as a reading notice if you are doing any advertising and, with your name in connection, for a small consideration if you are not.

There may be more effective methods for bringing the public face to face with your goods than the giving of concerts, but until they are demonstrated to our satisfaction we claim residence in a certain State of the middle West. The splendid success that has attended the elaborate concert plan of the O. K. Houck Piano Co. of Memphis, Tenn. (which in our last issue we inadvertently located in Nashville), proves the concert idea the correct one. Not every Jobber and Dealer can conduct his concerts on so elaborate a scale, but all can imitate the Houck example in some measure and with gratifying results, we are convinced.

An Appropriate Window Card

The following is offered as a suggestion for a window card, to be used for the next two years:

Harry Lauder Sings

for

Edison Records

until

April 10, 1912

In the light of recent events we would strongly recommend the use of a card of as large dimension as the window will permit, and of letters correspondingly large.

This month, next month, and the month after are indoor dancing months. Two months and a half in which to work off your dance Records, of which the April Phonogram contains a program. Why not get permission to give a Phonograph dance at some local function such as a lodge affair, a euchre or a house party? All it would cost you would be the time and effort required. Wouldn't the sale of one Phonograph and a few Records compensate you for one or two nights spent in this manner?

Is it necessary to remind you to follow up those possible customers, who during the holidays expressed a desire to own a Phonograph, but could not afford to spend the money at that time? Look them up and send them a letter offering to demonstrate an Edison Phonograph and Amberol Records at their homes without any obligation on their part. That home demonstration idea will bring home the money if you follow it up.

From your own personal experience tell us how much attention you ever pay to a letter on which the signature is printed or affixed with a rubber stamp. Only enough to note that it is such a letter and then,—the waste basket. Take the tip and sign your letters in ink. It will at least insure their being read.

What are you doing to make the idle machines in your territory resume work for you? Have you offered to put them in shape, clean them, etc.? Approached the owners on the subject of allowing you to put on Amberol attachments?

The following article is clipped from the Trade Circular, the house organ of the Eastern Kodak Company. The lesson it teaches is quite as applicable to the talking machine business, and we commend it to Edison Dealers:

$100.00

A man from Rochester, while waiting the other day in a dealer's store to see the dealer himself, saw a clerk sell a $2.00 Brownie to a customer who was going on a tour around the world.

When the Rochesterian got the ear of the dealer a few minutes later he suggested to him that that clerk evidently considered it profane or sacreligious, or something of that sort, to speak of money in large denominations. The clerk was called to the rear of the store and instructed to say "one hundred dollars, one hundred dollars, one hundred dollars," continuously for five minutes so that in the future he wouldn't be afraid of the sound of his own voice when talking prices above his previous two-dollar limit. It was also suggested to him that he take a similar monologue exercise every morning while dressing. ("One hundred dollars, one hundred dollars.") And it is hoped that the next time an able bodied man who has arrived at years of discretion, and is suspected of being able to travel abroad and keep a sixty-horse power car comes into the store that this modest clerk will at least be able to say "Kodak" instead of "Brownie," though his cure will not be considered complete until he can say "amazigmat equipment" in a loud voice with an audience of no less than three possible customers present.

Honestly, its just wrong the way people are handled. What's the use of putting forth the cheap goods first? Its easier to come down than to go up. A twenty-dollar customer is likely to be offended if you offer him a two-dollar camera. On the other hand, your two-dollar customer feels flattered if he thinks you have "sized him up" for a ten-dollar customer.

Just by way of suggestion:

Do you and your clerks know how to run the Phonograph to the best advantage?

Can you advise a purchaser how best to take care of the machine?

Do you know the new Records as well as the old ones?

Do you listen to each Record as it comes out so as to be in a position to describe it to a customer?

You can't convince a customer if you betray unfamiliarity with your own goods.

Polk Miller Records a Surprise

The seven Records made by Polk Miller and his "Old South Quartette," which went on sale January 3rd, have proven a tremendous surprise. We expected that the demand for these Records would be confined almost exclusively to the South, as the request that they be catalogued emanated from that section. In this we were mistaken, for while naturally the demand was greatest in the South, still the North took to them very kindly and some sections of the West simply cannot get enough of them. One enthusiastic Kansas Dealer wrote in to the factory suggesting that we make one thousand Records of the same order. The popularity of the Records proves that the real "darkey" plantation melody still has a firm grip upon the affections of the American public, irrespective of locality. Dealers will do well to advertise and push these Records in every way. Polk Miller and his "Old South Quartette" are conceded to be the best delineators of the Southern plantation darkey before the public, and the selections are the very best numbers in their repertory.

Grand Opera Record Prices

We recently found it necessary to advance the prices of some of our Grand Opera Records. After April 1 Slezak's and Marguerite Sylva's Records will be advanced to $2.00 each ($2.50 in Canada), and Blanche Arral's to $1.50 each ($2.00 in Canada). Records made by Carmen Melis, the first of which appears in the May list, will retail for $2.00 (Canadian price $2.50). The bulletin of our Sales Department, printed on page 29, covers the advance in price of the Records made by the first three artists named; the price on the Carmen Melis Records will be confirmed later by a similar bulletin. Records made by other artists, whose names will be announced in due season, may also be advanced to a price which we consider fair to the trade, the public and ourselves.

The reason for the advance in prices is, of course, the enormous sums which we are compelled to pay in order to secure the exclusive services of these artists. We are endeavoring to secure the best talent available for our Grand Opera catalogue, and in order to do so are undergoing an unusually heavy expense which justifies us in asking an increased price for these Records. We feel sure that the trade will recognize the fairness of the proposition and endorse our action. Read the bulletin.

A Good Circular

The following circular used by The Reynolds Talking Machine Company of Springfield, Ill., to excite the interest of their customers in the Amberol attachment is so very good and decidedly apropos that we are reprinting it for the purpose of stimulating imitation on the part of the Dealers to whom the framing of a suitable letter is somewhat of a task:

Just one half and one of our list of Phonograph customers have purchased the full song Edison attachment for their Edison machine. Now listen! Try an attachment at no risk. We will put one on your Phonograph; you use it a week and if you're not perfectly satisfied we will take it off, restore your machine as it was and return you every cent you have put in to the trial.

This is a fair proposition to you and to us also, as we know you will be more than satisfied. Everyone that has the long Record equipment is delighted with the Amberol Records. There is no better proof of this than the fact that from the first of this month to the fifteenth we sold as many of the Amberol Records as we did of Standard Two-minute Records. This is proof positive in our opinion that the full song Amberol Records are the Records. We have a great many customers that haven't purchased any other Record since the long Records were put on the market.

About This Attachment. Maybe you would rather pay $1.00 down and $1.00 a week. That will be all right with us if you will take advantage of this within two weeks from the 25th of this month, or any any time between now and November 5th. Don't be afraid you will bring your machine in and we will not have the attachments—we have just enough of them in stock to equip every Phonograph in our territory. It will only take our repair man 20 minutes to put the attachment on; he will also oil and adjust your machine for you without extra cost.

Now don't forget, we have in stock every Record listed in the Edison catalog, both Standard and Amberol.

In conclusion let us remind you that this is the fifth consecutive month that we have talked to you about this attachment and as stated before there is just one-half and one of our list of customers supplied and every one of them more than satisfied. Come in, sit down and listen to a few Amberol Records. I said sit down—think about the "sit down" part of the argument. The Amberol Record is the only Record that plays long enough to give the one operating the machine time enough to sit down and enjoy the Record. This month's list is exceptionally fine; come in this week and hear them.

Have you been in our store since we remodeled? We have four private Record rooms. We expect to see or hear from you within the next few days.

Yours respectfully,

REYNOLDS T. M. Co.
Springfield, Ill.

New Edison Record Talent

SOPHIE TUCKER, COMEDIENNE

JOE MAXWELL, TENOR

The New York Evening Journal, in commenting upon the work of this favorite vaudeville artist during a recent engagement in that city, said:

"Sophie Tucker is the name of a loud, cheerful noise being heard at the Plaza Music Hall this week. There's a fine, buxom, happy-go-lucky girl for you, all dressed up in a greeny green skirt and a black-and-tan waist that goes with the cheerful voice aforesaid. There's a lot of the voice and there's a lot of the girl, both solid and substantial, and, above all, cheerful. When they come out on the stage together everybody wakes up and takes notice.

"They're blustery, rollicking songs she sings, too. If she tried to sing a lullaby she'd keep the kiddies' eyes open all night. She gallops along over negro ragtime melodies with the true Southern swing; then she sweeps into a grand 'hugging' song with nothing on the stage to take advantage of it but a lone, gilt chair. From the moment she greets the audience with her cheerful 'Ho' they are her friends, and bring her before the curtain again and again. Her grand finale is the song ending with 'Come at seven! I'se goin' straight to Heaven!' Only she doesn't. She's too young yet."

Sophie Tucker contributes her first Record to the May Standard list,—one of her favorite and characteristic songs, "That Lovin' Rag," which may be safely taken as a criterion of her further efforts. She is now an exclusive Edison artist, a statement which is made without reservation or fear of possible retraction.

Joe Maxwell, whose ability as a singer is well known in New York and neighboring cities where his services are always in great demand, is also heard for the first time in the May list, to which he has given two Records. To a strong, sweet and pure tenor voice add an enunciation far above that of the average singer, and a pleasing style of expression and you have Joe Maxwell, an ideal ballad singer. We expect his "Come to the Land of Bohemia," in the Standard list, to be one of our very popular Records. The song itself is very catchy and popular, and Mr. Maxwell's rendition of it will indicate what we may expect of him in the future.

Stolen Machines

Standard Phonographs Nos. 47,895, 605,871, 467,622; Home No. 275,566.

Any information in regard to above machines which may come to the attention of the trade should be communicated direct to our Agreement Department here at Orange.

A Correction

In the list, printed in the January Monthly, of British Records which will be adopted into the next Domestic Catalogue No. 12,025, "Nautical Airs," was erroneously given as No. 12,055.

Done anything with the foreign Records yet?

The Protection of Our Dealers

The following letter from C. G. Nelson, Edison Dealer of Saskatoon, Sask., Canada, is evidence of the protection which we offer to our Dealers when satisfactory assurance is given to us that they are pushing the sale of Edison goods and making a success of the business in their section:

Saskatoon, January 12th, 1910.

National Phonograph Co.,
Orange, N. J.

Gentlemen:

I want to thank you for not accepting the application of another dealer in Saskatoon, in reference to which you wrote me on the 6th inst. As far as pushing the sale of Edison goods here is concerned, why I don't do anything else but talk Edison Phonographs and Records. I have sold all the other makes of machines and know them thoroughly. Now I am selling Edison goods because I know they are the best sound reproducing instruments in the world.

My business is good. I am selling about twenty machines per month; besides my Record sales are splendid, especially of the Amberol records.

It might be interesting for you to know that until six months ago when I came here the Amberol Record was not known at all. No one had ever seen the Record and all you could hear was the ——— talked among music Dealers, but today the ——— Dealers are out of the business, all except one. And we really need one so that a customer can compare the ——— machines with the Edison.

Sometimes people will happen to drop in the other fellow's store first, but as a rule they don't care to close a bargain until they see the Edison. Right there is where I come in with a line of good talk and my machine playing some good plain Records. The result is that I have never yet missed a sale.

I trust you will not think this is boasting, but I want to make it plain to you that you have a Dealer in Saskatoon who is working hard. Our stock is complete with all the Standard and Amberol Records, and a complete line of machines from the Gem right along the line to the Triumph.

I have not yet been able to get an Amberola, but am doing lots of talking about the machine, and when it does come to hand it is my intention to give concerts in a public hall as a means of introducing it.

The territory that I represent here is comparatively small and the field for the Amberola is necessarily restricted, but I am convinced of the possibility of making some sales and shall do all I can to exploit the instrument. You will see from the foregoing that I am pushing the sale of Edison goods in every possible manner in this territory.

Again thanking you for the square deal you have given me in entrusting this territory to me as your agent and assuring you that I will do all in my power to prove myself worthy of your confidence, I am

Yours very truly,
C. G. NELSON.

The Edison Phonograph Under Fire

A material proof of the superiority of Edison Phonographs and Records over those of other manufacture is furnished in the recent experience of Ed. Archambault, of Montreal, Canada.

A prominent physician of that city, who was in the market for a high grade instrument, called on our Dealer and requested to hear some Edison Records. His request was complied with and he expressed himself as highly pleased with the Records, but said he had heard some of other manufacture and before making a purchase wished to institute a comparison between the various types of instruments. Our Dealer, confident of the outcome, was more than willing to enter such a competition, and at the physician's request sent a Phonograph to his home, selecting for the purpose a Home, and with it sent ten Domestic Records.

A band Record, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," played by Sousa's Band, was selected for the first comparison, which proved also to be the last; for at the conclusion of a second repetition of the Record the physician expressed himself as thoroughly convinced of the superior tonal quality of the Edison machine, saying, "If a little machine can play like that, what will the Amberola be of which you spoke to me?" "Perfection," answered our Dealer. "Well, then, take my order for one Amberola Phonograph and I will keep the Home machine until it arrives," said the Doctor. A moment later our man had the pleasure of hearing several one-sided conversations over the telephone, which sounded something like this: "Hello, Mr. ———! This is Dr. ——— talking. Please come and get your machine. No, no! no use. I bought an Edison."

All of which goes to prove not only that the Edison Phonograph will emerge triumphant from competition with any other machines manufactured, but that the Dealer who has confidence in his goods, and shows it, will inspire his customer with the same confidence, and effect a sale at times when the least show of indecision or doubt would mean its loss.

Why not a St. Patrick's Day window filled with Amberol Records? Notice the color of the Amberol cartons? Very appropriate.

Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?

This Record, which appears in the May list, is going to be one of the most popular numbers in our catalogue. Watch it and see if we are mistaken in our prediction that it will be away up in the van of the best sellers in the May list. Incidentally, it should be known that the original version of this song in given on British Amberol Record No. 12,078. It is sung by Florrie Forde, the popular English comedienne, and is a splendid Record. The air, of course, is the same, but the whereabouts of "Kelly" is matter for different but equally humorous speculation. It is also on the British two-minute list as Record No. 13908, sung by Arthur Osmond, one of the most prominent musical comedy artists on the London stage. Many customers will want to hear both versions of the song if informed that it is possible to obtain them. The British Records will be shipped as ordered and may be placed on sale immediately.

New Cut-out List

On July 1st we purpose dropping from the two-minute list three hundred more selections which will be omitted from the new catalogue appearing on that date. To help us in the intelligent preparation of that list the co-operation of our Jobbers is solicited to the extent of advancing their opinions as to which numbers in the Standard list appear to be the slowest sellers. Undoubtedly our Dealers could materially assist their Jobbers in the forming of their opinions. The preparation of a new cut-out list is a matter of serious moment to us at the present time, as it is extremely difficult, now that the two-minute catalogue is being depleted out of all proportion to its monthly addition, to determine which Records shall and shall not survive. This is supplementary to letter of Sales Manager Dolbeer, dated February 8th, to our Jobbers.

A Suggestion

Considerable time and trouble would be saved us if the trade, in replying to letters, would in every case refer to the initials of the factory correspondent. This would insure the reply being sent immediately to the proper destination, instead of its making the rounds of the various departments for identification, as is too often the case. The initials of the writer always appear in the upper left-hand corner of the letter, it will be noticed. We trust the suggestion bears fruit.

Factory Jottings.

Thomas A. Edison spent his sixty-third birthday quietly with his family at his winter residence at Fort Meyers, Fla. Mr. Edison was born February 11th, 1847.

Sales Manager Dolbeer spent the week of February 7th-12th in Baltimore, Washington and nearby cities visiting the trade.

Credit Manager E. H. Phillips returned on February 26th from a trip which embraced Chicago, Milwaukee, Toledo, Cleveland, Pittsburg and Philadelphia.

B. R. Barklow, salesman in Manhattan and Southern New York, returned to his post on February 14th after a trip to the Adirondacks, where he spent several weeks recuperating his health.

H. D. Hatfield, an experienced talking machine man, will hereafter represent Edison interests as a salesman in the Eastern provinces of Canada.

John de Angelis has been appointed salesman for Toronto and provinces of Ontario, Canada, with headquarters in Toronto.

Walter A. Veltz, formerly of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, Ill., has moved his family to Los Angeles, Cal., and will hereafter represent the National Phonograph Company on the Coast.

It may interest the many friends of J. W. Scott ("Scotty") in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Maine, where he formerly represented the Company, to know that during the short time that he has been in the Southern States as our special representative he has been elevated to military rank and prestige. He left the factory shortly after the holidays, a plain, unassuming Jerseyite, famous only for his aggressive salesmanship, his unfailing good humor and his ability as a raconteur. Now comes the news that he had hardly crossed the Mason and Dixon line before a complete metamorphosis took place in "Scotty." Instead of the plebian title of "Mr." he will hereafter exact the patronizing prefix of "Colonel," which title we are given to understand was conferred on him at a formal ceremony in the historic city of Baltimore, Mr. E. F. Droop, of E. F. Droop & Sons, Edison Jobbers in that city, standing sponsor for the diminutive aspirant for military honors.

It is a fact known to only a few of his closest confidants that "Colonel" Scott in his younger days cherished an ambition for a military career; in fact his bellicose spirit was so very pronounced at the time of his entrance into this mundane sphere that his parents, recognizing his probable destiny, bestowed upon him the name of the grim old hero of Cerro Gordo, to whom he is said to be distantly related. By a cruel whim of nature which ordained that in altitude he was never to exceed a scant five feet, the "Colonel's" ambitions were defeated until the present time. It is to be hoped that the "Colonel" will not stop at this rung of the military ladder, but that on his return from the "land of cotton" we shall have the pleasure of saluting him with the still more dignified appellation of "General."

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for May, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before April 25th, 1910, all things being favourable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on April 23rd. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on April 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after April 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before April 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on April 23rd, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for May Records on or before March 15th. Dealers should place May orders with Jobbers before March 20th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for May, 1910

413 La Gipsy—Mazurka Écossaise — Sousa's Band

A brilliant rendition of one of the popular Concert Muzurkas by the well-known French composer, Louis Ganne, writer of the celebrated "La Czarina," Muzurka Russe. His Muzurkas, as all musicians know, were constructed with a view of showing the style of music peculiar to different countries. In "La Czarina" the style and rhythm are Russian. In the "Écossaise," which was originally a Scotch round dance in 2-4 time, they are of course Scotch. This is a magnificent band Record and, like all of Sousa's, is bound to be popular. Publishers, Hawkes & Son, London.

414 I Wish That You Was My Gal, Molly — Manuel Romain

Sweetly plaintive in words and melody, this song is exactly suited to Mr. Romain's sympathetic voice and expressive style of singing. In it a rough but manly young fellow voices his regret that the girl whom he loves has given her heart to another. The style of composition and melody are a little different from those of the usual sentimental ballad,—sufficiently so to give the song a certain distinctiveness which is pleasing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

415 Moonlight in Jungleland — Collins and Harlan

One of the most melodious "jungle songs" we have ever catalogued. To a pretty two-step swing are set words which describe Simian love-making in the jungle under a waning moon. The chattering of two chimpanzees in the trees is interpreted by Collins to mean that the fateful question is being popped, while the hoarse bass interruption of an octogenarian jungle resident is the response of "papa" when approached by his prospective "son-in-law." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Dempsey and Schmid; publishers, H. A. Weyman & Son, Philadelphia.

416 Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly? — Billy Murray and Chorus

The American version of this popular "hit" as sung by Nora Bayes in Lew Fields' big New York production, "The Jolly Bachelors." A comic song with a catchy air in which a young lady, obviously from the Emerald Isle, seeks information in regard to the whereabouts of her sweetheart, Kelly, who seems to be afflicted with the disappearing habit. When she repeated her question on the occasion of a Hibernian parade five hundred Kellys stepped out of the ranks in response. She has other experiences in her search for the missing gentleman which are humorously related in the song. Billy Murray fairly outdoes himself in the rendition of this number which will be one of our best sellers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, William J. McKenna; music, C. W. Murphy and Will Letters; publishers, T. B. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

417 The Kiss Waltz — H. Benne Henton

This Record is an original arrangement for a saxophone solo of the popular waltz song, "The Kiss" ("Il Bacio") by Luigi Arditi, the well-known operatic conductor. This charming vocal waltz was written for Adelina Patti, the renowned coloratura soprano, and is one of her favorite concert numbers. It was sung by her when touring the United States under the management of the composer. As a saxophone solo it is beautiful beyond description. Mr. Henton's marvellous skill with the instrument has already been recognized by the Phonograph public, as was evidenced by the popularity of his very first contribution, and the demand for his Records may be expected to increase in the future. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston.

418 The Middlepmite — Peter Dawson

This song has had a great vogue and is included in the repertoire of every baritone and bass singer of any prominence. Mr. Dawson, who is one of the artists of our London Recording staff, is the possessor of a magnificent bass voice which, as the Record proves, he is able to handle most artistically. This Record, which is his first solo contribution to our domestic catalogue, is listed as No. 12084 in the British Amberol catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Stephen Adams; publishers, Boosey & Company, London.

419 Beautiful Beckoning Hands — Edison Mixed Quartette

The title of the selection suggests that the Record may be something out of the ordinary, and so it is. Even among the many choice sacred contributions to our catalogue it will be distinguished for its excellence. Interspersed throughout the number are solos which add to its attractiveness. Organ accompaniment. Words, Rev. C. C. Luther; music, John R. Bryant.

420 The Prima-Donna—Entr'Acte — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

It is not difficult to understand why Victor Herbert should be so universally recognized as the greatest composer-conductor of his time when we listen to the brilliant performance given of this charming number, which is distinguished by delightful contrasts and shadings. A Record whose bewitching loveliness will win it warm favor with the true music lover, who will class it among the very choicest in our catalogue.

421 By the Light of the Silvery Moon — Ada Jones and Male Quartette

We think so well of this Record, and are so positive of its emphatic popularity that we have made it one of the "special" Records and advanced its selling date one month for the benefit of the trade. It is a delicious "rag" song with a hypnotic rhythm that is simply irresistible. It is being sung, whistled and danced all over the country, and is being advertised as few songs ever are. Ada Jones sings it delightfully, accompanied in the repetition of the first chorus by a quartette of male voices. The second chorus is also sung with the quartette and the repetition follows, at first subdued but gradually increasing in volume to full tones at the finish. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ed. Madden; music, Gus Edwards; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

422 Down in Turkey Hollow — Golden and Hughes

Another of those entertaining combinations of jokes, repartee and song for which these two clever performers are noted. A short song serves as a preliminary to a comparison of the relative merits of Turkey and Skunk Hollows in respect to their concomitants to longevity that would make a Baron Munchausen hang his head in shame. There's fun galore in this Record, which concludes with the singing of "Bye Bye, Ma Honey, I've a-Gwine." Original for our Records and not published.

423 Strauss Memories Waltz — National (London) Military Band

This Record contains the following six numbers known the world over as Strauss' choicest waltzes: "Blue Danube"; "Promoienen"; "Artists' Life"; "Wiener Blut"; "Doctrinen," and "Wein, Weib und Gesang." No need to tell a music lover what these numbers are. The whole selection is beautifully played by the National Military Band whose Records are uniformly good. This Record is No. 12113 in the British Catalogue. Publishers, Boosey & Company, London.

424 One Little Girl — Harvey Hindermeyer and Chorus

A pretty waltz song, sentimental in theme and engaging in melody, is Mr. Hindermeyer's second contribution to the Edison catalogue. His first, it will be remembered, was No. 348, "Hello, Mr. Moonman, Hello." We feel sure that the good impression created by his first Record will be fully confirmed by the artistic rendition he gives this selection, in which his sweet voice and perfect enunciation are particularly agreeable. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Harry Power Weymann; publishers, H. A. Weymann & Son, Philadelphia.

425 Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet — Stanley and Gillette

A sacred selection too well known to comment upon, rendered by a combination of artists new to sacred Records. We feel sure that there will be no dissenting from the decision that it is a most happy one. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, F. J. Crosby; music, W. H. Doane.

426 Patrol Comique — American Standard Orchestra

A descriptive orchestra selection reproducing the anniversary parade of the Darktown Musketeers. Scene: Main Street in Darktown. Action: Grand Marshal clears the street for the paraders amid suggestions and expostulations of crowd—Band heard in distance—"Heah comes de parade!" "Quit shovin'!—Company halts—Comments of spectators—"How you feel in dem clo'es, 'Rastus?"—"Got any gin in dat knapsack?"—"Does dat gun shoot, Henry?"—Company sings the Musketeers' battle song "Ish de ladies"—Resumes march—Band music fading in distance—"Dey're turnin de cawnah"—"Dere goes de las' one"—"I can't see him but I know who 'tis." It is impossible to describe the novelty of this Record, which must be heard to be appreciated. Composer, Thomas Hindley; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

427 I'd Like to Be the Fellow that Girl is Waiting For Joe Maxwell

Mr. Maxwell is a new accession to the ranks of Edison artists and we are positive that the Phonograph public will give its unqualified endorsement to our judgment in securing him for Edison Records. He is the possessor of a clear, strong and sweet tenor voice and his enunciation is unusually distinct. His first Record is a sentimental waltz song with an agreeable air and of increasing popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ed. Rose; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

428 The Suffragette Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Here is a "screem." A suffragette meeting in full blast on a street corner, the speaker abusing "mere man" in general and "Alderman Tom Harrigan" in particular, amid such interruptions from a funny Irishman in the crowd as, "Is that hat you're wearin' an election bet?" Finally the patrol arrives and the suffragettes disperse, with the exception of the speaker, who is saved from arrest by "Alderman Harrigan" himself with the result that she consents to confine her ambition to rule in the future to the Harrigan household. Original for our Records and not published.

429 To You—Waltz Serenade Vienna Instrumental Quartette

An instrumental gem, equal in every respect to the previous Records of this internationally famous organization, the members of which through years of constant association have developed a perfection of ensemble and beauty of style which is most delightful. Alfons Czibulka, the composer, was born in Hungary, May 16th, 1842, and died in Vienna, October 27th, 1894. He was a celebrated operetta composer and writer of numerous concert pieces, of which this and the famous Stephanie Gavotte are the best known.

430 The Man Who Fanned Casey Digby Bell

This Record will make a "hit" with the "fans" during the baseball season, which will be starting about the time it goes on sale. Everybody has heard of the mighty slugger of the Mudville team who ingominiously struck out when a hit meant the game, but very few know that the cause of his Waterloo was a "spit ball," hurled by the mighty twirler, Hogan, before the altar of whose memory Digby Bell, the well-known actor and elocutionist, burns his choicest incense.

431 Characteristic Negro Medley Peerless Quartette

A finely balanced harmonization of male voices in rendition of some well-known and popular plantation melodies, including "I Love My Lou"; "Way Down in Alabam"; "Keep a-Hummerin' on My Soul"; "Ole Pete Green"; "What Kind of Clo'es do the Angels Wear"; "Bye Bye, Ma Honey, I'se a-Gwine," and concluding with the "Farewell Song" from "Pinafore." Preceding each selection and lending up to it is a bit of comedy that serves to add relish to the number. Unaccompanied.

432 The Cubanola Glide Collins and Harlan with New York Military Band

Another Record which, because of its popularity, was made a "special." This selection is also of the "rag" type, but of such engaging and superior tunefulness as to insure its retention in public favor for many a day to come. The arrangement of the selection on this Record is an innovation which, we think, will add to its popularity. The band first plays the entire selection, introducing a soft-shoe dance effect in the chorus, after which it is sung as a conversational duet (two verses and chorus) by Collins and Harlan, and the last chorus is repeated by the band. Words, Vincent Bryan; music, Harry Von Tilzer; publishers, Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., New York City.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

B188 Tosca—Vissi d'arte (Puccini) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment
Carmen Melis, Soprano

Art and love, this so succinctly tells the nature, the life of Floria Tosca. Like all great natures, all artists, she had a great faith and when, by so long a series of misfortunes she is placed in the position where she must lose all, to win all, her soul cries out to God. Ever and ever has she in sincere faith brought her offerings and she cannot understand why she hearers the agony, the prayer as does this number sung by Mme. Melis.

B189 Carmen—Habanera (Bizet) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment
Marguerita Sylva, Soprano

"Love you not me, then I love you
If I love you beware of me."

Is so typically true a synopsis of this justly so well-liked air that little need be further said of the same. All lovers of music are familiar with this number. With the Toreador song it shares its popularity. Mme. Sylva, whose Carmen has been an artistic and personal triumph, has made a beautiful and perfect record of this number.

B190 Coeur et la Main—Bolero (Lecocq) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment
Blanche Arral, Soprano

No musical production has a better swing than the bolero. No one listens to this dance music without strongly feeling its influence. In this charming operatta, by Lecocq, which some years ago created a furore, the bolero has all the Southern spirit. Sung in grand opera quality, Mme. Arral puts into this song all the art to make it musically charming and also all the required abandon to make of it a typical and spirited reproduction which is destined to please all.

B191 Cavalleria Rusticana—Brindis' (Mascagni) Sung in Italian Orchestra accompaniment
Riccardo Martin, Tenor

The Brindisi is, so to say, the pivotal point of this tragic opera. It is here that Turiddu invites his friends to drink with him. When, however, he offers the cup to Alfio, the latter refuses and the quarrel ending in Turiddu's undoing is precipitated. This number shares in popularity with the Siciliana and is a great favorite with all tenors and audiences.

B192 Mignon—Bercuse (Thomas) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment
Gustave Huberdeau, Baritone

Mignon is replete with charming melodies, of which some have become so familiar that even the children know them. This berceuse, or lullaby, is an outpouring of Lothario's great love for Mignon and a prayer for heavenly protection. Very few bass solos are so tenderly expressive as is this number.

10350 Narcissus Sousa's Band

"Narcissus" is from Ethelbert Nevin's "Water Scenes," op. 13, and is No. 4 of that well-known suite. Of the many instrumental compositions written by this celebrated American composer, "Narcissus" is undoubtedly the best known, equalling in popularity his famous song, "The Rosary." This Record is Mr. Sousa's special arrangement for the band of this beautiful number, and we question whether our catalogues contain another that can vie with it in charm of melody and brilliancy of rendition.

10351 Christmas Time Seems Years and Years Away Manuel Romain

A dainty little sentimental song with a winning melody which swings to march time in the chorus. Its theme is the impatience of an ardent lover because the day which will mark the consummation of his happiness "seems years and years away." Mr. Romain is conscientious as ever in the rendition of this selection and a delightful Record is the result. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

10352 Two Giddy Goats Miss Stevenson and Mr. Stanley

This novel duet is one of the comedy hits in "The Belle of Brittany," an English musical play which is meeting with the same great success in this country as it did in its long run in London. The duet is sung in the first act of the play by Bapiste and Talonette, and its humorous and "punny" lines and lively air make it one of the laughable numbers of the production. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Percy Greenbank; music, Howard Talbot; publishers, Keith, Prowse & Company, London.

10353 Hungarian Dance—D Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

The weird yet fascinating melodies of the Hungarian gypsies were a fruitful theme for treatment by Johannes Brahms, ose compositions have ever been popular. A companion number to this selection is No. 10[illegible] of the March list. The arrangement is difficult and calls for just such masterly treatment as only Herbert could give it.

10354 He's A College Boy Billy Murray and Chorus

A rollicking comic song in march tempo describing the general make-up and antics of the average college boy when turned loose from college restraint. The air is very "swingy" and Billy Murray sings the number with great gusto, ably assisted by a male quartette in the chorus, in which a college yell is introduced. Two full verses and choruses are given. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

*This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the May Phonogram.

10355 Some Day — Miss Marvin and Mr. Anthony

A reverent and effective rendition of a favorite hymn. This, too, is a new combination for sacred numbers. Miss Marvin is an experienced contralto singer with a voice of much strength and beauty, which blends very agreeably with Mr. Anthony's. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Dr. Victor M. Staley; music, Chas. H. Gabriel.

10356 Return of the Arkansas Traveler — Len Spencer

A talking Record in which this versatile artist imitates two characters, the returned Arkansas traveler and an old resident whom he interrupts while playing his violin. The conversation that follows between the two (with interruptions from the traveler's negro servant who keeps "butting in") is of the uproarious type. A very amusing Record. Original for our Records and not published.

10357 Farintosh and Janney Dang the Weaver — William Craig

A violin solo of two old-time favorites for the enjoyment of those who prefer the lively musié of a reel or a jig to a "high-class" offering; and their name is legion, as the sales of similar Records in the catalogue prove. The first number is a strathspey, a form of Scottish folk-dance, and the second a spirited reel. Mr. Craig's skill with the violin is too well known to comment upon. Piano accompaniment.

10358 Come to the Land of Bohemia — Joe Maxwell

To the Standard list Mr. Maxwell has brought one of the best songs of his repertoire as well as one of the most popular. It is a sprightly little waltz song describing the delights of the imaginary land of Bohemia, the land where dull care and trouble take flight before its inspiration of sweet music and song. The words are appealing, the air enticing and the manner in which it is sung beyond criticism. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ren Shields; music, Geo. Evans; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

10359 Just A Little Ring From You — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Sentimental in theme but a vivacious, cheery number with an appealing melody, here rendered as a conversational duet. The chorus suggests the many ways in which lovers may make use of "rings" to promote Cupid's cause. It seems superfluous to comment upon the rendition as the words of these favorite artists and Record makers is always of the highest order. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

10360 Lovin' Rag — Sophie Tucker

A "rag" song that surely is "rag" of the noisiest, jolliest kind imaginable, and a "coon shouter" who is considered to be the foremost exponent of that type of song before the public. Miss Tucker is a "head liner" in vaudeville. She has a big, deep voice of a most peculiar calibre extremely well suited to "rag" songs, a splendidly clear enunciation and clever dialect. This is her first Record for the Edison Phonograph and we are satisfied that the trade will not permit it to be the last. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Victor H. Smalley; music, Bennie Adler; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

10361 Under the Tent — American Standard Orchestra

Here is an orchestra Record that can not fail to be popular. It is a spirited, characteristic number, portraying the life and action in a circus. The bugle calls, cantering of horses, snap of whips, shouts of riders, laughter of clowns, applause and cheers of the spectators at the performance are some of the novel effects introduced. A splendid Record of its kind. Needless to say the rendition is adequate in every respect. Composer, Chas. N. Daniels; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

10362 By the Light of the Silvery Moon — Ada Jones

We received so many requests from various parts of the country to catalogue this selection and are so thoroughly convinced that it will appeal strongly to the Phonograph public that we decided to place it in both the four and two-minute lists; and for the same reasons we advanced the selling date in this list as one of the "specials." The song is rendered equally as well on the Standard as on the Amberol Record although, of course, the latter offers the greater amount of entertainment.

10363 That Rag — Collins and Harlan

A conversational coon duet with a brisk and captivating melody, in the rendition of which Collins and Harlan demonstrate again that their ability to sing songs of this type is inferior to none. As usual, there is enough comedy percolating through their singing to add flavor to the Record. The theme of the selection is the effect that the hearing of a "rag" melody has on one "coon" to the dismay of another, who, however, seems to be somewhat affected himself. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

10364 En Route to Camp March — New York Military Band

Snap, volume and precision distinguish this Record, which is equal to any of the contributions of this famous organization, whose Records are consistently fine. Composer, A. G. Sharpe.

E. A. Neff Becomes Manager of W. H. Ross & Son

Mr. E. A. Neff, our traveling representative for the state of Texas, resigned his position on February 5th to accept the management of the firm of W. H. Ross and Son, Edison Jobbers of Portland, Me. Mr. Neff, who has long been connected with the talking machine business, has been a member of our traveling staff for the past four years and was regarded as one of the most efficient of our road-men. He is a man of excellent judgment, and will bring to his new position that necessary asset as well as a seemingly inexhaustible fund of energy and a natural optimism which will go far to remove any obstacle from his path to success. Both as we are to lose his services we rejoice in his good fortune and join his many friends among the trade in wishing him an overflowing measure of success in his new position.

Sympathy for Lawrence McGreal

The officials of the National Phonograph Company join with Edison Jobbers and Dealers throughout the country in extending sympathy to Lawrence McGreal, the well-known Edison Jobber at Milwaukee, Wis., and wife in the loss of their eldest son, Jack M. McGreal, who died on February 1. The little fellow was a bright and winning child of six years of age, who had endeared himself to members of the trade at the last two annual conventions of the National Talking Machine Jobbers' Association, on which occasions he was conspicuous as the mascot of the Association.

We particularly recommend to you British Amberol Records Nos. 12128, "Gems of England"; 12140, "Gems of Scotland," and 12160, "Gems of Ireland," all played by the National (London) Military Band.

Edison Representation at Convention of Ohio Talking Machine Dealers.

The annual convention of the Ohio Association of Talking Machine Dealers, held in Columbus, Ohio on February 2nd, was the best attended in the history of the organization. The National Phonograph Company was represented by W. H. Hug, our traveling representative in that territory, who, co-operating with Perry B. Whitsit, the well-known Edison Jobber of Columbus, entertained the delegates with a "smoker" and social session in the evening. At the banquet, which marked the culmination of the meeting, Mr. Hug addressed the delegates as follows:

"MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE OHIO ASSOCIATION OF TALKING MACHINE DEALERS:

"On behalf of, and as their representative, it is a pleasure to convey to you the greetings of the National Phonograph Company together with their best wishes for your continued success, collectively as an Association and individually as Phonograph and Talking Machine Dealers.

"I have here an address to you, prepared by our Mr. C. E. Goodwin, Manager of Salesmen of the National Phonograph Company, which, owing to his inability to be present, I will read to you. As probably but few of you know Mr. Goodwin, I wish to inform you that he was for ten years Manager of Lyon & Healy's Talking Machine Department."

MR. GOODWIN'S ADDRESS.

"MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE OHIO TALKING MACHINE DEALERS' ASSOCIATION:

I am very sorry indeed that I am unable to be present at your gathering, for your organization appeals to me in every particular.

"Talking machine men who conduct their business on such broad lines that they can drop the details of their individual interests long enough to extend the hand of fellowship to their brothers in the trade are well worth knowing, and I would like to meet every one of you. At this writing we are installing a plan to further the interests of our Dealers which takes so much of my time with the details that I felt obliged to forego the great pleasure that it would give me to be present, so I have asked Mr. Hug to extend the greetings of the National Phonograph Company and myself on this occasion.

"The Sales Department of our Company is devoted to almost entirely to that class of Dealers who are somewhat beyond the pale of your excellent organization that it seems a little out of my sphere and practice to address a gathering of real Talking Machine men, who show by their progressive spirit in upholding your association, a faith in the future of the Talking Machine business that is quite as well grounded as my own. If all of our Dealers were as rich in experience and as well trained as you are, I am afraid that the importance of our department of the business would shrink materially, and while I still feel that the field among you is rather barren for advice in the matter of promoting your business, I am certain it will interest you to know something of our policy in regard to your protection, etc.

"Never since our protective policy was inaugurated have our officials been more resolved and determined to carry it out in every particular than at the present time. Our Legal Department has stood on the firing line during this past period of business depression with their ears cocked and their "writs" ready for those traitors to the true cause of good business policy wherever they have shown their heads. This spirit, added to our present cautious scheme of protection and great care in establishing new Dealers, means much to you in these brighter and better days. Your co-operation in upholding the Agreement and in helping us to weed out the undesirables is quite as gratifying as your pursuit of the consumer. It is on the solid rock of one price to all that we are to progress to the limit of our opportunities. Again I say it is a helpful sign the men who most recognize the value of this principle should organize for the further promotion of the plan, and in so doing show their confidence in each other.

"Recognizing the zeal and loyalty of the real Talking Machine men whom you represent, we are endeavoring to co-operate from this end with promotional methods that redound to your interest. Our Advertising Department was never more active or liberal with its appropriations, and right here let me suggest that our Advertising Manager is anxious for your personal opinions from men of your experience in carrying on its work.

"In the perfection of the art it will interest you to know that Mr. Edison, who seems to be growing younger all the time, has got his second wind in the development of his hobby, the Phonograph. I know there was a feeling when I was at the retail end of the business that the original inventor of this wonderful scheme of sound-reproducing was giving his time to other things, but I can assure you from personal observation and contact with this wonderful man that he not only is giving it more thought and time than I ever dreamed of, but is accomplishing things that make your Edison agreement with its accompanying franchise a real asset. It should encourage you to know that you have in the Phonograph a line that will steadily improve, and that something more than a promise in that direction is within my immediate observation.

"If there is anything to be had from my experience in managing the Travelling Department and in reading the reports of our travellers, I want to say that those Dealers who succeed with our line measure their success by the condition of their stocks and the impression they make upon their prospective buyers by its display and the enthusiastic way they present it. I don't think there is anything more vital to a successful going Talking Machine business than a Dealer showing his faith in these goods by the manner in which he displays his stock. That the Phonograph gives per customer more for the money than anything else in the music line is an established and undeniable fact. I think it was this fixing in my mind the relative values of musical instruments that gave me any measure of success I may have had with the Talking Machine. To note the effect upon my customers, the joy that the Phonograph has brought into the home, has shown me a basis of satisfaction and enthusiasm not entirely founded upon raking in the dollars. Allowing for the buyers who never were musical and for those who are only slightly so, who cease to play their Records past midnight after a time, it was always clear to me, wherever I looked back upon it, that I had assisted in giving more for the money than anything else to be had in the home, entertainment field. In the analysis of this question of values we find that when we have been far enough along in the business we can look back to see that each customer we have made has had more for the money and shown less of wanting interest than will apply to any other musical instrument, even though it had an established market long before the Phonograph was thought of. If it is necessary to keep our courage by making comparisons with older musical instruments that are now on the market, we find in the piano no reason for being discouraged with that line, because we know of the thousands of families who are struggling with their payments, where they do not touch the instrument for months at a time.

"No, the evidence of stability and satisfaction in giving more than value received is all on our side, and with this understanding and our faith in the future development of the Talking Machine we will go on with our part of the world's work knowing that we stand for something of improvement in the home life and a higher musical culture among our people.

"Gentlemen, I thank you, and wish your Association the greatest success."

After the reading of Mr. Goodwin's address Mr. Hug spoke encouragingly of the Phonograph situation as he found it, drawing his conclusions from personal experience and observation.

During the convention the Edison Amberola was displayed and demonstrated by the Whitsit Co. and was the subject of flattering comment on the part of the delegates, who were lavish in their praise of its tonal strength and quality and artistic appearance. As a result of the demonstration the Whitsit Company secured a number of orders for the machine.

Among the Jobbers

Peter Bacigalupi and Sons, San Francisco, Cal., report that the demand for Harry Lauder Records during his recent engagement in that city was very good and still continues. During the way they featured a Harry Lauder window, in which Lauder's Edison Records and Edison Phonographs with Cygnet Horns furnished an artistic and effective background for a life-size dummy dressed in typically Highland garb. The window attracted a great deal of attention and proved to be an excellent advertisement, as did also their ad. in the program of the theatre in which Lauder appeared.

The Utica Cycle Company of 117-119 Columbia Street, Utica, N. Y., have been succeeded by A. F. Ferries and William Harrison of the same city.

The Jacot Music Box Company of 39 Union Square, West, New York City, have removed to 25 West 35th Street.

The Cummings, Shepherd & Company of 700 Houston Street, Fort Worth, Texas, have been succeeded by D. Shepherd & Company, with headquarters at 310 Main Street, that city.

The Montenegro-Riehm Music Company of Louisville, Ky., have removed their wholesale business headquarters to 539 5th Avenue, but are continuing their retail stand at 528 4th Avenue.

The Milner Musical Company, 25-27 West 6th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, have been reinstated as active Edison Jobbers.

The Indiana Phonograph Company of Indianapolis, Ind., have been succeeded by the Wulschner-Stewart Music Co. (A. M. Stewart, Pres.), 229-231 North Penn St., Indianapolis, Ind.

The Standard Talking Machine Co., of 35 Wood Street, Pittsburg, Pa., have removed to 800-802 Pennsylvania Avenue, same city.

A. J. Pommer Company, 9th and J Streets, Sacramento, Cal., and the Pacific Phonograph Company, 26 O'Farrell Street, San Francisco, Cal., have been succeeded by the Pacific Phonograph Company (A. R. Pommer), 917 Wood Street, Oakland, Cal.

Hopkins Bros. Company, 618-620 Locust Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa, have retired from the talking-machine business in order to devote their time to the sporting goods business exclusively. Their large and complete stock has been taken over by Harger & Blinch of that city. Hopkins Bros. announced the change to their trade with a letter, in which they expressed appreciation of the cordial relations which always existed between them and their Dealers, and bespoke the loyal support of the trade for their successors.

Vol. VIII. APRIL, 1910 No. 4

The Combination Attachment Proposition Launched

It's in effect now, April 1. Our promise was that it would be the most liberal and attractive proposition, from the standpoint of both trade and public, in the history of the talking machine industry. We think you will agree that we have "made good" on the promise. Our Sales Department bulletin explaining the proposition is printed in full on page 23. We want you to read that bulletin again, and read it carefully, so as not to let any of its details or conditions escape you.

Briefly summarized it means that you are now enabled to offer, at an increased profit to yourself, an Amberol Attachment practically free with the purchase of ten of the best Amberol Records ever recorded!

In the case of the Gem Attachment it is free, while the Standard costs the customer only $1.00 and the other types $3.50 more than the price of the Records alone. In other words you can offer, with the purchase of the Records, practically a new Gem free of charge, a new Standard for $1.00 and all the other types for $3.50. Or, looking at it from another point of view, you can offer the Attachment at its original price and ten special Amberol Records for only $2.00,—a present to the customer of $4.00.

There are other attractive verbal garbs in which the proposition can be clothed, and which will readily suggest themselves to you. Our special, illustrated four-page circular, which will accompany the outfit, outlines the proposition in tempting language to the customer. We are not going to waste time and space in throwing verbal bouquets at this proposition. It doesn't need it, and besides there are some things in connection with it that need to be emphasized.

We want to call your especial attention to the following facts:

1. The proposition goes into effect immediately and outfits may be sold as soon as received. Therefore, place your order with your Jobber at once in order that you may be early in the field.

2. The proposition, because of the question of duty, does not apply to Canada.

3. Unless you specify to the contrary your orders for Attachments from now on will be filled by your Jobber with complete outfits, shipped in a special container consisting of an Attachment and ten Special Amberol Records.

4. For such Combination Attachments as you have in stock your Jobber will accept a single immediate shipping order for an equal number of packages containing ten Special Amberol Records, at a net price of 60 cents per package. Such Records are to be sold only in conjunction with an Edison Combination Attachment, at the stipulated prices, and the seal of the packages must not be broken before delivery to the customer. Under no circumstances may they be sold as individual Records. We cannot emphasize this fact too strongly.

5. For the purpose of demonstrating the Records a single package may be opened.

6. Because of the special prices at which these Records are sold no allowance for breakage will be made, nor may the Records be returned to the factory for credit under the Continuous Exchange Proposition.

7. These Records are Special Records in every sense of the word. They are beyond criticism in the matter of selection, recording and in the choice of artists. They are not and will not be included in the catalogue unless at some future time a demand for them justifies their being listed.

8. All literature—circulars and window hangers—will be shipped with the outfits so that Dealers will be equipped in every way to immediately begin their advertisement.

9. Any violation of the terms of sale that govern this proposition will be summarily and severely dealt with.

Do you realize what this proposition means to you? Can you foresee the effect it will have upon your business? You will notice that there is an increased profit for you in the sales of these Attachments, but that profit is only incidental. The real profit lies in the immediate feature.

You know what the introduction of the Amberol Attachment did for your business and for the talking machine industry in general. It practically reestablished it. It created a renewed interest in Phonographs and brought out of retirement thousands of machines whose owners had abandoned them because of the limited entertainment offered by the short Records.

There are still many thousands of such machines throughout the country—many of them in your territory. You know, or should know, where they are; if you do not it is to your interest to discover them immediately. You have been given a most tempting bait to dangle before the eyes of these owners. You can make steady Record customers of every one of them with this proposition.

Your duty to yourself is clear. Put in a stock of complete outfits and enough of Special Records to equal the Attachments in stock at once. Go over your mailing lists or otherwise ascertain where the inactive machines are in your territory. Approach the owners through the mail, in person and through your window display and the newspapers. Give the widest possible publicity to this extraordinary proposition.

Send in your order to your Jobber to-day and ADVERTISE.

Amberola Reproducers

The Model "L" Reproducers that accompanied the first machines placed upon the market have proven defective in several instances which have lately been brought to our attention. We have discovered the cause of the defect, which manifested itself in a cutting and wearing of the Records, and have eliminated it from the Reproducers we are now shipping. We will gladly exchange new Reproducers for any that have developed the defect mentioned, and urge the trade to immediately examine the machines they have in stock for that purpose, and also to make diligent inquiry to discover if every machine sold is giving complete satisfaction.

The Model "L" Reproducer will soon be supplanted by the Model "M" (not "N," as it was designated in a previous issue), which will play both the four and two-minute Records. As soon as a sufficient quantity is manufactured we will begin to exchange them for the Model "L," which will then become obsolete as a type.

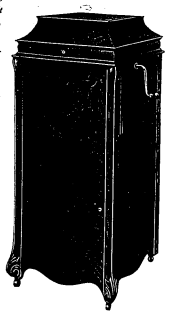
Printed Matter

We have shipped the following forms to be used in advertising the Amberola and the three Special Record "hits" which went on sale March 25th: No. 1722, six-page extension folder on the Amberola, in four colors, showing a cut of the instrument in mahogany finish and giving a detailed description of its mechanical and artistic features and advantages, and also calling attention to the Grand Opera Catalogue; No. 1735, hanger, in three colors, showing closed and exposed views of the instrument in mission oak finish; No. 1763, poster, 29 inches by 10 inches, in three colors, on the three special Records, and No. 1771, supplement on the same Records.

These forms will be in the hands of all Jobbers by the time this issue of the Monthly reaches Dealers and every Dealer should take immediate steps to obtain a proportionate supply of same and use them to the very best advantage.

The Amberola literature has been purposely withheld until a sufficient number of machines should have been placed in the hands of the trade. Dealers who have been supplied with samples of the machine should lose no time in distributing the literature where it will be most effective. The hangers should be given a place of prominence in the show window and the six-page folder, on which space is reserved for imprinting the Dealer's name and address, should be mailed with a personal letter to the most likely prospects in every locality.

The Special Record Hanger and Supplements should be handled in exactly the same manner as the monthly Record Supplements and Hangers are disposed of. The Hangers should be prominently displayed in the stores and the Supplements should be mailed to customers, as well as placed upon the counters where they will be sure to attract attention. We want to impress upon our Dealers the necessity of making a vigorous effort to distribute this Special Record literature in order that the merits of the proposition may be given a fair test.



A Page of Amberola Testimonials

[Extracts from letters from our Jobbers and Dealers evidencing the enthusiasm which the Instrument has awakened]

We have received our first Amberola and want to say that it is by far the finest machine we have ever seen or heard, and we are positive it will be a seller. We want to congratulate you on the Amberola. It is a machine that was very much needed in our line, and it is in a class all by itself.—Proudfit Sporting Goods Company, Ogden, Utah.

We shall mail an order for some more Amberolas tomorrow and sincerely hope that you can keep them coming at a good rate, as the inquiries in regard to them are quite urgent.—Hakson Bros., Chicago, Illinois.

I have sold the Amberola and I have a customer for another. If you have one in any kind of finish let it come immediately. The—— is not in it as a competitor with the Amberola, as I sold this one side by side with the ——in competition with another dealer, who was a personal friend of the customer.—O. A. Reynolds, Springfield, Illinois.

THE EDISON AMBEROLA

We received the Amberola in first-class condition and are pleased to say that it comes up to our greatest expectations in every way. It has the best and most natural tone of any talking-machine we have ever heard.—Hopkins Bros. Co., Des Moines, Iowa.

The Amberola received by us on December 21st was sold on December 24th.

For the machine we have nothing but the heartiest commendation. We have examined every machine of this kind upon the market, and we are satisfied that in the Amberola the trade has received what it has been waiting for.

We find beauty of tone and wealth of detail in the most commonplace Records played upon it. The machine exceeds our most sanguine hopes. It is so much better than its nearest competitor that no comparison is called for.—A. S. Cook Co., Woonsocket, R. I.

The two Mission Oak Amberolas were received and re-shipped and both Dealers have advised us that they were well pleased with the machines, which were sold immediately. They want more machines in mahogany finish.—Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

We send you our hearty congratulations on the Amberola. We think it is the greatest machine on the market. We have received two in two weeks and have sold them. We shall carry one in stock at all times. It is the only machine that reproduces true to life.—Brown & Kearns, Reading, Pa.

The Phonogram

For some time past we have been receiving letters from Phonograph owners in various sections of the country complaining that they do not receive the Phonogram regularly, and frequently not at all. In most cases the complaints are accompanied by stamps or money orders to cover back numbers or future subscriptions.

We have refrained from commenting upon this fact before, because it was reasonable to assume that when the public began to purchase Records again those Dealers who, prompted by an idea of false economy during the depression, had curtailed or cancelled their standing orders for Phonograms would see the wisdom of resuming the mailing of the booklets monthly to their customers. Some evidently have not, and it is to such that we are addressing these remarks, for the complaints are assuming such proportions as to call for prompt action on our part.

We will forbear criticism of those Dealers who discontinued the use of this attractive little promoter of business further than to say that it was only another instance of "penny wise, pound foolish," and will only urge that they immediately revise their mailing lists and resume the mailing of the Phonogram and other monthly literature.

The Phonogram is the medium by which the public is kept in close touch with all the latest developments in the Edison line. Its value as such cannot be overestimated. It fosters and maintains public interest in Edison products, and focuses that interest upon the Dealer's store. Of all the advertising literature that we place in the hand of the Dealer it is the most pretentious and effective. Its cost is nominal; the results obtained from its persistent use invaluable.

It is manifestly unfair to the Phonograph owner to ask him to pay for information that should be cheerfully furnished gratis by the Dealer. The fact that so many are willing to do so proves that their interest in Edison Phonographs and Records was only temporarily under restraint and is now revived; while the further fact that some Dealers have taken so long to wake up to the new condition of things suggests that there are territories which would seem to call for an investigation on our part. It is a serious reflection upon the business methods of any Dealer to have it to say that customers in his territory are compelled to write to the factory for information in regard to the monthly lists of Records.

We trust that it will not be necessary to again call this matter to the attention of the trade. Such Dealers as have permitted themselves to become lax in the matter are urged to act upon the suggestion at once, and prepare themselves for the impetus that the new Attachment Proposition will give to their Record business by renewing their standing orders for the Phonogram and by considering means whereby they may acquaint their customers with the many splendid numbers that have been added to the Amberol catalogue within the past year.

Avoid Confusion—Be Specific in Your Record Orders.

The necessity of specifying on your orders at all times whether or not Amberol or Standard Records are intended grows more urgent with each addition to the Amberol Catalogues. The numbers in both the Domestic and Foreign Amberol lists are duplicating those in the Standard lists, and the duplication will become more common as the Amberol Supplements increase and the Standard decrease in number.

Of course, it is expected that eventually the Amberol Records will entirely supplant the Standards, but until that time it will be absolutely necessary, in order to avoid possible confusion and delay, that every order to Jobbers and to the factory shall distinctly specify whether or not Amberol or Standard Records are wanted. Jobbers are requested to impress this necessity upon their Dealers, and the latter are urged to paste a reminder in a conspicuous place for guidance when making out orders.

An Amberola Testimonial.

The following is a verbatim copy of a letter received from a prominent Canadian manufacturer who recently installed an Edison Amberola in his home:

"Before I purchased the Amberola I wrote you and told you what I thought of my Triumph, but it is not to be compared with the Amberola. Every person who has heard my machine considers it the most natural reproducer of sound they have ever heard. There is only one way to put it,—the Edison is the only machine on the market and the Amberola is the most perfect of all the Edison machines."

The above letter, sent without solicitation, is a fair sample of several hundred in our possession,—testimonials received by Edison Jobbers, Dealers and ourselves. In the short time that the Amberola has been on the market it has established itself securely in supremacy among high-priced Phonographs.

(Fac-simile of letter sent to the Edison Trade)

LAUDER STILL AN EDISON ARTIST.

The Victor Talking Machine Company recently announced quite extensively the making of an exclusive contract with Harry Lauder under which from now on he is to make Records only for the Victor. This statement is incorrect, because the National Phonograph Company has a contract with Mr. Lauder, dated April 10, 1907, under which he is to sing exclusively for us for Phonograph Records for a period of five years, or until April 10, 1912.

The contract rights of the National Phonograph Company were promptly brought to the attention of the Victor Company and we have been assured by them that the announcement in question was made without a definite knowledge of our position in the matter, and that a correction of the error will be made.

We have accepted the explanation given us and so far as we are concerned consider the incident closed, the fact of the matter being that we have an exclusive contract with Mr. Lauder for Phonograph Records.

Very truly yours,

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.

Frank L. Dyer

March 15th, 1910. President.

Have You An Amberola?

If you haven't one in stock put in your order now. We have succeeded in greatly improving the schedule of production so that your Jobber will be able to furnish you with one within a satisfactory time after your order is received.

And you need an Amberola. There isn't a town or village in the United States or Canada big enough to support an Edison Dealer which doesn't offer a market for the instrument, and there isn't a hamlet in either country that will not hear of the Amberola through our advertising. We have only begun at that. That's a significant statement when you consider that the instrument has been advertised by us in the big magazines and national weeklies as well as in over five hundred newspapers throughout the country for the past three months. Yet we say it is only a beginning. We will create a demand for the Amberola that will reach to the threshold of every Dealer's store; there our duty ends.

It's nonsense to think that the Amberola can be sold only to the wealthy. How many families in the most moderate of circumstances own a piano, an organ, or frequently both? Very few; and yet, compared with the Amberola, even the very best and highest-priced of these instruments offer only limited entertainment. The Amberola can be introduced into the average home if the Dealer applies himself to the undertaking with intelligence, enthusiasm and perseverance. To do so he must demonstrate its marvelous tones and almost limitless scope of entertainment. The rest is easy.

Further Injunctions Against Violations of Conditions of Sales

The list published in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY for March, 1910, of cases in which injunctions have been granted against violators of the conditions of sale under which Edison goods are put out, has been increased by the addition of three such cases. These are the following:

N. J. Patent Company and National Phonograph Company vs. The Price Talking Machine Company, Horace H. Wilcox and Malcolm G. Price, Newark, N. J., U. S. Circuit Court, District of New Jersey;

N. J. Patent Company and National Phonograph Company vs. Charles Fredricks, Brooklyn, N. Y., U. S. Circuit Court, Eastern District of New York;

N. J. Patent Company and National Phonograph Company vs. John F. Brenner and Mrs. Clara B. Oakford, Quincy, Ill., U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of Illinois, Southern Division.

The order in the case of The Price Talking Machine Company, Horace H. Wilcox and Malcolm G. Price, was filed by consent, and provides for the issuance of a perpetual injunction against them restricting them from jobbing in Edison goods without a license.

The defendant in the second case, Charles Fredricks, of 842 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., was an unlicensed Dealer in Edison goods, and his operations consisted principally in exchanging Edison Records and reselling them at cut prices. The decree signed by Judge Chatfield, after full consideration of the law as presented by our attorneys and the attorneys employed by Fredricks, is printed below and will repay careful reading by all those who are interested in keeping themselves posted on the kind of protection which the Company affords to its Jobbers and Dealers.

We also print below the decree against John F. Brenner and Mrs. Clara B. Oakford, of Quincy, Illinois, providing for the issuance of a perpetual injunction enjoining the sale of other lines of cylindrical records and machines adapted for use therewith, in connection with the Edison line, and also enjoining sales of Edison goods at cut prices.

At a stated term of the United States Circuit Court in and for the Eastern District of New York and the Second Circuit, held in the Court Rooms thereof in the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, this twenty-sixth day of February, 1910.

PRESENT:

Hon. Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. District Judge holding the Circuit Court.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY, AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants, vs. CHARLES FREDRICKS, Defendant. } In Equity, on Letters Patent No. 782,375.

PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION ORDER.

This cause coming on to be heard on motion of complainants for a preliminary injunction, and affidavits having been filed by complainants in support of said motion and by defendant in opposition thereto, and it appearing from the said affidavits that the complainant, New Jersey Patent Company, is the owner of the patent in suit, and the complainant, National Phonograph Company, is the exclusive licensee thereunder for the manufacture, use and sale of cylindrical sound records embodying the invention thereof throughout the United States and conditions as will power to fix and impose terms and conditions upon the use thereof, and that the Edison Records embody the invention of said patent and that they are manufactured and sold by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, in pursuance of said license and only to jobbers and dealers who are licensed to deal therein and subject to restrictions which are embodied in notices which are printed upon labels affixed to the inside surface of the cartons in which said Edison Records are contained, and that the said restrictions specify, among other things, that the said records are not licensed to be sold in an unauthorized dealer and are not licensed to be sold by the original purchaser or any subsequent purchaser for less than the list price of Edison Standard records, and 50c. each for Edison Amberol records, and it further appearing that the defendant, Charles Fredricks, is engaged in dealing in the said patented Edison records without the license of complainants, and that, having knowledge of said restrictions, he has been and is selling said Edison Records at prices less than the list prices less than fixed by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, both direct from jobbers and dealers and the National Phonograph Company and indirectly and from members of the public, who have purchased the said Edison Records direct from licensed jobbers and dealers of the National Phonograph Company subject to the restrictions in said cartons contained, and that he is engaged in reselling the said Edison records so obtained from these sources, both new and second-hand, at prices less than those so fixed by the complainants, National Phonograph Company; and complainants having appeared at the motion term of this Court, by Charles Hiles, Solicitor and of Counsel, and Herbert A. Howe, of Counsel, and defendant having appeared by his counsel, Messrs. Hunter & Hatch, and the said motion for preliminary injunction having been submitted for decision on briefs, and briefs authorities having been filed on behalf of both parties, and this Court being fully advised in the premises, and being of opinion that a preliminary injunction should be granted as prayed, upon due consideration, it is

ORDERED, that an injunction issue out of and under seal of this Court enjoining and restraining the said defendant, his agents, servants, attorneys, associates, assistants, clerks, agents and workmen, and each and every one of them, pending this suit and the final hearing and order of the Court, from in any way interfering with the carrying out of the selling license system of the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and from soliciting, obtaining or procuring any of the authorized jobbers and dealers of the complainant, National Phonograph Company, to sell at less than Edison Standard Records at less than thirty-five (35) cents each, or any Edison Amberol Records at less than fifty (50) cents each, or in any way in violation of the restrictions in the notices printed upon the labels affixed to the cartons in which the said records are contained when put up by the complainant, National Phonograph Company; and from inducing, aiding, abetting or aiding in any way in the violation of any of the provisions of any and all license contracts between the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and its jobbers and dealers, and from soliciting, aiding, obtaining or procuring any such jobbers and dealers to sell to any one previously purchased the said Edison records in cartons bearing printed notices of the restrictions imposed upon the use and sale thereof by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and subject to the restrictions of the said notices to sell the said Edison records to defendant at second-hand at prices less than those named in said restriction notices printed upon labels affixed to each for Edison Standard records, and fifty (50) cents each for Edison Amberol records, or to violate in any other way any of the said restrictions in said notices contained; and from selling or causing to be sold any Edison Standard records at less than thirty-five (35) cents each and any Edison Amberol records at less than fifty (50) cents each, or any of said records contained in the cartons bearing notices under which the said Edison records were originally sold by complainant, National Phonograph Company, in violation of the conditions and restrictions contained in the notices upon the labels affixed to the cartons containing the same, and from directly or indirectly aiding or causing to be sold, selling or causing to be sold, any apparatus, articles or devices embodying, operating or constructed in accordance with the inventions and improvements of said Letters Patent, No. 782,375, and the reissue and renewal of complainants thereof, and from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

U. S. District Judge holding the Court.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS. SOUTHERN DIVISION.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants, vs. JOHN F. BRENNER AND MRS. CLARA B. OAKFORD, Defendants. } In Equity, on Letters Patent Nos. 782,375 and 789,478.

FINAL DECREE.

This cause came on to be heard on the motion of the complainants, Edward K. Stafford, of Olfield, Ohio, Clarence A. Seward, solicitor for complainants, to enter a decree herein by consent; and it appearing to the Court that the complainants filed their bill of complaint herein on, to-wit, the 3rd day of January, 1910; that the defendants, John F. Brenner and John F. Brenner and Mrs. Clara B. Oakford, were duly served with process; that the defendants have entered their appearance to be entered in said suit; and that the parties have consented to the entry of a final decree herein; therefore, upon the allegation of the premises and it appearing being fully advised—

IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, and the Court doth order, adjudge and decree, as follows, to-wit:

1. That all the material allegations of the said bill of complaint are true.

2. That all cylindrical records and machines manufactured by the National Phonograph Company and sold under the name of Edison Phonographs and Edison Records, by the defendants herein or their agents, have been sold only at the prices and upon the terms fixed in a form where Columbia or Cylindrical records are sold and on which they may be played, or any other make than for Edison made by the National Phonograph Company are on sale.

3. That the said letters patent No. 782,375 dated February 14, 1905, and granted to Jesse G. Aylsworth for a certain new and useful Improvement in Means for Making Duplicate Phonographic Records are good and valid letters patent; that said letters patent No. 789,478 dated August 29, 1905, and granted to Edward L. Aiken for a certain new and useful improvement in Means for Simultaneously Recording Sounds are good and valid letters patent; that the complainant, New Jersey Patent Company, is the owner of the same and of the reissue thereof, for profits and damages arising out of the infringement thereof; that the National Phonograph Company, one of the complainants herein, has an exclusive license under said patent for the use, manufacture, use and sale throughout the United States, including the Southern District of Illinois, of Phonograph Records, embodying said inventions and as such licensee has the right to fix and impose terms and conditions governing the use and sale or resale of such inventions; and that the defendants herein, prior to the filing of the bill of complaint herein, to-wit, on the 3rd day of January, 1910, infringed upon the said letters patent and violated the rights of the complainants hereunder by selling within this District Cylindrical Phonograph Records and Phonograph Motors embodying the inventions set forth in the claims of said letters patent heretofore referred to, and causing the same to be sold in violation of the restrictions printed upon the cartons in which said records are contained, or were contained, when sold by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and by selling or causing to be sold cylindrical records named Edison Standard Records at less than thirty-five cents apiece, and Edison Amberol Records at less than fifty cents apiece, without the license or authority of the complainants, and to the damage of these complainants.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, and the Court doth hereby order, adjudge and decree, that the said defendants, their agents, servants, attorneys, associates and workmen, and they and each of them are hereby perpetually enjoined from the further infringement of said letters patent Nos. 782,375 and 789,478 and the rights of the complainants herein and thereunder.

And it appearing to the Court that the parties have agreed upon the damages and profits, and the defendants have paid the same to the complainants, and paid the complainants' taxable costs, all of the Edison records in their possession, and that the complainants have waived an accounting herein, the decree is made final, the defendants to pay the costs.

We hereby consent to the entry of the foregoing decree.

Eastern States Talking Machine Dealers Organize

The organization of talking machine Dealers of the Eastern States into an association to be known as the Eastern States Talking Machine Dealers' Association was effected at a meeting at the New Grand Hotel, New York, on March 9th, upwards of thirty Dealers responding to the invitations sent out. The Dealers present were enthusiastic at the prospect of the possible good that may be accomplished through the organization, and are confident that the membership will rapidly increase now that a start has been made. An active campaign is already under way for the purpose of securing new members.

The National Phonograph Company was represented at the meeting by Mr. A. C. Ireton, Assistant Sales Manager, who made an address pledging the Company's support to the aims of the organization. At his invitation a party of about a dozen Dealers visited the factory at Orange on March 10th, and after being conducted through the various departments of the plant were the guests of the Company at luncheon.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

The Other 13,000

Their Experiences and Methods Offer Inspiration and Suggestion.

Here's a striking illustration of a neat, orderly stock arrangement—the Phonograph display and recital room of Wm. H. Keller & Sons, proprietors of the "Temple of Music" at Easton, Pa., and real "live wires" in the Phonograph business. The cut shown above is a reproduction of one of a set of nine postal cards, each one illustrating a department in the "temple," which occupies seven entire floors and basement on Northampton and Church streets of that city. In addition to being Dealers in Edison goods, Messrs. Keller & Sons are wholesale and retail dealers in pianos, organs, musical instruments and supplies.

It will be noted in the illustration that the seats are so arranged that the prospective customers can get an unobstructed view of each of the several types of instruments; but what we want to draw particular attention to is the admirable Record arrangement. We have time and again expatiated upon the advantages of the Tray System of keeping Records, and on several occasions, notably in the December, 1909, issue, have explained it exhaustively.

In the illustration the advantages of the system are so evident as to require little comment. Where a Dealer is restricted in floor space one glance at this illustration should be all that is necessary to convince him that the Tray System is the one and only system for him to adopt. Some figures, however, may prove interesting. In each of the five sections shown in the cut there are twelve rows, each holding twenty trays. Figuring that each tray holds four Records, two each of two different selections (which is the least any Edison Dealer should carry), it can readily be seen that in the very small space comprehended there may be carried a stock of 4,800 Records, representing 2,400 selections, and all in numerical order!

Think what that means when a customer calls for a Record. Instead of an aggravating hunt and vexatious delay, a loss of time and patience on your part as well as the customer's, the perfect system of numbers in rotation enables you to instantly place your hand upon the selection wanted. No delay, no dissatisfaction, your stock always in order. Isn't it worth while? Think it over.

The O. A. Reynolds Talking Machine Company, of Springfield, Ill., recently removed to 221 South 5th Street, that city, where improved facilities will enable them to handle customers to much better advantage. They have installed five new sound-proof Record booths in their new quarters. Their change of location was announced to customers by means of a printed circular with which they enclosed an addressed postal. This postal, when filled out and mailed as requested, would put them in possession of the customer's name and correct address, information as to what type of machine he had, whether it played the Amberol Records, whether the customer had a supply of Amberol Records, and also instructed the Dealer to send The Phonogram free for one year.

A clever method of bringing their mailing lists strictly up-to-date at the expense of but little money and time. Take note, you Dealers who have allowed your lists to go stale.

The printing plant and music store conducted by George L. Anderson of Avondale, Pa., who is one of the most up-to-date and aggressive of "The 13,000," was almost totally destroyed by fire on January 30th, entailing a very severe loss which is only nominally covered by insurance. With characteristic enterprise Mr. Anderson immediately applied himself to the task of rebuilding his place of business, his intention being to erect in place of the frame building a new structure of stone. While the building is in course of erection Mr. Anderson arranged for space in a nearby establishment in which to sell Edison Phonographs and Records.

Philadelphia Enterprise

What do you think of this? Mrs. N. A. H. Bromley, Edison Dealer of 5113 Market street, Philadelphia, the interior of whose store is illustrated by the above cut, reports that her sales during the past winter, consisting chiefly of Records and Attachments, aggregate two and one-half times as much as during the corresponding period of the present year!

Small wonder. There are few Dealers that put as much energy and enterprise into their business as does Mrs. Bromley. She pays particular attention to her repair department for one thing, which of course brings her a lot of business in Records that would go elsewhere did she not make a feature of taking care of machines. And when prospective Record customers come in her they are not likely to be disappointed by failure to find what they want. She keeps a good stock, which enables her to compete successfully with the big department stores to which, did she attempt to practice the false economy that so many short-sighted Dealers follow, the business would naturally defect.

She advertises in three local papers and employs some original methods in her window display to call attention to her stock. She is now having a transparent sign made, 12x36 inches, in a narrow mission frame, which reads:

EDISON DAY
NEW RECORDS

This sign she intends to hang against the window glass on the 25th of each month (or 24th, as the case may be). To further emphasize the idea—for the originality of which she is entitled to all credit—she is preparing a blotter, to be mailed with her Phonograms and Record Supplement, which will have printed on it the month's calendar, with the space for the 25th (or 24th) printed "Edison Day."

Mrs. Bromley sees no good reason why Edison Dealers the world over should not employ the "Edison Day" idea. Neither do we; nor do we understand why every Edison Dealer does not pursue the same successful methods that Mrs. Bromley does.

The Bronx Airlight Company, 2977 Third avenue, New York City, are consistent in the use of the mailing list. Every month they accompany the Record Supplement with a letter embodying a novel suggestion or two that must be productive of good results. The best proof of that is the fact that they continue to do it. They are consistent in being persistent; and they will not lose out by it in the long run.

H. R. Sackett, Edison Dealer, of Randolph, Vt., owns a small printing press with which he turns out something novel in the way of hand bills every week. His latest, which was the means of selling three or four machines for him, is reproduced herewith:

LOST!

You have lost, and will lose many more hours of comfort and enjoyment if you are not the owner of an Edison Phonograph that will play the Amberol four-minute Records. You can't get the Phonograph that plays both Standard and Amberol Records for fifteen dollars, or as high as you want to go, and possibly represents if you wish to put one in that was the greatest thing that resulted ever had in happiness, and to make others happy is now, and the way to be happy is to make others happy. Take home a Phonograph and make your family happy.

Have your boys cultivate a taste for music instead of cigarettes.

Come and hear these Records. Hear the H. S. Merle-Hand play one of their grand marches. Hear Will Oakland sing, and many other splendid entertainers.

E. P. MANCHESTER, Randolph, Vt.

Knuepfer & Dimmock, of Lawrence, Mass., took advantage of a recent concert at a local theatre to secure some good advertising, their ad. on the program occupying all the available space outside of the order of entertainment.

Nothing like stealing a march once in a while.

The Indiana Music Company, of Terre Haute, Indiana, supplements the Phonogram each month with a letter which accompanies it and in which they encourage its perusal, asking that the customer take particular notice of some of the features discussed in its pages.

A capital idea worthy of extensive imitation.

The Bozeman Pharmacy, of Bozeman, Mont., gives Saturday evening concerts from 8 to 10 P. M., the invitations to which are gotten up in neat, conventional style, a line cut of an Edison Phonograph harmonizing very nicely with the design of the invitation.

Again the Exchange Proposition

If we could only discover some method of impressing upon our Dealers the absolute necessity of following the provisions of the Continuous Exchange Proposition literally what a relief it would be! And what a deal of unnecessary annoyance and vexatious delay would disappear! We are compelled to write on an average twenty letters a day to Dealers who do not understand or, understanding, disregard the conditions that govern the return of cut-out and defective Records.

The most flagrant violations are the following: the sending of the order for new Records to the Jobber instead of direct to the factory; ordering Records less in number than the quantity returned, and returning Records that are worn out, cracked or otherwise damaged since they left the factory.

Again we repeat that to avoid delay and dissatisfaction orders must be sent direct to the factory, that orders must at least equal in total of Records the quantity returned and that defective Records which are defective from manufacturing causes only will be credited.

There's another phase to the proposition that merits a word of comment. While we are reasonably sure that the majority of our Dealers make some attempt to dispose of the "cut outs," others display a haste in returning them to the factory that under the circumstances is nothing short of indecent. Consideration for the sacrifice which the company is making in eliminating active Records from the catalogue purely as a favor to the trade, and a sense of the obligation which that sacrifice imposes would seem to demand that every Edison Dealer keep the "cut outs," for a while at least, and make an extra effort to sell rather than return them. They can be returned at any time; they should not be returned until an attempt has been made to sell them by setting them aside and giving them preference in demonstration. They are equally as good in every respect as the selections now being added to the catalogue.

The conscientious, thinking Dealer will recognize the justice and expediency of the slight cooperation suggested. The Continuous Exchange Proposition is in the hands of the trade. Its permanency can be insured by a co-operative attitude on the part of our Sales branches just as its revocation is invited by a disinclination to recognize the obligation it entails.

Where Persistency Won

The value of following up a "prospect" was never better demonstrated than in the recent experience of H. S. Hart, Edison Dealer of Shreveport, La., who announced under date of March 16th that he had consummated a cash sale of a Combination Standard Machine with Cygnet horn and a supply of Records which has been hanging fire since January 5th.

The "prospect" in question had seen our ad in a local paper and had written to the factory for a catalogue of Machines and Records. We immediately referred him to our representative who, co-operating with us, began a systematic following-up of the prospective customer with results as above stated. Reviewing the efforts of the Dealer and ourselves in this instance, we find that we wrote six letters, and Mr. Hart six letters and one postal card, before the deal was closed.

We are always willing to co-operate with our Dealers in following up prospective sales in this manner, but the instances are so rare where the average Dealer is not discouraged after a letter or two that we cannot refrain from mentioning the occurrence. It will probably afford fruitful reflection for those Dealers who have dismissed similar opportunities for effecting nice sales by convincing themselves that "the fellow is just writing the factory out of curiosity and I won't bother following it up."

There may be some consolation in such a view, but there's more real consolation in an express money order for $42.05, the profit on which cost the Dealer only the time and expense of writing six letters and one postal,—at least our think so and Mr. Hart is inclined to agree with us.

More Room Needed in Our Office Building

Plans are under way to extend our five-story office building at Orange, and the work will begin probably within a few weeks. An addition of about fifty feet on four stories will be added to the building, in order to provide necessary room for our Sales, Agreement and Advertising Departments, all of which have been augmented by recent additions to their respective staffs. The necessity for additional space has been urgent for some time, and the work will be pushed with all rapidity.

Now then, Mr. Dealer, off with your coat and go for the idle machines in earnest.

A Salesman's Experience

Here's a little incident that should instill confidence in those Dealers who are approaching the handling of Amberolas and Operatic Records with trepidation. This interesting experience was related to us by Mr. A. J. Jones, salesman for the Youmans Jewelry Company, Edison Jobbers at Waycross, Ga.

Mr. Jones, while on a train bound for Fort Myers, Fla., to visit a Dealer, fell into conversation with a fellow passenger, in the course of which his occupation was disclosed. His companion, who afterwards proved to be a well-known banker in the North, immediately warmed up on the subject of Phonographs. He told Mr. Jones what he considered an ideal Phonograph should be, and said he would be perfectly willing to pay a good price for such an instrument, but had never run across one that quite measured up to his requirements.

Mr. Jones, who happened to have a supply of February Phonograms with him, produced one and, pointing to the illustration of the Amberola on the back cover, said, "I think this is the instrument you want."

A brief description of the Amberola convinced the banker that it was exactly what he did want. An order was made out and signed on the spot for shipment, sight draft against bill of lading. When the narrator of the incident looked up the purchaser's standing and found out that he is rated at a cool million needless to say the shipment was made without further delay.

Mr. Jones, who supplements this narrative by the additional information that he sold five more Amberolas within the same week, is an enthusiastic admirer of the instrument as well as a firm believer in the future of the Phonograph industry. In his opinion the Amberola is going to prove a tremendous asset for the Edison trade, and he predicts for it immense popularity in the South; which surely is significant in view of the fact that the Southern territory has always been the most difficult problem in the Phonograph trade. His splendid success with the instrument so far certainly warrants the opinion he entertains.

The ease with which he effected the sale described above ought to go a long ways toward convincing Dealers that it is no more difficult to sell a high-grade Phonograph than a cheap one, provided always that the Dealer applies himself to the work in an intelligent and confident manner. The Amberola inspires confidence in both salesman and customer. It will sell itself if given a demonstration.

Of Interest to the Canadian Trade

The question of duty prohibits our extending the Combination Attachment Proposition to Canada. Sorry for our Canadian friends, but there's no way out unless custom laws can be modified.

It should also be borne in mind by the Canadian trade that for the same reason the list of cut outs, which is being prepared for exchange after August 1, will not apply to Canada, where special provisions covering the Continuous Exchange Proposition are necessary.

The list price of Shaved Standard Blanks in Canada was raised to twenty-five (25) cents each on March 1, in accordance with letter of our Sales Department of that date. Prices to Jobber and Dealer remain as before.

Edison Phonographs and Records in Leper Settlement

In the leper settlement at Kalawao, Molokai, Hawaii, several Home Phonographs and over 1,200 Records, distributed throughout the entire reservation, afford unlimited entertainment to the inmates, especially to the young people, according to a letter recently received by our Foreign Department from the superintendent of the colony. The Records of native songs and dances made in America by Toots Paka's Hawaiians are, of course, in greatest demand, but the leper boys extract no end of amusement from making Records of their own voices—songs, recitations etc. In this they are quite successful, some of the Records, Superintendent Dutton says, being very good—low and quiet, but tuneful.

Enthusiasm

The difference between success and mediocrity in business is enthusiasm. Unless a retail merchant displays genuine enthusiasm over the goods he has to sell—has faith in the business he is engaged in, and shows it to the people with whom he wants to do business, he will not be compelled to make any additions to his building to care for his increased business. Enthusiasm—that's it—enthusiasm.—The Talking Machine World.

New Grand Opera Artist

LUIGI CILLA, TENOR

Luigi Cilla, a young tenor, who is well known throughout the United States, has a very sweet and melodious lyric tenor voice. Everyone knows that lyric voices are extremely rare, and Mr. Cilla has sung some numbers which are especially well adapted to bring out the refined quality of his voice.

Mr. Cilla began his career in Italy, whence he went to Brazil, Portugal and Russia. His repertoire includes such operas as Lucia di Lammermoor, Carmen, Tosca, Boheme, Manon, Faust, Pagliacci, Fedora, Cavalleria Rusticana, Rigoletto, Traviata, Ernani, Martha, Barbiero di Siviglia, Pescatori di Perle and Elisir d'Amore.

It will be seen that for so young a man he has covered a large field. His Records, the first of which appears in the June list, will be welcomed wherever refined singing is appreciated and will be worthy additions to a catalogue distinguished by the brilliancy of its numbers.

Prices of Grand Opera Records

Dealers will find the following table of list prices of Grand Opera Records useful for purpose of reference. Cut out and paste in a convenient place. This table embraces all selections including the June list. We shall revise it monthly as additions are made to the catalogue.

Are you carrying the Amberol Grand Opera Records? You should have, at the least, one of each selection. They are splendid Records, unexcelled by any on the market and at a price in comparison that will appeal to your customers.

In demonstrations of the Amberols they are simply indispensable. Just as the voice of the ordinary singer sounds one hundred per cent. better on the Amberols than it does on the other types of machines, so do the magnificent notes of Slezak, of Constantino, Sylva, Arral and the others impart a grander tone and dignity to the instrument.

Every purchaser of an Amberola will want some of the Grand Opera Records; they go hand in hand with the Instrument. Such customers are entitled to a choice of singers and selections, and the wise Dealer is he who ministers to the customer's wants by placing the entire catalogue at his disposal. Don't hesitate about the Grand Opera Records. Be assured that if any prove unsalable they will be eliminated from the catalogue.

One of our Double-page Magazine and National Weekly Ads for April

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH would still be the greatest sound-reproducing instrument without the Amberola.

The Amberola could add to the final and practical superiority of the Edison Phonograph without Amberol Records.

Amberol Records would still be the greatest triumph in Record making which has ever been placed before Grand Opera fans.

But when you can get the Edison Phonograph unrivaled and perfected by both,

—and when you get in addition to that the Amberola, the finest piece of furniture ever made,

—and when you can have the privilege of hearing the Amberols, of any type of the Edison Phonograph, the Edison Standards, the longest playing records and best sounding records,

—and when you can get them, Edison Records, each negative-filed, the exact tested of the Musical-Artist Edison Composer, and other stars * * * can you think of buying any sound-reproducing instrument until you have thoroughly investigated the Edison, the Amberola, Amberol Records and Edison Grand Opera Records!

We do not ask anyone to buy the Edison Phonograph and Edison Records on our mere statement. We merely ask you not to buy until you have heard them. Then, if you do not get the Edison, the Edison Phonograph with which Amberol Records are to be played, the Amberola with which to play Amberol Records, and our Amberol Records with which to play the Amberola, We will be glad to have you return them to us and we will refund your money.

Thomas A. Edison invented the Phonograph, he has invented every form of the Edison Phonograph, he invented the Amberola, and he is responsible for the Amberol Records.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, LLOYD L. SCHOLL, ORANGE, N. J.

Are you prepared to meet the demand for the Amberola and Amberol Records that these Ads will create in your territory?

Our Advertising: Its Effect

Despite the short calendar February was one of the best months in point of both orders and aggregate sales that the factory has experienced in a year and a half, while March, with more than a week to be heard from at the time this issue went to press, gave promise of exceeding it.

While there is no question but that the public is beginning to buy Phonographs and Records again, we attribute a very great share of this increase in business to the extensive and persistent advertising campaign that we have been carrying on and to the further fact that our appeal to the trade to supplement our work in their respective localities met generally with a ready response. Nothing succeeds like co-operation, and nothing is more stimulating to further and greater effort on the part of the manufacturer than to realize that he is being actively supported by the sales branches of the trade.

We urge our Jobbers and Dealers to continue the good work. There is plenty of business in sight and it will be ours if we continue to work in harmony as we are doing now.

S. R. O.

S. R. O. is a sign, hung up more or less frequently in New York theatres, and means "Standing Room Only."

If any Edison Dealers are crowding their concerts to capacity and need an S. R. O. sign, we'll be glad to see that they're supplied. But don't send out invitations to your concerts and then give your patrons an S. R. O. deal by providing no chairs for them to sit on. The merits of the Phonograph go hand in hand with comfort.

As James Russell Lowell says:

"He stood awhile on one foot fust,
And then awhile on t'other;
And on which one he felt the wust
He couldn't ha' told ye nuther."

"Standing Room Only" is legitimate after sitting room is all taken, but not before.

We simply cannot make enough of Amberol Record No. 566, "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet," which made an instantaneous and tremendous "hit." "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly," No. 416, looks now like an even greater one.

Selling the Goods

It isn't necessary to drop everything else at this moment and concentrate your entire thought and energy upon the Combination Attachment proposition, nor is it advisable. The other features of your business demand a proportionate share of your time and attention.

But it is necessary for your immediate and future welfare that you "get busy" on it at once. If you don't the other fellow is going to beat you to the business. This is surely going to be a case of where "the early bird catches the worm."

And just think for a moment what the "worm" in this case represents. It's not the sale of an outfit; that's only the means to the end. It's the clinching of a customer for future sales. Can you afford to let your competitor steal a march on you with that opportunity at stake? Most decidedly not. Then it's up to you to begin now and make a strong bid for the business.

Send your Jobber an order at once for a supply of the Outfits and for as many packages of the Special Records as you have Attachments in stock. Don't be afraid of any delay in filling it through a scarcity of the Outfits. We are shipping them now and have an immense reserve stock to take care of the rush that is coming.

And don't be over-cautious in ordering. Be on the safe side. You are taking no chances on this proposition. The Combination Outfit is going to be a tremendous seller, for one reason because—it's a bargain. No need to tell you how dearly the great American public loves a bargain.

Start a revision of your mailing lists to-day. There's a valuable suggestion for bringing them up-to-date under "The Other 15,000."

Then prepare a good letter to accompany the four-page circular, under your signature, announcing your readiness to supply the outfit and extending an invitation to a concert at your store. Don't overlook that concert idea.

And, over and above all, as soon as you get the Outfits, ADVERTISE! By window display, by newspaper columns, by circulars,—any and every way that will get the proposition before the public, you should make use of.

The Attachment proposition is now up to you, Mr. Dealer. We have done our share. Now do your's.

This Attachment proposition is going to accomplish a lot of things before it's very old. It will be one of the biggest ads that Edison products ever had. It's sure to create a big demand for the Amberol Records and as a logical consequence, for Edison Phonographs. And it's going to work to the detriment of those Dealers who have been "piking along" with a stingy little stock of Machines and Records.

Who wants to patronize a "one-horse" establishment when he can step around the corner into an up-to-date store and get what he wants and a variety of it? It's just wrong the way some Dealers handicap themselves in that respect, and the pity of it is that they don't wake up until the other fellow has the public educated to patronize his place.

Yes, after all is it a pity?

Edison Phonographs know no class distinction. The prices are made to suit every pocket. Never forget that the man in the overalls is just as fond of music as the fellow whose name graces an office door, and he's just as anxious to provide entertainment for his family—frequently more so.

You may sell only a Gem to the one, and an Amberola to the other, but they both pay the same prices for their Records; and Record sales are your best source of revenue.

The man who is satisfied with the business he is doing is the man who stands still. The discontented man, the one who is constantly scheming for new business, eventually gets it.

Did you do anything with the Masonic and Polk Miller Records? We are most agreeably surprised at the way they are selling. Had no idea they would stir up as much interest as they have. One Dealer, the O. A. Reynolds Talking Machine Co., Springfield, Ill., reports that they placed a two-inch paid reading notice on the Masonic Records in a local paper, and that it had not been in print more than half a day before fifteen members of the Masonic fraternity had called to hear the Records. Is there a Masonic lodge in your town? Why don't you offer to install a Phonograph and the set of Masonic Records on trial?

Spring, gentle Spring, is tapping at the door. We'll open and admit her, as usual, and then signalize her advent by inoculating our systems with huge doses of tonic to dissipate that feeling of lassitude caused by gastronomic indulgence during the winter months.

Did it ever occur to you that the "tonic" idea might with equal propriety be applied to your business at this time of the year? Just a little more energy, a little more enthusiasm infused into your work will build up your business structure just as the tonic invigorates your system.

Keep those Lauder Records before the public. They'll be talking about him for months to come in the cities that he visited. Put on some of them at your concerts. They're splendid Records and will make a hit anywhere and always.

Speaking of concerts we are very pleased to see how generally and successfully the idea is being followed. It's a splendid plan. People are given the opportunity of seeing and hearing the latest types of Machines and Records, and it leads up to other things, too. The Dealer is given the chance of becoming acquainted with his customers, and friendship doesn't drive people away from your door.

Have you ever noticed on a cold winter's night when people are scurrying for their homes how, if their attention is arrested by an unusually attractive or unique window display, they will stand shivering before it until they have made a mental note of its contents? You've undoubtedly often done the same thing yourself, haven't you? You went away from that window with an impression, too.

That's the idea—to make the impression. A good window is a tireless ad. It works day and night, Sundays and holidays. It's always in the public eye. It arrests the attention of the passer-by and sets him on a train of thought that leads him inside.

Don't neglect your window display.

Those decalcomania slides of "The Old Couple and the Edison Phonograph" caught on very nicely. We are selling a great many of them, and they are doing splendid missionary work at moving picture shows. They really make an excellent picture on the canvas, the slide in colors, of course, being the more attractive. A very effective ad.

Window Cards

Good window cards are a necessary adjunct to your display. The new Attachment proposition offers a wealth of suggestions to draw upon. So do the monthly Record lists and the various types of Machines. One big, striking window card will immediately drawn attention to your window. You could easily prepare a new one every day. Here are a few ideas. If you can't improve on them get out your brush and arrange them neatly on cards.

New Domestic Record Talent

MARIE FLORENCE, SOPRANO

"My Hero," the number with which we chose to introduce Miss Florence to the Edison public, is a selection of a particularly exacting nature, demanding a voice of unusual strength, range and sympathetic quality. That Miss Florence easily met the demands of the number proves her an artist of exceptional ability. Her voice is a splendid soprano, and her style of singing gives evidence of careful and intelligent cultivation. We think that Miss Florence is going to be very popular with the Phonograph public and consider ourselves extremely fortunate in having secured her services. Her first Record will establish her firmly in the good graces of Phonograph lovers and insure a ready reception for subsequent contributions.

CORNELIA MARVIN, CONTRALTO

Endowed by nature with a rich contralto voice, Miss Marvin has had the benefit of careful instruction and a wide experience in solo and duet work, particularly in the rendition of sacred numbers. Her first Record for the Edison catalogue is No. 10355 in the May list, a duet Record with Mr. Anthony which may be safely taken as a criterion of her ability. The splendid harmony which distinguishes that selection is present in no less degree in their contribution to the June Amberol list, No. 439, "One More Day's Work for Jesus." In Miss Marvin and Mr. Anthony we have a combination that will be much appreciated by purchasers of sacred Records, and it is needless to remind the trade that their name is legion.

Eastern Talking Machine Associates

The above is the title of an organization formed among the employes of The Eastern Talking Machine Company, of 177 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass., the objects of which are the betterment of the store service and the promotion of sociability among the members. Meetings are held monthly at which papers on different subjects are read by the members and a social hour enjoyed.

At a meeting held on February 24th, one of the salesmen, Mr. W. J. Fitzgerald, read a highly illuminating article on "The Selling Points of Edison Phonographs," in which he compared the various types of Edison machines and discussed the characteristics and distinctive points of each in an exhaustive and intelligent manner. The junior salesmen, for whose benefit the paper was prepared, could not fail to derive beneficial knowledge from the lucid and orderly arrangement of facts which Mr. Fitzgerald presented. His tribute to the mechanical and artistic superiority of Edison products is gratefully acknowledged.

Associations such as "The Eastern Talking Machine Associates" tend to the promotion of harmony and a healthy rivalry among the working forces of any business organization, and are deserving of every encouragement on the part of employers. It would seem to us that the idea could most profitably be adopted by others in the sales end of the business on a less pretentious scale.

A Good Advertiser

M. A. Gordon, Edison Dealer of South Berwick, Maine, does not let many opportunities for advertising get away from him. His latest venture in that respect is a Phonographic dance which he gives at the conclusion of the moving picture show in the Star Theatre of that town, announcement of the fact being made on the regular program. Mr. Gordon reports that the dances are a decided success and an excellent advertisement for his business, as they get everybody talking about the Edison Phonograph. Good advertising, and lots of it, seems to be Mr. Gordon's slogan, as the following extract from his letter indicates:

"In connection with my advertising in the newspaper every week I advertise every Tuesday and Thursday night at the moving picture show. I make my own slides and have a new one for every show. Last summer I gave Phonographic Concerts every Sunday afternoon for over two months at one of the parks here. This is the way I take to advertise your goods."

Commendable, indeed, and worthy of imitation. Summer is a long way off and Phonographic dances at moving picture theatres may not always be feasible. The idea, however, is excellent and may be easily applied to other forms of entertainment, such as lodge affairs, euchres, parties, etc. The use of slides at moving picture shows is a particularly desirable form of advertising and should be generally followed. We have been urging the matter in the last two issues of the MONTHLY and have prepared slides of "The Old Couple and the Edison Phonograph," which are furnished in two colors.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for June, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before May 25th, 1910, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on May 24th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on May 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after May 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before May 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 7 P. M. on May 24th, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for June Records on or before April 20th. Dealers should place June orders with Jobbers before April 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for June, 1910

433 Dem Dear Ole Days—Barn Dance — United States Marine Band

It is eminently fitting that as choice a collection of vocal and instrumental numbers should be headed by musicians of such recognized ability and reputation as Washington's pet organization. The selection, which is a splendid barn-dance written in the proper tempo for dancing, was composed by Arthur Tregina, one of the members of the band. Publisher, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia.

434 The Garden of Roses — Joe Maxwell and Chorus

To the majority of the trade and public this selection requires scant introduction. It is universally conceded to be a vocal gem, excelling both in point of composition and beauty of melody all sentimental effusions of recent date. In its rendition Mr. Maxwell is at his very best. His full, rich and clear notes are sung with fine expression, and his enunciation is, as always, a source of delight. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, J. E. Dempsey; music, Johann C. Schmid; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

435 Larboard Watch — Stanley and Gillette

Extended comment on this Record would be worse than superfluous. Suffice it to say, therefore, that the majestic old song of the deep here receives treatment in every way worthy of a selection of its merit and of singers of such high ability and reputation. "Larboard Watch" ought to be one of the very best selling duet Records in the Amberol Catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, T. Williams.

436 When He Sings the Songs My Mother Sang to Me — Ada Jones and Chorus

The emotions that stir a son of the Emerald Isle when he hears the songs of his native land—songs like "Bantry Bay," "Mavourneen" and "Killarney," which paint scenes and memories of his boyhood days—are the theme of this number, which is given an adequate musical setting and is sung by Miss Jones with just enough of a brogue to add flavor to it. A pleasing chorus lends to the general effectiveness of the rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Wm. Gould; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

437 My Hero — Marie Florence

This is the song "hit" of "The Chocolate Soldier", an Opera Bouffe by Oscar Straus, which has proven to be one of the most successful musical productions of the present season and is still running in New York City. It consists of an air followed by a waltz song which has caught and successfully held Metropolitan favor, and will insure its future popularity throughout the country. The selection requires for its proper interpretation a voice of unusual range, sweetness and strength, in all of which departments Miss Florence, who is the most recent addition to our staff, will be found to more than measure up to the required standard. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Stanislaus Strange; music, Oscar Straus; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

438 The German 5th — Josie Sadler

A vaudeville specialty by another artist whose reappearance in our lists will be greeted as that of a long lost friend. In this Record Miss Sadler manages to combine an amazing amount of entertainment, which well sustains her high standing as a German dialect artist. A comic march song, some wooden shoe dancing, a funny dialogue with an unfriendly orchestra and lastly an imitation of Reisie, the captain of the "German 5th", giving his commands, are included in the Record. Words, Harry Bennett; music, Gus Williams.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard.)

439 One More Day's Work for Jesus — Miss Marvin and Mr. Anthony

A well-known sacred number rendered by contralto and tenor,—a combination of artists whose first contribution to our Records was No. 10155 in the May list. This Record will confirm the good impression made by their first addition to the catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Miss Anna Warner; music, Rev. Robert Lowry.

440 Selection from "The Tattooed Man" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

This Record introduces the following selections from the musical comedy, "The Tattooed Man", one of Herbert's recent successes, which will be easily recognized as the most tuneful and popular numbers of the production: "Oriental March"; "Take Things Easy"; "The Land of Dreams"; "Watch the Professor"; "Nobody Loves Me"; "Snake Charmers' Dance" and "Omar Khayyam." Played in the masterly style which is to be expected from the great composer-conductor and his skilled artists, the Record is an exceptional one, which will appeal most forcibly to the lover of light, graceful music and will add lustre to our catalogue. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

441 Molly Lee — Manuel Romain and Chorus

A lively march song of a patriotic character constructed on themes of such enduring melodies as "We'll Rally Round the Flag, Boys", "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie." The song is a clever composition in which tribute is paid to a "Yankee Dixie Girl", to whom are ascribed all the charms of the American girl of the North, East, South and West. Mr. Romain's rendition will serve to increase the popularity which the song already possesses. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

442 Two Gentlemen from Ireland — Len Spencer and Billy Murray

A vaudeville sketch fairly bristling with Irish wit and humor, interspersed with snatches of song and clog-dancing effects. Spencer's attempt to sell Murray an insurance policy (which is effective only after permission to die is obtained from the president of the company!) is the vehicle for the introduction of a lot of badinage and repartee that will commend the Record to favor. Original for our Records and not published.

443 Foxy Kid—Cornet Duet — Edison Concert Band

A popular number in a new musical setting especially arranged by Frederick W. Hicks, Director of the Edison Concert Band. As a cornet duet the selection is marked by many brilliant instrumental and band effects. The solo parts are rendered by M. Schlossberg and Jobbers, the J. W. Jenkins Music Co., Kansas City, Mo. Composers, L. E. Colburn-Ecke.

444 Forgotten — W. H. Thompson

"Forgotten" is a song of a high order of poetical merit, sentimental in theme and of a sweet though somewhat sad melody. It is found principally in the repertoires of singers of the concert stage. Mr. Thompson's splendid baritone voice is heard to excellent advantage in the rendition of this number. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Anonymous; music, Eugene Cowles; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

445 My Jesus, As Thou Wilt — Edison Mixed Quartette

Sacred selections by our quartette of mixed voices are among the best selling Records in the catalogue. This number will be recognized as one of the most popular of hymns, and it can truthfully be said that the singing is fully up to the standard set by past contributions to the list. Organ accompaniment. Words, Jane Borthwick; music, C. M. von Weber.

446 Moreliana—Spanish Caprice — American Standard Orchestra

A characteristic number by the celebrated Spanish composer, Gaspar Espinosa, which proved to be an immense success in Madrid, the home of Spanish music. The selection in its construction well reflects the temperament of the Spanish people—now gay, now sad, now spirited in style, now languorous. It is marked throughout by brilliant contrasts which are well brought out by the artistic interpretation given it. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

447 Red Clover — Frederic H. Potter and Chorus

A new Indian love song in the style made popular by its authors when they wrote "Blue Feather" (Record No. 10162). This song is expected by the publishers to become very popular. "Cowboy Jack's" love for the Indian maid is committed to attractive words and a pleasing rhythm—the two essentials of a popular song. Mr. Potter sings the number with spirit and is ably sustained by a male chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

448 Peaches and Cream — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

The versatility of these two artists was never better displayed than in this unique vaudeville sketch, in which they imitate a "mesay" and his "goil" on the Bowery. "Peaches and Cream" is the title of the daisy little conversational waltz song with which they open and close the sketch, while "Jimmie's" proposition to pool issues in a matrimonial venture is the subject of a clever and funny dialogue in which the vernacular of the Bowery is used to perfection.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard.)

449 Motor King March — New York Military Band

A stirring march of well defined rhythm and ample volume by the same composer who wrote "Society Swing March" (No. 9935). A bell solo is a feature of the number. Composer, Henry Fantozzi; publishers, P. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

450 Casey Jones — Billy Murray and Chorus

A comic song in four verses and choruses, described as a "comedy railroad song", and which narrates the eventful trip of Casey Jones, the engineer, when he started to make 'Frisco but reached the "Promised Land" instead. Of Western origin it is fast becoming popular throughout the country, because of its rollicking air and the fact that its notes are well within the compass of every voice,—the type of song that finds favor at a banquet, smoker, etc., or with an impromptu quartette. Published by Edison Jobbers, The Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles, Cal. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, T. Lawrence Seibert; music, Eddie Newton.

451 Farmyard Medley — Premier Quartette

A descriptive sketch which opens with the quartette singing a stanza from "Down on the Farm." This serves as an introductory to some good natured chaffing about "boyhood days on the farm," followed by clever imitations of familiar barnyard sounds. The Crowey, "Little Bo-Peep", etc., all furnishing the vehicle for further imitations. This Record is an exceptional one of its kind. Its probable popularity can be gauged from the fact that the two-minute version is one of the oldest Records in that list. Unaccompanied.

452 Morgenblätter Waltz — Sousa's Band

One of the best known waltzes written by Johann Strauss, the famous "Waltz King", the melodius and strongly marked rhythm of whose compositions has distinguished him from all other composers of that type of music. The manner in which the number is here rendered by the "March King's" splendid aggregation of artists is nothing short of superb.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

B193 Zaza—Mamma! non l'ho avuta mai (Leoncavallo) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Carmen Melis, Soprano

($2.00 in U. S.; $2.50 in Canada)

Zaza, so truly indicative of some phases of life, offered Leoncavallo a wide field for musical expression. Love, tears, sacrifice, all the gamut of human feelings are brought into play. Little wonder then that some of the music grips the heartstrings. In this number Zaza, who has believed her lover single, calls at his home and finds that he is married and has a little daughter. The mother and wife is out, and Zaza learns from the little girl how much she is pitiful story of childhood, of the lack of her mother's care, who had been abandoned by her husband and who, to earn the bread, was away from morning till night. Embracing the child, she resolves upon the sacrifice of her love, and telling little Toto how happy she should be, vows that her father shall not be taken from her. Madame Melis gives to this part of the opera all the expression of love and suffering and brings the situation most vividly before her audience.

B194 Pagliacci—Ballatella (Leoncavallo) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Marguerita Sylva, Soprano

($2.00 in U. S.; $2.50 in Canada)

Nedda, left alone, puts aside the fearsome thoughts of her dangerous position, of her fear of her husband, and sings this well-known, so-called "Birdsong." How beautiful does the sun shine, how high fly the birds! What do they ask for, where are they going? Her mother could tell and in her childhood would sing to her of the Bohemian of the air, impelled by some force to fly hither and thither! Full of beautiful strains, this number is also symbolical of the inward force which is compelling poor Nedda, a Bohemian of the earth, onward and to her doom. Madam Sylva sings this very difficult aria with great ease and in most beautiful and effective style.

B195 Werther—Ah! non mi ridestar (Massenet) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Luigi Cilla, Tenor

($1.00 in U. S.; $1.25 in Canada)

Massenet, the master composer of sad and tender strains, certainly could find no better adapted subject to his style than the sad and poetic love tragedy of Charlotte and Werther. The immortal Goethe showed his fondness for Ossian's verses by introducing them into his drama and by them creating one of the tense and crucial moments of the play. Little wonder then that Massenet found in them the inspiration for the exquisite aria, which is here sung in pure lyrical style by Mr. Cilla.

B196 Ballo in Maschera—Eri tu (Verdi) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Ernesto Caronna, Baritone

($1.00 in U. S.; $1.25 in Canada)

Revenge, despair, reproach!—this is the combination conveyed in this aria. Not only does the interpretation make the greatest demand on human expressive powers, but the music runs in the highest baritone range. Long since a favorite among the music lovers, it is now sung by Mr. Caronna in a manner to delight wherever heard.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard.)

B197 Simon Boccanegra—Preghiera di Fiesco (Verdi) Sung in Italian
Orchestra accompaniment ($1.00 in U.S.; $1.25 in Canada) Luigi Lucenti, Bass

Verdi's prolific genius produced so many operas that it is but natural that some of them are now but seldom given. Of all these works, one or more numbers have, however, survived in popular affection. And it is so with this effective aria. From despair and anguish to deep, soulful prayer, such is the scope of this wonderful song, a favorite the world over. Mr. Lucenti has made a very fine Record of it.

Edison Standard Records for June, 1910

10365 Salute to Washington March United States Marine Band

This number was composed by Mr. Lee Sanford, who wrote "Lincoln Centennial March" (Standard No. 10264) and who is also a member of the United States Marine Band. We have not listed a selection by this famous organization since the January list, so that this Record, which is marked by the brilliancy of execution for which the band is noted, will surely be in great demand.

10366 My Husband's in the City Sophie Tucker

Just to prove that her repertoire is not limited to "coon shouts" and "rag" melodies, Miss Tucker offers as her second contribution to the catalogue a comic song which she renders in the "tally" style originated by Geo. M. Cohan. The song in theme is along the lines of "My Wife's Gone to the Country" (No. 10218), describing the ways in which "wifey" takes advantage of "hubby's" absence. Miss Tucker's rendition is capital. With her somewhat masculine but very agreeable voice, her absolutely perfect enunciation and her unique style of singing, she is in a class all by herself. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Zit; music, S. R. Henry; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10367 Underneath the Monkey Moon Collins and Harlan

The number of "jungle" compositions, instead of decreasing, is constantly on the increase; which fact must be interpreted to mean that the public demands that particular type of song. This number is a typical "jungle duet" sung in the familiar Collins and Harlan style—characteristic words set to a good, "swingy" air with comedy interpolations. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Geo. W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Company, New York City.

10368 Annie Laurie Roxy P. LaRocca

A harp solo. The dear old melody in a new setting, beautifully embellished and artistically rendered by Mr. La Rocca, who is at present associated with Manuel Romain in vaudeville as his accompanist. This is Mr. La Rocca's first Record for the Edison Phonograph. In addition to its tunefulness this number is of exceptional volume for a harp selection. Composers, Dunn-La Rocca.

10369 What's the Matter With Father Billy Murray

A comic song in three verses and choruses in which a college freshman comes out strongly for the sparring propensities of his male parent, his surrender to some of which gets the "old boy" into a peck of trouble. The song is set to a good breezy air, which Billy Murray finds an agreeable vehicle for his voice, as is evident from the zest with which he sings it. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Williams and Van Alstyne; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10370 We Shall Meet Bye and Bye Stanley and Gillette

These two singers won instantaneous favor as duettists with the Phonograph public with the very first selection they sang for our Records, and it is expected that they will duplicate that success with the sacred numbers they are now giving to the catalogue. The first of these selections was Amberol No. 425 in the May list. The above selection is a well-known and highly esteemed hymn. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, John Atkinson; music, Hubert P. Main.

10371 I've Set My Heart On You Manuel Romain

A bewitching little waltz song of the dreamy type, in which the "eternal story" is again retold. The tempo of this number is somewhat slower than usual, which perhaps accounts for Romain's peculiar attractiveness, as it seems to impart additional sweetness and charm to Mr. Felix Le Roy. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Milwood and McAlister; music,

10372 The Flatterer Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"The Flatterer" ("La Lisonjera") is among the best known of the piano compositions written by Miss. Cecile Chaminade, the distinguished French composer and pianist. In this Record Mr. Herbert's introduction of his own orchestral arrangement of the number adds greatly to its general attractiveness. A Record that will tickle the fancy of every collector of high-class Records.

* This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the June Phonogram.
(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10373 Dreamy Town Joe Maxwel

Another new sentimental song "hit" by the popular writer, George W. Meyer, composer of "Lonesome" (No. 10219), to which it bears a strong melodic resemblance. "Dreamy Town" is an imaginary city where fond lovers, undisturbed by mundane cares, have naught to do but loll and coo 'neath azure skies and smiling moons. Mr. Maxwell's singing in this number to become a favorite with the Edison trade and public as his Records become better known. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Geo. W. Meyer; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

10374 Cupid's I. O. U. Ada Jones and Billy Murray

A sprightly conversational duet describing a lover's quarrel between a boy and girl, in the course of which he recounts the many squeezes and kisses he owes her,—a debt which he insists upon repaying before they part. It is difficult in listening to this Record to convince one's self that the voices of the singers are not really those of a boy and girl. Miss Jones and Mr. Murray have established a reputation in the rendition of "Kid" duets that is most enviable. The air of this number is as winsome as the words are clever. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Drislane and Alfred Bryan; music, Geo. W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Company, New York City.

10375 Don't Go Up in That Big Balloon, Dad Murry K. Hill

A mock ballad sung by the popular comedian in his inimitable style. In tones vibrant with emotion he relates how a little blue-eyed girl, whose drunken father insisted on being the heroic figure in a balloon ascension, insured his residence among earthly shades for a time at least by puncturing the balloon with a hat-pin. The chorus will give an idea of the nature of the selection:

Don't go up in that big balloon, dad,
Don't go in that balloon!
You will get dizzy and fall, dad,
And disturber will be ended soon.
That's me up in that big balloon, dad,
Go back to the beer saloon.

Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Edna Williams.

10376 Love's Torment Waltz American Standard Orchestra

A gypsy waltz, the collaboration of Richard Barthelemy and Enrico Caruso, and the greatest hit of its kind since the "Merry Widow" waltz. There is just one waltz that is played everywhere in London, Paris and along the Riviera this season, and that is this new valse tzigane, "Adorables Tourments." Artists and amateurs, soloists and street boys, the blue Hungarian bands of the exclusive hotels and the pianist of the Montmartre café chantants, all sing, whistle or play its dreamy, amorous strains,—a significant proof of its popularity. Publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City. The rendition of this number is in the clever style that is expected of the American Standard Orchestra. Their Records are invariably splendid.

10377 I'm Looking For a Angel Victoria Dressler

It's "a angel widout wings," however, that Marie is searching for in this number. It seems that her "man" has run away "wid a chuckle-headed coon" and left her "flat broke", so she has determined to consecrate her future to the Thespian are if she can find the necessary so far baffled successful imitation. She is one of the most original and unique characters on the American stage. Orchestra accompaniment.

10378 The Bulldog—College Song Peerless Quartette

An old and favorite college song, with the typical rambling, rollicking air and impossible themes that characterize such numbers. It is sung by male voices unaccompanied, so that its splendid harmonization stands out all the most distinctly. College songs are having considerable vogue at the present time and as about all of the numbers of which this song is composed are well known the Record ought to find favor.

10379 Bachelor's Button Sousa's Band

This selection is styled an "Intermezzo Ragtime", and is written by the same composer who gave us the well-known "Gondolier Intermezzo" (Record No. 8254). There is a splendid swing to this number and a pronounced rhythm that augur well for its immediate popularity with the Phonograph public. It is unquestionably one of the most attractive band numbers of the Standard list, and band numbers, especially when played by Sousa's splendid musicians, are always appreciated. This selection is also published by an Edison Jobber, the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., Kansas City, Mo. Composer, W. C. Powell.

This Attachment proposition puts you in a position now to insure yourself a steady revenue during the summer months when business quite frequently is quiet. Every outfit you sell represents a profit for you, and an investment for your future.

Your Record customers are your reserve fund. This proposition will assist you in building up that reserve fund. There is more profit in an Amberol than a Standard Record, and Amberol customers buy more Records than Standard customers do. What's the answer?

A Record Breaker.

To L. Mitchell, Edison Dealer of Winthrop, Wash., must be handed the palm for individual Record selling feats. On a recent occasion after playing twelve hours for one customer he effected the sale of 63 Standard and 37 Amberol Records, from which he received the neat check of $40.55. This same customer, when he purchased his machine three months before, had bought 50 Records.

A few days before he made this extraordinary sale Mr. Mitchell sold 50 Records to one customer and 44 to another. Mr. Mitchell demonstrated his Phonographs and Records during the past winter in the homes, carrying at times as many as 800 Records and several machines in the sled in which he visited customers and prospects in the surrounding territories. It looks as if home demonstration is a paying proposition in Okanogan County, Wash.

Sales Department Bulletin No. 46
March 15, 1910
Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should mention its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

As briefly outlined in our letter of December 6th, 1909, on the subject of COMBINATION ATTACHMENTS, we have for some time past been considering as to how we could best place these before the public in a way which would be productive of immediate results, and at the same time slightly increase the Dealer's profit.

We have decided to inaugurate the plan as clearly set forth below, and by means of which, with your aggressive efforts, we hope to again bring into active use many Edison Phonographs which may have been laid aside, due to their original equipment being for the Standard (2 minute) Records only.

This plan, which to the consumer means hardly more than the price of the Special Amberol Records furnished in connection with the Attachments, should prove an incentive for every Dealer to make a thorough canvass of his territory, thereby ascertaining the names of all Edison Phonograph owners, and to such as may be without the Attachment, this matter can be convincingly brought to their attention, and as we have pointed out to you in the past, the sale of an Attachment means a new and continued customer for Amberol Records, the Dealer's profit on which is unusually attractive.

We will until further advised, place in the hands of the trade

A COMBINATION ATTACHMENT OUTFIT

consisting of the Attachment and TEN SPECIAL AMBEROL RECORDS, at the following prices:

	Dealers	List
Gem Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	$3.60	$5.00
Standard Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	4.35	6.00
Home Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50
Triumph Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50
Idelia Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50
Balmoral Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50
Conquerer Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50
Alva Combination Attachment and Ten Special Records	6.85	8.50

These Ten Special Amberol Records have been made for the express purpose of creating a new interest on the part of Phonograph users in Amberol Records, and to that end our recording department have used their best efforts, succeeding in producing a variety in both artists and material which will please the most critical.

From now on (unless instructed to the contrary), your orders for Attachments will be filled by your Jobber with the complete Outfits, in a special container consisting of an Attachment and the Ten Special Amberol Records, to be sold at the following list prices:

Gem Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	$5.00
Standard Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	6.00
Home Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50
Triumph Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50
Idelia Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50
Balmoral Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50
Conquerer Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50
Alva Combination Attachment and Ten Special Amberol Records	8.50

For such Edison Combination Attachments as you now have in your own stock, your Jobber will accept a single immediate shipping order for a sufficient number of packages containing the Ten Special Amberol Records only, AT A NET PRICE OF 40 CENTS PER PACKAGE, with the distinct understanding that such Records ARE ONLY TO BE SOLD IN CONJUNCTION WITH AN EDISON COMBINATION ATTACHMENT, AT THE STIPULATED PRICES, AND THE SEAL OF THE PACKAGE MUST NOT BE BROKEN BEFORE DELIVERY TO THE CUSTOMER.

No objection will be made should you desire to open a single package of these Special Records, to be used as samples for demonstrating purposes.

In consideration of the special price at which these Records are sold, no allowance will be made for breakage.

These Special Records will not be returnable to the factory under any Exchange Proposition.

Orders should be placed with your Jobber immediately (who will be in a position to make shipments early in April), and the goods to go on sale as soon as received.

IMPORTANT: The utmost care should be used in ordering these special sets of Records, so as to "even up" with the Attachments you have on hand, as these Records cannot be sold in any other manner than as above outlined. Violations of any of these provisions will be summarily dealt with.

The Special Record "Hits"

Advancing the sale of popular Records one month, as was done with "The Cubanola Glide" and "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," seems to have found favor with the trade. The advance orders for these two selections were unusually heavy, and the permanency of the plan seems to be assured. We suggest that these Dealers who have not already done so place standing orders at once with their Jobbers so that they may be on the ground floor when the next "hit" is listed. You may depend upon it that we will not put out a Special Record of any selection unless it has developed pretty healthy ear-marks of popularity.

Among the Jobbers

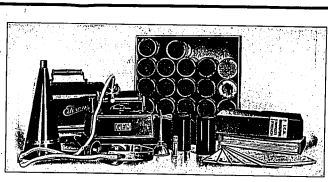
The Standard Talking Machine Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., have given up the retail line and will hereafter confine their attention to jobbing. To more conveniently handle a growing trade they have moved into larger and better quarters on the eighth floor of the Irish Building, 209-302 Pennsylvania Avenue.

The R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., 121 Princess Street, Winnipeg, Man., Canada, have removed to 421 McDermot Avenue, corner Francis Street, same city.

Mr. D. Shepherd, of D. Shepherd & Company (successor to the Cummings, Shepherd & Company), of Fort Worth, Texas, died recently.

Harger & Blish, who formerly conducted a branch establishment in the Security Building, Dubuque, Iowa, have removed their stock from that point and combined it with the stock carried by them at Des Moines, which will hereafter be their headquarters.

Philip Werlein, Ltd., the well-known piano and music dealer of 605-609 Canal Street, New Orleans, La., and one of the leaders in that line in the South, was recently installed as an Edison Jobber.



Cohen & Hughes, music dealers of 315 N. Howard Street, Baltimore, Md., also became Edison Jobbers recently. Joseph A. Grottendick, formerly of E. P. Droop & Sons, has taken charge of their talking machine department.

E. A. Neff, our former traveling representative in Texas, who recently became manager of W. H. Ross & Son, Portland, Me., signalized his entrance upon his new duties with a characteristically energetic letter to their Dealers, in which he laid particular stress upon the unusually salable qualities of the three Edison "Special Records."

R. S. Williams & Sons, Toronto, Ont., are giving Amberola recitals of the new Amberol, Domestic and Grand Opera Records on the 25th of each month in their Recital Hall, announcement of which is made by a neat four-page programme containing the entire monthly lists of two and four-minute Records, together with a description of the Amberola and references to the Edison operatic artists.

This is the New I.C.S. $35 Language Outfit

One firm has ordered 300 outfits. Another firm sold outfits 24 hours after their receipt. They are ordering them all along the line wherever the outfits are shown. Why? Because they are sellers; they are profit makers; and they cater to a field that will quickly appreciate and purchase them.

This outfit provides the very best method for teaching foreign languages in the world; a method that is indorsed by professors of the leading colleges and by the French, German, Spanish, and Italian Embassies in the United States. It teaches French, German, Spanish, and Italian to English-speaking people and teaches English to foreigners.

The I. C. S. outfit consists of an Edison Gem Phonograph made especially for language work, small horn, head-band hearing tube, oil can, and 25 conversational records teaching pronunciation that is guaranteed to be absolutely correct with native intonation and inflection. Accompanying these conversational records, there are pamphlet instruction papers teaching the theory of the language.

Not only is this the most complete and by far the best language outfit on the market, but it is the cheapest, as it sells for only $35. If you are alive to your best business interests, you will write today for further particulars—for the sake of increased business write us today.

The Attachment Proposition Is Making Things Hum

Well, it is doing just what we said it would do, and it has been in effect only one month. We are perfectly justified in saying "I told you so," for it has stirred up things all along the line as has no other proposition in the Phonograph business since the Amberol Record was put on the market.

We were prepared for it because we had taken the precaution of preparing a big reserve stock of the Special Records and Attachments, but we needed almost the entire stock we had to take care of the orders that came in response to our bulletin. There's no danger of famine, however; we are turning out the outfits in sufficient quantities to take care of any and all orders.

It is simply splendid the way our Jobbers and Dealers are going after the unused machines. Among the mass of sample circulating literature on the proposition received by us from the trade are a number of forms that were printed and ready for mailing the day after the bulletin was received! That's what we call "quick action." It's safe to say, too, that it is being advertised better than any feature of the business has in years. The trade was quick to see the advantages and attractiveness of the proposition, and the public will rise to the tempting bait offered in gratifying fashion.

This proposition is going to make a big difference in the Record business of every wide-awake Dealer during the summer months—just when he needs it most, too. The Dealer whose newspaper advertising and printed matter penetrate the homes and bring the neglected machines out of the cobwebs of disuse into activity will reap his reward in the steady stream of profits that will accrue from the sales of Records to the new customers.

We want to warn Dealers against relaxing their efforts after they dispose of the Attachments they were carrying in stock at the time the proposition was launched. We don't think many will, for the demand for the outfit will convince them of the expediency of exhausting every possible means of discovering un-amberolized machines and of being in a position to equip them; but there are always some Dealers who believe in a "playing safe" policy, and it is to such that the warning is addressed.

We want to warn them also of the expediency of immediately stocking up on Amberol Records so as to take care of the demand for them which the Outfits will bring. This is a matter that should be looked after at once.

The Dealer who neglects this opportunity of converting into active Amberol Record purchasers his lost customers as well as those who have been buying Standard Records but whose machines are not yet equipped with the Amberol attachment, is simply trifling with fate and inviting business failure. There's a splendid chance at hand for every Dealer to practically rehabilitate his business, and the way to do it is to push every ounce of energy and enterprise at his command into the sale of the Attachment Outfit. Such a chance doesn't come often in a business or lifetime and the wise Dealer will appreciate the fact.

Just a word of caution. Among the 13,000 odd Dealers there is a possibility that an odd one or two may attempt to take advantage of this proposition and endeavor to obtain extra packages of the Special Records for individual sale. We hope that this will not occur, and think, with the co-operation of our Jobbers, that we will be able to prevent it by making it impossible for any Dealer to receive more than a single shipment of the Records. We will be prepared, however, to immediately investigate and prosecute any violation of the conditions under which these Records are to be sold.

Have You An Amberola?

Or, rather, have you had one? For we know that the Dealer who has had one in stock for any length of time is the exception that proves the rule. We wish it were possible to publish all of the letters we have received from our Dealers to prove the quick market the instrument finds. Here's a sample extract from one received from the A. S. Cook Company, Edison Dealers of Woonsocket, R. I., under date of March 19th.

"We were fortunate in securing another Amberola from Messrs. Pardee-Ellenberger Company last Monday morning. This machine is also sold for delivery Monday morning.

"This makes the fourth Amberola sold by us since the first of the year, every sale being for cash. In each case the machine has gone into the hands of simple, common-place people, and we have not yet begun to 'turn the spade.' The writer has not been able to keep an Amberola on the floor long enough to be able to go after the people we intend to sell to before the year is out."

"In each case the machine has gone into the hands of simple common-place people,"—that's the phrase that tells the whole story and that you ought to let sink deep into your memory, Mr. Dealer. You, perhaps, like a good many others, have persuaded yourself that the only market for the Amberola is among the rich, and that to invest in one now and wait until you dispose of it among the rich in your community before you realize anything on your investment would be tying up too much money for too long a time. In other words you lack confidence. You are skeptical of your own ability and the salability of the instrument.

The above letter is representative of hundreds of others of its kind that are sent us by enthusiastic Dealers. It ought to inspire you with confidence in both yourself and the Amberola. It proves that the market for the Amberola lies among the great middle class of people rather than among the rich, and that the instrument requires but little salesmanship—that it will sell itself.

There are thousands of people who are ready and willing to purchase a high-priced talking machine but who were not convinced by the types of instruments on the market before the Amberola made its appearance. They wanted an instrument that carried the positive guarantee of Edison excellence with it. The word "Edison" stands for quality and honest dealing, and the public is well aware of the fact. The name commends the article that bears it.

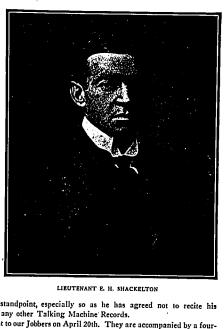
Those people are still in the market and you now have the instrument that will convince them. Together with the highest development of sound-reproduction—and the Edison Phonograph has always been considered unrivalled in the naturalness of its tones—you can offer the perfection of design and finish in cabinet construction. You are given an instrument that will prove an ornament in the homes of the most fastidious. The Amberola represents in a superlative degree the point to which sound reproduction has been developed in the Edison laboratories. Its clear, deep, rich tones and marvelously distinct enunciation distinguish it from all other instruments of its type, and would constitute an overwhelming argument in its favor even were it not enclosed in the most graceful and appealing of cabinet designs.

The Amberola is going to make history in the Phonographic field. It will find its way into the homes of not only the wealthy but those of the great middle class of our people who want only what is best in its line. But it must be seen to be appreciated. No sane person would think of investing in a piano or other high-priced musical instrument without first seeing it and being given a demonstration of its tone and quality. Just so with the Amberola. You can't hope to convince a prospective customer with house literature alone. When a man is going to invest $200 in a Phonograph he has to be shown.

Our word for it that he'll not have to be shown an Amberola more than once before he makes up his mind that he wants it.

The Attachment Proposition In Canada

Our Canadian trade did not lose much time in getting busy when they learned that the question of duty would render the Combination Attachment Proposition inoperative in Canada. The promptness with which they took the question up has resulted in its reconsideration. One conference has already been held with Canadian customs officials, and at the time we go to press is seems very probable that some arrangement will be made whereby the Proposition can satisfactorily be extended to the Dominion trade.



Meanwhile, all credit to them for their prompt and energetic display of interest in the matter. It proves that our Canadian Jobbers and Dealers are on the alert and do not propose to let anything that may improve their sales pass by unheeded.

A South Pole Record by Lieutenant E. H. Shackleton

Of extraordinary interest to the Edison trade and the public is the announcement that Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, C. V. O., has made an Amberol Record (No. 473) of his experiences on his recent dash toward the South Pole. In this Record he tells of the dangers and privations endured by his party in the "Frozen South."

It is a Record that will awaken immense interest throughout the country, especially so as Lieut. Shackleton (or "Shack," as Harry Lauder familiarly calls him) is now engaged in lecturing on his trip in the principal cities of the United States and Canada. Although he did not succeed in reaching the coveted goal he approached within ninety-seven miles of it—nearer than any explorer had ever penetrated before—and he is today scarcely less in the limelight than Commander Peary.

He is a man of wonderful personal magnetism, which easily establishes him in the favor of his audiences and insures him an enthusiastic reception wherever he appears. Because of his immense popularity we consider the securing of this Record a splendid stroke of enterprise from a commercial standpoint, especially so as he has agreed not to recite his experiences in the South Pole regions on any other Talking Machine Records.

LIEUTENANT E. H. SHACKELTON

The Records were ready for shipment to our Jobbers on April 20th. They are accompanied by a four-page folder with descriptive matter and bearing a half-tone of Lieut. Shackleton, also a window hanger similarly illuminated. We urge every Edison Dealer to anticipate the demand for this Record, which can not fail to interest the public, by placing an order for a quantity at once.

The list price of the Record is 50c, and it is subject to the usual allowance for breakage, and the usual terms and delivery. The Records are to go on sale as soon as received.

Read the Bulletins

On pages 23-25, inclusive, are four Sales and Advertising Department Bulletins, all of which should be carefully re-read by both Jobbers and Dealers. They cover matters of such great importance to the trade that no detail should be allowed to escape the attention of any Jobber or Dealer.

Advertising Department Bulletin No. 20 in particular calls for the careful and earnest consideration of the Sales branches, and it is to be hoped that the suggestion embodied in it will awaken the attention of the trade to the vast possibilities that exist in almost every locality in connection with the Sale of Foreign Records. Some of the Dealers have been making a splendid success of this branch of the business, and there is no reason, considering the character of our population, why almost every Dealer in the business should not be able to do likewise.

To Expedite Matters

We have inaugurated a new method of handling Dealers' Exchange orders which will obviate the annoying delay in filling them that has been the rule heretofore and will, we are sure, prove satisfactory to all concerned. This was outlined in Sales Department letter to Dealers of April 13.

Hereafter, instead of waiting for the Records to be received and inspected and credit memorandum to be issued before forwarding the order to the Jobber, we will send the order to the Jobber designated immediately (providing, of course, that all other conditions have been satisfactorily complied with), with the understanding that it is to be filled at once and credit accepted as rendered by us at a future date.

By this arrangement we will avoid the long and vexatious delays that most otherwise prevail,—delays in transportation, in subsequent inspection of the Records at the factory, and issuance of credit memoranda—and will enable the Dealer to get his order filled within a satisfactorily short time. There may, and probably will, be more or less discrepancies between the monetary values of the Dealers' orders and the sum of credit allowed for the returned Records, but these can readily be adjusted and are of minor importance compared with the greater despatch and satisfaction which the new order of things will insure.

A Word of Caution

If possible we want to lend emphasis to our Sales Manager's letter of April 6, wherein he cautioned Dealers against any attempted evasion of the requirements of the Continuous Exchange Proposition.

The cases in point which prompted this letter and the present reiteration of its substance were not numerous but disagreeable, in that they indicated a disposition on the part of some of our Dealers which is scarcely in keeping with the spirit of the Continuous Exchange Proposition. We were advised that several Dealers, after sending us their orders for Stock Records, had written to their Jobbers pleading their inability to use the full quota ordered, and asking that only a partial shipment be made and the balance be either credited to their accounts or sent in subsequent shipments.

It must be distinctly understood once and for all that concessions of this kind will not be made by our Jobbers, nor will the attempt of any Dealer to evade the conditions of the Exchange be tolerated. If a Dealer wishes a continuation of its privileges he will do well to govern himself by its provisions and follow them out in spirit as well as letter.

The Continuous Exchange Proposition is a most liberal concession to the trade. It permits a Dealer at the expense of only the return freight charges to replenish his stock with new and more salable Records. It must be construed as a concession, however, and not as a license to imposition. We will tolerate no violation of its conditions. Should any of this description be brought to our attention in the future we will take prompt and vigorous action that will prevent repetition.

In this connection it should be understood that Dealers' orders must equal in number the Records returned to the factory. For instance, if one hundred Standard Records are returned the offsetting order must be for either one hundred Standard, one hundred Amberol or a combination of both that will aggregate one hundred. The monetary value is of no consequence; the number ordered must equal the number returned. And Stock Records alone can be ordered. Orders for Records on advance supplements will not be accepted.

"Casey Jones"

Amberol Record No. 450 is going to prove one of the most popular numbers of the Edison catalog. It is a novel song, probably the only one of its kind on the market, and this fact, together with its swinging air, will make it a positive "hit" within a very short time. It is being extensively advertised, as well as sung by some of the most prominent vaudeville and minstrel artists on the stage, and has already attracted a lot of attention in the East. On the Pacific Coast, and in the Southwest it will be in especially heavy demand, but its popularity will by no means be confined to those sections.

We advise our Dealers to anticipate the demand for "Casey Jones" Records.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

New Record Talent—Señor José Rocabruna

Señor Rocabruna, an eminent violinist, well known in Europe and Latin America, has contributed a beautiful Record to the July Amberol list —No. 460, (a) Romance (Schubert) and (b) Tarantella (Lacombe). Several Records by him will also be found in the Mexican catalog—an Amberol Record, "Romantica," and "Olé" and "Ultima Lágrima," two-minute Records, all three exceptional Records of their kind.

Señor Rocabruna is immensely popular in all the capitals of Europe and South America, where he has toured many times with great success. He is a member and one of the leaders of the Jordá-Rocabruna Quintet, a famous orchestra of Mexico City, in which he plays first violin parts.

Of hardly less fame than its possessor is his violin, which is an Amati and valued at $1,000. It was built by Andrea Amati, in Cremona, Italy, in the sixteenth century, nearly four hundred years ago. It is a masterpiece of violin construction, combining beauty of design with the wonderful tone quality which made the Cremona makers so famous and of which they alone knew the secret. The above selections are played on this rare instrument, and the Records reproduce the beautiful tones of the original with remarkable fidelity.

Error in April Phonogram

In the April issue of the Phonogram the list price of Grand Opera Amberol Records was incorrectly given as $1.00. This would seem at first sight to be a piece of gross carelessness on our part as the prices were revised, effective April 1, by Sales Department bulletin of January 28. As a matter of fact, however, the error was unavoidable as the April issue was printed before the change in prices was decided upon, expedition in the shipment of the monthly Records requiring that the Phonogram be prepared and printed practically three months in advance of date. The error, moreover, was discovered too late to admit of our printing explanatory slips and enclosing them with each Phonogram.

We shall, therefore, depend upon our Dealers to explain the matter to their customers whenever it is brought up, although it is reasonable to assume that the back cover ad of the May Phonogram has already had the effect of correcting the impression which the error created.

Assured Success

Here is an extract from a letter dated March 10th, from the City Drug Store, C. C. White, Prop., New Madrid, Mo., which betrays an Edison Dealer who is simply bubbling over with enthusiasm and confidence:

"The Edison Phonograph agency pays me better than any other line I ever carried since I've been in the drug business,—in fact, the profits on Phonographs and Records equals and, in some months, surpasses the profits on the drug business.

"I value my Edison agency very highly. Even though this is a town of only 2,000 population, I expect to sell over $3,000.00 worth of Amberolas, Phonographs and Records this year. This is a minimum mark; I will likely go considerably over it."

Can any reasoning mind predict anything but success for a man who brings into his business such a measure of optimism and enthusiasm as does this Edison Dealer?

Let us hear of your success with the Combination Proposition.

What Do You Suggest?

Once in a while we receive a letter from a Jobber or Dealer commenting upon some article that has appeared in the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These instances (and they are only too rare) are particularly gratifying in that they prove that there are some among the trade who recognize and appreciate the value of a house publication. Needless to say, in the Phonograph, as in probably every other industry, the great majority do not; or, if they do, never give any indication that they find the pages of the Monthly beneficial or even interesting.

We would like to stir up a little interest in this subject—would like to find out how many of our Jobbers and Dealers actually read the publication regularly; but there doesn't seem to be any satisfactory way of getting the information. Many schemes have been suggested, but none of them ever seemed to be feasible and at the same time likely to produce satisfactory results, so they have in turn been abandoned.

We must be content, therefore, with the knowledge that the publication is actually of value to some of the trade, and for the benefit of the interested ones must strive to increase its efficiency. With that object in view we urge their continued interest and solicit their co-operation.

We would like to make the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY a clearing house for ideas in connection with the sale of Edison products, and to that end suggest that Jobbers and Dealers from time to time acquaint us with methods which they have found successful, in order that we may print them for the benefit of the rest of the trade. Some Jobbers and Dealers co-operate to that extent now, but in proportion to the number in the sales branches of the trade the number of those who take active interest to that extent is pitifully small. If you have hit upon something novel or effective to exploit the goods, sit down and communicate the result of your discovery to us. We will gladly print it, and your example will undoubtedly inspire imitation among others. Who knows but that some Dealer living thousands of miles away may have an idea which you could profitably employ in your locality?

We would also like to receive criticisms together with suggestions for the improvement of the Monthly. Send them in—adverse or favorable we will appreciate them. If the former, we will be enabled from the consensus of opinions to form a better idea of what the trade wants; the latter will encourage us to go on to better things. In either event let us hear from you.

The MONTHLY represents the expenditure of a large sum of money on our part. It is a shame if it is spent in vain. If it is, the fault is scarcely ours. We aim to make it attractive and beneficial to the trade, but we are far from infallible in our judgment and the publication may consequently fall very short of what it should be. From the opinions of the many could be crystallized ideas for a Monthly that would approach pretty near to what a house publication should be.

The PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is your publication. If its present form meets your approval let us hear from you; if it doesn't, let us know wherein you think it can be improved.

A Bad Policy

It has been brought to our attention that Jobbers are being importuned by their Dealers to ship them Amberolas on approval or, to state the case more explicitly, with the understanding that their retention be conditional upon the decision of a prospective customer. If the customer is dissatisfied with the instrument, or not in a position to purchase it, the Amberola goes back to the Jobber.

We want to set the seal of our disapproval upon such a suggestion. In the first place it is impossible under existing conditions as it means practically a consignment of the machines, which of course constitutes a direct violation of the Jobbers' Agreement. Even were the objection not present we would still be opposed to it for the reason that it militates against the best interests of both Jobber and Dealer.

It is poor policy for the Jobber, as the experience of others in the Phonograph business has proven. Invariably a machine which has been returned after a trial of this kind will be found to be in a more or less damaged condition, and its sale value will depreciate with each time it is sent out. That fact alone should convince Jobbers that the scheme will not work to their best interests.

In the Dealer's case the objection is that it cripples him by teaching him to depend upon spasmodic displays of a high-grade machine, when he should be equipped with one at all times to approach the class of trade that can not be touched with the ordinary horn machine. There is nothing like being prepared to supply the wants of all classes of customers at all times. No live Edison Dealer can or will afford to be without an Amberola on his floor, or to relax in his efforts to interest the public in the machine.

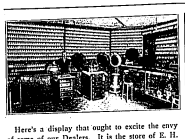
THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH SECTION IN JOHN WANAMAKER'S NEW YORK STORE

The above illustration will interest the Edison trade, showing as it does the manner in which one of the greatest department stores in the world—Edison Jobbers, by the way—displays the Edison line. The completeness of the display is equally as noticeable as the attractive manner in which it is arranged, every type of Edison Machine with Cygnet Horns being in evidence. It will also be noted that the Tray System of carrying Records is used.

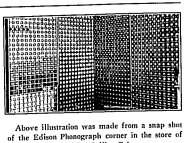
The cut shows the music room in the foreground but does not include the five private music rooms exclusively devoted to Edison Phonographs, which are separated by glass partitions shown in the background. The Wanamaker people take a great deal of pride in the Edison Phonograph section of their store. They claim it is the most complete of its kind and far superior to that of any other department store.

We have had occasion before to comment in the Monthly upon the elaborate scale on which John Wanamaker advertises Edison Phonographs and Records in the columns of the big New York and Philadelphia dailies. It is due in great measure to his advertising that he is recognized to-day as the foremost of the country's merchant princes.

Richmond Piano Exhibition



The National Phonograph Co. will be represented at the Richmond Piano Exhibition, which runs from May 16 to 21 inc., by Sales Manager F. K. Dalbeer, Salesman-at-Large J. W. Scott (the "Colonel") and several assistants. Spaces No. 22 and 23 in the most prominent section of the exhibit have been reserved and an elaborate display of Edison Phonographs and accessories will be made. The Richmond Exhibition is expected to eclipse previous affairs of that nature, and is looked forward to with much interest by the music trades.



A Pathetic Coincidence

Just after Manuel Romain finished singing "Mother's Boy and Home," at the Empire Theatre, Pittsburg, on the evening of March 7, a telegram from his brother in Cambridge, Mass., was handed him stating that his mother was dying with pneumonia. Meanwhile the audience was clamoring for the return of the singer. With an aching heart, Mr. Romain was compelled to return three times before the curtain and repeat stanzas of the song. Only the performers and employes of the theatre noticed the tremor in Mr. Romain's voice.

The Other 13,000

Their Experiences and Methods Offer Inspiration and Suggestion

Here's a display that ought to excite the envy of some of our Dealers. It is the store of E. H. Harding, of Norfolk, Va., another Dealer who has found the Edison line a paying investment. Mr. Harding has invested something more than dollars and cents in his business, however. He has given it a full complement of enterprise and an aggressiveness that has been more responsible than any other thing for the dividends he has taken from it.

We think that the readers of the Monthly will agree with us that Mr. Harding's stock is cleverly and attractively displayed, and with an eye for the convenience of both customer and himself. It will be noticed, too, that he uses the tray system to carry his Records. The reduction of the picture has made the background rather faint, else we would supply our Dealers with some interesting figures proving the economy of space that the tray system effects in his case.

With Hardy's Music Store, Edison Dealers of Standish, Mich. (a town of 1,000 inhabitants), who handle the Edison line exclusively, business has been surprisingly good since the first of the year. To quote Mr. Hardy's own words:

"Business has started out good and brisk for the New Year, and we think we will see the best year for business we have ever seen, as we are selling more high-priced machines and Amberol Records than ever before."

There is an optimistic ring in that sentence which proves it was never uttered by any other than a Dealer who has an all-abiding faith in both his business and himself. Dealers of that sort generally insure the fulfillment of their own expectations by seeking ways and means whereby to corral all the business in sight—and out of it, too.

Above illustration was made from a snap shot of the Edison Phonograph corner in the store of George Nicolai of Leadville, Colo.

Mr. Nicolai, who is one of our most prosperous Dealers, can attribute his success in handling the Edison line to the energy and enthusiasm he puts into everything he undertakes. He never half does a thing, as is proven by the stock of Edison Records he carries. It was for the purpose of emphasizing his Record stock that we had the original photograph cropped in this manner. In the four sections of the rack shown in the cut are approximately 1,200 Records. He also carries a complete line of Edison machines and accessories and is prepared to immediately supply a customer with any of the famous Edison products.

It is only reasonable to assume that the completeness of his stock has been a strong contributing factor to Mr. Nicolai's success.

Acting on a suggestion made in the March issue of the Monthly, Edwin J. Hoover of Kenton, Ohio trimmed his window most appropriately for St. Patrick's Day. Outside of the Home Phonograph with Cygnet Horn, which occupied the center of the window, everything was green,—Amberol Record cartons, green ribbons, green crepe paper, signs painted in green and one dollar greenbacks advertising his "one-dollar-per-week" installment terms. The novelty of the display attracted a great deal of attention.

After all, it only requires a little originality to devise a window arrangement which will catch and hold the attention of the passing public. The expense of such a display as Mr. Hoover prepared is too insignificent to consider, while the effect is immediate and far-reaching.

An Original Ad

A clever little advertising stunt, originated by Mr. Fitzgerald of the Eastern Talking Machine Company's (Edison Jobbers') store recently, set the Talking Machine men of Boston to wondering down Tremont street quite frequently in order to look at the window in which it was being shown. Mr. Fitzgerald took one thousand of the front covers of the song, "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet," cut out the beautiful head and shoulders of the woman and arranged them upon the glass window in the form of the figures 366, the number of the Edison Record which bears that catchy song. The dainty lavender color scheme in the manner in which he arranged the bonneted head added to the attractiveness of the display and compelled the attention of the passerby. It was one of the most effective advertising stunts pulled off in Boston for a long time.

The following extract from a letter received from Paterson Brothers, 155 Broad Street, Valley Falls, R. I., will be interesting reading, showing as it does the extent to which some Dealers will go to advertise their goods:

"Tuesday evening, the 8th inst., our Mr. William Paterson, while attending the annual meeting of Unity Lodge, No. 34, A. F. & A. M., of Lonsdale, R. I., called attention to the expense they were about to go to in the erection of Masonic Temple, and the cost to them of a human quarrette, further that if agreeable to them he would like to furnish them with a mechanical quarrette, etc. It was unanimously voted to accept the same and a vote of thanks was given Mr. Paterson. At their next meeting a Home Phonograph with Cygnet Horn, a set of Masonic Records and others will be in the Lodge room duly marked on sterling silver. This lodge has a large membership and there will be calls for many Records for the entertainment of members. We look for a number of sales of new machines as a result."

That L. D. Houghton and Company, Edison Dealers at San Bernardino, Cal., appreciate the value of home demonstration is attested by the sample of a combination "dummy" bill and letter that they sent us, in which they call attention to the fact that their books show no charge account against the "Prospect" and request permission to install an Edison Phonograph with a Cygnet Horn on free trial. The letter further requests permission to give a demonstration at the home for the benefit of the "prospect" and his neighbors. A novel and, without doubt, effective letter.

Result of a Follow-Up

Since receiving your favor of the 2nd inst., (one of our regular Amberola follow-up letters) I have purchased an Amberola from your representative in this city. Am delighted with the instrument. Everything you say in its favor is sustained.—Morton H. Layton, Nova Glasgow, N. S., Canada.

An aggressive and successful Dealer is Harry Rosen, of 3 School street, Boston, Mass., whose newspaper ads show decided originality and comprehensiveness. Mr. Rosen is convinced of the futility of spasmodic advertising, as is evidenced by the persistent manner in which he keeps his ads before the public.

Alonzo Wilkes of Amsterdam, N. Y. reports the sale of an Amberola in competition with another high-priced Phonograph of well-known make.

Nothing surprising in either the result of the competition or the fact that Mr. Wilkes promoted it. His faith in Edison products is as unbounded as the enthusiasm which he puts into their exploitation.

We are in receipt of the initial copy of "Rodger's Bulletin," a clever little house organ published by D. M. Rodgers, of Corning, Ohio. Prominent among the household necessities featured in it are Edison Phonographs and Records, which he advertises for sale on the ridiculously easy terms of one dollar down and five cents per day. He also announces in the same connection a concert of the new list of Records with remarks apropos of several.

The house bulletin idea seems to be growing. We shall be glad to receive copies of similar advertising mediums employed by others of our Dealers.

G. M. Lewis, of Kendrick, Idaho, sends out a circular letter with the Phonogram each month in which he draws the customer's attention to some of the Records in the monthly lists and reminds him of his willingness to demonstrate the Records at all times. A sample letter recently sent us was admirably conceived to excite the curiosity and interest of the reader.

Hamman-Levin Company, of Baltimore, Md., writing under date of March 8th, say:

"Edison business continues good. We value the agency very much indeed."

The Close of the Operatic Season—Its Significance to the Dealer

The operatic season—the biggest and most successful in the history of American music—is at an end and the song-birds have flown to foreign shores, there to spend the interval that will elapse between this and next season in rest, recreation and study.

Though no longer with us in person they have left behind them their golden voices—the voices that have cast a witching spell over thousands of operatic frequenters and music lovers during the season—to revive memories of their glittering successes. Sierak's sensational triumphs in Otello, Il Trovatore, Aida and Tannhäuser, Constantino's brilliant and successful appearances in the various large cities, and the splendid successes of Marguerita Sylva, Carmen Melis, Blanche Arral, Riccardo Martin, Walter Soomer and Gustave Huberdeau—"stars," all of them—can be lived over again by the operatic lover with the Records they have made for the Edison Phonograph.

We have given you these brilliant artists as well as others of less prominence that you may be equipped to approach the music lover whose inclination disposes him toward the higher grade of selections, Mr. Dealer, and now we offer the first of a series of Records by the world's greatest living contralto—Mme. Marie Delna. Not only do we place you in possession of her Records, but we assure you an undisturbed field in their exploitation. She is under an exclusive contract with us and can not be heard on any other Records made in this country.

Marie Delna is an artist of such magnitude as to require little if any introduction to either trade or public. She has been successively the "star" of the Opera Comique, the Theatre de la Gaiete (where she is now singing), the Metropolitan Opera House and the New Theatre. She has also scored magnificent successes on her appearances in London, Brussels, Lisbon and the other capitals of Europe. Her brief engagement in this country during the past season only served to whet the appetites of the American music lovers, for which reason her Records will be all the more appreciated.

Now then, Mr. Dealer, while these operatic artists are resting between seasons is the time for you to push their Records more vigorously than ever before. While they were here the public could both hear and see them, and for that reason paid only lukewarm attention to their Records; now that they are gone the true music lover feels a loss that places him in a receptive mood for the substitute you are in a position to offer.

Don't you recognize the opportunity that lies within your grasp during the seven months or more that will elapse before the operatic season begins and the artists return? Seven months in which to offer soul-satisfying selections to an operatic loving public, undisturbed by the distraction which the presence of the artists themselves creates.

Every month we give you five new operatic Records, and without overstepping the borders of modesty we can say that they are not inferior to any of their type on the market. We are constantly embellishing the catalog with new artistes; more are coming of the same character, and bringing with them selections equally as representative as those that now grace our catalog.

The sale of these operatic Records during the rest between seasons should engage your immediate and active attention, Mr. Dealer. Don't think for a moment of relaxing in your efforts to interest the public in them during the summer months, but keep them before the public in all your advertising. It means money in your pocket now and a prestige among the music lovers in your vicinity for the future.

Examine the Amberola Reproducers

We wish to emphasize the suggestion made in the April issue that Dealers make diligent inquiry to ascertain if the Reproducers shipped with the Amberolas first placed upon the market are giving satisfaction where sales have been made, also that they examine the machines in stock for the same purpose.

We will gladly exchange new Reproducers for any that have developed a defect, and urge the trade to act promptly in the matter in order that Amberola owners may be insured a satisfactory reproduction pending the arrival of the Model "M," which should soon be in the hands of the trade for exchange. The Model "M" is being hurried along as fast as possible. It has been delayed so far through various changes made in the design from time to time for the purpose of securing more desirable results, but it is altogether probable that definite announcement of its appearance will have been made by the time that this issue of the Monthly reaches the trade.

Push the Attachment Proposition and boost your Record Sales.

An Important Letter

The following letter is printed merely for the purpose of emphasizing its importance to the trade. No further illumination of its purport can be made at this time; its significance must remain a matter of conjecture for a time at least. Suffice it to say, however, that the Dealer who shows by his total purchases that he is a live Dealer will be benefited as a result of our possession of definite information to that effect:

To Edison Dealers:

We have recently supplied our Jobbers with a card file for the purpose of keeping track and advising us of the individual purchases of all of their Dealers.

The plan is very simple, and we believe that our Dealers should know about it so that they may co-operate with us as far as possible. Each of the Jobbers now has a card file containing a card for each Dealer who has signed a contract through him. This card is designed to contain a synopsis and total of each purchase made by the Dealer. At intervals we intend to request a grand total of the Dealers' purchases for different periods, for the purpose of materially assisting the Edison Dealers who are pushing the line.

We are not prepared to give the details of our intentions in the way of helping those who show by these reports that they are materially furthering our interests, but it is safe to state for a fact that when we find out who are taking a real interest we are going to help them in ways that are now impossible without this information, because of the expense wasted upon those who may not be taking a proper interest.

It may be well from now on to keep all bills for Edison goods handy, so that if there is any neglect on the part of any Jobber to correctly report your purchases you will have evidence at hand to prove you are not properly classified here where we keep a total of the purchases. We hope, however, that all Jobbers will see the wisdom of keeping the Dealers on a correct basis in the reports they will make to us.

Yours very truly,

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,
F. L. DYER, President.

Changes in Traveling Staff

The following changes in the personnel and itineraries of the traveling staff have recently been announced by Manager of Salesmen C. E. Goodwin:

F. H. Hird, representative in the State of Iowa, has resigned. His successor has not yet been appointed.

W. A. Idle, formerly traveling Montana, Idaho, Utah and Northern Wyoming, has been transferred to Central and Northeastern New York State.

H. H. Shoemaker will hereafter travel the Western half of Massachusetts in addition to Vermont and New Hampshire.

C. D. Warren, formerly traveling in Virginia and North and South Carolina, has resigned. No appointment of a successor has yet been decided upon.

C. F. Driggs has been appointed to travel the State of Kansas.

A Few Exchange Proposition "Don'ts"

Don't return any defective Records that are defective from other than manufacturing causes, or any cut-out Records until after the date on which they are dropped from the catalog. Violation of this condition will only result in additional transportation expense for you.

Don't send your shipments freight or express "collect." The carriers will not deliver them unless fully prepaid.

Don't send your off-setting orders for Records to your Jobber. Send them to us. It saves time and annoyance at both ends.

Don't forget that you must order an equal quantity of stock Records when returning Records for exchange. Orders for advance Records will not be accepted.

Don't forget that this proposition covers an equal exchange of Records and that the money value of the Records ordered has no bearing in the matter. For instance: if 100 Standard Records are returned you must order 100 Records to offset; and these may be either Standard or Amberol Records or both, but in any event the quantity ordered must total 100.

Don't return any Records until you have first done your level best to dispose of them. It's easy when you try.

From The Whitsit Monthly

Judging from reports we are receiving from those of our Dealers who are making it a point to push high grade machines and Records, the demand which continues for their goods is remarkable. It is no longer a question whether high grade talking machines and Records will sell. The greatest problem confronting the Jobber is to get the goods fast enough. The main reason why the talking machine business is in its present healthy condition can easily be attributed to the increasing demand for high grade goods. And the demand is going to be even greater. So the thing for every loyal talking machine Dealer to do is to push this end of the business harder than ever. The talking machine business is vastly different from what it used to be, and unless you are aware of this fact and proceed to get your share of the good business which surrounds you on every side, you have little chance to "make good" with the line.

An Amberola in your window is the best kind of an ad. Try it.

Printed Matter

We are glad to be able to announce that, after many weeks of unfortunate delays, due largely to circumstances beyond our control, new Domestic Record Catalogs bearing form number 1730 are now ready for distribution. Shipments were begun to Jobbers about April 1st and all have now received at least small first allotments. Dealers should be indulgent for a short while longer about asking for large supplies of these catalogs from Jobbers. The catalog contains all Records listed up to and including February, 1910. Grand Opera Amberol and Standard Records appear on a special eight page pink insert in the center of the catalog, which totals 104 pages. Further, in addition to the regular lists of Amberol and Standard Records, we are listing a large number of Foreign Amberol instrumental selections to which the attention of Dealers generally is directed. The fact that these special selections appear in a catalog which will be given such a wide distribution is in itself evidence that the demand for them will be great. It is of the utmost importance to the success of the line generally that Dealers seriously consider the carrying of these selections in regular stock.

Within a very few days after this issue of the Monthly is mailed all Dealers will probably have received a shipment of the new Combination Attachment Outfits complete or a supply of the ten special Amberol Records, to take care of the old Attachments in their stock. Two forms have been prepared to exploit this special offer. They are form 1778, special four page folder and form 1791, a large poster. Jobbers can supply quantities of the first named and one or two copies of the latter upon request.

There has been considerable demand of late from both Jobbers and Dealers for a new Combined Alphabetical and Numerical Catalog to supersede form 1650, issued August, 1909. A new edition is on the press at the time this paragraph is written, so if copies of the completed book are not delivered to Dealers with this number of the Monthly they will follow by mail very soon thereafter. This new trade catalog bears form number 1800 and is to contain all Domestic Standard and Amberol selections listed up to and including June, 1910; all Grand Opera Standard and Amberol selections, listed up to and including June, 1910, and a numerical list only of the Foreign Amberol instrumental selections listed up to and including February, 1910.

We want to again take this opportunity to impress upon Dealers the importance of mailing out the Phonogram regularly. Those of your Record customers who have been getting it each month in the past are doubtless still interested in its contents and the new numbers should go forward to them as soon as issued. Your Jobber can supply you with this form via other goods at the rate of 25c per 100 copies blank, or we will be glad to quote a price for mailing small quantities direct from our Advertising Department each month.

A four page supplement bearing form number 1776 has been printed to advertise the Chinese Amberol Records recently announced. Since the demand for these selections will be very little, the distribution of the supplement must be correspondingly limited. Jobbers have not been supplied with large quantities of this folder. Any Dealer who feels that he can use a few copies to good advantage may have them sent direct by mail from our Advertising Department.

New Foreign Record Catalogs, to supersede forms 1556 to 1560, are now ready for distribution. An Advertising Department Bulletin, calling attention to them in detail, is printed on another page of this issue.

Elsewhere in this number we refer to a Record made by Lieut. Shackleton, who tells of his attempts to discover the South Pole. A four page supplement and a large poster, forms 1801 and 1799 respectively, will be supplied by Jobbers to Dealers for advertising this Record. Make sure that your order for a quantity of the Records includes a request for some of the printed matter.

Some Dealers have probably noticed that the Amberol Record Order Sheet, form 1455, runs only as far as the selections on the May list. For the convenience of Dealers ordering Records either through their Jobbers or direct from the factory a second sheet running 440 numbers on from the last title number on sheet No. 1 has been printed. Apply to your Jobber for the few sheets you will need.

The Domestic Standard Record Order Sheets, form 1450, have been revised to eliminate the 300 selections cut on Feb. 1st. These new sheets are now ready for distribution.

Foreign Record Order Sheets, to cover the selections in the five new Foreign Catalogs mentioned above, are now printing and will be ready for distribution to Jobbers before the June issue of the Monthly is made.

A Trip to South America With Walter Stevens

Walter Stevens, Manager of our Foreign Department, who sailed on January 22nd on a three months' tour of the principal South American cities, returned on April 13th. Both Mr. Stevens and Mrs. Stevens, who accompanied him, were greatly benefited physically by the trip, which was made under the most delightful weather conditions. They were met at the dock upon their return by a party of officials and department heads of the Company with their wives. The following detail of the trip, contributed by Mr. Stevens, will undoubtedly prove interesting and educational to the Edison trade:

"Inspired undoubtedly by the educational campaign which the Bureau of American Republics has been carrying on in order to stimulate the interest of North Americans toward securing the trade of South America, the Hamburg-American Line announced the early part of last year that a trip would be made by the S. S. "Bluecher" to the principal South American cities, going as far south as Punta Arenas, Chili, via the Straits of Magellan. All the more desirable rooms were engaged shortly after the announcement was made, and the list of passengers included men prominent in business circles in this country. The passenger list, when completed, was unique in many respects, and it is a question whether a similar company ever sailed from the Port of New York. The list comprised men prominent in banking, manufacturing and professional circles, to say nothing of a large number of seasoned globe trotters, including a number who came from Europe especially to take the trip. While probably not one of the passengers had any idea of making the trip a business one, yet many of them hoped to gain a thorough knowledge of the countries to be visited and learn what the possibilities were for doing business in the countries of South America.

"As announced, the steamer sailed from New York at 10:00 A. M. Saturday, January 22nd. The weather being cold when we left, we wore heavy garments, but it was soon necessary to discard them and substitute lighter ones in their place.

"The first stop of importance was Pard, Brazil, a city of 150,000 inhabitants. Pard has a large and safe port, with anchorage close to town for light draft steamers and about three miles from the city for larger vessels. Situated at the mouth of the Amazon River, her commerce is very important, as she is one of the principal depots for the export and import trade of the whole valley of the Amazon, which comprises the greater portion of Brazil and large parts of Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador and Venezuela. Splendid new docks are in course of construction. Being just south of the Equator the climate is extremely hot, and people from cooler zones must protect themselves from the direct rays of the sun.

"We were taken ashore in small boats, and our troubles began immediately upon landing, for it was necessary to exchange some of our good American currency for Brazilian money. We had all been very widely advertised through South America as "rich" millionaires, and we certainly felt like it upon receiving 100,000 Reis in exchange for $12.00 American Gold. We soon found our wealth rapidly decreasing, however, as we paid 10,000 Reis per hour for carriage hire and about the same price for lunch. We also had considerable trouble with the language. Among our people were a number who spoke Spanish, French, German or other languages, but Portuguese, the language of Brazil, was not included in the list. The natives were very courteous and attentive, however, and we experienced but little trouble in getting about. Among other things, we saw tons upon tons of crude rubber being prepared for shipment, and were told that 65 per cent. of the world's supply of crude rubber passes through the port of Pard. After visiting several parks, public buildings and other places of interest, we returned to the steamer, more than pleased with our visit to this progressive city.

"We reached Bahia, Brazil, our next port of call, after a sail of four days. Bahia is the third largest city of Brazil, with a population of 265,000 inhabitants. It presents a very pretty and unique sight from the harbor. Built upon rock rising quite abruptly from the sea, upon first sight there appear to be two cities, the lower one built upon a belt of rock, and the upper one on the plateau above. All the business houses are in the lower city, while the hotels, city buildings, churches and residences are in the upper city. Elevators or cable cars are taken from the lower to the upper city. The two large elevators are of American make, and one imagines upon entering that he is being transferred from the basement to the top of a high office building. The view of the harbor from the upper city is inspiring.

"One of the carnivals for which these southern cities are noted was in full swing when we landed. It seemed that at least half the population were out in fancy costumes. The streets in certain parts of the city were filled with a mass of people. On these occasions they come from all the surrounding country, and many, I am told, spend their last "centavo" for a costume, many of which were made of expensive material. A large parade was held and many beautiful floats were displayed. With few exceptions, I question whether we could approach, much less excel, them in this particular. Another parade was held in the evening, and this exceeded in beauty the one held in the afternoon. Every important float was lighted by electricity and the effect was fine. Naturally the streets were very crowded, but a more orderly crowd one rarely sees. Confetti was thrown about in every direction, and syphon bottles containing perfume were in evidence everywhere.

"Bahia is a famous diamond market. Like Pard, it affords poor facilities for docking; hence the necessity of anchoring some distance from shore and of resorting to small boats in order to land. As usual in these ports, all the larger steamers are European freight or passenger boats. The absence of vessels bearing the American flag is painfully noticeable.

"After a sail of about three days from Bahia, we reached Santos, a city of 60,000 inhabitants, and the greatest coffee market in the world. Unlike those so far visited, this city has a fine harbor, and we were able to dock at the wharf, where a crowd of natives were assembled, as the "Bluecher" was the largest steamer ever docked in that port. As a city Santos is not particularly attractive. From there we took a trip to Sao Paulo, the second largest city of Brazil, with a population of 280,000. The climb up the mountains, an elevation of 3,000 feet, was made by a cable road, owned and operated by American and Canadian capitalists.

"During the day we saw many beautiful buildings, parks, etc., including McKensie College and the Museum. Nearly half the population of Sao Paulo are Italians, the balance German and Portuguese, not overlooking eight or ten American families. The Americans are a very important factor and their influence is very noticeable. In the afternoon they tendered us a reception in the plaza opposite the depot. Under an arbor of trailing vines, decorated with American flags and flowers, were several tables loaded with delicacies provided by the ladies, who seemed very glad to meet their American friends living above the Isthmus. After thanking them for their reception and giving three hearty cheers for the American ladies of Sao Paulo, we returned to the station on our way to Santos and our steamer. Among the first to welcome us upon our arrival in Santos were the American Consul and his wife, and they were also on the dock when we left.

"Late in the afternoon on February 15th we docked at Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, a city of 350,000 inhabitants. Montevideo is a very attractive place. After touring the city, we took a trip to Pocitos, a noted beach resort, where we found a large high-class hotel, comparing with our best hotels at similar resorts.

"Uruguay claims to have the most beautiful women in the world, and no one seemed inclined to dispute their claim. Certainly their women are beautiful, both in face and form, and they display remarkably fine taste in dressing. All hats and gowns are typically Parisian, and with 'talking eyes' and beautiful complexions the women are certainly interesting to look upon.

"After visiting the points of interest in and about Uruguay we arranged to cross the La Plata River to Buenos Aires. We had decided to leave the steamer here, as by so doing we were able to remain longer in Buenos Aires and devote more time to the trip across the Andes to Santiago and Valparaiso on the Pacific coast. The transfer from the "Bluecher" to the river steamer was accomplished after considerable difficulty, as we had to walk a plank from one to another. We reached Buenos Aires after a sail of twelve hours.

"Buenos Aires is the capital of the Argentine Republic and has a population of 1,250,000 inhabitants. There is more bustle and life there than in any of the other South American cities, and one is reminded of the larger North American cities.

"One of the principal business streets, Calle Florida, which may be compared to Nassau Street, New York City, during business hours is crowded with people to its entire width. After four o'clock in the afternoon no vehicles are allowed on the thoroughfare on account of its congested condition.

"The atmosphere about the city is decidedly European,—in fact Buenos Aires has been called the Paris of South America, and it certainly deserves the title. Everything sold in the larger stores is of European manufacture, very few American products being in evidence.

"After spending several days in Buenos Aires the trip across the Andes was undertaken. We left early in the morning of February 22nd, and after twenty-four hours' ride through a vast waving country and great fields of wheat and maize, we reached Mendoza, an important vineyard center, early in the morning of the following day. Here we changed cars for the Trans-Andean Railway. For seven hours we climbed through a wonderfully picturesque country, bold and grand, to Las Cuevas, where we were transferred to carriages for the ascent of the Cumbre. The coaches, seating four persons; were each drawn by four horses. The ascent was made on a run, with occasional stops for the drivers to examine the harness and, incidentally, to give the horses a chance to breathe.

"At the summit, an elevation of about 12,000 feet, we passed the statue of "Christ of the Andes," marking the boundary line between Chili and Argentine. We now had to exchange our Argentine for Chilian money, receiving for the equivalent of $1.00 U. S. currency $5.00 Chilian. In Brazil we had received for our dollar 3,200 Reis, in Argentine $2.15 m/n, while in Uruguay we had to pay $1.03 of our money for $1.00 of theirs. The descent of the western side was steep and rapid, reminding one of a chariot race at a circus. Arriving at Portillo, the Trans-Andean Railway was again taken to Los Andes, where we changed cars for Santiago. We had a wonderful trip, never to be forgotten, and well worth the discomforts experienced.

"I might mention here that upon registering at the hotel at Los Andes, where we spent the night, we learned that Dr. and Mrs. Cook, traveling under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Craig, were also guests there. Although the Doctor avoided us upon learning that we were Americans, we succeeded in obtaining a very good picture of him the next day.

"Santiago is the Capital of the Republic of Chili and has a population of 400,000 inhabitants. It is a beautiful city, with straight and wide streets and many fine buildings and parks, although the effects of the earthquake of 1906 are still evident. Our journey was continued to Valparaiso, the largest city on the west coast of South America and the principal port of Chili, with a population of 150,000 inhabitants. A rag belonging to W. R. Grace & Co. being placed at our disposal, a tour of the harbor was made. As we expected, we found a large number of European vessels loading and unloading, but none floating the American flag.

"It is interesting to note that in Chili the conductors on the trolley cars are women, and one's room at the hotel is cared for by a man "chambermaid."

"We joined our steamer again upon our return to Buenos Aires. We sailed from there March 13th en route to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, stopping again at Montevideo on the way.

"Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil, is a modern city of over 800,000 inhabitants, situated in the most beautiful and largest land-locked bay in the world. The approach to the city is simply inspiring, great cone-shaped mountains rising from the sea on all sides. Rio is noted for its picturesque surroundings, beautiful avenues, numerous parks with a variety of vegetation unequalled in any other city. While in Rio we were received by the Baron Rio Branco, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, one of the greatest men of all Spanish America, who has done more for the cause of peace among the South American republics than any other man.

"As a business city Rio de Janeiro could hardly be compared with Buenos Aires, although there are many very large business concerns there and modern business methods are employed.

"We reached Pernambuco, Brazil, after a sail of four days from Rio. Pernambuco is the center of large sugar and cotton industries and has a population of about 200,000 inhabitants. It is a very old city, quaint and picturesque in some respects, but not comparable with other cities visited so far as beauty and sanitation are concerned.

"On our return trip we stopped at the island of Trinidad, a possesion of Great Britain, with a population of about 350,000 inhabitants. The island is chiefly noted for its asphalt lake. Our only stop between Trinidad and New York was Kingston, Jamaica, in the British West Indies.

"From a business point of view South America presents an unlimited field for the sale of American products. A large part of this trade could be obtained if American manufacturers would go about it in the right way. So much has been written on this subject by people eminently fitted for the work that it seems useless to offer further suggestions. However, if this trade is to be obtained, salesmen with a thorough knowledge of the language and country should be sent there. These men should be very courteous and not in any way appear superior. If it is possible to do so, reasonable credit should be granted. However, before this trade can be secured we must necessarily have better transportation, mail and passenger facilities. There is also at present great need for the establishment of American banks in the larger South American cities. In view of the excellent service obtainable from Europe, it is not surprising that at the present time the bulk of South American trade is controlled by European manufacturers. It has been stated that arrangements are being made for the establishment of an American bank in Buenos Aires, and once the wedge is entered banks will undoubtedly be established in other important cities."

Interesting the Public

A young man opened up an exclusive talking machine house in a city where three or four piano houses were handling the line. Owing to the divided up manner of the trade, no single firm had a list of the talking machine owners of the city. This young man figured that such a list would be worth a great deal to him and that the only way to get it was to call on all houses in the city. A discouraging undertaking to think about, many will say, but with a couple of energetic canvassers, working regularly and systematically, it was not such a superhuman task, particularly in view of the results of their work in direct sales of new records and new machines and in getting in touch with homes where the instrument had fallen into disuse because of its having gotten out of order.

Talking machine men can with profit take a leaf out of the piano man's book and hunt up prospects the way he does; tabulate them and index them and call on them regularly and frequently mail literature. As one salesman said, "no matter how emphatically a 'prospect' said 'no' the first time, he never gave him up until he either bought or died." The secret of many salesmen's success is in never accepting a refusal as final. The talking machine Dealer would find it good business policy to call at the homes of his customers occasionally, examine the machine, make necessary adjustments and even effect some slight repairs, if necessary, to improve the reproduction. The sale of Records would increase and such attention would keep up the enthusiasm of the owners. Public utility companies are beginning to adopt such methods, and if corporations having exclusive franchises find that it pays them to give their customers such individual attention, how much more would it be profitable to such a line as the talking machine trade.—Canadian Music Trades Journal.

Timely Advice

Don't even think of pushing this Attachment Proposition before you place an order with your Jobber that will bring your stock of Amberol Records strictly up-to-date. It's suicidal to do otherwise, for you will only be creating a demand which you will be unable to supply and which, in the nature of things, will seek satisfaction elsewhere. And once your customers go elsewhere and get what they want,—well, the rest needn't be said.

You need a stock of every Amberol Record that has been listed so far,—yes, and of the Standards, too, but the immediate and big demand will be for Amberols. And it will be big. Don't have any fear on that point. It will be a big general demand whether you advertise the scheme or not; for we will advertise it, and we create the general demand. If you don't advertise and push it you lose your local share of that demand,—that's all.

But we haven't any fear of our Dealers pushing it. We know they are doing so now, and in enviable fashion, too. Our only fear is that they will handicap themselves by a depleted stock of Records, which will prevent them from securing the full, immediate benefit of it.

There will be some, no doubt—there always are—who will wait until the last minute, until the demand has reached in through their very doors and up to their counters before they decide that their stock is inadequate for their immediate needs. Then will follow telegraphic "rush" orders to their Jobbers and growls of dissatisfaction if their orders are not filled with miraculous haste. And in the meantime the long-headed Dealer whose trays are well stocked, smilingly gathers in the shekels.

Don't be one of those improvident Dealers. Take time by the forelock. This is the time, NOW. You know the folly of procrastination, and you ought to appreciate the fact that your Jobber can not always come to your rescue at the eleventh hour. Don't wait until customers come into your store—new, enthusiastic Record purchasers—and depart because you are unable to offer them the variety they have a right to expect and demand. First look over your stock and order the necessary Records to make it a complete stock, and then—and not until then—push the Amberol Attachment Outfit.

Windows as Salesmen

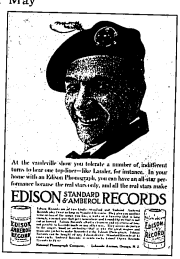
Have you ever thought what an important member of your sales force the show window is? How it works all hours of the day and night, and even Sundays, if so desired, without complaining, calling the attention of the passing public to the beauties of the products you have to offer?

If you have realized the importance of the window do you know what a profitable investment is the time, energy and even money spent in dressing it attractively and convincingly? To produce results the goods must not be merely jumbled together, but must be so arranged that a story is told, a story of honest values and real merit. A properly dressed window, actually containing the goods, should prove more convincing than any ad. written. But in many cases that result is not attained.

A window is advertising and as certain and sure a medium as is newspaper space, but it is precisely the reverse of newspaper advertising. In an ad. the words stimulate the imagination to think how such and such an article will look and by suggestion create a desire for the article; a cut of the piano may or may not be shown, but in any case it is only to assist the reader to imagine the piano itself. The ad. gives the selling points and does not show the piano. The window, on the other hand, shows the piano itself and does not bring out any selling points. The imagination here is drawn on for facts.

Make your ad. so convincing and so clear that the reader is interested and you have a "prospect." Make your window so attractive and so suggestive that the looker is caught and you have a "prospect." Make the window a supplement of the ad. and you have a double hold on the customer.

When a customer is convinced regarding the desirability of an article before entering the store through the medium of the "ad." and window, a great deal of the salesman's time is saved, which, in another case, would be used up in preliminary talk, and the time thus saved can be applied to making another sale.



A window attracts the notice of passers-by—few people make a business of looking in them. They must be forced to look. If a window is filled with a large number of miscellaneous instruments it will not call the attention of the casual passer. The only one to whom that window will appeal is the merely curious, not the possible purchaser. Four or five machines, some of the latest horns with specialties, well displayed and in harmony with each other, will bring new trade and interest regular trade to the extent of creating a desire that was not already formed.—The Talking Machine World.

At a well-attended and spirited meeting of the Eastern States Talking Machine Dealers' Association, held at the New Grand Hotel, New York City, April 13, thirteen new members were enrolled and important matters of trade interests were discussed. The association is prospering very nicely and the members are enthusiastic for its future success.

It is expected that there will be a record attendance at the next convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, to be held at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City, July 5, 6 and 7.

Our Big Double-page Magazine and National Weekly Ads for May

Are read and pondered over by millions, many of whom are at your very door. They know that the word "Edison" is a guarantee of worth. Let them know that you deal in Edison products.

Selling the Goods

There's only one thing that stands between you and the public—provided always that you are equipped with a representative stock—and that's your advertising.

You can't evade that duty, for duty it is in the fullest sense of the word. No business can succeed without advertising,—persistent, intelligent advertising. It is true of a business that deals with the necessaries of life; obviously, therefore, it is demanded in greater measure in a business that deals with life's luxuries.

The merchant who doesn't advertise belongs to the days when the only advertising possible was by word of mouth.

The merchant who does not advertise simply because his grandfather did not should wear knee breeches and a queue.

The merchant who does not advertise simply because it costs money should quit paying salaries for the same reason.

The merchant who does not advertise because he tried it once and failed should throw away his cigar because the light went out.

The merchant who does not advertise because somebody said it did not pay should not believe the world is round, because the ancients said it was flat.

The merchant who does not advertise because he cannot know absolutely that it is going to pay should commit suicide to avoid being killed by an accident.

That Attachment Proposition caught on in great shape. The way that our Dealers have taken it up is worthy of the highest praise. It's a big thing for the Dealer—the biggest he has had in many a day; and it came at a most opportune time, too.

The Dealer who pushes it to the limit will double and treble his Record sales and insure a good, steady business during the Summer months when trade is sometimes dull. There ought not to be an idle machine in any locality this Summer.

Get an Amberola on your floor as soon as you possibly can and, pending it appearance, make preparations for an Amberola concert at your store. Have a somewhat more elaborate program than usual printed, with a cut of the instrument on the front cover, and mail it to those people, well-to-do and of moderate means, in your community who, in your judgment, might be interested in a high-grade machine.

Don't draw the line too closely in making up the mailing list, and don't invite more than your store will comfortably accommodate. Convenience is everything. And arrange your program of numbers so as to give a concert befitting the dignity of the instrument.

This concert scheme is being worked with splendid success by a great many Dealers. Why don't you try it?

Apropos of the baseball season: Ray Cox in "The Baseball Girl," No. 196; Digby Bell in "The Tough Kid on the Right Field Fence," No. 156, and the same popular comedian in "The Man Who Fanned Casey," No. 410.

Everything in its place and season.

Spring fever and baseball are prevalent and natural maladies at the present time. We have them in just as violent form as you have, Mr. Dealer, but we can't afford to humor them just now.

Let us suggest that you treat the former to large alopathic doses of the Combination Attachment Proposition. It will not only effectively cure the fever but will provide you with the wherewithal and the leisure to gratify your taste for baseball during the warm summer months.

Nothing like a home demonstration. A few years ago it was unheard of in the Phonograph line. The Dealer used to sit complacently in his store and wait for the business to come. It's different now. The "other fellow" opened up around the corner and then competition started. Result,—abolition of the waiting method and inauguration of the go-after-it system.

It's the most logical and effective method after all. The Phonograph is primarily a home entertainer; ergo, the place to demonstrate its ability as such is at the home and hearthstone where the man of family is most open to conviction.

Keep up your repair department. It helps out your Record sales by getting Phonograph owners in the habit of coming to your store, and there's a nice little profit in the sale of repair parts.

The moving picture shows in your vicinity will be running all summer long. They ought to be running your ad. daily. Think of the lasting impression it would make upon the thousands who are daily patrons of these places to see at every performance an attractive colored slide of "The Old Couple and the Edison Phonograph," followed by a slide bearing your address as an Edison Dealer.

Secure one of those slides from the factory at once and get friendly with the picture shows. It means cheap and effective advertising.

The most perfect of all sound-reproducing instruments at cosmopolitan prices that fit the pockets of all classes, a catalog replete with brilliant and varied selections contributed by the most prominent artists in the world, and the name of Edison as a guarantee of the excellence of his wares—these are the assets which give the Edison Dealer a tremendous advantage over his competitor.

And when that advantage is coupled with enthusiasm and aggressiveness in the exploitation of these wares the Edison Dealer need have no fear of successful competition.

Place a ring around the 23rd on your calendar this month. Mark that for the day on which to prepare your Decoration Day window display.

Easiest thing in the world to arrange a patriotic window. The catalog is replete with patriotic numbers that will help you out in suggestions for window cards. American flags, red, white and blue bunting and a cannon, with a gun or two, and you have all the necessary paraphernalia with which to surround your Phonograph—an Amberola if you have one—and a few Records.

Don't let Decoration Day pass without a display. Send us a photograph of it, too. We will reproduce the best two sent us in the July issue of the Monthly.

Are you one of those Dealers who wait for the 25th of each month to sit up and take notice? Remember that public interest is swayed largely by your activity. If your appeals to publicity are spasmodic so, in like manner, will the public come to interest itself in your line.

Keep yourself in the public eye. Maintain an air of activity and enthusiasm in your store, and you will breed a like interest on the part of the public. Apathy, or only an occasional burst of activity, is the first sign of decadence.

Help your customer along in the selection of Records. Study the Record catalogs and supplements yourself and make your clerks do likewise. When a customer asks for a Record he ought to be offered not only the Record called for but others of a similar character. Nine times out of ten he will buy more than he at first intended to.

Make the tastes of your customers a matter of study, and use discrimination with new customers. Don't make the absurd mistake of offering a rag-time selection to a clerical-looking person, or an operatic Record to a man whose appearance indicates limited means.

Use the Record reviews that accompany your monthly bulletins. Your newspapers will be only too glad to print one as a favor if you patronize the advertising columns; if you don't, it will cost you only a trifling sum to have one run in the news columns with your name in connection. Many Dealers have found the suggestion profitable—why not you?

Have you acted on the suggestion that you offer to install a Phonograph and some Records on trial in your local lodges? Or offered your services for smokers and other lodge entertainments? The advertising you would get out of the offer alone would be more than worth while, to say nothing of what one evening's entertainment of that nature would mean for you.

Every lodge ought to have a Phonograph, and would have if the Edison Dealers would prove the desirability of the instrument in the lodge room. There's only one way to prove it, and that's by a demonstration.

The Edison Cygnet Horn possesses features that make every Phonograph owner wish to own one. Its big appealing feature is the economy of space it effects. You ought to emphasize that feature to every customer whose machine is not equipped with one. It is much more attractive in appearance than the straight horn, too, its graceful curves and elegant finish constituting an appeal that few Phonograph owners can resist.

Tact, discrimination and courtesy, coupled with a display of genuine enthusiasm,—these qualities should be ever present in your store. Practice them yourself and insist upon their display by every one of your employes.

Stella Mayhew Has Loving Beauty in the Far West

Miss Stella Mayhew who, as all theatregoers know, is the wife of Billie Taylor, the composer of "Savannah," Record No. 467, has received a "mash note" from one Mark Johnson, of Whitewater, Wis., which really should not go unrecorded. Mr. Johnson, who evidently is not aware that Miss Stella Mayhew is already married, directed his epistle to our recording department, from which the lady infers that he must have fallen in love with her voice as reproduced on the Edison Phonograph. The letter follows:

Whitewater, Wis, Feb. 1.

Dear Madame: This is not just the proper thing to do. write to a perfect stranger, hence I write this. I am left alone by death, and tired of living in single blessedness, I'd like to exchange pictures. I haven't any at present I could send you, even if I had one maybe you wouldn't. I'll wait till I get yours before sending mine. Ladies that desire a true and Faithful Husband will never regret writeing to me, so do write. I have no objection to a letter, or rich or poor girl writeing to me. I am the swellest little bachelor you ever saw, fascinating little beauty of the blond type of beauty. I still remain some one's ambitious and comical generous. Yours sincerely and Respectfully,

(Signed) MARK JOHNSON,
Whitewater, Wis.

Longing four answer.

Miss Mayhew considers the general sense of this note unmistakable even though certain sentences are not quite lucid and though the spelling is the most advanced yet discovered out of captivity. In "The Jolly Bachelors" Miss Mayhew appears as a "lady of color," and she thinks that the most plausible explanation of this letter is that it comes to her from a Swedish negro.

Terse But Eloquent

Last week I sold a Standard Combination Machine with Cygnet Horn. This week, Monday, I sold an Amberola and about 100 Amberol Records. Am carrying 1,000 Records now. The Amberola is a peach. It has everything beat in the Phonograph business.—John A. Wiseman, Union City, Mich.

Lost or Stolen Machine

Home Phonograph No. 955,033, belonging to a customer in the Far West, disappeared about four months ago. Information in regard to this machine coming to the attention of any of our Dealers should be communicated at once to our Agreement Department at Orange.

Among the Jobbers

John Rose, 99 Flushing Ave., Astoria, L. I., N. Y., has removed to 1154 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peter Bacigalupi & Sons, of San Francisco, have been succeeded by the Pacific Phonograph Co., who are located at the same address—941 Market street.

The Mackie Piano, Organ and Music Co., 100 State street, Rochester, N. Y., are no longer Edison Jobbers.

Laurence H. Locker (Minnesota Phonograph Co.), 505-511 Washington Ave., So., Minneapolis, Minn., has removed to 515 First Ave, So., same city.

C. B. Haynes & Co., of Richmond, Va., have opened a retail store at 5 North 7th St., that city. Their wholesale quarters will remain at 603 East Main St.

Harger & Blish of Des Moines, Iowa, are now comfortably installed in the Charles Weitz building at 811 West Walnut St. The Weitz building is three stories high and will be entirely occupied by the company, the first floor being devoted to sample rooms. This will give Harger & Blish one of the largest wholesale Phonograph stores west of New York.

Some of the sample literature recently received from our Jobbers is of unusually stimulating quality. The prompt and vigorous manner in which they have taken hold of the Attachment proposition and are aggressively pushing it merits particular praise. Such energetic methods can not fail to produce results.

The Pacific Phonograph Co., formerly located at 941 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., have removed to 816 Mission street, same city.

I. Davega, Jr., Inc, 125 West 125th street, New York City, has broken ground for a new building, which will be erected next to his present one. It is his intention to locate the repair department of his establishment on the main floor of the new building. This will give him more room to handle his wholesale business which is increasing by leaps and bounds. It is a positive pleasure to extend congratulations to so energetic an Edison representative as I. Davega.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for July, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before June 25th, 1910, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on June 26th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on June 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after June 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before June 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on June 24th, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for July Records on or before May 15th. Dealers should place July orders with Jobbers before May 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for July, 1910

453 Selection from "Old Dutch" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"Old Dutch" is Lew Fields's latest musical comedy, for which Victor Herbert composed the music. Of its tunefulness this Record gives ample evidence. One sprightly episode succeeds another, and the last number of the Record is equally as charming as the first. The Record introduces the following, and concededly the best numbers of the production: Opening of the Second Act; "I Want a Man to Love Me"; "Rich Man, Poor Man" (cesterie); "'O' Dearie"; "My Gipsy Sweetheart," and March Finale, First Act. The Record will be found to be of more than usual volume. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

454 When You and I Were Young, Maggie — Will Oakland and Chorus

It is several months now since we listed one of Mr. Oakland's Records, his theatrical engagements preventing his attendance at our Recording Studio, and it goes without saying that this number will be warmly welcomed. It is one of his favorite ballads, the dear old sentimental melody which time only mellows and which he has used with flattering success during his recent tour with "Honey Boy" Evans' Minstrels. Orchestra accompaniment. Wards, Geo. W. Johnson; music, J. A. Butterfield; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

455 Alexander and His Clarinet — Collins and Harlan and New York Military Band

A popular "coon" song rendered in much the same style as was "The Cubanola Glide," Record No. 432. The band plays it first, then it is sung and played alternately, the chorus being sung as a conversational duet. Alexander's clarinet serenade to Eliza is set to a good two-step swing that ought to insure it much vogue, especially as it is being extensively advertised and featured by prominent vaudeville favorites, notably Sophie Tucker. Words and music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

456 You Taught Me How to Love You, Now Teach Me to Forget — Joe Maxwell

It is not at all surprising that Mr. Maxwell should step into the good graces of the Phonograph trade without first passing through the probationary period that most new artists experience. His rich, full voice and splendidly distinct enunciation stamped him at once as an ideal Record artist, and it is safe to predict that each successive contribution to our catalogue will cement his popularity with the Phonograph public. This popular selection is sentimental in theme, with a plaintive but pretty melody that lends itself readily to his voice and agreeable style of treatment. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Geo. W. Meyer; music, Jack Drislane; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Company, New York City.

457 Patriotic Songs of America — New York Military Band and Premier Quartette

Our annual Fourth of July number in which are introduced the following airs specially arranged and played by the New York Military Band, ably assisted by the Premier Quartette: "Red, White and Blue"; "The Star Spangled Banner"; "Dixie," and "America." It is an ideal Record, not only for Independence Day but for every day in the year. The volume is good and the harmonization especially fine. Arranged by F. W. Eeke.

458 Hezekiah Hopkins "Comes to Town" — Len Spencer

He comes to town (New York) to visit his daughter, Clara. His son-in-law, Stephen, meets him at the Grand Central Station and is mistaken for a bunco-man. After explanations he (Hezekiah) enters the automobile and is driven up Fifth Avenue, meeting with many funny experiences and delivering some unique comments on familiar scenes and places along the route in the two minutes it takes him to reach Clara's home, during which, to use his own expression, they "never killed a chicken." We do not hesitate to pronounce this one of the best talking Records ever listed. Written by Elizabeth D. Boone.

* This selection will be illustrated on cover of July Phonogram.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records)

459 There's No Girl Like Your Old Girl — Manuel Romain and Chorus

A lover's graceful tribute to the charms of his old sweetheart in the New England hills and his yearning to return to her, furnish the theme of this pretty sentimental ballad, which is set to a brisk, ingratiating melody. Mr. Romain, as usual, sings it with charming expression, assisted by a chorus of male voices. The second chorus is repeated in alternately subdued and full tones. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Dempsey and Schmid; publishers, H. A. Weymann & Son, Edison Jobbers at Philadelphia.

460 (a) Romance (Schubert) (b) Tarantella (Lucantoni) — José Rocabruna

This violin solo is a combination of two very beautiful selections. The first, "Romanza Expressiva," is one of Schubert's most sentimental compositions; the second, "Tarantella," is a very lively air by the Italian composer, Lucantoni. They were recorded together for the purpose of obtaining the artistic effect that results from so striking a contrast. The violin used by Senor Rocabruna, Mexico's foremost violinist, is valued at $3,000. It is the handiwork of Amati, one of the famous master violin makers of Cremona, Italy. Piano accompaniment.

461 When They Gather the Sheaves, Mary Dear — W. H. Thompson

A simple, sentimental ballad of the pastoral type, rather sad in theme but distinguished by words of some poetic merit and an appropriate and appealing melody. Songs of this type, by the way, are rapidly returning to popularity. Mr. Thompson's magnificent baritone voice is invested with a wealth of tenderness and expression such as distinguished his rendition of "Forgotten" (Amberol No. 444). Orchestra accompaniment. Words, C. M. Denison; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

462 Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping — Peerless Quartette

It seems hardly necessary to recommend a Record when the selection in as well and favorably known as is this beautiful old hymn and the singers of such recognized ability as are the members of the Peerless Quartette. It is only fair, however, to say that the harmonization of this number is even better than the average of their contributions. Sung with organ accompaniment, which adds a touch of reverence. Words, Horatio Bonar; music, George C. Stebbins.

463 Slavonic Rhapsody — Sousa's Band

A classic selection constructed on themes of Slavonic folk songs and national dances and abounding in brilliant contrasts, which correctly reflect the temperament of the Slavonic race. It is always a favorite number on Sousa's programs and cannot fail to be a popular Record with the Phonograph public. As may be expected the treatment is one of the best and most characteristically Sousaesque, which makes it an especially desirable Record. Composer, C. Friedemann; publishers, Hawkes & Son, London.

464 Mister Pat O'Hare — Billy Murray and Chorus

How Pat O'Hare, "broke" and stranded in the land of the Turks, outwits the Sultan and gets a peek into the latter's harem, is the theme of this comic song, which is given a rollicking march air and is sung as only Billy Murray can sing songs of its type. The recital of Pat O'Hare's adventures with the Oriental Nabob is going to prove a winning number in this list. Words, Benjamin Hapgood Burt; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

465 Favorite Airs from "Mikado" — Edison Comic Opera Company

This is the first Record of its kind that we have ever put out and we flatter ourselves that it will be well received by trade and public. The solos are capably sung and the chorus is well balanced.

Words, W. S. Gilbert; music, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

466 Dream Pictures — American Standard Orchestra

This selection, written by Hans Christian Lumbye, a popular European composer, is also known by the German title "Traumbilder." It has long been a standard concert number with the best orchestras, being well adapted to show brilliant orchestral effects. A unique and charming feature of the composition is the introduction of a zither solo of a beautiful Tyrolian melody, the delicate sweet tones of the instrument showing in fine contrast with the more brilliant and showy effects of the other instruments. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

467 Savannah — Stella Mayhew

Three verses and choruses of the rollicking "rag" song with which Miss Mayhew has made such a tremendous "hit" in "The Jolly Bachelors," one of the successful musical comedies of the season. It has a delightful melody of the plantation type and is sung with zest by Miss Mayhew, whose dialect is above criticism. "Savannah" ought to be as popular with Record buyers as it is with Miss Mayhew's audiences, who seem never to get enough of it. Her first Record was Amberol No. 374, "I'm a Woman of Importance." Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Billie Taylor; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

468 Come Along My Mandy — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Another song "hit" of "The Jolly Bachelors." A conversational boy-and-girl "coon" duet in which "Sandy" is urging his "honey gal" to greater expedition in her preparations for their wedding. The air of the song is very catchy and these two clever artists extract all the possibilities that the number offers. An unusually desirable Record and one that is going to be Harry Gifford; publishers, T. B. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

469 Columbus March — New York Military Band

A vigorous march of excellent volume and precision, played in the usual spirited manner of this famous organization whose Records are ever a pleasing addition to the catalogue. Composer, Paul Bolognese; publishers, Antonio Ganso Music House, New York City.

470 Questions; or, Things I Should Like to Know — Edward M. Favor

Another one of those funny songs that Favor sings so well. In this one he details some of the problems that are racking his brain. Needless to say they are each and every one as funny as they are surprising in their originality. The peculiar accent he employs throughout the selection does much to strengthen the impression that he is laboring under a severe mental strain when he wrestles with such abstruse problems as "If your wife calls you George and your right name is Tom, what times does the balloon go up?" Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Wernon David; music, Maurice Scott.

471 Mrs. Clancy's Boarding House — Empire Vaudeville Company

A vaudeville sketch reproducing a dinner in full blast at Mrs. Clancy's boarding house, where the boarders are all gentlemen of Milesian persuasion with strong Milesian tendencies for chaffing and exchange of repartee, and the servant girl a recent importation from the Fatherland. The flings that the boarders take at the victuals are extremely funny. The Record ends with a song by the company.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Mrs. Clancy, Boss of the Boarders	Steve Porter
Mr. Sullivan, with an unsettled board-bill	Edward Meeker
Mr. Kelly—"I can't ate this soup"	Billy Murray
Mr. O'Brien—"There's no fight! I'm singing"	John Bieling
Bertha, the German Servant Girl

Written by Steve Porter.

472 True to the Flag March — United States Marine Band

A band number of splendid swing, spirit and volume,—easily one of the very best in the catalogue. It was written by Franz von Blon, the popular German composer and conductor who, together with his celebrated band from Berlin, was one of the musical features at the St. Louis Exposition. This march was one of the favorite numbers of his concerts.

Edison Standard Records for July, 1910

10380 Fleurette — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

One of Herbert's characteristic numbers, displaying considerably more volume than is usual with his Records. It is a delightful composition, replete with brilliant runs and charming contrasts. There is a certain charm about Herbert's compositions, an exquisite grace that so few composers fail to attain in their rush for noisely effective movements.

Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10381 I'll Make a Ring Around Rosie — Joe Maxwell

A dainty little sentimental number with no particular claim to merit of composition, but with a decidedly captivating melody which will prolong its present popularity. Its sentiment is of the cherry type and there is a most engaging swing in the rhythm of its melody. Mr. Maxwell's rendition of the number is in his best style. Orchestra accompaniments. Words, William Jerome; music, Jean Schwartz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10382 Play That Lovey Dove Waltz Some More — Collins and Harlan

This Record is somewhat out of the run of selections that these capable artists have been contributing to the catalogue of late. It is a Summer song whose theme is the predilection of two lovers for waltz-music. The air is decidedly engaging, and if the expectations of the publishers are realized the song will prove one of the season's "hits." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edgar Leslie; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10383 The Moose March — Vess L. Ossman

It is almost a year since we listed a selection by the "Banjo King" and for that reason this Record ought to be in especially great demand. It is a snappy march with orchestra accompaniment played in Ossman's usual spirited style. Bugle calls are a pleasing feature of the selection. An unusually good banjo Record. Composer, P. Hans Flath; publisher, Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

10384 Oh Yes Blondy — Ada Jones

Serio-comic songs are Miss Jones' particular forte, and in this selection she has one of the most recent and popular successes of that type. With its novel and winning air this song made a quick appeal to public fancy. Miss Jones sings it cleverly, extolling "Blondy" with all the fervor of the love-sick damsel who is supposed to be reciting his superior qualities. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur Longbrake; music, Ed. Edwards; publisher, Joseph Morris, New York City.

10385 Holy Ghost, with Light Divine — Edison Mixed Quartette

A sacred Record that will lose nothing by comparison with any similar numbers in the Standard catalogue. Little can be said of Records of this type, the selections and singers being usually well known as in this instance. The harmony in this number, however, deserves at least passing mention. Unaccompanied. Words, Andrew Reed; music, L. M. Gottschalk.

10386 Think of the Girl Down Home — Manuel Romain

The old, old story that never does grow old in verse or prose,—a lover's farewell to his sweetheart, a "Dixie" girl in this instance. The song is framed in a good musical setting —a march air—and is sung most effectively by Mr. Romain, who is in particularly good voice. It will appeal forcibly to lovers of sentimental ballads. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Phil Stasts; publisher, Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

10387 Mondaine—Valse Berceuse — Sousa's Band

Neither ist, Amberol or Standard, would be considered as complete without a Sousa number. This selection is an infectious concert waltz of deserved popularity, whose tunefulness is accentuated by the artistic manner in which it is read. There are other organizations, of course, that could interpret this number most acceptably, but there are very few if any capable of giving it the treatment that Sousa's artists have given it in this instance. Composer, Augustus Boez; publishers, J. R. Lafleur & Son, London.

10388 Noah's Ark — Murry K. Hill

He happened to be on the ark with Noah, Murry K. Hill did—or, at least, he says so—and in this song he describes the effect his jokes had upon the inhabitants of that historic craft up to the time they landed ouside of Sandy Hook! The hyena laughed, the lion roared, eagle screamed, etc. This song is one of the favorites in his repertoire and is always well received by his audiences.

10389 Ogalalla — Billy Murray and Chorus

An Indian love song and much superior to most compositions of its type. It has a good, brisk air and is embellished with the usual Indian effects,—the beating of tom-toms, war-whoops of braves, cow-boy yells, etc. It reminds one forcibly of "Red Wing." Record No. 9622. Billy Murray's rendition should help materially in promoting the popularity which the song is expected to achieve. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Vincent Bryan; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York City.

10390 Flanagan in Central Park — Steve Porter

Vaudeville specialty. Flanagan takes a trip through the park, visiting in turn the "Zoo" and the Museum of Art. The result of his observations and experiences is detailed in his inimitable and convulsing style. After describing an encounter with a nurse-girl he winds up with a snatch of a song appropriate to the occasion. Mr. Porter is the author of the sketch.

10391 Chiffonnette—Ente' Acte — American Standard Orchestra

A characteristic number replete with fascinating melody and showing splendid orchestral organization. A bell effect is introduced and forms a pleasing feature. This number is a very superior one of its kind and should prove an excellent seller. A word of praise for the artistic manner in which it is played is by no means inapropos. Composer, Frank P. Atherton; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

10392 Just One Word From You — W. H. Thompson

Charming sentiment is breathed in the lines of this exquisite little gem of melody and it finds a suitable vehicle in Mr. Thompson's pure and finely modulated voice. He sings the number simply and naturally as it should be rendered, without the labored attempt to gain "expression" which so frequently mars the rendition of sentimental ballads. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Joe Bren; publishers, J. W. Jenkins Sons' Music Co., Edison Jobbers of Kansas City, Mo.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10393 Mr. and Mrs. Malone — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Another vaudeville sketch that will prove a winner. The strains of an Irish reel die away, good-nights are said and Mr. and Mrs. Malone are on their way home from the party. Then follows a side-splitting line of talk as each one accuses the other of some particularly fool Original for our Records and not published.

10394 The Star Spangled Banner — United States Marine Band

Our national anthem as it is played on all occasions when the President appears officially before the public. This arrangement has an introduction of ruffles and flourishes which will be found an agreeable embellishment. Not only is this the official arrangement of the number but it is played by the "President's Own" band, which should make the Record especially desirable in the eyes of the public. This Record ought to enjoy a big sale. Publisher, H. Coleman, Philadelphia.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

30027 Barbiere di Siviglia—Ecco ridente in cielo (Rossini) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Florencio Constantino, Tenor

Every music lover knows the sprightly serenade which the Count plays before Rosina's window. As a serenade it has perhaps never been equalled in lightness of touch, grace of ornament and melody. Making very heavy demands in the execution, it yet is sung here by Mr. Constantino with all the required art and sprightliness.

30028 Huguenots—Piff Paff (Meyerbeer) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Luigi Lucenti, Bass

Intensely factional as is the story on which this master opera is based, it yet contains in its bold words. This Piff-Paff number, the words of which carry the war song of the Protestant soldiers, is very martial and stern, but it has, notwithstanding this, become a favorite the world over. Once heard there ever lingers its memory. Mr. Lucenti has given a virile rendition.

40015 Samson et Delila—Mon coeur s'omre (*C. Saint-Saens) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment — Marie Delna, Contralto

There is perhaps no melody so seductively sweet as this air by which Delila lulls to rest the hesitancy of Samson, nor can there be any wonderment that he put aside all caution and fell of the Master Saint-Saens in its lavishness grace. Madame Delna, whose pure contralto voice was the sensation at the Metropolitan Opera House and the New Theatre for only too short a time, has made of this probably the best contralto Record ever offered the public.

40016 Zaza—Dir che ci sono al mondo (Leoncavallo) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment — Carmen Melis, Soprano

As Zaza finds her lover married and father of so pretty a daughter she realizes that the end of her love dream has come and is of course desperate. Married! and an angel for a daughter! How rude her awakening!! Little Tom is playing Cherubini's Ave Maria on the piano for her and Zaza in despair compares her lowly life with the happiness, the respect of married life. Madame Carmen Melis has caught and conveyed to this Record all the desperation, the rebellion against her life, and again makes this Zaza Record a living, speaking one.

40017 Carmen—Seguedilia (Bizet) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment — Marguerite Sylva, Soprano

Carmen! Perhaps no other opera has so strong a hold on all music lovers as has Carmen, the vivacious, the tuneful. One beautiful melody follows another, and each one has a swing, a movement peculiarly beautiful and peculiarly its own. Of all, however, the Seguedilia has perhaps the greatest charm. Little wonder then that Don José forgot his vows, his duty, when Carmen put forth all her woman's lures and sang to him. Subtle is the charm of this air, which Madame Sylva sings with the true temperament and abandon of the seductive, graceful Spanish gypsy.

Edison Amberol Record in Italian

7502 Rigoletto—Bella figlia dell' amore (Verdi) — Quartette

Virginia Colombati, Mezzo-Soprano; Sara Marsinez, Soprano; Vincenzo Oddo, Tenor; Fernando Avedano, Baritone. Orchestra accompaniment.

Edison Standard Record in Swedish

20549 Klara Stjärna (H. Wallenlind) Orchestra accompaniment — Arvid Aaplund

Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this Bulletin should mention its number and is addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, SALES DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

We are pleased to announce the acquisition of Mme. Carmen Melis, Gustave Huberdeau and Luigi Cilla to our list of Grand Opera artists.

The Amberol Grand Opera Records made by these artists possess exceptional merit, and we feel justified in predicting a large and ever increasing demand for them.

The prices for these Records, as also those offered in the future by the same artists, are as follows:

	Dealer. List.	Domestic List.	Canadian List.
Carmen Melis.....	$1.20	$2.00	$2.50
Huberdeau	.60	1.00	1.25
Cilla	.60	1.00	1.25

The above prices will be subject to the special allowance of 3½ per cent. to obviate any possible demand for replacement or further allowance for breakage.

Formal announcement covering these Records will appear in the May and June supplements.

"My South Polar Expedition"

By Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton
Commander of the Victorian Order

EDISON AMBEROL RECORD NO. 473

Prices: Dealer, 30 cents; List 50 cents.

The special allowance of 3½ per cent. for breakage prevails, also usual terms and delivery.

We are pleased to advise that we have made a Record with a short story of the experience of Lieutenant E. H. Shackleton, which will be ready for shipment on or about April 20th.

From the immense and enthusiastic audiences which have greeted Lieutenant Schackleton on his various public appearances, we believe the experience he has recited for us regarding the South Pole Expedition (and which will not appear on any other talking machine Records), will prove a great seller.

Lieutenant Ernest H. Shackleton, of England, is scarcely less famous as an arctic explorer than our own Peary, and while he did not actually reach the South Pole, the fear of his party in reaching a point only ninety-seven miles distant from it is second only to the discovery of the North Pole. The knowledge of the Antarctic regions gained by this expedition is of the greatest importance to science and history.

Upon this Record, well recorded, is Lieutenant Shackleton's own story of the privation endured and the dangers that beset his party on all sides. This is a notable Record made by a notable man.

At a dinner given in New York recently ex-Ambassador Choate, in an address to Lieutenant Shackleton, said:

"America has no lack of arctic explorers of its own, real and pretended. It has profound admiration for all the explorers of other lands, especially of the mother country. You have come to a people of 80,000,000 all eager to hear the story of your great career.

It is only twenty years since you left Dulwich College and entered the merchant marine. Now you are known everywhere and honored everywhere. Not the least pure of your achievement is that you have aroused no envy, no inquiry, no criticism. We ask our own explorers to submit to inquiry and investigation. We take your own word for your thrilling story."

For 127 days you took your life in your hands. You came back starved and exhausted, but you brought every one of your men with you, and you had been within 100 miles of the South Pole. The Stars and Stripes float over the North Pole. It is only fair that we should leave the field open for the hoisting of the Union Jack in the South."

Lieutenant Shackleton was on March 28th presented with the Cullen Geographical Medal by the American Geographical Society, and is now on a lecture tour which is intended to include approximately seventy of the larger cities in the United States and Canada.

We would ask that your order be immediately sent to your Jobber; shipments to be made at once, and Records to go on sale as soon as received.

To simplify the handling of Amberol Grand Opera Records, so that our trade may know at a glance the correct list prices, we purpose classifying the various Records; that is, all Records list-ing at $1.00 will be covered by numbers start-ing with No. 30,000 and running upward; Rec-ords listing at $1.50 from No. 35,000 and up-ward, and Records listing at $2.00 from No. 40,000 and upward.

The Amberol Grand Opera Records at pres-ent in stock will be supplied until exhausted, but the labels on the cartons will bear only the new numbers. The list below shows very clearly the old and corresponding new number, as also the different classifications.

We supply our trade with a sufficient number of the new labels only, to enable them to re-number such cartons as they have on hand, but of course not until after we have relabeled our own stock. As near as we can ascertain it will be about June 1st before we will be in position to supply the new labels, and would, therefore, ask that orders for same be withheld until that date.

Begin-ng with the July supplement, all Am-berol Grand Opera Records will bear the new serial numbers.

This method of classifying Amberol Grand Opera Records we believe will facilitate matters for all concerned, and prove more satisfactory than the present system.

Advertising Dept. Bulletin No. 20 April 5, 1910

Trade Information for Dealers

Correspondence concerning this bulletin should receive its number and be addressed to THE NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT, Orange, N. J.

Your Jobber has been advised of our readiness to supply him with small quantities of five new foreign Record Catalogues as follows:

Form No. 1750—British Selections.
Form No. 1753—French and French-Canadian Selections.
Form No. 1754—German Selections.
Form No. 1762—Spanish, Mexican, Argentine, Cuban, Porto Rican, Portu-guese and Filipino Selec-tions.
Form No. 1755—Miscellaneous Languages.

These catalogues supersede forms 1556 to 1560 inclusive, which have been in use since the early part of June, 1909.

Sales Department Bulletin No. 31 of June 7th, 1909, had the effect of interesting a number of Dealers in the carrying of some part of these foreign selections in regular stock. However, by no means all Dealers placed orders even for a small quantity of the Records in the old cata-logues.

For the past year the demand has been for more foreign Amberol Records and fewer Stand-ard. Our foreign offices have not been adding Amberol selections to their catalogues as rapidly as we have in this country, but the new catalogues offer a number of representative Amberol Records in the most important languages. Deal-ers should carry these Amberol Records in stock. It naturally follows that Jobbers must also carry them. As we have stated on previous occasions, it is not with any desire to force either Jobbers or Dealers to carry the full list of both Amberol and Standard selections that these catalogues are issued, but we do make this plea for the Amberol sections of all catalogues.

In the Amberol sections will be found selec-tions, both vocal and instrumental, that are known the world over and that, consequently, are equally as desirable and salable as any num-bers in the domestic catalogues. The instru-mental numbers, particularly, will find a ready market in this country and Dealers will make no mistake in adding the entire complement to their stocks. There are instrumental numbers in these catalogues of a type not to be had in the domestic catalogue and that, because of their charming tunefulness and representative char-acter, will appeal with unusual force to the musical public.

A brief summary of the Amberol sections of these catalogues follows:

FORM 1750—BRITISH SELECTIONS—Includes 40 instrumental selections and 90 vocal numbers. Of the instrumental collection 27 are band num-bers contributed by the National (London) Mili-tary Band and the balance are orchestral, banjo, concertina and 'cello solos by artists who are well known on both sides of the water. The vocal numbers are sung by the best vocalists of the United Kingdom, and although, as in the instrumental list, many are native in character and as such will interest particularly the native born, others are of universal reputation and can be sold everywhere. Some of the Amberol selec-tions in this as well as the other lists, have already been adopted into the domestic cata-logue. Such selections are marked to that effect.

FORM 1753—FRENCH AND FRENCH-CANADIAN SELECTIONS—Includes 4 selections by the inter-nationally famous Garde Républicaine Band and 16 vocal numbers, comprising several operatic and high-class selec'ons, by singers of most en-viable reputation.

FORM 1754—GERMAN SELECTIONS—Includes 18 selections by the world-famous Johann Strauss Orchestra, a cornet and xylophone solo, and 29 solos, duets and quartettes of operatic arias, folk-songs and humorous selections by the best artists in the German Empire.

FORM 1762—SPANISH, MEXICAN, ARGENTINE, CUBAN, PORTO RICAN, PORTUGUESE AND FILIPINO SELECTIONS—Includes the following: 68 Argentine vocal numbers in solos, duets and quartettes; 19 Spanish (Flamenca) selections, including seven vocal numbers by "Lola la Flamenca," a band number by the Philippine Constabulary Band and mandolin and guitar solos and trios by the best of native artists; 15 band numbers by the well known Police and Artillery Bands of Mexico City, and 12 other characteristic Mexican instrumental selections, including five by the famous Jarda-Recchioni Quintette, as well as 24 vocal numbers of various types and vocal arrangements; 5 Portuguese band numbers by the Municipal Guard Band of Lisbon and 43 Portuguese and Brasilian vocal numbers, and 12 Porto Rican vocal selections, all by native artists.

FORM 1755—MISCELLANEOUS LANGUAGES—In-cludes five Hawaiian songs by Toots Paka's Ha-waiians, well-known in vaudeville in this coun-try, three Hebrew vocal solos by Simon Paskal, and 15 Italian vocal numbers in solos and duets by such sterling artists as Francesco Daddi, Mario Avezza and Vin.enzo Reschiglian.

These catalogues include all selections listed up to and including January, 1910, since which time they have been augmented considerably by new supplements, all of which will be found in successive issues of the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY from the January number on.

As before stated, the instrumental Records in these lists should find a ready market in any locality. The music lovers of this country are equally as interested in standard and native compositions when played by the best artists and organizations of foreign lands as when played by our own. Moreover, the music of such countries as Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands possesses a peculiar charm of its own that will prove irresistible. Dealers in localities where foreigners are present in any numbers are in an enviable position to appeal to that class of trade with the vocal numbers, com-prising as they do the best known of the folk-songs of each country.

These booklets have been printed in limited editions and the distribution must necessarily be small. We want our Dealers to know about the Records and we want orders for them, but we cannot afford to furnish large quantities of cata-logues costing in the aggregate more than pos-sible business gained by their use. When a Dealer orders a stock of these Records his Jobber will upon request furnish a limited number of the booklets of the Records ordered. Jobbers in turn will be expected to refuse catalogues to Dealers unless they put in a stock of the Records.

Business at the Factory

We are head-over-heels in it, to use a col-loquial expression, February, despite the short-ness of its calendar, was one of the best months we have had in several years and March was even bigger, while April, up to the time we go to press, shows no indication of falling below the average.

While the demand for Amberolas continues unabated, there is a good steady call for the lower-priced machines, which is an indication of a healthy state of business conditions. We are still grappling with the Amberola proposi-tion, and although our production is steadily creeping up on the orders it will be some little time before we can say that we have it in hand. The Attachment Proposition of course made unusually heavy demands upon us but additional machinery enabled us to satisfactorily handle it so that it did not interfere with the regular Record output.

We anticipate a heavy business this month, especially in Records, for the trade is beginning to stock up in anticipation of the demand which will follow in the wake of the Attachment Proposition. There will be some tall hustling at the factory during the month of May.

Vol. VIII. JUNE, 1910 No. 6

Home Demonstration a Necessity

We ask every Dealer to turn to page 8 and read the experience of James Blair, the Clinton, Minn., Dealer who sold forty-five machines in three months simply by installing them in the homes on a week's trial. A scheme that produces such splendid results as that should be immediately put into practice by every Dealer in the line.

THINK OF IT! FORTY-FIVE MACHINES IN THREE MONTHS! FORTY-FIVE BRAN NEW RECORD CUSTOMERS! AND THE ONLY REQUISITES OF THE SCHEME A MAILING CARD, A MACHINE AND A FEW RECORDS!

We've hammered at this home demonstration idea at regular intervals in the past. It's going to be the text of a monthly sermon in the future. We want our Jobbers to take up the question also, and preach the doctrine of home demonstration to their Dealers.

The time arrived long ago in the Phonograph line when the Dealer who intends to get from the line all there is in it for him has to get out and hustle for the business. The business is there, waiting for him. Mr. Blair's experience proves that,—but it won't come to him. He must go after it. The public has been taught in the last few years to expect the salesman of a musical instrument to demonstrate it right in their homes. They will be satisfied with nothing else. They don't have to go to the Dealer's store for a demonstration of other musical merchandise; why should they be compelled to do it with the Phonograph?

It isn't that the home demonstration idea is by any means a novelty with our Dealers. Some have followed it successfully for several years past. We know of Dealers who canvass the country daily with horse and wagon, giving demonstrations and leaving machines on trial; and they are the most prosperous of our Dealers, too.

It is that the fact is every day becoming more evident that home demonstration has become an absolute necessity in the Phonograph line. Such being the case, we want our Dealers to immediately consider the most practical and efficacious means of practising it.

There isn't a Dealer among the 13,000 who can't imitate Mr. Blair's methods in some way or other. There isn't one who can't make a success of them. We suggest, therefore, that his scheme be given a trial by every Dealer who until the present time has never attempted home demonstration. The expense is insignificant,—merely the cost of printing and mailing a few cards at a time. The chief requisites for the success of the scheme are application and energy. Who wouldn't invest a few dollars and a bundle of energy in a proposition that would sell fifteen machines a month and bring him new Record customers whose patronage is an always increasing asset? Wouldn't you?

We are convinced that home demonstration is the only method of selling Phonographs, and that the Dealer who refuses to give it a practical trial is careless of his own future. We outline Mr. Blair's methods on page 8. Copy the letter and send it with an electro of the machine to your printer. If you haven't an electro we'll gladly furnish you with one free of charge. If you prefer the house-to-house canvass we know that you will find it even more successful; but, if you can't conveniently follow that method, use the mails in the manner suggested.

The point is to get started on the scheme, for in home demonstration lies the up-building of your business.

DON'T PROCRASTINATE! DON'T WAIT FOR TO-MORROW! START TODAY!

Are You "Boosting" the Attachment Proposition?

We could crowd this and a good many more issues of the MONTHLY with enthusiastic letters from the trade reporting the splendidly satisfactory results they have secured with the Attachment Proposition, but what's the use? It would be only a waste of valuable space, for every Dealer who has done anything at all with the Proposition can recite a similar experience.

We will reserve the space, therefore, to urge those Dealers to action who haven't yet "boosted" the Proposition in their localities. "There are no such Dealers,—can't be," the "live wire" will say. Oh, yes there are,—plenty of them; and we come pretty near knowing where they are, too. We want them to do things with the Proposition right now and we intend to keep "burning it in" until we open their eyes and get them started right. We'll eventually get them started, too, but we don't like the delay. We want every Dealer in the Edison line up on his tip-toe this summer, eager and aggressive for the Amberol business. The business is there, the idle machines are there, the Proposition is there; if the Dealer is "there" he will get the business.

The Summer months are usually the dullest of the year in the Phonograph trade, but this summer is going to be an exception with the Edison Dealer who boosts the Attachment Proposition early and often. His Record sales among his old customers may relax a trifle, although there is no real reason why they should, but the sale of the Attachment Outfits will give him a lot of new and enthusiastic customers to more than compensate for what he loses.

We are justified in saying "enthusiastic customers," too. It can't be otherwise. The Special Records that are part of the Outfit will only whet their appetites for the truly magnificent Records in the Amberol Catalog. That Amberol Catalog is sure to do things this Summer,—ALL SUMMER.

The Attachment Outfit is a real bargain, the biggest that has ever been offered to the Record-buying public. That's why it has made such a tremendous "hit." It gives the customer splendid value for very little money; and human nature is the same all over the world as far as bargains are concerned.

There are two points of view from which to look at this Proposition,—its present and future effect upon the Dealer's business; and it's dollars to doughnuts that the long-headed Dealer has already recognized that fact. Its present effect, of course, is the immediate stimulus it gives to Amberol Record sales; its future effect is the tendency it will have to increase the sales of Phonograph and Accessories as well as Records. The Phonograph owner, whose interest in sound-reproduction is revived and maintained by the Amberol Records, will naturally want to investigate the latest developments in Machines and Accessories. The Amberola, with its artistic design and tonal magnificence, can't help but excite his interest and envy. If his Machine is equipped with a straight horn he will soon find that he wants a Cygnet. And as further developments are made in the line (and we are experimenting constantly and in various ways for its improvement) his interest and purchasing tendency will be correspondingly developed. Such is the future and logical effect of the Attachment Proposition.

Now, at the beginning of the summer, we again urge that Dealers who have yet to hang the tempting bait of the Proposition before their public do so immediately. It's too grand an opportunity to trifle a minute with. If the opportunity is lost, the loss is irreparable. Get after it today. You know there are idle machines in your locality. There are probably plenty of others that you don't know anything about. Our word for it that you will know if you get a supply of the Outfits and advertise them as they deserve to be advertised. In the papers, through the mails, in your windows, by hand bills,—in short, by any and every practical method you can think of this Proposition should be advertised.

Get in touch with your Jobber at once if you haven't done anything with the Proposition; if you have, keep up the good work and "make hay while the sun shines."

George F. Scull Appointed Assistant General Manager

The office of Assistant General Manager of the National Phonograph Co. was created on May 7th, on which date Mr. George F. Scull was appointed to the position. Mr. Scull, who immediately assumed the duties of the office, has been connected with the Edison interests for the past two years as a patent attorney and assistant to President Frank L. Dyer. He has also had a wide experience in mechanical and commercial lines, and is thoroughly equipped to discharge the duties of his new position.

A Replacement of Individual Combination Outfit Records Not Possible

The attention of our Sales Department has been called to the fact that some of our Dealers are making requests for individual numbers making up the Combination Attachment Outfit, to replace numbers received damaged or broken, with the statement that their customers refuse to receive other than perfect sets.

In view of the fact that these Special Records are being sold at less than the cost of production the trade will realize that replacement by us is simply out of the question. We do not purpose furnishing either Jobber or Dealer with a supply of the individual numbers making up the set, and if replacement is made by either Jobber or Dealer it must be done with the distinct understanding that any surplus stock of these Special Records accumulated by such replacement are not returnable to the factory under the Exchange Proposition. Neither can any such stock be disposed of as individual Records. The enforcement of that rule will be firmly insisted upon.

The sum and substance of the whole matter is that the customer has to assume some risk in the transaction,—very little risk when the care we use in packing our Records is taken into consideration. Moreover, when it is pointed out to a customer that because of the extremely low price of the Records replacement is out of the question, and that the Outfits are sold only with that understanding, as indicated by the label attached to the package, we think that he will be willing to assume the risk; if not, the sale should not be made.

About Triumph Attachments

There has been more or less confusion among the trade on the subject of Amberol Attachments for Triumph Phonographs, some evidently not being aware that the different types of the machine require different types of Attachments. The explanation here given should clear up any further misunderstanding on that point and also enable the trade to identify the different types of the Triumph machine.

For the Triumph Phonographs playing the Standard Records only we supply Attachments for playing Amberols in three models, as follows:

Model "A" Attachments for Model "A" Triumph Phonographs;

Model "B" Attachments for Model "B" Triumph Phonographs, and Model "C" Attachments for Model "C" Triumph Phonographs.

These Attachments are not interchangeable, and all orders for Triumph Attachments should specify the Model wanted.

The Model "A" Triumph Phonograph may be distinguished from the Model "B" by the Swing Arm Lock Bolt, which is assembled on the end of the body. This machine has a Black Japanned Winding Crank.

The Model "B" Triumph Phonograph has a Swing Arm Locking Device assembled on the front of the Body. This machine has a Nickel-plated Winding Crank that screws on the Winding Shaft.

The Model "C" Triumph Phonograph has no Swing Arm, but in other respects is similar to the Model "B."

With the Model "A" and Model "C" Triumph Attachments no Clutch Shifting Lever is supplied, as there is not sufficient room on the Body to admit of this device working freely.

To the Canadian Trade

The attention of the Canadian trade is called to the fact that in the July and August issues of the Phonogram, in referring to the Combination Attachment Proposition, no mention is made of its application to Canada. An explanation of this apparent oversight will anticipate any misunderstanding on the part of our Canadian friends.

The Phonogram is printed more than two months in advance of its issue; which means that the August number went to the printer in the early part of last month. As the question of its application to Canada is still in abeyance, we were forced to either state that it did not obtain in the Dominion,—a statement which in all probability will not be true at the time the August issue reaches the trade—or omit any reference to it whatever. As the Canadian proportion of the monthly edition of 500,000 is comparatively small, we adopted the latter alternative as tending to the less confusion.

Where is the man of family so susceptible to suggestion as at his own fireside? With an Edison Phonograph reproducing the popular songs and airs, with his family clamoring for him to purchase it, a sale is only a matter of terms of payment. They're easily arranged.

Are You Hesitating About the Amberola?

It is going to be hard to convince some Dealers that they can sell Amberolas. We recognize that fact, and we know it is going to take some time and more persuasion on our part to do it; but we are going about it patiently, sanguine of final success.

Simply because they have fallen into a rut through selling the cheaper grade of machines, these Dealers look upon the sale of a $250.00 or $200.00 machine as an absolute impossibility. They quail at the prospect of even attempting to sell one. This is true in some instances of the Dealers in the large cities, and particularly true of the older-established Dealers.

Such an attitude, of course, is simply ridiculous, and the Dealer who takes it lacks the prime essential of business success,—confidence in himself and his goods. The Amberola has been on the market practically only three months, yet we can cite numerous instances where Dealers in very small villages have had no difficulty in selling the instrument.

F. M. Barney of Elm Creek, Neb., for instance. Elm Creek is a village of only 700 inhabitants,—not a very promising field for a $200.00 Phonograph at first sight, is it? Yet up to April 27th Mr. Barney had sold three Amberolas, and was sanguine of further sales.

As a matter of fact it is comparatively easier to sell a good high-priced machine than a low-priced one, and a thousand times more satisfactory. In the first place a Dealer, when he orders an Amberola, has pretty nearly made up his mind who his prospective customer is. He has looked over his ground carefully and decided whom he can interest and who can afford to purchase such an instrument. That's a big advantage right on the start. With his customer picked out he proceeds to interest him in the instrument. Here he has another advantage, for he is appealing to a class of people who are always interested in the better grade of goods. They are interested in the Amberola as they are in everything that combines quality and attractiveness. He can address his literature and advertising to this class of people with confidence that his proposition will be entertained.

Don't get the idea that we are referring only to people of wealth; quite the contrary. We particularly refer to people of refinement and of moderate means. They can be induced to buy a high-priced Phonograph even as they are induced to buy a piano. If such people will invest their money in an instrument which in many cases no member of the family is able to play, why can't they be persuaded to invest in an instrument which any one of the family can manipulate and the whole family can enjoy—especially if they can secure it on the same easy terms of payment? There's logic in that argument that can't be denied.

We again urge Dealers, who through timidity have held off on the proposition, to sit right down and think the matter over again,—think long and hard. We will wager that there is not a Dealer in the Edison line who can't, after five minutes' reflection, name a dozen families in his locality to whom the purchase of an Amberola would not be a hardship.

It's up to every one of our Dealers to ask himself this question: If a Dealer in a village of 700 can pocket the handsome profits on the sale of three Amberolas in two months, why am I hesitating to tackle the proposition in my own locality?

Amberola in Circassian Walnut

Sales Department Bulletin No. 51 of May 10th announced to Dealers that we are prepared to furnish Amberolas in Circassian Walnut. The suggestion for this style emanated from the trade, and was prompted by a general public demand. The design of the instrument remains the same, but the new finish, as can easily be imagined, greatly adds to the general effect. Dealers should lose no time in placing an order for a sample machine to use for display and demonstration purposes.

Foreign Department Now at Orange

The Foreign Department of the Company was removed from No. 10—5th Ave. to Orange in the early part of last month. By this move, which has been under contemplation for some time, all the forces of the Company will be concentrated at Orange. A small force still remains at 122 West St., New York City, to look after the details of shipping, but the accounting and sales branches, under Manager Stevens, are at Orange, to which address all communications should be sent.

Home demonstration! Look at it from any angle you want to and it looks better to you every time. Isn't that so?

Waldhorn Quartette with Gustav F. Heim

GEORGE WENDLER 1st Horn | FRANZ HAIN 2nd Horn | GUSTAV F. HEIM Cornet Soloist | WILHELM GEBHARDT 3rd Horn | HEINRICH LORBER 4th Horn

Their first Record for the Edison Phonograph, No. 478, "The Post in the Forest," will be found in the August list. Accomplished musicians, every one of them. They have won a splendid reputation throughout the country for the artistic character of their work with the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra. In their Phonograph Record the solo work of Mr. Heim is particularly noticeable for the brilliancy and phrasing of that instrument. This Record will undoubtedly be among the most popular instrumental selections in the Amberol list, and we advise our Dealers to anticipate a demand for it.

Edison Exhibit at Richmond

Sales Manager Dolbeer returned on May 21 from the Richmond Piano Exhibition thoroughly satisfied with the impression made by the Edison line upon the music trade representatives and the general public in attendance.

The word "Edison" seemed to wield a magic influence upon the visitors to the Exhibition, the two booths used for the display of machines and accessories being at all times the center of curious interest. The Amberola, quite naturally, excited the greatest curiosity, and many were the compliments paid to its handsome appearance and tonal quality, but the other Machines also came in for their share of attention. The new Model "M" Reproducer, which will soon be in the hands of the trade, was pronounced superior to any type of Reproducer ever marketed by the National Phonograph Company. Sound-proof booths had been installed for demonstration purposes, which permitted the playing of the Machines constantly without interference or distraction from the various other instruments in demonstration during the Exhibition.

The U. S. Marine Band of Washington—"The President's Own"—was a feature of the Exhibition, and their playing was a constant delight to the steady stream of visitors in attendance.

A Word from Our Traffic Manager

The following expression from our Traffic Department should be given immediate attention as tending to remedy a condition of affairs which has caused us a great deal of unnecessary annoyance:

ORANGE, N. J., May 16, 1910.

TO THE TRADE:

We are receiving numerous communications from transportation companies regarding Records returned on account of the Exchange Proposition, the trade not living up to the rules in connection with returned Records.

The principal rule that is being violated is the prepayment of transportation charges, and in this connection we wish to state that a Dealer should not attempt to present a shipment to a transportation company without the charges being fully prepaid from Dealer's place to Orange, N. J.

If a shipment is presented to a carrier and the agent is not equipped with the proper rates, the Dealer should insist on the agent communicating with the general offices and obtaining the proper rate applicable to the shipment. If this is carried out it will facilitate matters in general, inasmuch as the shipment will not be delayed in transit due to its being held up at junction points, on account of the particular shipment not being prepaid and the transportation companies having to communicate with us, requesting that we send them the amount of charges to fully prepay the shipment.

Furthermore, by fully prepaying the shipment it will not be returned en route, and will insure the goods being received more promptly and quicker credit being issued to the Dealer's Jobber.

We would thank you to give this matter careful consideration, as it is more for your interest than ours that we suggest it.

Thanking you for your attention to same, we are,

Yours very truly,

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,
J. T. ROGERS,
Traffic Manager.

Edison Dictation Records

Sales Department Bulletin No. 50 of May 10, 1910, announced to Dealers that we are prepared to distribute twenty-five two-minute Edison Dictation Records especially prepared by J. N. Kimball, a Stenographic Expert. These Records will be found of material assistance to shorthand scholars in perfecting themselves in their work and in increasing their speed in taking dictation. These Records have been prepared with unusual care and the trade should find a ready demand for them.

Prices: Dealer, 30c. net; List, U. S., 50c., Canada, 65c.

No allowance for breakage will be made on these Records.

Dealers' requirements will be promptly supplied by their Jobbers on receipt of order, together with suitable descriptive printed matter, or samples will be furnished upon request.

Canadian Dealers will have to pay the usual Customs Tariff on Edison Dictation Records.

High-Priced Goods

The demand for high-priced goods in talking machines was not cultivated and developed by the production of only fun-making records. The continual exploitation of the talking machine as a mere device for amusing the people would soon have put the industry out of business. It is the occasional humor that is appreciated but a surfeit of what is designed to create laughter palls on one and it ceases to be humor. The talking machine was designed for far nobler purposes than to merely cause laughter and yet in this particular sense it is an instrument to be appreciated. However, it is an influence in educating and refining the people that the talking machine has its greatest value and it is because of this fact that people are willing to pay one hundred and as high as one thousand dollars for an instrument and library of records. People do not buy pianos or player pianos merely for amusement, but for educative purposes as well and so that their children may be brought up in an environment of music. The great mass of the general public has not learned to appreciate the talking machine as a factor in educating their children and the retailer is largely to blame, because this is so. Talking machine dealers would do well to put the instrument on a level with pianos and appeal to the public in the manner that piano salesmen appeal to them—Canadian Music Trade Journal.

A European Compliment

The North of England would seem to be the home of the talking machine contest, and it is, therefore, all the more a source of gratification to the National Phonograph Company, Limited, that Mr. J. W. Hill, Lime Kiln Row, Haswell Colliery, should have secured no fewer than six prizes in various competitions with an Edison Home. The following first prizes were secured by Mr. Hill during 1909:—January 1, first prize, against 16 other machines; on April 1, against 23; on May 1, against 22; and on October 1, against 19 competitors. It should be mentioned that the decision was made by a different judge on each occasion, and the achievement may therefore be regarded as an exceptional demonstration of merit.—Piano Trader and Recorder (London).

Correction

On page 39 of the new Record Catalog, form 1710, Record No. 12203, "Selection from the Geisha," is incorrectly printed as No. 12083, which is the correct number of "Angel Voices," shown on page 40. We ask that the trade kindly make due notation of the error.

Display Fixtures for Edison Record Bulletins

The Goldberg Display Fixtures have asked us to show you their wall or post fixture, made especially for displaying the monthly Bulletin of the Edison Record.

The six leaves in the fixture are made of a specially prepared composition, which has a great tenacity for holding thumb tacks. You will notice by the photograph that these leaves have a metal strip running up the back and front and the edges are of a copper oxidized finish.

The main frame into which the leaves are hinged is fastened to a wall or post, and the brackets which carry the leaves can be swung from right to left or left to right, so the leaves can be folded flat on one side, or on both sides if necessary.

The six leaves are made the proper size, leaving sufficient margin, and will carry twelve bulletins.

The price of the fixture to the Edison Dealers is $15, and all orders for same must be sent direct to the Goldberg Display Fixtures, 130-32-34 West 24th Street, New York City.

Each fixture is packed in a separate crate, and you have the privilege of returning it within ten days, if it does not come up to your expectation. The fixture is guaranteed to work perfectly in every respect.

Pius X Presented with Edison Phonograph

The trade will be interested to know that the Pope has been pleased to accept an Idelia Phonograph, with a selection of Edison Records, presented to him by Mr. Edison through the National Phonograph Co., Ltd. The Chevalier Bocchi, Managing Director of Ashton and Mitchell's Royal Agency, made the presentation. The Pope expressed his great pleasure with the instrument and asked to have his thanks conveyed to Mr. Edison. His Holiness presented Signor Bocchi with a handsome gold medal as a souvenir of the occasion.

A special programme of vocal and instrumental selections had been arranged by Signor Bocchi, including the famous "William Tell" Overture by the Edison Concert Orchestra; Sarasate's "Gipsy Airs," violin solo by Albert Spaulding; an aria from "Gioconda," by Adelina Agostinelli, and "Berceuse de Jocelyn," 'cello solo, by Jean Schwiller.

The Pope was quite charmed with the recital and at the termination turned to Signor Bocchi and said, "It is really quite marvellous; the tone is wonderful." Mr. Spalding's Record elicited the remark, "There is no doubt that the violin is the finest instrument of all."

The Other 13,000

Their Experiences and Methods Offer Inspiration and Suggestion.

A Profitable Suggestion for One Dealer: Why Not For You?

The practical value of reading the MONTHLY and profiting by the suggestions made in its pages could not better be illustrated than by the experience of James Blair, Edison Dealer of Clinton, Minn., who, out of forty-seven machines sold by him between January and April of this year, can trace FORTY-FIVE to his putting into practice a suggestion made by us in the matter of HOME DEMONSTRATION. The suggestion was a mailing card embodying an offer to install a machine on a week's trial, and because of Mr. Blair's gratifying success with the scheme, we will again outline it to the trade in the hope that it will be prolific of general imitation.

The mailing card used by Mr. Blair is 6"x3½", light manila card board, and reads as follows:

Cut of Home Phonograph	WOULD YOU LIKE TO HEAR AN EDISON PHONOGRAPH IN YOUR OWN HOME?

I have decided to keep one machine and a number of Records, just to loan out to anyone living in the country who will be responsible for the safe return of it inside of a week after receiving it. Application for it can be made in person or by mail, and will be recorded in the order received by me; and I will give you the date when you can get the machine. There is no charge for the use of the machine, you simply take the machine to your home, play it for a week and return it to me. That settles the deal. I want all the country people to hear the Edison, and at my expense. If after hearing the machine you wish to purchase one, I will sell you a new one and new Records, and also give you a good trade.

Call up or write me right away. If you cannot call, fill in the attached post-card and mail; upon receipt of which I will let you know when your turn comes to have the free use of this outfit. JAMES BLAIR, Clinton, Minn.

Attached to the above is the following regulation size post-card (perforated, of course) for a reply:

.....19

James Blair,
Clinton, Minn.

DEAR SIR—Please register my name for one week's free use of your Edison Phonograph as advertised.

Signed.....

P. O.....

Don't you think it paid Mr. Blair to read the MONTHLY? And don't you think a scheme that sells forty-five machines in one month is worthy of a trial?

Result of a Follow-up

The following letter, received from Wick's Music Store, Guelph, Ont., Can., illustrates the benefit that results from a Dealer's co-operating with us in our "follow-up" scheme of landing "prospects." It also goes to show that the proprietor, H. E. Wicks, is a hustler of the first order:

GUELPH, ONT., CAN., May 10th, 1910.

National Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

Gentlemen:—We have much pleasure in replying to your inquiry No. 21913. Would say that we have sold 13 Edison Phonographs and a considerable stock of Records, amounting to $25.00 or thereabouts.

We certainly are shoving the goods. Have sold one Combination Home; one Combination Standard; one Standard; one Fireside, and a Combination Gem,—all within the last three weeks.

Yours truly,
H. E. WICKS' MUSIC STORE.

A Guessing Contest—Try It

M. A. Gordon, of South Berwick, Me., who has been referred to before in these columns as a good advertiser, recently introduced an innovation in that line as ingenious as, Mr. Gordon reports, effective. He placed a Triumph machine in his window and advertised a prize of $2.00 to the one who guessed nearest to the length of time it would run with one winding. The contest lasted a week, one guess being allowed with every 10c., four with every 25c. and six with every 50c. purchase. The machine ran exactly thirty-one minutes and forty-two seconds, and the winner guessed thirty-one minutes and fifteen seconds. Mr. Gordon reports that the contest boosted his Record sales in fine shape. It strikes us as a pretty good idea and worthy of a trial.

W. Yancey Wilson, Edison Dealer of Speckels, Cal., publishes a bright little weekly sheet which he has christened "The Enterprise," and in which he advertises his various wares, among which we notice that Edison Phonographs and Records occupy the position of prominence. A capital idea, particularly with a merchant whose stock embraces a considerable assortment of merchandise, as does Mr. Wilson's. He enlivens the sheet with a few current topics and local brevities, which add attractiveness to it. Success to "The Enterprise."

Amberola Aids Evangelist Knowles

An Amberola, loaned for the occasion by F. M. Barney, Edison Dealer of Elm Creek, Neb., played a prominent part in an entertainment given at the Christian Tabernacle in that place on April 27th. The entertainment, the chief feature of which was an illustrated monologue of Charles M. Sheldon's famous story, "In His Steps," given by Rev. H. G. Knowles, a noted evangelist, was very successful. With the exception of the instrumental selections all the numbers on the program were illustrated by lantern slides. The programme follows:

PART I

Solo—"Light as a Feather".....Amberola
Song—"Which Way Did the Angels Go?".....
.....Rev. Mr. Knowles
Song—"When the Bell in the Light-house Rings".....Amberola
Song—"Ben Bolt".....Rev. Mr. Knowles
Reading—"Cross Roads".....Rev. Mr. Knowles
Song—"The Palms".....Amberola
Song—"Suwanee River".....Rev. Mr. Knowles

PART II

Monologue—"In His Steps".....Rev. Mr. Knowles
Song—"Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet".....Amberola
Monologue—"In His Steps".....Rev. Mr. Knowles
Song—"The Holy City".....Amberola

As those who are familiar with the book can well understand, the songs, "Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet," rendered at the death scene of the tramp, and "The Holy City," as a finale, were peculiarly effective and elicited many flattering compliments for the Amberola.

Incidentally it should be stated that at the time of the entertainment Mr. Barney had disposed of three Amberolas,—and that in a village of 700 population!

In the first fifteen days of April H. S. Hart, of Shreveport, La., sold $239.00 worth of Records, and did not consider that by any means extraordinary; in fact, at the time of reporting it (which, by the way, was not done for the purpose of having it chronicled) he anticipated better results from the remaining fifteen days of the month.

We are waiting to hear from the record challenger.

The Fort Wayne Machine Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., sends out its Phonograms and special printed matter in an envelope which bears a reproduction of the illustration appearing on the front cover of the Phonogram and some reference thereto.

A mighty good ad, that.

Amberola Dance

The Fort Morgan (Colo.) Drug Co. recently inaugurated a series of Amberola dances, held at the Armory in that place, which have proven successful from both a social and a business standpoint. The press notices sent us in regard to the first of the series speak in flattering terms of the quality of the music furnished for the occasion. Mr. J. C. Arthur St. James, secretary-treasurer of the company, under whose personal direction the dances are being held, writes to say that they have proven a splendid advertisement, not only for the Amberola but for the business in general. For the convenience of Dealers who may wish to imitate this really excellent plan of advertising the Amberola, we print the program of the first dance, indicating the catalogue number of each Record. It will be noted that with two exceptions the numbers are Amberol Records.

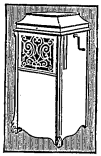
F. S. Gutterson is a wide-awake Dealer of Charlotte, Mich., a town of 5,000, who attributes his success in the handling of Edison products to the faith he has in the business, which is evidenced by the fact that he carries the complete Edison line. That this brings results is attested by his recently selling twenty-one outfits in a single month.



Twenty-one new Record customers! After that who will have the temerity to say that the Edison line can not be made to pay in a small town?

Amberola Electros for Newspaper Ads

We are now prepared to supply electros of the Amberola for use in newspaper advertising. The electros are sent free of charge on request, the only condition attached being that the Dealer furnish us with copies of the newspaper in which the ad. appears, or a clipping from same showing the ad. The following are two sample line-cuts:

No. 727

No. 729

We can also supply No. 728, similar to No. 727 but larger (2"x3½"), and Nos. 738 (3¼"x1¾") and 736 (2"x3"), similar to No. 729. We have, also, electros of the Amberola in half-tone as follows: No. 729 (2¾"x2⅝"), oak finish, closed view; No. 730 (2¾"x2⅝") oak finish, exposed view, and No. 731 (2¾"x2⅝"), mahogany (piano finish), closed view. These half-tone electros can be used only on paper of high finish, and are therefore impracticable for newspaper advertising. Their use is confined to programs, circulars, etc., printed on coated paper.

The trade is urged to send in their orders immediately for such electros as they can use, not forgetting that we shall expect the stipulated proof of such use.

Foreign Amberol Records and Catalogs

You were apprised by Advertising Department Bulletin No. 2 of April 5th that your Jobber has been advised of our readiness to supply him with limited quantities of forms No. 1750, 1753, 1754, 1742 and 1755,—all Foreign Record Catalogs embracing selections, Amberol and Domestic, listed up to and including January, 1910. The supplements subsequent to that date will be found in the MONTHLY beginning with the January number.

Your Jobber will furnish you with samples of these Catalogs upon request, and with quantities of same consistent with your order for Records.

There isn't a Dealer in the United States or Canada who can not sell the Instrumental Amberol numbers in these Catalogs, and very few if any who can not find a market for some of the vocal numbers right at his door. Some of the Instrumental Records are of a type that the Domestic Catalogs do not offer,—the bewitchingly beautiful mandolin, guitar and harp solos, duets and trios of Latin America and Spain; the charming native airs of the Hawaiian Islands played on instruments typical of that country; French, German, Italian,—in short, the native airs of every land played by the best musicians available in each. The vocal numbers are equally meritorious in point of both rendition and recording, and will prove an irresistible offering to natives, as well as the sons and daughters of natives, of the lands they represent.

Suspended List, May 20, 1910

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

MASS., Fall River—M. J. Harrington, 174 Bedford St.
IOWA, Spencer—Andrew & Constant.
OHIO, Wilmington—Raymond Blair.
Wilmington Phono. Store (J. H. Hale, Prop.)
NEB., Henderson—J. B. Misner.
CANADA, London, Ont.—The Newcombe Piano Co.

Jobbers and Dealers are asked not to supply any of the above named firms with our apparatus, at addresses given or any other address.

Our June Magazine and National Weekly Ad

Millions of people read this ad—many of them at your very door. This ad creates the demand. How many know that you can supply it?

New Grand Opera Talent—Karl Jörn and Giovanni Polese

Two names—Karl Jörn and Giovanni Polese —new to the Edison Catalog, but by no means unfamiliar to the patrons of grand opera and those who are posted on "who's who" in the world of music and song, are seen in the August list of Grand Opera Amberol Records.

Karl Jörn is considered one of the best lyric and dramatic tenors on the operatic stage, and his initial contribution to the Catalog is the favorite number of an opera in which he has scored the most emphatic success of a remarkable career.

He was born of poor German parents in Riga, Russia, where his preliminary education was received under the patronage of Baron von Dellinghausen, Governor and Commanding General of the Province. After a course in Vienna under Professor Reiss he made his début at the Stadt theater in Freiburg. Later he sang in Zurich and Hamburg, afterwards becoming a member of the Royal Opera House in Berlin, where his remarkable voice and wonderful dramatic ability won him the enviable position of first tenor. His three seasons at Covent Garden, London, and those at Wiesbaden, Vienna, Prag and in fact all the leading operatic centres were marked with great success.

In January, 1909, Mr. Jörn made his first appearance in America at the Metropolitan Opera House, where the critics were lavish in their praise of his performance of Walter von Stolzing in "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg." His success was even more pronounced during the past season at the same temple of the operatic art.

Giovanni Polese, a favorite baritone of the Hammerstein forces during the past season, is an artist for whom a bright future is predicted. He possesses a voice of superb quality and flexibility, and his compass is unusually extensive. His forceful dramatic style is shown to splendid advantage in the first number he has given to our Records. Mr. Polese should become equally as popular with the Phonograph public as he did with New York audiences.

Selling the Goods

What kind of a machine are you using to demonstrate your Records with? And what kind of shape is it in? Is it an old, dilapidated machine or one strictly up-to-date and in first-class running order? Because it makes all the difference in the world, both to you and ourselves.

You can't afford to give a customer a wrong impression of Edison Records and the reproducing quality of an Edison Phonograph; neither can we afford to have you do so. It seems almost incredible that any Dealer could be lax in so important a matter as this, but our salesmen occasionally report having discovered instances where machines obsolete in type and in poor condition are in use for demonstration purposes.

Every Dealer ought to realize the fact that the first impression made upon a customer is usually a lasting one, and for that reason should make it as favorable as possible by using a thoroughly up-to-date machine and keep it in the best possible working order. We trust this word of caution will be heeded by Dealers who have been negligent in this respect.

Take the public into your confidence in your advertising chats. We've received some good samples of that kind of copy lately from our Dealers. For instance, one Dealer advertised that he had five machines which he wished to dispose of before a certain specified date. He continued that ad. until he had sold a machine, whereupon he promptly apprised the public of the fact in his ad. and advertised four machines for sale. He continued on in this way until he had sold the five machines, when he published the fact and started all over again.

That confidential style of ad. is conceded to be the most attractive and efficacious.

The Attachment Outfit today, tomorrow and every day until you are satisfied that every machine within reach of your advertising has been "Amberolized." Don't let up on it. It's your great big opportunity, your "one best bet." If you have disposed of your stock of Outfits, order a few more for the machines you don't know about. You'll find there are some within call. Make a noise with your advertising and draw them out of their retirement.

Who said June was going to be a dull month? It ought to be one of the busiest months of the year, and will be if the Dealer stirs things up in the right way. The Attachment Proposition and a hustling Dealer will start something this month that will carry him over all the rough spots of the summer.

On these balmy June evenings, when everybody who can is out of doors, your store should be thrown wide open, with an Edison Phonograph playing all the time.

Do people keep on walking when they hear a Phonograph playing in a store? Not if it's an Edison. They stop, look and listen. And when they look their eyes ought to rest upon the "daddy" of them all,—the Edison Amberola.

Vacation season now starts. Have you thought to advertise how nicely the Edison Phonograph fits into the vacation scheme? Told them how it kills the loneliness of the mountains and seashore? Emphasized its portability?

It isn't very handy to carry a piano into the woods with you, but it's no trouble at all to pack an Edison with the camping outfit. Tell them so, and induce your old customers to take their machines and a few Records along on their vacations.

Don't forget that you can't handle new Amberol customers without a complete Amberol Record stock. Your new customers will want to hear the old Amberols as well as the new supplements. You must be prepared to accomodate them. If you are not,—is it necessary to remind you of what happens? Go over your stock and place an order at once for any missing numbers. Get a reputation with the new customers of being able to give them what they want when they want it.

Aim at a good, high mark. Try your "prospect" on an Amberola. Even if he can't buy, you tickle his vanity anyhow by making him think that you think that he can. It's easier to descend than ascend, and you have a cosmopolitan line to do it on,—the Ideal's, Triumph, Home, Standard, Fireside and Gem. A Photograph to suit every purse.

Did you arrange a special Memorial Day window? Did it attract attention? Send us a photo of it, if you had one taken. We'll reproduce the best one received in the next issue of the MONTHLY.

By the way, it's not too early to give a little thought to your Fourth of July window. Next to your X-mas display your Independence Day window ought to be the most striking of the year. The public scans store windows with an expectant eye on patriotic holidays. Don't let yours be a disappointment. Plenty of patriotic suggestions for window cards in the Record Catalog.

Here are a few window card suggestions, if you don't strike something better:

Your Edison Phonograph 'will play four-minute patriotic Records if you let it. Let me tell you how, also how to get ten Amberol Records practically free.

Did you ever hear Sousa's Band play "The Stars and Stripes Forever?" It won't cost you anything to step inside and hear it.

Celebrate the Fourth in the good old way. Lots of noise, fireworks and music. Let an Edison furnish the latter.

Some splendid Fourth of July Records in the Edison Catalog. Come in and hear them now.

"The Sword of Bunker Hill." You ought to hear it on an Edison Amberola.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" is a Record to find your patriotism. Hear it on an Edison Phonograph.

One of the features of selling Phonographs is keeping the business alive, maintaining an air of festivity, keeping the store full of interested customers, showing new things, keeping the windows dressed, and in every way having a certain air of life in and about the store; a certain activity, which comes from popular, catchy music rendered all the time.

Do you keep a file of the MONTHLY? You ought to. It will enable you at any time to brush up on some important matter that may not be quite clear in your memory.

An Amberola in your store is like a "headliner" in a vaudeville show,—adds "class" to the surroundings.

Decalcomania Slides

Reference in the May MONTHLY to the above provoked so many inquiries that we are giving the details again for the benefit of those Dealers who may not be familiar with them.

The lantern slides of the above decalcomania are especially intended for moving picture shows, magic lantern exhibitions, etc., and are furnished in plain black and white or in two colors, the latter, of course, being the more attractive. The prices are 25c. each for the former and 90c. each for the latter. We at first considered reserving space on the slide for the Dealer's name and address, but abandoned it on second thought, as it occurred to us that it would be a much better idea for the Dealer to use a home-made slide of his own for that purpose and let it follow immediately after the decalcomania slide on the canvas. On such a home-made slide the Dealer could also make any pertinent announcements he might wish,—such, for instance, as the Attachment Proposition, special terms of payment, concerts, etc. The cost of a home-made slide is so insignificant as to be unworthy of consideration.

These slides have been found an excellent ad. by many Dealers who have used them, and we strongly urge the trade to purchase one and try the merits of the proposition.

Load up a wagon with a few Machines, Attachment Outfits and Records, and make a canvass of the surrounding country. Do this daily for a week, and we guarantee you will be agreeably surprised at the results, physically and financially. You'll get health and inspiration from the pure country ozone, and the country people will surprise you with the readiness with which they accept your offer of a trial installation.

Has it occurred to you that a big portion of the country people are as yet not acquainted with the present-day development of the Phonograph and the existence of the long-playing Record? Start the canvass scheme working and let them know about it.

Talking Machine Jobber's Convention

Mr. J. C. Roush, the enterprising Secretary of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, has been arousing the interest of the members in the coming convention by means of a series of exceptionally stimulating letters, the effect of which can not fail to be manifested in a record-breaking attendance. The program of the Convention and details in respect to recommendations, etc., follows:

PROGRAM

Fourth Annual Convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers.

ATLANTIC CITY, JULY 5TH TO 9TH, 1910.

Headquarters will be at the Chalfonte. Special rates have been arranged which will greatly modify the usual charges. Unusual arrangements have been made with the management of the Hotel to provide every accommodation for the convenience and pleasure of the Association. Rooms, single and en suite, are reserved and may be obtained through the Hotel. The list of Association members will be grouped together and served the same table if application for it be made. A cordial invitation to dine at the Chalfonte will be at the individual disposal of the Association. Meals, special attendants, including the same waiter at the same table, and other attendants have been proffered. With a further addition of every assured courtesy, the Association members are guaranteed something very unusual.

Each member will have the ENTIRE FREEDOM of Atlantic City and can govern his movements to suit his individual taste. The main features of the entertainment are enough to occupy the entire time, but any one wishing to deviate in any particular, by reason of friends, acquaintances or special desires on his part, can do so of course.

FIRST DAY, TUESDAY, JULY 5TH.

Personally conducted tour of the board-walk and general features of the beach, immediately after breakfast until 11 A. M.

Bathing, 11 A. M.

Luncheon.

Association Meet, 2:30 to 4:30 P. M.

Dinner, 6 P. M.

Dancing, 9 to 11 P. M., on Amusement Pier.

SECOND DAY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 6TH.

After breakfast, sail on the Inlet.

Bathing, 11 A. M.

Luncheon.

Association Meet, 2:30 to 4:30 P. M.

Dinner, 6 P. M.

Personally conducted tour of Young's Pier and inspection of the Wireless Station. Numerous side attractions have been arranged for, allowing an assortment for selection that will meet any taste.

10 P. M., Special Sea-Shore Dinner with elaborate musical program.

Old Vienna until the wee sma' hours.

THIRD DAY, THURSDAY JULY 7TH.

9 A. M., Ball Game between the Eastern and Western Jobbers at Atlantic City Ball Park. Umpires, Messrs. Dolleter and Geissler.

Bathing, 11 A. M.

Luncheon.

Association Open Meeting, 2:30 P. M. Reading of special papers prepared by Association members and experts from the various Talking Machine factories.

5 P. M., English Afternoon Tea with light luncheon.

7:30 P. M., Banquet at the Shelburne "Rose Room," sumptiously decorated for the occasion, with elaborate menu and select musical program. Addresses by Frank Dyer, President, and C. H. Wilson, General Manager, of the National Phonograph Co.; Emil Berliner and Eldridge R. Johnson, Inventor of the Victor Talking Machine and President of the Victor Company, and Edward Lyman Bill, Editor of the Talking Machine World.

FOURTH DAY, FRIDAY, JULY 8TH.

The Association members will board the 9:30 A. M. train, arriving in Camden about 45 minutes later. As guests of the Victor Talking Machine Co., the Association will visit the factory. After visiting this plant, luncheon will be served on the Roof Garden of the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia. An interval will elapse before dinner, which will allow members to "do" Philadelphia. After dinner, members are invited to join representatives of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in attending a theatrical entertainment, following which supper will be provided at one of the leading Cafes.

FIFTH DAY, SATURDAY, JULY 9TH.

Specially arranged meet and visit at the Edison Factory, Orange, N. J., a short run from Philadelphia. The officers and department heads of the National Phonograph Co. will show the Association their usual handsome attention, which will include ample provision for the entertainment and pleasure of all in Orange. The details of the entertainment will be announced later.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for August, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before July 25th, 1910, all things being favorable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on July 27rd. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A.M. on July 25th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after July 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before July 25th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on July 23rd, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for August Records on or before June 25th. Dealers should place August orders with Jobbers before June 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Amberol Records for August, 1910

474 Kokuŏa—Russian Peasant Dance — Sousa's Band

A most suspicious number with which to head the monthly list. It is a well-known band selection, full of the life and action which are characteristic of the Russian folk dances. The composer of this number is Franz Lehar, who wrote the world-famous "Merry Widow" Operetta. Is it necessary to say aught in praise of the rendition? Publishers, Hawkes & Sons, London.

475 Who Will Care for Mother Now — Will Oakland and Chorus

A pathetic old war-time ballad with which Americans, young and old, are familiar. Its theme is the anxiety for his mother's future expressed by a young hero who is dying on the patriotism and sympathy of every American, especially when sung in the spirited manner in which Mr. Oakland renders it. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Chas. Carroll Sawyer.

476 Favorite Airs from "The Arcadians" — Edison Comic Opera Company

"The Arcadians" is the most recent of the English musical plays to achieve success in this country. Its charm lies in the refined beauty of its melodies, as is well illustrated by the following list of selections which are included in this Record: "Arcadians Are We:" "The Girl with a Brogue:" "Arcady Is Ever Young:" "Charming Weather:" "Bring Me a Rose," and "Truth Is So Beautiful." We flatter ourselves that this Record will be equally as emphatic a success as the first Record of the same description, No. 465, "Favorite Airs from Mikado."

477 The Moonlight, the Rose and You — Stanley and Gillette

Baritone and tenor duet. A song of unusual poetic merit, linked to a beautiful melody and magnificently sung by two artists whose work is ever distinguished by fine harmony. In this number they have a splendid vehicle with which to display their vocal timbre and artistic treatment, and the Record proves that they have taken full advantage of their opportunity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Chas. E. Barr; music, Johann C. Schmid; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

478 The Post in the Forest — Gustave F. Heim and Waldhorn Quartette

In days gone by, when travelling was done by post, the melodious tones of the post-horn were always heard when the conveyance was approaching or passing the various towns and villages along the journey. In this number the composer conveys his idea of the sounds of the horn by transforming them into a brilliant cornet solo, for which the French horns of the quartette form an effective background. This is the first Record made for the Edison Phonograph by these artists, all of whom are accomplished musicians and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. A singularly beautiful Record which we are sure will win the appreciation of trade and public. Composer, v. Schaffer.

479 The Grizzly Bear — Stella Mayhew

The cleverest "rag" composition heard in a long time. "The Grizzly Bear" is the name ascribed to a new style of dance which (the song says) is fashionable on the coast, and which, judging from the description given of it, is an eminently appropriate title. It is sung in Miss Mayhew's buoyant style. During a dance effect between verses she introduces a lot of comic nonsense about a pair of shoes that have been "wished on her" for the dance. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, George Botsford; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

480 Ain't You Coming Out To-Night? — Collins and Harlan

This is one of the most melodious numbers that Collins and Harlan have ever given us. It is a "darkey" ballad of the old plantation type with a most ingratiating air all the way through. A banjo effect is heard in the chorus and, as usual, the popular artists find an opportunity for the introduction of some clever comedy. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ren. Shields; music, Henriette Blanke-Belcher; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

481 Blue Danube Waltz — American Standard Orchestra

Who is not familiar with the alluring strains of this perennially popular selection, the best known and liked of the many compositions written by Johann Strauss, the famous "Waltz King?" Rendered most delightfully by the American Standard Orchestra, this enduring favorite should be in great demand among the Amberol Record public, which is daily growing in numbers. It should especially appeal to lovers of the "light fantastic" as a waltz number par excellence. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

482 I'm Afraid of You — Manuel Romain and Chorus

A waltz song of enticing rhythm and a light order of sentiment, the theme of which is the fear a young fellow entertains of falling in love with a fascinating young miss; the fear very evidently being overshadowed by willingness to succumb to her charms. Mr. Romain is ably sustained in this Record by a capable chorus, a pleasing innovation of which is the introduction of a female voice. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Albert Gumble; publishers, J. H. Remick & Co., New York City.

483 Sunshine in My Soul — Edison Mixed Quartette

This well-known sacred number is here sung in a manner which will make the Record desirable in the eyes of not only collectors of sacred Records but of all lovers of good harmony. A heavy chime effect is introduced in the rendition and forms a pleasing feature. A supremely beautiful Record. Organ accompaniment. Words, E. E. Hewitt; music, John R. Sweeney.

484 Ballet Music from "Le Cid" {(a) Aubade (b) Navarraise} — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"Le Cid," written in 1885 by the gifted French composer, Jules Massenet, is one of the most successful of the new school of French opera. The ballet music of the opera is an original and beautiful piece of orchestral work, and Aubade and Navarraise are the two favorite numbers of the work. To lovers of the higher grade of music this charming Record with its dreamy, catchy air will constitute an irresistible appeal.

485 Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon — Ada Jones and Chorus

A novel comic song with a brisk, agreeable air, in which are detailed the discouraging experiences of Harry Lee in his courtship of fickle Nellie Green. It develops that Nellie was in the habit of making telephone engagements with a numerous chain of admirers and, consequently, sometimes got her dates mixed, this time to the embarrassment of poor Harry. Songs of this type seem to have been written especially for Miss Jones. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Irving Berlin; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

486 Just for To-Night — Pike and Kirkby

Ernest Pike, tenor, and Stanley Kirkby, baritone, are two of the best known and experienced vocalists in the British Isles. When they are chosen for the making of a duet number a musical treat is a foregone conclusion. The voices of the singers blend admirably, while the sentiment and general trend of the song is of a high order. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, French; publishers, Witmark & Sons, New York City.

487 March Religioso—Gospel Hymns — Edison Concert Band

Something out of the ordinary, in respect to both character and rendition, is offered in this Record, which is an arrangement in march tempo of the following familiar sacred numbers: "Holy, Holy! Lord, God Almighty" (Dykes); "Shall We Gather at the River" (Lowry); "Stand Up for Jesus" (Webb); "Pass Me Not" (Doane), and "The Home Over There" (O'Kane). A recreational band Record and one that every one will want. Special arrangement for our Record and not published.

488 The Morning After the Night Before — Billy Murray and Chorus

A highly illuminating comic song in which a "rounder," who has lately been initiated in the "Won't Go Home Until Morning Club," describes the "morning after" effect as well as the "night before." Incidentally he paints most vividly a picture of how the ladies will conduct themselves throughout similar experiences when they assume the full responsibilities of woman's rights. The song has a rollicking air and Billy Murray sings it in his usual acceptable manner. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ed. Moran; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Publishing Co., New York City.

489 Pals — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Vaudeville sketch. It is doubtful if two artists can be found who can better imitate the vernacular of the street than can Ada Jones and Len Spencer. The sketch simply teems with quaint, humorous sayings and witticisms, blended with a touch of nature that is as agreeable as pathetic. The Record ends most appropriately with the singing by Miss Jones of the chorus of that once popular song, "He's Me Pal." This Record will undoubtedly be in big demand.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

490 The Voice of Our Nation Medley—Part 1 — United States Military Band

A medley of patriotic selections introducing: "Hail Columbia;" "Just Before the Battle, Mother;" "Red, White and Blue;" "Dixie" (with clog variations), and "Yankee Doodle." In addition to the patriotic character of the Record and the brilliancy of the performance, a further incentive to its possession will be found by the public in the fact that it is played by the official organization of the White House.

491 Dear Maymie, I Love You — Joe Maxwe

A bashful young lover, determined to entrust to paper a fervent declaration of his love, finds that he is utterly at a loss for words except those which constitute the title of this selection. That's the theme of the number; the melody is a pretty waltz air well suited to Mr. Maxwell's easy style of singing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

492 A Night Trip to Buffalo — Premier Quartette

A sketch by male voices that has been one of the steadily popular Records in the two-minute list, and that will prove doubly so as an Amberol number. A "Rube" and his wife, who have been seeing the sights of New York, board a train to which Finnegan and his party of political delegates have been escorted by a brass band. The train is "sent off" amid speeches, music, cheers, etc. There's fun galore in the jokes, repartee and incidents of this "trip" from the moment the train leaves the Grand Central Station until it reaches Buffalo, where Flanegan falls out of his berth while dreaming that he's an "A. P. A." It is impossible to describe the Record; it must be heard to be appreciated.

493 Belphegor March — National (London) Military Band

Belphegor was a Moabitish deity whose rites were celebrated on Mount Phegor in ancient times. Just why the composer chose this title we are unable to say, but after all "the play's the thing," as Shakespeare says. The march, which is well written and full of variety, gives the National Military Band an opportunity of showing their mettle, which, as usual, they are not slow to avail themselves of. Composer, Bregnant; publishers, Hawkes & Son, London, Eng.

Edison Standard Records for August

10395 Knights of Columbus March — New York Military Band

A dashing, vigorous band number of excellent volume and admirable precision. This selection was dedicated by the composer to the Knights of Columbus, the members of which organization cannot fail to appreciate the phonographic reproduction of it, as both playing and recording of the number are above criticism. A band number that will be appreciated wherever heard. Composer, Harry C. Buser; publishers, Acme Music Publishing Co., Newburgh, N. Y.

10396 You'll Come Back — Stella Mayhew

In this catchy and popular "coon" song Miss Mayhew is equipped with an excellent showpiece with which to display her ability in handling songs of the "rag" type. Alexander has grown indifferent to Henriett's charms and threatens to leave his "girl"; but, far from being dismayed at the prospect, she takes a philosophic view of the situation and even insinuates that Alexander will soon be "hangin' round the old veranda" again. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Drislane; music, George W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

10397 Kerrigan's Bachelor Dinner — Len Spencer

Kerrigan is about to assume marital responsibilities and although (as the toastmaster of the dinner puts it) "there's nothing romantic about the affair, for she's a fine cook and he has a good job," there seems to be necessity for a lot of excellent advice as to Kerrigan's future conduct. Such fatherly admonitions as "Don't forget that too many jugs makes too-many jars in the family" and others of a kind calculated to extract laughter from a graven image are handed to Kerrigan, interspersed with snatches of Irish airs. This is a Record that everybody with a sense of humor will want.

10398 Austrian Army March — United States Marine Band Orchestra

An invigorating march played by the orchestra of the celebrated "President's Own" band. This, by the way, is the musical unit that plays at all the official functions of the White House. An exceptionally fine Record both in respect to selection and the manner in which it is played by this famous organization. Composer, Richard Eilenberg; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

10399 Daisies Won't Tell — Manuel Romain

A dainty little composition on the light sentimental order, invested with an extremely tuneful waltz setting and sung by the popular tenor in his most expressive style. The ceaseless flow of melody and attractive rhythm of this number have won for it a popularity that augurs well for the sale of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Anita Owen; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10400 You're Just Too Sweet to Live — Collins and Harlan

The usual Collins and Harlan "coon" duet which the Phonograph public demands shall be a feature of both Amberol and Standard lists. A darkey's eloquent description of the charms of his Alabama "honey baby" is the theme of the song, which is committed to an animated, contagious air. It is unnecessary to comment upon the rendition, for the work of these two artists is always consistent. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Avery & Hart and Chris Smith; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

10401 Mack's Lullaby — Will Oakland

Here is a number made famous by the popular Irish singing comedian, Andrew Mack, who found it to be one of the most acceptable songs in his repertoire. It always scores a big "hit" with Mack's audiences, and because of its charming tunefulness and the wonderful voice of the artist who here sings it we are convinced that it will prove no less popular with lovers of Phonographic reproduction. No collection should be considered complete without this captivating bit of melody, which ought to be a big seller. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alice; music, Andrew Mack.

10402 The Birlin Reels — J. Scott Skinner

This violin Record serves to introduce to the Edison public in this country an artist who has been long and favorably known in both England and Scotland as a violinist of great repute. Mr. Skinner has made a life-long study of the violin, and the national Scottish airs he plays are given with that fidelity which one expects from a virtuoso. Orchestra accompaniment.

10403 Mary, You're a Big Girl Now — Joe Maxwell

One of the very latest sentimental successes, and just sufficiently different from the usual style in composition and melody to be refreshing. The theme is the old, old story in plain, unassuming garb, and the air is of the sprightly type, cheery and satisfying. Mr. Maxwell's treatment of the number is quite as effective as his previous successful contributions to the catalogue. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bobby Heath; music, Gus. A. Benkhart; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

10404 There Is a Fountain — Edison Mixed Quartette

In sweetest harmony the male and female voices of the quartette, singing without accompaniment, blend to give what is by far the best rendition of this beloved sacred hymn that has been heard in many a day. A most satisfying Record of its kind. Words, Rev. William Cowper; music, Dr. Lowell Mason.

10405 I'm On My Way to Reno — Billy Murray

A married man, who won a suffragette on a bet, is on his way to Reno to apply the divorce panacea to his marital ills. His enthusiasm at the prospect of separation from his domestic tribulations is well depicted in the rollicking air of the four verses and choruses of the song, wherein he sounds "the battle cry of freedom" to his suffering brothers. A splendid Record, this, and of a popular song, too. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, William Jerome; music, Jean Schwarz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

10406 If You Love But Me — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

Victor Herbert's successful musical comedy, "The Red Mill," was drawn upon for this Record, which is an orchestral arrangement of one of its greatest song "hits." It is a dreamy, amorous theme, and the delightful treatment it is given by the eminent composer and his corps of famous artists makes it one of the most notable Records in our catalogue and one which every one who appreciates artistic work will want to possess.

10407 Mr. Editor, How Do You Know? — Ada Jones

The astonishing familiarity with subjects of feminine interest displayed by the masculine editor of the ladies' department in a newspaper furnishes the theme of this comic song, in which the singer questions him as to the source of his wonderful knowledge in regard to such matters as straight front effects, lingerie tips, etc. It is a "talky" song with a waltz air, and, judging from the way in which she sings it, it was "made to order" for Miss Jones. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Edna Williams.

10408 Dear Old Moonlight — Peerless Quartette

There is real melody and most attractive rhythm in this composition which, as its title suggests, is of a sentimental character. The quartette of male voices sings the number in exquisite taste, without accompaniment, splendid harmony prevailing throughout the rendition. Quartette Records of male voices are always top-notchers in the selling line and we predict that this number will measure fully up to the standard in that respect. Words, Henry Screamer; music, Tom Lemonier; publishers, Gotham-Attucks Music Co., New York City.

10409 The Hoosier Slide — National (London) Military Band

The "slide" portion of the title takes its origin from the novel tricks of the trombone player throughout the selection, which is a taking composition of unusual volume and played in irreproachable style. Records by this organization are always above criticism. Composer, Vandercook; publishers, Helton & Company, Chicago, Ill.

*This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the August PHONOGRAM.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

40018 Tannhäuser—Romerzählung (Wagner) In German. Orchestra Accompaniment — Karl Jörn

Tannhäuser, footsore and weary, returns to find Wolfram still at the spot whence Elizabeth had departed to meet her early death. Full of remorse, of the greatness of his sin, he tells Wolfram of his travels to Rome to gain the forgiveness and the blessings of the Pope, tells of his willing blindness to the beauties of Italy's fields, of his avoidance of the soft parts of the road, of his self torture. Unsuccessful, then, he returns, and his release is not given him until after the death of Elizabeth. This part of the opera, in its sad depiction of love's quiet tragedies, is perhaps the most beautiful of all this beautiful work. Carl Jörn has always been highly praised for his interpretation of this role, and in this number vividly conveys his heart-breaking despair.

40019 Thaïs—Alexandrie! (Massenet) In Italian. Orchestra Accompaniment — Giovanni Polese

Anathael in frantic fervor, on his mission of conversion, looks upon his native city, Alexandria, and apostrophizes it as the terrible wicked city, where he, too, was once a sinner. There he, too, had heard the whispers of sin, had known the seductions of earthly life. Now he calls out his hatred of the wealth, his hatred of the beauty of his birthplace. "Angels of Heaven! come forth and perfume the foul air about me! Come!" This number will be found most dramatically rendered in his polished style by Mr. Polese, who by his thoroughly artistic work has gained a foremost position among opera folks.

40020 Torna a Surriento (Curtis) Neapolitan Song sung in Italian (Dialect) Orchestra Accompaniment — Carmen Melis

What memories, what desires does a Neapolitan song not create! To those who have seen Naples, with its surrounding wonders of beauty, it recalls perhaps the happiest part of their existence, to others it conjures up moonlight boat excursions on the beautiful bay of Naples, to others the flower covered country lanes and gardens; but everywhere, the world over, it awakens a sense of the beauty and dreaminess of the South. "Torna a Surriento" has been perhaps the most successful of these songs in its wild love longing, its sad strain, its tender, dreamy care for nature's beauty. Madame Melis sings this song "con amore," for the love she has of it, and the Record truly speaks to you.

40021 LeCid—Pleurez mes yeux (Massenet) In French. Orchestra Accompaniment — Marguerita Sylva

Chimène, torn by love and revenge, finds herself at last alone, where there will be none to see her pain, her sorrow. In love with the man whom she knows as the slayer of her father, she yet cannot overcome her love. Once her spirit of vengeance cries out for satisfaction, then her love transports her to a happier frame of mind. Worn out with this struggle, she allows her tears to flow, to flow for her dear ones, to flow eternally; and yet there is pressure to her thought that mayhap the dead did not intend for her this heritage of woe. Cry, my eyes, cry! is, however, the burden of her song, of this number, one of Massenet's masterpieces of sadness, and so well conveyed and expressed by the favorite artiste, Madame Marguerita Sylva.

40022 Prophète—Ah! mon fils (Meyerbeer) In French. Orchestra Accompaniment — Marie Delna

Nothing could be more fiendish, more cruel than to place a man in the position of having to choose between the love for his mother and that for his affianced bride. Bertha, having fled from her jailer, who for his own infatuation with her attempted by imprisonment to prevent her marriage to John of Leyden, seeks the protection of her lover. Being followed there by her enemies, who carry along the mother of John, the latter is forced to choose between revealing his love's hiding place and the decapitation of his mother before his eyes. Yielding to his filial impulses, he gives over Bertha and secures his mother's release. Saddened by his loss, his mother, Fides, sings to him to cheer and console him this aria, so well known, so difficult of proper interpretation, for well does she know that he has given away his happiness. Madame Delna has made so beautiful a record of this that its equal cannot be found.

Exclusive Edison Talent

(Cover illustration)

Marie Dressler, Stella Mayhew, Sophie Tucker and Marie Narelle—there's a quartette of real "stars" whose Records are an invaluable asset to the Edison Dealer. The long-headed Dealer will "boost" their Records, and the fact that they sing exclusively for Edison Records only, in all his advertising and talks to customers. He needn't be afraid of boring the public. The artists themselves never do,—in fact it's a relief to these clever performers when their audiences can be prevailed upon to let them surrender the centre of the stage to some one else.

Positive talent, a distinctive personality and finished style—always something original and entirely different to offer—an indefinable and distinguishing character in the work of each one —therein lies the secret of their immense popularity with the American public; and their Records will become popular because they are wonderfully natural reproductions of the vocal style and characteristics of the artists. The majority of "stars" whose exclusive services are controlled by talking machine companies are useful for general advertising purposes only and that for but a short time, because their voices record poorly and the public soon recognizes the fact; but here are four leaders in their respective lines whose Records are simply beyond criticism. There isn't a flaw in any one of them from standpoint of performance and reproduction.

We have commented on the respective talent and abilities of Mayhew, Tucker and Dressler in previous issues of the MONTHLY. The way in which Miss Mayhew simply romped away with the stellar honors in the biggest musical comedy success of many a season, "The Jolly Bachelors," of which every member was a "star" in his or her particular line, is still fresh in the minds of New York audiences. Sophie Tucker continues to make every member of her audiences her friend with her charming personality, her buoyant style and her contagious good nature. Marie Dressler has a bran new vehicle for her inimitable characterizations and stage "business." It's called "Tillie's Nightmare," and New York is in the throes of the "malady." Her audiences at the Herald Square Theatre are holding their sides with laughter from the rise to the drop of the curtain.

Marie Narelle, soprano, has sung a girdle of song around the earth. She has delighted the music lovers of Australia and New Zealand, as well as those of the United States and Great Britain, and will soon add to the list of her conquests the people of South Africa. They have heard her Records on the Edison Phonograph, and have sent for her to come there in person, that they may see her as well as hear her. She has not only a very attractive personality, but is a most popular singer. Bred on the great Australian plains, wind-swept and free, she is gifted with a voice of much power and sweetness, together with that most precious quality—sympathy. As full of life and joy as a bird, she pours forth a stream of music pure and glowing as the light that proclaims the Summer morn. Ballads are the songs of the people, and Miss Narelle, one of the people, sings the songs of the people for the people; and for those who own an Edison Phonograph she sings them all the time.

It's up to every Edison Dealer to advertise these artists, their Records, and the fact that they can be heard only on the Edison Phonograph, particularly now between seasons in the theatrical line when the public wants to refresh its memory of these "stars" in their popular successes.

A Promotion Plan

To Increase the Sales of Edison Phonographs and Records.

Jobbers have already been advised, and Dealers will be by Sales Department BULLETIN shortly after this number of the MONTHLY reaches them, of a plan recently evolved by our Sales Department to assist the trade in the sale of Edison Phonographs and Records.

It is a promotion scheme, pure and simple, by which the Edison Dealer is authorized to offer a bonus of six Amberol Records selected from a special list of twenty-four (not catalogued) to any bonafide owner of an Edison Phonograph who actually brings the Dealer a customer for a new (not second-hand) Edison machine of any type. The advantages of the scheme are both immediate and future, in that the Dealer not only secures new customers whom he would not have obtained under ordinary conditions, but with every sale, present and future, he appoints an active, enthusiastic salesman for his store, who from purely selfish motives will do all he can to induce his friends to purchase an Edison Phonograph. It will have the effect of immediately arousing the interest and activity of present owners of machines. It is a sort of endless chain scheme which embodies all the attractiveness to the public of the successful methods employed in the early days of the Phonograph business to induce sales, yet with such safeguards thrown about it as will prevent the possibility of any of the abuses creeping in which brought those methods into disrepute and eventually resulted in their prohibition. Pending official announcement by Sales Department Bulletin, which will explain the plan in detail, we present herewith a tabloid outline of its provisions and conditions:

A list of twenty-four Special Records, hereinafter described, has been prepared, which Records will be in the hands of Jobbers within a week approximately from date.

Out of this list the customer who effects the sale of an Edison Phonograph is entitled to the selection of any six.

The price of these Records to Dealers is 20 cents each, or a total of $4.80 for the entire list.

Promotion certificates (as per sample which will accompany bulletin) will be supplied by the Jobber in quantities for circulation among Phonograph owners. These certificates, when signed by the Dealer, are a promise on his part to deliver any six of the twenty-four Records to the promotee of a sale after it has actually been made.

A four-page folder explaining the proposition and describing the Records will be supplied by the Jobber for mailing with the Promotion Certificates, and other necessary literature such as window hangers will also be furnished by him.

As soon as a sale is made and the Records delivered the Dealer will return the signed certificate to us or to his Jobber to be forwarded to Orange in order to complete our records.

Here are some conditions of the plan which it will pay every Dealer to bear in mind:

It applies only to Dealers in the United States.

It does not apply to machines sold second hand at a reduced price under a special license.

The Records cannot be sold at any price or used in any other way except the one in question.

An allowance of 3½% to Dealers to cover possible replacement or breakage will be made on these Records.

After delivery of the six Records has been made in accordance with the selection of the customer inducing the sale, no exchange will be permitted.

Such is the general outline of this Promotion Plan, which will stir up business in every city, town and village in the country where Dealers co-operate with us in its operation. If aggressively and persistently brought to the attention of Phonograph owners it will drive new customers in through the very doors of every one of our Dealers' stores, and make such customers in turn enthusiastic "boosters" for the Dealer and his goods. It will cost the Edison Dealer $1.20 to sell a new machine by this method—but what of that? If it were not for the plan he would not have sold the machine at all; so the cost of the bonus is only a small amount spent for his successful advertising—successful because the Records are not delivered until a sale has been made.

HOW BEST TO EMPLOY THE PROMOTION PLAN

Order at once at least one complete set of the Special Records.

Make up a list of all Edison Phonograph owners in your vicinity.

Get enough promotion certificates and an equal number of the four-page folders to cover this list, sign your name to the certificates and mail one of each form to the machine owners.

Advertise the plan in the newspapers and in your window to reach such owners of machines as you may have no record of.

Don't delay. Send your order in at once and get this "endless chain" started. It means business right now when you most need it, and a lot of hard working "boosters" for you and your store who will not only be the direct means of bringing you new customers, but who by their canvassing among their friends will advertise you far more effectively than could be done in any other way.

The Records described in this advance list were carefully selected as to selection and artists and made and recorded with unusual care. They are superior Records in every sense of the word, as will be apparent to you when you hear them.

ADVANCE LIST OF TWENTY-FOUR SPECIAL AMBEROL RECORDS FOR PROMOTION PURPOSES ONLY.

D-1 Happy-Go-Lucky Two-Step (J. Bodewalt Lampe) New York Military Band
Band Record. A breezy, tuneful number of splendid volume specially recorded at a slow tempo for dancing.

D-2 I'll Wait at the Golden Gate for You (Jos. Brackenen) Will Oakland
A sentimental ballad with a note of pathos in it, set in an appealing musical setting and sung by the noted counter-tenor with fine expression. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-3 Joinin' de Church Golden and Hughes
Vaudeville sketch by two of the best delineators of the old-time "befoh de wah" darkey before the public. Replete with jokes, laughter and song. A very entertaining Record.

D-4 I Fear No Foe (Ciro Pinsuti) Edwin Skedden
Baritone solo. A widely known song of standard quality whose forceful lyrics and spirited melody show breadth of tone and dramatic power. Mr. Skedden's brilliant rendition displays a voice resonant in tone and of exceptional range. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-5 Scherzo-Tarentelle (Henri Wieniawski) Albert Spalding
Violin solo. An exceptional opportunity to hear the youthful American prodigy, to whom the royalty of Europe and the Orient has paid court during the past season, in a concert piece of much brilliancy demanding surety and precision of technique. Piano accompaniment.

D-6 Kissing (Joe Maxwell) Ada Jones
Serio-comic. A clever little song with a delightful air, written by Joe Maxwell, another Edison artist, and sung most charmingly by Miss Jones with the aid of illuminating effects. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-7 No Sorrow There (Geo. C. Stebbins) Anthony and Harrison
Sacred duet. From standpoint of theme and musical qualities this number has absolutely no superior in our catalogue. A most impressive Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-8 The Ghost of the Banjo Coon (Anna Caldwell) Arthur Collins
A catchy coon song which relates how a darkey in search of the left hind foot of a graveyard rabbit at midnight catches "the ghost of the banjo coon" instead. Clever imitation birds calling, owls hooting, etc., aid in the rendition. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-9 Reminiscences of Scotland Victor Herbert and His Orchestra
Orchestra selection. A spirited rendition by Herbert's peerless players of the following popular Scotch melodies: "Scots Who Hae With Wallace Bled"; "Bonnet Blue" (with "Highland Fling"); "The Blue Bells of Scotland"; "Pulteneytown" (bagpipe imitation), and "Auld Lang Syne."

D-10 He Was a Soldier Too (Victor Herbert) Billy Murray
The comic song "hit" of Victor Herbert's musical comedy, "Algeria." The eventful but far from heroic military career of Isidore, a Hebrew soldier, in four rollicking verses sung in Billy Murray's best style. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-11 The Light of the World is Jesus (P. P. Bliss) Edison Mixed Quartette
A beautiful sacred Record. A fine old hymn sung most impressively and with a wealth of harmony that cannot be surpassed. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-12 Silver Threads Among the Gold (H. P. Danks) Marie Narelle
Soprano solo. An old time melody whose charming sentiment and plaintive air have made it a first favorite. Song by the favorite soprano of three continents. This number is one of the most desirable of the list. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-13 African Dreamland (Geo. Alcazar) New York Military Band
Band Record. A spirited two-step played with vigor and precision, and introducing a vocal selection by a quartette of male voices, also a clog effect.

D-14 Where the Ivy's Clinging, Dearie, 'Round the Old Oak Tree (J. Fred Helf) Manuel Romain
Sentimental. Verses of positive merit, breathing love's old, sweet story, in a dainty musical setting, which swings to a pretty waltz air in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-15 Smile! Smile! Smile! (Max Hoffman) — Ada Jones and Billy Murray and Chorus
Conversational duet. A captivating melody which has had great vogue for a number of years. Most artistically sung, with a well balanced chorus lending effective aid. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-16 Flanagan Entertaining the Club — Steve Porter
Talking Record. Flanagan's eventful trip on a Broadway trolley car and his father's gold mine furnish the theme,—and the screams, also. A very funny Record.

D-17 Dreams of Childhood Waltz (Emil Waldteufel) — New York Military Band
Band Record. One of the best known of the charming waltzes written by Waldteufel, the celebrated European composer of popular dance music. The rhythm is unusually well defined and the number was specially recorded at a slow tempo for dancing.

D-18 You're Just a Little Bit of Sugar Cane (Joe Maxwell) — Joe Maxwell
Tenor Solo. A melodious darkey song that suggests pictures of the Southern cotton fields. A story of pickaninny love-making in the quaint darkey style, sung by its composer with a charming orchestra accompaniment.

D-19 Swingin' in de Sky (Edith Kingsley) — Collins and Harlan
Coon duet. Another darkey song in the inimitable Collins and Harlan style. A "swingy" air in three verses and choruses, with banjo and clog effects and the usual comedy interpolation between verses. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-20 Halli-Hallo Medley — George P. Watson
Two yodle songs in German which everybody knows and likes,—"Halli-Hallo," also known as the German Hunter song, and "Fritz" Emmett's famous yodle song. George P. Watson is well known to the Edison trade. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-21 "Xylo" Medley (Tom Shot) — Charles Daab
A xylophone solo which embraces several choice airs, among them a very pretty waltz. Mr. Daab is one of the most expert artists in the country with the instrument. A wonderfully natural reproduction. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-22 Because of You (Dexter Stocking) — W. H. Thompson
Baritone solo. A sentimental number whose poetic and melodic charm will appeal irresistibly to lovers of the best in song and music. Mr. Thompson displays to perfection the exceptional sweetness and resonance of his voice. Orchestra accompaniment.

D-23 There Are Fifty-Seven Ways to Catch a Man (John W. Bratton) — Stella Mayhew
Comic song. A great vehicle to display the originality and imitative powers of this footlight favorite. She describes the methods employed by the little "culled lady" and the pretty colleen to ensnare their "steadies" and then she imitates them at their game. This Record is simply "great." Orchestra accompaniment.

D-24 Camp Meeting Jubilee — Peerless Quartette
A faithful and convulsing reproduction by a male quartette, unaccompanied, of one of the old-time darkey camp-meetings with its "scrim," and quaint, characteristic hymns. There is more solid fun and entertainment in this than any Record we know of.

Help Kill This Rumor

Some unscrupulous individual (or individuals), whose identity or object we are unable to ascertain, has circulated the rumor that Miss Ada Jones is dead. Like all rumors in which there is not a shred of truth this particular one has gained considerable credence. The persistency with which the report makes its appearance is exceedingly annoying to Miss Jones, and we are also bothered by frequent requests for contradiction or confirmation of it.

Miss Jones is very much alive, of course, as her monthly contributions to the Edison Catalogue attests, and moreover is enjoying excellent health. As it is out of the realms of possibility to offer her many friends throughout the world more tangible proofs of her entity than her Records, she has suggested that we ask the trade to contradict this malicious rumor at every opportunity. We will supplement the response of the trade by publishing a denial of the rumor in an early issue of the Phonogram.

To Edison Jobbers and Dealers in the United States

Referring to our Continuous Exchange Proposition, we find after a test of more than a year that the arrangement now in effect is impracticable, and we, therefore, notify you that the Continuous Exchange Proposition will not be extended beyond December 31st, 1910, after which a new method will be put in force, the details of which we have not worked out completely, but which will be entirely fair to Jobbers and Dealers.

Up to and including December 31st, 1910, we will accept and give full credit for returned cut-out two-minute Records, only so long as the credit so given shall not exceed fifty (50) per cent. of the total two-minute purchases, the balance to be paid for on regular terms; and we will not accept and give credit for such returned cut-out Records in connection with orders for Amberol Records.

We will, however, make the concession that returned two-minute Records shall apply on all two-minute purchases, whether from the advance or current lists, provided that the total number of Records returned shall not exceed fifty (50) per cent. of the total two-minute Records purchased. By this it must be understood that an order for at least double the quantity of two-minute Records returned must accompany the papers covering the return of two-minute Records.

This arrangement goes into effect to-day, June 17th, and will apply to all returned shipments of cut-out two-minute Records from Jobbers and Dealers where the bills of lading or express receipts covering which shall indicate that shipments were made to us subsequent to June 17th.

Orders must accompany the exchange papers as heretofore.

Yours very truly,

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY,

Frank L. Dyer

Maude Raymond

(Mezzo-soprano)

In introducing Miss Maude Raymond this month we bring before our friends one of the most popular and versatile young actresses and singers of the New York stage. She is the great breath-filler when a manager wants a "star" for his new show, and is now leading lady and "co-star" with Joseph Cawthorn in the musical comedy, "Girlies," at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York City.

She can play equally well our old friend Topsy in "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; her original creation, Bill Simmons, in "The Social Whirl," or present that puzzling personality, Salome, with such skill as to please everybody from the customary occupants of the front row to the severe and critical magistrate in the far rear seat. Her Topsy is done so well that even the colored people themselves are deceived. Their preachers want to convert her, and their beaux want to marry her.

She is also a vaudeville favorite, and the Record we list this month is one of her latest "hits" in that branch of her art.

Welsh Amberol Supplement

The attention of the trade is called in an especial manner to the supplement of twelve Welsh Amberol Records printed on page 19. The numbers are all vocal selections used at Welsh Concerts and Festivals, and are sung by artists of the highest reputation, including Miss Amy Evans, a prominent figure in Grand Opera at Covent Garden, Alf Thomas, the Welsh humorist, Powell Edwards, the noted baritone, and other singers of reputation in their native land. The selections are without exception splendidly recorded and ought to find an eager market in this country among Welshmen and their descendants. We advise Dealers to make an attempt to ascertain if any such are in their respective localities and, if so, to secure some of these Records, which can not fail to appeal strongly to their love for the land of their birth.

Another Price Cutter Enjoined

We print below a copy of an order recently granted in the United States Circuit Court for the District of New Jersey, providing for the issuance of an injunction against David Reinhorn, 91 Springfield Avenue, Newark, New Jersey. The suit was brought because of the infringement of three patents respectively upon the Edison Phonograph, the Edison Reproducer and Edison Records, all of which were infringed by the defendant by sales of these articles at cut prices.

At a stated term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of New Jersey and the Third Circuit, held at the Court Rooms thereof, in the State Capitol Building in the City of Trenton, New Jersey, on the 31st day of May, A. D., 1910.

PRESENT: HONORABLE JOHN RELSTAD, U. S. Judge.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY and NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants vs. DAVID REINHORN, Defendant } In Equity on Letters Patent Nos. 744,266, 782,375 and 799,478.

ORDER GRANTING PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION.

This cause having come on to be heard on a motion of complainants for a Preliminary Injunction, and affidavits having been filed in support thereof, and Frederick P. Fish, Esq., having appeared, as Solicitor, and Horace L. Upton, Esq., as Counsel for the complainants, and William Greenfield, Esq., on behalf of the Defendant, upon due consideration, it is ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that a Preliminary Injunction issue out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, enjoining and restraining said Defendant, his agents, servants, clerks, employees, officers, attorneys, clerks, servants, agents and employees and all persons acting under his control or in privity with him, pending the cause and until the further order of the Court, from in any way interfering with the carrying out of the selling license agreements between the complainant, Phonograph Company and soliciting or procuring Phonograph dealers to act in the violation of any of the provisions of any and all license agreements between the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and its jobbers and dealers; and from soliciting, obtaining and procuring any of the authorized jobbers and dealers of the complainant, National Phonograph Company, to sell to him any Edison Phonographs or any Edison reproducers at less than the list prices prescribed by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, and any Edison Standard Records at less than 35 cents each and any Edison Amberol Records at less than 50 cents each or in violation of the conditions upon which they obtained the same, and from using labels affixed to the packages in which the said Edison Records are contained, or any of the said patented Edison Phonographs, Reproducers or Records in violation of the license agreements under which the said Edison goods were originally sold by the complainant, National Phonograph Company, or by any person claiming under it; and from in any manner violating said agreements, which are in evidence, as Schedules A and B or of the Bill of Complaint; and from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used, selling or causing to be sold any apparatus, articles or devices embodying, operating or constructed in accordance with the inventions and improvements in said Letters Patent Nos. 744,266, 782,375 and 799,478, without the license and consent of complainants thereto; and from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

Read This—And Sign Your Agreements

Since starting the protective system we have found that in many cases Dealers do not sign the Agreement through all the Jobbers from whom they purchase goods. This is a very serious oversight on their part and always liable to work to their financial disadvantage as the following explanation will prove.

When we are considering an application for a Dealer's license from a place where we already have representation, we depend to a large extent upon information received from the Jobber indicated by our files as the Jobber from whom the Dealer buys his goods. It may happen, and as a matter of fact has happened, that the information is supplied by the Jobber from whom the Dealer makes the least number of purchases, no Agreement having been signed by him through the other Jobber or Jobbers with whom he deals. As a consequence new Dealers have been accepted in places where reports showed that Dealers were purchasing only a small quantity of goods, causing embarrassment and no end of dissatisfaction to all parties concerned.

There is only one way for Dealers to avoid such an unpleasant complication, and that is to promptly sign Agreements through all Jobbers who supply them with goods. When that is done we will be in a position to protect them where they are actively pushing the line.

If the business won't come to you don't "lie down"—go after it.

Receipt during the month is acknowledged of photos showing interior views of the stores of Hart Bros., Woodworth, Mass., and B. M. Conner & Co., Falkner, Miss. Both photos show good stock arrangement.

Important—Keep Handy for Reference

To enable our Dealers to accurately identify the various "old type machines" so that parts may be ordered intelligently we give below a short description of the different models:

GEM PHONOGRAPHS

MODEL "A"—Has a flat winding key. Starting button on left side of body. Has swing arm.

MODEL "B"—Has a winding crank. Starting button on right side of body. Has swing arm.

Feed Nuts for all Gem Phonographs, and for the Standard Phonograph (Model D,) will be riveted to the Feed Nut Springs, as heretofore, and cannot be supplied separately.

Lost or Stolen Machines

Edison Triumph Phonograph No. 73396 and Home No. 362913 and 367984 have disappeared. Dealers coming into possession of any information in regard to either one of these machines are requested to immediately communicate with our Agreement Department at Orange.

Thousands of amusement machines are being used daily to give stenographic practice at home to students of shorthand, who of course until now have had to use a personally dictated record on a soft wax cylinder. The twenty-five new Edison Dictation Records, prepared by a stenographic expert, are the perfection of voice-writing. The enunciation is exact; the tone broad and loud; the voice pleasant and human-like. They are specially recorded for use on amusement machines, and will be appreciated by the students in your town. Get a few and try the proposition. Prices: Dealer, 50c. net; List, U. S., 50c., Canada, 65c.

The Other 13,000

Above is a cut of the Memorial Day windowdisplay of the Emporium of Music at Reno, Nevada. This cut was made from one of a number of kodak prints sent us, several of which illustrated the billboard advertising campaign being carried on by this enterprising firm. Unfortunately the prints in question could not be given a clear reproduction.

One of their billboards, 7x9 feet, is located in the very heart of the city and on a corner of its principal street. It is situated about a block from the store, opposite the Masonic Temple and the Post-Office, and close to two theatres. For this location they have signed a contract for one year, securing this as well as several other desirable locations just ahead of the representative of a competing line by taking up another merchant's contract. On these boards they are using eight-sheet posters to advertise Edison goods.

In addition to this extraordinary effort to corral all the Phonograph business in Reno, these hustling Dealers carry on an extensive and persistent newspaper campaign, and in many other ways manage to keep themselves and their line constantly in the public eye. We have yet to receive our first letter from them in which aught but the most cheerful optimism and faith in the Edison line could be detected. As an instance of the latter we might say that they carry a Record stock of 5,000, the largest in the State.

A trip to Reno, Nevada, would prove interesting and educational to a goodly number of Edison Dealers for reasons other than that with which the pilgrimage is generally associated.

Space prohibits our reprinting the numerous sample forms used for circularizing purposes by the trade which have reached us since the June issue of the MONTHLY went to press, but we feel that special mention should be made of the stimulating letters and forms on the Attachment Proposition used by the following firms:

The Buckeye Machine Co., Dayton, O.; The Fort Wayne Machine Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.; C. R. Zacharias, Asbury Park, N. J.; John W. Ruth & Sons, Shelbyville, Tenn.; John Henry Lynch, Edwardsville, Ill.; Harry W. Krienitz, Milwaukee, Wis.; The Eberhardt-Hays Music Co., Wichita, Kan., and the Kipp-Link Phonograph Co, Indianapolis, Ind.

Nine hundred music lovers attended a recital given at the Kidd Opera House at Princeton, Ind., on June 3, under the auspices of the Harding & Miller Music Co., Evansville, Ind. The program was made up of vocal and instrumental numbers rendered by local artists, selections on the Auto Piano and Amberol Records on the Amberola, the latter contributing four of the twelve numbers. All of the Records were from the Grand Opera Catalog. The Princeton Clarion-News devoted an eight-inch front page reading notice to the recital, in which the Amberola was extolled for its tonal qualities and handsome design. A cut and description of the instrument adorned the back cover of the program.

Printed Matter

It has been brought to our attention during the past month that a great many of the Combined Alphabetical and Numerical Catalogues, Form 1800, were defective from either a printing or binding standpoint. Dealers who have received imperfect copies are requested to send them to our Advertising Department, which will exchange them via return mail for copies in which the sections are correctly bound.

A new machine catalogue, bearing Form 1780, has recently been issued and most Jobbers now have a supply. We are varying somewhat from our usual practice and will omit mailing single copies to Dealers from Orange. This will be the only official notice covering the issuance of the form which we will send to the trade generally. Dealers must get in the habit of reading the MONTHLY to keep posted about "what's doing at the factory."

With this issue we are mailing a four-page folder, Form 1790, the illustrations in which are built around the phrase, "There's an Edison Phonograph for Every Pocketbook." Your Jobber has a supply or will have very shortly. Ask him for a quantity and see that they are distributed where the most good will result. We believe that the folder can very frequently be used instead of the larger machine catalogues, for a complete line of our outfit, with prices, is shown in it. (We cannot supply these folders for the Canadian trade.)

An attractive two-color hanger, Form 1828, and a four-page folder, Form 1821, is being sent to Jobbers with their shipments of the two "Specials," No. 502, "Put on Your Slippers, You're In for the Night," and No. 508, "I'm the Man They're Looking For." If you don't get one of the placards and at least a few of the folders, put up a "holler" to your Jobber, and ask "why."

For the promotion scheme, fully covered on another page of this issue, we will have, besides the certificates there mentioned, a hanger, Form 1829, and a nice four-page folder, Form 1830. These two forms, understand, are not ready at the time this article is written, and it may be possible that their issuance will be delayed, due to circumstances beyond our control. If this proves to be the case, bear with your Jobber, because the fault will not be his.

We have often wondered what use Dealers made of our Monthly Record Supplement. Are you getting a supply regularly and seeing to it that proper distribution of them is made? Dealers should remember that all our printed matter costs money and that, therefore, the waste should be reduced to a minimum.

The following forms are still active and you should have some of each in your store:

1710 Domestic Record Catalogue.
1490 Amberol Card.
1090 Record Making Booklet.

E. J. Berggren Succeeds Alphons Westee as Secretary-Treasurer

Mr. Alphons Westee, who has held successively the offices of General Auditor, Secretary and Secretary-Treasurer of the National Phonograph Company, resigned from the Company's employ on June 15th. Mr. Westee, who has retired to engage in another line of business, carries with him the respect and good will of his associate officers and the employes of the Company, as well as their best wishes for success in his new field of endeavor.

His successor in office is Ernest J. Berggren, until recently Head Accountant of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, New York, who returns to Mr. Edison's service after a lapse of twenty-four years.

Mr. Berggren's ability as an organizer and executive, combined with his knowledge of manufacturing affairs generally, equips him in a special manner for the very important position which he now holds, and the Company feels that in the acquisition of his services it has secured a competent and painstaking official.

Who will have the honor of reporting the first sale made under the Promotion Plan?

Facts About the "Leaders of the World" Display

The genuis of Thomas A. Edison, who gave to the world the electric light, made possible this marvellous display which is a realistic reproduction of a thrilling chariot race in a Roman amphitheatre, such as was witnessed by the Caesars in the days when Rome was mistress of the world. A wonderful illusion of blazing chariots with fiery steeds and drivers speeding past a reviewing stand where sits an assembled multitude. Every detail of the sport of Roman Emperors is faithfully and vividly reproduced. lly means of ingenious devices current is transmitted through the display at the rate of 2,500 flashes per minute, faster than the eye can follow, producing the illusion of realistic life action. The horses of fire seem to be racing backward and forward with grace and precision, their manes and tails blowing fiercely in the wind; the wheels of the chariots revolve so swiftly that the spokes cannot be seen; the robes and skirts of the charioteers flutter in the breeze; the roadbed apparently recedes beneath the hoofs of the steeds while dust appears to roll up behind the chariot wheels, and the lights on the arena walls appear to move in an opposite direction to the races, thus completing the most realistic illusion of its kind ever attempted.

While this thrilling spectacle is being enacted, above the display and on a mammoth steel curtain 70 feet long by 20 feet high will appear in letters of fire, four feet high, the announcement that Edison Phonographs and Records are "Leaders of the World" in the sound-reproduction line. This, and such other advertisements of Edison Phonographs and Records as we may elect to place thereon, will alternate with the advertisements of thirty other American manufacturers, leaders in their respective lines, and will appear at intervals of nine or ten minutes every night from dusk to midnight for the next two years.

No other advertisements of Phonographs or Records will appear in this display, the invitation having been extended to the National Phonograph Company alone as a recognition of the superiority of Edison products.

The magnitude of the display may be faintly conceived from the following facts and figures:

It is one-third of a New York City block wide.

It rises seventy-two (72) feet in the air.

It is seven (7) stories of an ordinary building high.

It required eight (8) railroad cars to transport it from the factory of the Rice Electric Display Company at Dayton, Ohio, to New York City.

It took a large force of expert riggers, electricians and mechanics more than three months to complete it.

It contains over 20,000 electric bulbs, ten times as many as the largest electric sign now burning on Broadway.

It requires 600 H. P. and 2,750 electric switches to operate, and a large force of operators constantly in attendance.

Five hundred thousand feet of wire were used, and 70,000 electrical connections were made to complete it.

The title of the display—"Leaders of the World"—is seventy (70) feet long and formed of electric lights.

The main chariot, driver and steeds are 40 feet long and 20 feet high—three times life size. The chariot wheels alone are 8 feet high.

Each ad will occupy three rows of eighteen letters each, each letter four (4) feet high and the whole ad about 80 feet long.

Each ad will appear every nine or ten minutes from dusk to midnight every night in the week for two years, telling its story to the three hundred thousand visitors from all points of the universe who pass through the big city every day in the year.

The ads are changed from time to time as suits our pleasure.

Among the leaders who are affiliated with the National Phonograph Company in this project are the National Surety Company, Armour & Company, The Prudential Insurance Company, Remington Typewriter Company, National Cash Register Company and others of equal rank and prominence, the combined capital of the thirty odd concerns interested representing a total of over $1,000,000,000.

It is one of the sights of the greatest city in the world, and the magnitude of the undertaking has become the subject of wide-spread attention by the press of this country and Europe, with the result that the sale of Edison Phonographs and Records will be stimulated as never before by this public certification of their recognition as "Leaders of the World" in the sound reproduction line.

After you have thoroughly digested the facts above presented ask yourself whether this stroke of enterprise does not deserve some degree of emulation by yourself as an Edison Dealer.

Edison Phonographs and Records Among the "Leaders of the World"

ELECTRIC SIGN AT BROADWAY AND 38th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

MOST MARVELLOUS ELECTRICAL DISPLAY EVER CONCEIVED OR PLANNED

ON Saturday evening, June 18, the mammoth electric sign illustrated above was illuminated for the first time before an amazed multitude that congested Broadway for blocks from 8:15 o'clock until past midnight. Nothing to compare with it in daring originality, immensity and elaborateness had ever been seen in the metropolis before, and even blase New York was startled out of its accustomed composure. Erected on the roof of the Hotel Normandie in the very heart of the city's business and amusement world, it occupies a commanding position from which it can be seen and read for miles around.

It is the most stupendous advertising scheme ever conceived in the brain of man, and will indelibly impress the superiority of the Edison Phonographs and Records upon the thousands of visitors who daily pour into the big city from every point of the universe. To be affiliated with the thirty odd concerns whose ads will be flashed from this sign nightly for the next two years is a flattering acknowledgement of the preeminence of Edison products, as only the acknowledged leaders in their respective lines were invited to participate in the project.

To form some conception of the magnitude of this scheme read the details given on the opposite page.

Selling the Goods

"Get a horse!" is a favorite expression to hand to an automobilist when he's had a break-down, or run shy of gasoline, or something or other has put his machine out of commission.

We want to hand that same advice to Edison Dealers at this particular season of the year. Get a horse, or an automobile, or some kind of conveyance, and spend part of your time at least in a house to house canvass of your territory. The weather is pleasant these days, and the open-air canvass will do you a lot of good mentally and physically as well as financially.

There's no question of the success of this method; it's been proven by the experience of others. And it's only a question of time when every Dealer will have to come to it; for it's the logical method of selling Phonographs. So why not take it up now during the pleasant Summer months when everything is in its favor?

Here are a few arguments which we think will prove to you that it is the logical method of selling machines:

THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH WAS INTENDED FOR HOME ENTERTAINMENT, AND IT FULFILLS ITS MISSION IN EVERY RESPECT AS SUCH. THAT BEING THE CASE, WHERE CAN IT BE DEMONTRATED TO BETTER ADVANTAGE THAN IN ITS NATURAL ELEMENT—THE HOME?

WHERE IS THE MAN OF FAMILY MORE OPEN TO CONVICTION—IN YOUR STORE, OR IN HIS OWN HOME WITH HIS WIFE AND LITTLE ONES ABOUT HIM URGING HIM TO THE PURCHASE OF AN INSTRUMENT THAT WILL FURNISH ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY AT ALL TIMES?

THERE ARE MANY THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE STILL PREJUDICED AGAINST THE PHONOGRAPH AND IGNORANT OF ITS WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT. HOW ARE YOU GOING TO OVERCOME THAT PREJUDICE EXCEPT BY HOME DEMONSTRATION WHEN THEY PAY ABSOLUTELY NO ATTENTION TO YOUR LITERATURE?

HOW ARE YOU GOING TO REACH THOSE MANY OWNERS OF OLD MODELS OF MACHINES WHO HAVE TIRED OF THEM, BUT WHO EITHER HAVEN'T SEEN OR HAVE PAID NO ATTENTION TO LITERATURE WHICH WOULD KEEP THEM IN TOUCH WITH THE RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN THE LINE? THEIR INTEREST IS ONLY SLUMBERING; WOULDN'T PROOF OF THAT DEVELOPMENT BROUGHT RIGHT INTO THEIR HOMES REVIVE IT?

THE PUBLIC HAS GROWN ACCUSTOMED TO HAVING MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS DEMONSTRATED IN THEIR HOMES. IS THERE ANY REASON WHY THE PHONOGRAPH, THE MOST PORTABLE OF INSTRUMENTS, SHOULD BE AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE?

Those are only a few. There are other arguments in favor of the method, but we think these are sufficient to convince every thinking Dealer that it's up to him to immediately get busy on the house canvassing proposition. We repeat, Mr. Dealer,—"Get a horse!"

The Dealer who takes off his coat and goes to work on the Attachment and Promotion Plan Propositions this summer won't have much time to worry about the general condition of business throughout the country. He'll have all he can do to attend to business right in his own territory.

These two Propositions go hand in hand. In fact the Promotion Plan is sort of a "clincher" to the Attachment argument. They both hit the public in its most vulnerable spot—its cupidity. One offers a big value for a small price; the other offers something for nothing more than a little missionary work.

Just get those "missionaries" started and see how they round up the "converts."

There's only one time to sell a Record of a popular song, and that not when its popularity is on the wane. You've got to get it "right off the bat" as it were. That's why we started the "Special" Record scheme, and it's working beautifully. The trade would never stand for its discontinuance now. We put out two more last month, and the Dealers who were wise enough to have their standing orders in have profited accordingly.

Get in on this good thing by placing a standing order with you Jobber at once.

Your Fourth of July window—don't forget it. Easy enough to arrange a good one as no expense to speak of. Patriotic colors in the back-ground, a few muskets crossed above an Edison Phonograph and a card appropriately worded to suggest some connection between the instrument and "the times that tried men's souls," such as will do very well if originality fails you at the last moment.

"Valley Forge Would Not Have Been Cheerless With An Edison Phonograph"

If you happen to be located near a mountain, lake or seashore resort, don't neglect the hotels and cottages. The proprietor of a hotel can easily be persuaded that an Edison Phonograph and some of the late Amberol Records are admirable adapted to the amusement and entertainment of his guests. And don't forget to "boost" the Amberola to him as the ideal instrument for his place.

The cottagers ought to be still easier to persuade. You know yourself, if you have ever been through the experience, that a summer cottage or camp without music of some sort is a pretty lonesome place of habitation.

Spend a day or two visiting the cottages with a demonstration outfit and prove that the Edison Phonograph is an indispensable feature of that life. The vacation season is only just starting, and you ought to be able to do some business in the two months and half that still remain.

We have been sent the evidence that a lot of our Dealers are following out the suggestion made in the June MONTHLY that the example and methods of James Blair of Clinton, Minn., be followed. Mr. Blair, it will be remembered, is the Dealer who sold forty-five machines in three months by installing an outfit in the homes on a week's trial. His plan was outlined in detail in that issue. We have a few extra copies and will be glad to send one to any Dealer who may have mislaid his.

We will appreciate it if those Dealers who have put the scheme into effect will communicate the results obtained from it.

A concert six nights in the week this fine weather. Your doors wide open and some chairs and fans invitingly arranged for the convenience of those who wish to hear it. A card of invitation in your window, too.

Suggested Foreign Records

In the August issue of the Phonogram we are calling the attention of Record buyers to the desirability of three numbers in the British Amberol Catalog. The selections are No. 12128, "Gems of England," No. 12140, "Gems of Scotland," and No. 12160, "Gems of Ireland."

As we point out to the public, these selections are built upon themes known the world over, and are played in the finished manner that distinguishes the work of the National (London) Military Band.

No. 12128 includes the following airs: "The Vicar of Bray"; "Tell Me Mary How to Woo Thee" (a finely played oboe solo); "The Bailiff's Daughter"; "The Roast Beef of Old England"; "Hearts of Oak," and "Home, Sweet Home."

No. 12140 includes: "Charlie Is My Darling"; "Duncan Grey"; "'Twas Within a Mile of Edinboro' Town"; "Caller Herrin"; "Robin Adair"; "Auld Robin Grey"; "Campbells Are Coming," and "Auld Lang Syne." No. 12160 includes: "The Minstrel Boy"; "Rakes of Mallow"; "My Lady's Eyes"; "Irish Washerwoman"; "St. Patrick's Day"; "The Last Rose of Summer"; "Garry Owen"; "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls," and "The Wearing of the Green."

Calling attention to these Records in the Phonogram is bound to create a demand for them on the part of Phonograph owners born in the British Isles, as well as those whose forefathers came from those countries; and their name is legion. We advise our Dealers to anticipate this demand. It is our intention in the future to create a demand for Records in the Foreign Catalog in this manner when in our Judgment the selection justifies it.

The Jobber's Convention

If herculean work in the details of preparation are any criterion by which to judge of probable results, then the 1910 Convention of The National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, to be held at Atlantic City, July 5th to 9th inc., promises to be the most notable in the history of that organization. The Arrangement Committee has worked very hard for the complete success of the affair, and their labor promises to be rewarded by a record-breaking attendance, according to reports in the possession of Mr. J. C. Roush, the Indefatigable Secretary of the Association.

The conventionists will visit the National plant on Saturday, July 9th, where they will be entertained by the officials of the Company.

Advance List

Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 8 P. M. on August 24th, for delivery on the morning of the 25th. Jobbers are required to place orders for September Records on or before July 11th. Dealers should place September orders with Jobbers before July 11th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

35006 La Veritable Manola (Emile Bourgeois) Spanish Song Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment. Blanche Arral

LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.00

Those who have seen the rollicking abandon and caught the flash from the sparkling eye of the Andalusian Manola will appreciate this hearty description of the joyous young woman. She is a characteristic figure in the life of Southern Spain, where she people literally "dance the happy hours away." The spirit of this music has been admirably caught by Madame Arral, happy hours away." The spirit of this music has been admirably caught by Madame Arral, the versatile songstress, who presents a picture of that care-free clime that makes every hearer want to visit it.

40023 La Favorita—O mio Fernando (Donizetti) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment. Marie Delna

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

"La Favorita" is filled with exquisite melodies and none is better known or liked than this aria, which is a favorite number with contraltos. Leonora is torn with the conflicting emotions of joy at the prospect of marrying her lover, Fernando, and terror lest he repudiate her when he learns that she has been the King's mistress. She sends Inez, her confidant, to tell Fernando all, but the King keeps her imprisoned until after the wedding. When Fernando learns the truth he is furious, and flees to a monastery. Ultimately the situation is cleared up, but Leonora's suffering has been too much for her and she expires. Madame Delna has made a most vividly beautiful Record of this aria.

40024 Faust-Air des Bijoux (Gounod) Sung in French. Orchestra accompaniment. Marguerita Sylva

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

Marguerite, a sweet and simple maiden, is no match for Faust and his powerful friend, Mephistopheles. Beside the simple bouquet that her lover, Siebel, has left for her at the threshold of her home they place a casket of rare jewels. Marguerite, thinking it may be from her lover, naively opens it and, womanlike, decks herself with its contents. With the jewels is a mirror, in which she beholds herself adorned as she never has been before, and bursts into this spontaneous outpouring of joy, girlish delight and innocent pride in the knowledge of her great beauty, known as the "Jewel Song." Madame Marguerita Sylva portrays naturally and delightfully the ecstasy of Marguerite's full heart.

40025 Lohengrin—Lohengrin's Abschied (Wagner) Sung in German. Orchestra accompaniment Karl Jörn

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

"Lohengrin" is a pearl of delight, and Lohengrin and Elsa are the two most charming characters in the drama. Elsa and her brother Godfrey have been robbed of their birthright by their guardian, Telramund, and by the magic powers of Ortrud, Telramund's wife, Godfrey has been transformed into a swan. His disappearance causes Elsa to be charged with murdering him. When all seems hopeless Lohengrin, a Knight of the Holy Grail, appears to deliver her. In combat, "by the judgment of God," he conquers Talramund, but spares his life, and Lohengrin and Elsa are married. One condition has been imposed upon their union and happiness,—that she must not ask or seek to know his name or origin. Breach of this condition means that he must leave her forever. Her curiosity worked upon by Ortrud, she forgets her vow. The spell is broken and in deep love tones Lohengrin bids his fainting wife farewell. Mr. Jörn has made a touching and beautiful Record of this number.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

40026 Andréa Chénier-Monologo (Giordano) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment. Giovanni Polese

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

The opera from which this selection is drawn takes its name from Marie Andréa Chenier, a distinguished French poet, who fell a victim to the guillotine on July 25, 1794, three days previous to the end of the Reign of Terror. Chenier's condemnation has been brought about by the accusation of Gerard, a former servitor in the household of the Countess de Coigny, but who has risen to a position of authority in the ranks of the revolutionists. Andréa and in turn is loved by him. Under the gibes of his fellow-officers, Gerard, who is not a thoroughly bad man, drowns the voice of his better mentor, his conscience, and signs by which Gerard brings himself to the point of consigning his rival to the scaffold, and in its directness the number is a fine example of modern Italian music.

Edison Amberol Records for September, 1910

LIST: U. S., 50c; CANADA, 65c.

494 With Sword and Lance March National (London) Military Band

A martial and marchable march of excellent volume and skillful instrumentation, with the wood-wind playing a prominent part. The performance of the National Military Band in this instance is worthy of the highest praise and will entrench them all the more firmly in the esteem of lovers of band music. Composer, Herman Starke; publishers, Hawkes & Son, London.

495 Killarney Marie Narelle

What words so eloquently descriptive of Erin's charm of scenery and days of by-gone splendor, what melody more beautiful and truly sympathetic than in this gem of the talented Balfe's compositions? It is a classic that appeals not only to the poetic Celtic nature but to music lovers the world over, especially when sung by an artist of such splendid attainments and exclusively for Edison Records, which fact will be welcome news to the Edison trade and public, both of whom have long clamored for more of her Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, M. W. Balfe.

496 Sugar Moon Collins and Harlan

An altogether delightful "coon" duet. Lindy Lou's admonition to love-sick Jasper to confine his "spoonin' an' turtle-dovin'" to night-time under the Louisiana "sugar moon" forms the theme of this melodious song, which has received the usual interjection of original and entertaining comedy between verses. A most attractive Record of its kind. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Stanley Murphy; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

497 You'll Never Find Another Love Like Mine Manuel Romain

There is a yearning throb in Mr. Romain's voice as he sings this number which betrays his entire sympathy with its pathetic plaint. The musical setting, too, is thoroughly in sympathy by the publishers to become very popular. Mr. Romain, who sings only for Edison Records, will contribute to its popularity with this Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur J. Lamb; music, Alfred Solman; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

498 Irish and Scotch Melodies—Fantasia Charles Daab

A new xylophone Record by one of the best artists in that line in the country. Mr. Daab, who has made a special study of the xylophone and bells, has been connected with many prominent musical organizations, among them the John Philip Sousa and Arthur Pryor Bands, Walter Damrosch's New York Symphony Orchestra and the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra. The selection is one of great difficulty of performance, yet, unlike many difficult numbers, it is immensely interesting. Among the pieces comprised in this selection are several well-known jigs and reels, besides "Annie Laurie" and "The Last Rose of Summer," the latter being played or made up of what is termed the "double roll." Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Wm. R. Stobbe; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York.

499 He's My Soft Shell Crab on Toast Marie Dressler

This number baffles description in the limited space allotted for it. It's a "scream" from the extensive repertoire of Marie Dressler, whom a big majority of her countrymen insist upon considering their funniest woman on any stage. Her "soft shell crab" is a waiter, and the real reason for her preference for him seems to be that he keeps her supplied with chicken, gin and other dainties. She holds him out as a model waiter, giving a vivid illustration of his style in calling out such orders as "Is Missus Johnsing's kidneys done?" Miss Dressler also sings for Edison Records only. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Jackson Gensond.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

500 Hiding in Thee — Anthony and Harrison

It is questionable if these popular duetists have ever given a more finished performance of a sacred number than in this instance, and we have no hesitation in pronouncing this Record the equal, if not the superior, of any number of a similar type in our catalogue. The selection is too well known to require an introduction. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Rev. William O. Cushing; music, Ira D. Sankey.

501 Slavic March — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

One of the most characteristic and effective compositions of the celebrated Russian composer, Peter Iljitch Tschaikowsky. This march with its wonderful orchestral effects clearly shows the originality, power and energy for which its writer has won world-wide recognition. At the hands of the peerless Herbert it receives the treatment it so justly merits. A rare treat for the lover of the best in classical music, to whom it should be made clear that Herbert's orchestra can be heard only on Edison Records.

502 Put On Your Slippers, You're In For the Night — Ada Jones

The great big comic "hit" of DeWolf Hopper's musical comedy, "A Matinee Idol," in which it is featured by Louise Dresser. "Foxy" Bill Jones, a "rounder" only temporarily reformed through matrimony, tries on various ingenious pretenses to get out with "the boys," but wifey "queers the game" each time and imposes the sentence suggested in the title of the song. Four verses and choruses describing Bill's futile attempts, a delightfully catchy two-step melody and Ada Jones singing it,—who could wish for more? Orchestra accompaniment. Because of the popularity of this number the selling date of it was advanced one month. Words, Louire Dresser and E. S. Huntington; music, Seymour Furth; publishers, Seymour Furth Music Publishing Co., New York.

503 If This Rose Told You All It Knows — Oakland and Thompson

Rather a novel duet combination, a counter-tenor and a baritone, and we feel sure it will prove an acceptable offering to the many friends of both artists. The song is sentimental in theme, of a high order of composition, and the musical setting is indeed very pretty. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York.

504 International and "Fana" Marches — John Kimmble

An accordion solo that—if we may be permitted a modest pun—will please thousands of international "Fans." Two selections in one—two Records really—and both snappy airs. The first derives its title from the fact that it comprises a number of well-known international airs. This is Mr. Kimmble's first Amberol Record and those who have ever heard his Records in the Standard list will realize that he requires no word of commendation. Piano accompaniment. Composer, John Kimmble.

505 Phoebe Brown — Maude Raymond

Everybody who is at all familiar with high-class vaudeville and musical comedy knows that Maude Raymond is one of the country's bright particular "stars." Her work is always pleasing, due especially to her naturally buoyant, vivacious manner and the amount of energy and intelligence she puts into everything she does. Her first Record for the Edison Phonograph is a tuneful "coon" song, the hit of Cole and Johnson's big musical production, "The Red Moon." Phoebe is a "Yallch coon" who makes a trip to the other side of the "pond" as a lady's maid and returns with some "high-falutin" notions and a Spanish name, all of which get her "in very bad" in Darktown. It is an excellent vehicle for the display of Miss Raymond's talent, and she certainly gets all there is out of the number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bob Cole; music, J. Rosamond Johnson; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

506 Rescued from the Flames — Len Spencer and Company

Only the wonderful naturalness of Edison reproduction made this Record possible. A descriptive scene, intensely dramatic and replete with the thrilling incidents that throng the daily life of the fire-fighters. Scene 1. An Engine house—the fire laddies in good-natured raillery about a fireman's life—the engine house mascot appealed to—"a bad night for a fire"—the alarm! Box 1231 Scene 2. On the way to the fire—engines snorting, bells ringing, horses' hoofs beating, siren whistle blowing. Scene 3. The fire—orders—the comely side of the disaster—a woman's screams—"Up with the scaling ladder and bring down that women and baby!"—"All right, Cap'n"—"Jump, woman, the child's in the net!"—Cheers and finale. This Record baffles description in a limited space; it must be heard to be appreciated.

507 Southern Dream Patrol — New York Military Band

There isn't a monotonous moment in this delightful patrol, which is constructed on the following familiar Southern melodies: "Mama's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Suwanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe," and "Turkey in the Straw." Composer, Franz Mahl; publisher, E. Rueffer, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

508 I'm The Man They're Looking For — Edward M. Favor and Chorus

A companion piece to "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" and one that everybody who enjoyed the account of the search for the man from Cork will want and appreciate. The relation between this selection and the one mentioned is like that between an answer and a question. Kelly has been found, or rather several Kellys have turned up, and in the most unexpected places, too—the last one in a coffin! The song has an irresistible quality of humor and a rollicking air, and is crowding the "Kelly" song pretty closely in popularity. The selling date on and music, Ed Rogers; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York.

509 One Sweetly Solemn Thought — Knickerbocker Quartette

Little can be said of sacred numbers except to dilate upon the quality of the singing, which surely should be superfluous where the work of the artists is known to be consistently excellent, as is the case with the members of this well-known male quartette. Particular attention is called to the beautiful tones of the organ used in the accompaniment. Composers, R. S. Ambrose, Homer N. Bartlett; publishers, Oliver Dison Co., Boston.

510 My Old Armchair — Billy Williams

This sentimental ballad is in praise of an old arm chair for which the singer cherishes a sincere affection. The words and the sentiment of the song are homely, but the air is a captivating melody that will win its way into the affections of the American public even as it did into those of our English brethren. The singer is Billy Williams, who on the other side of the water is known as "The Man in the Velvet Coat." One of England's highest-priced comedians, he proves in this number that his talent is not confined to singing comic songs. Orchestra accompaniment. Composers, Scott & Williams; publishers, Francis, Day and Hunter, New York City.

511 If Dreams Are True — Will Oakland

A sentimental song of unusual poetic and melodic charm. Its slow waltz refrain is especially pretty and appealing. Mr. Oakland sings this number with fine expression, his voice lending itself readily to the pathetic theme of the selection. This Record, like all of Mr. Oakland's, will be one of the most popular in the list. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Tell Taylor; publishers, The Star Music Publishers, Chicago.

512 Carry Me Back to Old Virginny — Premier Quartette

It's the old-time melodies, after all, that are really worth while,—the songs of our fathers, whose sentiment touches the heart and whose music imbibes charm with age. This dear old melody is here sung in a manner befitting its dignity, the trained voices of the quartette blending in splendid harmony. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, James A. Bland.

513 Over the Waves Waltz — New York Military Band

"Over the Waves" ("Sobre Las Olas"), is a very popular waltz both in concert and the ball room. It was written by the well-known Mexican composer, Juventino Rosas. This Record was specially recorded at slow tempo for dancing, and will be found a most desirable number for that purpose. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Edison Standard Records for September, 1910

LIST: U. S., 35c; CANADA, 40c.

10410 Emperor's Manoeuvre March — United States Military Band

Another delectable offering by "The President's Own" that will find instantaneous favor with their many friends and admirers among the Phonograph public. An unusually brisk air for the most part, at times changing to a plaintive theme, pretty and pleasing. Composer, C. Friedemann.

10411 That Lovin' Two-Step Man — Sophie Tucker

When "rag" songs are mentioned Sophie Tucker's name is immediately associated with them by those who have had the pleasure of hearing her in vaudeville and on the Edison Phonograph. Her style of singing is as delightfully distinctive as her enunciation is clear and distinct. Her voice, deep and agreeable in quality, is splendidly adapted to "coon shouts," of which this number is a more than ordinarily good specimen. Miss Tucker sings exclusively for Edison Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Stanley Murphy; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

10412 So Long, Mr. Flanagan — Ed. Meeker

Flanagan and Hanagan are old cronies, both argumentative and both afflicted with stammering. The song is a humorous description of their daily conversations. The theme is novel, the words funny, the air is a rollicking one and Mr. Meeker is thoroughly at home in this type of selection. His brogue is rich and pleasing and his stuttering most artistic. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, W. E. Browning; music, Ed. Edwards; publisher, Joseph Morris, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10413 L'Encore — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

A fascinating and brilliant instrumental duet written by Victor Herbert for flute and clarinet. The air is sprightly and engaging and the difficult instrumental plays are marvellously well The air is sprightly and engaging and the difficult instrumental plays are marvellously well executed. A Record of this kind is so seldom listed that it cannot fail to attract a lot of attention and consequently heavy demand. As has already been said, Mr. Herbert's services are exclusively at the command of this company.

10414 Pal of Mine — Manuel Romain

The title of this number little suggests the tender sentiment of its lines. The "Pal" is an old man's life mate, for whom in the twilight of their lives he finds a deeper and stronger sentiment than in the days when the blush of youth was on her cheeks. The words are set to a sweetly plaintive air changing to a waltz melody in the chorus, and Mr. Romain completes the attractiveness of the number with a most sympathetic rendition. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bartley C. Costello; music, J. S. Nathan; publisher, Leo Feist, New York.

10415 The Chanticleer Rag — Collins and Harlan

A lot of patter about barn-yard affairs worked into a clever and tuneful "coon" duet. The selection offers plenty of opportunity for the introduction of comedy and ingenious effects, all of which are taken advantage of. An imitation of the barn-yard greeting to the dawn at day is especially good. The air is a "swingy" two-step, and the manner in which the number is sung will add to its popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edvard Madden; music, Albert Gumble; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York.

10416 Marie Dressler's "Working Girl" Song — Marie Dressler

Here's one of the jolly comedienne's favorite characterizations, one that always "brings down the house" and keeps her busy responding to encores. The troubles of a manicure lady whose unsophisticated ways are taken advantage of by the sterner sex are recited in a tone that fairly pulsates with indignation. Her resentment at the immodest display of necks at the full dress party to which one of her customers introduced her is simply immense. This convulsing selection can be heard only on Edison Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edgar Smith; music, Maurice Levi.

10417 German Waltz Medley — John Kimmble

An accordion solo. This is Mr. Kimmble's first contribution to our Standard Records in some time, and it will undoubtedly be much appreciated by lovers of this particular style of selection. The medley consists of standard German waltz airs, which are played in Mr. Kimmble's masterful style. Piano accompaniment.

10418 You Can't Make Me Stop Loving You — Will Oakland

A dreamy waltz song with a pretty, flowing melody. A boy lover, "turned down" by his sweetheart, accepts his congé in a philosophical manner but warns her that she can't efface the sweet memories he will always retain of their happy days together or keep him from loving her in the same old way. Beautifully sung and recorded. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edgar Leslie; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

10419 Only a Beam of Sunshine — Anthony and Harrison

This favorite hymn with its beautiful words of solace and comfort is one of Fanny Crosby's best known compositions. A splendid sacred number, and most impressively sung. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, John R. Sweney.

10420 How Can You Love Such a Man — Josie Sadler

In her inimitable dialect the popular German comedienne registers an awful complaint about the laggardly love-making of her best fellow. Asked whether she preferred a book or a kiss for Xmas she told him she couldn't read. Next day he sent a teacher around to the house! "How can you love such a man what has got solid ivory on top?" is her pathetic query. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

10421 The Lady Bugs' Review — American Standard Orchestra

This is a characteristic number by the well-known composer, Neil Moret, who wrote the popular "Hiawatha" (Standard No. 8347), "Moonlight Serenade" (Standard No. 8974) and other favorite instrumental numbers. Its construction is both novel and clever, in that respect being reminiscent of "Teddy Bears Picnic" (Standard No. 9777), which Record it is expected to rival in popularity. Publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10422 Krausmeyer Taking the Census — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

A talking Record that will drive away the blues. Krausmeyer "gets in bad," to use a slang phrase, when he tackles Mrs. Mulligan for information which she deems decidedly too personal to be public property. She finally parts with some grudgingly, and the humor of the number lies in the trouble Krausmeyer has in extracting it. Mulligan, himself, and some of his friends also appear on the scene and, after a song and some jokes, ring down the curtain on Krausmeyer.

* This selection will be illustrated on cover of September Phonogram.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10423 That Fussy Rag — Long Acre Quartette

Simply great! That's the shortest, most comprehensive phrase with which to adequately describe this Record. The selection is a "rag" melody let loose, as it were. A "syncopated organization to our catalogue, and we confidently leave the question of their future appearance. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Vesse H. Smalley; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., New York City.

10424 The Smiler Rag — New York Military Band

Everything is "rag" these days; the public seems to be unable to get enough of that inferious type of melody. Here's a band Record of a popular "rag" composition that is much out of the ordinary,—a bright, cheery air, and a splendid performance. Don't let your customers miss this Record; it belongs in every collection. Composer, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Arnett-Delonais Co., Chicago, Ill.

Special Sacred List

Responding to a very general and urgent demand on the part of the trade, we have prepared the below list of sacred selections, shipment of which will be made to Jobbers starting on or about July 11th, 1910. The Records can be placed on sale as soon as received, and will be sold at the same prices in the United States and Canada that obtain for the Domestic Amberol and Standard Records. These selections have been most judiciously chosen as the most representative and popular numbers sung in the Catholic and Christian Science churches respectively, and owing to the very nature of the selections unusual care was exercised in the choice of singers and the work of recording. The special literature that will accompany the Records should be circulated to the best advantage by Dealers. We are satisfied that these Records will be in very general demand and strongly urge our Dealers to lose no time in placing an order with their Jobbers for a liberal supply of them.

CATHOLIC HYMNS.

AMBEROL

514 Adeste Fidèles — Edison Mixed Quartette

This well known hymn has been associated with Catholic worship for so many years that it seems interwoven with the history of that church. Time cannot stale its charms, and as the centuries roll by it becomes more and more precious. Sung in Latin with organ accompaniment. Composer, Novello.

515 Mother, Dear, O I Pray For Me — Anthony and Harrison

The word "mother" never loses its charm for old or young, and with no other relation in life is music so closely interwoven as it is with the maternal. It is upon our mother's bosom that we first learn what music is, and with our Virgin Mother above we look forward to sharing celestial music throughout eternity. Orchestra accompaniment.

516 Gloria From 12th Mass (Mozart) — Edison Mixed Quartette

Mozart was a musical genius, a musician the nearest to perfection that the world has ever seen. His music is not only beautiful in itself, but in its adaptability to its intended purpose it is the very consummation of art. Nothing would lend more to sanctify the home than to have as part of the household this beautiful "Gloria from Mozart's 12th Mass." Sung in Latin with orchestra accompaniment.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HYMNS.

AMBEROL

517 Shepherd Show Me How to Go — Anthony and Harrison

This melodic prayer of the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy is a tender aspiration for help and guidance addressed to the Hope and Shepherd, whose eye and heart are at the service of His sheep "all the rugged way." It is especially adapted for home use, because it has an intimate quality not to be found in all hymns as they are usually written for congregational use. Music, William Lyman Johnson. Orchestra accompaniment.

518 O'er Waiting Harpstrings of the Mind — Frederick Gunster

There is a calming, soothing rhythm to this favorite hymn, written by the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy. It voices the trust and faith which appeal alike to all Christians, and yet express especially the deep religious feeling of Christian Science. After meditation on the lightening of life's burdens, the singer, with the illuminating eye of faith, exclaims, "I see Christ walk and come to me, and tenderly, divinely talk." Music, William Lyman Johnson. Orchestra accompaniment.

519 Saw Ye My Saviour? — Edison Mixed Quartette

This beautiful communion hymn is not an expression of doctrine, but a tribute to the Christ and not the Creed; a most fitting opening to the bread and wine commemoration service in the church, and to the private commemoration service in the home. It is written by the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, and sung by the Edison Mixed Quartette with organ accompaniment, to reproduce as nearly as possible the atmosphere and effect of the hymn at a church service. Music, Brockett.

STANDARD

10425 Eternal Mind the Potter Is — Edison Mixed Quartette

There could not be finer consonance between the sentiment of the words and music than this Record presents. The dignity of man at his place in the divine purpose are expressed in the poetry and emphasized in the lofty but simple character of the music. Before its sympathetic strain all sordid, common thoughts flee, and we are lifted to a place where the path of holiness seems the only one. It should bring comfort and gladness to many hearts. Sung without accompaniment. Words, Alice Dayton. Music, Louis Spohr.

This is the New I.C.S. $35 Language Outfit

One firm has ordered 300 outfits. Another firm sold outfits 24 hours after their receipt. They are ordering them all along the line wherever the outfits are shown. Why? Because they are sellers; they are profit makers; and they cater to a field that will quickly appreciate and purchase them.

This outfit provides the very best method for teaching foreign languages in the world; a method that is indorsed by professors of the leading colleges and by the French, German, Spanish, and Italian Embassies in the United States. It teaches French, German, Spanish, and Italian to English-speaking people and teaches English to foreigners.

The I. C. S. outfit consists of an Edison Gem Phonograph made especially for language work, small horn, head-band hearing tube, oil can, and 25 conversational records teaching pronunciation that is guaranteed to be absolutely correct with native intonation and inflection. Accompanying these conversational records, there are pamphlet instruction papers teaching the theory of the language.

Not only is this the most complete and by far the best language outfit on the market, but it is the cheapest, as it sells for only $35. If you are alive to your best business interests, you will write today for further particulars—for the sake of increased business write us today.

Vol. VIII. AUGUST, 1910 No. 8

August—How Are You Going To Spend It?

It's usually a pretty hot month, and it promises this year to fully live up to its reputation as such. It's also regarded by some as a dead month in the Phonograph business,—a month to lay off work in. But do you think that holds good for August, 1910? Conceded that it is only natural to surrender to the inclination to get away from the heat and business worries and lead a life of indolent ease "far from the madding crowd," do you think, Mr. Dealer, in view of the opportunities opened up for you by the Attachment Proposition and the Promotion Plan that you are justified in suspending activity,—in figuratively shutting up shop? Can you afford to let one whole big month pass without making every preparation for the fall season, which ought to be one of the best in the history of the business, and which is now knocking at the door?

There are so many things to be done now,—details that must be attended to at once, that will not wait for your convenience. Your stock of Machines and Records should be overhauled and replenished; their location and arrangement should be carefully considered and, if possible, improved upon; your mailing lists should be immediately revised; newspaper ads should be written up and kept for future use; your window arrangement should be given your thought and attention; demonstrating machines should be put in perfect running order; a supply of the Combination Attachment Proposition and Promotion Plan circulars should be mailed now to every Phonograph owner on your list;—in short, there are a hundred matters that must be taken care of without delay. If you don't attend to these things now it's a 10—1 shot that the ever-present-and-alert "other fellow" will slip one over on you with the twin Propositions and corral the new Attachment and Machine sales with the big profits that multiply afterwards from the new Record customers.

Don't loll during August, Mr. Dealer! Roll up your sleeves, laugh at the heat and put yourself in solid for the early Autumn campaign.

The Promotion Plan in Operation

The "endless chain" forged by the Promotion Plan has begun to operate. The Special Records and Special literature are now in the hands of every Dealer who placed his order promptly for them. The Promotion Certificates are beginning to arrive at the factory, indicating that some of the more enterprising Dealers got to work early on the proposition.

If we said that the initial orders were satisfactory we would not be stating the truth. They were more than satisfactory,—they were surprising in volume. And what is more gratifying than heavy initial orders, the expressed attitude of the trade is so encouraging that we are led to expect even bigger results from the Plan than we at first anticipated. Jobbers and Dealers alike declare it the biggest promoter of business that the Edison trade has ever been given.

And it is big; its possibilities are enormous. Think what the general effect will be if each one of the 13,000 Edison Dealers interests only ten (a ridiculously small percentage) of his customers to work for the bonus of six Records. It will mean 130,000 active Edison Phonograph salesmen, each one working with a selfish object in view! Then add to that figure the number of new Machine owners that will result, each one of whom also becomes a salesman. The moral effect upon the business is beyond calculation. It is sure to create a renewed interest in Edison products, which will have a resultant effect for the good upon every Dealer's business.

This is the opportunity of a business life-time for the Edison Dealer. It means the immediate rejuvenation of his business. If he pitches into the proposition with vim, determination and enthusiasm he will boost his Machine and Record sales to a point where they haven't been in the past three years. It's a big proposition, and it will bring big results to the Dealer who does his duty by it.

The cost of the Plan to the Dealer is practically nothing more than advertising expense. As a matter of fact there is no cost until a sale has been made: and who would balk at a paltry $1.20 to sell a Phonograph and secure a new Record customer and salesman, who, in turn, will do his level best to sell more Machines, thus interesting other buyers, and so on ad infinitum!

We suggested in the July MONTHLY the following most effective means of employing the Promotion Plan, which we repeat for the benefit of any Dealers who may not have started on the Proposition yet:

Order at least one complete set of the twenty-four special Records; make up a list of all Phonograph owners in your vicinity; sign your name to the Certificates and mail one together with a four-page folder to each name on the list, and advertise the plan in the newspapers, your window and by every other method you can think of.

We want to supplement these instructions by suggesting that a quantity of each form be kept handy in the store for distribution among Phonograph owners not on your mailing list. We would further suggest that Attachment Proposition literature be inserted in every envelope mailed to the owner of an un-amberolized Phonograph.

The Combination Outfit Proposition and the Promotion plan ought to travel tandem from now on. The inducement of ten Special Records for practically nothing, and six Amberol Records for merely the expense of a little moral persuasion, ought to drag every un-amberolized Machine into immediate activity. If you are out of Attachment Proposition Literature notify your Jobber at once and get an additional supply.

You have the Propositions now, Mr. Dealer. You know what they mean to you, and if you study their possibilities you will realize what they can be made to do for you. Is it necessary to remind you that the sooner you make them work for you just so much the sooner will you begin to realize the profits they will bring?

Is Your Name On Our Revised Mailing List?

Convinced that a percentage of our Dealers are paying little or no attention to the house literature we send them, our Advertising Department on June 21st began the work of revising our mailing list with a view to cutting off the indifferent Dealers from the receipt of further printed matter. A letter was sent to the entire trade explaining the folly of further waste of money on such Dealers and asking active, interested Dealers to prove themselves such by signing a post-card, which was enclosed with the letter, and mailing it to the Company. The post-card instructed us to keep the name of the Dealer on our mailing list, and on it he subscribed to the fact that he reads all the literature we send him, including the Edison Phonograph Monthly, and also indicates how many machines and Records he is carrying in stock and the name of his Jobber.

We have received replies from a large majority of the Dealers, but there are some whom we know to be good, active Dealers yet have not as yet sent us the required information. We want to stir these Dealers up—want to hear from them at once. We simply must have this information, and at an early date; if it is not forthcoming we shall be forced to the conclusion that the Dealer does not care to receive the literature and shall accordingly drop his name from the mailing list.

If the Dealer wants our literature we certainly want him to have it—in fact, we want to give him better service in that respect in the future than we have in the past, and shall aim to do so; but we don't intend to waste time and money on any Dealer who does not want the literature, or does not peruse and use it.

If you have neglected thus far to send us the card referred to, do so without further delay—do it now while it is fresh in memory. If the card is mislaid just address a note to the National Phonograph Company, Advertising Department, stating that you want to be continued on the mailing list and will read the house literature sent out, including the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, and advising us of approximately how many machines and Records your stock consists of, also of the name of your Jobber.

We ask that Jobbers co-operate with us in the compilation of this new list by urging their Dealers to early compliance with our request.

Johann Strauss Records

We want to call the attention of the trade to the following Amberol and Standard Records appearing in the German Catalogue and Supplement to date,—Records by the famous Johann Strauss Orchestra made under the leadership of the celebrated composer-conductor himself, the third of the Viennese "Waltz Kings" to bear a name which has made history in music.

The music lover needs no introduction to the selections. They are all standard, some of them, Nos. 15049 and 15032 for instance, being known the world over. The work of the Strauss Orchestra in every instance, as is to be expected from an organization of its calibre, is magnificent, and the recording beyond criticism. The Records can not be surpassed from any point of view by any Records of the same type on the market, and the very fact that so internationally famous an organization as the Johann Strauss Orchestra made them will give them an additional value in the eyes of the music lover.

We are printing the subjoined list in the October issue of the PHONOGRAM and would advise Dealers to anticipate the consequent demand by placing their order for them at once with their Jobbers.

The Exchange Proposition

What little of naturally adverse criticism from the trade following the announcement in President Dyer's letter of June 17th to the effect that the Continuous Exchange Proposition in modified form will be in operation only until December 31, 1910, has been allayed by a better understanding of the causes that led up to its discontinuance, and by the knowledge of the fact that the present arrangement is intended as only a temporary make-shift for a plan which we are satisfied will meet with the endorsement of all Jobbers and Dealers. We are at work on the details now and the proposed substitute will be announced in due season.

Meanwhile we must express our satisfaction over the spirit of confidence displayed by the trade in our judgment and promise to adjust the matter to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. It is but another evidence of the complete harmony, confidence and co-operation that exists between the factory and the distributive branches. Let us say in passing that the confidence reposed in the factory will be fully repaid, and that the license of an Edison Dealer never meant as much to him as it does at the present moment.

As explained by Sales Manager Dolbeer at the Jobbers' convention last month, the Continuous Exchange Proposition has been a very costly experiment for the company. Since its adoption in May, 1909, it has cost us an almost incredible amount of money and has failed to accomplish the results expected of it. It is doubtful if any other manufacturer would have continued it under the circumstances for the length of time we have. We have given it a fair trial and it has proven unsatisfactory from every point of view; hence the determination to modify it for a time until we could work out a plan more fair and satisfactory to all concerned.

We trust that in the meantime the trade will observe the new conditions, which are as follows:

Up to and including December 31st, 1910, we will accept and give full credit for returned cut-out two-minute Records only so long as the credit so given shall not exceed fifty (50) per cent. of the total two-minute purchases, the balance to be paid for on regular terms; and we will not accept and give credit for such returned cut-out Records in connection with orders for Amberol Records.

We will, however, make the concession that returned two-minute Records shall apply on all two-minute purchases, whether from the advance or current lists, provided that the total number of Records returned shall not exceed fifty (50) per cent. of the total two-minute Records purchased. By this it must be understood that an order for at least double the quantity of two-minute Records returned must accompany the papers covering the return of two-minute Records.

Model "M" Reproducer Exchange—The Canadian Phase

We are exchanging Amberol Model "M" for Model "L" Reproducers as fast as it is possible for us to do so, and want to again remind the trade that we are very anxious to get the new Reproducers into the hands of Amberol owners at the earliest possible moment, to the end that complete satisfaction with every instrument now in the hands of the public may be insured. A satisfied customer is the best possible advertisement, and we wish to run no risk of refutation in a single solitary instance of our oft-repeated assertion that "the Amberola is the most perfect instrument of its kind in the world." It's up to the Dealer to see that every Amberola sold by him or in his possession is equipped at the earliest possible moment with a new model "M" Reproducer.

In this connection we wish to announce that negotiations are now under way with the Canadian Customs authorities whereby we hope to be able to exchange Model "M" for Model "L" Reproducers in the Canadian provinces, without additional duty being imposed upon the exchange shipment. We expect to be able to make a definite announcement on this subject in the near future.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

The Bernhardt Records

The first of the Amberol Records by "The Divine Sarah"—No. 35007—"L 'Aiglon-La Plaine de Wagram"—appears with the October Supplement, and the balance will be listed one each month so as to extend over the period covered by her coming American tour. Mme. Bernhardt will begin her tour in Chicago on October 3, with a repertoire that includes her old favorites as well as a number of new plays. It is from the former that extracts were selected for the Edison Catalogue.

In "L'Aiglon" Mme. Bernhardt has scored one of the most emphatic of her many successes, and the extract recorded is the thrilling climax of that absorbing drama. These Records are absolutely flawless from a recording standpoint, every tense syllable, every emotional quiver of the great tragedienne's wonderful voice being reproduced with a naturalness and clearness possible only on Edison Records. It was because of the superior reproducing quality of Edison Records that Mme. Bernhardt selected them for the perpetuation of her memory among her millions of admirers; which fact should not be lost sight of by the Edison trade in advertising her Records. She yielded to the suggestion to leave to posterity a heritage of her art only when convinced that the reproduction would be perfect and after testing the reproducing qualities of other machines.

This is Bernhardt's farewell tour as well as her first visit to this country in a number of years, and it is safe to say that it will be a triumphal one. Dealers are urged to anticipate the furore it will create among theatregoers by securing a supply of each Record as it is listed and advertising them at the psychological moment, never forgetting to dwell more emphatically and often upon the fact that SARAH BERNHARDT CAN AND WILL BE HEARD ONLY ON EDISON RECORDS.

Bohemian Records

In the Foreign Record Supplement on page 21 will be found six Standard Bohemian Records. We draw especial attention to the fact in order that Dealers in localities where Bohemians are found in numbers may not overlook the list. The appearance of the Supplement is most opportune, as we have had a very considerable demand recently for new Bohemian Records. The new Records will be found to be representative numbers, excellently sung and recorded.

This is a Reproduction of Our Full-Page August Magazine Ad

Which Penetrates Millions of Homes, Carrying the Message of the Edison Phonograph's Adaptability to Home Surroundings.

One of the sights of New York City for the next two years to come will be the enormous electric sign at Broadway and 38th St., the largest, most ingenious and startling display of its kind ever attempted, which will carry to visitors from the four corners of the earth the blazing message that Edison Phonographs and Records are the "Leaders of the World" in their line.

It is conservatively estimated that New York has a daily transient population of 300,000 including visitors from near-by and distant points. The moral effect upon that daily changing multitude of this fiery recognition of Edison precedence is obvious. Its effect upon the trade should be that of enthusiasm and inspiration to greater effort in the sale of a product recognized by the representative manufacturing concerns of the world as the peer of its kind.

Every Edison Dealer should feel justifiably proud of the fact that he handles the "Leaders of the World" in sound-reproduction.

Neglected Opportunities

Recently we received a communication from a Phonograph owner in one of our large cities, who complained bitterly of the fact that after having either visited or written two Jobbers and ten Dealers for the purpose of obtaining certain numbers in one of the Foreign Catalogues, he had been unsuccessful. Not only that, but he had received no encouragement to expect that he might be able to procure them in the near future.

Result; A disgusted Phonograph owner and a lost customer!

He was an Italian-American, a man of some means apparently and evidently of good education. He could not understand why it was impossible for him to get the Records, which, he explained, were not for his own entertainment particularly, but were intended as a pleasurable surprise for his parents. He was keenly disappointed over his fruitless search, and his criticism of what he termed short-sighted policy on the part of the Jobbers and Dealers whom he had approached was severe. Some of his extensive remarks were very much to the point and decidedly apropos, as for instance:

"Mr. Edison has said, 'I want to see an Edison Phonograph in every home.' How can that be accomplished if your Dealers won't sell Records that can be appreciated in every home,—won't cater to any but those who speak the English tongue?

"Italians are a music-loving people. They are industrious and frugal, and as well if not better able to afford a Phonograph than the average American born. But they won't buy a Phonograph or ever become interested in one, if all they can hear on it is a 'coon shout' or 'rag time' music."

There were other sentences in his letter equally as caustic and full of good, sound logic as the above; in quoting which we feel some little satisfaction over having used exactly the same arguments over and over again in our sales talks with Dealers.

This Foreign Record proposition is one that every Dealer ought to sit down and give a lot of study to. The big cities, as in fact every community in the country, have their quota of foreign born, and a mighty big quota it is, too. As a matter of fact there are proportionately very few of us who are not either of foreign birth or foreign parentage. Are foreigners less musical than Americans? Are they less able to purchase a Phonograph? Neither question requires an answer.

Why, then, should a Dealer confine his operations to the English-speaking element? Why doesn't he explore a field that offers such tremendous possibilities for the sale of Phonographs and Records as does the foreign element? There isn't a good reason in the world why he should-n't. The arguments in favor of his doing so are unanswerable. He certainly is not handicapped by dearth of suitable selections with which to appeal to his foreigners. Our Foreign Catalogues are replete with vocal and instrumental selections from every civilized land under the sun, sung and played by the best talent obtainable in each country, and we are constantly adding Supplements to these to keep them thoroughly up to date. Look at the Supplements printed on another page of the MONTHLY and observe the calibre of the talent there represented. You will find that it is typical of what already appears in our Catalogues and Supplements in other tongues.

We again urge Dealers to procure copies of the new Foreign Record Catalogues, select Records that will appeal to the foreigners in each one's locality, being guided in the selection, if possible, by one of the foreigners, and advertise the Records and Machines by such methods as will most effectively appeal to them, such as, for instance, by newspapers or circulars printed in the native tongue. This Foreign Record proposition means Machine and Record sales, immediate and future, to the enterprising Dealer—beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Standard Record Supplement Reduced

Starting with the October Supplement the Standard Record list of fifteen has been reduced to ten numbers, which quota will be maintained until further notice. This action on our part will undoubtedly meet with the entire approval of the trade. Notice through the MONTHLY to this effect will obviate the necessity of the customary Sales Department Bulletin apprising the trade of the change.

Correction

The October Advance List incorrectly specifies the date of Jobbers' re-shipment of October Records to Dealers as September 24th, and the selling date as September 26th. The correct dates are September 23rd and 24th respectively.

On the Advance List, also, Amberol Record No. 35007 by Sarah Bernhardt is described as being sung in French, whereas it is in fact a talking Record.

"Music Master" Horns Now Ready

NO ALLOWANCE FOR CRATING

Dealers should promptly place orders with their Jobbers for such of these goods as they will require, which goods may be placed on sale as soon as received.

Sacred List Very Popular

Orders for the list of Sacred Records—Catholic and Christian Science—which were announced and described in Sales Department Bulletin and in the July MONTHLY, were surprisingly large. We were confident that they would be very acceptable to the trade, but were somewhat surprised at the volume of the initial orders for them. There is no question but that they will prove excellent sellers. They are splendid Records in every respect, selected and recorded with unusual care, and will undoubtedly prove very popular with the members of the respective churches they represent. We can not too strongly emphasize the wisdom of every Dealer ordering some of these Records and advertising them as a special feature in his windows and newspaper ads. Dealers should remember that they can be placed on sale as soon as received, and that special literature for circularizing purposes will be furnished upon request by the Jobber.

The Other 13,000

A. M. Goldsmith of Southold, N. Y., is the owner of the automobile and the gentleman in the picture. He is a prosperous Edison Dealer who long ago came to the conclusion that there is only one real way of selling Phonographs, and that's by bringing them right into the home and demonstrating them there where they belong.

He started out at first with a horse and wagon but eventually discarded them for the auto, which he found answered the purpose much better, as it enabled him to go out every day and cover a much larger territory. He covers about thirty miles a day in his machine and serves about two hundred and fifty customers with the new Records each month. Quite naturally his Record sales have multiplied since he adopted the home demonstration idea. Most of his Machine sales are made on the installment plan, and to prove the success of this method it may be said that in the first two weeks of June he had sold three Phonographs from free trials of machines placed in homes during that period.

Every Dealer can't afford an auto, but if every Dealer will take a chance with a horse and wagon for a while, as Mr. Goldsmith did, it will not be long before he can afford an auto.

Get the horse first, the auto will follow after.

First Promotion Sale

The first Promotion Certificate to reach the factory was received on July 19th from William Holsom, of Medford, N. J., who is therefore credited with the honor of the first sale made under the new Proposition.

"Not 'Knocking,' But—"

Would you accuse a Dealer of "knocking" if in exuberance of spirits over his success with the Edison line he wrote in to the factory drawing a contrast between his experience with that and a line of rival manufacture? We think not; and as you may be interested to hear his experience we print the following extract from a letter received from George L. Snider, Bakersfield, Cal.

"While I am at it I must add that I am certainly enthusiastic over your line,—more so than ever before. There is no question but that the Edison is the leader, and I am proud that I chance to be a Dealer in that line.

"Not knocking, but I have sold eighteen Edison outfits since putting in the ——— line, and have succeeded in selling one ——— machine. This shows the superiority of the Edison line.

"It takes me a year sometimes to land a machine, but I usually land what I go after. In some cases a Dealer can't rush a sale. These are the kind I like, for after once landed they usually turn out to be the best; but it often tries a fellow's patience."

Ira Marsh, Chekotah, Okla., won first prize at the annual meeting of the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association held at Shawnee, Okla., May 17th to 19th, 1910, with a paper on the subject "Edison Phonographs and Records as a Side Line for Druggists." The prize was donated by the Smith's Phonograph Company, Edison Jobbers of Oklahoma City.

Mr. Marsh's paper, which was very ably prepared, was an interesting history of his success with the Edison line since November 14th, 1908, when he installed it in his drug store, and an intelligent arrayal of the advantages of the Edison over competing machines. It is evident from his paper that he uses all the up-to-date methods of exploiting the line—mailing list, newspaper advertising and, best of all, demonstration in the home. It is interesting to note that Mr. Marsh's business has doubled since the four-minute Attachments and the four-minute Amberol Records were introduced to the trade.

There is no question but that Mr. Marsh's progressive methods are in great measure responsible for his statement that "the Edison line is the easiest kept and most gratifying, draws more trade to the store and makes better profits than any other side line it has been possible for him to secure."

An Attractive Window

Above cut illustrates the Decoration Day window of the Ballard Music House of Ballard Station, Seattle, Wash. Ballard Station was formerly the city of Ballard but is now the Thirteenth and banner ward of Seattle, and the Ballard Music House is considered one of its most representative business firms. Located on a prominent corner along one of the principal car lines, they are particularly fortunate in window display facilities, which fact they constantly turn to good advantage.

Their advertising, however, is not confined to window displays, for they use the columns of two Seattle papers—a daily and a weekly—to carry their Edison ads. Some samples of the latter tent us are striking and attractive, and indicate considerable thought and ingenuity in their preparation. Their ads, moreover, are always prominent in programs of local affairs—in fact, any method by which they can keep the Edison line (which, by the way, is their principal line) before the public is quickly appropriated.

They believe in good advertising for they have found that good advertising pays.

We avoid as much as possible "hooting" any particular Dealer, but originality and enterprise command an expression of admiration, and we can not refrain from congratulating the O. A. Reynolds Talking Machine Co., of Springfield, Ill., on the excellence of their Attachment Proposition letter. We certainly regret that limited space prohibits our printing the letter in its entirety. It is easily the very best of its kind that has reached us so far; and that's saying a whole lot.

The Sunshine Column

The fellow across the way has had four Talking Machines in stock for three years. I sold four last month and am waiting for my last order to arrive, when I can place two more. I never saw anything easier to sell if you go after your man in the right way.

Garnet Armstrong, Lucknow, Canada.

We have laid in a complete stock of the domestic Records, two and four-minute, also a good many of the foreign Records; and find it to work very well, as we lose no sales as a result. We intend to keep up that policy. The Attachment Proposition is a winner and we are pushing it hard.

L. Klein & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

The Amberol Attachment Proposition with the ten Special Amberol Records is making a great "hit" in this district. I am daily receiving letters enquiring about the offer and as to when I can put on the Equipment.

I have made a list of all my customers and all owners of Edison machines that I know of, and will endeavor to get every one into the four-minute class. Here is the plan of the list.

Name	Address	Style of Attach. Machine owns?	When put on	Remarks
Frank Grenier	Ogd., N.Y., R. F. D. 1	Home II	No	June 1

When I place an Attachment I draw a line through the word "No," and then in the last column insert the date on which it was sold.

I have a very good record of what type of machine each customer has, and when I write I can therefore talk more intimately.

Out of one hundred and fifteen Edison Phonograph owners in one section there are seventy-two without Attachments, twenty-eight with and fifteen unknown. Practically only one-fourth have the Attachments. I am going to see how many of the balance will be without Attachments before the Summer is over.

Business is getting brighter. I have done more in the past fifteen days than I did in the previous forty-five days. That's pretty good, I think.

Louis R. Martin, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Edison Jobbers of Toronto, Ont., Canada, continue to find the concert plan satisfactory. Monthly Amberola concerts are given in their own Recital Hall at 143 Yonge St.

A Good Letter From a Live Jobber to His Dealers

Have you ordered an Edison Amberola?
Have you ever sold a $200 Edison outfit?
Did you ever try to make such a sale?
If not, then don't say "I can't do it in my town," because you don't know what you can do until you try.
Don't attempt to be like the people in the cities. Remember that there are thousands of large cities are any more willing to pay the price for what they want than those who live right in your town.
We have been astonished at the demand for Amberolas since they were placed on sale. Until the present we have been unable to get enough to supply our trade. Every one who has been purchasing Amberolas said there immediately, and every one was sold to a farmer.
You make a profit of $63.00 on every Amberola. Isn't that worth hustling for? And when you come right down to it you will find the $200 Amberola is an easier sale to close than one of the lower-priced machines. Why? Because when you have a man interested in Amberolas you are half before it reaches you you have pretty well convinced right in your own mind who you are going to sell it to, and when you have done this much you have practically made the sale.
How many pianos are sold each year in your town? A good many, but what one is in place in the average home that has one? Not one can you put them. But the Amberola brings to the home the great artists and bands of the world. The merchant, banker, lawyer, doctor and farmer right in your town will buy an Amberola if you will show them this wonderful Phonograph. It is $80.00 cheaper than any one instrument by the use of records.
If you will send us your testimonial the size of a Dealer, but just place your order with us today, NOW! It will advertise your place of business enough to pay for the Amberola.

With pleasure and at your service,
SMITH'S PHONOGRAPH CO.
Oklahoma City, Okla.

The above letter is a concise, intelligent statement of the facts of the Amberola situation.

THE DEALER WHO HAS NOT SOLD AN AMBEROLA IS THE DEALER WHO HAS NOT TRIED, AND THE DEALER WHO WILL NOT ORDER AN AMBEROLA AND PLACE IT ON HIS FLOOR WHERE IT CAN BE SEEN AND HEARD IN ALL LIKELIHOOD NEVER WILL SELL ONE.

There is no town so small that it does not boast of a single family or individual who can afford to purchase an Amberola. In the June MONTHLY we recited the experience of a Dealer in a town of 700 who had sold three and was not satisfied that the field was fully covered.

That Dealer succeeded because he had the courage to take a chance, and his success will not stop there for the very same reason. He proved conclusively that the people in the big cities are no more able or willing to pay the price than the people in the small towns and villages.

The statement that the Amberola is an easier selling proposition than a lower-priced instrument is also true for the very reason given. It should be supplemented, however, with the additional statement that the Amberola is its own salesman if given a chance. No other sound-reproducing instrument on the market can compare with it in grace and beauty of design, in magnificence of tonal quality and wealth of detail, or in elegance of style and finish. It is easily and by common consent the peer of all instruments of its kind, and constitutes an irresistible appeal to a prospective purchaser of a high-priced Phonograph.

IT MUST BE SEEN, HOWEVER, TO BE APPRECIATED. How ridiculous it is to expect that a man who intends to invest $200 in a Phonograph will be convinced through the medium of literature. He may be interested by the literature and impressed, but he will scarcely part with his money before he is shown. There is only one way to show him, and that's by a demonstration.

Mr. Dealer, there are "prospects" for a Phonograph on the order of the Amberola in your neighborhood, we don't care where you are located. Some day some one will tell them some high-priced machine. Why don't you look them up, order an Amberola and demonstrate it to them before that "someone" invades your territory?

Amberola Almost Human

Grand Opera at Home Without Mechanical Sound Grating on Your Nerves

Under the above heading the Evening News of Cape Girardeau, Mo, published without solicitation the following tribute to the Amberola, for the clipping of which we are indebted to The Excelsior Co., Edison Dealers of that place.

"Any one who claims to be a lover of Grand Opera should not miss the opportunity afforded to hear the favorite selections sung by the most renowned of the world's greatest signers at the Excelsior Music store on Broadway. William Vedder has a new instrument called the Amberola that certainly comes nearer to giving a perfect reproduction of the human voice than any instrument heretofore placed on the market. It is not an ordinary talking machine but a large piece of furniture that has no appearance of a graphophone. In its production one is able to discern the most delicate quivers and melodious tones of the voice. It has completely done away with the old time brassy twang and harsh grating noise and adds one more item to the already large list of indebtedness to that great benefactor of mankind, Edison the inventor."

Edison Phonographs are the "Leaders of the World," and the Amberola is the leader of the Edison line. It is the most perfect instrument mechanically, as well as the most handsomely appointed, that has ever left the Edison factory, —surely a strong endorsement of its quality.

Don't Neglect the "Follow-Ups"

Are you on our "Refer" list? Or are you one of those Dealers whose inattention to the inquiries prompted by our advertising and referred to them to handle has resulted in their being placed on our "Don't Refer" list?

There are some names on the latter list, of course, just as there are indifferent business men in every branch of commercial life—they go to preserve the balance of the universal scheme apparently—but happily and to the credit of the Edison Dealers their number is comparatively few indeed. We are glad to say that almost all of our Dealers co-operate with us very nicely in our "Follow-up" system of landing the many "prospects" stirred up by the factory advertising.

Sometimes both their patience and our own are severely taxed, but they generally stick to the proposition with commendable persistence until either the "prospect" is landed or the inquiry dismissed. It isn't always a case of winning out, either, although we are successful in the great majority of instances. An occasional failure is to be expected, however, and shouldn't discourage us from future attempts. We can't win all the time.

They're all worth sticking to, these referred inquiries, and in no case should they be dismissed until there is absolutely no possibility of effecting a sale. Sometimes, of course, they turn out to be from curious idlers, but such cases are very rare. They are really the exceptions that prove the rule. The average man who takes the trouble to write the factory to enquire about sales conditions or Phonograph literature does not do so from an idle motive. He is either unaware of the location of an Edison Dealer or he overlooks the fact that we have such representatives. In nine out of ten cases he is interested in the product and will buy, all things being equal.

Our particular purpose in this article is to impress that fact upon the Dealer,—to remind him of the necessity of patience and persistence in handling these "follow-ups." We have frequently seen cases where Dealers have landed customers three and four months after the original inquiry was referred to them and after the prospective customer had apparently lost all interest in the matter. You can never tell what may turn up to influence the sale. Stick to it until we call "quits," which will not be while there is a chance in a thousand left to swing the sale.

Amberola Recital

Following is the program used at their first Amberola recital by J. H. Barney & Co., the progressive Edison Dealers of Newport, R. I. The program and ticket of invitation to the affair were very artistically printed, a cut of the Amberola appearing on the first page of the former.

Messrs. Barney & Co. are more than pleased with the immediate and possible future results of these recitals, the first of which was the means of stimulating their Record sales and of creating renewed interest in Edison products. A flattering write-up of the initial recital appeared in the columns of the Newport Daily News, with complimentary remarks on the quality of the Amberola reproduction and the excellent accommodations provided by the Company for the entertainment of their guests.

The program is particularly well balanced, and we suggest it for the consideration of Dealers who are planning a similar affair:

Selling the Goods

YOUV'E already heard of the Dealer in the West who sold forty-five Machines in three months by the home-demonstration-free-trial-installation method. Now comes the Dealer in the East (we print his photo in this issue) who follows the same method. When he first started he used a horse and wagon for the purpose. He now owns an automobile, and in it carries his demonstrating and trial machines as well as the monthly lists of Records to two hundred and fifty active Record customers!

Looks as if there is something in this home-demonstration-free-trial-installation scheme, doesn't it? Why don't you give it a trial, Mr. Dealer? The weather is fine—will be for at least three months to come. You can do a tremendous business in that time if you follow up the scheme patiently and assiduously. You never had as good prospects of landing new customers before, for you have never been given as attractive an inducement to hold out to them as the Promotion Bonus. Neither have you ever had as grand an opportunity of reviving the interest of old customers as you now have with the Attachment Proposition. You can offer your old customers ten splendid Records for practically nothing, and right on top of that you can present them with six more for nothing more than a recommendation on their part,—a recommendation, however, that sells for you a machine and brings you a new customer and salesman. And all these customers, old and new, become your friends and salesmen, maintaining their own interest and exciting the interest of the entire community in you and your goods.

It's a great scheme,—a grand, golden opportunity to swell your profits. Don't spoil it by following antediluvian methods in its exploitation. Go after the old and new customers by means of the most logical and successful method of selling goods. You can't go wrong on that method. There are no "ifs" or "buts" attached to it.

Get a horse,—buy one if you can afford it, hire one if you can't buy—and take the road with a demonstrating outfit, some Machines, Attachments, special and regularly listed Records. You will never regret having done it, for it will bring you both health and wealth.

Look over your stock now and make a note of everything you are shy on. Then place an order at once with your Jobber for it. Don't wait, don't delay, and above all don't practice false economy in your order! If you are going to do anything at all with the Promotion Plan you want a complete stock of Phonographs, Attachments and Amberol Records to meet the demand you are going to create.

Order your stock early and give your Jobber and the factory a chance. Don't procrastinate because this is the month of August and it's hot, and vacations are not all over, and a lot of other things. Your order, placed now, may not reach you for some little time to come. The wise Dealer is he who will anticipate the effect of the Promotion Plan by laying in a good stock now of everything he needs, and in the meantime will not lose a minute in firing the gun that will start that stock moving.

Catch the spirit of the Promotion Plan and prepare your campaign at once. Show your good general-ship by first seeing that your equipment is absolutely perfect and your resources not limited. Do your ordering TO-DAY—NOW—and the first important step will be taken care of.

Do you see that your clerks call the attention of customers to the splendid talent we are securing for our Records? And are they familiar with each selection and the work of the artists who makes the Record?

For instance, could they bring out Amberol No. 467, "Savannah," and say to a customer: "Here's a swell 'coon' song by Stella Mayhew. You remember, of course, that Miss Mayhew was the bright, particular 'star' of 'The Jolly Bachelors,' the big musical comedy that scored such a phenomenal success in New York last season. The members of the cast were all 'stars' in their particular lines, but Miss Mayhew easily carried off the honors. The song was written by her husband, Billie Taylor, who was a member of the same production. You can't hear Miss Mayhew on any but Edison Records. She is under exclusive contract for them."

Don't you think a little talk like that will interest the customer? Of course it will, and it will bring sales, too. Your clerks can easily absorb that information by a little close attention to the descriptions of the Records in the MONTHLY. See that they read them, and the rest of the MONTHLY, too, while they are at it.

Now is the time to make your windows work for you. From now on you ought summon all the ingenuity that lies in you to arrange attractive displays of Machines and Accessories and write catchy window cards. You are not lacking inspiration. The two Propositions offer unlimited suggestions for the writing of cards that will arrest the attention of the passers-by,—cards in bold, striking phrase, as for instance:

We Want To Present You with

Six Special Edison Amberol Records

ASK US WHY

FREE!!

To an Edison Phonograph Owner

Six Special Edison Amberol Records

LET US TELL YOU ABOUT IT

Your concerts have a multiplied significance now. You ought to give them more frequently than ever before. Advertise them in connection with an announcement of the Promotion Plan and Attachment Proposition. Tell the public, and the owners of unamberolized machines particularly, what you have to offer them, and invite them to your store to hear the Records played. Do this at once. The evenings are pleasant and you will have no trouble in attracting a good crowd at any time.

And be sure to have the Attachment and Promotion literature, as well as some of the latest Supplements and form 1790, "There's an Edison Phonograph for Every Pocketbook," ready for distribution after you have explained the two Propositions.

Do you push the Special Amberol Masonic Records? Don't lose sight of them. Keep them and the Amberols before your local Masonic lodge. They fit into the lodge-room scheme most happily, and you can convince the lodge members of the fact if you keep pounding at it.

The Jobbers' Convention

The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, held at Atlantic City July 5, 6 and 7, passed into history as the most successful in the light of results accomplished and from a social standpoint in the history of that organization. Many of the Jobbers were accompanied to the famous resort by their wives and families, which of course contributed to the social side of the gathering.

There were in attendance 178 representatives from 85 houses in the trade, besides a liberal sprinkling of officials and departmental heads from the two big factories, as well as representatives of incidental branches of the industry.

The sessions were held in the afternoons, the mornings being spent in the surf or in enjoying a sail on the ocean, while in the evenings dancing on the piers was the popular attraction, although the other diversions of the resort were not neglected.

A splendid tribute to the efficient administration of the past year was paid in re-electing its officers to their respective positions. The officers for 1911, therefore, are as follows:

Perry B. Whitsit, of the P. B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, O., president; J. N. Blackman, of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York City, vice-president; J. C. Roush, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburg, Pa., secretary; Louis Buehn, of Louis Buehn & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer.

The secretary's report gave the present membership as 117, a gain during the year of one member. To the efforts of the indefatigable secretary, incidentally, can be attributed the splendid arrangement and management of the many details of the convention.

Thursday, the final day of the convention, was the most important. In the morning a game of baseball was played between teams representing the East and the West. After a close and exciting game the West won by a score of 9-8. Moving pictures of various plays were taken by an expert from the Edison Manufacturing Co., and were very successful, one in which the players "mobbed" Umpire Dolbeer because of a questionable decision coming out to perfection.

In the afternoon an open meeting was held at which President Frank L. Dyer, Advertising Manager L. C. McChesney and Sales Manager F. K. Dolbeer addressed the delegates, the latter defining at length the company's position on several matters of importance, the principal of which was the recent modification of the Continuous Tenure Proposition. His explanation of the reasons which prompted the revocation of the former Proposition was received with much satisfaction by the delegates, while his promise that the present substitute is only temporary and is to be succeeded by a plan which will receive the approbation of all members of the trade provoked long continued applause.

At the evening's banquet the festivities were opened with a rising toast to Thomas A. Edison, from whom a letter was read regretting his inability to be present. A letter of regret was also read from General Manager Carl H. Wilson. President Dyer addressed the banqueters on the subject of "The Undesirable Dealer," in the course of his remarks advocating the elimination of the petty, half-hearted Dealer whose stock is barely sufficient to entitle him to the Dealer's discount. He also pledged the Company's support in ridding the business of the "dead-beat" Dealer, stating that in case of a complaint by a Jobber against a Dealer for not paying his account for Edison goods, when the complaint is concurred in by the other Jobbers through whom the same Dealer is signed, the Company will remove the Dealer from the Dealers' list if satisfied as to the correctness of the facts.

On Friday the conventionists visited the Victor plant at Camden, and on Saturday morning they came to Orange as guests of the National Phonograph Company. At the factory they were received in Mr. Edison's laboratory, where they were entertained with the reproduction of the full series of moving pictures taken at Atlantic City and a selected number of films from the regular catalog. The visitors were greatly interested in the filming of themselves and friends in the Boardwalk parade and also in the various exciting events of the ball game. At the close of the entertainment Mr. Edison held a reception at the door of the laboratory, after which the guests were taken in automobiles to the Essex County Country Club where they were the guests of the Company at luncheon. A standing toast was drunk to Mr. Edison, who sent to President Dyer at the head of the table. Saturday being a half-holiday at the plant it was impossible to inspect it under working conditions, which was not a great disappointment as the majority had been accorded that privilege on previous occasions.

Those present at the luncheon were:

Mr. and Mrs. Perry B. Whitsit, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Blackman, New York City; J. C. Roush and C. N. Roush, Standard Talking Machine Company, Pittsburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McGreal, Milwaukee, Wis.; Miss Gannon, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Burton J. Pierce, J. F. J.; Miss Strasburger, Bamberger Co., New York City; N. Goldinger, Siegel Cooper Co., New York City; George Blackmas and R. B. Caldwell, Blackmas Talking Machine Co., New York. And the following representing the Edison factory: Messrs. Thomas A. Edison, F. L. Dyer, C. H. Wilson, F. K. Dolbeer, G. F. Goodwin, J. Berggren, E. H. Hatfield, L. C. McChesney, Jos. Bloxsome, W. H. Barrell, Jr., C. H. Stuart, Walter C. H. Gaskell, W. H. Baker, E. L. Aiken, F. Weber, D. Holden, C. Schiff, J. Niemster, W. Nehr, J. Lang, W. Hicks, L. Ott, W. H. Miller, J. W. Aylesworth and J. Y. Rogers.

Convention Nonsense

Contributed by F. E. Madison.

A PATHETIC SCENE.

Judge Bowers: "Your petition for pardon has been set aside."

Trusty Roush: "But, your Honor, I——"

Judge Bowers: "Stop! Just for being strenuous you will do another year at the Air Furnace."

Trusty Roush: "Please, your Honor,——"

Hoh! "Back to the Furnace." Roush exit 'in! Bing! Bang!! Bing!!! Another year!"

Foolish Question: Did you bring Mrs. So and So with you?

Wise Answer: No! Would I pay a conductor's carfare or take a ham sandwich to a banquet?

The Chaffonte is a fine place, but oh you regular places!

Dignity—Atlantic City—is! Not when Colonel Bill Bowers and the other "Ears" don those foolish caps.

Treatment for rheumatism, suffered from monkey-hydrophobia, was dragged from a state of coma by liberal absorption of Rock Rye Air Tablets, made Old Vienna on crutches, and after twenty-four hours of Convention Treatment—in the sea with the crutches, and I became almost human!"

That bet on the ball game wasn't the only bet Max lost.

The new hair fibre case was in evidence. Got one?

The "Mellins Food Kid"—Ridgeway.

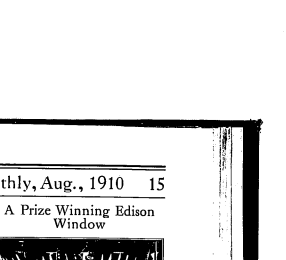
Which would you rather do, take a trip to Egypt the East or bet even money against the West? Ask Landay.

It was worth the price of admission to see that "CROWD" speeding toward first base when Hoffit gave the Milwaukee baseball magnate a free ticker.

It was probably the size of his "assets" that saved Dolbeer from the mob's violence.

What grudge could Wilwell have had against Andrews? Their gardens are far apart. There was some speed to that ball.

With a "Storck" around all the time, why shouldn't the Eastern Dealers' Association increase its membership?



Did you see Whitsit pushing that roller chair? Practising, eh, Perry?

A million roller chairs somewhere but none to be had—too early. Wouldn't that make your wait!

High water mark was reached the day that Dolbeer, McGreal and others rode the "Bright Spot"). Shaw, Swanson, Goodwin, Aston, "Scotty," Taft, and a few other heavies also rode it—one big time.

The Convention was honored with the distinguished presence of Mrs. Taft, who came from Near-Beverly, Mass., the summer Capital.

A Prize Winning Edison Window

M. W. Waitt & Co., Ltd., Edison Jobbers at Vancouver, B. C., took first prize in class D in window exhibits during the horse show held in that city in April with the window arrangement illustrated in the above cut.

It was an Edison window throughout, original and clever, the credit for which belongs to Mr. J. W. Bruce, the capable manager of that enterprising firm. The main object in the window represented a little girl driving at the show, and with a background of horse-show colors it was set off to excellent advantage. The body of the horse was a Phonograph cabinet, and its legs were constructed of Amberol Record cartons. A large Record box was used for the body of the rig, while Phonograph horns composed the wheels and music rolls the shafts. A life-sized doll occupied the seat. Window cards deftly arranged about the window proclaimed that Edison goods always take the lead and hold it.

It proved to be one of the most attractive displays ever seen in Vancouver, and was viewed by throngs of people. The Waitt Co., in addition to winning the first prize of $20, realized considerable business from it.

"Where the River Shannon Flows"

The popularity of this pretty song has recently revived. Today it is again being sung, played and whistled everywhere. We would remind the trade that it can be found in the Standard list, Record No. 9344, sung by Harry McDonough, tenor. It is a splendid Record, and we recommend that it be advertised now while the song is again enjoying vogue.

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for October, 1910

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before September 20th, 1910, all things being favourable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on September 21st. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated, or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on September 24th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after September 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before September 24th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 8 A. M. on September 23rd, for delivery on the morning of the 24th. Jobbers are required to place orders for October Records on or before August 15th. Dealers should place October orders with Jobbers before September 15th to insure prompt shipment unless Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

40027 Andrea Chenier—La mamma morta (Giordano) Sung in Italian.
Orchestra accompaniment. Carmen Melis

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

Some of the numbers of Andrea Chenier in pathos and depiction of the different human emotions are perhaps the most beautiful of modern music expressions. In this number Maddelena, called before Girard, a former servant in her home, who has come into power by the revolution, tells her sad tale of eviction, the ruin of her home, and finally of her illness, when Bersi, her companion and friend, made the greatest personal sacrifices to keep them from starvation. At the point of desperation and on the brink of suicide, Maddelena then meets Andrea, now condemned to death, and the recital of her woes, followed by her impassioned avowal of the love which again bade her live and hope is the strongest part of this aria. Madame Melis is ideal in the rendering of this music.

40028 Faust—Cavatina, Salut! demeure (Gounod) Sung in French.
Orchestra accompaniment Karl Jörn

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

Nothing in music anywhere has quite taken in its true application or its rare beauty so deep a hold on the musical public as this exquisite aria from Faust, where he greets Marguerite's dwelling; and wherever Faust is known, there too, this number has exercised its fascination, for in sweetness and melody it reigns perhaps supreme. Mr. Jörn puts into his execution all the dreamy tenderness and sweetness of poetry of an ideal lover.

40029 Gioconda—Voce di donna (Ponchielli) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment. Marie Delna

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

La Gioconda was a singer of ballads in Venice some three hundred years ago. She was a handsome woman, and one of many interesting people, as presented by Ponchielli in this opera. Love and intrigue and tragedy seem part of the atmosphere of romantic old Venice. There is Cieca, the blind mother of La Gioconda, Laura, the wife of an Inquisitor, the Inquisitor himself, a spy in the service of the Inquisition, monks and masqueraders. The music is well suited to the tale. The populace is about to kill La Cieca for a witch, when she is saved by Laura, and in gratitude gives her a rosary which later saves Laura from death. La Cieca, her heart swelling with emotion, expresses all her feeling in this song. As sung by Madame Delna, her voice pulsing with the warmth of sunny Italy, the stormy scene rises before us, the turbulence fills our ears, and we are not of the 20th, but of the 17th century.

40030 Pescatori di Perle—Aria (Romanza) (Bizet) Sung in Italian.
Orchestra accompaniment. Giovanni Polese

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

This baritone number, which so deeply conveys anguish, regret and remorse, is a musical masterpiece. Zurga, the captain of the tribe, who has condemned his boyhood friend Nadir, and with him Leila, the priestess of good fortune, to death for their passion, although no longer and is trying to devise means to annul his rash action. Freighted with all the human emotions, this aria never fails of its deep effect, and when sung with such consummate art as by Mr. Polese, it becomes one of the most touching and appealing numbers ever put on a Record.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

30029 Favorita—Una vergine (Donizetti) Sung in Italian. Orchestra accompaniment. Florencio Constantino

LIST: U. S., $1.00; CANADA, $1.25

La Favorita is one of the romantic operas which go back to the middle ages for a setting. Scribe's libretto and Donizetti's music together make a moving drama which after seventy years upon the stage, is still in the repertoire of the tenor of to-day. Constantino sings Una Vergine with all the fervor and feeling of a warm-hearted man, denied for years the companionship of woman, and madly in love.

Amberol Record by Sarah Bernhardt

35007 L'Aiglon—La Plaine de Wagram (Edward Rostand) In French Sarah Bernhardt

LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.00

The scene selected is the moving monologue of the pathetic young Duc de Reichstadt, upon the tragic battlefield of Wagram, where before the sensitive eye and ear of his spirit is reenacted in spectral conflict the fierce combat commanded years before by Napoleon Bonaparte, his father. L'Aiglon (the Eaglet) offers himself an expiatory sacrifice to the spirits of the dead and dying, whose shadows people the purple night but flee before the golden dawn. The pliant, inimitable voice of Madame Bernhardt thrills with poetic exaltation this climax of Rostand's drama. Nothing ever done by the divine Sarah is finer, or more worthy of reproduction. It is fraught with fire and pathos. Most actors depend largely upon facial expression and bodily gesture to carry over the footlights the vividness of dramatic presentation. But from the time of her first examination before the formidable censors of the Paris Conservatoire, at the age of fifteen, she has been Sarah of the Golden Voice. That voice opened the door of the Comédie Française to the child, and has since spurred the doors of the world's theatres. Her life has been one of dramatic triumph, beginning with the night when Victor Hugo knelt at her young feet and kissed her hands. Mme. Bernhardt, being under exclusive contract with the National Phonograph Company, makes Records for no other Company.

Edison Amberol Records for October, 1910

LIST: U. S., 80c; CANADA, 65c.

520 Medley Overture—Haviland's Song Hits Edison Concert Band

A lively and entertaining medley of the following principal hits of the past season published by the well-known F. B. Haviland Company of New York: "Down in Sunshine Alley, Sally", (Amberol Record No. 537); "Swanee Babe" (Standard No. 10262); "Let's Go Back to Baby Days"; "Oh! You Lovin' Gal", (Standard No. 10216); "Bahoos Bungalow", (Standard No. 10250); "Take Me on a Honeymoon", and "I Want a Girl from a Yankee Doodle Town."

521 Boy O' Mine Frank C. Stanley

A sentimental song, leaning towards the pathetic. Mr. Stanley's rich voice, with its sympathetic touch, and his unusually clear enunciation make of this selection a Record which will not be surpassed in a long time. A fond parent sings of the earlier years of his life with their worldly pleasures, and compares them to the change wrought by "that dear little boy o' mine." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Louis Weslyn; music, Ernest R. Ball; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

522 When the Daisies Bloom Miss Barbour and Mr. Anthony

Soprano and tenor duet. This song was written by the composer of "Sweet Bunch of Daisies", (Standard No. 10302). The air is pretty and winsome, and the voices of the singers blend in delightful harmony. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Anita Owen; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

523 Jere Sanford's Yodling and Whistling Specialty Jere Sanford

Jere Sanford is a well-known vaudeville artist who makes his bow for the first time to the Edison public. Beginning with a whistling solo, there follow in alternation "Roll on Silvery Moon", a yodle, and whistling solos with variations of patriotic selections, concluding with another yodle. Novel and very entertaining. This Record ought to prove a heavy seller. Orchestra accompaniment.

524 Cupid's Appeal Charles Daab

A bells solo—the first in our Amberol list—by an artist whose ability needs no words of commendation, because of the excellent xylophone solo he has already contributed to our catalogue. Records by the bells have always been among our best sellers in the Standard list. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, H. Engelmann; publishers, Brehm Bros., Erie, Pa.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

525 Auld Lang Syne — Marie Narelle

Soprano solo. Truly a beautiful Record. Miss Narelle sings the number with fine expression, combining with a voice of resplendent beauty a vocal method which evidences her thorough artistic sense and training. In her rendition she employs a genuine Scotch accent which adds greatly to the effect. Dealers should not forget to advertise that Miss Narelle can be heard on none but Edison Records. Orchestra accompaniment.

526 Fading, Still Fading — Knickerbocker Quartet

A sacred Record of surpassing beauty. The hymn is a well-known and inspiring number, sung most reverently and impressively. A fine organ accompaniment emphasizes the odor of sanctity which hovers about this number.

527 Humorous Transcriptions on a German Folk-Song — Victor Herbert and his Orchestra

In this composition Siegfried Ochs, a well-known German composer and conductor of the Philharmonic Chorus in Berlin, has accomplished a humorous musical feat, which is universally recognized as one of the most original conceptions ever produced. Taking the simple German Folk-Song " S Kommt ein Vogel Geflogen" ("There Comes a Birdy A-flying"), as a theme, this composer by unique and novel orchestration and in a humorous vein portrays the style and mannerisms of the old and modern masters of composition, thereby offering an interesting study in contrast. This Record introduces five of his finest and funniest skits, namely: In the style of Strauss; in the style of Verdi; in the style of Gounod; in the style of Wagner, and Finale, in the style of a Military March. Victor Herbert and his famous orchestra play only for Edison Records.

528 Gee! But There's Class to a Girl Like You — Manuel Romain

Sentimental. In characteristic phrase a rough and ready young chap, who suddenly discovers that "there's a girl in the world for us all", waxes eloquent in his plea for her promise. The song is framed in a dainty musical setting which swings to a pretty waltz air in the chorus, and the popular minstrel tenor sings it most artistically, with just the proper shade of feeling. Mr. Romain should also be advertised as singing exclusively for Edison Records. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, W. R. Williams; publisher, Will Rossiter, Chicago.

529 "Mamma's Boy"—Descriptive — Len Spencer and Company

ILLUSTRATED SONG IDEA

CAST OF CHARACTERS—(1ST SCENE)

Mamma's Boy.....Myrtle Spencer
His Mother.....Ada Jones
Mickey Finn.....Clarence Rockefeller

SCENE—Boys in street playing soldiers. "Mamma's Boy" proposes the game, and wants to be Captain. Mickey Finn doesn't allow him to play, dangles at his long curls and velvet pants and calls him a "Mamma's Boy." Mamma's Boy's mother comes on and wants to know what the trouble is. Mamma's Boy sobbingly tells her of his trouble. His mother then sings the chorus of the song "Mamma's Boy,"—"Don't you mind what they call you darling, etc."

CAST OF CHARACTERS—(2ND SCENE)

30 years later

The Captain (formerly "Mamma's Boy").....Len Spencer
The Sergeant (formerly Mickey Finn).....Steve Porter
Soldiers.....Premier Quartet
Buglers, Musicians, etc.

SCENE—After the battle, return of reconnoitering squad reporting to Captain. Captain congratulates men on glorious victory, and gives all credit to Captain. Captain refers to order from General to sail for home within a week. Sergeant tells Captain and himself being soldiers thirty years. Captain recognizes Sergeant as Mickey Finn, playmate of long ago. The Captain acknowledges, good naturedly, that he was called "Mamma's Boy." Soldiers join in singing chorus of song, and Taps and good-nights clear the Record, which was arranged entirely by Len Spencer.

530 Kerry Mills' Nantucket — New York Military Band

The "Nantucket" is a combination march and two-step very much in vogue at society functions, and particularly popular with the younger set. It is also known on occasions as the "Paul Jones." March music is generally used for the dance, but here the versatile Kerry Mills gives us a selection especially for it, and naturally, therefore, the number is recorded at proper dance tempo. An incidental bells solo adds attractiveness to the Record. Published by F. A. Mills, New York City.

531 Come Be My Sunshine, Dearie — Billy Murray and Chorus

Sentimental in theme but breezy and tuneful, swinging to a march tempo in the chorus. The type of song that was made to order for Billy Murray. He has the assistance of a capable male chorus in the repetition of the refrain, the second repetition being sung in subdued tones, an arrangement which has found great favor with the Edison public. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, John B. Gardner; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

532 Hope Beyond — Anthony and Harrison

Sacred. An exceptional Record of its kind whose appeal will extend far beyond the circle of lovers of the devotional type of Records. The selection is sung in two solos and duets, and these two specialists have fairly outdone themselves in the rendition. This Record will be a big seller. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, C. A. White; publishers, White-Smith, New York City.

533 Just for a Girl — Edward M. Favor

A waltz air, linked with clever words telling in a humorous vein of the things which man does and causes to be done "just for a girl." If the number had been written expressly for Mr. Favor it couldn't have appeared more suitable to his style. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ernest R. Ball; words, Ren Shields; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

534 You Are the Ideal of My Dreams — W. H. Thompson

A baritone solo. A popular love ballad of more than ordinary poetic merit wedded to a most appealing melody. This song is not of the evanescent type; its popularity, only now beginning, may be expected to continue indefinitely, for the number is far superior in every respect to the majority of sentimental compositions. Mr. Thompson's rich baritone voice and expressive style of singing complete the attractiveness of the Record. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

535 Mandy, How Do You Do? — Ada Jones and Billy Murray and Chorus

A conversational duet of a very popular "coon" song, whose rhythmic melody is delightfully fascinating. This is the type of song that Ada Jones and Billy Murray revel in, and is likewise the type that the Phonograph public seems never to tire of. The diorities are given effective support in the repetition of each refrain by a chorus of male voices, well balanced and harmonized. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

536 The Premier Polka — Arthur S. Witcomb

A cornet solo by a member of the United States Marine Band which furnishes the accompaniment for this Record. Mr. Witcomb has already contributed one number to our list. Its reception by the Edison public was very flattering. This polka is spirited and lively, offering Mr. Witcomb a splendid opportunity to display his polished technique. Composer, Edward Llewellyn; publishers, The Dixie Music House, Chicago, Ill.

537 When the Robins Nest Again — Will Oakland and Chorus

An old-time favorite in a new setting. This is among the number of popular melodies of other days revived by the favorite counter-tenor during the past season. There are very few who do not know this captivating waltz song or will not recognize it when they hear it, and fewer still who will not want it in their collection. Words and music, Frank Howard.

538 Trip to the County Fair — Premier Quartet

Our male quartet in another one of those descriptive Records, with song, comedy and novel effects introduced, that are always popular with the public. After a song and some jokes the train pulls in at the station, the crowd boards it, and they're off to the fair. There isn't a dull moment from that time on. After being properly introduced by the "barkers" to the Rubber-neck Man, the Strong Man, the Punch and Judy show and a few more familiar attractions at County Fairs, each of which is the subject of a lot of funny comments and chaffing, they are entertained by "Hanukiyah to de Lam'" by the Georgia Jubilee Singers. This concludes the Record which will be found to be bright and entertaining all the way through.

539 Temptation Rag — New York Military Band

The most popular "rag" of the day. The apt title of this popular piece is "Temptation Rag" and the chief temptation voiced by the music is to hear it just as often as possible. It is full of fine melody and the snap of "rag" rhythm. A rarely fascinating band Record. Composer, Henry Lodge; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

Edison Standard Records for October, 1910

LIST: U. S., 35c; CANADA, 40c.

10426 Strenuous Life March — United States Marine Band

A brisk, lively air of good tone and volume. To attempt to praise the work of this famous organization would be an unnecessary waste of valuable space. Their reputation is an accepted guarantee of their Records. Composer, J. G. Boehme.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10427 Sweet Italian Love — Billy Murray

Mr. Murray's Italian dialect in this Record is inimitable. It appears from the words of this selection that Italian love differs from other kinds in that "you don't need the moon-a-light your love to tell her, in da house or on da roof or in da cellar." A swingy air that will "catch on" quickly. Orchestra accompaniment. Music, Ted Snyder; words, Irving Berlin; publishers, The Ted Snyder Co., New York City.

10428 The Bright Forever — Edison[Mixed Quartet

A gem of composition, melody and rendition. Sung without accompaniment so as not to detract from the harmony of the voices. Words, Fanny J. Crosby; music, Hubert P. Main.

10429 I've Got the Time, I've Got the Place — Byron G. Harlan

"Rube" song. Despite the fact that this "Rube" has the time and the place he doesn't seem to be able to get the girl. A good song, a pleasing air and a capital rendition. Mr. Harlan's "Rube" dialect is excellent and free from burlesque. A Record that will sell away up in the list. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bansard Macdonald; music, S. R. Henry; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10430 Cameo Polka — Charles Daab

Mr. Daab is recognized as one of the best, if indeed he is not the very best, of the xlyophone artists in this country. The recording is excellent, the tones of the instrument being reproduced with a marvellous fidelity. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, D. Müller; publisher, Carl Fisher, New York City.

10431 I'll Await My Love — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo. There may be some among the younger generation of Phonograph owners who do not recognize this deservedly popular old sentimental ballad, but it is safe to say that the "old timers" will recall with pleasure the lassie's tuneful pledge to her sailor lad at parting. A Record that will appeal to young and old and will revive the popularity of the song. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Frank Howard.

10432 Yucatana Man — Collins and Harlan

March song. This is the vocal arrangement of S. R. Henry's latest and popular march, "Down in Yucatan." It has an unusually swingy, attractive air which has won it great popularity. One of the best Collins and Harlan duets lieed in a long time. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Monroe H. Rosenfeld; music, S. R. Henry; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10433 Play That Barber Shop Chord — Edward Meeker

A coon song, original, catchy and very popular. "Chocolate Sadie's" infatuation for the "Barber Shop Chord" played by "Bill Jefferson Lord," the dunky pianist in a rathskeller, furnishes the theme of the number, which is sung by Mr. Meeker with ease, skill and perfect enunciation. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Wm. Tracy; music, Lewis F. Muir; publishers, J. Fred Helf Co., New York City.

10434 The Mocking Bird — Roxy P. La Rocca

Harp solo. An old, familiar friend in a new musical garb, embellished with variations that add to its attractiveness without obscuring the original theme. Mr. La Rocca is a skilled performer and the recording is of corresponding excellence. Composer Winner—LaRocca.

10435 Oft in the Stilly Night — Knickerbocker Quartet

Thomas Moore's familiar poem in a wonderfully beautiful musical setting. The arrangement is original and varied, featuring each voice in turn. One of those selections which prove the Phonograph a real educator and a comfort in its offering of the best to be had in the world of music. Sung without accompaniment.

Your Ideas and Experiences, Please

In the May MONTHLY we asked the trade to send us their opinions on the publication—whether in its present form it met their approval and, if not, in what respect it might be improved upon. This we asked for the purpose of making the MONTHLY as attractive and useful to the trade as possible, expecting from the suggestions and criticisms of the many to build a house publication that would be ideal in every respect for the Edison trade.

With a single exception, the letters were complimentary in tone and remarkably free from criticism or suggestion, indicating that the trade is satisfied with the present form and policies of the MONTHLY. This is gratifying, of course, but we still feel that there must be features that could be improved upon and want the trade to consider themselves at all times at liberty to offer criticism or suggestion. Either or both will be gladly entertained.

Another thing—we particularly urge Dealers to write us if they have discovered a new, ingenious or unusually successful method of selling the line. We want our Dealers to co-operate to the extent of exchanging ideas and detailing sales methods through the MONTHLY. It will work out for the common benefit of all, for no one man has cornered the market on ideas; and what the fellow in California may have to relate may very easily be that which you have overlooked.

Catch the idea? We trust you will act upon the suggestion.

Vol. VIII. SEPTEMBER, 1910 No. 9

Necessities of the Moment—Confidence and Preparation

This is a time for serious thought and vigorous action on the part of every Edison Dealer. We have now arrived at the opening of the Fall season. Vacations are over, the distracting hot weather is but a memory, and everybody in the business world is back at his post imbued with one absorbing thought,—to get all that is coming to him from the Fall and Holiday trade, and just as much more as he can lay his hands on.

The Edison Dealer who would get his share of that trade must be fortified now with a complete stock. That stock must consist not only of a full line of Edison goods, but a full measure of confidence,—confidence in the Edison line, confidence in the factory, confidence in the public and confidence in himself. If he handicaps himself by the absence of any one of these essentials his measure of success will not—can not—be filled.

It isn't necessary to preach confidence to the "live" Dealer. He realizes that standing behind him is an immense organization, always busy devising new features and planning new methods and schemes to make the line more attractive and salable. He knows that his interests are the first consideration of that organization, and he is secure in that knowledge. He knows that the Edison line has never been so enticing—that it has never offered so many inducements to the purchaser—as at the present moment, and he also knows that Phonographs have never stood so high in popular favor as they do now. He is further encouraged by the fact that the Fall and Winter trade, judging from the most conservative reports, promises to be unusually good this year. All of which will inspire him with a fresh supply of confidence, and after preparing himself for the campaign he will plunge fearlessly and aggressively into it,—and will win as he always does.

He will win because he is prepared and has confidence. That's the secret of success, Mr. Dealer, at all times, and this is the time of the year when the fact must be driven home to you.

You want your share of the Fall and Holiday trade, Mr. Dealer, and you can command it if you are equipped with a full line of Edison goods and a full measure of confidence.

Why You Ought To Sell Amberolas—and Why You Can

For everything under the sun there's a reason; for some things more than one. For instance, there are several good reasons why you ought to exert every effort to sell Amberolas, and there are other equally good reasons why you can sell them.

The fact that there's an immediate profit of $80.00 in the sale of every Amberola you make is not the only reason why you ought to try to sell the instrument. In the first place there's your duty to us as manufacturers who have gone to the enormous expense of experimenting with, designing, producing and marketing the instrument, and of advertising it so as to create a demand right in your own locality. There is also to be considered the handsome profit on steady Record sales,—steady because who would invest $200.00 in a musical instrument and permit it to fall into disuse? Then there's the prestige which the sale of such an instrument will give you—isn't that worth while? And the advertising,—is that to be sneered at? And has it occurred to you that the sale of one Amberola will induce the sale of others? Isn't it perfectly natural when Mrs. B. sees an Amberola in the parlor or music room of Mrs. C. that she will make a mental note of the fact that it is not only a superb musical instrument but a handsome piece of furniture and will want to adorn her own home with one? You don't know feminine nature if you don't think that she will.

There are plenty of other good reasons why you ought to sell Amberolas, but they are probably of less importance than the reasons why you can. Let's summarize a few of the latter for you. Any Edison Dealer can sell Edison Amberolas in his locality—

Because every day the public is awakening to the fact that the Phonograph is the most wonderful and entertaining of all musical instruments;

Because in even the smallest village there are families who can and will purchase a high-class Phonograph if brought face to face with the evidence of its superior entertaining qualities and desirability as an ornament for the home;

Because Thomas A. Edison is the inventor and developer of the Phonograph, and his trade-mark is accepted the world over as a guarantee of originality, enterprise and honest value;

Because the Amberola is the latest as well as the most perfect instrument of its kind that has ever left the Edison Laboratories;

Because it is the simplest thing in the world to demonstrate its mechanical, tonal and artistic superiority over any other sound-reproducing instrument by a practical exapetitive demonstration;

Because—and here is the best and most convincing of all arguments in favor of the Amberola—it gives exactly the right volume of sound for the home, none of its tonal sweetness and naturalness having been sacrificed to gain volume, and

Because, in addition to the above, our persistent magazine and national weekly advertising is constantly creating a demand in every city, town and village for the instrument.

You can hardly get away from these arguments, Mr. Dealer. We think they are strong enough to convince any thinking man that he should and can sell Amberolas. How and where to sell them is a different proposition which each Dealer must discover for himself, for conditions are different in different localities. There is one thing to always keep in mind, however, and that is this,—that any method which will introduce the instrument in practical demonstration to the purchasing public will bring results.

We are going to ask our trade to push the Amberola this fall and winter more vigorously and persistently than ever before. We are now in a position to fill orders promptly, and we want orders. We are going to do our shire with our advertising and we naturally expect every Edison Dealer to co-operate with us in his territory by installing an Amberola in his store and advertising the instrument in every legitimate way. We will lend our Dealers every assistance in the handling of their "prospects," and urge them to call upon us whenever they feel the necessity of any help. A letter from the factory to a "prospect" may be the means—and frequently has—of landing the sale for the Dealer. We will also supply electros for newspaper and special advertising, such as programs for concerts, etc., and also Amberola literature. If any Dealers are without a supply of either of these requisites we ask that they promptly notify us.

Get the Amberola idea in your head and make up your mind that you are going to sell some this season. If you haven't one in stock for demonstrating purposes, send in your order at once and lose no time in getting started on this lucrative feature of your business.

An Amberola in the Heart of a Wild Mining Country

The Sunday Oregonian, of Portland, Oregon, in its issue of July 31, introduces a half-page illustrated article describing the milling and smelting plants of the Washougal Gold and Copper Mining Company, Skamania County, Washington, in the following entertaining fashion:

"A lone prospector, wandering through the rugged hills near the headwaters of turbulent Shirt Creek in lower Skamania County, Washington, a few evenings ago, was startled to hear the soft, sweet strains of Verdi's classic 'Rigoletto' floating on the still twilight air. He paused and listened, for such sounds as these he had never heard in that untraveled region before. Spellbound by the music, he waited a while, then started in the direction from which the sounds seemed to emanate.

"His trained feet and sturdy limbs quickly carried him through the tangled underbrush and jagged rocks that lay between him and the source of the charming notes. Soon he stood at the entrance of a long, airy dining hall brilliantly illuminated with electric incandescent lamps, and a square, upright box whose highly polished sides shone brightly under the glare of the lights, standing in the center of the room. Around it was gathered a group of twenty or more bright-faced, horny-handed miners clad in the picturesque garb of their profession. As soon as they spied him they bade him a hearty welcome.

MUSIC CHEERS WORKERS.

"He was in the camp of the Washougal Gold and Copper Mining Company. The piece of furniture which had arrested his first attention was a mahogany 'Amberola' containing the finest instruments that can be placed in the manufacture of such a machine. This accounted for the music that he had heard far up on the hillside.

"The cheery disposition of the men and the kindly attention that was shown him soon placed him entirely at ease. He began to ask questions.

"'What is the cause of all this?' he inquired.

"For an answer one of the men, with a jerk of his head, indicated a little, smooth-faced, ruddy-cheeked, gray-haired gentleman who stood with his arms folded complacently behind his back, his arms coatless and with his brown telescope hat hanging jauntily on the side of his head in school-boy fashion. His face beamed his delight as he listened to the music. The stranger had not noticed him before.

"'This is Mr. Mabee,' said one of the men who had acted as spokesman. The quiet gentleman stepped forward. He shook the prospector's hand and told him to make himself comfortable. Victuals and drinks were soon placed at his disposal.

"Mr. Mabee, as he soon learned, is president of the Washougal Gold and Copper Mining Company and general manager of its properties. F. A. Mabee is the way his name appears on his checks."

That's the way it appeared on the check tendered to the Graves Music Co., Edison Jobbers of Portland, Oregon, in payment of the Amberola in question.

The sale of this particular instrument was a "rush" transaction. Mr. Mabee wanted an Edison Phonograph and some Records for his men —he wanted the best to be had—he wanted the outfit at once—and he wanted it shipped by express. He got it, just as it was ordered. After landing at the express office it was necessary to haul the goods twenty-five miles up into the mountains, but they finally reached their destination O. K. and are now providing entertainment for the rugged miners in the Washington wilds.

This sale, so entirely unsolicited and unexpected, only goes to prove that there are unrecognized possibilities for the sale of high-priced Phonographs at the door of every Dealer. They will discover themselves to the Dealer who has the confidence and the enterprise to place an Amberola in stock and apprise the public of the fact.

Two Letters from Two Dealers

Two letters recently received in the same mail at the factory were so entirely dissimilar in tone and pointed so clearly to such a radical difference in methods that we are impelled to relate them in substance for the benefit of the trade.

One came from a Dealer in a fair-sized Eastern city,—an old-established Dealer who hasn't yet awakened to the fact that a new order of things prevails in the Phonograph business today. His letter was querulous in tone. He couldn't understand, he said, what was the matter with the Phonograph business, but he was convinced that the bottom had dropped out of it. So far as he was concerned there was "absolutely nothing doing." He hadn't moved a machine "in a dog's day." Attachment sales were few and far between. Record sales were lifeless and steadily growing worse.

It was the most pessimistic letter that ever reached this office,—one of those utterly despondent epistles that give one "the blues" to even open. Calamity wailed from every sentence of it, and it was plainly evident that its author was discouraged beyond the point of redemption. To complete the picture of hard luck which he had drawn, the Dealer closed with a bitter diatribe against the mail-order houses, which he complained had invaded the territory and were robbing him of what little business was possible!

In the same mail, as we stated, was a letter from a Dealer in the West—we assume that he will not object to our publishing his name—Mr. E. B. Hyatt, proprietor of the Portland (Ore.) Phonograph Agency, who wrote in to say, among other things of a like encouraging nature, that he is riding around in an automobile purchased from the profits of Amberola sales.

That's all except the moral—is it necessary to point to it?

When An Ad Is Effective

Every once in a while we are asked by some Dealer to tell him what, in our opinion, constitutes a good ad. We invariably reply that the most effective ads are those which consist of one part originality in plan and text, another part conciseness and clearness in expression and the remaining two parts straightforwardness in story.

Originality attracts, of course, and conciseness and clearness illuminate, but straightforwardness convinces. The latter quality, therefore, is the most essential. Straightforwardness inspires confidence. That's what you are looking for,—the confidence of the public. To win that confidence your ad must have the ring of sincerity. It must impress the public as being truthful; otherwise it lacks force. Absurd, exaggerated statements, therefore, should be carefully eschewed in the writing of ads. Never make a statement which you are not prepared to back up and prove. You can divest an ad of its originality, and dress it in the plainest of verbal garb; if it is intelligible and smacks of truth it will accomplish its purpose every time.

The Edison Dealer need never have recourse to exaggeration or bombast in advertising his goods. He is handling a standard line backed up by a name which is recognized in every country in the world as a guarantee of honest value. It is only necessary for him therefore in preparing his ads to compose them in the clearest, most intelligible and catchiest phrase at his command, adhering always to the truth, and use all the originality he can summon in their arrangement.

There is one more thing, however, in this connection which every Dealer must sooner or later recognize, which is that the best ad that was ever written will not produce results in one appearance. It takes persistent repetition to accomplish results.

A colony of beavers start gnawing at the base of a huge tree. At first their united efforts are scarcely perceptible so colossal in comparison is the task they are essaying. They persist, however, ceaselessly, tirelessly, and in time the tree will sway in the wind and topple across the stream to form the dam they want to build.

That simile well illustrates the value of persistence as applied to advertising. A single attempt to gain the public's attention and confidence will achieve little, but persistent, well directed attempts to reach the same goal will some day bring success in abundance.

A full line of goods is a standing ad which never loses force.

"Music Master" Horns in Good Demand

Orders for these decidedly attractive and very desirable horns have been coming in such satisfactory quantities as to convince us that they are destined to be a popular accessory with the trade. There is no question but that the public will take kindly to them, for in addition to being highly ornamental in appearance they are a distinct improvement from the standpoint of reproduction over any other horns on the market. Built of solid wood on sounding-board principles, they impart an agreeable mellowness of tone to the reproduction which is not possible with a metal horn, and which cannot fail to strike the listener at once. We predict that they will prove good sellers as extras, and will also prove popular as part of complete outfits.

The profit on these horns is so very attractive, moreover, that Dealers should lose no time in placing an order for at least one sample and setting it up on a machine for demonstration and display purposes. It should be remembered in ordering that there are four distinct styles of horns at different prices, and that it is necessary to obtain various setting up parts, depending upon the type of machine upon which it is to be mounted. This information was clearly outlined in Sales Department Bulletin announcing the Horns, and was also contained in the August Monthly, which we recommend that Dealers use for reference in ordering.

Chinese Records

We have prepared a four-page folder (form 1839) containing a list of 110 Chinese Amberol Records of 15 songs,—a complete list of all four-minute Records in the Chinese language to date. These Records are from well-known Chinese plays and were made by the most popular Chinese actors in the country.

Both Records and literature are now ready for distribution, and we would urge Dealers who are located in cities where the Chinese are found in any numbers to obtain a supply of both. While the demand for these Records will not be large, there is a field for them wherever a Chinese colony of any respectable size is to be found, for the Chinese are good patrons of native theatres and fond of their national songs and music.

The supply of these folders is limited, but Jobbers will send a small quantity upon request.

Is your demonstrating machine in good order?

Do You Hitch Your Advertising to Ours?

For instance, our September ad, as you will notice, advertises one of the most entertaining features of the Edison Phonograph,—the home recording feature. Incidentally it is also an exclusive feature of the Edison Phonograph. Likewise it is the feature of the Edison Phonograph to which the Edison trade pays the least attention.

It's wrong—all wrong—to neglect this home recording feature. In the first place the making of Records at home is more than half the pleasure of owning an Edison Phonograph. If there were no other reasons this one feature would compel recognition of the Edison as the greatest of all sound-reproducing instruments.

In the second place it is a profitable feature for the Dealer. In addition to the profit on recording horns and blanks, there is some profit and very little trouble in the shaving of Records; but the real profit comes from the fact that it keeps people interested in the Phonograph and makes them steady visitors to your store.

Take this tip now and follow up our September ads by similar ads of your own, announcing that you are able to furnish complete recording outfits, with instructions in the work of recording, and are prepared to shave Records. Keep this home recording feature before the public all month—in ads and windows—and realize locally the benefit of our general advertising. Suggest the enjoyment and pleasure in making and listening to songs and stories by members of the family and friends, as well as the fun to be had out of "record parties" and the like. And in your ads and window cards be sure to emphasize the fact that no other Phonograph but the Edison possesses this enjoyable feature.

This is the tip for September. Don't you see the force, the logic of it—your ads and ours working in harmony, ours creating the general demand and yours focusing the local share of that demand upon your store? That's team work of the best kind. That's what we mean by "hitching your ad to ours."

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

Canadian Dealers, Report Your Attachments, Please

It now looks as though we will shortly be able to announce the extension of the Combination Attachment Proposition into Canada. The matter is at present up to the Canadian Customs Authorities. While it may be impossible for us to ship the packages of ten Special Records, for use with Attachments at present on hand, at the same prices we are billing them to the United States trade, we do not expect that the same condition will obtain with complete Outfits consisting of Attachment and ten Special Records.

In anticipation of success attending our efforts in this direction, we ask that Canadian Dealers advise us at the earliest possible moment of the number of Attachments being carried at present in stock and how long in their judgment it will take to dispose of them under present conditions. This information is very essential, and we trust our Canadian friends will furnish it without delay.

How Are You Handling the Promotion Plan?

Have you covered your mailing list with the Promotion Folders and Certificates? Advertised the Plan in your local papers? Have you a supply of both forms for store use? Don't go shy on Promotion literature. If your stock is exhausted write your Jobber at once for a fresh supply, and be sure to get enough for your needs.

Every mail received at the factory is heavy with evidence that the Promotion Scheme has made a positive "hit" with the trade. Congratulatory letters, inquiring letters, letters of advice, criticism and suggestion, samples of letters sent to machine owners by enterprising Dealers, and—best proof of all—Promotion Certificates evidence the interest and activity which the trade is showing in this proposition. The alacrity with which some of our Dealers "got on the job" is certainly gratifying.

We haven't been able to complete an assembly of the Promotion Certificates so as to single out the Dealers or localities in which the greatest number of Certificates has been returned, nor will we until the plan has been in operation for a longer time. It has now been in effect practically only about six weeks, and to say that we are delighted with the results obtained scarcely expresses our feelings.

With the return of cool weather and consequent tendency to more indoor amusement this Promotion Scheme ought to expand wonderfully. We shall expect the number of returned Promotion Certificates to double and treble from now on, and we are confident that it will. This is the time to push the scheme—aggressively and persistently. Don't let up on it for a minute.

A word of warning. We presume you sent out the Promotion literature with a letter urging owners of machines to act upon the suggestion and try to win the bonus. That was a month or more ago, wasn't it? Some of those people have forgotten that letter. They remembered it for a time, but other things have interfered and it has slipped from memory. Write them another letter, and after a reasonable time elapses write them still another. You'll get them interested if you persist. It means a little time and trouble and expense, but what of it? Compared with results it is so small as to be insignificant. Hammer at this Promotion Plan and you will soon begin to realize your nice, fat, juicy profits on the sales of new machines and new Records to customers new and old.

We want to remind Dealers that they should send at the signed Promotion Certificates just as soon as the sales have been made and Records delivered to promoters. Don't keep the Certificates or send them to your Jobber. Send them direct to us. We need them—must have them to complete our files.

Two More Special "Hits"

Amberol Records Nos. 548, "Any Little Girl, That's a Nice Little Girl," etc., and 550, "Lucy Anna Lee," appearing in the November Supplement, will be shipped from the factory on or about September 7, to go on sale as Special "Hits." Shipments will be made to all Jobbers in any one territory at the same time, Eastern Jobbers being served first, and after them, in the order named, Central, Southern and Western Jobbers.

These Records can be placed on sale as soon as received.

These two songs are the great big "hits" of the summer season, and they are now at the very height of their popularity. They will continue to be featured by vaudeville singers, played as dance numbers and pushed in every conceivable way by the music publishers for a long time to come.

Place your order immediately for a good supply of these Records and begin to advertise them as soon as you know definitely when to expect them. Don't lose any time in profiting by their present immense popularity. The usual special literature,—an attractive window hanger and a neat four-page folder, which, in addition to describing the Records, also presents the Promotion Plan in attractive garb—will be shipped with the Records. See that you get a good supply of the literature and use it to the best possible advantage.

The Dealer who will profit most from these and future Special "Hits" is the wise one who has had the good sense to take our advice and place a standing order for them with his Jobber. He isn't taking any chance on them, for we will not make the mistake of putting out anything which does not bear the "popularity" tag. He is certain to get quick deliveries, and thus is given a big lead over his less enterprising fellows. In the case of these two "Specials" the Dealer who has a standing order for them will be enabled to place them on sale almost two months before the regular November list.

Does that mean anything to you? Think it over.

Here's a Suggestion Which Every Dealer Should Accept.

To get all that is coming to you in Record sales from now on through the fall and winter months every one of your customers' machines must be in perfect running order.

Of course the owner is at fault if he permits his machine to get out of repair, but the Dealer is doubly at fault if he allows the machine to remain in that condition. Every idle machine means just so much loss in Record sales. The moment a machine goes out of commission that moment the owner's interest begins to lag; the longer it remains out of commission the harder it is to revive his interest.

It's clearly up to the Dealer to keep every Phonograph owner interested in his machine and make him a steady Record purchaser. Every reasonable effort to do so should be made at all times of the year; at this time there's a particular reason why an extraordinary effort should be made, for this is the start of the indoor season when the Dealer should begin to rake in the profits on Record sales. Many machines have been idle all summer and their owners have forgotten them for the time being. The Dealer should get after those machines. The machines need overhauling,—a little cleaning and regulating, a few drops of oil, a new part perhaps—to put them in good working condition.

This is the time to do something out of the ordinary in this line. Start a good, competent man out to visit every one of your customers and inspect their machines. If he finds that any of them need missing parts let him make a list of them and order them from your Jobber at once, using the new Parts Catalogue (Form 1815), sent you with last month's bulletin, for reference. Don't consider the expense of the repair man. The profits on the new Record sales will soon take care of that. There's a profit in the sale of new parts besides.

You can kill two or three birds with one stone in this way, if you will. Have your repair man carry some Combination Outfits, Cygnet and Music Master Horns and new Amberol Records along with him. You'll make his trip an item of profit instead of expense in that way. Let him also distribute some Promotion Certificates and literature, Amberola folders, Record Supplements, etc. In other words, make him both a salesman and a repair man.

If this suggestion appeals to your good sense, and we hope it will, don't delay action. Do it at once,—or just as soon as you can get hold of a competent man to do the work. September is the month to do it if you want to see your Record sales begin to climb before the cold weather sets in.

A Gruelling Test

It has always been our proud boast that none but the very best materials obtainable enter into the construction of Edison Phonographs. If evidence were needed to substantiate that claim and support our contention that they are mechanically as well as musically superior to any similar instruments on the market, it is to be found in the experience of Jack McLaughlin, engineer of the dredge "Skookum," as related by him in a letter received at the factory, of which the following is a verbatim copy:

1037 Salsbury Drive,
Vancouver, B. C., July 27, 1910.

Edison Standard Phonograph Co.,
Orange, N. J.

Dear Sirs:—

I have in my possession one of your Phonographs, No. 683334 D, which had the misfortune to be among the cargo or baggage of the S. S. Ohio, passenger and cargo boat running from Seattle to Alaska, and which was wrecked in Carter Bay, off the B. C. coast, a little over a year ago.

This machine was in the salt water for about eight months before being brought to the surface by one of the divers working on the wreck.

We cleaned and dried it in our spare moments and to our surprise succeeded in getting it to run first class and without any repairs.

We fished up a bunch of records and had some very good music. Some of the records were as good as new, and with one or two exceptions the balance were in very good condition.

Now I thought that perhaps you would like to have this phonograph to use as an advertisement, and if so would ship it to you, to be replaced by you with a new one. State whether you would want horn shipped also.

Hoping that this may interest you and anticipating an early reply, I remain

Respectfully yours,
Jack McLaughlin,
Eng. Dredge "Skookum,"
Vancouver, B. C.
1037 Salsbury Drive.

Could a more severe test than that be required? Dealers should not overlook this incident in pointing out the mechanical superiority of the Edison machine to prospective customers.

Preparation means half the battle won. Confidence completes the victory.

The Other 13,000

Two Attractive Edison Fourth of July Floats

EVIDENCE OF THE HUSTLING SPIRIT OF THE WEST

In what category would you place a Dealer who went to the expense and trouble of rigging out a float, such as is shown in the above cut, to participate in a Fourth of July celebration? Would you consider him a "dead one" or a live, hustling merchant, who is determined that he shall be counted in on anything which offers an opportunity for advertising his goods? You can bet he is the latter,—very much so.

His name is A. W. Johnson, and he does business at Wilmont, a thriving town in Minnesota. He isn't content with taking the business which comes to him of its own accord; he goes after it, and this cut proves him a firm believer in one of the most effective methods of landing it—ADVERTISING—keeping himself and his goods constantly in the public eye.

We have not learned whether any direct results followed from this ingenious advertising stunt, but we know from experience that indirect results followed, and will continue to follow. Nor have we been advised that the float captured any prizes in the parade, but it stands to reason that so clever and pretty an arrangement of the national colors, combined with the attractive picture formed by the charming young ladies who occupied the driver's seat, must have elicited the admiration of the spectators even though prizes may not have been in order.

Mr. Johnson is certainly to be commended for his enterprise and public spirit.

Another Edison Dealer—F. J. Meehan, of Washburn, Wis.—who didn't let Independence Day pass into history without participating in the local celebration and seizing upon the occurrence to get some excellent advertising out of it.

The postal from which this cut was reproduced was forwarded to us by his Jobber, Lawrence H. Lucker, of Minneapolis, who improved the opportunity of saying some very complimentary things about the thoroughly up-to-date way Mr. Meehan has of doing business. He operates a large furniture store, and has made the Edison a most profitable side line by pushing it hard and persistently.

His Jobber is authority for the statement that Mr. Meehan's sales of Edison Machines, Records and supplies are consistently heavy. Why shouldn't they be? He has faith in the line and in his own ability to make it profitable. He doesn't let the public forget that he carries it and that he sells the goods on attractive terms which place them well within the reach of everybody.

It's a positive pleasure to be able to offer an "official" compliment to a "live wire" in the business, and we are glad to have this opportunity of doing so. Our congratulations to Mr. Meehan on the example of enterprise furnished in this instance are coupled with the conviction that he will continue to find the Edison line as profitable in the future as he has in the past by pursuing the same energetic sales methods.

Thomas A. Edison Complimented by a Fellow-Townsman

The feature of the Milan (Ohio) Home Coming Celebration on August 17 and 18 was by popular consent the exhibit of the Norwalk Piano Company of that city. In their exhibit was displayed every type of Edison Phonograph as well as a full line of accessories and Edison Records. It was probably as fine and comprehensive a display of Edison goods as has ever been shown anywhere. The large tent in which the exhibit was shown was at all times the center of interest for the crowds which poured into Milan during the celebration.

Milan, as is well known, is the birthplace of Thomas A. Edison, and the exhibit of the Norwalk Piano Company was conceived and arranged by the manager, Mr. Price, as a compliment to the foremost citizen of the city, who it was expected would be present during the celebration. Though prevented by urgent matters at the laboratory from attending, Mr. Edison fully appreciated the neatness of the compliment paid him by his Milan representatives.

H. S. Jones, the aggressive Edison Dealer of Spencer, Iowa, has been nominated by his party for the State Legislature. In making his canvass of the district it is not his intention to neglect his Phonograph business; on the contrary, he will "kill two birds with one stone," as it were, invading the homes of the electors with an appeal for their suffrage and a request to install an Edison Phonograph on trial. And he will have the goods along with him in his rig, at that. He considers that the nomination is an excellent thing for his business and intends, when he is elected to the Iowa legislature, to see that every member of it purchases an Amberola.

Success, financially and politically, to Jones of Davenport, Iowa! He certainly deserves an abundance of it.

The J. C. Harding Co., Topeka, Kas., were prompt to start a good, rousing letter in the wake of the Promotion Certificates shortly after they mailed them to their customers. Good idea, that reminder thing. People will forget a proposition like the Promotion scheme—temporarily at least —unless the Dealer takes the trouble to call it to their attention at frequent intervals. Paste that tip in your hat, Mr. Dealer, and send out a reminder notice every little while. Costs little—does much.

The Optimist

A happy chap with a clear, bright eye, and a face that's a joy to see;
A slap on the back and the merry crack of a bit of repartee;
He's never a word that will hurt a soul, and he does the best he can,
As he's going along on his own bright way, at helping the other man.

He laughs and sings through the livelong day; at night he sleeps like a top;
And he saves his need with the certainty of reaping a bumper crop.
O the Optimist is the salt of the earth, though he leap in head previous,
Let us drink and drink to the Optimist! Long life and pleasant dreams!—St. Paul Dispatch.

A recent copy of The Evening Times of Fort Morgan, Colo., contains the full column paid reading notice of The Fort Morgan Drug Co., Edison Dealers of that place. The notice is an article culled from the April issue of The New Phonogram, which argues the advantages and superiority of Edison Phonographs and Records. It makes a readable and effective ad., especially as it occupies prominent space in the editorial section of the paper.

We are in receipt of a neat little eight-page booklet issued by Allen's Emporium, Edison Dealer of San Jose, Cal., in which the various departments of the establishment are illustrated and described. Complimentary reference is due for the excellent display of Edison products shown, as well as the admirable arrangement provided for the accommodation of purchasers.

John Henry Lynch, Edwardsville, Ill., is a Dealer who makes it a point to cultivate the acquaintance of his customers. As a result he can call the majority of them by their names as they enter his store, and is enabled to inject a bit of personality into his letters when promoting the sale of a new feature of the line.

Dealers will do well to imitate this example of Mr. Lynch's shrewd business methods.

M. A. Hansen, of Gardner, Ill., is another Dealer who didn't lose any time on the Promotion Plan. A sample letter sent us, with which he sent out the Promotion literature, was admirably conceived to spur the recipient to immediate action. A letter written in a friendly, confidential tone will always produce results.

The moment a prospective customer discovers your stock is scant he gets "cold feet.' If you haven't confidence in your line you can't expect him to have.

New Grand Opera Talent

The names of four artists new to the Grand Opera catalog appear in the November Supplement. Although as yet unheard in this country, they have built up most enviable reputations in the cradle of the operatic art, Europe, where they stand in the highest rank of their profession.

Two at least of the number—Lucrezia Bori and Carolina Longone-White—will be heard in this country during the coming season, and as their brilliant careers across the water will insure them a warm welcome from American operatic lovers it follows that in their Records the Edison trade gives a positive asset. This is particularly true because of the fact that they are both exclusive Edison artists and can be heard on none but Edison Records.

The near approach of the operatic season makes the question of talent one of consuming interest to the Jobber and Dealer who study to cater to the diverse tastes of their patrons. They recognize in this branch of the Phonograph business an avenue of direct appeal to a fast-growing portion of the public who are only mildly interested in the popular class of music, but are confirmed devotees of the operatic art.

We shall do all in our power to enable such enterprising representatives to cater to this class of trade and submit the November Supplement as evidence of what may be expected in future additions to the catalog during the course of the operatic season. A brief insight into the respective careers of these artists will give an idea of the ability of each.

Lucrezia Bori, a native of Spain, has had so meteoric a career that it is barely important to go back any further than her recent great Paris success as the heroine of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut." It may be said that the glory of the season, which began so auspiciously, rested on this girlishly sweet artiste. It is a well-known fact that those most interested in the fate not only of this opera but of the entire season were truly a most anxious lot, for not until the dress rehearsal did this ingenious little woman fully disclose her conception of her part. No longer thereafter was anxiety depicted on their faces; and where they met, and where they spoke, they but chanted the same refrain on the day of the first performance —"Wait until this evening!"

To say that Mlle. Bori achieved an immediate and great success is merely repeating what all the papers proclaimed to the world the next morning, but what was not so strongly emphasized is the fact that to the opera loving peoples there has been given another truly great artiste,—a sweet, charming little girl, but a consummate actress having a voice of the finest timbre and schooling.

Mlle. Bori has been engaged to sing exclusively for the National Phonograph Company, and the lovers of operatic numbers will delight in the beautiful Records she has made. In this country, where she will appear at the Metropolitan Opera House, Mlle. Bori is fated to make a deep impression, for nowhere else is true art so well understood.

Madame Carolina Longone-White to America is as yet almost unknown, but in Italy it needs but the mention of her name to open up a flood of eulogy. American by birth, Madame White is possessed of regal beauty, inclining more toward the Italian type, but unmistakably one of the most beautiful of women. This would almost suffice to insure her a great welcome in this country, where she is engaged to sing in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, but, child of fortune that she is in this one respect, she has had showered on her other great gifts. Her voice of great brilliancy, beautiful quality and excellent training has the power to stir every fibre of one's body.

Brilliant in personnel, brilliant in voice, Madame White is also a great actress. Her successes in "Aida," "Herodiade," "Iris" and "Madame Butterfly"—to mention but a few operas of her repertoire—have put her in the foremost rank of our grand opera artistes. Whenever she has appeared on the stage of one of Italy's great opera houses she has at once achieved a great personal and artistic success, and America, with its ever-ready welcome to its aspiring and successful daughters, will add another name to the already long list of exceptional artistes it has produced, and be proud of this singer possessed of so many great gifts.

Madame White sings exclusively for the National Phonograph Company, and her acquisition to the list of our artists will be a continual pleasure to the Phonograph public, and especially to those who will have the great good fortune of seeing and hearing Madame White personally.

Selma Kurz has been for years the great favorite of the Imperial Opera House of Vienna; and not alone of Vienna, for all Europe knows her and has recognized her as one of the few great coloratura sopranos. Her name has frequently been mentioned as that of the logical successor of the ever popular and beloved Madame Sembrich.

The National Phonograph Company, in presenting the work of Mlle. Kurz, is complying with the ever existing desire to hear the style of singing of which she is so accomplished an exponent, but which unfortunately is becoming so very rare.

Aristodemo Giorgini is among the foremost of Italy's singers and is in the very first rank of tenors. His career has been achieved in Italy, Russia, France and Spain, where he is ever enthusiastically received, for he is possessed of a most beautifully sweet tenor voice, tending more to the lyric than the dramatic. His Records will prove to be a source of great satisfaction and pleasure.

Such is the calibre of the four new artists in the November Supplement; the fifth artist is none other than the incomparable Slezak in a favorite number from an opera whose revival last season, after a lapse of nearly a quarter of a century, was made notable by his magnificent singing of the title role. In that appearance he proved to the complete satisfaction of New York critics that he is equally as great in the singing of lyric as he is of dramatic parts. His arias were received with warmest enthusiasm, which manifested itself in the rapturous applause that greeted his every effort.

With such world renowned artists as these and the other "stars" in the operatic catalog, with the marvelously sweet, mellow and natural reproduction which their voices will receive in the Edison Amberol Records—a reproduction which is impossible on Records other than Edison—every Edison Dealer who would make the most of his opportunities has a tremendous asset in the Edison Grand Opera Records.

Lost or Stolen Machines

Home Combination Phonograph No. 357733 with Cygnet equipment, Standard No. 649591, Standard No. 647029, and Standard No. 572631 have disappeared. Jobbers or Dealers coming into possession of any information relative to these machines are requested to communicate it without delay to the National Phonograph Company, Agreement Department.

Cut-Out Records

The moulds of Standard Records Nos. 12445, "La Pinata," and 12516, "Il Miserere," having become exhausted and the same talent being no longer available, we have dropped these numbers from the Italian catalog. The last number has been made over in the domestic list as Amberol Record No. 53.

The Promotion Plan Extended to Canada

Announcement of the fact was made in Sales Department Bulletin of August 19th. The same conditions and restrictions obtain as with the domestic trade, and Canadian Dealers are urged to familiarize themselves with them to obviate any possible confusion.

Briefly stated they are as follows:

The price of the Records to the Dealer is 20c each, and in addition the Dealer must pay an amount equal to Canadian Customs Tariff on all Edison Records.

A special discount of 33⅓% is allowed on the Records to obviate any possible demand for replacement or allowance for breakage.

Only six Records are to be given from the special list as a bonus for any one sale.

The bonus does not apply to the sale of second hand machines sold under a special license at a reduced price.

These Special Records cannot be sold to the Consumer under any condition.

Jobbers will be in a position to fill orders shortly after September 15th, and will ship with the Records special literature consisting of a four-page Folder outlining the proposition and describing the Records, Promotion Certificates for distribution among Phonograph owners, and window hangers for store use.

There is no occasion for us to point out to our Canadian Dealers the wisdom of immediately placing their orders for a goodly supply of these Records, nor to urge them to push the plan to the limit. They have been waiting patiently for its introduction since it was first announced in the United States and can be depended upon to handle it with their customary energy and aggressiveness.

Repair of Model "A" Reproducers Now Impossible

We are no longer in a position to make repairs to Model "A" Reproducers, as we have no stock of parts, such as glass diaphragms, weights, etc. Therefore, if any such type of Reproducer is received by Dealers for repair, they should advise the customer accordingly and recommend the purchase of a Model "C" Reproducer in place of the old Model "A."

Don't forget to call upon the factory for assistance when you strike an unusually stubborn "prospect." We'll keep after him until you call "quits."

Selling the Goods

With the return of cool weather lodges begin to resume their regular meetings. Smokers, entertainments, ladies' nights and lodge dances will follow. Why don't you make a proposition now to every lodge in your town? Write a letter to the Secretary of each calling attention to the comparative cost of a night's entertainment furnished by mediocre amateur or professional talent and that offered by an Edison Phonograph and Records presenting the best and highest priced entertainers in the world. And don't forget to emphasize the cost of the cheapest orchestra that can be obtained with the price of an Edison Phonograph, which offers a catalogue of specially recorded dance Records played by skilled musicians in absolutely correct tempo. Show that the amount expended for an orchestra at a few dances will pay for an Edison, which is a permanent orchestra. And don't forget the recording feature of the Edison, which by itself will furnish the suggestion for many a lodge entertainment.

Make a proposition to install an Edison and some Amberol Records on trial. You won't have any trouble in getting permission, particularly if you have a friend or two in the lodge. And when you do get permission don't fail to send your highest-priced Phonograph around,—an Amberola if you have one; if you haven't then send your next best, with Amberola literature enclosed, and be prepared to talk Amberola if your proposition is accepted. An Amberola is the logical instrument for a lodge-room, and furthermore a lodge generally wants the best when it buys.

Don't let this lodge tip shoot over your head.

Personally you, perhaps, prefer a good lively "rag," a clever topical song or a sentimental "hit." The majority of us share your taste. But we must consider that there are a great many people to whom songs of the popular order are positively distasteful. They are people with highly developed musical tastes. They go into ecstasies over an overture by Von Suppe or Wagner, a Liszt rhapsody or an aria from one of the great operas. Such people are often termed "musical cranks." Whether they are or not is immaterial. The point is that they are enthusiastic and confirmed in their preference for the higher grade of music. Furthermore, they are generally people with means who never let expense stand in the way of gratifying their inclinations. They can be made good, steady Record buyers if the Dealer knows them that he is able to gratify their tastes.

Start right now and prepare a series of concerts for the fall and winter,—special concerts. Don't neglect the monthly concerts on the 25th or thereabouts. Keep them up and advertise them in every way possible as public concerts, to which the general public is invited.

There are some people, however, who do not care to attend a concert of a public nature. They prefer exclusiveness, and will respond quickly to an invitation which guarantees them that feature. That's why we say "prepare special concerts." Make up a list of present and possible future Phonograph owners who in your judgment would be likely to attend a private concert either at your store or at a hall. Have some neat invitations printed on a good quality of paper announcing the recital and program and mail them out.

Let the invitation bear a half-tone cut of the Amberola on the back cover. We'll supply the electro upon request. This is the class of people you can easily sell the Amberola to, and this is the way to do it. Just emphasize the exclusiveness of the affair and you'll have no trouble with the attendance. Make every provision for their accommodation and comfort and you'll make them regular attendants at your concerts, and soon convert them into Phonograph enthusiasts.

Be careful with your program. Don't make it top heavy with any one class of selection. Diversify it,—balance it with grand opera, instrumental and vocal numbers of the higher class, and a sprinkling of the lighter order of selection.

Many Jobbers and Dealers accomplished wonderful results with private recitals last season, and are preparing now to resume them on a much more elaborate plan. The private recitals paid them—why not you?

Some men are so afraid of doing the wrong thing that they never do anything.

Cheap Trade

One of the biggest mistakes a talking machine man can make is to cater to cheap trade. In some lines of business there are immense profits in five and ten cent sales, as for instance the street railway business, but the talking machine business is not in that class. Cheap goods are unsatisfactory to begin with, they cause more trouble than their profits will cover, and the class of people who buy the cheap goods are not appreciative of the better music, and are not particularly good advertisements for a store.

The tendency in the business is decidedly upward. In the early days of the business the talking machine was a toy that appealed to the buying public because of the novelty attached to it, certainly not because of its musical capabilities. The improvement has been rapid and has been so great that talking machines and records are found in the best and most refined homes. Men, and women too, who can afford to indulge their taste for classical music are good talking machine buyers, and better still are regular customers for the highest grade records.

One of the pleasant features of the high class trade is that the talking machine owner need only be notified of the new records each month, and will call at the store to have them played over, or have them sent to the house and select those desired. The medium buyers comprise the most desirable class of all. They are the most numerous and demand a profitable grade of merchandise, if not the highest priced. They are even more regular customers than the extremely high-priced people, and are invariably cash customers.—Canadian Music Trade Journal.

Some fellows start out in life with the idea that the world owes them a living, and then, by the time they are ready to die, they are dead sure they have not collected.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world. Everybody doesn't like the popular stuff. Lots of people won't listen to it. They want high-class music,—concerted numbers, songs of the better class, operatic arias and the like. You want to consider these people, for there are plenty of them in your town. Cater to them. Keep a stock—at least one of each—of the operatic Records, and the higher grade stuff. Advertise and show these people that you can take care of their wants, and you will make them steady and profitable customers.

A Suggestion

What did the federal census cite as the foreign-born population of your city? If you didn't hear it you should. And it ought to stir up the grey matter, too. Your foreigner, no matter how long he has lived here or how much of an American he has become, always has a warm spot in his heart for the songs and airs of his native land. That thought is worth pondering over. There are Records in the September Foreign Supplement which will appeal to the foreign-born as will no other Records you can offer them. And there are thousands of others in the Foreign Catalogs and Supplements.

How do you keep the PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY—scattered about here and there in your store? Why not bind it as it comes in and always have it handy and whole when you want to refer to it? We have a stock of binders for that express purpose—durable and neat. Only 50c. Order one now.

"Deadened energy is a sort of uric acid condition of the soul," says a contemporary home publication. Very true; and it's as insidious in its approach and as disastrous in its final results as the disease in question.

The Catholic and Christian Science Records have been pronounced among the finest we have ever listed. They ought to be the subject of a special newspaper ad or two giving the titles of the selections and the artists, and attractive window cards should bring them to the attention of the passing public. Special Records of this kind are ads that bring results, for they not only appeal to owners of machines but they create a demand for machines.

Every member, as well as every lodge, of the Masonic Order can be interested in the Special Masonic List. Keep that list handy for customers, and a card in your window.

Model "O" Reproducers

On or about September 1, 1910, all Model "O" Triumphs, also Idelia Phonographs, will be equipped with a new reproducer arm, including a Model "O" Combination Type Reproducer with a swivel arm, to which are attached two sapphire points, making it possible to play both two and four-minute Records. This Reproducer is to take the place of the Model "C" and "H" Reproducers with which these machines are now equipped, and at no additional cost for complete outfits.

Price of Model "O" Reproducer when sold separately will be: U. S. List, $10.00; Canadian, $13.00; Dealer, $6.00 net. These prices will also apply when the Reproducer is supplied with a special arm, which becomes necessary when exchanges are made for the Models "C" and "H" Reproducers.

The allowance to be made for Models "C" and "H" Reproducers in exchange for the Model "O" will be: List, $4.00 for both; Dealer, less 40% or $2.40 net for both. A summary of these prices on this arrangement is as follows:

UNITED STATES.

	Model "O" Reproducer	Allow for "C" and "H" set on exchange, two (2) Reproducers, both	Net
List	$10.00	$4.00	$6.00
Dealer, 40%....	6.00	2.40	3.60

CANADA.

	Model "O" Reproducer	Allow for "C" and "H" set on exchange, two (2) Reproducers, both	Net
List	$13.00	$4.00	$9.00
Dealer, ($6.00 + Duty $1.80)	7.80	2.40	5.40

Dealers in sending orders for these equipments on exchange must particularly specify whether to be used with machines equipped with Straight or Cygnet Horns, as with the Straight Horn a special connection is supplied, and with Cygnet Horns a special type horn crane is necessary and will be furnished complete when so ordered.

The Model "O" Reproducer will be supplied, when so ordered, with Triumph and Idelia attachments, in place of the Model "H" Reproducer now being supplied. The prices for the attachment complete with Model "O" Reproducer will be: U. S. List, $15.50; Canadian List, $20.00; Dealer, $11.00 net.

On exchanges these same prices will prevail, with allowance for Model "C" Reproducer to be returned, as follows: List, $2.00; Dealer, $1.20 net. A summary of these prices is as follows:

UNITED STATES.

	Combination Attachments with "O" Reproducer	Allowance for "C" Reproducer with Idelia Shaft and Mandrel	Net
List	$15.50	$2.00	$13.50
Dealer	11.00	1.20	9.80

CANADA.

	Combination Attachments with "O" Reproducer	Allowance for "C" Reproducer with Idelia Shaft and Mandrel	Net
List	$20.00	$2.00	$18.00
Dealer, ($11.00 + Duty $3.30)	14.30	1.20	13.10

The Recorder to be supplied with Triumph and Idelia machines containing the Model "O" Reproducer will be the same as at present, and in order that it may be used we will supply with each machine an adapter, to fit in the speaker arm, of the right size to take the Recorder. One of these adapters will also be supplied with each extra Model "O" Reproducer and speaker arm that is sent out on the exchange basis, so that any one having one of our present Recorders with their outfit can use it with the new speaker arm. An adapter will also be furnished with each Combination Attachment containing the Model "O" Reproducer and new speaker arm for the same purpose as above mentioned.

Dealers' orders should be placed at the earliest possible moment, enabling the Jobber to make shipments in any one territory at the same time, to be placed on sale as soon as received.

We urge the trade to push the Model "O" Reproducers vigorously. They are not only a very great improvement over the separate Reproducer in the matter of convenience, but the reproduction obtained from their use is so vastly superior as to admit of absolutely no comparison. The union of these two advantages will commend them at once to the Phonograph owner.

Get Your Holiday Order in Early

Now is the time to do it instead of a month from now. You can't "get action" any too quick a little anticipation. Your Jobber needs some time as well as your orders to guide him in his own order. We, in turn, must have some definite idea of what the volume of the holiday orders are going to be in order to gauge our requirements. We can't do everything at the last minute. We need time—time to plan, time to build, time to ship. You can help us wonderfully and at the same time protect yourself from any disappointment if you send in your order now.

Remember the Amberola situation last year—how we were disappointed at the last minute by the cabinet manufacturers and consequently were able to fill only a pitiably small percentage of orders in time for the holiday trade. That same situation, or a similar one, is liable to present itself at any time. It was one of those unfortunate occurrences which always happen when least expected, but which can be generally guarded against if the factory is given a little time to gauge his requirements.

Help us and yourself this year by getting in your order early.

DEALERS ARE REQUESTED TO NOTE THAT "TRIUMPH PHONOGRAPHS, WITH STRAIGHT HORN EQUIPMENT, WILL BE OMITTED FROM THE NEXT EDITION OF OUR PHONOGRAPH CATALOG.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

40031 Stradella—Serenade (Flotow) Sung in German
Orchestra accompaniment
Leo Slezak

LIST: U. S., $2.00; Canada, $2.50.

The revival of "Stradella" at the Metropolitan Opera House last season, with Slezak in the title rôle, was a most fortunate one, for this opera contains some of the most beautiful melodies written by Flotow, and therefore some of the most beautiful ever produced. Of Stradella's affections is certainly one of the finest. In the midst of a carnival scene Stradella sings this beautiful serenade, which brings his sweetheart to the window, and an elopement is quickly planned and executed. Slezak sings this number with a lover's ardor and puts into it the pleading of his heart's cause.

30030 Faverita—Spirto gentil (Donizetti) Sung in Italian
Orchestra accompaniment
Aristodemo Giorgini

LIST: U. S., $1.00; CANADA, $1.50.

Having been carried to the very greatest depth of humiliation by his love for Leonora, Fernando has left the King's court and returned to the monastery, which his love had caused a high C, here admirably sung by Giorgini, Fernando repudiates Leonora for the apparent deception he believes her guilty of, although he still loves her deeply. Giorgini's voice is admirably adapted to this class of music, so seldom well rendered.

40032 Manon Lescaut—In quelle trine morbide (Puccini) Sung in Italian
Orchestra accompaniment
Lucrezia Bori

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

Manon, the luckless, after the elopement with the penniless Des Grieux, returns under the promptings of her conscience-ess brother to the care of her wealthy but aged supporter. Dressed in all her finery and surrounded by all the luxury wealth can procure, her love for empty, loveless life in her silken-hung dwelling with the modest home, in which however love with its warm, caressing embraces reigned supreme. Mlle. Bori made such an extraordinary success as the heroine of this opera that it is but natural that her fine conception is also transferred to this Record, which so truly reflects the mood of the unfortunate Manon.

40033 Madama Butterfly—Un bel dì vedremo (Puccini) Sung in Italian
Orchestra accompaniment
Carolina Longone-White

LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

Perhaps no other opera makes so strong an appeal for the heroine as does "Madame Butterfly," in which the flower-like Cio-Cio-San shows such great strength of love and faith, and so She has been told that never again will she see or hear her American Lieutenant, who has gone to his far-off home. Even in the face of Consul Sharpless' explanation she will not believe that it is true. In this aria, "Un bel dì vedremo," she again asserts her trust that he will return some beautiful day, when she will see him and he will again call her his little Madame Butterfly. Madame Longone-White has been exceptionally happy in her depiction of this beautiful part, into which she puts all her artistic fervor and love; and in this case she has certainly made a most beautiful Record.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

35009 Lucia di Lammermoor— Aria del follia (Donizetti) Sung in Italian Orchestra accompaniment Selma Kurz
LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.50

As everyone knows, this opera follows closely in its story the famous novel written by Sir Walter Scott—"The Bride of Lammermoor." Forced into a distasteful marriage by her brother and learning of the deceit practised upon her in regard to the man she really loved, Lucia murders her husband in a fit of insanity. The mad scene represents her raving and hearing the things of a disordered mind. But what a wealth of melody! The aria is so difficult of execution, however, that only the most consummate artists ever essay to sing it. Miss Selma Kurz is too well known to require any further introduction, and it is needless to say that the Record she has made of this number is a very superior one.

Amberol Record by Sarah Bernhardt

35008 Phèdre-La Declaration (Jean Racine) Sarah Bernhardt
LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.00

A thrilling scene from the masterpiece of Racine, by that masterpiece of nature, Sarah Bernhardt. 'Tis said that only a Frenchman can properly understand Racine, but all the world can understand Madame Bernhardt, for her art speaks a universal language. Phèdre is in love with Hippolytus, her own step-son, who is in happy ignorance of that misfortune. The supposed death of Theseus, her husband, removes all obstacles to her fierce passion, and she declares it, as only Sarah Bernhardt, the queen of the tragic stage, can depict it. The swelling flood of feeling pours forth with all the force and fire of a woman's heart full to bursting. This Record is a treat to lovers of tragedy, as well as to those who admire and appreciate the greatest tragedienne not alone of today but of all time.

Edison Amberol Records for November, 1910

LIST: U. S., 50c; CANADA, 65c.

540 Marche Tartare Sousa's Band

As its name would indicate, this march is of an Oriental style, in the rendition of which effects are introduced to lend color and emphasis. It is a standard work and a popular number on Sousa's programs, frequently being featured by him in encores. Composer, Louis Ganne; publishers, Hawkes & Sons, London.

541 Red Wing Frederic H. Potter, Chorus and New York Military Band

The phenomenal popularity of "Red Wing" in the Standard list (No. 9622) induced us to respond to the general demand of the trade and public to list it as an Amberol number. In doing so we have added greatly to its attractiveness by the novel manner in which it is arranged,—the band alternating with Mr. Potter and chorus singing with band accompaniment. Mr. Potter sings with spirit and style, and both chorus and band accompaniment are all that could be desired. Without doubt this Record will be one of the most popular numbers in the Amberol Catalogue. Words, Thurland Chattaway; music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

542 For You Bright Eyes Miss Barbour and Mr. Anthony

Soprano and tenor duet. It is not difficult when one hears this captivating number to understand why it was the pronounced "hit" of the successful musical production, "Bright Eyes." No doubt, too, the novel and delightful manner in which it is sung in this Record, the air being taken alternately with the two voices blending in the refrain, will add to its original attractiveness. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Otto Hauerbach; music, Karl Hoschna; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

543 Way Down in Cotton Town Billy Murray and Chorus

A clever sentimental song of the bright, cheery type, with an infectious, "swingy" air which will bear unlimited repetition. Billy Murray and a splendid chorus have made a Record of it which without doubt will go a long way toward strengthening its present hold on the popular fancy. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edgar Leslie; music, Al Piantadosi; publisher, Leo Feist, New York City.

544 Serenade (Schubert) Venetian Instrumental Trio

Violin, flute and harp. A Record that every lover of the best in instrumental music will want. Almost every one is familiar with Schubert's Serenade, and the Venetian Trio are well known from the very charming numbers which they have contributed to our catalogue. A rarely beautiful Record, the combination of instruments in rendition of this classic gem of melody resulting in a soothing blend of music. Composer, Franz Schubert.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

545 Dear Little Shamrock Marie Narelle

Soprano solo. Another of Miss Narelle's songs of the people. The history and significance of the shamrock, as outlined in this tuneful old song, are known to every son and daughter of Erin's Isle, who will appreciate Miss Narelle's rendition of the number. Her brogue is as delicate and natural as her voice is fresh and lovely and her style expressive. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Cherry.

546 Comic Epitaphs Golden and Hughes

A vaudeville sketch that will "go big." Two "coons" on their way home from a possum hunt stop in a grave-yard to read the epitaphs, in defiance of the "hobamogoblins." That's where the fun starts, and it's unvarious and continuous all the way through, for every epitaph is just a little bit funnier than its predecessor. The Record closes with a typical Golden and Hughes song. This Record is a "scream."

547 Fantasy from "The Fortune Teller" Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

Thousands of Herbert's devoted chain of admirers insist that "The Fortune Teller" is the most tuneful of his many successful comic operas. However that may be, it is certain that it contains some scintillating gems of melody, the best of which are comprised in this Record, viz: Opening Second Act; "Always Do as People Say You Should"; March Finale; "Gipsy Love Song," and "Hungarian Czardas." It is played in their usual brilliant fashion by the renowned composer-conductor and his corps of talented artists. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

548 Any Little Girl, That's a Nice Little Girl, Is the Right Little Girl for Me
Ada Jones and Chorus

Serio-comic. This melodious bit of nonsense was easily the "hit" of the summer season, and is still the most popular song of the day. It is being sung and whistled everywhere, while its irresistible rhythm is bringing it immense popularity as a dance number. The capable male chorus which assists Miss Jones serves to emphasize the rhythmic swing and energetic "go" of the song and greatly adds to the attractiveness of the Record. Because of the popularity of the song the selling date of this Record was advanced to the early part of September. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Thomas H. Gray; music, Fred Fischer; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

549 O Morning Land Stanley and Gillette

Sacred duet by baritone and tenor. A brilliant Record of a well-known hymn which will appeal with equal force to collectors of the devotional type of Records and to those whose fancy runs to duet numbers, for both harmonization and rendition are notably fine. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Eben E. Rexford; music, Edwards H. Phelps.

550 Lucy Anna Lou Collins and Harlan

Coon duet. This Record was also placed on advance sale because of the tremendous popularity of the song. Its engaging two-step rhythm made it the big "hit" of "The Follies of 1910," and it is just now at the height of its popularity. Collins and Harlan have made a most entertaining Record of it, with a comedy feature as usual. This is a Record that will never tire, for in style and tunefulness it is something different from the ordinary "coon" song. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edward Madden; music, Gus Edwards; publisher, Gus Edwards, New York City.

551 When the Autumn Turns the Forest Leaves to Gold Manuel Romain

A sentimental number whose captivating melodic charm is steadily winning it popularity. It is a song of the reminiscent type in which a fond lover in wistful phrase draws a vivid word-picture of his distant sweetheart, who has promised to wed him "when the autumn turns the forest leaves to gold." The sweet-voiced minstrel tenor, who can be heard only on Edison Records, gives a thoroughly sympathetic rendition of the number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, N. Weldon Cocroft; publishers, C. C. Cocroft Music Co., Thomasville, Ga.

552 A Cowboy Romance Len Spencer and Company

A descriptive Record reproducing with the aid of clever effects an episode of the prairie,—an exciting race in the moonlight between cow-punchers for teh hand of an Idaho maid. Leading up to the thrilling climax, which is made wonderfully realistic by the clatter of hoofs, the whimpering of horses and the "yipping" of the cowboys, there is a bit of comedy, some male quartet work and a serenade song (tenor) with banjo accompaniment. A novel and diverting Record which will be a good seller. Author, Len Spencer.

553 Buck Dance Medley John Kimmble

Accordion solo with piano accompaniment. Here's a Record that will quicken your pulse and start your feet "a shufflin' an' a rappin'" with its infectious, lively "rag" rhythm. The easy, artistic manner in which Mr. Kimmble plays this difficult number pronounces him an artist with few, if indeed any, equals in his line. Composer, John Kimmble.

* This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the November PHONOGRAM.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

554 My Heart Has Learned to Love You, Now Do Not Say Good-bye — Joe Maxwell

This number was written by the composer of the famous "Love Me and the World is Mine." To those who care for sentimental Records this song with its pleading melody and profession of enduring devotion will prove a most attractive number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Dave Reed; music, Ernest R. Ball; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

555 Coronation and Doxology — Edison Mixed Quartet

Sacred. Two numbers on one Record,—(a) Coronation ("All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name") and (b) Doxology ("Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow"). This Record should find its way into every home. Organ accompaniment.

556 The Fairest Rose Waltz — Charles Daab

Xylophone solo. We have no hesitation in pronouncing this the most superb Record of its kind ever produced. It is a distinct tribute to the skill of our Recording experts. The selection is a bewitching waltz played as only this master of the xylophone can play it. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, H. Englemann; publishers, Brehm Bros., Erie, Pa.

557 My Old Lady — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo. The title of the selection is the affectionate term in which the singer refers to his mother, to whose memory he pays a glowing tribute. The sentiment of the song is inspiring, the melody graceful and flowing and Mr. Oakland in splendid voice. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Vincent P. Bryan; music, Gus Edwards.

558 Shipwreck and Rescue—Descriptive — Peerless Quartet

A descriptive Record, by male voices, reproducing with startling realism all the terrors of a storm at sea and the thrill of a subsequent rescue by the life-saving crew. Scene 1. Homeward bound, captain, crew and passengers rejoicing—Song, "Home Again"—8 bells. Scene 2. In the teeth of a nor'easter—"All hands furl sail!"—Gale increases in fury—"All aands to quarters!"—Look-out cry, "Land Ho!"—"Hard up with that helm, we're driving on the rocks!"—Terrific crash—"Too late, we're on the rocks!"—Ship springs leak—"Man the pumps!"—"No use, Captain, the ship is sinking!"—"Man the life-boats! Now then, men, remember it's the women first! I'll shoot the first man who puts a foot in those boats!" Scene 3. A rocket from the shore—"We're near the Good Hope Live-Saving Station!"—The signal for help, "Life boat, ahoy!"—The answering cheer—Song of the life-boat crew as they pull to the rescue—Finale. Author, Campbell.

559 The Enterpriser March — New York Military Band

A brilliant and spirited military march by a popular writer—the kind that stirs the pulse of the listener and drives dull care away. Very popular now as a two-step number. Composer, J. Bodewalt Lampe; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

Edison Standard Records for November, 1910

LIST: U. S., 35c; CANADA, 40c.

10436 Merry Maiden March — New York Military Band

This number possesses all the elements that go to constitute a popular Record—a brisk air, excellent volume and a finished performance. It should be a good seller. Composer, Claude d'Albert; publisher, F. Smith, New York City.

10437 Nix on the Glow-Worm, Lena — Billy Murray

From the "Follies of 1910." The manner in which Lena Straus demoralized a boarding-house by "murdering" the "Glow-Worm" on her concertina is told by Billy Murray in his inimitable way in this clever and decidedly tuneful comic song, the chorus of which is constructed on the theme of the popular "Glow-Worm." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Ballard Macdonald; music, Harry Carroll; publishers, Joseph W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10438 That Beautiful Rag — Stella Mayhew and Billie Taylor

In securing this clever pair exclusively for Edison Records we enlisted the services of two of the most versatile and popular artists of the musical comedy and vaudeville stage. They were easily the "stars" of last season's big success, "The Jolly Bachelors." The Record, a catchy, melodious "rag" with a bit of comedy interwoven, will give an idea of their style and what may be expected of them in future numbers. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Irving Berlin; music, Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Co., New York City.

10439 I Wonder How the Old Folks Are at Home — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo. A wanderer's longing for the scenes of his childhood and the aged parents waiting and watching and praying for his return is the pathetic theme which is given a pretty, appealing musical setting. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Herbert S. Lambert; music, F. W. Vanderstoel; publishers, Vanderstoel Music Publishing Co., Williamsport, Pa.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10440 Highland Whiskey and Craig's Reel — William Craig

Violin solo with piano accompaniment. Two characteristic Scottish dance airs on one Record—one a strathspey and the other a reel, and both good lively numbers. Mr. Craig is a veteran violinist who makes a specialty of Scottish folk-dances.

10441 I'd Love to, But I Won't — Bessie Wynn

A vivacious little soubrette comic. The popular comedienne's imitation of the little miss who coyly admits that she would like to kiss her boy sweetheart but "dassent" is as clever as that of the same "grown-up" miss who would like to indulge in the gayeties of the social whirl but dare not. The air is sprightly and pretty. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Bessie Wynn; music, Ted Barron; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10442 Softly Now the Light of Day — Anthony and Harrison

Sacred duet. Both selection and artists are so well known that words would be wasted if spent in extolling the merits of either. Suffice it to say that it is a very desirable Record of its kind. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, G. W. Doane; music, G. M. von Weber.

10443 Nobody Seems To Love Me Now — Joe Maxwell

Tenor solo. The words and music of this song were written by Mr. Maxwell. The theme is the plaint of a motherless, lonely child, and the musical setting, a pretty waltz air, is thoroughly in sympathy with the sentiment of the song. Orchestra accompaniment.

10444 Angel Eyes — Premier Quartet

Male voices. Here is a sample of quartet work which will not be surpassed for some time to come. The close harmony which prevails throughout the rendition of this well-known, melodious song is a perfect delight to the ear. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Kendis and Paley; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

10445 Wood and Straw Galop — Charles Daab

Xylophone solo. A spirited galop. It is impossible to describe the beauty of Mr. Daab's xylophone Records. There is no critic, however partial, but must concede their absolute superiority in every respect to any similar Records yet produced. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, J. Ringleben; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Don'ts for Windows

Don't wait until Saturday to wash your windows.

Don't let your window displays get dusty and stale.

Don't forget that dirty windows shut out trade as well as light.

Don't put in freak displays that have no connection with your business.

Don't neglect to have neat, attractive show cards.

Don't fear people will think you haven't the stock just because it is not all in the window.

Don't have one of your clerks in front of your store washing windows or sweeping the walk after business has started.

Don't show many different kinds of goods at once.

Don't spoil your window display by hanging up show bills or other advertising not concerned with your business.

Don't fail to "hook up" your window displays with your advertising. They should pull together.—Talking Machine World.

Don't forget your Labor Day window. You still have plenty of time to arrange it. Call up all your originality and arrange something in harmony with the spirit of the day. We will publish the two best photos sent us in the October Monthly.

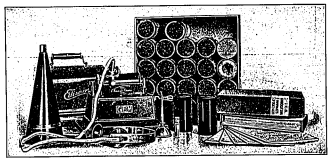
Suspended List Aug. 20, 1910

Superseding All Previous Lists

This list is supplemental to the Suspended Lists which appeared in the June, 1908, and succeeding issues of the EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY. These are still in force and must be given the same consideration by the Trade as if reprinted in full herewith.

MASS., Boston—Harry Rosen, 3 School Street.
Haverhill—Burke's Bicycle & Phonograph Store (L. F. Burke and W. S. Burke).
MICH.—Holland, Allegma and all other points —Albert H. Meyer.

Jobbers and Dealers are asked not to supply any of the above named firms with our apparatus, at addresses given or any other adress.



Don't forget the Combination Outfits. Couple them with the Promotion Plan in your advertising and talks to customers. They go hand in hand. In fact, the Promotion Plan is just what was needed to complete the object of the Combination Proposition. These two propositions are a tempting inducement to the owner of a machine which plays only the two-minute Records.

If you haven't a Combination Outfit for every owner of an unapherolized machine on your mailing list get one at once and keep after those owners until their machines are equipped.

The tones of the new Model "O" Reproducer are marvellously, incomparably sweet and mellow. Don't delay your order. It will sell at first hearing.

This is the New I. C. S. $35 Language Outfit

One firm has ordered 360 outfits. Another firm sold outfits 24 hours after their receipt. They are ordering them all along the line wherever the outfits are shown. Why? Because they are sellers; they are profit makers; and they cater to a field that will quickly appreciate and purchase them.

This outfit provides the very best method for teaching foreign languages in the world; a method that is indorsed by professors of the leading colleges and by the French, German, Spanish, and Italian Embassies in the United States. It teaches French, German, Spanish, and Italian to English-speaking people and teaches English to foreigners.

The I. C. S. outfit consists of an Edison Gem Phonograph made especially for language work, small horn, head-band hearing tube, oil can, and 25 conversational records teaching pronunciation that is guaranteed to be absolutely correct with native intonation and inflection. Accompanying these conversational records, there are pamphlet instruction papers teaching the theory of the language.

Not only is this the most complete and by far the best language outfit on the market, but it is the cheapest, as it sells for only $35. If you are alive to your best business interests, you will write today for further particulars—for the sake of increased business write us today.

Enthusiastic Co-operation is REAL Co-operation

Co-operation of the passive, half-hearted variety is distinctly not co-operation. It is like faith without works—it gets nowhere and accomplishes nothing. It is not good for the Dealer and it is decidedly bad for us. It is not the kind of co-operation we want from our Dealers during the present season; we want the enthusiastic brand that attempts things and does things.

Edison Dealers have every reason to be enthusiastic at this particular time. Indications point to a prosperous year in the Phonograph trade, and the holidays are almost upon us when the optimistic American public is always ready to spend its dollars whether times be good or bad. We are convinced from the way in which orders are pouring in and from the encouraging reports which reach us from all sections of the country that the holiday trade this year is going to be surprisingly heavy.

The Edison line has never been so attractive as it is at this moment, nor has the public ever been offered so many inducements to patronize it. With the Combination Attachment Offer, the Promotion Plan and the new Record Exchange operating as powerful incentives to tempt the idle machines into activity; with the splendid catalogs of Amberol Domestic, Foreign and Grand Opera Records, the Cygnet and "Music Master" Horns, the Combination Reproducer, the peerless Amberola and the other excellent types of Edisons to engage and hold the interest of customers new and old, and with the well known Edison guarantee of honest value and square dealing, which never loses force, to back up his goods, the Edison Dealer is equipped this season as never before to get his share of the dollars spent for amusement and pleasure.

The Dealer who is genuinely enthusiastic and anxious to co-operate with us in making this the biggest Edison year ever will manifest his earnestness by immediately overhauling and replenishing his stock so that it will be representative and complete, by bringing his mailing list up to date, by giving time and thought to the preparation of holiday ads and the dressing of his windows, by securing electros and a good supply of printed matter, by arranging concerts at the store and demonstrations at the home,—in short, by attending at once to the details necessary for a successful appeal to the holiday trade.

The Dealer who does these things now, and with confidence in the final result, is the Dealer with whom it is a pleasure to co-operate. He is the Dealer of the future, who will find that his Edison license is an asset of constantly increasing value. The future holds many good things in store for the Dealer who proves his mettle and worth by giving us a full measure of enthusiastic co-operation and confidence.

The New Record Exchange Plan

PRESIDENT FRANK L. DYER'S LETTER

To the United States Trade:

The Exchange Proposition on two-minute Records, heretofore in force and which was modified by our circular letter of June 17, 1910, was found to be impracticable because of the enormous losses forced upon us in carrying it out. To a much smaller degree losses were also incurred by Jobbers and Dealers, owing to the tying up of capital and the cost of packing and transportation.

Furthermore, the plan of the old Exchange Proposition permitted the trade to order Records indiscriminately and in unlimited quantities, for the reason that those remaining unsold could be eventually returned for full credit when cut out; which was practically equivalent to a consignment business. It is not necessary for us to say that such a result was never contemplated when such an Exchange Proposition was originally put into effect. The old method also involved the destruction of an enormous number of absolutely new Records which would be most desirable to get into the hands of the public, if possible.

The modified Exchange Proposition, as outlined in our circular letter of June 17, 1910, was intended as a temporary or compromise arrangement, which was to remain in effect only until some definite and comprehensive plan could be devised.

We therefore take this occasion to notify the trade that this Exchange Proposition on the two-for-one basis will be terminated December 31, 1910, and to urge upon Dealers the necessity of returning before that date any cut-out Records on lists heretofore issued.

At this time we also wish to express to the trade our thanks for the fair and loyal manner in which our circular of June 17th, 1910, was received.

We have now evolved a new plan, effective September 15, 1910, which, if successful, will take the place of an Exchange Proposition. The plan as described is the result of many discussions with Jobbers and Dealers throughout the country, and we believe that if thoroughly understood by the trade it will meet the hearty reception of them all. The following are the principal advantages of the plan:

First:—The losses heretofore forced upon the factory will be eliminated. This is not entirely one-sided, because Jobbers and Dealers who are familiar with the methods of the National Phonograph Company know that as the factory prospers corresponding advantages are extended to the trade.

Second:—Instead of cutting out a certain number of Records from our catalog, as heretofore, we have selected 500 Records (see list), which will be included in a special catalog to be issued as soon as possible, with the understanding that all Records in this special list will be removed from the regular catalog and the manufacture thereof discontinued one year from the date the special list is issued, or September, 1911. These Records, instead of being returned to us on an Exchange Proposition and absolutely destroyed, are, under this new plan, disposed of to the public under an arrangement whereby, if two old Records are returned, an allowance of 15 cents for both will be permitted against the purchase of one new Record from the special list at 35 cents, making the cash expenditure to the customer 20 cents.

Third:—We are informed that there are thousands of Phonographs at present in the hands of owners that are not being operated, because their owners have such large stocks of Records at their homes that they do not feel that more money should be invested in new Records, or the old Records are not played because they are worn or their owners are tired of them. Under this new plan, every time a Phonograph user buys a Record from the special list he may return two of his old Records, for which he receives 15 cents credit, and in this way his stock of old Records will be reduced, a stock of new Records will be gradually built up, and his interest in the Phonograph revived.

Fourth:—By bringing old customers into the stores of Jobbers and Dealers under the present plan they can be interested in the new Edison products, such as the Combination Phonograph and Attachments, the Amberol Record, the Cygnet Horn and the Amberola, and in this way the Dealers' lists of active customers will be increased.

Fifth:—Under this plan Dealers will be able to reduce their stocks of slow-selling Records (heretofore handled through cut-out lists) not only without loss to them but at an actual profit.

As a further plan for reducing stocks of slow-selling Records contained in the special list, we have also decided to permit Jobbers and Dealers to present nine two-minute Records from this special list in lieu of six special Amberol Records as a bonus to any owner of an Edison Phonograph effecting the sale of a new Edison Phonograph, as explained in our bulletin dated June 25, 1910.

We might say in conclusion that it is an admitted fact that the reason why many stock Records are slow sellers is not because of any inferiority of the Records themselves, but solely because adequate efforts are not made by the trade to sell them, most of their efforts being apparently directed to the sale of current or new Records; and we believe that this plan, properly circularized with special printed matter which we will furnish, will cause a revival of the sale of these particular Records and that they will give equally as good satisfaction to the user as some of the latest ones produced by us.

We print below bulletin and special list, which we believe will make the proposition entirely clear, and we earnestly request the co-operation of the entire trade in making the plan a great success.

Yours very truly,
NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY.

Frank L. Dyer

September 15, 1910. President.

Sales Department Bulletin

For the reasons given in President Dyer's letter, Dealers are hereby advised that the two-for-one Record Exchange proposition now in force will be terminated December 31st, 1910, and thereafter Records may be returned only on the basis of the plan outlined in this bulletin.

A list has been prepared of 500 Standard (two-minute) Records. These will be eliminated from our catalog and their manufacture discontinued one year hence, or on September 15th, 1911. Until the latter date these Records will be retained in our regular catalog, and, in addition, a special catalog of 500 Records will be printed for the use of the trade.

Since we will not take back for credit any of the Records on this list of 500, authorized Edison Dealers are hereby advised that on and after this date, and until further advised, they may sell to the public any of the Records on this special list of 500 at the regular price of 35 cents each, and accept in full payment from the purchaser 20 cents in cash and any two used Edison Records. This plan should enable the trade to dispose of not only their present stocks of special Records but many additional ones.

Jobbers are authorized to accept from Dealers such old Edison Records as have been taken back from the public and allow a credit of two cents each, provided an order is placed for special or stock Standard Records (not including ndeance Records) equal to one-half of the quantity being returned. This will enable Dealers to dispose of the Records taken back from the public and bring their stocks of Standard Records up to date at an actual profit of four cents per Record, instead of returning cut-out Records to the factory at a loss of the cost of packing, transportation, etc.

Records accepted from the public under this plan must be returned to your Jobber, all transportation charges fully prepaid. At the same time a letter must be written your Jobber, advising date of shipment, quantity returned, etc., and the prepaid bill of lading covering shipment must be included. With this must also be enclosed an order for any special or stock Standard Records, (except ndeance), equal to at least one-half the number which is being returned.

NOTE: Advance Records do not become "stock" Records until the next supplement is placed on sale; for example, October Records on sale September 24th, 1910, become "stock" RECORDS on October 25th, 1910.

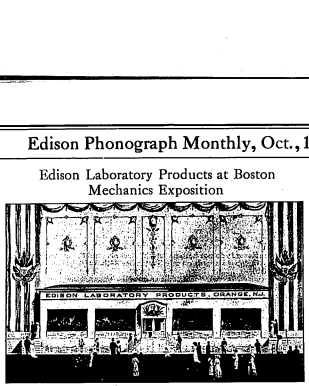
Records when received by your Jobber will be carefully inspected and counted, the Jobber rendering the Dealer a credit of two cents for each old Record returned, such credit to apply on Records ordered as above, thereby enabling the Dealer to purchase such Special or Stock Standard Records as may meet his requirements at 17 cents each.

No deduction for Records returned may be made from any invoice or statement rendered until credit has been actually allowed by the Jobber.

Should any Records be found that are not subject to credit under conditions outlined, or should there be any shortage in count, the Jobber's decision as to quantity to be credited must be final.

No broken Records will be credited.

As a further plan for disposing of Records shown on the special list of 500, Dealers will also be permitted to present to an owner of an Edison Phonograph, who induces the sale of an Edison Phonograph, any nine (9) Records from this special list, in lieu of six (6) Special Amberols, under the conditions outlined in Edison Phonograph Owner's Certificate, Series A, July 1st, 1910.



IMPORTANT: If all the terms, conditions and stipulations contained in this proposition are not fully agreed to and carried out by the Dealer, the Jobber reserves the right to reject any and all Records the Dealer may return. If Dealers fail to purchase the required quantity of Records in exchange for the number returned, the Jobber will not be responsible for the returned Records against which no purchases were made, and Dealers will forfeit all claim thereto.

SPECIAL NOTE: The Records contained in this special list are not returnable under our present Exchange Proposition, which will be discontinued December 31st, 1910.

Edison Laboratory Products at Boston Mechanics Exposition

EXCLUSIVE EXHIBIT OF EDISON PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

The National Phonograph Company's exhibit at the Boston Mechanics Exposition to be held in Mechanics' Building, Boston, Mass., October 3-29 inst, will be the most elaborate and comprehensive display of talking machine products ever made at an industrial exposition. Not only will it eclipse anything of the kind ever before attempted, but it will surpass in completeness, size and attractiveness all other exhibits at the Exposition.

The exhibit will be shown in Grand Hall, the largest of the eight halls in the Mechanics' Building, which is the largest permanent exposition building in America. An idea of its size will be gained from the statement that the seating capacity of Grand Hall alone is 10,000.

Facing the main entrance of this hall is a huge stage, 80' wide by 40' deep. This stage, the most desirable and eagerly sought space in the Exposition, has been secured for the National exhibit. It dominates the entire hall and can be seen from any one of the 2,500 seats in the gallery. The entire stage will be enclosed by means of an ornamental front with plate glass windows and ends in the manner illustrated by the cut, which was made from a pen and ink sketch and gives but a faint idea of the attractiveness of the scheme. A large sum of money has been spent upon the exterior and interior equipment and decoration of the stage, which is the envy of the other exhibitors at the Exposition.

The windows, which will be raised about two feet from the floor, will be used to display Edison Phonographs exclusively. The enclosed floor space immediately in front of the stage will be used for the display of the other Laboratory products. Over the main stairway to the stage an oil painting of Thomas A. Edison, 25" by 30", the work of a noted Boston artist, will be suspended. This entrance will be used for admission only, the two side entrances being reserved for purpose of exit.

Above the main entrance and cleverly concealed in the decorative scheme will be placed a fire-proof operator's booth, from which Edison Motion Pictures will be projected upon a screen at the rear of the stage. The stage, which will accommodate 600 persons, will be transformed into a cosy theatre for the purpose. Light and ventilation will be supplied by special apparatus installed in the dome of the stage. Shows will be given at regular intervals daily and will no doubt help to make the Edison exhibit the most popular and frequented spot in the Exposition.

A platform 28" wide and 3" high will run around the wall spaces of the stage and back of plate glass windows in front, upon which platform every type of Edison Phonograph from the Ambrola to the Gem, Phonograph Accessories and Records will be displayed and demonstrated. Three large rooms at the rear of the stage have been turned over to the Edison Jobbers in Boston —The Ivey Johnson Sporting Goods Company, The Boston Cycle and Sundry Company and The Eastern Talking Machine Company—who will each have an active sales force on hand to demonstrate the superiority of the Edison line.

The far-reaching effect of this exclusive display of Edison Phonographs and Records will be appreciated when it is stated that for the past five years the daily attendance at this annual Exposition has averaged twenty-five thousand, or an approximate attendance during the entire period of more than half a million. Within a radius of fifty miles from Boston is a population of over four million of people, and as all railroad lines running into the city have offered special low excursion rates for the Exposition, the attendance this year is expected to break all previous records.

A supply of handsomely engraved invitations for the Exposition has been sent to New England Dealers, and Boston Jobbers have been supplied with liberal quantities for distribution among present and prospective customers. These invitations entitle the holder to free admission to the Exposition.

The exhibit will be under the immediate supervision of Sales Manager, F. K. Dolbeer, who will have a competent corps of assistants working with him.

The United States Marine Band, which has contributed so many charming numbers to the Edison Catalog, will furnish music from the balcony of Grand Hall for the first two weeks of the Exposition.

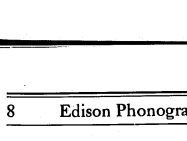
Special Printed Matter

An attractive "Fair Folder" (Form 1845) has been prepared and shipments are now on their way to Jobbers. It is printed in three colors—black, red and buff—and explains in catchy and convincing phrase, with clever illustrations, why the Edison is the greatest of all sound-reproducing instruments.

This Form is particularly intended for use in connection with exhibits at county fairs, and Jobbers and Dealers who intend to display their goods at such affairs are urged to make plentiful use of the Folder, which will be found ideal for the purpose. It is also suitable for general distribution and store use, and Dealers are advised to order a liberal supply from their Jobbers at once and use it to the best possible advantage.

Study well the new Record Plan, and familiarize yourself with its details that you may be able to handle it intelligently and realize its possibilities. It contains more than is apparent on the surface.

Annual Meeting of Traveling Staff



The traveling representatives of the Company were called into the factory for their annual assembly on September 5th. From that date on meetings were held daily until Saturday, September 10th, when they left for their respective destinations. Very few changes have been made in the territorial assignments of the staff. While at the factory the salesmen busied themselves in discussing details of the business with the various officials and heads of departments and in exchanging views and experiences among themselves. At their daily sessions they were addressed by the officials and department managers on matters of moment and given instructions in regard to present and future policies and intentions of the Company. Not all the time was spent in business discussions, however, for the travelers—and a jolly lot of fellows they are—took advantage of the attractions in the nearby metropolis. On Wednesday, September 7th, the entire staff visited the Polo Grounds en masse and "rooted" successfully for the New York "Giants." They were entertained on several occasions by the Company at the Orange Club and at the Essex County Country Club. One and all they are chock full of enthusiasm at the prospect of good business in the Edison line this Fall and Winter, and each left for his respective destination determined to eclipse his associates in the sum total of business during the coming campaign.

Be Specific with Cygnet Horn Orders

When ordering Cygnet Horns separately state whether you want spring or bolt suspension. In event of your failure to do so, we will send Horns equipped with bolt suspension, which of course are not adapted for use with the spring suspension Horn Crane. The same caution applies to separate orders for Horn Cranes to be used on machines at present in use or in stock.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co., Orange, N. J.

The Other 13,000

A view of the Edison Phonograph section of the Fort Bragg, (Cal.) Music House, Alfred Widdop, proprietor. Prosperity is evident at a glance, and care and attention to details are clearly shown in the admirable arrangement and display of the stock. We were so impressed by this picture that we requested Mr. Widdop to relate for the edification of the trade his experience in handling the Edison line; and here it is, told in characteristically modest and concise phrase:

"It has been a steady growth with me since 1907 when I purchased my initial order. Nothing I have ever handled has given me so much satisfaction, and I am fortunate in having the most efficient and obliging of Jobbers in the Pacific Phonograph Co.

"I have a 20 H. P. Ford and cover a large territory giving free concerts in the home. Sales are easily made in this way, and I attribute my success with the line to this manner of work and to the fact that at all times I keep a full catalog of Records and a complete line of machines neatly displayed."

Thomas A. Purseglove of Northampton, Mass., is one Dealer who has "made good" with a vengeance. The indisputable evidence of that fact is the handsome home he has built entirely on the profits of Edison sales. A photograph of his residence was transmitted to us recently through his friend "Scotty" (J. W. Scott, Salesman), and a very beautiful home it is,—a credit to its owner. Mr. Purseglove has christened his home "The House That Jack Built."

The Edison as a Thespian

The Silverstone Talking Machine Company, St. Louis, Mo., advises us of an original comedy which formed part of an entertainment recently given by the Women's Club of Christ Church Cathedral in that city.

The title of the play was "A Man's Voice," and the plot concerned a young girl who was prevented from seeing her lover by two maiden (?) aunts. The girl and her man-hating chaperones lived in a "hotel for women only" where the sound of a man's voice was prohibited. The lover, denied the privilege of seeing or communicating with his inamorata, stole a march upon her guardians by sending her a cheering message on an Edison Record (made by the Silverstone T. M. Co.). The sound of a man's voice in the sacred precincts of the hotel startled the inmates into a state of hysterics until reassured that the owner had not accompanied it. Then they decided that "a man's voice did not sound so badly after all when heard on an Edison Phonograph" and kept the Record for future analysis(!), while the young lady promptly declared her intention of forsaking her aunts and the "Adamless Eden" for the owner of the voice. Aunties finally relented: everybody happy.

The Silverstone people report that the play was decidedly amusing and well received.

Another evidence of the fun which lies in the home recording feature of the Edison Phonograph.

The opinion entertained by the trade generally in regard to the new Model "O" Reproducer is indicated by the following letter from F. W. Bush, Penn Yan, N. Y., who recently ordered a new style "E" Triumph which is equipped with the Model "O":

"I received the New Style "E" Phonograph with Cygnet Horn which you sent me, and it is certainly a great improvement over the other styles.

"Without hearing it no one would believe that a tone so full and natural could come from a piece of copper. It seems exactly as though the singer were hidden in the Horn.

"I predict a great trade for you with this machine."

Recognized Lauder's Voice

The Eureka Phonograph Company of Eureka, Cal., is a concern of hustlers. They call on the trade once a month, keep a complete stock of domestic and Grand Opera Records as well as a good stock of foreign selections, and always maintain a full line of Edison machines including several Amberolas. They are always after the business and allow no obstacle to prevent them from at least attempting to get it.

Mr. Hillman of the Company relates an incident showing how he sold a machine under difficulties. He learned that there was an old Scotch couple living up in the mountains whose frugal habits had enabled them to acquire a nice little place of their own, and decided that he would sell them a Phonograph. Their house was removed about five miles from the main road and there was only a trail leading up the steep mountain side, but this did not deter him. Packing a Standard machine and a bunch of Records, he made the climb and reached the summit more dead than alive. He found the old lady at home, out in the shed threshing beans, her attire consisting principally of an old red petticoat pinned above her knees. When he told her that he had come to sell her a Phonograph she "went up in the air"—said she hated the things and wouldn't have one in the house. He made up his mind, however, that after such a climb he would at least have an audience even if it was an unappreciative one. So he put on a Record, and luckily for him his choice was a song by Harry Lauder. He said it was a sight to see the old lady. She had known Lauder in his schoolboy days and recognized his voice instantly. Running to the house, she returned in a more presentable garb, and with cash for the machine and a number of Lauder Records. This old couple to-day are among the best of Mr. Hillman's customers.

A clever little advertising "stunt" employed by The Hoeffler Manufacturing Company of 306 Water Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is the mailing of a post-card in colors showing a view of their talking machine department to prospective purchasers. Written in ink on the post-card is the following message, which it goes without saying will be read throughout by the recipient:

"While in Milwaukee the other day I purchased an Edison Phonograph and it's a dandy, and I can make my own Records. I only pay one dollar a week. This is easy. Had a grand time.

Yours,
JACK."

"Pound" Home Recording

We have been "pounding" the home recording feature of the Edison very hard of late in our ads, and we urge you to follow our example in every way possible. It's an exclusive feature of the instrument and a tremendous selling argument. There is more real fun and pleasure to be derived from an evening spent in making home-made Records than in a dozen recitals, and it's up to you to convince the public of the fact.

Why not prove it in a really convincing way? Advertise a demonstration at your store and show the possibilities of home recording and the simplicity of the scheme. Make the affair as informal as you can. Have some one on hand to make a Record of a song, a recitation or a speech; then invite your audience to speak a few words into the horn and let them hear their own Records. Tell them of the fun they can have with "Record parties," and refer also to the sentimental side of the subject,—how they can record the prattle of their babies, the musical, vocal and elocutionary efforts of their older children and the voices of their parents and friends, to be treasured in the years to come.

There are lots of possibilities in machine sales to the Dealer who makes the most of the home recording feature of the Edison. There is also nice profit in the sale and the shaving of blanks; and it brings steady customers to your store, which will add to your sales of Records and Accessories.

Lost or Stolen Machines

Edison Gem Phonograph No. 3,084,890 and Home No. 375,589, with Cygnet Horn, have been reported missing by one of our Dealers. Jobbers and Dealers are requested to keep on the look-out for these machines and to promptly communicate to our Agreement Department, Orange, N. J., any clue to their whereabouts, in order that immediate steps may be taken to restore them to their rightful owners.

To the Canadian Trade

While the Bulletin does not contain a clause to that effect, our Canadian friends will understand that the new Record Exchange Plan described in the pages of this issue of the Monthly does not apply to Canada, for the reasons which operate to prevent the present Exchange Proposition from being extended there.

Selling the Goods

How does the new Record Exchange Plan strike you? Pretty fair and liberal solution of the question, isn't it? We don't think there will be much difference of opinion about it.

It's clearly up to you, Mr. Dealer, to see that the new plan produces just the results we intend it shall, and the sooner you get started on it just so much the sooner will those results be brought about.

Special literature—a catalog of the 500 Records, a window hanger and a post-card—will leave the factory in a day or two. The latter form is an invitation to the phonograph owner to call at your store and learn how to dispose of his present stock of Records.

Meanwhile, don't sit down and wait for this literature to arrive. You can't afford the delay. Get busy at once, if you haven't done so, and advertise the plan in every way possible. Remember that the more you deplete your customer's stock of worn out or undesirable Records, the more room you make for sales of Records from the regular catalog and the quicker your stock of slow selling Records will go; and all the time you are making a profit of 4c. on every one of such Records you sell.

Go at it hammer and tongs and clean up all the old stuff in your territory. You will make the owners of such Records steady customers for the new supplements and in addition will acquaint them with the brand new features of the line. In other words you will convert them from diffident machine owners to enthusiastic and regular purchasers of Edison goods.

We frequently pass Dealers' stores which are as free of window cards as a hen is of teeth. Wrong—dead wrong. There isn't another line of goods on the market in which there are more suggestions for catchy, attractive cards as the Edison line. You have a big catalog of standard and popular stuff; you get the latest "hits" as they come out; the various types of machines and accessories are rich in suggestions. Consider the window card, therefore, and make liberal use of it during the coming season.

Just now, with the Amberola, the new Model "O" Reproducer, the Combination Attachment and Promotion Plan propositions and the Record Exchange offer, you have a world of material to draw upon. Put in a card at once—and make it one that will be sure to catch the eye of the passer-by—on the Record Exchange offer, something like:

OLD EDISON RECORDS EXCHANGED FOR NEW STEP INSIDE AND
ASK US FOR DETAILS

In some States, particularly in the South and West, county fairs will be held all through the month of October and well into November. Wise is the Dealer who secures a space at his local county fair and makes an attractive display of his goods. He is making an investment which will pay him manifold, both in immediate and future profits. The people who attend exhibits on this order are for the most part the people whose opportunities for entertainment during the Winter months are necessarily limited. They are, therefore, easily impressed by anything which offers such splendid possibilities of entertainment and fun during the "shut-in" period as does the Edison. Dealers who are fortunately so located as to be able to draw upon this class of trade, and who are given the opportunity of appealing to it at a county fair, make a big mistake if they fail to do so.

Concerts are the best kind of publicity. The Dealer who hasn't made some preparation for a series of concerts at his store during the fall and winter is negligent, criminally negligent, of his opportunities. There is absolutely no better means of educating the people of your town to a proper appreciation of the present-day development of the Edison and of adding to your roster of good Record customers than a well advertised concert. Dealers who have once tried this plan have never abandoned it. We have yet to hear of a solitary instance where it can be truly said that a series of concerts, advertised and conducted as they should be, have failed to bring satisfactory results. By all means give the concert plan a trial if you have never done so.

"All sales arguments and advice are fruitless if your stock is not complete.

Amberol 4minute Records

Edison Amberol Records stand today as the greatest triumph in record making.

They have brought to Phonograph owners songs and music never before offered in record form.

Prior to the perfection of Amberol Records much of the Popular music of the day could not be put into a record. It suffered at all. It was spoiled by the cut-off.

The Amberol Records, playing four and a half minutes, offer each music, executed as the composer intended and each selection is complete.

Before you buy a sound reproducing instrument, hear an Edison Phonograph play an Amberol Record. Look over the Edison Record list and see the songs and selections offered exclusively on Amberol Records and remember that it's the Edison Phonograph that plays both Amberol (4-minute) and Standard (2-minute) Records.

There is an Edison Phonograph at whatever price you wish to pay, from the Gem at $15.50 to the Amberola at $200.00.

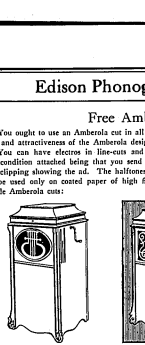
Which brings some customers all the way to your store and others part way. Reach out with your advertising and draw the others into your store.

An advertisement without its illustration is like a good dish spoiled through lack of seasoning. Always illustrate your ads. when possible to do so. We will supply the electros; all we ask is proof that you use them. Write us to-day and ask us about electros, stating what particular features you intend to advertise and about how much space you propose to use, so that we can judge what electros will best suit your purpose.

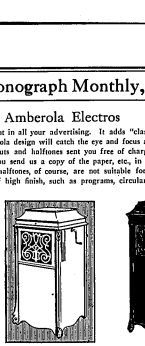
Let us remind you again that we can supply you with decalcomanias of "The Old Couple and the Edison Phonograph" for use in local moving picture shows. They are in two styles, —plain and in colors—and are sold for 35c and 90c respectively. Followed by a home-made slide or two with an original ad. of your own calling attention to some new feature of the Edison and giving you terms of payment, address, etc., these decalcomanias will prove themselves good stuff in the advertising line. This is a most effective way of advertising the new Record Exchange, for the ad. will be seen by constantly changing audiences day and night. It is also an excellent method of bringing your holiday offers before the greatest number of people.

Revive your dance Record talks to your customers both over the counter and in your ads. Prepare a list of the Records from the catalog and keep it handy for reference when demonstrating. Make it the subject of a window card, too. The dancing season will soon be in full swing, and the catalog is replete with numbers with which you can appeal irresistibly to lovers of "the light fantastic." Your dance Records will sell machines for you if you let them.



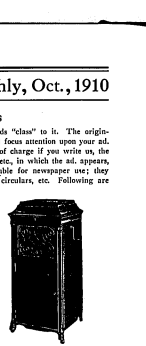
Can a substantial house be built upon a frail foundation? Your stock is the foundation of your business. How can you hope to build up a successful business if your foundation lacks solidity? Look to the foundation by all means, and get in shape for the holiday trade. To no other business does the old adage, "The early bird catches the worm," apply with greater force than to the Phonograph business.

Our success in life is commensurate with our efforts. To those who are easily discouraged by the buffets of fate success comes in restricted measure; for the daring, the persistent, the enthusiastic the measure of success is overflowing.



Free Amberola Electros

You ought to use an Amberola cut in all your advertising. It adds "class" to it. The originality and attractiveness of the Amberola design will catch the eye and focus attention upon your ad.



You can have electros in line-cuts and halftones sent you free of charge if you write us, the only condition attached being that you send us a copy of the paper, etc., in which the ad. appears, or a clipping showing the ad. The halftones, of course, are not suitable for newspaper use; they can be used only on coated paper of high finish, such as programs, circulars, etc. Following are sample Amberola cuts:

No. 727

No. 719

No. 742

We can also supply the following line-cuts: No. 728 (1¾" x 3"), No. 733 (⅝" x 1") and No. 747 (2⅝" x 4"), similar to No. 727; also No. 734 (2" x 3") and No. 738 (1" x ⅝"), similar to No. 739. Another Special "Hit"

Within a day or two shipments will leave the factory of "Silver Bell," Amberol No. 576 on the December list. As usual shipments will be made to Eastern Jobbers first, and after them, in the order named, to Central, Southern and Western Jobbers. The usual special literature—an attractive Window Hanger and Folder—will accompany the Records.

Don't fail to order liberally of this Record, which without any doubt will prove as big a seller as "Red Wing," "Rainbow," or any other selection of its kind we have ever listed. "Silver Bell" is an immense favorite in the East just now and its popularity is fast spreading throughout the country. It is being featured by George Evans' "Honey Boy" Minstrels and is scoring a tremendous success. The Record has been issued just in time to anticipate the popularity of the song. It goes on sale as soon as received.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

40034 Lenz (Hildach) Sung in German Leo Slezak, Tenor
LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

German "lieder" have steadily grown in the appreciation of other nations and especially with the American public. This "Spring" song by Hildach is a bright, joyous expression of the realization that once again has the year's most attractive, most welcome season come. Mr. Slezak, whose reputation as an interpreter of this kind of music is as great as that of opera, has given one of his masterful renditions of this so justly popular song. Orchestra accompaniment.

40035 Meistersinger-Preislied (Wagner) Sung in German Karl Jörn, Tenor
LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

No other opera of Wagner's has so fastened itself in the affection and admiration of music lovers as has his "Meistersinger." Of all the wonderful beauties of this opera there stands forth as a star above stars Walter's "Preislied," with which he enters the tournament for the hand and heart of his adored Eva. Mr. Jörn sings this number with all the poetic feeling and high art it demands, and has again made a most beautiful Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

40036 Boheme-Mi chiamano Mimi (Puccini) Sung in Italian Lucrezia Bori, Soprano
LIST: U. S., $2.00; CANADA, $2.50

"They call me Mimi. Why? I do not know." Thus in simple words does the heroine of the ever popular "Boheme" give the indication of her sweet and unaffected character, and tells her life story. Having been previously told by Rodolfo who and what he was, these two young people, drawn together by their love of sudden growth, have in a simple, sweet manner made themselves all in all to each other, and their romance is begun. Mlle. Bori excels by her girlishly exquisite interpretation of this character. Orchestra accompaniment.

30031 Manon-Ah! dieper, vision (Massenet) Sung in Italian Aristodemo Giorgini, Tenor
LIST: U. S., $1.00; CANADA, $1.25

Des Grieux, whose love for Manon has caused him all kinds of trouble, has decided to take the vows of the church. In this aria, in which Des Grieux is assailed by the vision of his former love and happiness, and is battling for the supremacy of his soul-life, there are cleverly interwoven love, despair and religion. The distant roll of the organ and the peal of the church bells make a vivid setting for the lover's appeal for strength and faith. Giorgini has again made a most interesting and pleasing Record of this master-piece of Massenet's. Orchestra accompaniment.

35010 Rigoletto-Caro nome (Verdi) Sung in Italian Selma Kurz, Soprano
LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.00

Gilda, the only beautiful character in Verdi's so well known opera, has secretly been made love to and has fallen in love with the student, Walter Maldé, who is none other than the duke in disguise. In this aria the young girl dwells in soliloquy and rapture on the name of her pretended student. Miss Selma Kurz sings this number with all the simplicity of girlish sentiment but bursts forth in passion where the occasion requires, and has thus interpreted this number in the most perfect way. Orchestra accompaniment.

Amberol Record by Sara Bernhardt

35011 Les Bouffons-"La Brise" Conte (Zamacois) In French — Sara Bernhardt

LIST: U. S., $1.50; CANADA, $2.00

We are proud to offer this month another Record by the "Queen of Tragedy," Sara Bernhardt. In bringing Madame Bernhardt to the hearthstones of our patrons we feel that we are demonstrating one of the greatest achievements of the Edison Phonograph. Even if Madame Bernhardt has drunk deep of the Fountain of Youth, the day must come when she would be naught but a tradition were it not for Thomas A. Edison. In securing examples of the charm of her voice and the "bright intelligence of her diction," we are laying up treasures not only for our friends of to-day, but for the generations of the distant future. Madame Bernhardt is one of the great ones of the world as well as of the stage. Her personality is so winning that had she lived in the time of Cleopatra that lady would have had a most formidable rival for the affections of Cæsar. Madame Bernhardt's admirers (and whom do they not include?) have now another chance to enjoy her melodious voice and the wonderful resources of her art.

Edison Amberol Records for December, 1910

LIST: U. S., 50c; CANADA, 65c

560 Bells of Christmas — Edison Concert Band and Chorus

Our annual Christmas number. A glorious hymn of jubilation heralding the birth of the Infant Saviour here arranged for band and quartet. The selection is in three verses. The rendition is interspersed with solos, and the arrangement is both novel and attractive, the band murmuring with the quartet which sings with band accompaniment. The merry pealing of chimes and bells throughout the rendition imparts a delightful Christmas flavor to the selection and adds greatly to the effect. A Record which will set out only at Yuletide but every day of the year. Words, Birdie Bell; music, I. H. Meredith; publishers, Tullar-Meredith Company, New York City.

561 Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer — Marie Narelle

Soprano solo. This beautiful song, one of the best known and beloved in the English language, was the principal number of the opera, "Lurline," written by the celebrated composer, Wm. Vincent Wallace and produced for the first time at Covent Garden, Feb. 23, 1860. Miss Narelle has easily met the exacting demands of this selection, her lovely voice of wide register and velvet quality combining with an infinite charm of expression and a finished vocal style to offer a really superb interpretation. This is by long odds the most notable contribution to the Edison catalog thus far made by this renowned artist, who is under exclusive contract to sing for Edison Records only. Orchestra accompaniment.

562 Valley Flower — Frederic H. Potter & Chorus

The phenomenal popularity of "Red Wing" (Amberol No. 541, Standard No. 9622) bids fair to be repeated in this Indian love song which possesses in a marked degree all the characteristics of a popular song of that type. The wooing of the chieftain's daughter is told in attractive verse set to an unusually "swingy" air, and Mr. Potter sings the number most pleasingly, assisted by a well-balanced male quartet. The rendition is illuminated by clever effects. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Kerry Mills; publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

563 Uncle Josh's Rheumatism — Cal Stewart

Back again after a prolonged siege of "roomatics," our old friend "Uncle Josh" tells in convulsing detail the effects of the many remedies prescribed for him by well meaning but misguided friends—and physicians! Despite their remedies his leg persisted in "flopping raound an' kickin' folks" until he cured it by some radical home treatment. His description of the treatment he received from each of the various branches of the medical profession,—homeopath, alopath and osteopath—is a "scream." His opinion of the curative powers of each is expressed by him in the significant phrase, "All paths lead to the grave!"

564 The Mocking Bird—Fantasia — Charles Daab

Xylophone solo. It is safe to say that there is not a xylophone artist before the public to-day who can offer so brilliant an interpretation of this difficult fantasia as does Mr. Daab. His masterly playing of the selection is a splendid exhibition of skill, while the wonderful naturalness of the reproduction is an enviable compliment to Edison Records. The popularity of Mr. Daab's Records sustains our judgment in securing his exclusive services. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Winner-Stobbe; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

565 My Old Girl — Manuel Romain

Tenor solo. Admirers of the favorite minstrel tenor will acclaim this one of his very best efforts for Edison Records. The song is on the popular light sentimental order, cheerful in theme and tuneful in melody. Its catchy two-step swing is a most agreeable change from the usual languorous melody of the majority of sentimental numbers, and Mr. Romain has adapted himself splendidly to the change, his sweet voice and pleasing style being heard to the very best advantage. Mr. Romain's reputation as a singer of sentimental songs is known the country over, and the fact that he is an exclusive Edison artist is a talking point for the Dealer. Particular attention is drawn to the pretty orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, J. R. Shannon; publishers, Grinnell Brothers, Detroit, Mich.

566 Phoebe Jane — Sophie Tucker

A Southern serenade. A typical darkey love plaint in which is drawn a vivid picture of the entrancing charms of a Southern moonlight. The air is melodious in the extreme, of the peculiar lesitating type made popular by the famous minstrel, Eddie Leonard. "Phoebe Jane" is Miss Tucker's first Amberol Record for the Edison catalog and it is indeed a splendid performance that she has given us. Her dialect, enunciation and style are beyond reproach, while there is an abundance of pleasing volume throughout. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Richard Henry Buck; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Publishing Company, New York City.

567 My Wild Irish Rose — Oakland & Thompson

Counter-tenor and baritone. One of the prettiest and most popular waltz songs ever written is here offered in novel vocalization. The success of the first duet Record made by these two artists was so emphatic as to leave no doubt that the public would welcome more of their efforts. In this instance the lines of the verse are sung alternately as solos and duets, Mr. Thompson leading, and the chorus is sung as a duet. Chauncey Olcott, the well-known Irish tenor, wrote the words and music of this song which is still one of the favorite numbers in his repertoire. This Record can not fail to revive the popularity of the song. Orchestra accompaniment. Publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

568 Honey Will Long For You — Billy Murray & Chorus

A typical plantation melody is this plaintive little ballad in which a darkey pledges love and devotion to his dusky queen at parting. The song possesses real poetic merit and the air, a rhythmic two-step of rather slow tempo, will be found particularly engaging. Mr. Murray has made a charming Record of the number, in voice, dialect and expression fully meeting its requirements. Billy Murray's Records are always big sellers and this number will prove no exception to the rule. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Arthur Longbrake; music, Ed. Edwards; publishers, The Jos. Morris Co., New York City.

569 Selection from "The Wizard of the Nile" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"The Wizard of the Nile" will be pleasantly remembered by theatre-goers as one of the most tuneful and successful of Herbert's many operas, and in this Record they will recognize the choicest numbers of the production, viz.: "Father Nile, Keep Us in Thy Care"; "My Love, Awake"; "Song of the Optimist"; "Starlight, Star Bright"; "Cleopatra's Entrance Song"; "Egyptian March"; "My Angeline," and "Finale of the First Act." A sparkling collection of melodies brilliantly played and with considerably more volume than is customary with Herbert's performances.

570 The Man in the Silvery Moon — Helen Clark & Chorus

Mezzo-soprano solo with chorus. Miss Clark, who here makes her bow as an Edison artist, has chosen a most agreeable vehicle for her introduction to the public. One of the latest of light sentimental compositions, it is rapidly winning its way to popularity. In well-written verse the tale of a maiden's love for the man in the moon is told, and set to an airy, lilting melody whose rhythm, especially in the chorus, is unusually well defined. Miss Clark is the fortunate possessor of a voice of beautiful quality, and her pleasing vocal style and clear enunciation stamp her as a decided acquisition to the catalog. Her first Record will undoubtedly win her hosts of admirers. A well balanced male quartet assists her in the chorus. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, A. Seymour Brown; music, Nat D. Ayer; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

571 Phaniola—"Pretty's the Picture I'm Planning" — Joe Maxwell

Tenor solo. A new and pretty waltz song with an original idea, written by the popular composer, Gus Edwards, who wrote the ever welcome "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" (Amberol No. 421, Standard No. 10262). The "planning" is done by a pair of youthful lovers who paint a charming idyllic picture, the central figure of which is the rose-clad cottage in which they propose to live their happy future. Mr. Maxwell sings the dainty number exceedingly well. This is a Record which the lover of sentimental numbers will be glad to add to his collection. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Will D. Cobb; music, Gus Edwards; publisher, Gus Edwards, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

572 Uncle Tom's Cabin—Entrance of Topsy — Len Spencer & Company

The well-known scene from Act I of Harriet Beecher Stowe's immortal work is here given a most realistic reproduction. After the singing of "Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane" and "Dixie" to a banjo accompaniment, the familiar conversation between the well-known characters of the play ensues, and Topsy appears upon the scene and displays her accomplishments as a singer and dancer, banjos also playing her accompaniment. Miss Jones as Topsy gives fresh evidence of her versatility. Anybody who has ever seen "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—and who hasn't?—will thoroughly appreciate this Record.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

St. Clare	Len Spencer
Aunt Ophelia ("How shiftless!")	Ethel Herbert
Eva	Myrtle Spencer
Uncle Tom	Len Spencer
Topsy ("Golly, I'se wicked!")	Ada Jones
Banjos	Meaux, Osmun and Duffy

Loafers on the Levee, etc.

573 The Dublin Rag — Edward M. Favor

The comic "hit" of the musical production "Madame Sherry,"—a rollicking, lilting song undeniably of Irish construction, describing the important part which "The Dublin Rag" has played in Irish history as well as its present-day influence on Irish love-making! Themes of various Irish melodies cleverly thread their way in and out of the selection, while the course of its pleasing melody continues undisturbed. Orchestra accompaniment. Mr. Favor sings it delightfully with a brogue that cannot be excelled. Words, Harold Atteridge; music, Phil Schwartz; publisher, Leo Feist, New York City.

574 By the Light of the Silvery Moon Medley — New York Military Band

This selection is taken from Bits of Remick's Hits, Overture No. 7, and introduces the following catchy and popular numbers: "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" (Amberol Record No. 421); "Put on your Old Grey Bonnet" (Amberol Record No. 366); The Garden of Roses" (Amberol Record No. 434), and "What's the Matter with Father" (Standard Record No. 10369). The arrangement of several popular song melodies in one band number is constantly growing in favor, and we are pleased to recommend this as a most attractive selection on that order. Composer, J. Bodewalt Lampe; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

575 The Birthday of a King — James F. Harrison and Mixed Chorus

A truly magnificent Record of a beautiful Christmas anthem commemorating the birth of the Child of Bethlehem. Mr. Harrison sings the number with fine appreciation of its impressive theme, his richly resonant voice and refined vocal method being employed in a manner which will call for unqualified admiration. He is given most effective assistance by a chorus of mixed voices singing allelulias of joy and thanksgiving over the birth of The King, and an additional touch of reverence is lent to the rendition by a splendid organ accompaniment. A Record which will make a distinct "hit," especially during the holidays. Words and music, W. H. Neidlinger; publisher, G. Schirmer, New York City.

576 Silver Bell — Ada Jones & Billy Murray

An Indian love song which will at least equal if not surpass in popularity any song of its type yet composed. It is easily the big "hit" of the day and went on sale as a "Special" because of its immense popularity. The words are attractive, more so than usual, and the air delightful, —a sparkling, rhythmic two-step melody which captivates on first hearing. This rendition calls for warmest praise, for both Miss Jones and Mr. Murray seem to have outdone themselves in this instance. A bell solo with violin accompaniment is introduced most appropriately between each repetition of the chorus, a novel and pleasing feature of which is Mr. Murray's singing of a few bars of "Home, Sweet Home" while Miss Jones is confining herself to the words and music of the song. This Record is expected to vie with the biggest sellers we have ever catalogued. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Edward Madden; music, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

577 Every Little Movement—Intermezzo from "Madame Sherry" — American Standard Orchestra

The basis of this dainty intermezzo is the most popular air of the production, the tuneful "Every Little Movement" song, whose delightfully infectious melody quickly and indelibly stamps itself upon the memory. It is here used to open and conclude the Record, and another "hit" of the show, "The Butterfly Dance," a graceful, airy number which contrasts pleasantly with the main idea, is also introduced in this selection. This Record is a musical treat which can not fail to be appreciated. Composer, Karl Hoschna; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

* This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the November PHONOGRAM.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

578 Moonlight on the Lake — Knickerbocker Quartet

Male voices. A standard quartet number whose popularity on Edison Records may be judged from the fact that it has been in our Standard Catalog (No. 2238) for more than twelve years. As an Amberol Record, needless to say, it will be found doubly entertaining, the greater opportunities for novelty and variety in the vocal arrangement having been taken full advantage of. This Record must be acknowledged one of the very best quartet numbers in the Edison catalog. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, C. A. White; publishers, White-Smith Pub. Co., New York City.

579 Manila Waltz — United States Marine Band

This graceful, fascinating waltz, the work of S. Chafre, a native Filipino, was given to Mr. Santlemann, the director of the U. S. Marine Band, to play at the Filipino dinner in Washington. It scored an immediate "hit" on that occasion and is today very popular with the Army and Naval officials at Washington, being played at all social functions at the "White House" by the very organization which here renders it for Edison Records. The composition will plead its own cause, for it is alive with a subtle, alluring charm of languorous melody which is interpreted in masterly style by the "President's Own." We select this Record as one of the most popular of the Amberol list.

Edison Standard Records for December, 1910

LIST: U. S., 35c; CANADA, 40c

10446 The Angels' Song — Edison Concert Band and Chorus

Our annual Christmas number. The arrangement of this beautiful Christmas hymn is much the same as in the Amberol number of the same type, the band alternating with the singers and also playing their accompaniment. The singing is led by James F. Harrison with chorus accompaniment. Both vocal and band renditions are interspersed with the joyous pealing of bells and Christmas chimes. This Record ought to prove equally as popular on the Standard as its prototype on the Amberol list. Words, Edith S. Tillotson; music, Leonard Parker; publishers, Millar-Meredith Company, New York City.

10447 There's a Clock Upon the Mantel Striking One, Two, Three — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo. The theme of this selection is pathetic in the extreme—an aged mother sitting in lonely vigil for her wandering boy's return while the clock upon the mantel is tolling off the long hours of the night—and the melodic setting is appropriately plaintive. The greatest of all counter-tenors sings the number with profoundly sympathetic expression. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, James M. Reilly; publisher, Sol Bloom, New York City.

10448 "Honor Bright, I Loves Yer Right" — Ada Jones and Len Spencer

Vaudeville sketch in the form of a conversational song, written in the thoroughly up-to-date vernacular of the street. Under the quaintness of its verbal garb there is a touch of real sentiment in the sketch which will remind the listener, who may have forgotten, that in affairs of the heart "all the world's a kin." As an example of the latest and most expressive slang phraseology and of clever character work on the part of Miss Jones and Mr. Spencer, this selection can hardly be approached.

10449 Reuben Rag — Sophie Tucker

Comic song. Farmer Brown, infected by the hypnotic melody of the "Reuben Rag," introduced it into his household, and the alarming effect which it exerted upon the members thereof, himself in particular, is the story of the song, which is a "rag" of the noisiest, most pronounced type. "Rag" songs are a specialty with Miss Tucker, and it is evident that she has found this song particularly to her liking, for she has made a great performance of it. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, H. De Pierce, J. Young and H. Berman; publishers, The Great Eastern Music Publishing Co., New York City.

10450 A Dusky Belle — Olly Oakley

A spirited composition played with snap and ginger by England's premier banjoist. Mr. Oakley is a regular contributor to our British catalog and his Records are very popular on the other side of the water. This Record gives an excellent idea of his finished style, and will no doubt be a most acceptable offering to the lover of banjo music. Orchestra accompaniment. Composer, Emile Grimshaw.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10451 Curly Head — Byron G. Harlan

Tenor solo. It is some little time now since we have been given a selection of this type by Mr. Harlan, for which reason the song will be an exceptional seller. A very pretty and popular waltz song, in theme and melody reminiscent of "School Days" (Standard No. 9562). Mr. Harlan, who is in splendid voice, sings it with an abundance of pleasing style and expression. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Wm. McKenna; music, Albert Gumble; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10452 Good-Bye Betty Brown — Frederic H. Potter

Tenor solo. The very latest of march songs, and an exceptionally attractive number it is,—an appealing theme with a rousing refrain. A Northern soldier's farewell to his Southern sweetheart ere he leaves for the front is the inspiration of the song, which is invested with a tuneful, martial air. Mr. Potter sings the number with vigor, and the result is a fine Record. During the singing of the chorus a few bars of "Suwanee River" are introduced by a male quartet. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Mahoney; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

10453 That's Good — Edward Meeker

A novel coon song. "Still Bill" out in Idaho wins a gambling coon with a somewhat checkered run of luck which forms the story of the song. He came out second best through a rough deal in a game of poker, but his luck unexpectedly switched when his mother-in-law departed hence. "Bill" bore his losses philosophically, the title of the song being his characteristic comment in each case. The song is a rollicking "rag" written by one of the most successful composers of the day, and at present is being featured by another Edison artist, Miss Maude Raymond. Mr. Meeker sings the number with customary vim and relish, his enunciation clear as usual. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Harry Williams; music, Egbert Van Alstyne; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10454 Sweetness — Peerless Quartet

Male voices. A sweet little love ditty which lends itself admirably to quartet work. The harmonization of this number is excellently done, the trained voices of the singers blending in a manner delightful to the ear. One of the most attractive quartet numbers in our catalog. Words, Henry S. Creamer; music, Tom Lemonier; publishers, The Gothem-Attucks Music Co., New York City.

10455 Blaze of Glory March — New York Military Band

The latest march by the popular writer of "Blaze Away" (Standard No. 8393) and "Old Faithful" (Standard No. 9721). It is a vigorous, dashing march two-step with plenty of volume, the bass predominating to a great extent throughout, and it is played with spirit and precision by this popular organization whose Records are consistently good. Composer, Abe Holzmann; publisher, Leo Feist, New York City.

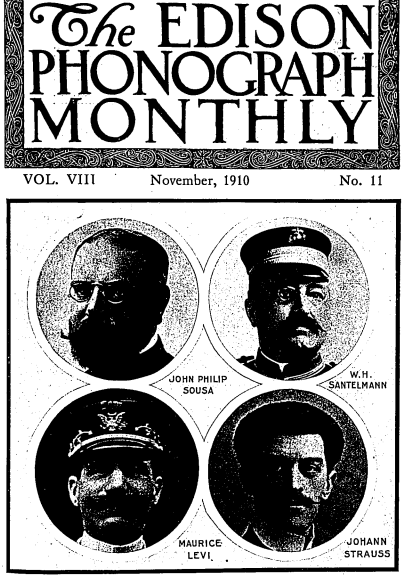
Milwaukee for 1911



J. C. Roush, the popular Secretary of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, was a visitor at the factory early last month. Mr. Roush announced that as a result of the ballot recently taken among the members of the Association Milwaukee has been selected as the Convention City for 1911. The actual vote was: Milwaukee 71, Atlantic City 13, and Niagara Falls 9. Milwaukee possesses splendid natural advantages for a convention, and the Association chose wisely in designating it as the next meeting place. The Convention will be held on either July 11, 12, 13 and 14, or July 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, the exact dates not yet having been decided upon.

Your Holiday Order—the Last Call

Realize, Mr. Dealer, that the holiday trade will start in less than a month. Will you be in a position to take care of it by that time? With a well stocked store you will; handicap yourself with a poor stock and "the other fellow" will take care of it for you.

If you haven't sent in your holiday order yet, by all means do so to-day. It's criminal to neglect it any longer; in doing so you are simply gambling with fate. Never a holiday season passes that there is not an unlooked for and unavoidable delay in filling some orders. It was so last year with the Amberola and Cygnet Horn orders; history may repeat itself this year despite all the precautions we are taking to guard against such a state of affairs.

If you are one of those Dealers whose orders had to be held up last year, profit by the experience and don't get caught napping again. Send your order to your Jobber TO-DAY and emphasize the fact that you want "immediate delivery." That's the only way to avoid risks. If your stock does arrive a little ahead of time, so much the better. It will give you the opportunity of reaching the early holiday shoppers before "the other fellow" gets started.

This is going to be a great, big Edison year. There will be many thousands more Edisons sold this year than last, and the sooner you get started the greater will be your share of this business. The Phonograph is continually growing in popular favor, and the buying public naturally gravitates toward the Edison during the holidays, as at all other times, for these reasons: because the Edison is the original Phonograph; because its reproduction is clearer, sweeter, more mellow and natural than that of any other type; because its volume, instead of being so loud as to be unpleasant, is exactly suitable for the home; because it offers the exclusive home recording feature which gives it a tremendous selling argument over other types of Phonographs; because the public knows that the word "Edison" stands for good, honest value, and because "there is an Edison Phonograph to suit every man's pocket-book."

Check up your stock, Mr. Dealer, with the list of Edison products on the opposite page. If you are shy anything, let your order go forward at once. An immediate order, big enough to take care of all your requirements and with something added for good measure so that you will not run short, will help your Jobber, will help us, and will help you to make this the biggest holiday season in the history of the business.

The New Record Exchange Plan

Have you studied the new Exchange Plan carefully and familiarized yourself with its details so that you can handle it intelligently and realize all its possibilities?

Analyze the Plan. You'll find a lot more in it than appears upon the surface. You will discover that it works to the common advantage of the consumer, the trade and the manufacturer. It does what no other Exchange Plan has ever done,—it enables the consumer to eliminate from his collection all worn or undesirable Records and to supplant them with more attractive selections at a bargain price; it revives his interest in the Phonograph and makes him a steady visitor to your store where you can interest him in the Records in the regular lists, the new machines, Horns, Reproducers and other accessories, and it gives you the opportunity of disposing of your stock of slow sellers and of replacing them with up-to-the-minute selections at an actual profit.

Contrasting the new Plan with its predecessors its advantages from a Dealer's standpoint stand out boldly. Under previous Exchanges Records were returned at the loss to the Dealer of transportation and breakage, and Dealers were obliged to place in stock a number of Records equal or double (according to the Plan) the number returned. Under the new Plan the Records are returned at an actual profit to the Dealer, whose order for Records in exchange need be only one-half the quantity returned. This will eventually result in his entirely wiping out his present stock of slow selling Records and, as we said before, at a profit to himself. When we realize that if there were no restrictions on our goods Dealers would be more than glad to dispose of slow selling stock at cost or even less than cost, the advantages of the new Plan in this respect are more apparent.

Not only will the new Plan enable the Dealer to dispose of his present stock of slow sellers, and the consumer to dispose of the selections of which he has become tired, but, looking into the future, as further lists of such selections are prepared the Dealer will be enabled to keep his stock strictly up-to-date and the consumer's interest will likewise be maintained.

The real value of the Plan, however, is that it acts as a "business getter" for the Dealer. It brings into activity discarded machines, and the Dealer's profits swell with the addition to his list of new and active Record customers. For every two Records returned from the customer's collection it must be remembered that one open space is left, which can easily be filled from the new Supplements.

The possibilities of the new Plan will be appreciated more as it becomes better known to the public. To realize all its possibilities it is up to the Dealer to advertise it to the limit. You want those idle machines in your territory to work for you, Mr. Dealer. This Plan was conceived with just that object in view. See that the owners of those machines are acquainted with the inducement you have to offer them and you will soon have the machines working again and bringing in the profits to you.

Two More "Special Hits"

If there are any Dealers who have not placed an order for Amberol No. 582, "Every Little Movement," and No. 594, "The Girl of My Dreams," from the January list, which Records go on sale as "Specials" as soon as received, we urge them to lose no further time in doing so. Shipments of these Records will leave the factory in a day or two, and with them the usual printed matter, which should be used to the very best advantage in the manner indicated.

Both of these songs are new and popular just now, and both of them possess the elements which make for long-continued popularity. They have both received the approval of the West, and "Every Little Movement" has caught on in great shape in the East. By the time the Records are received "The Girl of My Dreams" will have received the endorsement of Broadway, which will insure its vogue.

As we predicted, the last "special," "Silver Bell," has proven a tremendous seller and bids fair to continue so for an indefinite time to come. Dealers should remember this when placing orders for this Record in its instrumental form, Amberol No. 590 in the January list.

WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Write for particulars to Edison Business Phonograph Co. Orange, N. J.

A New Department of Window Display and General Interior Arrangement

ORA E. RINEHART

A window display service for the benefit of Edison Dealers is soon to be created under the able direction of Ora E. Rinehart, who has recently been engaged for that purpose. Mr. Rinehart assumed charge on October 24th, and is now actively engaged in arranging quarters at Orange and in employing a force of assistants.

In creating this important branch of service we have been fortunate in securing an expert who has been actively engaged in producing not only beautiful and costly displays, but who has successfully proven that at little cost it is possible to produce displays that are both attractive and selling—displays that bring direct returns. Mr. Rinehart comes highly recommended as a man of original ideas, quick to grasp the individual requirements of any particular locality, and with a national reputation in matters pertaining to display. When his plans are perfected he will produce a service which, under his immediate supervision and with the necessary co-operation of our Dealers, will increase their sales and otherwise result in mutual benefit to themselves and the Company.

That properly displayed merchandise, particularly in a show window, is the retail Dealer's cheapest and most direct method of increasing sales is freely admitted by all who are actively engaged in ground floor retail selling. That goods should be neatly and systematically arranged in a store to effect a quick and easy sale is also an admitted fact. These two important sales producing factors bring two-fold returns without wanton expenditure and are the best methods to employ in pushing the sale of a public commodity.

When the work of this Department is put in proper shape and Dealers are acquainted with our plans, we hope for their enthusiastic support, as the success of the plan depends entirely upon their whole-hearted co-operation.

An official announcement about the Window Display Department will shortly be made to the trade. It is expected to get out at least one good Window Display a month, for which a charge not to exceed $5.00 will be made, but it is also hoped that we may be able to render a helpful service to Dealers who feel that they cannot pay for the regular Displays. Dealers who can use the latter will aid us in getting a line on the requirements of the trade if they will say to their Jobbers: "When the Edison Window Displays are ready send us one each month until further advised, the cost per month not to exceed $5.00."

Home Recording Demonstrations—Give This Plan a Trial

A plan by which some excellent advertising can be secured through the home recording feature of the Edison was evolved by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company and worked out by them in their Chicago branch last Summer. The plan, which can successfully be imitated by Edison Dealers everywhere, is to induce professional and amateur singers and musicians to come in and make Records on an Edison Phonograph. The object of the scheme, of course, is to stimulate interest in the Edison Phonograph and increase the sale of blanks with a certain profitable portion of the public by forcibly bringing to their attention the fact that the Edison is the only Phonograph on which they can make their own Records. It is easy to see the possibilities of the scheme, for what vocal or musical artist but would like to hear what his own work sounds like, both for curiosity and criticism's sake?

The details of the plan are briefly described by the Wurlitzer Company as follows:

"We equipped one of our quietest rooms with a Triumph, a good piano, recording horn and two or three records, etc. We did not advertise this in the papers, but circularized it by a special letter which we sent to all the professional and amateur musicians, teachers and others interested in music in Chicago. This created quite a little interest, among the singers especially, and many of the bigger professionals in the city came to see us regarding it."

The J. A. Foster Company of Providence, R. I., whose Phonograph department is managed by Mr. John Massey, recently conducted a somewhat similar demonstration but on a more extensive scale. Their invitation was extended to the general public through the medium of two striking newspaper ads, 6"x6", accompanied by a cut of an Edison machine. The success of the scheme is best told in Mr. Massey's own words:

"The following facts relative to our record making demonstration may possibly be of interest to the Edison Phonograph Monthly readers and help them to better appreciate the possibilities of such a demonstration. The enclosed ad appeared in two of our local papers on Sunday last. The following day we gave no less than twenty demonstrations.

"On Tuesday, among the several interested, was Professor E. E. Balcom of our State Normal School who requested us to demonstrate to his entire class.

"Every day during the entire week we have given several demonstrations. In each case we provided the interested members with a generous supply of Edison literature. Besides the re-corders we have sold, we feel confident that we have developed several possible purchasers of Edison Phonographs."

Changes in Idelia Finish and Price

Beginning October 1st we discontinued anodizing the metal parts of Idelia Phonographs, and instead are enameling them in maroon to match the cabinet. The list price of the machine with the new finish has been reduced from $125.00 to $100.00. Dealer's discount will remain as before, 40 per cent.

The regular Idelia equipment is now as follows:

List price, $100.00; Cabinet, mahogany; finish of metal parts, maroon enamel; Mandrel, nickel-plated and polished; Horn, Edison Cygnet Horn, Special Mahogany finish, supported by nickel-plated swinging crane; Reproducer, Model "O" combination type; Recorder, improved Edison.

For equipment with Wooden "Music Master" Mahogany Cygnet Horn, add $10.00 to above list price; for Wooden "Music Master" Inlaid Pearl Cygnet Horn equipment, add $35.00 to list.

Where Idelias are wanted with oxidized metal parts they will be furnished as specials at the old list price of $125.00.

Who Sent This Order?

On October 17th we received an unsigned order calling for a total of 280 Standard, 1,335 Amberol and 4 Grand Opera Records, catalog No. 35007. This order was made out on our regular order blanks.

Owing to the mass of mail received at the factory every morning, which requires immediate attention and must be opened and distributed to the several departments with the least possible delay, it is practically impossible for the mailing clerks to discover unsigned orders and prevent them from becoming separated from the envelopes which may or may not contain name and address of senders. Hence, it is necessary that Jobbers sign the Record order blanks in the space allotted for that purpose.

We ask that Jobbers kindly consult their copies of Record orders to discover whether or not they have one which matches up with this one, and that the Jobber placing this order notify us at once so that it may be filled without further delay.

Sara Bernhardt Records

BERNHARDT AS L'Aiglon

On page 15 is described the last of the four Records made by the famous tragedienne. Two of these are already on sale, another goes on sale on November 25th, and the last on December 24th. Bernhardt's last American tour will begin early in the present month, so that Dealers are given an exceptional opportunity to profit by the interest which her farewell appearance in America will create. This interest will by no means be confined to the cities in which she will appear, but will extend wherever her name is known,—and who that admires the dramatic art does not know and idolize this most gifted of the world's great tragedienes?

Amberol Record No. 35007, "L'Aiglon—La Plaine de Wagram," is the same trifling scene of which The London Phono Trader and Recorder, in a flattering criticism of this particular Record appearing in its October issue, thus spoke:

"L'Aiglon' ('The Eaglet'), the hapless young King of Rome, could not possibly be more felicitously described. The 'Divine Sara' is at present appearing at the London Coliseum, her initial performance there on September 20 including the excerpt from Rostand's play, which is here given. And what a wonderful scene was there enacted. We read, 'the audience thunderously forbade the continuance of the programme until * * * Mme. Bernhardt had eight times stepped before the curtain.' The scene hereon may briefly be described as follows: The young Duke de Reichstadt, upon the tragic field of Wagram, sees a vision of the fierce battle fought years before by his father, Napoleon Bonaparte. Carried beyond himself by the spectral conflict, he offers his life as an expiation to the spirits of the dead. What a glorious opportunity for the greatest living tragedienne is here! One thrills at the thought. We are at a loss to express our appreciation of her performance. It is indeed wonderful. We can only add our quota of admiration for her art to that which the whole civilized world acclaims; whilst the National Phonograph Company is to be congratulated upon a remarkable recording achievement."

Christmas Records

Following is a list of Records appropriate to the holiday season. Some of these Records—Amberol No. 12098-12247 inclusive and Standard No. 13345-775 inclusive—appear in the British Catalogs. We are calling attention to them in this special manner because they are desirable Records in every respect and equally as salable in this country as in England.

Dealers should make an immediate selection from this list for their holiday requirements, and prepare to advertise them both by window card and newspaper ads:

The Other 13,000

Can a Dealer in a Small Town Sell Amberolas?

We could fill pages discussing that question from an affirmative point of view, but we haven't the space to spare. Here's the answer, succinct and emphatic: HE CAN IF HE WILL. It depends upon the Dealer. If he thinks he can and has confidence enough to try, he'll sell them without any trouble; if, on the contrary, he is half-hearted or timorous about it, he may as well not make the attempt, for he's doomed to failure before he starts.

Here's a firm in a small town that hasn't found it difficult to sell Amberolas,—in fact, it would seem, judging from the celerity with which the sale was effected, as though the instrument had sold itself. We refer to Ryan & Dame, of Tulare, Cal., which, while not nearly as small as some towns we have quoted in the MONTHLY in reference to Amberola sales, is about the size of the average small town.

This firm received an Amberola on September 21rd and sold it the next day, when they immediately wired their Jobbers as follows:

"Ship us via freight as soon as possible one Amberola Mahogany Piano Finish. The one received Friday sold to-day and the sale carried with it 50 Amberol Domestic and 3 Grand Opera Records."

Tulare has a population of only 2,400, so it would seem, as we say, as thought the question of population is of less importance than the mental attitude of the Dealer; and this view of the matter is borne out by our knowledge of this firm's enterprising, up-to-date methods. They are among the livest Dealers in the great San Joaquin valley, and although established only since last January have been very successful with the line. Their success is due entirely to their aggressiveness, as indicated by persistent, intelligent advertising, by tastefully arranged window displays, by the carrying of a full line of machines and Records, and by the many other details which no Dealer who hopes to succeed can afford to neglect.

We trust the experience of Ryan & Dame will convince some of our hesitating Dealers in small towns that they can sell Amberolas if they tackle the proposition in a courageous, intelligent manner.

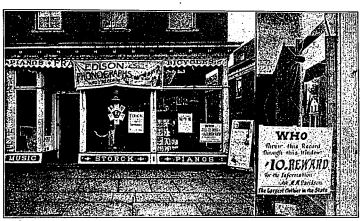
Homan and Company, Fresno, Cal., are working the Promotion Plan intelligently and industriously. The letter with which they sent out the Promotion Certificates and Folders is a model of conciseness and attractiveness of style. It ought to make business.

J. D. Winn, who sells the Edison line in Buena Vista, Oregon, had the pleasure recently of convincing the owner of another type of talking machine of the superiority of the Edison. A discussion of the relative merits of the two machines led to the suggestion on Mr. Winn's part that they compare them in side-by-side demonstration. This was done with the result that the Edison won another ardent admirer and Mr. Winn some good advertising and at least one future sale.

Nothing like having the courage of one's convictions.

Another "live wire" on the Pacific Coast is G. A. Einstein, Jr., of 3321 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal., who has worked his way well up into the van of our most successful Dealers. His success, considering the short time he has been in business, is nothing short of phenomenal. The secret is best told in Mr. Einstein's own words:

"When I gave up my position to go into business a few people though I was taking a foolish step. Now that I have made a phenomenal success of it, they are all saying: 'How did he do it?'



"The answer is that I started in young (I was in my nineteenth year), I have been energetic and courageous, and I have always aimed to keep things humming, and then some."

S. A. Gove, Prop. Brockton (Mass.) Sporting Goods Co.—As evidence of what we think of the new "Music Master" Horn and the new Model "D" Triumph, would say that we have sold to date 4 Triumphs and we have had them only a week. We consider this Machine the finest talking machine that has ever been built, barring none, and we have handled everything on the market in the way of talking machines. We want to thank you for what you have done to swell the sale of your product.

L. M. Durham, Manager of Durham's Drug Store, Curry, Pa., is employing the "James Blair" method of selling Phonographs which was described in detail in the June MONTHLY,—sending out a return postal which advances an offer to install a Phonograph and some Records on a week's trial free of charge and obligation. We look forward to hearing reports of flattering success from Mr. Durham.

H. S. Jones of Spencer, Iowa, took time from his canvass for the State Legislature to report that prospects for Fall and Winter sales of Edison goods in his locality never looked brighter than at the present time.

"Storck of Course"

His Novel "Edison Day" Window

"Storck of Course" (Frank G. Storck of Red Bank, President of the Eastern Talking Machine Dealers' Association) never does things by halves. So when he decided to inaugurate ten "Edison Days" at his store (from Aug. 20 to Sept. 1) he made up his mind that his windows should be dressed in keeping with the novelty of the scheme.

Taking a Record he sawed it diagonally across, sand-papered it down smoothly and glued it with ordinary hot glue, one piece on the inside and the other on the outside of the window, in such a manner that passersby would think it was stuck in the glass, as the cut shows. The Record, title outward, was high enough to be beyond the reach of the small boy. Imitation cracks were made with common laundry soap.

The illusion was a complete success and attracted a lot of attention, twenty different people calling up on the telephone within the first three hours to enquire how it was broken, etc. Another feature of his window that came in for its share of attention was one of the first models of Edison machines, made about 1877, on which tin-foil Records were used. This can be seen in the lower left-hand corner of the window.

Mr. Storck's "Edison Days" were very satisfactory both in point of Machine and Record sales and in number of "prospects" obtained. On Saturday afternoon and evening Records were made on the floor, and on Saturday evening, he says, it was simply impossible to take care of the people who came into his store to see how the stunt was done. Mr. Storck entertains a very high opinion of the value of such demonstrations from an advertising standpoint and intends to conduct another demonstration on a more elaborate scale in the near future.

Here's another Dealer who at first considered the Amberols too high-priced an instrument for his territory.—Mr. F. W. Musselwhite, Prince Albert, Sask.—but who was finally persuaded by our representative to give the instrument a trial. The result is disclosed by a recent letter from him of which the following is an extract:

"This is three Amberolas and one Home Cygnet I have sold this week. I do not tell you this news with any intention of boasting, as I feel that most of the credit belongs to your representative, Mr. DeAngeli, who persuaded me to try one. I personally considered them too high-priced for this part of the country, but how I was fooling myself! I am glad now I took his advice."

Three Amberolas in one week! It probably sounds incredible to some Dealers, but it's a fact nevertheless. Let's see, the sale of three Amberolas means a profit of three times $30.00, does it not? And the population of Prince Albert is what? 3,005, according to the 1910 Atlas!

We are going to let this incident pass without further comment on our part. The mere recital of it ought to reach a lesson so powerful to every thinking Edison Dealer that nothing we could say would in any way enhance its effect.

Selling the Goods

There are two injunctions which just at this time transcend in importance all other selling tips and arguments. They are—BE PREPARED AND ADVERTISE!

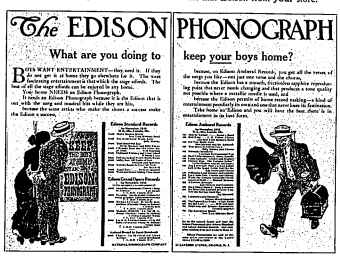
The one is inseparably allied with the other. If you haven't the goods to meet the holiday demand it is useless to advertise, and if you don't let the public know you are carrying the goods what's the use of all your preparation?

The trouble with many Dealers is that they don't realize the approach of the holiday season until it is upon them. When they do, there is a mad scramble after goods, some hastily prepared and consequently ineffective advertising is done—and the season passes into history, leaving in its wake dissatisfaction and remorse. This is the time to stock up and this is the time to advertise. Get your order to your Jobber and a holiday ad. to the paper now, and be the "early bird" to catch the annually increasing percentage of the public who prefer to do their holiday shopping early in the season.

And don't forget for an instant to plug that Promotion Plan for all its worth from now on until Christmas. It was made for this season of the year and if you overlook it you are making a grave mistake. The Promotion Plan, properly handled, means the appointment of just so many salesmen working in your territory for you. While your paid clerks are demonstrating your Machines to customers who know, or who are curious to know, about the Edison line, these self-appointed salesmen are working on the outside upon people who perhaps don't know or at least are not convinced of the value of a Phonograph in their homes. These salesmen will convince them by the most effective method—a practical demonstration.

Don't hesitate to ask for Promotion Plan printed matter and use it to the best possible advantage when you get it. The logical and proper way to use it just now is to mail it to Phonograph owners with a letter calling their attention to the ease with which the bonus can be won at this time of the year when people are especially susceptible to suggestions for Christmas gifts. Even if you have already circularized your mailing list with Promotion literature do so again. It is well worth the time and expense.

Without an Amberola in your holiday order it will be incomplete, and you will be doing yourself an injustice. Don't attempt to convince yourself, because you may happen to be located in a small town, that you have no market for the Amberola. That argument has been shot so full of holes that it is no longer tenable. There is a market for the Amberola everywhere. It's an instrument that anyone might well wish to possess. In the eyes of the holiday shopper—of the thoughtful parent, the man of family, seeking inspiration for something which will keep his home so attractive that his children will not look elsewhere for their entertainment and pleasure; of the music lover who wants to hear the vocal and instrumental gems of the great masters worthily reproduced in tones perfectly modulated for the home; of anyone susceptible to the charm of song and music interpreted by the truly great artists of the day through the medium of an instrument of incomparable beauty of design and finish—in the eyes of this great majority of the purchasing public the Amberola is an instrument to covet, and it will sell itself with little or no persuasion on your part.



Don't forget the Combination Attachment Outfit offer in your holiday ads. and talks. If you haven't a supply of the Attachment Folders (Form 1778) on hand get some at once and include one with a letter on the Record Exchange Plan to owners of disused and "unamberolized" Machines. With that Plan pulling the idle Machines out of seclusion, the Combination Attachment offer will have only begun to do the work laid out for it.

Our Window Displays will not be ready for distribution for some time to come. Meanwhile don't neglect your windows. Remember that the public judges a merchant largely by his windows, for they invariably reflect the character of the proprietor and his stock. Keep your windows dressed with as much originality and artistic effect as you can bring into play from now on until the holidays.

And don't forget your window cards, suggestions for which, considering the field of subjects you have to draw upon, would be a reflection upon your intelligence.

Reproduction of our Double-Page November Magazine Ad

Millions of Holiday Buyers will see this Ad during the month, many of them in your territory. Tell them to take home that Edison from your store.

The Boston Mechanics' Exposition

It is estimated that approximately 60,000 visitors to this Exposition, which closed on October 29th, were entertained in the huge Edison booth alternately by Edison Phonograph concerts and Edison motion pictures. This estimate is based upon the seating capacity of the booth—300—where the "S. R. O." sign had to be displayed at each of the seven entertainments given daily. Quite naturally the Edison exhibit, which was the most pretentious and attractive at the Exposition, attracted the greatest interest on the part of visitors and was given the lion's share of attention by the Boston press.

It was the largest and most comprehensive display of the Edison line that has ever been made, and never has it been shown to better advantage. The moral effect of such a display upon the visitors at the Exposition can scarcely be estimated, but it is safe to say that each one left the building more firmly convinced than ever of the superior entertainment offered by the Edison line.

Big Edison Electric Sign One of New York's Attractions

The mammoth electric sign which was erected on the roof of the Hotel Normandie, New York, by the National Phonograph Co., for the purpose of exploiting the Edison phonographs and records, and which was illuminated for the first time on Saturday evening, June 18, is being regarded as one of the chief nightly attractions of Broadway. On any clear evening multitudes may be seen for blocks around observing and commenting upon this stupendous advertisement. It can be clearly seen and read within a radius of several miles.—The Music Trades.

"The Girl in the Train," British Amberol No. 12224, contains a number of the principal airs from the musical comedy of that name now playing to crowded houses at the Globe Theatre, New York City. The Record is exceptionally well rendered by the National (London) Military Band, with pleasing effects.

"Music Master" Horns

We ask the kind indulgence of the trade for the delay in filling orders for "Music Masters." So heavy a demand was not anticipated and we were consequently caught off our guard. We were further, handicapped by the manufacturers' inability to make deliveries as promptly as required. They promise us that the Horns will come along in good shape now, so that we anticipate no further trouble in filling orders as they are received.

We want to warn the trade, however, not to delay their holiday orders depending upon this promise. Last year's Cygnet Horn experience ought to be sufficient proof that promises can seldom be relied upon. Orders for "Music Masters" alone as well as for complete outfits of machine and horn should be filed by the earliest mail possible, so as to run no chances. They will be filled, of course, in the order of their receipt.

The following extract from a letter received from the Southern California Music Company is a sample of the many received at the factory and clearly indicates just how much of a "hit" the "Music Master" has made with the trade:

"It may interest you to know that Dealers in this section are taking very kindly to the new Music Master Horn and that we are getting advance orders without trouble wherever the Horn is brought to their attention. I believe it will hereafter form a very important feature in the equipment of Edison Machines."

Model "O" Going Big

"The best Reproducer you have ever placed on the market" is the consensus of trade opinion on the new Model "O." Orders for the new Reproducer, both separate and as part of Triumph and Idelia Attachments, are multiplying with every mail, and we are kept busy acknowledging the congratulations of Jobbers and Dealers who have heard it and are delighted with the incomparable beauty of reproduction it offers.

The salability of an Edison equipped with the Model "O" is more than doubled, and Dealers who are carrying in stock any Idelias, Triumphs, Alvas or Balmorals equipped with the old models are strongly urged to exchange such Reproducers for the Model "O" before the holiday trade starts in. The allowance made for the old style Reproducers in exchange was explained in detail in the September MONTHLY. Dealers, too, should lose no time in stocking up on Model "O" Reproducers and Attachments for the purpose of equipping Machines now in use. Both for the convenience of operation and the superior quality of reproduction it insures the new Reproducer will be appreciated wherever it is heard, and no Phonograph owner who once hears it and is aware of the fact that he can equip his Machine with the instrument at a reasonable exchange price will hesitate a moment before doing so.

About Shaving Devices

A recent inquiry from a Jobber suggests reiteration of the reason why shaving devices are no longer supplied with Edison machines.

When we changed the machines, removing the end gates, it was found that because there was not sufficient support to the mandrel blanks could not be shaved perfectly; hence the use of shaving knives was no longer deemed advisable. The only way to shave Edison Records at the present time is by the use of our shaving machine, as explained in the catalogue. One of these machines should be carried in stock by every Jobber and Dealer, and their readiness to shave blanks for customers properly advertised; for no feature of the fine centuries with it greater possibilities than does home recording.

Lost or Stolen Machines

The following machines have been reported missing by the trade since the notice which appeared in the October MONTHLY: Home No. 363,700 D; Standard Nos. 700,583 C, 713,078 and 715,421. Jobbers and Dealers are requested to keep on the lookout for these machines and to promptly communicate with our Agreement Dept., at Orange, any clue to their whereabouts, in order that immediate steps may be taken to restore them to their rightful owners.

In the October MONTHLY we reported Gem Phonograph No. 3,084,890 as missing. The number should have been 308,489 C.

A Reminder

Sales Department letter of October 12 cautioned Dealers to use extreme care in handling Cygnet Horn Outfits to see that Cygnet Horns with the old-style bolt suspension are furnished for use with machines provided with the old-style bolt suspension crane, and that Horns with the new style spring suspension are furnished for use with Machines equipped with new style spring suspension crane. Because of the extreme liability to oversight in this connection we repeat the caution, and also urge that Dealers familiarize themselves thoroughly with the instructions contained in the letter referred to.

Still After Price Cutters

We print below a copy of an order recently granted in the United States Circuit Court providing for the issuance of an injunction against John Rawling, Scranton, Pa., restraining him from further violation of our Dealers' Agreement by the sale of Edison Records at cut prices.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

NEW JERSEY PATENT COMPANY AND NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Complainants,
vs.
JOHN RAWLING, Defendant.

In Equity on Letters Patent No. 782,375.

ORDER.

On filing and reading the Bill of Complaint of complainants, and the affidavits of Jesse W. Ayleworth, Albert C. Ireton, Edward E. Davidson, Frank E. Madison, William B. Tolmesdor, and Harry L. Hopper, and upon motion of Herbert H. Dyke, Esq., Counsel for Complainants, it

ORDERED that the defendant, John Rawling, show cause before this Court at a session thereof to be held in the Court Rooms thereof in the Post Office Building in the City of Scranton, Pennsylvania, at 10 o'clock, A. M., or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard on Monday, the 31st day of October, 1910, why a preliminary injunction should not be issued against said defendant as prayed in said Bill of Complaint; and

It is further ordered that copies of and copies of the Bill of Complaint and affidavits, which are to be certified, upon the defendant on or before the 22nd day of October, 1910, shall be deemed sufficient service.

Defendant shall have until Friday, the 28th day of October, 1910, in which to file and serve such affidavits and briefs as he may desire to use in reply upon at the hearing upon the return of this order.

Complainants may file at the hearing any affidavits or other papers in rebuttal of any new matter set up by defendant.

And pending the hearing of the said motion for preliminary injunction herein and until the further order of this Court, the defendant, his agents, dealing, and representatives, attorneys, servants, clerks, agents and employees and each of you, take notice that you and each of you, are hereby expressly restrained and enjoined from advertising or offering for sale or selling or otherwise disposing of any Edison Standard (Two Minute Records for less than thirty-five cents (35c.) each, or any of said records for less than fifty cents (50c.) each, or any of said records otherwise than as provided in the notices affixed to the various commodities the same or otherwise than is permitted in the license agreements of said defendant, John Rawling, with the complainant, National Phonograph Company, dated the 2nd and 4th days of October and the 7th day of November, 1907.

R. W. ARCHBALD,
U. S. Judge.

Jobbers and Dealers are asked not to supply any of the above named firms with our apparatus, at addresses given or any other address.

Electros for Holiday Newspaper Ads

Every Dealer should have at least two of the stock electros described below for use with his holiday newspaper advertising. We will be very glad to send them free of charge on request, merely asking that we be furnished copy of the ads as proof that the cuts have been used. There are other and very suitable cuts in the catalog of stock electros, of which every Dealer should have a copy—and can have on application to the Advertising Department:

No. 625, 6" deep by 4" wide. Shows boy and girl with Christmas tree, their other presents untouched, likewise is not attention to the needs of their Edison. A very effective cut.

No. 626. Same cut, only smaller, 3" x 2".

No. 627. 4" x 3". "The Best Christmas Gift." Represents whole family—three generations—gathered about their Edison, their faces evincing the pleasure it gives them. Strongly suggestive of the Edison's place in the home circle.

No. 631. Same cut, 3" x 2".

No. 704. 4" x 4". Represents Santa Claus in the act of leading a young fellow's arms with Edison Phonographs and Records and a well-filled bag at his side. Full of Christmas cheer.

No. 703. Same cut, 2" x 2".

Advance List

Of Edison Amberol and Edison Standard Records for January, 1911

THE Amberol and Standard Records listed below will be shipped from Orange in time to reach all Jobbers in the United States and Canada before December 25th, 1910, all things being favourable, and they may be reshipped to Dealers at 8 A. M. on December 23th. They must not, however, be exhibited, demonstrated or placed on sale by Jobbers or Dealers until 8 A. M. on December 26th. Supplements, Phonograms, Bulletins and Hangers will be shipped with Records. These may be distributed to Dealers after December 20th, but must not be circulated among the public before December 26th. Jobbers and Dealers may, however, deposit Supplements and Phonograms in Mail Boxes or Post Offices after 5 P. M. on December 23th, for delivery on the morning of the 26th. Jobbers are required to place orders for January Records on or before November 10th. Dealers should place January orders with Jobbers before November 10th to insure prompt shipment when Jobber's stock is received.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

30032 Pescatori di Perle—Mi par d'udir ancora (Bizet) — Aristodemo Giorgini, Tenor

United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in Italian with orchestra accompaniment. What a difference in music between the Spanish "Carmen" and the Cingalese "Pearl Fishers." Bizet was indeed a musical genius, for his works teem with beautiful numbers. The "Pearl Fishers" contains some of his most ravishingly sweet music, of which this aria in which Nadir again recognizes in the priestess, watching over the destiny of the tribe, the voice of his lost Leila, is perhaps the very finest. Its interpretation requires sentiment of the most exquisite order, and Giorgini with his beautiful voice has done full justice to all its demands.

30033 Trovatore—Vanne Lasciami (Verdi) — Marie Rappold, Soprano

United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in Italian with orchestra accompaniment. The scenes of the romantic story of "Il Trovatore" are laid in Spain, the home of the Gypsy. An old Gypsy woman, accused of bewitching the younger son of the Count di Luna, deceased, was burned alive. Her daughter, Azucena, in revenge stole Manrico, the cause of her mother's death, and threw him (as she thought) into the flames still burning in her mother's funeral pile. In reality she threw in her own son, discovering her mistake too late. She seizes Manrico—the Troubadour—and frees with him to her tribe, and with the subtle, lasting hatred of her race brings him up, to work her vengeance upon his own kindred. This is how it comes about. Manrico, now a knight skilled and daring, falls in love with the Countess Leonora with whom his brother, the Count di Luna, is already in love. Di Luna discovers that he has a successful rival and imprisons him as well as Azucena, his foster mother, who has been recognized as the abductor of Manrico. Di Luna has Manrico beheaded, drags Azucena to the window of her dungeon, and points out to her the dead body of him he supposes to be her son. "Manrico is thy brother!" she cries, and with a muttered "Mother, thou art revenged!" falls dead. Leonora has already poisoned herself. It is a lurid tale, and the talented American soprano, Madame Marie Rappold, renders sympathetically and effectively the heavy sorrows of the unfortunate Leonora.

30034 Traviata—Di Provenza il mar (Verdi) — Ernesto Carrono, Baritone

United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in Italian with orchestra accompaniment. This opera is practically the story known on the English stage as "Camille." Alfred Germont, a young fellow of good family, has fallen in love with Violetta, one of the gay women of Paris. She returns his love, and at his urging agrees to give up her dissolute life. They take a house in the country, and are as happy as united hearts can make them. On his return from a trip to Paris, Alfred finds that during his absence his father has persuaded Violetta to leave his son and return to her old life in town. This was accomplished only by working on her love and sympathy for Alfred. The father, having separated them, makes every exertion to induce Alfred to return to his paternal home, picturing the happy days of his youth and childhood on the family estate in Provence, his own anguish and that of Alfred's sister, and the sorrow of his friends. This pathetic appeal is made by Signor Ernesto Carenon, the well-known baritone, whose resonant tones movingly depict the despair of the faithful old man.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

35012 Il Flauto Magico—Aria della Regina (Mozart) — Maria Galvany, Soprano

United States list, $1.50; Canadian, $2.00.

Sung in Italian with orchestra accompaniment. Mozart took every advantage of his opportunity when he introduced us to the religious mysteries of ancient Egypt. Pamina has left her mother, Astrifiamente, The Queen of Night, to be trained in the ways of truth and virtue under the care of Sarastro, the High Priest of the Temple of Isis. Prince Tamino, at the request of the Queen, sets forth to induce Pamina to leave Sarastro, but falls in love with her and ultimately marries her. He thus fulfills his mission, but not in the way the Queen meant. Before he succeeds, however, he has many difficulties and troubles to overcome, but with the magic flute he need fear nothing. To its sweet power all evil and opposing forces yield. Mozart well understood the place of music in the world of emotion, and quite likely intended to symbolize it by the flute's efficacy in this opera. Madame Galvany has thrilled the audiences of Europe, and with her fine voice knows how to depict the murky passions of the unscrupulous queen.

40037 Lohengrin—Graleserzählung (Wagner) — Karl Jörn, Tenor

United States list, $2.00; Canadian, $2.50.

Sung in German with orchestra accompaniment. Romance, legend, knighthood pervade this so popular opera. Love, hatred, tenderness, deceit are the mainsprings of its action. Elsa, having allowed the seed of distrust implanted in her by Ortrud to overcome her promise not to ask Lohengrin, the son of Parsifal, whence he came, puts the fatal question. Her curiosity cannot be quieted by her faithful lover's tender warning and they must part. In beautifully measured strains, the Grail movement, Lohengrin tells those assembled of the magic cup and its wonders, and discloses his identity. Mr. Jörn may well claim to be one of the foremost Wagnerian interpreters, to which this Record bears witness.

Amberol Record by Sara Bernhardt

35013 La Samaritaine—(act 1) La Samaritaine recontre Jesus au puits de Jacob — Sara Bernhardt

United States list, $1.50; Canadian, $2.00.

Recitation in French. This impressive extract from "La Samaritaine" is one of the most vivid scenes this gifted author has ever depicted. The soul's history was being made when Christ sojourned among men, and there is no more affecting incident in His life outside of the tragic than His meeting and talk with Photine, the Samaritan woman, at Jacob's well. He has just dismissed the disciples and seated Himself by the well in deep reflection, when His attention is called to the shapely figure of Photine coming down the winding path, her water jar poised gracefully upon her head. She is so charming that he exclaims, "What beauty my Father has given these women!" It is this human side in Jesus that makes us real and intimate with the light-hearted woman of easy morals. She swings along, singing of her lover, lets the jar down into the well, draws it up filled with the precious fluid, places it upon her shoulder, and starts away, unmindful of Jesus. He is hot, tired and thirsty, and calls after her asking for a drink. She refuses Him, because there is no intercourse between the Jews and the Samaritans. This leads to the conversation so well set forth in the New Testament, and Jesus reminds her of her sins that bring the blush of shame to her cheeks. The dramatic situation is especially adapted to the powers and temperament of that immortal enchantress, Madame Bernhardt. Before her genius the centuries fall away, and we hear the voice of the alluring Photine as clearly as if we were waiting our turn at the well.

Edison Amberol Records for January, 1911

United States list, 50 cents; Canadian, 65 cents.

580 Softly, Unawares — Sousa's Band

A popular concert piece in gavotte tempo by the writer of the famous "Glow-Worm" (Amberol No. 61). It is graceful in its life, its rhythm is alert, and throughout the number there flows a fine vein of tunefulness. The treatment is typically Sousaesque. Composer, Paul Lincke; publishers, Joseph W. Stern & Co., New York City.

581 Love Dreams — W. H. Thompson

Baritone solo with orchestra accompaniment. Seated in the twilight's fanciful glow, a lover is conjuring up visions of the sweetheart and scenes of the dim past. Poetically meritorious, this charming love ballad is set to an appropriately slow, dreamy waltz melody. Mr. Thompson's singing as usual is delightful. Words, F. J. Crawford; music, Henriette Blanke-Belcher; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

582 Every Little Movement — Miss Narelle, Mr. Potter and Chorus

The big song "hit" of "Madame Sherry," and the most popular song of the day. It is a satirical description of the new aesthetic dancing fad, set to a particularly catchy melody which captivates at first hearing. Miss Narelle sings the first solo, the chorus is then sung as a soprano and contralto duet and repeated by a chorus of mixed voices. Mr. Potter sings the second solo and is also assisted by a chorus of mixed voices in the refrain. Because of the popularity of the song this Record went on sale as a "special." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Otto Hauerbach; music, Karl Hoschna; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

583 Mother Machree — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor with orchestra accompaniment. An Irishman's graceful tribute to his "Mother Machree" (literally, "Mother of My Heart"), who holds "a spot in his heart which no children may own." This pretty sentimental ilit is one of the song successes in Chauncey Olcott's new production, "Barry of Ballymore." It is especially well suited to Mr. Oakland's remarkable voice, and he has made a splendid Record of it. Words, Rida Johnson Young; music, Chauncey Olcott and Ernest Ball; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

584 Chanticleer Reel and Jig Medley — Charles D'Almaine

Violin solo with orchestra accompaniment. Mr. D'Almaine's latest arrangement of lively jigs and reels, some of which are of his own composition, while others are old-time favorites. Played in Mr. D'Almaine's artistic style, this Record ought to prove one of the most popular of its kind in the catalog; and, by the way, this type of Record has always been a big seller.

585 Bonnie Sweet Bessie — Marie Narelle

Soprano solo with orchestra accompaniment. A popular Scotch ballad which the trade has requested us time and again to catalog. Sung in Miss Narelle's finished style, with adequate feeling and accent of the best, the love story of the "Bonnie Lass o' Dundee," with its simple direct words and pleading melody, will tug at the heart-strings of its listeners. Words, Arabella Root; music, J. L. Gilbert; publishers, White-Smith Music Pub. Co., New York City.

586 The Musical Wizard and the Bell-Boy — Spencer and Campbell

A clever musical act interspersed with witty dialogue describing the arrival of a German orchestra at a hotel, where it develops that the bell-boy is a musical genius. The instruments played and the order in which they appear are as follows: banjo and chimes duet; xylophone duet; cornet with mute, and trombone and cornet duet. The selections played are all well-known standard airs and the performance is highly artistic. Author, Len Spencer.

587 Ana—Intermezzo — Edison Concert Band

This light, graceful intermezzo is an irresistible piece of writing which contains the calibre of music the beauties of which are not exhausted at a single hearing. It is one of the most popular intermezzos of the day, played by all the best orchestras and bands everywhere—here by one of the very best. Composer, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

588 You'se Just a Little Nigger, Still You'se Mine, All Mine — Ada Jones

A typical darkey lullaby with a quaint, pretty melody, such as the old plantation "mammy" used to croon over the cradle of her pickaninnies. Miss Jones' rendition is a work of art, her inflection and dialect being genuinely "darkey." The many requests for more "plantation darkey" melodies indicate the return of that type of song to popularity. Orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, Paul Dresser; publisher, Herbert H. Taylor, New York City.

589 Tarry with Me — Anthony and Harrison

Tenor and baritone, with orchestra accompaniment. It seems superfluous to ever praise the work of these excellent artists, but there are occasions when they seem to excel all their previous efforts, and this is one of them. Music, O. Nicolai; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

590 Silver Bell—Indian Intermezzo — American Standard Orchestra

Not content with this popular number in its vocal garb (Amberol No. 576), many of the trade insisted upon its appearance as an instrumental Record, and here it is. We should not have responded to this suggestion, of course, were we not convinced that its present great popularity will continue indefinitely. As in the vocal Record, a bells solo forms a pleasing feature of the performance. Composer, Percy Wenrich; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

591 Out on the Deep — Peter Dawson

Bass solo with orchestra accompaniment. This fine song of the deep by Lohr affords Mr. Dawson a further opportunity of proving his worth as a sterling vocalist and effective Recordmaker. The broad legato phrases suit his style admirably and serve to bring out the fullest strength and timbre of his magnificent voice. This selection is No. 12225 in the British Catalog. Publishers, Enoch & Sons, London.

* This selection will be illustrated on the cover of the December PHONOGRAM.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

592 Kerry Mills' Barn Dance — Collins and Harlan

"Rube" duet. A pleasing change from the customary Collins and Harlan offering which gives the popular entertainers an opportunity to demonstrate that their repertoire is not confined to "coon" duets. The air to which the song is written is known the country over as the most delightful of all barn dances. Collins and Harlan sing it with their usual exuberance and manage to sandwich in a lot of funny "business." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Thurland Chattaway; music, Kerry Mills; Publisher, F. A. Mills, New York City.

593 Invitation to the Waltz — National (London) Military Band

Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz" was originally composed for the piano, and has proven a stumbling block to thousands of would-be Paderewskis. To hear the National Military Band surmount its technical difficulties is a treat in store for the music lover. The recording is in every way worthy of the composition and its execution. No. 12231 in the British Catalog.

594 The Girl of My Dreams — Herry Anthony and Chorus

The title song and principal sentimental "hit" of the musical play, "The Girl of My Dreams," which is on its way East after scoring a remarkable success in Chicago, and one of the daintiest combinations of words and melody imaginable. A lover's fervid tribute to the charms of his sweetheart—the dream girl of his boyhood days—set to an exquisite waltz air which swings to a pretty two-step melody in the chorus. It is a Record of more than ordinary beauty, for which reason it also went on sale as "special." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Otto Hauerbach; music, Karl Hoschna; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

595 German Yodle Songs — George P. Watson

In this medley, which is sung in German, are introduced three favorite old yodle songs which are perennial favorites the world over—"Der Wasserfall," "Du, Du Liegst Mir in Herzen," and "Doctor Eisenbart." Sung in excellent voice and in Mr. Watson's faultless style, this Record is a treat for the lover of the old-time melodies. Orchestra accompaniment.

596 Sweet Dreams of Home — Charles Daab

Bells solo with orchestra accompaniment. Candor will compel the recognition of Mr. Daab's bells and xylophone Records as the finest of their kind ever produced. His skill as a player is no less remarkable than the wonderfully clear and natural reproduction he obtains at the hands of our recording experts. The selection itself is a catchy bit of music in two-step tempo which is particularly agreeable as a bells solo. Composer, H. Engelmann; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

597 That's Yiddisha Love — Edward Meeker

Comic song. Morritz had been cautioned to conduct his love affairs on a strictly business principle, but disregarded his father's advice with the result disclosed by the song, which is very funny and tuneful as well. Particular attention is drawn to the novel orchestra accompaniment. Words and music, James Brockman; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

598 Home, Sweet Home — Knickerbocker Quartet

Male voices, unaccompanied. John Howard Payne's immortal creation, whose inspired words and music are cherished in every civilized land for the memories and associations it awakens, is here sung in sweetest harmony by voices which blend in a manner befitting the grandeur of its sentiment and melody.

599 Moonlight in Jungleland Medley — New York Military Band

A medley written in schottisch tempo and comprising two popular vocal numbers in the Edison Catalog—"Moonlight in Jungleland" (Amberol No. 415) and "There's No Girl Like Your Old Girl" (Amberol No. 459). As a single instrumental selection these numbers will prove equally as acceptable to the Phonograph public as did the vocal Records. Composers, Dempsey & Schmid; publishers, H. A. Weymann & Sons, Philadelphia.

Edison Standard Records for January, 1911

LIST: U. S. 35c; CANADIAN, 40c

10456 Farandole from "L'Arlésienne" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

"L'Arlésienne" by G. Bizet, is the incidental music to Daudet's drama of that name, produced in 1872. It was his most successful work prior to his famous opera "Carmen." As a suite de concert it is a favorite orchestra work, and "Farandole" is a popular number of the celebrated suite. Played in their usual brilliant style and with good volume, this selection is a delectable offering by Herbert and his incomparable artists.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10457 All That I Ask of You Is Love — Helen Clark

Mezzo-soprano with orchestra accompaniment. A sentimental song of the better class with an attractive, pleading melody, which is rapidly winning vogue. Miss Clark possesses a mezzo-soprano voice of velvety quality and an easy, artistic style, which have won her an enviable reputation in concert and church work. Her first Record for the Edison catalog was Amberol No. 570, "The Man in the Silvery Moon." Words, Edgar Selden; music, Herbert Ingraham; publisher, Shapiro, New York City.

10458 You're Mine, All Mine — Ada Jones and Billy Murray

Conversational duet with orchestra accompaniment. A story of boy-and-girl flirtation with the usual result. The characters are excellently well assigned and it is hard to convince oneself in hearing the Record that it is not actually being sung by a maid and youth of tender years. The delightful "swingy" melody of this song is carrying it to popularity. Words, Richard Henry Buck; music, Theodore Morse; publishers, Theodore Morse Music Co., New York City.

10459 Flanagan's Courtship — Steve Porter

Vaudeville sketch. In his inimitable style our old friend Flanagan tells us how he came to marry "Pauline Joy," who objected to his calling her "a thing of beauty," perhaps because of the harrassing fear that she might remain "a Joy forever." After a raft of like comicalities, Flanagan recites a pathetic poem entitled "The Rat in Pauline's Hair." A very entertaining and sure-to-be-popular Record. Composer, Steve Porter.

10460 The Bell Gavotte — Charles Daab

Bells solo with orchestra accompaniment. A graceful, sprightly number in gavotte tempo executed by Mr. Daab with the same superior artistic skill which has made his previous Records notable. Composer, M. Watson; publisher, W. H. Cundy, Boston, Mass.

10461 Dear Old Ma — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment. A song of tenderest sentiment—a son's reverential memory of a mother's loving care awakened by her empty chair standing in the fire-light's soft glow—framed in an appropriately sweet, flowing melody. Mr. Oakland's singing is thoroughly in sympathy with the sentiment of the song. Words, Bartley Costello; music, Ernest R. Ball; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

10462 Wonderful Words of Life — Anthony and Harrison

Baritone and tenor with orchestra accompaniment. Among devotional numbers this well-known hymn has always held a favorite place, and the interpretation given in this instance will be found in every respect worthy of the selection. Words and music, P. P. Bliss.

10463 Rag Baby's Gwine To Be Mine — Maude Raymond

Coon song. The prospect of soon claiming his "Rag Baby" on the Mississippi shore is the inspiration of this coon's exuberance of spirits, expressed in typical darkey dialect and animated two-step melody, full of vim and tune. Maude Raymond, the perennial vaudeville and musical comedy favorite, sings it in her most entertaining style. Words, Ballard Macdonald; music, Libbie Lee; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Co., New York City.

10464 Cotton Time — Collins and Harlan

Coon duet with orchestra accompaniment. A vision of the Louisiana cotton fields in "cotton time" is offered in this tuneful number, made more realistic by steamboat whistles, clog effects, etc. The song has a rattling good two-step swing. Words, Earl C. Jones; music, Chas. N. Daniels; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Co., New York City.

10465 Southern Ideal March — United States Marine Band

A vigorous, virile march of good tone and volume. Its animated rhythm is well defined by this famous organization whose playing is marked by snap and precision. Composer, J. C. Heed; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

Special Foreign Amberol and Standard Supplement

We are preparing the following Special Supplement of seven Hebrew and six Italian Records, which will be shipped via freight with the January Advance List to any one territory at the same time. Special printed matter will accompany the orders, which may be placed on sale as soon as received.

These Records have been selected and recorded with unusual care and have been pronounced by competent Hebrew and Italian critics to be of an exceptionally high standard. They should prove very attractive to that portion of the Edison public they are intended to interest, and Dealers who are in a position to command any portion of such trade should lose no time in placing an order for the Records end in giving them all possible publicity.

Because of the special printed matter which accompanies the Records they will not appear in the regular Monthly Supplement, and Dealers are requested to make note of the fact that this method of listing Foreign selections will be followed in the future.

Vol. VIII. DECEMBER, 1910 No. 12

That You May Have Cause To Be Merry

An early start, confidence to burn, hard, intelligent and persistent work, and loads of enthusiasm—these are the essentials which you and everybody in your employ must recognize if you would handle the holiday trade with real, unstinted success.

Only three weeks intervene between now and Christmas. The first two are the best for the Phonograph Dealer, for the week immediately preceding the eve of Christmas rounds up for the most part either the shoppers who turn to the Phonograph as an eleventh-hour inspiration or such as have already been induced to select one as a Christmas gift by the advertising and salesmanship of the weeks just previous. You don't want to depend upon the former class, for they are fickle to say the least, but you do want to get after the latter, because while you are "burning it into them," you are also appealing to the early holiday shoppers who are making their selections in advance of the big rush. And don't forget that the public is doing its holiday shopping earlier ever year; the "last minute" shopper is fast becoming a rara avis.

Your confidence must assert itself in every necessary detail of preparation for the start—your stock, your advertising, your sales force, etc.—but, over and above all other things, it must be manifested by a good, representative, generous stock of goods. No truer words were ever spoken than that "confidence begets confidence." If you prove your confidence by displaying everything in your store that is carried in your catalogs, you may rest assured that the public will imbibe deeply of the confidence in you and your goods which you thereby inspire. If your stock is incomplete or inadequate now, wire or 'phone your Jobber to-day for a rush express shipment, in order that your early start may be supplemented by the necessary confidence.

Make your clerks work hard, intelligently and persistently. Insist on an orderly, well kept stock and demand patience, tact and courtesy in their treatment of customers. A customer deserves to have shown and explained every detail of the article he is contemplating a purchase of; and there are so many attractive and exclusive features of the Edison line. Moreover, they are all so important that none can safely be slighted. Your clerks—even those who are employed extra for the holidays—should be familiarized with at least the most important of these features and taught to demonstrate them and use them as sales arguments. They should be impressed with the necessity of explaining intelligently and patiently to every customer wherein lies the superiority of the Edison line.

There isn't another article on the market that compares with the Phonograph as a holiday seller, and there are few lines that are better advertised. The Edison Dealer, therefore, has every reason to be enthusiastic, for with the Edison he has a clear sales advantage over his competitors. The public knows that the Edison is the original Phonograph, improved and perfected by its inventor, and they are told by our advertising that the instrument has just the right volume of sound for the home, that it has a sapphire reproducing point which does not scratch, wear out or need changing, and that it is the only Phonograph that permits of home record making.

It, therefore, becomes necessary for you only to prove that what we say is true. If you apply yourself to the task with enthusiasm, with persistence and confidence, and begin to do it now—to-day—you will have plenty of cause to rejoice when the bells peal forth their glorious message of peace and good will on Christmas morn.

Loosen Up, Mr. Dealer, Get the Christmas Spirit

Everybody's hand is in his pocket at this time of the year to buy somebody else a Christmas gift—yours as well as the rest. This is the joyful season—the time to give and take, to receive and reciprocate, to offer and accept holiday presents and greetings. It's a good old custom at that, for it makes the milk of human kindness flow more freely and brings to us all the realization that it's a pretty decent old world after all.

You're thinking of what you are going to buy your friends and, vice versa, they're thinking of a suitable present for you; which leads us to wonder what you are going to buy an old and faithful friend of yours—CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING.

We know and you know that his present to you is always many times the value of what you offer him; so why not make it an exceptionally good one this year on both sides? You loosen up, and you'll find that he'll reciprocate in kind. Let the spirit of the holiday hit you a little harder this year than ever before. Dig a little deeper into your pocket for your Christmas ads. If you have been in the habit of using single column space in previous years, double up this year—spread your ads over two columns or more—and make them deep enough to tell your story comprehensively and convincingly, with space for illustrations besides. Don't consider the increased space so much more expense, for it is distinctly not expense, it's an investment that will pay you manifold.

Remember that your advertising is not only in many cases the sole communication between you and a big majority of the purchasing public, but it is also the standard by which they judge you and your ability to offer them what they want. If you are carrying a good stock, therefore, an insignificant, inadequate ad. is a decided injustice to yourself and your business. It gives your competitor, who may not be nearly as well equipped to supply the trade as yourself, a great big advantage over you. Make up your mind this year that you won't give him that advantage, and prepare to advertise between now and Christmas as you have never advertised before.

If you are in need of cuts, decide to-day what you need and write use or send us a special delivery. They will go forward at once free of charge. You will find Amberola cuts illustrated in the October Monthly, suitable Christmas cuts in the November number, and others still are shown on page 13 of this issue. We have many other cuts of all types of machines and accessories which we will gladly furnish on request. All you have to do is to let us know in a general way what kind of an ad. you expect to run and about how much space you intend to use. We'll undertake to supply appropriate cuts.

Don't disregard the advice, Mr. Dealer—loosen up and see how your old friend, CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING, returns the compliment.

Is there "an Edison Phonograph for every pocketbook" in your stock?

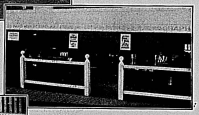
Two More "Specials"

This is to remind you that Amberol Records Nos. 601, "Alma—"Alma, Where Do You Live?" and 617, "Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me," leave the factory within the next day or two with the January Records, to go on sale as soon as received. The usual printed matter—folder and hanger—accompany them. If your Jobber hasn't your order now for both Records and printed matter, make it out and send it just as soon as you read this. Further delay will keep you off the ground floor, and you'll lose the benefit of the first popularity of these numbers.

Both Records are splendidly done. The "Alma" song is rendered exactly as it is sung in the now internationally famous production, and by artists whose pleasing voices and style will win them immediate favor with your customers. This song is the better known of the two in the East, while the opposite is true of "Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me," which is now being featured in "Jumping Jupiter" on Western tour. The performance of the latter is in Jones and Murray's best style, the arrangement being very like that of "Silver Bell."

Now that this plan of advancing the shipping and selling date of popular numbers is an established thing, we would again urge the expediency of placing a standing order with your Jobber to cover all such "Specials," which would relieve you of further trouble in the matter and insure your early receipt of the Records.

"Music Master" Horns are breaking all records in the sales line. Have you a stock for the holidays?



WANTED—Dealers in all cities not now represented to handle the Edison Business Phonograph. The demand for this up-to-date device for handling business correspondence is rapidly growing and Dealers who take on this line now will not only profit from the start but will have a franchise that will be more and more valuable as time passes. Your Best Holiday Investment—The Amberola

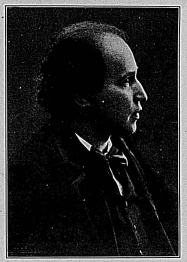
Why? Because it is a double investment—it has a maximum of advertising as well as sales value.

It is the best possible ad. your store could have, because the public is always eager and anxious to see the latest product of the Edison Laboratories; and the millions who read the big magazines and national weeklies know from our advertising that the Amberola is Edison's very latest creation in the Phonograph line. They are further told that it is the most perfect sound-reproducing instrument, tonally and artistically, that has yet been placed on the market—that its tones are marvellously clear, mellow and natural, its volume exactly what is wanted in the home, its design original and exclusive, and its finish an artistic triumph—and they are naturally curious to see what this wonderful instrument is like. Many of those people are in your locality, a your very door: if they knew that you could satisfy their curiosity by a practical demonstration of the Amberola, would they wait for an invitation to visit your store for that purpose? True that a certain percentage of such people will feel that they can't afford to buy an Amberola. But haven't you all the other types of Edison Phonographs, differing principally in design and finish from the master creation and each one a perfect instrument in itself, with which to tempt them into a purchase? To get the purchasing public into your store is the main object, and if the Amberola does exactly that—if it proves to be the lodestone that draws the customers in—it is the best possible ad. you could employ, is it not?

We want you to consider the Amberola from an advertising standpoint, Mr. Dealer,—in fact we want you to consider it from every standpoint. We want you to look the proposition squarely in the face now at the start of the holidays and leave yourself open to argument while you are doing it. We contend that there is a market in your town for the Amberola—that there's a market for it everywhere that song and music and fun and entertainment are welcome in the home life, and that an instrument of its surpassing beauty of design and finish and incomparable tonal charm is appreciated—and we back up our argument by the strongest, most convincing of proofs—the experience of others—FACTS. We cite you bona fide instances, and we could cite many more, where Amberolas have been sold without difficulty in towns of 150 population and less. Could you ask for better proof than this? Not with reason. And do you know why Amberolas sell in these towns? Because the Dealers knows their fields—they know who can afford to buy the instrument, and they pick out their customers in advance. Isn't a sale the logical sequence of such a method? Couldn't you apply such a method to your own locality?

You can sell Amberolas in your town, Mr. Dealer, not only to people of wealth but to those of moderate means, and it's only a question of moral courage on your part whether you make the attempt or not. We are not attempting to unload a high-priced instrument on you. That's not the Edison way of doing business. We do want you to prove to your own satisfaction, however, that you can sell Amberolas, and thus realize anew the possibilities of the Edison line. We want you to grasp your opportunity now, during the holidays, by investing in an instrument which will not only sell itself but which, by force of its advertising value, will help you in the sale of the other Phonographs and Accessories of the Edison line.



Edison Window Displays

The work of organizing our Department of Window Display and Interior Arrangement is progressing very nicely, and it looks now as though we will be in a position to make a definite announcement of the inaugural Window in our January number. Mr. Rinehart, Manager of the Department, has had a staff of assistants steadily at work for the past six weeks whipping his ideas into shape, and results obtained thus far justify the prediction that Edison Windows will meet with the enthusiastic approval of the trade. It is a matter of regret that the first Window can not be placed in the hands of the trade for use during the holidays, but the time has been altogether too short to prepare one such as we would like to have considered a standard by which to judge succeeding efforts.

The suggestion made to Dealers in the November number is repeated,—that they file their orders for Edison Window Displays with their Jobbers at an early date, the understanding being that the Displays will be sent monthly, the cost per month not to exceed $5.00.

At the Annual Business Men's Show held in Madison Square Garden, New York City, Oct. 22-29, messages from some of the most prominent educators, government officials and captains of industry in the country were conveyed to the management of the enterprise and through them to 200,000 visitors at the Show by means of Edison Phonograph Records.

Alexander Heinemann Records

ALEXANDER HEINEMANN, Baritone

By a stroke of real enterprise, which we feel our trade will fully appreciate, we have been successful in securing eight Amberol Records by this famous German "lieder" singer, who is now on tour in this country. The selections are carefully culled from his extensive repertoire, and include not only favorite German folk songs but several which will be recognized as being of standard quality. Mr. Heinemann, who has sung in every city of importance in Europe, made his American debut at Mendelssohn Hall, New York City, on November 5th, before a large and enthusiastic audience in a recital which won him unstinted praise from the metropolitan press and critics.

These Heinemann Records will be shipped with the February Advance List to all Jobbers in any one territory at the same time, and may go on sale at soon as received. As special printed matter will accompany the Records, they will not appear in the regular monthly Supplement.

We strongly urge every Dealer who has customers of German birth or extraction to place an early order for a liberal supply of these Records, which are examples of skillful recording as well as artistic singing.

Fanny J. Crosby's Tribute to Edison and The Phonograph

The following letter and poem, dedicated to Thomas A. Edison, were sent to B. F. Rhineberger, formerly a representative of the Century Store, Edison Dealers at Bridgeport, Conn., and now one of our travelers, by Fanny J. Crosby, the famous blind poetess and hymn writer, many of whose beautiful compositions are to be found in the Edison catalogs. As the letter discloses, this warm tribute was inspired by gratitude for the pleasure which the installation of an Edison Home Phonograph brought to her home:

"Mr. B. F. Rhineberger:

Esteemed Friend:

Through your kindness and that of the Century Company, whom you so faithfully represent, I have the honor of stating publicly my views in relation to the Edison Phonograph, and of proving its inestimable worth.

It was you who so generously placed it within the circle of my home, thus affording to each one of its members a rare treat, which I assure you will never be forgotten. Its clear, silver tones, its sweet, classical melodies, beautifully and artistically rendered, have held us captive not only to the productions of the old masters but also to the music of distinguished modern authors.

In a word, we hail the Edison Phonograph, and we venerate the genius of him by whom it was invented—a genius whose deep research and unwearied perseverance have made him the wonder and admiration of a progressive and literary world.

O Edison! through thy genius super,
Science stands and thrills o'er realms forth;
The hill of science thou had nobly climbed,
And on its very summit thou dost stand,
Crowned with the laurels of immortal fame,
God give thee health for each revolving day,
And spare thee still to work for years to come.

—Fanny J. Crosby."

Lost or Stolen Machine

Home Phonograph No. 306,119 has disappeared. Jobbers and Dealers are requested to keep on the lookout for this machine and to promptly communicate with our Agreement Dept., at Orange, any clue to its whereabouts, in order that immediate steps may be taken to restore it to its rightful owner.

The Other 13,000

H. S. Hart—His Methods Invite Imitation

Down in Shreveport, La., there's an Edison Dealer whose business methods, personality and attitude are so exemplary that we feel impelled to devote a little space to his success, in the hope that it may help other Dealers to "find the way." Our reference is to H. S. Hart.

Now, in the first place, Mr. Hart is not a big Dealer, nor is he extremely wealthy, although he writes that he has squeezed enough profit out of the line to cover the repaiming of his automobile.

In the second place, he's not any more favorably situated for doing a large business than hundreds of other Dealers,—in fact, he's probably less favorably situated than half our Dealers in the field.

In the third place, he didn't have any "cinch" at the start. On the contrary, he began business in the face of competition—keen competition—with a shoe-string or two, packs of ideas, and plenty of ambition as practically his only assets.

To-day he writes: "I am proud to be an Edison Dealer, glad that it is my privilege to represent you here in Shreveport. This town is going "Edison" so long as I'm at the wheel, or I'll know the reason why!"

And how has he brought about this success? Simply by plugging,—"keeping eternally at it" —by analyzing the line he has to sell, and by educating his customers to their need of that line.

As before stated, he has an automobile—it may be a "one-lunger" for all we know, but it travels around the Shreveport neighborhood carrying with it demonstrating Machines and Records on the out-going trip and bringing back the money, or a signed contract covering an installment sale.

The prospect who can't be reached quickly enough in the auto gets an immediate demonstration over the telephone. The unsuspecting buyer who comes into the Hart store for a jackknife goes home with a Fireside or some other outfit—or Records, if he already has a machine—won by the personality of the man whose very sincerity and belief in our line are sufficient to convince the most skeptical.

We recently asked Mr. Hart to send us a list of prospects as we could help him with a little direct circularizing from the factory. He produced ten names, writing at the time, "Here are a few names,—really the only ones who don't own Edison machines and can afford to buy them now. As it is, I'm afraid they know as much about Edison Machines as you'll be able to tell them in a number of letters, but you can try anyway." Think of a town the size of Shreveport having so few non-owners, and you'll get some idea of the enterprise of the man whose praises we are singing! How does he get any business then, you ask? By "swapping" Firesides for Standards, Homes for Triumphs, Triumphs for Amberolas, etc., and by selling Records, new horns, blanks, hearing tubes, reorders, and other "supplies." All the while he's making these sales he's planning for those he will land in the future, ever keeping in mind the fact that an owner's interest in his machine must be sustained and occasionally renewed or eventually the machine falls into disuse.

Newspaper advertising, circular advertising, "word-of-mouth" advertising, indoor and outdoor advertising, clever clerks, good window displays, representative and clean stock, enthusiasm, faith, optimism and numberless other things have combined to bring about his success, which is not so unusual but that it can be duplicated by any other Dealer who believes with him that the selling of Edison goods is "one of the best propositions in this country at the present time." "Because," he continues, "very little effort, after all, is required of the Dealer. Customers come in and ask for the goods (or if they don't it's easy enough by a little intelligent advertising to make them come in), and all the Dealer need do is to demonstrate a few carefully selected Records on a well regulated machine and drop the purchase price of the machine in the cash register!" Sounds simple, doesn't it? Maybe it's not quite as easy as Mr. Hart relates, but then he's been through it and he ought to know!

For Which—Thanks

I would like to take the opportunity of complimenting your Recording Department on the exceptionally fine lot of Records they are turning out. "Silver Bell," for instance, we believe will prove the greatest selling Record ever put out by any company. What makes a Record of this kind a big seller is not alone its catchy air, but the little tricks your people put into the arrangement. We refer in this special Record to the violin and bell part and the tenor work of Murray in parts of the chorus. It is "something different"—something besides the straight, ordinary singing of the song that makes these big sellers. Frequently other companies will make the same Record your company does, using the same artists, yet it is not a large seller or does not attract special attention, merely because there is no special arrangement.—Sonia Fe Watch Co.

The Spirit That Does Things

The following extract from a letter received from Julius Bitz, St. Peter, Minn., shows that he is imbued with the spirit of enthusiasm which spells success "in large bunches," to use an expressive phrase of the vernacular. With more than half the battle won by his faith in the line and in his own ability to push it successfully, there can't be a doubt that he will treble his business during the coming year as he confidently expects. Here is the extract:

"The PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY is just what a Dealer needs to keep the enthusiasm going in him. I don't know what I would do without it. It is an ideal trade booklet and could scarcely be improved. I have just placed an order for $503.00 worth of Edison Phonographs (including an Amberola and a Mahogany Home with "Music Master" horn). I am now carrying 350 Amberol and 375 Standard Records, and with a stock like this I feel fortified against any demands that can be made upon me. The fall business started out fine with us and the indications are that we will surely double if not triple last year's business."

After a month of hard, persistent effort, which included three personal calls, not to speak of the writing of numerous letters, Arthur E. Bullock, of Omer, Mass., succeeded in landing a "prospect" in a neighboring town whom we had referred to him. Not only did he clinch the sale, but he sold his man a Home equipment instead of the Standard which he was thinking of buying. This he accomplished by placing the Home outfit in the prospect's home on trial—a method that seldom fails. In thanking us for the assistance we rendered him, Mr. Bullock made the following statement, which will probably appear almost incredible to less active Dealers:

"This is only a small place of about 200 families, yet I have sold over 100 Edison Phonographs in less than three years. I carry a complete line of Records, Standard and Amberol, of the domestic catalogue, also about ten Phonographs of different styles in stock at all times; so you can see that I am after all I can get out of it. I sold a Standard last Monday, also one to-day."

"After all he can get out of it"—therein lies the secret of this Dealer's success. It's a safe bet that the remaining fifty per cent. of the families in Omer, Mass., will own Edison Phonographs before three more years have passed over Mr. Bullock's head.

With some redeemed Promotion Certificates Will S. Gibson, 4239 Frankford Ave., Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa., enclosed a post-card view of one of the five billboards which he uses to advertise Edison goods. We repeat—FIVE BILLBOARDS—AND FOR HIS EXCLUSIVE USE. Let that sink in, ye who have been wont to grow hysterical over that venerable vaudeville joke which is still perpetrated about a supposed peculiarity of the Quaker City people.

Jobbers' Notes

The O. K. Houck Piano Co., Memphis, Tenn., have installed five large, sound-proof demonstration parlors for Edison Phonographs and Records just inside the door on the first floor of their main building—the most valuable space in their entire store. The Memphis public will undoubtedly appreciate the great convenience which this enterprising firm has insured them through this innovation.

Under the auspices of the S. L. Crosby Co., Bangor, Me., our special traveler, J. W. Scott ("Scotty"), recently gave several successful Amberola concerts at the Bangor House that city. One recital, which was announced by a neat four-page program bearing the S. L. Crosby ad., was made up of some of the choicest numbers in the Amberol catalog excellently arranged with a view to variety.

The business of the Minnesota Phonograph Co., 515 First avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn., will in future be conducted under the individual name of Laurence H. Lucker.

The R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., of Montreal, Quebec, Canada, have removed from 591 St. Catharine street W., to their permanent quarters at 59 St. Peter street, same city.

W. H. Ross & Sons of 43 Exchange St., Portland, Maine, have been succeeded by The Portland Sporting Goods Co., same address.

The Boston Cycle & Sundry Company, Boston, Mass, has been succeeded by the Lincoln Sporting Goods Company at 48 Hanover Street.

Bolson Brothers, Chicago, Ills., recently opened a branch jobbing establishment at 335 Portage Ave., Winnipeg, Man., Canada.

The Graves Music Co., 102 Second Ave., Spokane, Wash., has succeeded the Spokane Phonograph Company at the same address.

Edison: His Life and Inventions

Above is the title of a full and authoritative story of the life and inventions of Thomas A. Edison, in the preparation of which Frank Lewis Dyer, President and Chief Counsel of the National Phonograph Company, collaborated with Thomas Commerford Martin, Ex-President of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The narrative, much of which is in Mr. Edison's own language, follows the various stages of his life from boyhood on and his inventions, and in addition the reader is given an intimate knowledge of his personal side. The book is practically a history of Electricity for the past fifty years, and contains, among other new material, a complete list of the Edison patents.

The work is in two handsomely finished volumes, plentifully illustrated with portraits and views reproduced from photographs. Price of set is $4.00 net; sent prepaid, securely packed in box, for $4.25. Any orders or communications in reference to the work should be sent direct to the publishers, Harper & Bros., Franklin Square, New York City.

Selling the Goods

Your first consideration, after your stock and advertising, is your window display. Don't put it off, as many do, until the final week; arrange one at once and change it once or twice between now and Christmas week. Give it the benefit of your careful thought and put into it all the originality you can command. Keep in mind the fact that a neat, well arranged display will attract customers, while a crowded, carelessly dressed window will repel trade. Remember that your windows are your cheapest, most direct method of reaching the shopper, and that a good or bad impression is created by the condition of the windows themselves and the arrangement of the stock they hold.

Your interior arrangement comes next in importance. For the convenience of your customers and in order that you may effect quick, easy sales, it is absolutely necessary that your stock be systematically and neatly arranged. Give plenty of space to your Machine display and see that your Record stock is so arranged as to be easy of access. Don't make the mistake of letting your clerks tumble Records loosely around upon the counters. Insist upon everything in its place. It saves time in the long run and looks better.

Remember the big talking points of the Edison Phonograph and see that your clerks remember them:—the permanent Sapphire Reproducing Point which does not scratch, does not wear out and never needs changing; the fascinating and exclusive home recording feature, which is more than half the fun of owning a Phonograph; the fact that the volume of the Edison is neither too loud nor too weak, but just right for the home; that its tones are clear, sweet and mellow and free from distracting surface noises; and that the Edison catalog offers the best efforts of the world's greatest artists of song and music.

Just because the holidays are at hand and everybody can be expected to do more or less shopping is no reason why you should temporarily suspend the most logical of all sales methods—HOME DEMONSTRATION. The alert Dealer will perceive that there is a stronger reason than ever for pursuing this method at this particular time of the year, and will accordingly employ outside salesmen to demonstrate the Edison in the homes, thereby gaining the tremendous advantage of implanting the first impression in the shoppers' minds. The home demonstration method is founded upon the strongest and most logical of theories —that the man of family is most open to conviction when approached in his own home to purchase an article which adds to the comfort and happiness of that home.

In your sales talks lay stress upon the adaptability and economy of the Edison as an impromptu dance orchestra, and compare the character of its music with that furnished by amateurs or even by the very best orchestras. Explain that the Edison catalog is replete with dance Records of all kinds, recorded by skilled musicians and Record makers, and that volume and tempo are therefore exact. This feature of the Phonograph is frequently a clinching argument, particularly with the younger set and with the matron who perceives the advantage of owning an instrument which can be depended upon at all times when entertaining her friends and other inspiration fails.

Introduce a customer to your highest priced machine first. He may be induced to invest in a better machine than he at first intended, and even if he is not, it flatters him to pay him the compliment of apparently thinking that he can afford to do so; which raises you in his estimation. Besides, it's easier to come down the ladder of prices than to go up, and you have an excellent line to do it with,—"an Edison Phonograph for every pocketbook."

Have you a Shaving Machine, Recorders, Shaved Blanks, etc.? If not, wire your order at once and prepare to demonstrate the home recording feature to your customers. Let them make Records of their voices. It costs nothing to speak of and the fascination of it will appeal irresistibly to one who has never heard his own voice on a Record. Boost this feature of your line; it means sales for you.

Be sure to keep the addresses of everyone to whom you sell a Phonograph during the holidays. You will need them for your mailing list after the holidays.

This year make your Christmas Instrument
AN EDISON
PHONOGRAPH

Make it an EDISON because—

1st—The Edison Phonograph has just the right volume of sound for the home. Other talking machines are either too loud or too weak, but the Edison is "just right."

2d—The Edison Phonograph has a Sapphire Reproducing Point that does not scratch, does not wear out and never needs changing, and doesn't scratch the records or the user's ears.

3d—The Edison is the instrument that plays Amberol Records (four minutes each) as well as standard records and plays any kind of disc record you have.

4th—The Edison Phonograph permits of home record making

These are a few of the Edison advantages. You want them in the instrument you buy. So go to a dealer's—there are Edison dealers everywhere—and insist on hearing an Edison—the instrument that has been perfected and is manufactured by Thomas A. Edison.

Then there's the Edison Phonograph Monthly, which tells you all about the latest Edison Records and Edison Phonographs, and which you can get free by writing to

Lest You Forget

There is a strong possibility during the holiday scramble after new customers of your temporarily neglecting certain features of the line which particularly deserve to be agitated now more than ever. For instance—

THE NEW RECORD EXCHANGE PLAN

the respective merits of which to the Consumer and the Dealer have been carefully pointed out in previous issues. Without rehearsing them in detail we would again remind you that this Plan works to your immediate advantage, principally because it brings your old customers into your store and gives you a chance to interest them in the holiday line. Just bear that in mind—it brings customers into your store during the holidays. That fact alone, without the certain knowledge that it gives you a chance to pull the slow-selling Records from your shelves at a profit and leaves a gap in the customers' collections that you can fill from your active stock, should induce you to give it all the advertisement possible at this time. Then there's—which would seem almost to have been made to order for holiday use. It means, as we have frequently pointed out, the appointment of just so many outside salesmen working with an incentive in sight upon the susceptibility of their friends and neighbors, who are particularly open to suggestion just now. Can't you see the wisdom of plugging such a scheme, during the holidays harder than ever? Isn't it worth a special letter and some certificates to your customers now, a few minutes of your time with prospective purchasers and the distribution of some Promotion Literature in your store? We think it is, and so will you if you give it careful consideration. Lastly, there's—which is also one of your good missionaries and which, if persistently kept before the public, will some day fulfill its mission—the "amberolizing" of every un-equipped Phonograph in your territory. Why not bring that "some day" nearer to materialization by giving the Plan the benefit of your special holiday effort?

These three propositions are so intimately connected one with the other that each may almost be said to "dovetail" its fellows. They work hand in glove together for a common purpose. The Record Exchange Plan revives the interest of your old customers, the Combination Plan supplements the work by making them customers for the new Amberol Records, the new Reproducers, new Horns and other Accessories, and The Promotion Plan converts them into active, enthusiastic salesmen for your store.

Why not one special letter to your customers calling the three propositions to their attention, and with descriptive literature enclosed? The results, we are sure, will justify the extra effort.

New Printed Matter

If you haven't received a supply of the new Record catalogs (Form 1860) you should lose no time in getting a quantity sufficient for your requirements from your Jobber. The catalogs contain a complete list of all Domestic and Grand Opera Amberol and Standard Records, British Amberol Records and all Amberol Instrumental Records issued in other countries up to and including September, 1910.

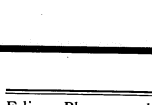
In distributing them among the public it is well to remember that the December supplements, which review the October and November Records, together with the new catalog offer a complete list of all Records up to and including December, 1910.

The following forms are also in the hands of Jobbers ready for distribution:

Record Exchange literature—a Special Catalog (Form 1870) containing the list of 500 Standard Records available under the new Plan, and a Post-Card for mailing to customers;

An illustrated Folder in colors (Form 1895) on the new Model "O" Reproducer, and

Special Christmas literature—an attractive Christmas Folder (Form 1900) in red, white and green, "A Merry Christmas for Every Member of the Family," for circulation among the public, and a Window Hanger (Form 1899) in the same colors and suggesting the same idea—a Home Phonograph for all the family surrounded by the well-filled Christmas stockings of individual members of the family.



Dealers are urged to secure a supply of these forms at the earliest possible opportunity and to use them in the manner intended to the best advantage.

IMPORTANT!!!

Jobbers and Dealers are again reminded that the Record Exchange Proposition on the two-for-one basis terminates on December 31, 1910, and that Records to be accepted for credit must be shipped to the factory on or before that date. In other words every shipping receipt sent us for Records returned under the old proposition must bear a date prior to January 1, 1911; otherwise the Records will be held at the shipper's risk and subject to his order.

Edison Bohemian Records

The following Amberol and Standard Bohemian Records were placed in the hands of our Jobbers last month and went on sale immediately. They were issued in response to repeated requests from people of Bohemian birth and ancestry, and have been pronounced by native critics excellent Records of their kind. Dealers who are fortunately so located as to be able to realize on them should lose no time in ordering from their Jobbers. Because of the printed matter which accompanies them, these Records will not be found listed in the Monthly Supplement. Prices are as usual.

Edison Grand Opera Amberol Records

40038 Die Meistersinger—Preislied (Wagner) Leo Slezak, Tenor
United States list, $2.00; Canadian, $2.50.

Sung in German. Of all the Wagnerian operas none compare with his celebrated "Meistersinger" in its grasp upon the affections of the music lover. Its poetic key-note might well be the reply of Walther von Stolzing, the hero, as to who his teachers were: "The birds of the woods taught me to sing." It fairly revels in beautiful numbers of which the "Preislied," with which Walther enters the tournament for the hand and heart of his adored Eva, is the most popular. This selection has always been a prime favourite with Mr. Slezak, and into its rendition he throws all the wealth of voice and artistry at his command. The result is a supremely beautiful Record. Orchestra accompaniment.

40039 Amico Fritz—Son pochi fiori (Mascagni) Carmen Melis, Soprano
United States list, $2.00; Canadian, $2.50.

Sung in Italian. Friend Fritz thinks he is a woman hater and makes a wager with his friend that he will never marry. When the Gods heard him they must have laughed loud and long, for in a very short time he finds that he is deeply in love with the sweet and beautiful Suzel. He wants to run away, but cannot bring himself to the point and proposes instead. The opera is full of delightful music and this selection by Carmen Melis is one of its most melodious numbers. She is in her element in this joyous and merry creation, and suggests very happily the brightness and gayety of these light-hearted people. Orchestra accompaniment.

30035 Pagliacci—Vesti la giubba (Leoncavallo) Florencio Constantino, Tenor
United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in Italian. Leoncavallo not only composed the music for this opera, but also wrote the libretto. The story is founded upon an actual occurrence. The tragedy is within the circle of a wandering theatrical troupe. The wife of Canio, the proprietor, who takes the part of Pagliacci in their play, is untrue to him. He learns this just before the curtain rises on the evening performance. His grief is so great that he finds it almost impossible to play the part. He strives to rouse himself from his sorrow, and just here Constantino's fine tones take up the tale, deeply stirring our imagination and rousing our sympathies most delightfully. Orchestra accompaniment.

30036 Lohengrin—Elsa's Traum (Wagner) Marie Rappold, Soprano
United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in German. If a novelist of to-day were to write the story of "Lohengrin" he might call it "Girlhood's Dream." The fancy of every young woman centers her reveries of the day and her visions of the night about the misty figure of the unknown prince who surely must come to win her heart and hand. Elsa is one of the fortunate few whose visions come true even to the utmost limit. Marie Rappold, with that keen intuition of her sex and the quick interpretation of her American birthright, sets before us, to the accompaniment of sweet music, the dream of Elsa and the promising presentiment of her approaching prince and deliverer, Lohengrin. Orchestra accompaniment.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

40040 Manon—Ah! fuyez, douce image (Massenet) Karl Jörn, Tenor
United States list, $2.00; Canadian, $2.50.

Sung in French. "Manon" is Massenet's best known opera, and is based on the Abbe Provost's famous novel. It is the story of a flirt and is typically Parisian. Massenet's gay music fits it like a glove. Des Grieux is the most daring of her early lovers, and although he is about to take holy orders, elopes with her as she is on her way to a convent. Karl Jörn as the Chevalier Des Grieux is a fascinating lover, and well illustrates his versatility by singing the part of the gay lover as charmingly as he does that of Walther in "Die Meistersinger." Orchestra accompaniment.

35014 Barbiere di Siviglia—Una voce poco fa (Rossini) Selma Kurz, Soprano
United States list, $1.50; Canadian, $2.00.

Sung in Italian. This light and happy opera has held its place almost one hundred years. It is based on no ancient myth, but rather on events quite modern in style. Its humor may have something to do with its continued popularity, although its music is its real elixir of life. Rosina's guardian wants to marry her, and so does the Count Almaviva, and she, loving the Count, wants to marry him. To aid the lovers, the services of the quick-witted and amusing barber are successfully enlisted. Selma Kurz is a great favorite in Europe and her rich, captivating voice is as full of charm as Rosina herself. Orchestra accompaniment.

35015 Grand Mogul—Valse des serpents (Audran) Blanche Arral, Soprano
United States list, $1.50; Canadian, $2.00.

Sung in French. All the world loves a lover, and every woman loves a waltz. It is as natural and easy for Blanche Arral to express the joy of her heart and sex in this tuneful air, as it is for a village maiden to express her youth and energy about the May-Pole on a holiday. She sets the feet a-going, and the blood a-bounding, as the music pours from her throat like a bird's song in the Spring. Orchestra accompaniment.

30037 Elisir d'Amore—Una furtiva lagrima (Donizetti) Aristodemo Giorgini, Tenor
United States list, $1.00; Canadian, $1.25.

Sung in Italian. The opera takes its name from the love philtre bought by the young farmer, Nemorino, when he thinks he may not win his adored Adina. It is in reality but a bottle of cheap wine, and after he drinks it he behaves so badly that instead of winning Adina he nearly loses her. The real philtre in the case, and the one which works the charm, is the simple, faithful heart of Nemorino. This delightful romanza of Donizetti's is sung with all the fervor and joy of a successful lover. As we listen we can but rejoice that one so genuine and unselfish as Nemorino should win the sweet Adina. Orchestra accompaniment.

Edison Amberol Records for February, 1911

United States list, 50 cents; Canada, 65 cents

600 Zampa Overture Edison Concert Band

The brilliant overture to the opera "Zampa," the most successful work of the celebrated French composer, Ferdinand Herold (1791-1833), first produced in Paris in 1831. This overture has long been accorded a place among the standard classics of the famous masters. Our Concert Band gives a superb execution of its delightfully contrasted passages, resulting in a Record which every true lover of band music will be glad to add to his collection. Publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

601 Alma—"Alma, Where Do You Live?" Miss Spencer & Mr. Ormsby

Soprano and tenor duet. The principal song number of the musical farce, "Alma, Where Do You Live?" the big European and American success. Alma's complaint of flirtatious persecution by the male sex is clothed in clever verbal garb and set to a pleasing air with a charming slow waltz refrain which invites many repetitions. It is here sung exactly as in the show by two well known and accomplished church and concert diseuses, whose first Edison Record two well known and accomplished church and concert diseuses, whose first Edison Record proves them a decided acquisition to the catalog. This Record, because of the popularity of the song and the excellence of the performance, was placed on sale as a "Special." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Geo. V. Hobart; music, Jean Briquet; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

602 Asthore Reinald Werrenrath

Baritone solo with orchestra accompaniment. "Asthore" ("Dear") is a widely known song of standard quality, with an unmistakable Irish lilt and words of poetic grace. Mr. Werrenrath, who is by no means a stranger to the Edison catalog, is an accomplished singer. His light baritone voice, approaching tenor quality in its upper tones, is of a singularly winning character, and his style is beyond reproach. His rendition of this number will establish the reason for his popularity on the concert platform. Words, Clifton Bingham; music, H. Trotère; publishers, Edward Schuberth & Co., New York City.

* This selection will be illustrated on cover of February Phonogram.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

603 Barbara Frietchie — Edgar L. Davenport

Recitation. Embellished with appropriate orchestral effects, the tale of Barbara Frietchie's historic defiance of the gallant Stonewall Jackson and his troopers—a tale of Northern patriotism and Southern chivalry—is here recited with the consummate elocutionary art of one of America's most talented actors. His splendid style and enunciation are reproduced with the fidelity and clearness which are possible only on Edison Records, and the result is a Record which will be welcomed in every home. Throughout the last few lines the strains of "America" in crescendo are heard bursting into the full, glorious notes of the anthem at the finish. Author, John Greenleaf Whittier.

604 Cradle Song Medley — J. Scott Skinner

Violin solo with piano accompaniment. Starting with a soothing cradle song this number soon swings into a medley of characteristically lively and infectious Scotch reels, in which a remarkably clever imitation of the bag-pipes is presented. Specially recorded for us by a native Scotch artist whose specialty is the reels and strathspeys of his native land and who is a regular contributor to our British Supplement, in which it will probably be listed later on.

605 I'm Looking for a Nice Young Fellow Who Is Looking for a Nice Young Girl — Ada Jones and Chorus

The latest of serio-comics. The quest of an amorous miss for "some one to cuddle her" set to a pleasing two-step air by the popular writer, S. R. Henry. As if in echo of her plaint a chorus of male voices repeats the refrain, appropriately rewritten to voice a search on their part for a girl equally as idealistic as the fellow she sings of. In the final repetition the singers alternate the lines of the refrain with the orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jeff T. Brenner; publishers, Jos. W. Stern & Company, New York City.

606 The Fishermen — Anthony & Harrison

Tenor and baritone duet with orchestra accompaniment. This beautiful song of the fishermen's peril, a high-class number and a favorite duet with concert singers, was written by an author whose compositions won him in Italy the sobriquet of "Neuvo Schubert" ("The New Schubert"). The rendition is well worthy of the character of the song. A Record which will appeal in an especial manner to lovers of the very best in music. Words, English translation by Theo. T. Barker; music, V. Gabussi; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

607 Military Life Two-Step — New York Military Band

This number was specially recorded for dancing, and both volume and tempo will be found ideal for that purpose. It is a rousing two-step of a military character, with the strongly marked rhythm which is essential in dance numbers, and it is played with splendid precision by this favorite organization. A most desirable addition to the present generous collection of excellent dance numbers in the catalog. Composer, K. L. King.

608 When a Boy from Old New Hampshire Loves a Girl from Tennessee — Byron G. Harlan and Chorus

This sentimental song, with its strongly patriotic vein and engaging waltz air changing to a brisk march tempo in the chorus, is deservedly popular just now. Mr. Harlan, in excellent voice, sings the number with spirit and is given effective assistance by a chorus of mixed voices in the refrain, which is especially catchy and appealing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Wm. Cahalin and Robert P. Roden; music, J. Fred Helf; publishers, J. Fred Helf Company, New York City.

609 Doctors' Testimonials — Golden and Hughes

A vaudeville sketch with a laugh in every line. The testimonials (?) exchanged by two colored members of the medical fraternity who meet on the street are so excruciatingly funny that the title of the song with which the Record closes, "Roll on the Ground," is singularly appropriate. This Record, like all Golden and Hughes selections, will be a heavy seller.

610 The Gateway City March — Charles Daab

Xylophone solo with orchestra accompaniment. The composer of this lively, captivating march, into which is deftly woven the inspiring theme of "Auld Lang Syne," dedicated it most appropriately to the B. P. O. Elks. Both in respect to rendition and reproduction this number is quite up to the standard of previous Records by this exclusive Edison artist, which stamps it as one of the best sellers on the list. Composer, K. L. King; publisher, C. L. Barnhouse, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

611 Somebody Else — Billy Murray & Chorus

A dainty and clever bit of syncopated melody written by the author of the ever-popular "Lonesome" (Standard No. 10219) to which it bears a strong melodic resemblance and with which it vies in catchy tunefulness. The sad burden of the song is the "somebody else" who steals a fellow's sweetheart, and the air is sympathetically plaintive. In singing this popular number Mr. Murray is assisted by a male quartet whose novel rendition of the chorus is especially pleasing. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Jack Drislane; music, Geo. W. Meyer; publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Company, New York City.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

612 The Lord Is My Light — Berrick von Norden

Tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment. The words of this profoundly impressive sacred number are from Psalm XXVII. The music was written by Frances Allitsen, a contemporary composer and concert singer living in London whose settings of songs from the Scriptures and Poets are universally admired. Mr. von Norden, one of the leading oratorio and concert singers of the day and at present soloist of the Temple Emanuel, New York City, toured this country and Canada with Calvé in 1905-1906. This is one of the most beautiful sacred numbers in the Edison catalog. Publishers, Boosey & Company, New York City.

613 Girls of Baden Waltz — New York Military Band

This fascinating waltz, perhaps better known by its German title of "Badner Mad'ln," is the work of a well-known European composer of dance music and has always been a great favorite with devotees of the "light fantastic." It is here played in strict waltz tempo, with absolute precision of rhythm and plenty of volume by an organization of skilled musicians and experienced Record makers, and cannot fail to prove an attractive offering to the dancing public. Composer, Karl Komzak; publishers, Carl Fischer, New York City.

614 Listen to That Jungle Band — Edward Meeker

Clever jungle effects—the roaring of lions, chattering of monkeys, etc—lend a touch of realism to the rendition of this new and popular jungle song, the theme of which is the organization of a band among the leading denizens of the tropical glades. The description of their first rehearsal is very funny. The air is a rollicking, catchy two-step evidently to Mr. Meeker's entire liking, for his rendition is marked by plenty of spirit as well as some clever "business." Orchestra accompaniment. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Kendis & Paley; publishers, Shapiro, New York City.

615 Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes — Stanley & Gillette

"Drink to me only with thine eyes
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss within the cup
And I'll not ask for wine."

"The thirst that from the soul doth rise
Doth ask a drink divine,
But might I of Jove's nectar sip
I would not change for thine."

Baritone and tenor duet with orchestra accompaniment. Few indeed there are who are not familiar with this beautiful old English ballad which dates back to the Shakespearian period. The words were written by the scholarly Ben Jonson and afterwards set to an old English melody which has withstood the test of time. The song is rendered in truly magnificent style by artists whose culture is well known to the Phonograph public. Publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

616 Apple Blossoms — American Standard Orchestra

A bewitching reverie whose alternately dreamy and vivacious moods are irresistible in their effect upon the listener. It is one of the most popular of concert and orchestra numbers, and the finished performance here given it will lend to a full appreciation of its tunefulness. Composer, Kathleen A. Roberts; publisher, Leo Feist, New York City.

617 Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me — Ada Jones & Billy Murray

A conversational duet now being sung with great success in the musical comedy, "Jumping Jupiter," Richard Carle's latest and popular vehicle. Particularly tuneful is the refrain with its engaging two-step swing, in the repetition of which the singers in subdued voice alternate with the orchestra accompaniment. The trilling notes of a canary heard at intervals in the refrain is a pretty feature. A delightful performance which, combined with the popular qualities in the song itself, led to its being placed on sale as a "Special." Words, Irving Berlin; music; Ted Snyder; publishers, Ted Snyder Company, New York City.

618 We're Testing To-Night — Knickerbocker Quartet

Singing without accompaniment these accomplished singers give a beautifully harmonized rendition of the favorite old war-time ballad. Military effects—bugle calls, drum beats, etc. —are introduced at appropriate intervals and lend color to the performance. This Record will be one of the most popular of the list. Music, Walter Kittredge.

619 Porcupine Rag — New York Military Band

A merry and irresistible band number which, to indulge in a play upon words suggested by the title, fairly bristles with tunefulness. Its dash and go are announced at the very start and continue without cessation throughout the number. The most popular band piece of the day. Composer, Chas. J. Johnson; publishers, M. Witmark & Sons, New York City.

Edison Standard Records for February, 1911

United States list, 35 cents; Canada, 40 cents

10466 The Corcoran Cadets March — Sousa's Band

One of Sousa's earliest compositions and considered by many one of his very best. It is a rollicking, dashing march played with vigor and precision—the kind of a Record that drives dull care away. Publisher, Harry Coleman, Philadelphia, Pa.

(Always specify on your orders whether you want Amberol or Standard Records.)

10467 In Dear Old Tennessee — Elizabeth Spencer

Mezzo-soprano solo with orchestra accompaniment. A pretty darkey melody with an unusually catchy refrain in which a darkey's wistful musing opens up a charming vista of the cotton fields. In her treatment of this melodious fragment Miss Spencer displays an abundance of the wealth of voice and expression which has won her an enviable reputation in musical comedy and vaudeville. Words, Olive R. Frields; music, Harry L. Newman; publishers, Shapiro, New York City.

10468 Saviour, More Than Life — Anthony & Harrison

The rendition of this beloved hymn, the work of those prolific writers of devotional numbers, Fanny J. Crosby and W. H. Doane, is thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of the selection; which is quite as extended a comment as an Anthony & Harrison Record ever requires. This is another notable addition to the already well stocked Edison library of sacred songs. Orchestra accompaniment.

10469 A Rose Fable — Frank Ormsby

"Why are roses sweet
That crown my lady's head?
Because a lover's heart, they say,
Each fragrant rose has fed.

"Why do roses droop
And slowly fade away?
Because they weep through all the fall,
Love only lives for aye."

Tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment. A popular song classic of exceptional charm and merit widely used as a recital number. Mr. Ormsby, who here makes his first solo Record, sings it with rare style and expression. His beautiful tenor voice of wide register and robust quality, we are assured, will commend him at once to the Phonograph public. Particular attention is drawn to the delightful accompaniment. Music, C. B. Hawley; publishers, The John Church Company, New York City.

10470 Spanish from "The Nations" — Victor Herbert and His Orchestra

The Spanish number of a suite of compositions showing the style and character of the music of various nations. Typically and delightfully Spanish in style, with contrasting episodes of surge and dreamy, languorous movements, with the clicking of castanets to lend fuel to the imagination of the listener, and with the brilliant interpretation given it by the inimitable Herbert and his accomplished artists, it is indeed a rarely attractive Record. Composer, M. Mendoza; publisher, Carl Fischer, New York City.

10471 That's the Fellow I Want To Get — Billy Murray

Comic song with orchestra accompaniment. The iceman made the fatal mistake of incurring little Willie's mortal enmity, and the diabolical revenge which that ingenious youngster took, while somewhat roundabout in its method, was none the less novel and effective. The story is set to a good, "swingy" air and recited in Billy Murray's most entertaining style. Words, Alfred Bryan; music, Geo. W. Meyer, publishers, F. B. Haviland Publishing Company, New York City.

10472 Oh, You Dream — Ada Jones & Billy Murray

A popular song on the light sentimental order set to a bewitchingly pretty waltz melody and here sung as a conversational duet. The theme is built upon the ridiculous things a fellow is supposed to do and say when he is in love and in the presence of his inamorata, and it is altogether probable that some of the extravagant expressions quoted will have a reminiscent flavor for many of the sterner sex. Miss Jones and Mr. Murray have made a most attractive Record of this number. Orchestra accompaniment. Words, William Jerome; music, Jean Schwartz; publishers, Jerome H. Remick & Company, New York City.

10473 There's a Light in the Window — Will Oakland

Counter-tenor solo with orchestra accompaniment. A dear old song which was popular the country over some twenty-five years or more back and which will be remembered with pleasure by many as one of the favorite numbers of the old-time minstrels. The story is of a mother's incessant vigil for her missing sailor boy's return, in hopeful expectation of which each night she places a beacon light in her cottage window. Mr. Oakland's Record will do much to revive the popularity of the song. Words and music, Bobby Newcomb; publishers, T. B. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York City.

10474 In Absence — Weber Male Quartet

Male voices unaccompanied. One of six four-part songs for male voices written by Dudley Buck, the noted American organist and composer, and dedicated to the Apollo Club of Boston. This is the first Record made for the Edison catalog by this organization, the members of which are each soloists doing church work. As a quartet they are well known in concert circles. The harmonization of this number is superb. Words, Phoebe Cary; publishers, Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, Mass.

10475 Alpine Rose — Charles Daab

Bells solo with orchestra accompaniment. The title of this number is suggestive of its delicate, graceful character. It is one of the prettiest bell numbers we have ever catalogued. The bells and Bells Records made by this exclusive Edison artist, who is acknowledgedly the most expert in his line before the public, are notable not alone for their brilliancy of performance but for their wonderful clearness and naturalness of reproduction. Composer, Harry J. Lincoln; publishers, Vanderahoe Music Publishing Company, Williamsport, Pa.

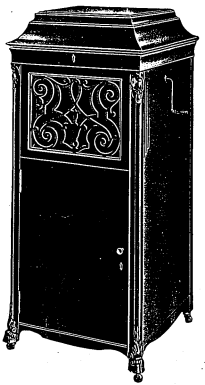
About Recording Horns



We have decided to discontinue the manufacture of the special Recording Horn mentioned on page 31 of form No. 1780, and again on page 12 of form No. 1865.

Our reason for this decision is the fact that satisfactory amateur two-minute records can be made on Edison Phonographs with the horns with which they are equipped, and with the regular recorders supplied with certain types of our machines, or sold as an extra, as listed in our regular catalogue.

Don't omit a reference to Edison Foreign Records in your ads, and if you are located among foreigners, let your window cards speak in their native tongues.
